Play at Silver

It's happening! It's happening! What is? A play entitled "Three Days of Grace." When and where? Friday night, March 18, in the Silver school auditorium. Is it any good? Oh, boy is it! I'll guarantee you, you'll almost split your sides laughing--and exciting? You are telling me! Just see those Ozark hillbillies, the female impersonation, and all those athletes (also their results.) What is the admission? 5c for school children and 10c for adults. They are charging a small fee so every one may have a chance to see it. Fine! I wouldn't miss it for anything! I'll be there at 8.

Odd

Did you ever, while fishing, get something heavy on your hook and when you finally get him to the top of the water, it gave you a funny feeling? Maybe that is the way Dick skipworth felt when he hooked a turtle with a hump. It is shaped like a fireman's hat and supposed to be a soft shell turtle. If you know what it is, please let us know. We have it now on display.

Dr. Hicks to Be at M. E. Church Sunday Night

Dr. J. H. Hicks, Professor of Old Testament in the School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, Dallas, will present slides and lecture on the Holy Land at the Methodist church at the regular evening worship period, Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Dr. Hicks has recently returned from Palestine and Egypt with a group from the Oriental Institute and the University of Chicago. The expedition was doing archeological and research there. The slides which Dr. Hicks will show were made from pictures that he himself took while a member of this expedition which was headed by Dr. William Creighton Graham, Professor of Old Testament Language and Literature at the University of Chicago.

Robert Lee is especially fortunate to have Dr. Hicks come, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to avail themselves of this rare treat.

Referendum Vote Favorable

The results of the Referendum vote in Coke County on March 12 shows 353 votes for and 46 votes against. The Referendum which seems to be favored by the farmers places a tax of 2 cents a pound on all cotton sold from acres planted in excess of the allotment allowed for each farm. This Referendum allows all cotton produced on the allotted acres to be sold tax free whereas the Bankhead Act of 1935 allowed only a certain number of pounds to be sold without tax. The Government in trying to reduce the large amounts of cotton being produced by causing the large cotton producers to reduce their acreages. In compensation for their reduction, there is the Agriculture Conservation Program which pays certain dividends to the producers for planting within their soil-depleting allotments. Staying within these allotments also allows the producer to be eligible for the three-cent subsidy on the 1937 cotton crop.

Needle Craft Bazaar

Do you have among your treasured possessions one of Great-grandmother's dresses or some of her needle work or perhaps a piece of her jewelry? Or it may be Great-granddad's swallow-tail coat or the old cow horn he used to call up his hounds. Any antique that is prized by you will be interesting to your friends when you meet at the needle craft bazaar sponsored by the Ariei Club on Saturday, March 26. Girls are also invited to bring their dolls. Antique, needlework, quilts or quilts for display should be brought in Saturday morning.

F. E. Modgling for Sheriff and Tax Collector

We carry the name of F. E. Modgling of Bronte this week as a candidate for sheriff and tax collector of Coke County.

Mr. Modgling is a well known citizen of the county and as the county pays good wages to her public servants, he says he would appreciate a chance at some of it, and he says that if he is successful the public need never fear but that he will earn it.

Mr. Modgling has lived in the county practically all of his life, and is well known over the county. Later he expects to make a thorough canvass of the voters.

Attention, All Farmers

Again we make one more appeal to those who have not made out a 1937 worksheet on the farm. We must have a worksheet on every farm in the county before the 1938 crop allotments can be established. If you have not filled out such worksheet on your farm please do so this week; or if you have a friend who has not done so urge him to attend to this matter at once. The longer this is postponed the longer it will be before Coke county receives the information on allotments, which every farmer is eagerly awaiting.

Operators who have moved to new places this year should notify the County Agent of such move at once. It is imperative that we have the names of all persons interested in every farm in the county. Whether landlord or tenant please see that the correct names are registered in the County Agent's office for your farm.

NOTICE FARMERS

The one variety cotton seed are now at the Joe Dodson Gin. All farmers who have ordered the one-variety cotton seed please come in Saturday, March 19 and get your seed. Mr. H. A. Williams, a member of the committee, will be there to check your seed to you.

Honored on Birthday

Honoring Mr. Duncan on his birthday, Mrs. Jack Duncan entertained at her home Monday night, with a dinner and forty-two party.

Those present for the party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and daughter Martha Francis, Mrs. Albert Walls and daughter Francis, of Snowflake, Arizona, sister of Mr. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wigington, Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vestal and baby, Dr. J. K. Griffith, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Keenan.

P.T.A News

Hearing the report of the nominating committee and making plans for booths at the coming track meet were the chief matters of business when the local P.T. A. met Tuesday afternoon at the school.

Mrs. H. E. Smith was named to head the organization for another year, Miss Lois Vowell for vice president and Mrs. Joe Long Snead for secretary-treasurer. Chairman of the various committees will be appointed by the president.

The grammar school choral class, directed by Mr. Teague, gave a number and several declamations were heard from those who will contest in the county meet.

The dollar award for the greatest representation of mothers went this month to the tenth grade.

Surveying Crew Coming

Mr. Cotton, of San Angelo, Flood Control Engineer of this district, was in Robert Lee first of the week and accompanied by Hubert Buchanan, made a trip to various sections within the proposed Upper Colorado damsite. Mr. Cotton stated that he would return next week with a crew to begin on the survey.

Jimmy Denman, who has been a hospital patient for some time suffering with pneumonia, is reported in a critical condition, and as we go to press Thursday afternoon we understand little hope is held for his recovery.

LID OF TVA BLOWN OFF

Chairman Morgan Demands Congressional Inquiry . . Refuses to Resign . . Spanish Cruiser Torpedoed

Evidently these three leaders in the fight about the administration-backed "Third Basket" tax bill did not get enough pro and con on the house floor. They continue their argument in the corridor, with the bill's author, Representative Fred Vinson of Kentucky, right, rebuking Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts, left, for his opposition to the measure. Representative Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, center, who introduced the bill to the house, backs Vinson.

Berry Claim Cause of Row

LONG existing warfare between Dr. A. E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and his fellow directors, David Lillenthal and Harcourt Morgan, has come to a climax, due to the claims of Sen. George L. Berry for $5,000,000 because his alleged marble quarries were flooded in the Norris dam area. Doctor Morgan has demanded a showdown in the form of a congressional investigation of the whole TVA setup and its activities.

A commission appointed by a federal court in Tennessee reported the claims of Berry and his associates were worthless.

Chairman Morgan then issued a long statement revealing that the quarrel in the authority was due not to differences between himself and his colleagues over policy, but to his efforts to obtain "honesty, openness, decency and fairness in government."

Lillenthal and Harcourt Morgan retaliated with a long defense statement, severely criticizing the chairman and suggesting that he retire from the commission. President Roosevelt made public this statement, leading observers to believe he rather sided with them. But Chairman Morgan replied that he would not resign under fire and in a letter to Representative Maverick of Texas reiterated his demand for an investigation by congress. Resolutions for such an inquiry were introduced, and Senator Norris, patron saint of TVA and similar projects, sought either to smother the proposed probe or to see that it was carried out by friendly hands.

In the midst of the rumpus Lillenthal announced that the government is willing to buy the properties of private electric power companies in the TVA area provided the owners will sell them at sacrifice prices. The utility officials interested were invited to meet him and Harcourt Morgan for a discussion. Lillenthal said that if the proposed purchases were carried out, private power enterprises would be eliminated in northern Alabama, northeastern Mississippi and nearly all of Tennessee. He also announced that the TVA would be ready to advance cities in the area, otherwise unable financially to purchase local power plants, funds from an appropriation of $50,000,000 voted by congress in the recently amended TVA act.

Franco Warship Sunk

SPANISH insurgents sustained a severe loss when their cruiser Baleares was torpedoed and sunk in a big naval battle off Cartagena. The 10,000-ton cruiser went down in flames and probably about 300 of her crew were drowned. Some 400 others were rescued by two British destroyers.

The loyalist attack by warships and planes was carefully planned to break the rebel blockade of government ports on the Mediterranean coast. The loyalist authorities were highly elated by this victory in what they called the first real naval battle of the civil war, and War Minister Prieto said they were now prepared to fight the conflict to a finish on the seas.

General Franco was reported to be reorganizing all his troops from Africa so that he can carry on if Mussolini withdraws the Italian contingents in accordance with the expected agreement with Great Britain. Conversations to lead to that agreement were started by British and Italian diplomats.

We Take Two Islands

UNDER orders from the President, Secretary of the Interior Ickes added to the island possessions of the United States which he supervises two little bits of land in the Pacific—Canton and Enderby islands, in the Phoenix archipelago. Their value is as stopping places for transoceanic air flights to Australia.

Included in the President's order are lands in the Antarctic first visited by Admiral Byrd and other Americans.

New French Ambassador

COUNT RENE DOYNEL DE SAINT-QUENTIN, who replaces Georges Bonnet as ambassador from France, arrived in Washington and proceeded to the White House in full regalia, to present his credentials to President Roosevelt. The count is fifty-four years old and a bachelor. He is a distinguished citizen of France and the scion of a long famous family.

Other callers at the White House who aroused much interest were the three unmarried sisters of King Zog of Albania. The princesses are on a pleasure tour of the United States and it is officially denied that they are seeking suitable husbands over here.

Borah Hits Navy Bill

JUST before the house began consideration of the administration's billion-dollar naval construction bill, Senator Borah virtually gave notice that the measure would not get through the senate without a lively fight. He gave out a statement attacking the naval building program as an unjustified step toward "the beginning of another World war—an armaments war."

Borah is the senior member of the senate foreign relations committee.

Widens Tax Field

IN A 5 to 2 decision of far reaching implications, sweeping aside more than a century of precedents, the United States Supreme court held that income from leases of state school lands is not immune from federal taxation.

Justice Pierce Butler, dissenting with Justice James Clark McReynolds, said it was impossible to foresee the extent to which the court's opinion upsets the long settled principle of reciprocal tax immunity in our dual system of government.

The decision was the latest of a series in which the Supreme court has greatly narrowed the field of reciprocal tax immunity.

WHAT TO EAT AND WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses PROTEINS—

The Foods That You Cannot Live Without

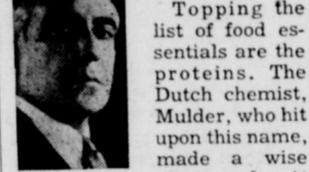

Eminent Food Authority Explains Why No Protein Means No Life—Describes the Kind and Amount Required for the Best Growth in Children—Good Resistance, Vigor and Endurance in Adults.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York.

FOOD is—and always has been—the central problem of life. But only in recent years has its true power been revealed, as a result of scientific investigation.

Fortunately, we now know what constitutes sound nutrition, and it is possible for every homemaker to plan meals that will enable her family to eat their way to health.

Topping the list of food essentials are the proteins. The Dutch chemist, Mulder, who hit upon this name, made a wise choice, for it means "to take first place."

And certainly the proteins are first in importance. For they are the stuff of which our bodies are built. Without them, there would be no life. Every man, woman and child has a fundamental need for protein, because it is an essential component of every living cell and makes up a large part of the solids of a muscle cell. Evidently, a great many of the glandular principles and substances, which control the functions of the body, are also protein in character.

Protein is the only food element that contains nitrogen, and next to water, nitrogen is the chief constituent of the human body.

Protein Builds Bodies.
A new born baby weighs, on an average, from 7 to 7½ pounds, and the adult into which it grows may weigh 20 to 30 times as much. The vast amount of tissue necessary to construct a man is built chiefly from protein.

Once the adult body is built, however, protein is not required for the growth of new tissues, except under certain conditions, such as during pregnancy, when one is recovering from a wasting illness, or when an athlete is in training and the muscles are increasing in size.

Keeps the Body in Repair.
There is, however, a maintenance requirement for protein which continues throughout life, and which applies to both children and adults. For the body may be compared to a machine, on which it is necessary to make allowance for the wear and tear of parts. Protein is the only substance that will rebuild the millions of cells which each day cease to function.

Thus, we see that protein performs two vital services—First, it builds new tissues; second, it repairs worn-out tissues.

The Building Stones of the Body.
Protein is found in many different foods, but unfortunately, not all proteins are equally valuable. Some build new tissue; others will not build tissue, but are capable of repairing worn-out cells.

It is absolutely essential that the homemaker, charged with the responsibility of feeding a family, should be able to distinguish between those types of protein which are adequate for both growth and repair, and those that are only useful for maintenance.

For if the diet does not contain an adequate amount, or the right kind of protein, our bodies will be badly built and they will be improperly repaired and cannot wear well.

Collum of Johns Hopkins university, the world-famous investigator and discoverer of vitamin A, puts it: "Unless the right kinds, with respect to the size and shape, are furnished by the food proteins, the exact pattern on which the muscle must be constructed cannot be formed and, in this case, growth is interfered with."

If you were building a house you would consider nothing less than the finest materials. You would know that cheap lumber and poorly made bricks could not produce a lasting building. In the same way, you must learn to discriminate between the various types of protein used for the supremely important purpose of building your children's bodies, or keeping adult physiques in perfect repair.

Some foods cost more than others and you should not be guilty of spending hard-earned money for expensive protein foods when the same amount of nourishment could be more economically obtained from an inexpensive source.

Where to Find Protein.

Proteins that will build new tissue, as well as replace worn-out cells, are known as complete proteins. In this class we have meats, fish, cheese, milk, eggs and some nuts.

Incomplete proteins are found in grains and products made from them, and in the legumes—that is, peas, beans, lentils and peanuts.

How Much Protein?
The protein requirement varies according to size, age, and the kind of protein foods consumed.

To allow for growth, children require twice as much protein per pound of body weight as adults. That is to say, an adult requires daily one-thirtieth of an ounce for each pound of body weight, but a child needs one-fiftieth of an ounce for each pound of body weight.

The amount of protein food should usually constitute from 10 to 15 per cent of all the calories taken. If this plan is faithfully followed, there will be more than enough to take care of every requirement.

An Adequate Protein Ration.
In planning the family dietary, a safe rule to keep in mind is to include in the daily diet: a quart of milk for every child, a pint for each adult; one egg, one serving of meat, fish or chicken, one serving of another protein food such as cheese, dried peas or beans, or a main dish made with nuts.

You can achieve wide variety and still provide an adequate protein ration within the limits of this rule. For milk may be served as a beverage, in soups, puddings, and as cream sauce. Eggs may likewise be varied in their method of preparation, or concealed in other foods. There are many fine meats, and the number of ways in which fresh, canned, frozen or dried fish can be served is legion.

Both cheese and nuts make sandwiches, salads and desserts, as well as main course dishes.

Peas, beans and lentils can appear as soup, mock roast or croquettes. Grain products, which include cereals, macaroni and bread, may appear in any course in the meal.

In planning menus, always keep before you the ideal that an adequate amount of first class protein makes a first class man, whereas an inadequate amount may lead to stunted growth, functional nervous diseases, lessened efficiency and the earlier approach of old age.

In choosing proteins to feed your family—remember that they take first place among foods, and that upon their wise choice rests your future welfare, your destiny—your life!

Polishing Ethics—Pro and Con

When fine furniture leaves the shop of the manufacturer, its finish has been professionally treated, to preserve its beauty—prolong its endurance. And from that time on, this furniture is best maintained by a quality light-oil furniture polish—first, on the shop floor of the furniture dealer—and then in the home. This is acknowledged and accepted as the best way to heighten its beauty—lengthen its life! But unfortunately, many housewives cut the finish of their furniture and woodwork with various shellacs and veneers—using them as a substitute for a fine oil polish and rubbing. And what a great mistake this is! For these coatings form a false finish over the true finish of the furniture; and rosin and other destructive elements in them dry out the wood—toughen it—leave a sticky residue. When many layers have been applied, they accumulate as a crust over the finish, clogging it and clouding the natural beauty of the grain. This is the slack way to care for furniture. If the home-maker really "cares for" her furniture, she will frequently rub on a reputable light-oil polish, to preserve it—keep it lastingly lovely!

SYNOPSIS

James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade his beautiful foster-daughter Leonora from marrying Don Mason, young "rolling stone," whom he likes but of whom he disapproves according to his conventional business-man standards. He tells her, "Unless a house is founded upon a rock, it will not survive." Leonora suspects the influence of her half-brother Ned, always jealous of the girl since the day his father brought her home from the deathbed of her mother, abandoned by her Italian baritone lover. Don arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two. Sitting up late into the night, Lambert reviews the whole story of Nora as a child, at boarding school, studying music abroad, meeting Don on the return trip. In the morning he delivers his ultimatum, to give Don a job with Ned for a year's showdown. When Nora suggests the possibility of running away with Don, Lambert threatens disinheritance. Don agrees to the job.

CHAPTER II—Continued

By the end of the first month Don's nerves were taut and he had lost his appetite. At the end of three he had lost ten pounds. Later still, when a strained expression gathered about his eyes, Nora began to worry, though, scolding himself for this reaction to "a steady job." Don had not complained. Then came an evening when he telephoned that he was too tired to come out, and heard her quick-drawn breath of disappointment.

"But, Don, it's the night of the Careys' dance and I'm all dressed!" "It is!" Dismayed surprise showed in his tired voice. "My dear, I forgot completely; but if you don't mind being a bit late I'll—"

She broke in then with sudden understanding: "Of course we won't go if you're used up, Don."

"But you wanted to go, Nora!" He spoke in genuine distress. "You've been looking forward to it—a lot. See here, would you go without me? Tag along with Corinne and Ned? Honestly, darling, I'm all in. Too tired to eat."

Said Nora, very quietly: "Are you keeping something back, Don? Are you sick?"

A reassuring laugh came over the wire.

"Of course not! But I haven't been sleeping well for weeks, if you want the truth; and last night was rather the worst on record. I didn't close my eyes till daylight. I'll be O. K. tomorrow; but—don't think me a piker, will you?"

"Crazy!"

"And you'll go to the dance with Ned? Promise?"

She laughed and told him to sleep the clock around; but she didn't go to the dance.

Next evening the girl said out of a silence: "Don—it's appalling."

Watching her lover closely she had observed, with something of a shock, how those months of confinement had changed his whole appearance. It had been a gradual change, of course, and seeing him daily Nora had not realized the growing hollows below his cheek bones, or that the tan born of years in the open was quite gone, leaving his face with an unnatural pallor. Even his sea-blue eyes that made her think of sun-lit, dancing water, were more opaque, more lifeless; and his feet which always seemed to touch earth lightly, dragged now as he crossed the room to sit beside her.

"What's appalling, beloved?"

"You," said Nora. "I—" (her voice trembled) "I'm not worth the price, Don."

He kissed her, not pretending to misunderstand.

"I'm the best judge of that, dear. Play to me, won't you—something that'll make me believe there are things in the world like brooks, and birds, and wind on the prairie? I'm stifled."

It was the first admission of the sort that he'd allowed himself to make.

Nora played for an hour, lilting Gypsy strains at first that led Don's troubled spirit far away to the "green pastures and still waters" for which it hungered.

The music grew quieter . . . Old things . . . things one remembered . . . Rubinstein . . . Mendelssohn . . . Ah! Beethoven! The Moonlight Sonata, played as only Nora played it . . . So quiet; so sure; so firm and yet so tranquil . . .

When the last note of that matchless lullaby had died away, Don was asleep, his head pillowed on one arm, his face more peaceful than it had been for many weeks.

CHAPTER III

Nora grew noticeably thoughtful after that evening. Don had slept for a long time while she sat beside him gazing into the fire, as if its slowly fading glow might light her way. It was all so futile—this whole experiment, she mused. The time-worn simile of the round peg in the square hole came back to her. That was Don, poor boy! She knew full well that the year's sentence James Lambert had imposed on him would make no difference in their future; yet unless he stuck it out the older man would look upon him as a failure—a ne'er-do-well.

What was her duty? the girl pondered. It was useless to expect a product of the metropolis like her father, to understand or even make allowances. His whole world was the well-ordered world of the successful business man. His horizon was bounded by city streets. What more should one ask of life than a steady job and a salary which supported in comfort those one loved? was his sole argument. He saw no other. He could not comprehend what such an existence meant to Don, nor dimly vision that call of the Gypsy trail which tugged at the young man's heart, leading him onward, making of life a glorious adventure.

So the girl grew more thoughtful, more quiet in the days that followed. Don said: "You've lost your pep, darling. What's happened?" and Nora laughed at him. But when her father questioned her one evening, a night when Don, pleading a dull head, had gone home early, she made no effort to evade the answer. He said: "Something's upset you lately. What's the matter, child?"

"Life," said Nora. James smiled.

"What's wrong with life, dear?"

"What's right?" countered the girl, shrugging.

Her father's eyes grew puzzled as he regarded her.

"Have you and Don been quarreling?" he asked.

Nora laughed softly.

"It would be hard work to pick a fight with Don," she answered. "No, we haven't quarreled; but—I'm worried about him, Dad."

"There's nothing to worry about, my dear. Things are not going badly. I'll make a business man of Don Mason yet, Nora, if you'll give me time."

"You'll make a corpse of him more likely," the girl retorted with so much bitterness in her voice that James raised his head, looking at her in blank amazement.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that all his nerves are raw—on edge, Dad."

"Nerves!" The contempt in her father's exclamation cut Leonora to the quick.

James said, after a tense silence: "See here, Nora, it's absurd to think that a year in a well ventilated, modern office can cause a breakdown such as you hint at. That young man is, was anyway, the picture of health. If there's anything bothering him now it must be, as you say, a case of nerves, which seems, to my mind, almost nonsensical. If he'll make an attempt to pull himself together—get the best of the trouble instead of dwelling on it—"

"Dwelling on it!" broke in Nora with indignation. "Why he's never mentioned it! But I'm not blind, Dad, and the signs are there for anyone to read. I think you ought to call 'time up,' don't you?"

"Time up?"

"I mean it, Father. This simply can't go on. Don's lived in the open since he was eighteen. Office life stifles him; and Ned . . ."

She paused, while her father observed gravely: "We'll leave Ned out of this discussion, if you don't mind."

"How can we?" the girl demanded with intrinsic honesty. "Ned's half the trouble. He makes Don frantic, pouncing on him unexpectedly—watching everything he does—snooping—"

"That's both insulting and unjust," James interrupted angrily. "Ned means to be helpful. If his methods are upsetting to this young man it's not your brother's fault, Nora, but his own. And considering that—that—"

"That Ned would welcome an excuse to throw Don out the door?" finished Leonora. Then, as her father snorted, she went on: "Now don't explode, Dad. It gets us nowhere, besides being bad for you. Perhaps I have no right to ask a favor anyway, but I'm asking one now: If you've any love at all for me, darling, and I know you have, I ask you to show it by putting an end to this experiment."

But James was obdurate. He was also angry.

"I gave him a year, Nora. I don't like a quitter."

Two red spots flamed like twin banners on Nora's cheeks.

"That's not just, Father. Don's never suggested giving up. But there's something in him that you and Ned can't understand, I suppose. He's not impatient, Dad. I think he scorns himself a little for chafing at things which other men accept so naturally. And that's bad for him too. Don't you see, Father,

"I don't wonder your father hates to give you up."

it's like whipping a tired horse to keep a man of Don's sort tied to a ledger. It stifles him. And I warn you now that rather than see his spirit—the thing I love about him, crushed and broken unnecessarily, I'll go away with him."

The man's lips tightened.

"And forfeit all I mean to do for you, my dear?"

"Money's not everything, Father."

"How should you know, who've never been without it?" he retorted.

"Ned's right. I've spoiled you, I suppose; and now I must pay the penalty." Then, because he was hurt and angry James said something he regretted later. "Well, take your choice; but if the fellow quits, and you quit with him, I'm through with you, Nora. And when the cupboard is bare—when the lack of silk stockings and silver slippers becomes hateful and you're tired of your bargain, don't come to me for help. Remember that."

Had he struck the girl, he could not have hurt her more.

Never before had her father felt such anger at Leonora. That she should even contemplate the idea of eloping with Don Mason, after what he considered his forbearance in giving the young man a place in his own office, was utterly beyond James Lambert's unimaginative comprehension. Since that long-gone, tragic day when the girl discovered their real relationship, her foster-father had felt that she was grateful for everything he had tried to be to her. Now he wondered; and, wondering, grew bitter. Yet in a pathetic, lonely way James could not bear to be at odds with Leonora, his wife's last gift to him. Tossing restlessly on his bed that night, he longed to go to this dearly loved daughter whom he could not always understand—to make his peace and ask her to forget his harshness; but because of a stubborn streak deep in his nature, the man could not do it; and this illumined moment which would have brought them infinitely closer, passed and was gone.

It was, however, no small measure of comfort that the girl's morning greeting was unchanged. If Nora's night had been as restless as her father's, nothing revealed the fact. She kissed him as usual; poured his coffee and chatted amiably of nothing in particular. But that evening James, who had been thinking, invaded the room where Leonora was playing to her lover, and sat for a half hour watching the young man closely.

Nora was right, he admitted. The fellow had changed deplorably. Queer that he hadn't observed it sooner. Don looked what James called "peaked." And he was very pale; not paler than Ned, perhaps, but shockingly paler than he had been six months ago.

Still, was there any reason for alarm? James thought not. Don's pallor was merely the result of an indoor existence. Absurd for Nora to worry about his health. In another month or so he would become acclimated—get used to it—stop champing at the bit as he did now. And there was no doubt that Don Mason needed discipline. He'd been his own master since he was eighteen. It was high time he learned to meet responsibilities, or how was he to take care of a girl like Leonora? And they were both young enough. It wouldn't hurt them to wait a little longer. He'd give them a trip abroad as a wedding gift if Don would agree to settle down after they got back.

James smiled to himself, pleased at this new idea. It should be a trip de luxe, by George! A trip such as that young vagabond had never dreamed of. Trust Nora for that! She appreciated the luxuries of travel. Only a few months to wait; and unless Don proved himself a quitter . . .

He arose, roused by the cessation of Nora's music. She said: "Want something, Daddy?"

"No. I've left my book 'round somewhere; but it's not here."

Don, too, had risen. He said, smiling: "Won't you stay for a while, sir? I haven't the exclusive right to Nora's evenings."

"Perhaps not," responded James, "but I haven't entirely forgotten my own youth! Besides, I want to turn in early. Lost sleep last night, and the music has made me drowsy. Good-night, daughter."

He kissed her; nodded pleasantly to Don, and went upstairs.

"I don't wonder your father hates to give you up," said Don. "If ever I have a daughter as sweet as you, Nora, I'll be forced to stifle murderous intentions toward any fellow who makes love to her."

"And yet," she answered, "Dad hurt me last night, frightfully."

"How, dear?"

She told him, not all, but part of that momentous conversation.

"It was cruel, Don. I—I almost left him. I came near going straight to you and begging you to run away with me."

"I'm not the sort that runs, Nora," he said.

She considered that.

"Not even if I asked you to, my dear?"

Don shook his head.

"Never—unless things get more desperate than they are now."

"But you're nearing the end of your rope, Don," she protested.

"What good will it do us to stick it out if you lose your health?"

The young man laughed, confessing: "I'm a lot more likely to lose my temper! Sometimes—"

He stopped abruptly, and Nora asked: "Has Ned been bothering?"

"Oh, let's forget it!" Don said in an attempt to end the discussion.

"I'm going home, Nora. I seem to sleep better when I turn in early. I don't see how you put up with me—a girl like you. I never show you any sort of a good time. I even forget when I promise to take you to a dance! I—honestly, dear, I've wondered lately . . ."

"What have you wondered?" she questioned as he looked away.

"I've wondered if it might not be better for us to—part, Nora."

The girl caught her breath, then said, her voice unsteady: "Better for you, or—me, Don?"

Sensing her hurt he took her into his arms with tenderness.

Composed at Odd Moments
Walt Whitman, the great American poet, used to carry loose sheets of paper about with him to jot down things as inspiration moved him, and the immortal "Leaves of Grass" was thus composed, part atop a Broadway coach, part in the fields, part in the hurly-burly of a noisy street and again amidst the murmur of the waves at the seashore.

Do you have to FORCE YOUR CHILD to take a laxative?

Unpleasant laxatives make unpleasant scenes! And forcing a child to take a nasty-tasting cathartic may upset his entire system.

Next time your children need a laxative, give them Ex-Lax! It comes in little tablets that taste just like delicious chocolate. The youngsters love it! Ex-Lax produces an easy, thorough bowel movement, without upsetting little tummies or causing stomach pains.

For over 30 years, Ex-Lax has been America's favorite family laxative. Now it has been Scientifically Improved! It's actually better than ever! It TASTES BETTER than ever, ACTS BETTER than ever—and is MORE GENTLE than ever.

Ex-Lax is as effective for grown-ups as it is for children. 10¢ and 25¢ boxes at your druggist's.

Here's the first call for the bucket and mop brigade, the rake and shovel regiment, the paint and whitewash corps and the hatchet and saw recruits. The spring rush is about to get under way. The entire nation is arming for its annual war on dirt and rubbish, soot and disease-breeding dumps. Its a mighty army that is now getting set for its annual campaign, and it behooves everyone to promptly fall in line.

There's no way of estimating the benefits that arise from a clean house, clean yard and a community as a whole. It not only means mere comfortable living conditions, but it assures health and prevents epidemics that might easily claim a heavy toll of death. A LOT OF CAR for a VERY LOW PRICE

The Ford effort to make your dollars buy a constantly better car is well illustrated in the Standard Ford V-8. It has all the basic Ford advantages. It is built on the same chassis as the De Luxe Ford V-8. It gives you a choice of smooth 85-horsepower or 60-horsepower V-8 engines. But it sells at low prices, and includes bumpers, spare tire, cigar lighter, twin horns and other equipment that make it a still bigger bargain. With the thrifty 60-horsepower engine, the Standard Ford V-8 is priced especially low and gives the greatest gas mileage in Ford history. Hundreds of owners report averages of 22 to 27 miles a gallon - or even more. Your pocketbook will approve of the Standard Ford in every way. And so will you when you drive it!

Senior News

The seniors had a class meeting Monday, and elected another sponsor to replace Mrs. Wylie, whom we all regretted to lose. Mr. Landers was elected, and agreed to sponsor the irresponsible group.

Slight mention was made of the trip to Carlsbad.

The class has been measured for the caps and gowns for our graduation, to which we are all looking forward eagerly. We are going to be "dignified" seniors "someday".

One Way to Boost

Don't get the impression that your town isn't as big as New York or Chicago that it isn't worth boosting to a stranger. It often happens that you have occasion to converse with a stranger here, but it probably does not always occur to you to speak a few words for the town. He may not think any more of the town when you have finished but he will have a better opinion of you for boosting it. Nothing gives a neighborhood greater favor in the eyes of a stranger than the knowledge that the residents of it are satisfied and are not just "another set of knockers." Speak of the schools and churches and good living conditions of your own community at every opportunity you have to do so—and keep on doing it. You'll be surprised how often the stranger will be interested in what you have to say, and you'll never be able to measure the value of the good things he may also have to say of it as he goes on his way into other communities.

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Coke County—GREETING: YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED, That you summon by making Publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Coke if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, one in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof Mary Finley whose residence is unknown, to be and appear before the Hon. District Court, at the next regular term thereof, to be holden in the County of Coke on the 18th day of April 1938 at the Court House thereof in Robert Lee, Coke County, Texas, then and there to answer plaintiff's first amended original petition filed in said Court, on the 21st day of February A. D. 1938, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No 1444, wherein G. K. Finley is plaintiff and Mary Finley is defendant. The nature of the plaintiff's demand being as follows, to-wit: a suit for Divorce; Plaintiff alleging cruel treatment by the defendant towards him; plaintiff alleges that the defendant has been guilty of such excesses, cruel treatment and outrages against him of such a nature as to render their further living together insupportable.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, And have you before said Court, on the first day of the next term thereof, this Writ with your endorsement thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

★ Just a small down payment puts Servel Electrolux in your home . . . payments arranged to suit your convenience . . .

There's One BEST Way To do Everything

THERE are as many different ways to protect food from spoilage as there are to dress a baby. Many different refrigerators—and one BEST.

Some have just a FEW moving parts (to wear out)—Servel Electrolux, the Gas or Kerosene refrigerator, has NONE.

Some are quiet (while new)—Servel Electrolux is SILENT—forever!

Some are "economical"—Servel Electrolux operates for as little as 3 cents per day!

Most all provide some ice cubes—Servel Electrolux provides TWICE the average family's daily need.

Some have flexible rubber ice-tray grids—Servel Electrolux has flexible STAINLESS STEEL. Just a flip of the thumb, and out come the ice cubes.

Some get the cabinet interior cold WHILE RUNNING—Servel Electrolux keeps the interior always in the safety zone—steady, CONSTANT COLD.

Some have well-built cabinets—Servel Electrolux has outer shell of one-piece seamless steel—a cabinet built to last through the years, finished in lustrous Newton, that becomes whiter with age.

Servel Electrolux gives you a new KIND of refrigeration, because it is a different kind of refrigerator. Completely different in the way it operates, the way it protects your family's health, the way it saves. Servel Electrolux actually MORE THAN PAYS FOR ITSELF. Why not start it paying for itself, in your home—NOW?

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Lady Pulls Strings in Duce Deal
NEW YORK.—The absence of salon diplomacy or petticoat politics in the European struggle for a new power balance would be an oversight by the muse of history, reading the drama of the century, and at last it seems to have been attended to.

Enter Lady Chamberlain, the cleverest woman politician in England, widow of Sir Austen, obscurely noted in the news as mysteriously busy for the last few months in the British-Italian rapprochement.

Several weeks ago, a sagacious traveler of this writer's acquaintance, back from Rome, reported Lady Chamberlain as adroitly fostering an understanding with Britain which would bring recognition of Ethiopia and a two-way split on Spain and the Mediterranean. She has been in Rome since November, in intimate social intercourse with the more important Fascist moguls.

For many years, she has been known as the "most perfect political hostess" in London and has been subtly influential in many big deals in continental diplomacy. It was she who cooked up the Locarno conference, at Lake Maggiore, in Switzerland, in 1925.

When the delegates were haggling, she packed some hampers and invited Sir Austen, Briand and Stresemann to the most important picnic in all history. In her handsome little yacht, they disappeared around a bend in the lake, landed in a secluded spot, and, with the aid of three jurists, re-rigged Europe.

Whatever came out of the conference, for good or ill, is traced to that picnic. When she returned to England, she was made Dame of the Grand Cross of the British Empire.

How Picnic at Locarno Made Peace
She is a comely matron of sixty-two, married to Sir Austen in 1906. He was fourteen years older. She was Ivy Dundas of one of the leading political families of England.

In the earlier years of their marriage, she was credited with having coached her husband in the ultra-English mannerisms which all of the great Birmingham family found it expedient to master when they moved to London. She is said to have been his political as well as his social mentor, and frequently electioneered in his campaigns.

Lady Chamberlain is an extreme conservative and is believed to have nurtured plans for a British alliance with the Absolutist powers. She has an extraordinary flair for dramatic political stage-settings and delicate sensitivity to political currents.

G-Men On Front Page in Spy Hunt
THE New York spy round-up by the federal bureau of investigation marks the first front-page work-out of the G-men as an ally of the secret service.

An attache of the latter told me in Washington last summer that J. Edgar Hoover's organization, developed in post-war years, would be an invaluable aid to this country's defenses against foreign espionage, and that, in the event of trouble, actual or impending, no foreign country could hope to duplicate Germany's exploit in sabotage, propaganda and spying before our entry into the World war.

Reed Vetterli, in short pants when the World war started, heads the New York office of the F. B. I. and deploys his 75 agents in a red-hot spy scenario, in which they score as usual, with indications today that this is just the overture.

Six feet tall, blond, reticent, Mr. Vetterli is a veteran of the F. B. I. war against thugs and kidnapers, in the bureau since 1926, in charge of 18 offices in his 11 years of service.

He was born in Salt Lake City in 1902, took his law degree at the University of Washington in 1925. In 1933, he was wounded in the Kansas City massacre, trading shots with Pretty Boy Floyd's gangsters.

When Rossini Sneered at Wagner's Opera

Recalling an occasion when Arnold Schonberg, "impressionistic" composer, came to London to conduct a Schonberg program with "explosive" results, Sir John Squire is reminded of Rossini being taken by friends to hear an opera by the new marvel, Richard Wagner. The dialogue, after the show, ran like this:

Disciples—What did you think of it, Master?

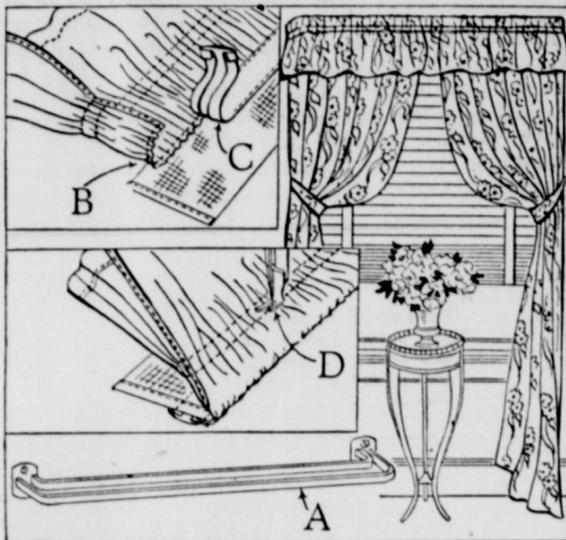

Rossini—I don't think it would be fair to express an opinion without hearing it a second time.

Disciples (eagerly)—And when are you going to hear it a second time, Master?

Rossini (emphatically)—Never!

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

The chintz draperies with shirred valance shown here are dignified and yet charmingly informal. They are easy to make; they have the smart tailored effect that is usually obtained only by using a valance board, yet they are hung on ordinary double curtain rods of the type shown here at A.

The side drapes are made of full widths of the chintz and are hung on the inside rod with plain casings at the top. Cut the valance material the desired depth and twice as long as the space it is to fill after it is shirred. Hem the ends and bottom. Now, make a row of gathers along the raw edge at the top, another row 2½ inches below the first and a third row ½ inch below the second. Cut a piece of buckram 4 inches deep and as long as the outside curtain rod. Bind the ends of this strip. Place the shirred valance edge wrong side down on the strip of buckram as at B. Cut a casing strip wide enough for the rod to slip under it after the edges are turned, and place it over the valance edge as at C. Stitch the

Don't Sear Meat.—Searing meat will not hold the juices in, as was formerly believed, but will cause greater shrinkage and loss of fat and moisture.

To Prevent Iron Sticking.—When pressing curtains, add half a teaspoonful sugar and a quarter teaspoonful salt to each tablespoonful of starch.

Filling for Peppers.—Leftover rice or macaroni mixed with cooked meat makes a good filling for green peppers or tomatoes.

The latter need to be cooked only 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Cleaning Suede.—Clean soiled suede shoes and belts with sawdust slightly warmed in the oven. Rub it over the surface with a clean, soft rag, and to raise the pile rub gently afterwards with a piece of fine emery paper.

To Protect Grates.—To keep grates free from rust mix with blacklead a little turpentine and methylated spirit, equal parts of each.

2-WAY RELIEF FOR THE MISERY OF COLDS

The speed with which Bayer tablets act in relieving the distressing symptoms of colds and accompanying sore throat is utterly amazing . . . and the treatment is simple and pleasant. This is all you do. Crush and dissolve three genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain ceases promptly; rawness is relieved.

You will say it is remarkable. And the few cents it costs effects a big saving over expensive "throat gargles" and strong medicines. And when you buy, see that you get genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

KEEPING THE BODY STRONG

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:53-56; Judg. 13:12-14; 1 Cor. 3:16, 17; Rom. 12:1, 2.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink not wine nor strong drink, and eat not any unclean thing.—Judg. 13:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Body God Gave Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—For Jesus' Sake.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Liquor, Drugs, and Tobacco Do to Health.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Intemperance Affects Health.

The universe of God is perfectly organized in every respect. Beings that function in the spirit realm are spirit beings, not subject to the limitations of the physical world. We who dwell and serve in the physical world are equipped with physical bodies which are ideal instruments for our present existence.

With all their shortcomings and frailties, our bodies are indeed marvelous machines, intricate and delicate, yet unbelievably hardy and durable. They are a gift from God, and it is our express responsibility to glorify God in our bodies (1 Cor. 6:20).

I. How to Have a Strong Body.

It is obvious that not every one has equal physical strength and health. In some measure this is by divine providence or at least by God's permissive will, and those of us who find ourselves thus limited do well to count on His grace for patience to use what we have for His glory. But not one of us wants to yield hopelessly to our inability. Rather we will do our best to overcome it. We want to know

1. How to cure weakness (Mark 6:53-56).

God alone can heal the sick. Even in our day when science has made such strides in the healing art, we note that the most successful remedy or system of treatment is the one that clears the way for what men call nature, but we know to be God, to work. Jesus healed the multitudes in the land of Gennesaret; He heals in America.

2. How to prevent weakness (Judg. 13:12-14).

The mother of Samson, who was to be a Nazirite, was to drink no wine and to observe careful dietary regulations before he was born.

Note also that if it is bad for a man to have such poisons in his veins before he is born, surely it is poor judgment to put them in after he comes to the age where he controls his own life. We need to watch our diets, and we have much valuable help on that point. We also need to give serious attention to the use of narcotics. It may surprise some to know that the term narcotics includes not only drugs and alcoholic beverages, but also tobacco, and such common things as tea and coffee.

Other abuse of the body, such as overwork, neglect of rest, etc., may well be mentioned. The besetting sin of some Christian workers is the destruction of their bodies, the very temple of the Holy Ghost, by overwork.

II. How to Use a Strong Body.

Unfortunate as it is to observe that some who would serve the Lord have to struggle with the weakness of the body, it is far sadder to note that all too often those who have strong bodies forget to use that strength for God. Our Scripture portions give us two excellent guiding principles. Our bodies should be

1. Kept for God (1 Cor. 3:16, 17).

These verses refer to the body of the Christian, for only of him can it be said that his body is the temple of the Holy Ghost.

The Holy Spirit is a person, the third person of the blessed Trinity. He comes to dwell within the soul of the Christian immediately upon his being regenerated, thus making his body the temple of the Holy Ghost. A clear grasp of that truth solves the problem of what we should do with and for our bodies. We must keep them well and clean. We dare not defile them in any way. The body of the Christian is kept for God.

2. Yielded to God (Rom. 12:1, 2).

It is a high and noble sacrifice to die for Christ.

But our call just now is to be a "living sacrifice." There are times when that may seem harder than to be a martyr. We do know that it is not always easy to live through the drab, difficult, and sometimes dreadful days, with a clear and shining testimony for Christ. But it can be done and is always to His glory. It is by the transforming grace of God that we are enabled to live such a life.

TIPS to Gardeners

Care in Planting

PLANTING and planting preliminaries demand care as the first step toward a successful garden. The ground should be worked deeply and the top three or four inches should be made as fine and loose as possible.

A primary consideration in planting is to have the soil favorably moist—damp but not wet. If circumstances demand that you plant when the ground is dry, moisten trenches before dropping the seed. Use enough water to wet soil, but not enough to cake.

To retain moisture after planting, cover seeds with fine earth and press down firmly.

Generally, a temperature between 65 and 75 degrees when planting is most favorable.

Depth of planting is important, and it varies, of course, with different seeds. Generally, seeds approximately the size of turnip seed should be covered not more than half an inch. Larger seeds, such as peas, beans and corn may be planted one to two and one-half inches deep.

Loosen Phlegm In Chest Colds

1. What is meant by the displacement tonnage of a ship?
2. Why were bridal veils first worn?
3. Is an earthquake usually preceded by slighter tremors?
4. In art why is the Mater Dolorosa represented with 7 swords?
5. When guests are received at the White House are they presented first to the President or to Mrs. Roosevelt?

The Answers

1. The weight of the water that would be necessary to fill the space occupied by the hull of the ship.

2. To conceal and protect the bride from evil spirits.

3. Usually slight tremors are felt first. They rapidly take the form of one or more violent shocks, and end in vibrations of diminishing force.

4. It is an allusion to the seven sorrows which she endured.

5. They are presented first to the President and then to Mrs. Roosevelt, who stands next in line.

Short Stories

THE young wife was giving her first dinner-party and was rather nervous. "John, darling," she said to her husband, reproachfully, "do look after poor Mr. Robinson; he's helping himself to everything."

The master called the cook and spoke thus: "Mary, my mother-in-law is coming to stay with us for a month. Here is a list of the dishes she loves—and the first time you serve one of them you're fired."

"A man's lips have yet to touch mine," said the sweet miss, as she slammed on more lipstick.

Truth in Speaking

Speak not at all, in any wise, till you have somewhat to speak; care not for the reward of your speaking, but simply and with undivided mind for the truth of your speaking.—Carlyle.
