Glenn, president, said the bank is giving the dollars to customers to get them to come into the bank. "We want to get to know them better and we want them to get to know us better," Glenn said. He added that any of the bank's customers who live outside the Bronte trade area may write in and the bank will send them a free dollar.

Home Needs Employee Applications

(Editor's note: The following statement was submitted this week by L. O. Clark, administrator of Bronte Nursing Home, with the hope it will encourage local residents to submit applications for employment at the home.)

Bronte Nursing Home and health facilities in the immediate area are in constant need of dedicated employees who are willing to work. State regulatory agencies which license these facilities to operate as hospitals and nursing homes require a certain number of licensed nurses, maintenance, dietary, housekeeping and laundry personnel to perform the work necessary to maintain the operation.

It must be understood that without the required staff they cannot be issued licenses to sustain operation. Administrators of these health care facilities plead for applications from dedicated people to administer to the sick.

When applications are not available the only recourse to be taken would be to discontinue operations and deprive citizens of a small community the use of needed health care.

This situation has been a problem at Bronte Nursing Home since its inception. I am again issuing a plea for applications to the citizens of Bronte to supply personnel for their nursing home.

In the event personnel are not available from local citizens, personnel must be obtained from other communities which will create a greater cost to the taxpayers. If they are not available from outside, the health care unit would have to be discontinued.

CLASS OF 1948 TO HAVE 25TH ANNIVERSARY REUNION

The Bronte High School graduating class of 1948 will celebrate their 25th Anniversary Saturday, June 16, at 7 p.m. in the Bronte School lunchroom.

All former classmates, including those who were members of the class at any time, parents and teachers are invited and urged to attend and help make the reunion outstanding.

After "Roll Call" by Class President Bill Thomas, a pot luck supper will be served.

A "Remember When" program is planned and members are asked to bring school pictures.

Bronte Nursing Home is operating at full capacity, according to Administrator L. O. Clark. The local facility now has 40 residents and a waiting list of persons who would like to reside at the home.

Applications are being taken for future residents and anyone who is interested in entering the home should obtain necessary forms at the business office.

The number of residents at the home has been increasing slowly but steadily since its opening, and as word spreads of the excellent care and food furnished each resident, the board of directors feels that extended periods with vacant rooms are unlikely.

Administrator Clark recently attended the 44th Annual Texas Hospital Association Convention and Exhibit in Houston. The convention was held concurrently with the Texas Association of Homes for the Aging and nearly two dozen other health related organizations.

Theme of the convention was "Living with Change." Clark stated his primary reasons for attendance was to be present for the work shops on inservice training and the address of Dr. James H. Cavanaugh, President Nixon's staff assistant for health affairs.

It also provided an opportunity to hear Dr. Marie Callender, special assistant for nursing home affairs to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who told of the President's plans to upgrade the quality of care in nursing homes.

The exhibit show had the latest in supplies and equipment available to the health care field. Clark said he felt he received valuable training and information which will help him keep up with the continued requirement that will enable Bronte Nursing Home to achieve its ultimate objective of providing excellence in health care for its patients.

Clark also had the pleasure of attending the opening session of the convention with his son, the Rev. Ron Clark, Chaplain of the Amarillo Hospital district. Rev. Clark was elected vice president of the Texas Association of Protestant Chaplains for Texas Hospitals at the meeting.

LIFESAVING CLASSES OFFERED AT LOCAL POOL

Ann Harris is conducting lifesaving courses at the pool in the Bronte County Park each day at 11 a.m. and anyone interested is invited to take the lessons. There is no charge for the instruction.

Dick Cooper, park manager, said young people 15 years of age and older are especially urged to take the course. He pointed out that no one knows when he might need to rescue a person from drowning.

Cooper also announced that the park management has a rule against youngsters wearing T-shirts with beer advertisements printed on them. He said kids wearing the shirts will not be admitted to the pool.

Rep. Renal Rosson Has Busy Time During Session of Texas Legislature

Rep. Renal B. Rosson of Snyder, commenting at the close of the regular session of the legislature in Austin this week, said that in many respects it was a good session for West Texas and for the taxpayers.

The appropriations bill provided the essential needs of the state, and did so without an increase in any state tax rates. Rep. Rosson had an important part in drafting the appropriations bill, serving on the house committee during the many hours of committee hearings and study.

More importantly, he was one of five House members on the final drafting group—the all important conference committee. "I was the only member of either branch living west of the Brazos River to serve on that committee, and I feel that we did a good job of meeting the needs of West Texas and its people," commented Rosson.

In addition to committee responsibility, he sponsored a substantial number of bills and resolutions.

Among those passed were House Bill 1570 providing that a warehouseman could store his wholly owned and debt free grain in his own warehouse without necessity of carrying insurance, provided there was no other grain in the warehouse.

He was house sponsor of Senate Bill 231 (Hightower) allowing the Parole Compact Commissioner to designate representatives to act during his official absences to further the work of the interstate parole compact.

Rosson cosponsored the bill which allows the Parks and Wildlife Commission to license aerial hunters of predatory animals in the western part of the state. This was a bill considered vital to the sheep, goat and cattle raisers of the western half of Texas.

He cosponsored two bills to improve fiscal accounting and responsibility on the part of state agencies, one providing that each agency operate on a quarter to quarter budget to assure even spending of funds without a temptation to overspend in any one period, and the other directing the Legislative Budget Board to study practices of earmarking revenues and priority allocation of funds.

He was cosponsor of the bill adopting Title II of the Family Code.

Rosson was joined by Rep. Joe Hanna of Breckenridge and Rep. E. L. Short of Tahoka in an early recognition of the role of the Railroad Commission in meeting local energy needs, sponsoring House Concurrent Resolution 103 directing the Railroad Commission to hold hearings on the Big Spring area problem of LPG diversion to pipeline carriers from former dock customers.

He was also sponsor of a simple resolution to extend the life of an existing Legislative study committee investigating the wide variations in extended coverage insurance rates in certain zones of West Texas. Some relief already has resulted for the counties of the West Texas area as a result of the previous study, and further effort will be made to bring regional rates in line with those in other counties — sometimes merely across a county line.

"Incidentally," Rosson observed, "our insurance study resolution was pulled from a big stack of pending matters in the last hour of the session and was the measure voted on before the gavel fell at midnight to end the 63rd's regular session."

He worked even harder, but with less success to obtain passage of proposed constitutional amendments to permit assessing of agricultural lands on valuations based on capacity to produce, rather than market value—which often results from speculative buying. His HJR 59 was one which was on the calendar for the entire final week of the session, but failed to reach actual debate.

"It puts more light on the problems in land taxation when that section of the proposed new state constitution is being drafted next year, even though we failed to pass it this time," said Rosson.

Ready to Eat Canned Meats

Ready to eat canned meats stretch family "meat dollars" while offering nutritious, appealing menu variety.

In fact, they furnish as much nutrition as home prepared meats.

A three ounce serving furnishes more than one-third of the daily protein needs of an adult.

A 12 ounce can makes a satisfying, economical main dish for four persons.

Serve these meats hot or cold—in casseroles, sandwich fillings, creamed sauces or salads.

Combined with pasta, rice, legumes, cheese or eggs, serving size can be reduced and still provide an abundance of high quality nutrients.

Canned meats also represent additional advantages or conveniences.

For one they need no refrigeration until opened—making them ideal for summer picnicking and camping.

In addition, there's little or no shrinkage in home preparation—canned meats consist of select beef or pork, completely cooked in the canning process.

These products contain government inspected meats—carefully trimmed and boned before processing.

Another advantage—since all ingredients are listed on the container, consumers know what they're getting.

For example, chopped beef contains 100 per cent finely chopped beef—chopped ham, 100 per cent cured chopped ham.

They usually represent best buys on a cost per serving basis, as does luncheon meat, which is mainly pork shoulder meat—sometimes with beef or ham added.

Consumer Clips

Meat quality grading and meat inspection are two different things. All meat is inspected to be certain that it is safe to eat, but not all meat is graded for quality. Quality grading is not mandatory, but meat inspection is. Both the inspection and grading services are provided by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Now that the weather's warming up, it's time to start storing the dried fruits you buy in the refrigerator. They'll maintain their quality better that way during the summer months.

Celery is great for use in salads or as an hors d'oeuvre. When you buy celery, look for solid, rigid stalks with green leaflets that look fresh or only slightly wilted. The stalks should be light green or medium green with a glossy surface.

After high school, will your kid go to work, or to college?

High school is the end of Free Education.

If your child decides to go on to college it'll take money. Lots of money. Money that you should probably be saving right now.

And there's no better way to start a college savings fund than by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. That way an amount you specify will be set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U. S. Savings Bonds. Before you know it you'll have a nice little college fund on hand.

Now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra

3 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan. And, if your child keeps studying and you keep saving, you'll both be ready for college.

Bonds are sold 1/8 cent, 1/4 cent, or 1/2 cent, or more, above their face value. They may be delivered and redeemed. And always remember, Bonds are a good way to save.

Take stock in America.
 Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Retirement.

The end of work, or the beginning of worry?

Most people look toward retirement as a time of relaxation and enjoyment. And it can be if you prepare for it. But if you don't, it can be a time of worry and discontentment. A time when you can look back and think of a million ways that you could have saved, but didn't.

Well, there's no better time to think about retirement than now, while you're working.

One easy way to save on a regular basis is by purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds; 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months

(4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. They'll help make your retirement just what you want it to be.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

CRMWD Meets, Studies Improvement Of Water Quality in Lake E. V. Spence

(Editor's note: The following article was taken from the San Angelo Standard-Times and concerns the quality of water in Lake E. V. Spence.)

Big Spring — directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District believe the quality of water in its main reservoir, Lake E. V. Spence, will improve by drying out a couple of smaller lakes.

They are prepared to invest around $160,000—possibly more—in the effort to improve water quality. Directors approved the project as it was outlined Tuesday by O. H. Ivie, general manager of the lake, in which wells would withdraw water from at least two playa lakes west of Big Spring and boost the water back upstream for impoundment behind a natural dam on Sulphur Draw.

According to Ivie, if the district had been able during the past two years to stop all the flow coming through the chain of shallow lakes on Beal's Creek, above Big Spring, water in Lake Spence might have nearly 100 ppm (parts per million) chlorides today.

Ivie and Paschal Odom, assistant general manager who has supervised studies on the Beal's Creek problem, detailed how a series of test holes have indicated that most of the Beal's Creek pollution stems from the chloride and sulphate residuals which have accumulated in depressions over a great length of time.

When rains come streams flow from one lake to another and finally into the creek channel and finally reach the Colorado River and Lake Spence. In dry season there is an underflow which emerges as seep springs to feed the creek. Several wells at the head of Three Mile Lake west of Big Spring would have the effect of draining this and four mile lake, said Ivie.

In the opinion of Ed Reed, Midland hydrologist, these also might intercept most of the overflow and also increase the gradient on lakes upstream so they would flow into the three and four mile basins.

Ivie said a 10 or 12 inch pipeline would carry the diverted water nearly six miles west for storage behind the natural dam. This impounds the natural lake that has a surface area of some 1,120 acres. If investigation shows this natural structure has underflow, wells could pick it up and recirculate to the lake at a relatively nominal cost, according to Reed.

Samples have shown the quality of water leaving Big Spring and arriving in the Colorado River above Silver is relatively unchanged, indicating most of the pollution is west of Big Spring, said Ivie. If the playa lakes can be dried, the district may consider ditches and channels to insure that fresh water inflows will pass quickly through the basins without absorbing much of the chlorides in the lake beds. Planning is under way on the diversion project.

The board approved granting of a 15 acre lease for a recreation concession near the dam at Lake Spence. It also authorized receiving bids for pickup trucks.

Ivie reported a $200,000 appropriation had been voted by the legislature for the Texas Water

Beauty you can buy, but maybe shouldn't . . . Semi-permanent false eyelashes may give your eyes the best batting average on the block, but there are some drawbacks you should know about, before you dash to your local beauty salon. The lashes, which are individually applied for that coveted natural look, are expensive, probably will not last as long as implied, and can cause medical problems.

If hypoallergenic surgical adhesive is used to attach the lashes (they're glued directly to one's own eyelashes, eliminating the eyelid band), there shouldn't be any problem. Sometimes, however, epoxy glue is used because it holds better — and epoxy glue is too strong and dangerous for the eye area. The danger is that it can easily get onto the surrounding skin, and even into the eye.

Nor are the lashes as permanent as the manufacturers want you to believe. In fact, they shouldn't be expected to last more than two or three weeks. And each time they fall out, they have to be replaced, at additional cost. Also, they may be stiffer or longer than natural lashes and will cause even more irritation if they fall into the eye. If you wear contact lens, the new lashes are definitely not recommended.

Better birth control . . . A recent study shows the double-coil intrauterine birth control device (IUD) more effective than the sequential oral contraceptives (the pill) in preventing pregnancy. The failure rate among the 27,712 women using the IUD for a total of more than 500,000 menstrual periods, was only 0.8 percent, compared with 1.4 percent for the pill. In the study, conducted by Archibald F. Caraway, M.D., of the Florida Bureau of Maternal Health and Family Planning, the expulsion rate was 7.5 percent and the removal rate only 3.7 percent.

Menstrual cramps . . . Aspirin, or other simple painkillers, and normal activity are the best treatments for teenagers suffering from menstrual cramps, says the American Academy of Pediatrics. Warning against excessive restriction of activity, the Academy says it's unhealthy and "can actually make the pain worse."

Menstrual pain occurs only after ovulation (if ovulation does not take place during a cycle, the next period will be painless). If the pain is incapacitating, hormone therapy can be used to suppress ovulation. But this treatment is not recommended for every case and should only be used after consulting with a gynecologist experienced in caring for adolescents.

"Menstrual cramps are common in teenagers," says the Academy. They are not a sign of ill health or disease of the reproductive organs.

Thoughts
From The Living Bible

And remember that your heavenly Father to whom you pray has no favorites when he judges. He will judge you with perfect justice for everything you do; so act in reverent fear of him from now on until you get to heaven. God paid a ransom to save you from the impossible road to heaven which your fathers tried to take, and the ransom he paid was not mere gold or silver, as you very well know. But he paid for you with the precious lifeblood of Christ, the sinless, spotless Lamb of God.
