A PATHETIC SCENE ENACTED AT HAMILTON

Father Gains Possession of Little Child, but People Object and Child is With Mother.

Sheriff Denman is home from Hamilton where he took the little child of Mr. and Mrs. Wright on a habeas corpus writ to appear in court in a suit for its possession by the parents. Mr. Denman says the scene enacted in the court house there upon the decision of the judge giving the child to the father was the most heart rending of any it has ever been his misfortune to witness. The child it seems is old enough to realize the meaning of the decision and when the judge said it should be given into the care of the father, the little one flew to its mother's embrace and the two cried as if their hearts would break at mere mention of separation. The scene was so pathetic that strong men and ladies in attendance upon the trial, were moved to tears. The sheriff was ordered to give the child into possession of the father and when he approached the mother and child to execute the order of the court his heart failed him and he stood back with folded arms and tear dimmed eyes.

The scene was so affecting that the people, about five hundred strong, rose up in indignant wrath. Notwithstanding the orders of the court the mother passed out of the court room and down the stairs with her child at her side and the sympathizing onlookers closely following. At the court house door was awaiting carriage to take the child and father away, but the people did not propose that such should be its fate. Just as the friends of the father were about to snatch the little one from its mother's embrace, a big brawny fellow stepped up and asked the mother if she really desired to retain the little one and when informed that she did at any cost he pushed up his sleeves and announced that he would make short work of the man who laid hands on the child. The crowd at his back cheered and say "ay. Whether right or wrong they have the sympathy of the majority and people who hear of their action applaud it.

What the outcome will be is not known. The attorney for the father announces that they will have the child, but notwithstanding it returned to Brownwood with its mother and awaits further legal developments.—Brownwood Bulletin.

THE ROBERT LEE HIGH SCHOOL

OFFERS TO THE PEOPLE OF COKE COUNTY
A COURSE OF STUDY THAT IS

THOROUGH|PRACTICAL|PROGRESSIVE|ECONOMICAL

THOROUGH because it embraces every subject necessary for the symmetrical development and proper equipment of the mind.

PRACTICAL because the curriculum contains no uselessologies or dead matter. Only those subjects are included that are essential to the preparation for citizenship.

PROGRESSIVE because each subject is taught in a scientific manner by a competent and experienced teacher. Its work conforms to the requirements of the "Correlated School System."

ECONOMICAL because by eliminating all unnecessary work the pupil is enabled to save at least one year's time and expenses. Because Board and Tuition are furnished at actual cost, and there are no extras to take his money.

The people of Hamilton are law abiding citizens, but when the law says separate a loving and tender mother from her child, they rise up in a righteous indigbut we don't think they are doing a great deal of damage, for the cotton is loaded and there will be plenty left on the stalk.

MAY ESTABLISH THE CONFEDERATE GROUNDS

The Colorado-Concho Confederate Veterans Association Want Ground on Which to Hold Annual Reunions.

Mr. H. D. Pearce, who is secretary of the Colorado-Concho Confederate Veterans Association of Bronte, was in the city several days this week, visiting his son, H. H. Pearce, and incidentally looking into the proposition of securing one hundred acres of land on which to locate permanent grounds for the Colorado-Concho Confederate Veterans Association. At their last meeting some money was donated for the purpose of improving a permanent meeting place on which they would hold their annual reunion from two to five days each year. Mr. Pearce is one of a committee of six selected to secure grounds and he is desirous of securing grounds at or near Robert Lee. The proposition is to secure enough money to make the first payment on the land which will take about $600. After that is done he will present the matter to the other members of the committee and see what can be done in securing it for this place. Robert Lee would be greatly benefited by having the veterans, sons and daughters hold their reunions at or near here and everything possible should be done to secure the grounds and induce them to come here in annual assembly. It would do more than most anything else to show to the outside world the wonderful Colorado Valley country and her resources and would be the means of bringing a great number of good people as citizens. Nothing would be a better advertisement than to have from two to ten thousand visitors here once a year. Of course nothing is certain about getting it but it will be located somewhere in the district and we should have it if possible. Below is a subscription list which has been started to raise the amount $600 to make the first payment on the grounds. Come in and have your name enrolled with a donation.

We, the undersigned citizens of Coke county, Texas, do hereby pledge ourselves to pay the amounts set opposite our names, on demand, for the purpose of helping to defray the expense of buying a tract of land of about one hundred acres, on which to locate, permanently, the Colorado-Concho Confederate Reunion Association.

Said Association to be located on either the 106-acre tract west of C. A. Gates, and south of T. J. Rankin's, on Mess box creek, about two miles west of Robert Lee, or, on the north part of Chas. Roe's land on Mess box creek, about two miles northwest of Robert Lee.

In case the Reunion grounds are located on either of these places then we agree to pay the amounts on demand.

In case the Reunion grounds are not located on either of these tracts, then this instrument is of no effect.

PEAKS OF GOLF BALLS.

Have Killed Birds on the Wing and Caused a Sheep to Drop Dead.

It does not often happen that a bird falls a victim to a golf ball in its flight, although such a mishap has occurred in two or three instances, says London Tit-Bits.

Not long ago an incident of this kind was reported from Raynes Park Golf club. It took place in the course of a bogie competition. One of the players, a Mr. Crocker, having driven off at the eleventh tee, his ball created some astonishment by coming in contact with a lark in midair and literally knocking off its head.

A similar incident happened last season but one on the ground of the Birkdale club. Two members were playing a round when one of them made a brassie shot. The ball was in full flight when a bird of the wagtail species was seen crossing the line of flight, and the next moment both objects came into collision at a distance of about forty paces from the striker.

The consequences were fatal to the unfortunate bird, which was not only killed, but decapitated. As for the golf ball, its flight was stopped by the impact, the ball falling to the ground within a few yards of its slaughtered victim. The incident had the further object of losing the player the match, he having to make an extra stroke or two to cover the distance short covered, thus costing him the game.

A still more extraordinary freak of a golf ball resulted in a tragedy on the Balcomie links in Scotland. In the course of a match one of the players, in his drive from the sixth tee, put so much vigor into it that the ball struck a sheep on the head with such force as to cause it to fall dead on the spot.

A very different, but no less interesting, story was reported from another links in Scotland about the same time. In a foursome match, played at North Berwick, one of the golfers drove his ball against a wall. It rebounded into some rough grass and for a few minutes could not be traced, but ultimately the caddie found the ball lying in a lark's nest, in which were four eggs all unbroken. For a ball to drop into a nest of eggs without breaking any was surely an extraordinary occurrence.

It is not long since a player at Woking in approaching the hole landed a ball on the top of the clubhouse. This little incident did not, however, upset his equilibrium very much. As nimbly as he could he followed the ball to the roof and from that coign of disadvantage played it so well that he was successful in securing a half of a hole which everybody considered irretrievably lost.

A similar scene was once witnessed on the St. Andrews links in the course of a three ball match. One of the players happened to drive his ball on to the corrugated iron roof of a shed and, in the belief that he had consequently given up the hole, the other two calmly proceeded with the match. But they had reckoned without their host, for the next moment there was a great clatter of feet on the iron roof. Barely had the warning cry of "fore" reached the players' ears when a ball whizzed on to the course close by. It was that of the other player, who had mounted to the roof and played it from that unexpected corner.

Points on a Point.

A student undergoing examination in the principles of mechanics was asked, "Why will not a pin stand on its point?" He returned the following answer: "In the first place, a point is defined by Euclid as that which has no parts and no magnitude, and how can a pin stand on that which has no parts and no magnitude? In the second place, a pin will not stand on its head; much less, therefore, will it stand on its point. Thirdly and lastly, it will if you stick it in hard enough."

Origin of a Much Quoted Saw.

The origin of "A fool and his money are soon parted" has not been ascertained with certainty, but the following story is sometimes told: "George Buchanan, tutor to James IV. of Scotland, made a bet with a courtier that he (Buchanan) could make a coarser verse than the courtier. Buchanan rose and, picking up the courtier's money, walked off with the remark, 'A fool and his money are soon parted.'"

SHE MADE CHANGE.

A New but a Mean Way to Collect an Old Debt.

A woman in stunning attire got aboard a Columbus avenue car at Forty-ninth street. When the conductor called for her fare she gave him a five dollar bill. He put the usual question about smaller change and she gave the usual negative reply. The situation was unpleasant, especially for the conductor. Obviously she was such a fine lady that to put her off the car for non-payment of fare would be to invite his own downfall. He looked at the men who sat near, with an urgent appeal for a nickel in his eyes, but those unchivalrous passengers were insured to the woes of the woman who travels with five dollar bills.

The woman got nervous. "What shall I do?" she said. "Perhaps I can find somebody who has change for the bill," said the conductor.

He sounded several people on the subject, but they proved to be short of change. Presently a woman up front said, "I have the change."

At the sound of her voice the owner of the five dollar bill turned with a startled air and blushed violently.

"You need not bother about the change," she said. "I believe I will get off at the next corner, anyway." The conductor said, "All right," and reached out his hand for the bill, but the second woman had already tucked it into her pocketbook and had counted out 50 cents in nickels and dimes.

"Here," she said, "give this to her and tell her I have kept back the $4.50 she has owed me for a year and a half."

The conductor looked from one to the other helplessly. "Give it to her," was the supplementary command. "She'll take it. She knows better than to raise a row."

He tendered the 50 cents to the well-gowned woman. She picked 45 cents out of his palm and started toward the door.

"You mean old thing," she shrieked at the woman who made change. And then she left the car. —New York Press.

Followed Instructions.

"Gracious, man!" exclaims the doctor when Mr. Glubbins calls him in a hurry. "Your temperature is rioting along near the danger point, and you!"

"And I'm worse off than I ever was before, all through the diet you prescribed."

"Impossible, Mr. Glubbins. I told you distinctly to confine yourself to such foods as would be taken by a three-year-old child."

"And didn't I follow orders? I ate apple cores and dog biscuits and ends of burned matches and scraps of potato peeling and everything else I could pick up while no one was looking—and here I am pretty near dead!"

Hastily reflecting upon the gastronomical tendencies of the average three-year-old child, the doctor tells Mr. Glubbins that he has been overdoing the diet and will have to subsist on soft toast and hot water for a week. —Life.

Naming His Quiverful.

A farmer in an English town has eight daughters, who are named to represent his feelings at the time of their birth. The eldest is called "Joy," and the second bears the name of "Summer," as she was born in July. The third arrived at a time of financial difficulties and would have been called "Sorrow," but her mother refused to have the name. So Sarah was substituted. Things were brighter when number four came, and "Hope" was her portion, while five and six—twins—were respectively "Spring" and "April," this last being their birth month. The seventh was styled "Harvest" and the youngest "Comfort."

Division of Labor.

Two English clergymen, one a very stalwart and muscular Christian, the other a frail little man, went for a sail at Brighton, accompanied by an old salt. When they were some distance out at sea the wind commenced to blow a gale, so the sailor hauled down the sheet and said, "Now one of you gents and me will have to take to the oars to get her home." The muscular Christian said, "Very well, my friend will row, and I will pray." "No, no," responded the sailor; "you row. Let the little un pray."

RUSSIAN VERSUS TURK.

A Contest in Which Ivan Won With Laughable Ease.

Some years ago a Russian and a Turkish officer were having a dispute as to the superiority in discipline of their respective soldiers.

"I can prove to you on the spot," said the Russian, "how perfectly our men are trained," and he called his orderly, "Ivan!" "Sir," "Go to Mehemet's, buy me a pound of tobacco and come back at once."

The soldier saluted, turned on his heel and went out. "Now," said the Russian officer, taking out his watch, "my orderly is walking straight to the next coffee, where he must turn; now he is turning; now he is opposite the white mosque; now he is crossing the maydan; now he is at Mehemet's; now he is buying the tobacco; now he is coming back; now he is on the block below us; now he is at the door; now"—And the Russian called out, "Ivan!"

"Sir."

"Where's my tobacco?"

"Here, sir."

The Turkish officer, showing no sign of surprise at the precision of this Russian tobacco movement, promptly broke out:

"Ho, ho! My soldier can do that every day in the week," and he called, "Muehtar!"

"Sir."

"Go to Ali Effendi's and see that you bring me a pound of tobacco. My pipe is empty."

"Instantly, sir."

Following the tactics of the Russian officer, the Turk pulled out his watch and went on: "Muehtar is in the street; now he is passing the palpooh bazaar; now it is noon and he is saying his prayers; now he is drinking at the stone fountain; now Ali Effendi hails him and asks him about my health; now Muehtar is paying for the tobacco; now he is coming back by another way; now he is on our street; now he is at the door; now—"

"Muehtar!" shouted the officer.

"Sir."

"Where is my tobacco?"

"I haven't found my shoes yet!"

Foiled.

"Did you hear about Samuels?" asked Mrs. Graymare's husband.

"No, I didn't hear about Samuels," the lady answered. "When you have anything to tell, why don't you tell it?"

"Yes, dear. Well, Samuels was going home the other night when a footpad shot at him and the ball hit a latchkey in Samuel's vest pocket, and his life was saved. So you see what good a latchkey is."

"Indeed! If Samuels had been going home at a reasonable hour he would not have met any footpad. Secondly, he carries $1,000 insurance, payable to his wife, and if it had not been for that latchkey she would be a rich widow now. So if you are hunting around for a latchkey you will have to bring back a better story than that one. That's all. I'm going to bed now, and if you want to read you'll have to go to the kitchen, and don't waste the coal." —London Express.

The First Ice Cream.

The glory of introducing ice cream to America is one which, in the minds of the younger element at least, would rival any of the pretensions of Christopher Columbus, Sir Walter Raleigh, Fulton, Howe or Edison. It was Mme. Delacroix to whom Americans are indebted for the beginning of the notorious passion for "cool interiors." Her portrait, one of St. Memin's mezzotints of early American notables, shows her to have been a handsome and forceful character well worthy to go down the long corridors of fame as the mother of ice cream and the stepmother of the ice cream soda industry. —Appleton's Magazine.

Philadelphia Famous Scrapple.

To make Philadelphia scrapple stew two pounds of fresh pork until thoroughly done. Take the meat up and add enough water to the liquor in the kettle to make a quart. Remove the bones and chop the meat, then put it back in the kettle. Season, adding sage or summer savory and onion if desired. Then sift in cornmeal, boiling slowly and stirring as if for mush. Make it thick enough to slice when cold. Turn into a dish, and when wanted for the table slice and fry in drippings. The quantity may be increased, as it will keep a long time in winter.

DUKE MAXIMILIAN.

The Only Money He Ever Earned as a Musician.

The following amusing incident is related of the Duke Maximilian, who was a great lover of the zither, a singularly plaintive instrument and the national guitar of the German Alps. During the summer he delighted in wandering over the mountains in the garb of a common hunter, armed with a rifle, and the zither hung around his shoulders. During one of these excursions he sat down on the trunk of a tree and awakened the echoes of the opposite chain of hills. Concluding he was alone, he reveled long in the sweet sounds. When, however, he ceased some peasants who had been his secret auditors drew near to him, and one addressed the duke in the cordial way of the country, as follows: "Thou, indeed, canst play it wonderfully; now come with us and we will dance to thee in the inn down there. We will pay for as much beer as thou canst drink."

"Thank you," replied the duke, "I am not thirsty, but I shall certainly go with you," which he did, and played for more than two hours in the inn down there."

The peasants and their lassies were in ecstasies while dancing to the tunes of their new friend. With the poetical feeling native to the mountaineers of the Alps, they sang, jumped about and kept up a steady demand for more tunes. The duke, whose face beamed with joy, at length became weary and prepared to leave.

"Thou mayst go," said one of the peasants, "but not till thou hast played the new dance composed by Duke Maximilian. It is the most exquisite piece of music I ever heard. Play it and I'll give thee 24 kreutzers."

The duke complied with the request, took his kreutzers and then departed, when one of the peasants made the following speech to his fellows and their partners: "My dear comrades, permit me to tell you that you are all asses. Every one of you plumes himself on his knowledge of the zither, and none of you while hearing the best player in the land recognized Duke Max. I did at once."

The peasants, still more delighted with the condescension of their illustrious friend, ran after him, thanked him and got the promise that he would play for them once more.

"As to the 24 kreutzers," the duke said, "I will keep them. They are all I have ever made by playing my zither."

A GREAT MAN'S SILENCE.

Calmly Dignified Under the Most Trying Circumstances.

A great man whose wife was devoted to him, but was subject to insane attacks of jealousy and resentment, was once visited at his country house by two old time friends. He welcomed them with marked cordiality, and, seating himself between them on the piazza, was soon deep in confidential conversation. While he was listening to what they had to say and occasionally replying to an argument which seemed to him more plausible than logical the door behind him was suddenly opened, and from it emerged his wife, with an angry face and a pail of water.

Without a word she deliberately upset the pail and drenched him from head to foot. The two friends sprang to their feet in astonishment and caught sight of the resentful woman retreating into the house with a triumphant air.

The man who had been subjected to this shower bath arose without a word, went into the house and in ten minutes returned to the piazza, having made a complete change of dress.

His friends were still in the yard and were wishing that they could be transported by balloon or magic carpet to their own homes, where they would not be witnesses of strange and embarrassing domestic scenes.

Their host called to them and placed the chairs on the piazza. When they were all seated he resumed the conversation with the simple remark, "As I was saying, my friends," and then went on with the discussion, picking up the thread where it had been dropped and making no reference to what had happened.

He was quiet and dignified and did not betray in his manner a trace of the mortification and annoyance which his wife's exasperating attack must have caused.

A weaker man would either have appealed to his friends for sympathy or striven to apologize for the strange and irrational conduct of the woman. He had neither accusations to make nor excuses to offer. He strove to put his friends at ease by diverting their attention from the painful exhibition of his wife's infirmity by engaging them in animated conversation.

So successful was he that the three were soon laughing, chatting and arguing together as though nothing unpleasant had happened.

When the time came for the two visitors to drive to the station to take a train their host said goodbye to them at the gate with the remark that they had had a delightful afternoon together.

The great man loved his wife and knew that she was not responsible at all times for her caprices and resentments. Unwilling to talk about her infirmities, even with old and trusted friends, he acted with rare self possession and good taste in maintaining rigid silence and leaving them to infer for themselves the reasons for his reserve.—Glasgow Times.

His Part.

"Oh, ye-es," remarked Ketchley in a self satisfied way, "Lulu and I will start out in married life under very favorable circumstances. Her mother gives us a neat little home, her father furnishes it, and her Uncle De Long has given a carriage and pair. Besides, Lulu has a snug income in her own name."

"What part do you furnish?"

"Well—principally the name—principally the name."—London Standard.

Private Drury.

M. Drury, an eminent French historian, served when sixty years old during the siege of Paris as a private in the national guard. One day M. Jules Simon, a member of the administration, caught sight of a familiar face belonging to one doing sentry in the uniform of a private soldier. "Is that you, Drury?" he cried.

"To be sure," gruffly.

"And a private!"

"Why not?" said the other laconically. "We can't all be prime ministers."

It Made All the Difference.

An excited individual ran up to a porter at a railway station and asked, "Have you seen a parcel I left on this seat?" The porter replied that he had not. "Oh, what shall I do?" exclaimed the excited passenger. "It contains three poems I have written!" "Can't you write them again?" asked the unsympathetic porter. "Yes, I can do that, but," hesitatingly, "there were two sandwiches in the parcel as well."—Christian World.

SHIPMAN & IZARD

Blind to Signals.

A brakeman retired to a farm and started to lead the simple life. Having a piece of new land to break, he hitched up a team of mules, wrapped the lines around his waist in farmer fashion and started to work. He had gone but a short distance when he saw a stump ahead and immediately began giving the railroad "stop" signal with both hands. The plow struck the stump, and the brakeman went head first over the plow. Picking himself up, he ran angrily to the mules and roared, "You flop eared scoundrels, don't you ever look back for a signal?"—Athens Globe.

His Heartbreaking Task.

"Darling," said the new bride, "I had a terrible feeling of sadness come over me this afternoon at 4 o'clock—a sort of feeling that you were doing something that would break my heart if I knew of it. Think, sweet, what were you doing, now, this afternoon at 4 o'clock?"

"I was licking stamps," replied the husband promptly, "and pasting them on envelopes."—New York Press.

OLD STREET CRIES.

The Din That Deafened London in Days of Long Ago.

Somewhere about a score of years ago there was published in London a tiny volume of most unusual interest to students of old time manners and customs. It was called "Old London Street Cries" and contained several hundred familiar calls, beginning with the middle of the fifteenth century, in which, as in a mirror, one can see reflected the life of the common people through the years—what they ate and drank and wore, their furniture and amusements, the toys their children played with and their luxuries, long since become commonest necessities.

A walk through London streets in those days must have been a veritable running of the gantlet. A few specimens of the calls which besieged the traveler's ears will suffice.

"Buy my dish of great eels!" "Buy a fine singing bird!" "Buy my wax or wafers!" "Hot baked woadens (stewed pears)!" "Knives of scissors to grind!" "Buy my four ropes of onions!" "Buy a footestool!" "Ribbons a groat a yard!" "Buy a horn book!" "Songs, three yards a penny!" "Holly and mistletoe!" "London's Gazette here!" "Buy my nice drops, twenty a penny, peppermint drops!" "Troop every one (toy hobby horses)!" "Three rows a penny pins, short whites and middle-ings!"

Nor were the eager merchants content with verbal solicitation. The bewildered wayfarer was often so "pull-hauled" by one after another that resistance must have been well nigh impossible.

But times change and street life with them. A generation ago a few lineal descendants of the old London hucksters called up and down our streets. Now the rags and tattle men have disappeared, the "cissars grinder" merely rings a bell, vendors of fruit and vegetables have been silenced by law in many cities, and save for the sidewalk toys and the holly and mistletoe of Christmas time the newsboy is sole inheritor of all the street cries.

Less picturesque? Possibly. But one has only to spend an hour among the fakirs of a country fair to realize that even the strenuous life of the twentieth century has its advantages.

Birthday Party.

Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Pillars gave a birthday party Tuesday to their eldest daughter, Miss Jewell, in honor of her fourteenth birthday. The evening was spent in social conversation and listening to sweet music. Lemonade and cake was served to the guests. A most delightful evening was spent in this hospitable home. The following young people were present: Misses Eula Bean, Stella Samon, Emma Jones, Johnnie Tolwer, Dode Jones, Leola Reed, Myrtle Sturman, Dovie Maddox, Lottie Vestal, Ollie Hall, Frankie and Mamie Stuart; Messrs. Berney Ashley, William Clift, Arthur Sturman, Paul Brown, A. J. Taylor, Floyd Stuart, Geo. Powers, Mr. Cockrell.

The Robert Lee and San Angelo stage left Wednesday morning with Thomas Hennessey at the throttle. The Colonel made the round trip to Pecan Mot and back in splendid time, without "bustin'" a trace or "dishin'" a wheel. We understand he was tendered the position of permanent driver, but owing to the fact that he has a cotton crop that demands his entire attention, he was compelled to refuse the position.

There will be preaching at the Methodist church in this city next Sunday morning and night, and a cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend. Morning subject: "Deceitfulness of Sin."—Prov. xiv-12. Evening subject: "One Lord, one Faith, one Baptism."—Eph. iv-5. J. M. BAKER, Pastor.

We are in receipt of the San Angelo Fair Catalogue, which opens October 2 and closes Oct. 5. It would be well for Coke county to have a farm exhibit at the fair, which is held in interest of every county within the section comprising the Colorado-Concho country. Nothing would advertise Coke county to the outside world more.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach. Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Keep Your Nerve

It is nerve energy that runs the organs of your body. The storage battery is the nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord, and from this battery nerve force is sent out through the system of nerves. To keep the body healthy you must have plenty of nerve force; if you have not, the organs work imperfectly, the circulation is sluggish, digestion bad, appetite poor, kidneys inactive, and aches, pains and misery are the penalty.

You can keep the system strong with Dr. Miles' Nerve. It assists in generating nerve energy; it strengthens the nerves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous.

"I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Nerve to those suffering from nervous prostration, insomnia and melancholy. After several months suffering from above diseases I tried this medicine and found immediate relief. It soothes and strengthens the nerves, chases away the gloomy and depressing thoughts and gives the sufferer renewed strength and hope. It is a superb nerve restorer."

Wasting Their Time.

The Indiana state board of health has undertaken to stop the practice of kissing. They say that it is "unsanitary, especially the practice of kissing on the mouth."

The state board of health may be scientifically correct. It is entirely probable that they are, but then they might as well in the language of James Otis, try to dam up the water of the Nile with bullrushes as to try to prevent osculation. Think of a young man who would even pause and hesitate on account of the possibility of contracting some disease when a pair of cherry lips were waiting to be kissed. Do you suppose that he would begin to argue the question and ask if her lips had been properly sterilized? Not on your life. He would say to himself: "If this means death then let death come and welcome."

"It is all right enough for a lot of old bald headed doctors who couldn't get the chance to kiss a beautiful red cheeked and red lipped maiden if they wanted to, to gather together and formulate a decree against kissing, but their talk will cut no congealed moisture. They might as well get busy in some other direction."—Banner Leader.

Was A Very Sick Boy.

"When my boy was two years old he had a very severe attack of bowel complaint, but by the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy we brought him out all right," says Maggie Hickox, of Midland, Mich. This remedy can be depended upon in the most severe cases. Even cholera infantum is cured by it. Follow the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by Evans Drug Store.

Land Deal at Sweetwater.

Sweetwater, Tex., Sept. 7.—R. L. McCaulley completed the sale today of a tract of over 18,000 acres on the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway of Texas, near Sweetwater. This land belonged to F. L. Long of Fort Worth and has been held for years as pasture. It is now to be subdivided and sold to farmers in small tracts and is to be put on the market immediately. The sale was made to parties in Kansas City.

FIGHTING A PANTHER.

Cunning and Skill of the Lithe and Agile Brute.

It was dark, and the windy darkness was full of the mysterious noises of the jungle. My shikari and I were huddled silently on a platform built in the boughs of a tree on the edge of the jungle. Below us the undergrowth was black and still, for the moon had not yet risen. Suddenly there was a movement as though a portion of its blackness had detached itself from the rest and begun to creep away. Just at that moment the moon rose and revealed to us the lithe body of a panther slinking through the undergrowth. A shot rang out, and with a yelp of pain the panther disappeared into the bushes.

With the sunrise we descended from the platform and began to examine the panther's trail. The effect of the shot was shown by the patches of blood on the ground, which led us through a couple of hundred yards of thick jungle. After crawling on hands and knees under the brushwood we reached a narrow nullah. A little beyond this we came upon the wounded panther scaling a tree. I fired, but the range was too long and the shot proved futile. The disturbance had the result, however, of startling the animal into falling from the tree to the ground.

The shikari and I followed quickly on its track. It led finally to a deep and thickly wooded nullah, which had taken the form of a horseshoe. The panther entered the nullah at the center of the bend and turned along the left arm growling angrily as it covered the ground in heavy strides. We kept about twenty yards from the nullah and skirted it along the right until the top of the bend was reached. Here a halt was made, while I approached the nullah, the panther growling away at the other end, about 200 yards distant.

Then all was still. The animal seemed to have vanished. Suddenly it sprang out right from under my feet, having doubled back along the water course, without making the slightest noise. Caught by surprise I fired rapidly and stepped back to avoid the animal's spring and in so doing fell into the nullah. The next moment the panther was on me and had fixed its teeth in my arm.

Suddenly my little fox terrier Toby flew at the panther and fixed itself on its back, tearing hard at its neck. This diversion caused the panther to leave me to attack the dog, and I was able to stagger up and out of the nullah and run to where the native trackers were cowering. There I fainted and was carried back to the bungalow bleeding from fourteen wounds.—Missionary Price of Central China in Chicago Tribune.

Remenyi's Route.

On one of his early concert tours of the west, before the famous violinist, Eduard Remenyi, was thoroughly familiar with the railway routes of the United States, he inquired in Chicago concerning the best way to reach a town in Illinois. "C. B. and Q.," replied the hotel clerk without looking up.

Remenyi was quite dazed. But, says the contributor of the story to the memoir of the violinist, his sense of fun carried him through. "Ah!" he said gravely. "Then I will go D. A. T."

It was the clerk's turn to be puzzled.

"What does that mean?" he said, looking up this time.

"Well, what did you mean?" demanded Remenyi.

"Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, of course."

"Ah! I meant pay after tomorrow."

Survey Begins Next Week.

We are in receipt of information from the promoters of the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific R. R., that they will be here next week with the surveyor to commence work. Mr. James says he will soon have the road pegged out from here to Snyder.

He and his associates are in a position to get grading outfits and everything necessary to build the road and intend to rush the construction through as rapidly as possible. Mr. James informs us that the objective point of the road will probably be Portales, New Mexico, but that matter has not been definitely determined yet. Roscoe's citizens are to be congratulated on the fact that they secured this line, as it will be the terminal of an important railway which will mean a great deal in the development of the town and country.—Roscoe Times.

Two Hundred Warehouses.

It is stated by officials of the Farmers' Union that in Texas there will be ready within a few weeks about 200 cotton warehouses. In these it is intended to store the cotton output of the State for a steady and level supply to the buyers, and especially for the direct selling to the spinners and weavers. It is estimated that it will be possible to store indefinitely, if necessary, as much as 650,000 to 750,000 bales of cotton. Many of the farmers are ready to store on their own farms a great deal more.

The advantage for the warehouse is said to be that a reasonable advance in money will be made to any farmer who is unable to carry his crop without financial assistance. Practically all of the warehouses are bonded and thus prepared for the loaning feature. Adequate insurance accommodation is arranged for by President Calvin for all the warehouses through a Dallas insurance agency.

"In no previous year have the farmers of Texas been in such condition for holding their cotton," declares A. H. O'Keefe, State business agent. "Diversification has solved the problem and we can hold the cotton. This talk of a surplus crop is foolish we think, but I am certain that if it were a 16,000,000-bale crop we could hold the market to a reasonable sum and could, through the warehouses, furnish the spinners and consumers just as they demand it. This will save them the expense of advance buying, storing and insuring and the middlemen's profit, and we have no fear of a slump at any sort of crop."—Dallas News.

Worked Both Ways.

Smith's wife had gone to the mountain, so he prepared a stack of postals, gave them to his stenographer with instructions to mail one every day, and went to Saratoga with a few friends.

Mrs. Smith got postal No. 1. "Working away at business this hot weather. Miserable without you," "Poor man," she murmured, "he must be lonely."

Next day postal No. 2. Home seems a desert. Miss you terribly. "Poor John," said Mrs. Smith, "It's a shame for me to be here enjoying myself, while he slaves away in loneliness."

Postal No. 3 came the next morning. "Can hardly live without you. Life a blank."

Mrs. Smith packed her trunks and went home.

There was trouble. This year Smith thought he'd be wise. The first postal he left for mailing to his absent wife was: "Getting along splendidly. Having great time."

"Humph!" said Mrs. Smith. Next postal: "Best time of my life. Stay as long as you like and don't bother about me. I'm all right."

This time Mrs. Smith started home the second day.

When she arrived there was trouble again.—Puck.

In these days of rush and hurry courtesy is often forgotten. In the mad, pell mell rush of our life little things are done to offend that we rather remained undone. A hastily eaten meal and its resultant headache may cause us social or financial loss. The wise man or woman is the one who relieves little ills of this sort by a little dose of Kodol For Dyspepsia. It digests what you eat. Sold by Evans Drug Store.

Mollie Bailey Married.

Announcement is made that Mollie A. Bailey of Mollie Bailey show fame, was married at Brady on the 16th of last April. Mrs. Bailey is said to have been married to A. H. Hardesty by Justice E. P. Lea. It was requested of the squire that the marriage be kept a secret until September 1. This was done by all concerned.

Mrs. Hardesty nee Bailey has been in the overland show business in Texas for many years. Every village and hamlet in the state has heard of this woman who has made a wonderful success. She is the woman who in the days of troublous times in the South gave her all for the cause of the Confederacy. Mrs. Bailey has thousands of friends all over the south and her friendship for the lost cause will forever be a pleasant memory in the minds of those who bled and died for the cause.

Mrs. Bailey or rather Mrs. Hardesty stated when the show was here last spring that she soon expected to give up the show business and come to San Angelo to live. At that time she secured an option on a tract of land near this city and said that she proposed to buy it and use it for winter quarters for the shows. Her sons are to continue the business.—San Angelo Standard.

Confederate Naval Officer Dies.

London, Sept. 7.—Capt. John Low, who served on the Confederate cruiser Alabama during her memorable cruise during the Civil War, died yesterday in Liverpool. Capt. Low was a Lieutenant under Capt. Semmes and the only foreigner to hold a commission on the Alabama. It was due to Lieut. Low's superb seamanship in putting the Alabama about without waiting for orders, soon after she was saved from foundering. Lieut. Arthur Sinclair declares in his book, "Two years on the Alabama," that but for Low's act the career of the Alabama would have been cut short in the very beginning.

Returns to State Prison.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 7.—Last night Robert Jenkins climbed the wall around the State prison, secured a striped suit of clothes and fell in line for breakfast. After eating he fell in line again and went to work in the foundry before he was discovered. Jenkins was sent up for grand larceny and after serving a term was discharged on Aug. 10. He explained his action as follows: "I gits better grub to eat in here," said Bob. "Where I have been boarding dey puts de butter clean cross on the others side of de table and de land-lady didn't gimme but two biscuits. Out here at de penitentiary Cap'n Sol doan hol back nothin to eat."

The Breath of Life.

It's a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by Evans Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.
