$105,800 Suit Filed Against Dr. Harris

A malpractice suit in the amount of $105,800 has been filed in 51st District Court by Mrs. Winnie E. Tidwell of Bronte against Dr. John R. Harris, also of Bronte. The suit was filed last Monday, Nov. 19.

District Clerk J. L. Tinkler said this week that in all probability the suit would be docketed to come before the court in February 1963.

The plaintiff's petition alleges that Dr. Harris or persons under his supervision during an operation, left a gauze pack in the body cavity of her late husband, Theron E. Tidwell Sr., and that the pack almost a year later caused Mr. Tidwell's death.

The petition says that the operation in question was performed Sept. 15, 1961, and that Mr. Tidwell died on Sept. 5, 1962.

The amount of damages asked for in the suit is divided as follows: For loss of earning power from the time of the operation Sept. 15, 1961, until his death Sept. 5, 1962, $55,800; for mental pain and anguish caused to the deceased, $20,000; for loss of financial support, care and guidance provided by the deceased to the plaintiff, $30,000.

Aubrey Stokes of San Angelo is attorney for the plaintiff.

Mrs. Tidwell, a long time resident of Bronte, operates a cafe here and is also employed by the Bronte School as a school bus driver.

Dr. Harris has been practicing medicine in Bronte for more than 15 years and is owner and operator of the Harris Clinic and the Bronte Hospital.

UNCLE HUIE from HOG CREEK says

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

My old lady was in town last week and she brung home one of them slick magazines fer wimmen. On account of me not gitting my weekly dose of fine reading material from the Department of Agriculture and them other Government agencies, I picked up this thing the other night to give it a glimpse of two.

Things is going on in this country, Mister Editor, that the men-folks don't know about. Some of the items that was in that magazine ought to be barred under the Fifth amendment. Fer instant, one of them female writers allowed as how the average man could tell everthing he knowed in one hour flat. Personal, I don't think it would slow down his conversation much. After that he could set in and talk about wimmen.

And another woman writer was claiming that they is a plot among men writers to git wives back in the kitchen. I think this statement was a little overdrawed and that most men would be satisfied just to git the wife back in the house. But the item that put the stopper in the jug was this piece by some woman pefesser at one of them big female colleges in the East. First off, she says gossip is good fer wimmen, claims the reason wimmen live longer than men is because they relax by gossiping. If that's true, Mister Editor, we got several female characters out this way that'll live to be 187.

And she claimed a "survey" showed that wimmen was talking a heap slower than they was 20 year ago. Just how you could git a "survey" on this subject is a mystery to me. But I reckon its' possible. Fer instant, I was reading in one of them pamphlets from the Agriculture Department the other week where the 1961 pickle census was now complete and we had a bumper crop of 7 billion cucumbers. And so, pickles or wimmen, I reckon the situation can git "surveyed."

This woman pefesser didn't say why they was talking slower. I figger it must be on account of them running out of breath. It shore ain't because they is running out of something to say or because they is putting more thought behind it.

But this will give you a idea, Mister Editor, of what's going on in them slick magazines fer wimmen. I aim to tear out a few pages of this magazine and send 'em to my Congressman and ask him if he don't think it's time fer a official investigation of the matter. I had half a mind to mention it to my old lady but the other half told me to keep quiet. Discussing matters of this nature with my old lady is harder than trying to read a newspaper in the car with all the windows open. And, incidental, if you don't hear from me next week you'll know she saw this piece afore I could git it cut out.

Yours truly,
Uncle Huie

UNCLE HUIE from HOG CREEK says

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

My old lady was in town last week and she brung home one of them slick magazines fer wimmen. On account of me not gitting my weekly dose of fine reading material from the Department of Agriculture and them other Government agencies, I picked up this thing the other night to give it a glimpse of two.

Things is going on in this country, Mister Editor, that the men-folks don't know about. Some of the items that was in that magazine ought to be barred under the Fifth amendment. Fer instant, one of them female writers allowed as how the average man could tell everthing he knowed in one hour flat. Personal, I don't think it would slow down his conversation much. After that he could set in and talk about wimmen.

And another woman writer was claiming that they is a plot among men writers to git wives back in the kitchen. I think this statement was a little overdrawed and that most men would be satisfied just to git the wife back in the house. But the item that put the stopper in the jug was this piece by some woman pefesser at one of them big female colleges in the East. First off, she says gossip is good fer wimmen, claims the reason wimmen live longer than men is because they relax by gossiping. If that's true, Mister Editor, we got several female characters out this way that'll live to be 187.

And she claimed a "survey" showed that wimmen was talking a heap slower than they was 20 year ago. Just how you could git a "survey" on this subject is a mystery to me. But I reckon its' possible. Fer instant, I was reading in one of them pamphlets from the Agriculture Department the other week where the 1961 pickle census was now complete and we had a bumper crop of 7 billion cucumbers. And so, pickles or wimmen, I reckon the situation can git "surveyed."

This woman pefesser didn't say why they was talking slower. I figger it must be on account of them running out of breath. It shore ain't because they is running out of something to say or because they is putting more thought behind it.

But this will give you a idea, Mister Editor, of what's going on in them slick magazines fer wimmen. I aim to tear out a few pages of this magazine and send 'em to my Congressman and ask him if he don't think it's time fer a official investigation of the matter. I had half a mind to mention it to my old lady but the other half told me to keep quiet. Discussing matters of this nature with my old lady is harder than trying to read a newspaper in the car with all the windows open. And, incidental, if you don't hear from me next week you'll know she saw this piece afore I could git it cut out.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Huie

"Deck the Halls with Holly" was the theme of a Christmas foods program given last week by Miss Jimmie Temple, home economist for Lone Star Gas Co., in the Bronte School auditorium to 106 persons from all areas of Coke County.

One of the most interesting Christmas ideas given was the table cloth used on the table. Miss Temple showed a white sheet which had holly leaves cut from green percale ironed on for a design. A medium cold starch solution was used to make the percale leaves stick. Artificial holly berries were added to the design by carefully working the small wire through the sheet, or these could be tacked to the sheet. After the holiday, the design could be removed by laundering the sheet.

Some of the other ideas passed on to the group were various ways to wrap home cooked foods for gift items. Recipes for cakes, breads, nibbles, candies, jelly and pickle peas were given.

Mrs. C. E. Arrott and Mrs. O. R. McQueen, Bronte Home Demonstration Club members were at the registration table during the program. Mrs. Fay C. Roe, County Home Demonstration Agent, introduced Miss Temple.

In a recent meeting of the Bronte Sr. Home Demonstration Club, the group voted to send a contribution to their "adopted boy" in the State School in Austin. During the session Mrs. R. S. Walton, secretary, read a letter from the hospital stating that out of 1600 patients there, over half were not remembered by relations at Christmas. It made me very happy to see these ladies wish to share with less fortunate people a little of what they have. The Home Demonstration Council also made contributions to two hospitals. Some of the other HD Clubs will do likewise. I hope other organizations will follow the example set by these clubs. It will take only a little from us to send some joy into some less fortunate person's life during the holidays.

Everywhere people say, "I am so busy," or "I don't have time for so and so"—maybe you can use some of these short cuts to an advantage:

Cook once for two or three meals by preparing double or triple quantities of a favorite recipe and storing away in the freezer for later use.

Cook a pound of bacon in the oven at once, then freeze or refrigerate the slices flat. They will be ready on a broiler pan for breakfast in no time with no mess or grease.

Package hamburgers, bacon, chops, steaks, and sliced meat so they may be removed from the freezer in the desired number of portions. Separate portions, in each package, with a double thickness of wax paper. At preparation time, insert blunt knife between the pieces of wax paper, give a little twist, and the portions will separate.

A few minutes spent as you put away food will save many minutes in preparation time later on. Allow time after shopping to put foods away ready for immediate use—washed, trimmed, chopped or frozen.

Buy in quantity, if your storage permits. Such things as paper items, laundry supplies, bottled goods can be purchased in sizeable quantities. A variety of canned, packaged and frozen foods can be bought in amounts suitable for your use. Buy foods in the container size which fits your serving habits. Three small packages instead of one large one may save time in repackaging.

Guests in the home of Mrs. Willie B. Millikin Thanksgiving were her children, the Bobby Clarks of Abilene and the R. J. Millikins of Christoval. A nephew, A. M. Racer, and his wife of San Antonio spent Thanksgiving night with Mrs. Millikin. They were on their way to Denver, where he will attend a school.
