State Health Department

Infantile paralysis, like typhoid fever and intestinal disturbances of infants, is largely a summer disease, although cases may occur during July, August, September, and October. To date, 109 cases of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) have been reported to the Texas State Department of Health in 1939.

Direct contact between persons is regarded as being the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis. Because of the seasonal prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have been suspected of conveying the virus or germ. Insect transmission has not, however, been scientifically proven. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine; this fact makes advisable the reduction to a minimum of human contacts during an outbreak.

Early symptoms of infantile paraly comprise headache, fever, vomiting, intestinal disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. Prompt medical care, early recognition and reporting of cases health authorities make possible the use of valuable preventive and control measures.

After the acute state of the disease has passed and walking is permitted the patient, under no circumstances, must the affected part be fatigued. It is thus observed that the secret of successful rehabilitation lies in continuance of professional guidance and large doses of patience.

The pep squad girls met Tuesday afternoon and elected officers for the year. Those chosen were: Boots Summers, Norma Dale Cowley, and Maxine Craddock as cheer leaders; Alta Bell Bilbo as treasurer; Joyce Havins and Gerrie Davis as co-reporters.

There are more girls enrolled in the squad this year than ever before. They intend to attend every game and back the boys, with the help of the town and school band. So we want to see everyone out to each game during this season.--Reporters

Taking steps to keep the U.S.A. neutral during the war now in progress in Europe, President Roosevelt has clamped an embargo on arms shipment to warring nations. You will remember that in the last war the United States sold and delivered arms and war supplies to foreign nations, but this embargo means that arms, ammunition, aircraft, or any other implements of war can not be sold direct to a belligerent or any other nation for transshipment to the warring countries.

Citizens are urged to report any spying activities that come to their attention to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist Church met with Mrs. J. S. Craddock Monday afternoon. After a business session Mrs. Gardner gave an interesting and instructive review of the Sunday School lesson. NOTICE

We realize that money is a little scarcer than usual this fall, and that it is hard for people to meet all their bills. For this reason, we are urging our subscribers, those who are now delinquent and those whose subscriptions will expire within the next few months, to take care of their subscriptions, if at all possible, out of the first money that comes to them.

At $1 per year, a subscription to the Observer is one of the smallest items of expense a family has. It figures less than 2c per week, for which the reader gets local news, farm news, serial stories, styles, recipes, and valuable advertisements which will, if read, save far more than the subscription price each year.

But, while the subscription price is small to the individual subscriber, it mounts up when multiplied by the number of subscribers we have. And when 25 or 50 become delinquent, the decreased revenue is big enough to be very noticeable when it comes to paying running costs and overhead.

Our subscribers as a whole have been very faithful and punctual about renewing their subscription when it expires. We appeal to you to continue in that spirit, so that the Observer's services may not be impaired.

Remember that we can take orders now to your favorite subscription to the Observer.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY HENRY W. PORTER

War Threats Still Hold Stage But Hope Is Not Abandoned; Nazis Get Chance to Bargain

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The figures on this map indicate the flying distance between the chief cities of Europe which are certain to be targets for bombers if war breaks out.

EUROPE War or Peace?

War or long negotiations, either may be the outcome of the diplomatic exchanges now proceeding between London and Berlin. Much depends upon the nature of Hitler's reply to the latest message from the British cabinet. Tension is high in all European capitals, war threats still hold the stage and before these lines reach the reader, the clash of arms may be resounding in Europe. But hope for a peaceful settlement over Poland has not been abandoned.

The British and French, apparently, are willing to concede something to Germany, but by no means all that Hitler demands. The showdown may come quickly.

It is apparent that each side is trying to bully the other with its bellicose intentions in order to force some sort of a deal to avert war. The latest British note, it was said, shows a willingness to facilitate a negotiated settlement between Germany and Poland. It also contained a flat warning that any German threat to the independence of Poland would find Britain and France fighting on the side of the Poles.

It is evident that at last the patience of France and Britain has reached the limit of endurance over Hitler's continual grabbing of territory. The brutality, bad faith and menacing methods of the Nazi government have kept Europe in a state of upheaval for years, and this must stop now, and definite guarantees must be given that will ensure the peace of Europe.

Diplomatic negotiations have been proceeding in half a dozen European capitals in an effort to avert another world holocaust. Principal interest centered in London where the British cabinet wrangled for hours over Hitler's latest proposals for a peaceful settlement of the German-Polish territorial dispute. These proposals were submitted to Sir Neville Henderson, the British amrequested by Hitler. Henderson flew to London and laid them before the British government. The ambassador was to fly back to Berlin with the British cabinet's reply.

Chamberlain's government, armed with dictatorial powers voted by parliament, continued to oil up the British war machine. The first significant act was to sign a treaty giving formal effect to British pledges of aid to Poland. The treaty will run for five years.

Another important war move was to prohibit dealing in a number of foreign securities. This action was interpreted as conscription of wealth. It is estimated that $15,000,000,000 worth of securities will be affected by the order.

Danzig, the Polish corridor and various sections of Poland along the border, these Germany must have, is Hitler's defiant demand, otherwise there will be war. These were the declarations of Hitler in a letter to Premier Daladier of France. This revealed for the first time officially Hitler's full demands on Poland.

"For a nation with honor it is impossible to relinquish a population of 2,000,000 of its compatriots at its border," the letter said.

In the meantime mobilization of German military forces was reaching its climax. New war measures were taken. Food and clothing ration cards were distributed. Purchase of gasoline was restricted.

In Washington it was learned that President Roosevelt is prepared to go the limit of law and perhaps farther to swing the power and resources of the United States to the side of Great Britain and France in the event of war. If he is unable to procure repeal of the arms provision of the neutrality act, he still will be enabled by certain loopholes in the legislation to temper the application of the embargo to favored belligerents. The loopholes are afforded by the rules and regulations on the export of war supplies that the law leaves to the discretion of the executive.

France, with the greatest force under arms since 1919, awaited calmly and vigilantly the outcome of diplomatic negotiations then under way. Notices were pasted up throughout the country ordering reservists to report to their mobilization centers at once. Approximately 2,300,000 men are now under arms.

In Warsaw a pall of depression settled on the Polish capital. In authoritative circles it was believed mediation by the United States, or some other equally distinguished and disinterested third power, was the only remaining chance to avoid European war. This conviction was crystallized as Warsaw heard from Paris that Hitler had refused direct negotiations with Poland for a peaceful solution of Danzig's status.

INDUSTRY: Steps Ahead

While the sensitive financial markets had a slight attack of "jitters" as a result of European war threats, industry quickened its pace throughout the week.

Steel production was at the highest level in nearly two years, output of electricity set an all-time record, and the movement of railroad freight reached a new 1939 peak. Cotton textile mills were the busiest ble production increased as factories began to make more ready way on the 1940 models.

Narrow gains were shown in retail trade over the preceding week.

WAR PROPAGANDA:

Deluges America

The greatest flood of war propaganda since the period immediately preceding American entry into the World war is deluging the United States, according to a report made public by the Dies committee on un-American activities.

The war propaganda, according to the report, is traced to two major groupings of European nations—the London-Paris entente and the Berlin-Rome axis. Communist Russia is placed in a separate category. The most effective war propaganda in this country emanates from Great Britain, the report said.

"Already wide sections of American public opinion have been definitely molded to the acceptance of many of the objectives of the current war propaganda emanating from abroad," the report said. "Polls of American public opinion would seem to indicate that certain powers (the London-Paris entente) have won the first major battle of the next war by enlisting the preponderant sentiment of this country on their side."

The report was compiled by Dr. J. B. Matthews, director on research on foreign war propaganda for the committee.

Of all the nations in the world the United States is the most coveted prize to be bagged by foreign war propagandists, says the report, as resources of the United States might well be the decisive factor in any war.

"Democracy versus dictatorship" is chief among the war slogans employed in this country to conceal the imperialistic aims of certain nations, according to the report.

JAPAN: Drops German Ties

As a result of the Russian-German nonaggression pact, a drastic change in foreign policy has been decided upon by the Japanese cabinet. Japan casts itself free from the ties which bound it to the German-Italian lineup and embarks on a course of "splendid isolation." The decision to start all over again met with the approval of the entire cabinet.

It was predicted that later the government will realign its internal structure, but no inkling was given as to probable developments. The government, it was reported, had abandoned consideration of measures to strengthen the anti-comintern pact, which allied Japan with Rome, Berlin and Hungary. Japanese newspapers were virtually agreed that the anti-comintern pact is dead as a result of the German-Russian pact.

The Japanese army was prompt in giving their unqualified approval to the cabinet's action in severing

Finding it impossible to make the adjustments made necessary by the German-Russian pact, the Japanese cabinet resigned and a new cabinet is being formed.

"A Ride With Death"

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Mary Billard of La Salle, Ill., is today's Distinguished Adventurer, and she wins that distinction—as well as the well-known ten bucks—with one of the most terrifying yarns I've seen in a long time.

It happened in 1913, when Mrs. Billard was Miss Mary Blanch, a girl of twelve, and Mary says, "The La Salle papers called me a heroine at the time, and it was all quite exciting for a girl of my age, but it lost its thrill when I thought of my mother lying in a hospital in a critical condition, fighting the dangers of gangrene and lockjaw."

You can see from that statement of Mary's that there was tragedy in that episode as well as adventure. And it started with nothing but a common, ordinary buggy ride. There weren't so many automobiles in those days, and most of the streets were mere unpaved dirt roads.

Mary's dad had bought a horse that had spent all its life on race tracks and was hard to handle when hitched to a buggy. It had run away twice, and Mary's mother didn't drive it any oftener than she had to.

But there came a day when she felt she HAD to drive that horse. They had just moved into town, and Mary was finishing a term at a little country schoolhouse three miles out of La Salle. Mary's teacher was coming back with her that evening, so Mother hitched up the horse and started out to get them.

Mother hadn't been feeling well all that day, but she made the trip to the schoolhouse without any trouble. They were all on their way to town, with Mary in the middle between her mother and the teacher, when, without warning, Mary felt her mother fall away from her.

Mary Looked Around and Saw Her Mother.

She looked around just in time to see Mother topple from the seat and pitch headlong into the road. She had fainted.

But that was only the beginning of a disastrous train of events. Mother had fallen out with the lines still clutched in her hands. The sudden jerk on those reins, caused by her falling, frightened the horse. It gave a leap forward.

"And with that leap," says Mary, "there started the fastest ride I had ever remembered in all my 12 years."

"We were horrified at the situation. The horse was plunging along at a full gallop, and my mother was being dragged face downward over stones and gravel, in a way that struck terror into my heart. The teacher and I were helpless.

"I pulled and jerked at the reins until I brought the horse to a stop."

"We called and screamed to mother, pleading with her to let go of the lines, but all our screaming was useless, for mother was in an unconscious condition, clinging to those reins with a death grip while the horse dragged her along."

And, for half a mile, mother dragged along beside the reeling wagon, in imminent danger of rolling under the wheels, while up in the seat Mary and the teacher sat paralyzed with fear, trying to hang on to the swaying, reeling buggy.

Mary says that buggy was running on two wheels a good part of the time. And at other times it seemed to be flying through the air, with nothing under the wheels at all.

Several men along the road had tried to stop the horse, but couldn't do anything with the crazed animal. At last, at the end of a half a mile, mother's hands loosened on the reins and the lines were free. They got between the horse's front legs, and that only served to frighten the poor animal more.

The Careening Carriage Flew Down the Road.

Still the reeling, careening carriage flew on. They had covered more than a mile, and now they were within a short distance of a narrow culvert, just outside of the business section of La Salle. There were pillars on either side of it, and it would be a miracle if the crazed horse got through that cramped space without wrecking the buggy.

The teacher was the first one to think of that culvert. She screamed to Mary that if the horse couldn't be stopped before they reached it they would both be killed.

"And with her voice still ringing in my ears," says Mary, "she rose to her feet, stood on them for a moment on the swaying floor of the buggy—and jumped! I shut my eyes as I heard her body hit the road, and thought that surely she must have been killed."

And now, Mary was left alone in that speeding buggy. She knew that, somehow, she had to get hold of those reins that were dragging down there beneath the horse's feet. Just a little way ahead, now, was the culvert. And even if the buggy did get through the culvert, it was certain to crash into something in the business district two blocks beyond. So, while the buggy reeled and swayed, Mary began climbing over the dashboard, onto the horse's back.

It was a desperate chance. Time and again Mary almost lost her hold in that precarious trip. The horse was slippery with foam and perspiration, and only by bracing her feet against the shaft did she manage to keep from being thrown into the road.

"I reached the horse's head," she says, "and the feel of my body on her seemed to frighten her all the more, and make her go faster than ever. But I got the lines from between her legs and started inching my way back to the buggy."

"I pulled and jerked at the reins until I brought the horse to a halt," she says, "and it stopped just a few feet in front of the dreaded culvert. A boy ran up to hold the animal, and I left the buggy and ran into town to get a doctor for mother. She was still unconscious when she awoke. The terrible marks of that experience... Mary says she's glad the horse and buggy days are over because—well, because she wouldn't want to see her children to have such an experience.

Jane sat huddled in her chair, panting a little, her eyes wide. "Silly," she said with a sob. The sound of her voice echoed and re-echoed, "Silly, silly, silly."

The noise without was deafening—the wind shook the walls. She stood up, her hands clenched, then ran swiftly into the hall.

A thundering crash and the lights went out. She heard Frederick calling, "Jane, Jane!"

She called back, "I'm here," and saw the quick spurt of a match as he lighted it, holding it up and peering into the dark.

"There you are, my dearest." He lighted another match and came towards her, as Waldron, with a brace of candles, appeared in one door and Baldy and Edith in another.

Frederick lifted Jane in his strong arms. "Why, you're crying," he said; "don't, my darling, don't." Then Baldy came up and demanded, "What's the matter, Kitten? You've never been afraid of storms."

She tried to smile at him. "Well, I've gone through such a lot lately." But Baldy wasn't satisfied. A Jane who dissolved into tears was a disturbing and desolating object. He glowered at Frederick, holding him responsible.

At this moment Waldron reappeared to say that Briggs had pronounced the streets impassable. Branches had been blown down—and there was other wreckage.

"That settles it," Frederick said. "You two young things may as well stay here for the night. Jane's not fit to go out anyhow."

"Oh, I'm all right," she protested. Edith suggested bridge, so they played for a while. The big room was still lighted by the candles, so that the shadows pressed close. Jane was very pale, and now and then Frederick looked at her anxiously.

"You and Edith had better go up," he said at last. "And you must have Alice get you some hot milk—I'll send Waldron with a bit of cordial to set you up."

She shook her head. "I don't want it."

"But I want you to have it." There was a note of authority which almost brought her again to tears. She hated to have anyone tell her what she should do. She liked to do as she pleased. But later, when the glass of cordial came up to her, she drank it.

She did not go to sleep for a long time. Edith sat by the bed and talked to her. "I shouldn't," she apologized; "Uncle Fred told you to rest."

Jane curled up among her pillows, and said rebelliously, "Well, I don't have to obey yet, do I?"

"Don't ever obey," Edith, in her winged chair with her Viking braids and the classic draperies of her white dressing-gown, looked like a Norse goddess. "Don't ever obey, or you'll make a tyrant out of him."

"But I hate—fighting." "You won't have to fight. I do it because it's my temperament. But you can manage him—by letting things go a bit—and coaxing will do the rest."

"I don't want to manage—my husband," said Jane.

"All women do—"

"Would you want to manage—Baldy?"

Edith flushed. "That's different," she evaded.

"Not different. You know you wouldn't go through life with him, pulling wires, making a puppet of him—of yourself—you want comradeship—understanding. You'll flare up now and then. Baldy and I do. But—oh, we love each other." Jane's voice shook.

Edith looked at her thoughtfully. "Jane, are you happy?"

"I ought to be—"

"But are you?"

"I'm tired I think. I don't know. Ever since I came home I've been nervous. Perhaps it is the reaction."

"Jane, I'm going to say something. Don't marry Uncle Fred unless you're—sure. I went through all that with Del. And you see how little I knew of what I had in my heart to give—"

She stopped, her lovely face suffused with blushes. "I've learned—since then. And you mustn't make my—mistake. And, you know, I'm a younger girl like some splendid angel, don't worry about material things. Baldy and I will want you always with us—"

Jane sat up. "Are you going to marry Baldy?"

"I am," sighing a little, "some day, when his ship comes in. He isn't willing to share my cargo—yet."

"He loves you," said Jane, "dearly."

Edith bent down and kissed her. "I know," she said, "and my heart sings it."

When Edith went away, they had not touched again on the question of Jane's marriage. Jane, lying awake in the dark, reflected that of course Edith could not know of her debt to Frederick. No one knew except Baldy.

In the morning Towne had gone when Jane came down. She and Edith had had breakfast in their rooms—and there had been a great rose on Jane's tray, with a note twisted about the stem—"To my golden girl." Her lover had called her up by the house telephone, and had told her he was leaving for New York at noon. "A telegram has just come. I'll see you the moment I get back."

Jane had a sense of relief. She would have three days to herself.

"The day was so perfect."

Three days at Sherwood—with the blossoming trees, and the mating birds, and Merrymaid and the kitten, and old Sophy with her wise philosophy—and Baldy on the other side of the little table—and Philome singing . . .

Briggs took her out at noon, and Sophy came in to say, "Mr. Evans called you all up. He's back from New York. He says he'll come over tonight."

That was news indeed! Old Evans! Jane got into the frock of faded lilac gingham and went about the house singing. Three days! Of freedom!

It was after lunch that she told the old woman, "I'm going down in the Glen—there should be wild honeysuckle—Sophy."

There were bees in the Glen and butterflies, and a cool silence. On the other side of the creek were pasture, and cattle grazing. But no human creature was in sight. Jane, walking along the narrow path, had a sense of utter peace. Here was familiar ground. She felt the welcome of inanimate things—the old willows, the singing stream, the great gray rocks that stuck their heads above the edges of the bank.

On the slope of the bank she saw the rosiness of the flowers she sought. She climbed up, picked the fragrant sprays and sat down under a hickory tree to make a bouquet. From where she sat she could view the broad stream and a rustic bridge just at a turn of the path.

And now, around the turn of the path, came suddenly a man and two boys. They carried fishing-rods and stopped at a jutting rock to bait their hooks. One of the boys went out on the bridge and cast his line. His voice came to Jane clearly.

"Mr. Follette, there's a thing I hate to do, and that's to bait my hook with a worm. I'd much rather put on something that wasn't alive. Why is it that everything eats up . . ."

Jane peered down at the boy who was winding his reel again. "That's the best way for both of us—not to talk."

He stayed to dinner, stayed for an hour or two afterwards—fitting himself in pleasantly to former niches. Jane could hardly credit the change in him. It was, she decided, not so much a resurrection of the body as of the spirit. His hair was gray, and now and then his eyes showed tired, his shoulders sagged. But there was no trace of the old timidity, the old withdrawals. He was interested, responsive, at times buoyant. The things she had loved in him years ago were again there. This man did not think dark thoughts!

The things she had loved in him years ago were again there. This man did not think dark thoughts!

When he went away, she and Baldy stood together on the terrace in the warm darkness and watched him.

"He still limps a little," Jane said. "Yes. Shall we go in now, Jane?" "No. Let's sit on the steps and see the moon rise."

They sat side by side. "When is Towne coming back?" Baldy asked. "In three days."

Tree-toads were shrilling in monotonous cadence—from far away came the plaintive note of a whip-poorwill. But there was another plaintive note close at hand.

"Jane, you're crying," Baldy said, sharply. "What's the matter, dear?"

He put his arm about her. "What's the matter?"

"Baldy, I don't want to get—married. I want to stay with you—forever—"

"You shall stay with me." She sobbed and sobbed, and he soothed her. "Little sister, little sister," he said, "you are crying too much in these days."

At last Jane spoke. "Dearest, I must marry him. There's no way out. He's done so much for me—and some day, perhaps, I'll love him."

CHAPTER XIV

It was after the day when she had met Evans in the Glen that Jane began to be haunted by ghosts.

There was a ghost who wandered through Sherwood on moonlights, a limping, hesitating ghost who said, "You're wine, Jane. I must have my daily sip of you."

And there was a ghost who came in a fog and said, "You are a lantern, Jane—held high."

And that ghost in the glow of the hearth-fire—"You are food and drink to me, Jane. Do you know it?"

Ghosts, ghosts, ghosts; holding out appealing hands to her. And always she had turned away. But now she did not turn. Over and over again she lent her ears to those whispering words, "Jane, you are wine . . . Jane, you are a lantern. . . . You are food and drink, Jane . . ."

Well, she was having her punishment. She had not loved him when he needed her. And now that she needed him, she must not love him.

She hardly knew herself. All the years of her life she had seen things straight, and she had tried to live up to that vision. She saw them straight now. She did not love Frederick Towne. She had no right to marry him. Yet she must. There was no way out.

Towne was aware of a difference in her when he returned from New York. She was more remote. A little less responsive. Yet these things caused him no disquiet. Her crisp coolness had always constituted one of her great charms. "You are tired, dearest," he told her. "I wish you would marry me right away, and let me make you happy."

They were lunching at the Capitol in the Senate restaurant. Frederick was an imposing figure and Jane was aware of his importance. People glanced at him and glanced again, and then told others who he was. Some day she would be his wife, and everybody would be telling everybody else that she was the wife of the great Frederick Towne.

The attentive waiter at her elbow laid toast on her plate, and served Maryland crab from a silver chafing-dish. Frederick knew what she liked and had ordered without asking her. But the delicious food was tasteless.

Phone Office 69 Night 68

The widely discussed proposal for altering the date of Thanksgiving Day is one to cause friends and neighbors to gnash and clash. Whatever the outcome of the proposal, we comment on the records of those Thanksgiving of the past. They inform us that the Pilgrim Fathers made many changes in their dates. The observance might be in July or occur in December although October and November were more favored months. Canada, who has used the idea of our Thanksgiving have found that our date of November 30th is too late in the season. They observe it in October. Let us not forget that in the early days when the Pilgrims observed the first Thanksgiving they didn't pay much attention to the business of early Christmas shopping, the turkey market and football schedules.

being as follows: Plaintiff alleges that said J. R. Johnson and wife Nola B. Johnson executed and delivered to plaintiff three notes in principal sum of $1,084.90 each, dated October 19, 1934 and payable to order of plaintiff on or before January 1st, in the years 1935, 1936, and 1937 respectively, each note bearing 8% interest from its date, the interest being due annually and past due interest bearing 10% interest from its maturity, each note providing for an additional 10% on the principal and interest as attorney's fees if same is placed with an attorney for collection or suit is brought thereon; that the note due January 1, 1935 is credited with payments as follows, $222.50 on January 1, 1936, $110.00 on January 21, 1937, $108.00 on July 1, 1937, and $112.00 on January 7, 1938; that otherwise said three notes remain wholly unpaid though payment has been demanded; that about December 26, 1938 plaintiff placed said notes with an attorney for collection and filed suit thereon and agreed to pay such attorney said 10 per cent attorney's fees provided for in said notes and that such fees have accrued and are due and reasonable; that to secure payment of said three notes said J. R. Johnson and wife Nola B. Johnson executed and delivered to Caleb Reed, Trustee, a deed of trust dated October 19, 1934, now of record at page 112 of Vol. 18 of Deed of Trust Records of said Coke County and covering all of the South one-half of Section No 3, Certificate No. 592, Abstract No. 208, H. E. & W. T. Ry. Co., lands, except and less 6.1 acres thereof owned by the K. C. & O. Ry. Co.; plaintiff also alleges in substance that said deed of trust also secures repayment to the legal holder of said notes all sums which such holder might pay on taxes against said land, with 10 per cent interest thereon from date such holder pays such taxes, that on September 1, 1938 plaintiff as such holder paid a total of $471.39 for taxes against said land for certain years stated in plaintiff's petition certain taxes, interest, penalties and costs due and delinquent on said land, that plaintiff is entitled to be subrogated to the original lien securing same, that defendants are liable to plaintiff for said $471.39 with said 10 per cent interest thereon from September 1, 1938, that said J. R. Johnson and wife are liable to plaintiff for the amount owing on said three notes (principal, interest and attorney's fees); that said notes were given in renewal of the balance then owing on certain notes executed by said J. R. Johnson to plaintiff dated December 26, 1923, which were given for part of the purchase money for said land which was on same date conveyed by deed from plaintiff and wife to said J. R. Johnson, that plaintiff had and has a vendors' lien implied by law on said land to secure said notes, that plaintiff still has such lien, that it is still in force and secure payment of the said three $1,084.00 notes, but that plaintiff has released said lien on that part of said land included in a strip of land 100 feet wide running parallel with the K. C. & M. O. Ry. Co. right of way, that such strip was intended to be the same strip included in State Highway No. 70 and described in deed from J. R. Johnson and wife to the State of Texas and recorded at Page 305 of Vol 53 of Deeds Records of said county; that said deed to said J. R. Johnson is in possession of defendants and they are notified to produce same on trial of this suit or plaintiff will offer secondary evidence of its contents; plaintiff also alleges that each of said defendants is claiming some title or lien or interest or claim in, to, on and or against said land and or some part or parts thereof, which titles, liens, inter-tion of full title to said land and premises by virtue of the five and ten years statute of limitation, as required by law, and further alleges that each and all of said Defendants are asserting some character of rights, title, claim or interest in and to said land and premises or lien thereon, by virtue of a certain deed of trust thereon executed by Plaintiff and his wife, Minnie Knierim, dated June 1, 1927, of record in Vol. 14, pages 408-10 of the Deed of Trust record of Coke County, Texas, given to secure the payment of a certain Bond or note executed by them of even date there with for the sum of $1700.00 payable to J. E. Robbins or order at Fort Worth, Texas, due December 1, 1931, bearing interest from date at the rate of ten per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on June and December 1, of each year, according to nine coupons attached thereto, and providing for the collection of ten per cent on the full amount due as attorneys fees, if sued upon or placed in the hands of an attorney for collection or if collected through any court or probate or bankruptcy. Plaintiff alleges that said bond or note has never been renewed nor extended nor has said deed of trust ever been foreclosed, and that the collection of said note or bond and the enforcement of said deed of trust has long since become barred by the statute of limitation of four years, here now pleaded and asserted, and that all such rights, titles, claims to or liens upon said land and premises so asserted by said Defendants and each of them are invalid, without legal authority in law or equity, and have cast a cloud upon Plaintiff's title to said property and should be canceled by judgement of this court, and that Plaintiff should be quieted in his title thereto.

Plaintiff prays for citation by publication to Defendants and each of them as required by law, for judgement against the Defendants and each of them for the title and possession of said land and premises, for writ of possession, that all such claims and liens to and upon said property so asserted by said Defendants and each of them be canceled by judgement of this court, that the cloud upon Plaintiff's title to said property caused thereby be removed, and that he be quieted in his title thereto, for costs of suit and for general and special relief.

Herein Fail Not, and have you before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND and the Seal of said Court, at office in Robert Lee, Texas, this 29th day of August A. D. 1939.

est and claims so asserted are not fully known to plaintiff but all of same are subordinate and inferior to plaintiff's said liens; plaintiff alleges that said Mrs Mattie Daniel claims some kind of a lien on said land or part thereof under two deeds of trust of record in said county and which is inferior to plaintiff's liens, that the notes secured by said two deeds of trust in favor of said Mrs. Daniel are barred by limitation but that said deeds of trust are a cloud on title to said land and on plaintiff's lien, that such should be removed;

Plaintiff prays for judgment against said J. R. Johnson for full amount of principal and interest remaining unpaid on said three $1,084.00 notes and for said 10% attorney's fee therein provided for and for said sum of $471.39 so paid by plaintiff on said taxes, etc. with 10% interest thereon from September 1, 1938, and for judgment against each and all defendant's for the foreclosure of said vendor's lien and said lien under plaintiff's said deed of trust and for foreclosure of all liens to which plaintiff may be entitled and the lien originally securing payment of said $471.39 to which plaintiff is entitled to be subrogated, that such foreclosures be against all of said lands, that said lands be ordered sold and that the judgement direct issuance of proper order of sale and all other proper process and writ of possession and restitution, and for general and special relief at law and in equity.

Herein Fail Not but have before said Court, at its next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Refuse To Eat

Many children refuse to eat because they are stirred to active opposition by adults who stand guard, ready to beg the child to eat his spinach or carrots.

Oftentimes children enjoy this attention, and refuse to eat just to keep themselves in the limelight.

If a child doesn't eat, it may be because he is ill or because he is too tired to eat. Then, some children do not eat simply because they have not learned to eat a variety of foods. When a new food is offered, only a small portion should be given the child at first; if it is refused, say nothing but serve it again in a few days and continue to do so until the child has learned to like it.

Parents should not mention food dislikes before children, for if father and mother do not like milk, carrots, spinach and other valuable foods, it will be natural for the children to dislike them.

An early afternoon calm had settled over the neighborhood, disturbed only by an autumn breeze and occasional passing automobiles. Then, into the stillness burst the disturbing sound of a racing automobile. Following the noise came the cause, car-reening madly along the street in reverse. With a sudden lurch, the green meteor left the road, bounced over the ditch, crashed through the paling fence, then stopped,--dead. Smoky gingerly climbed out and viewed the scene in bewilderment. The only evidence of a horrible experience was a broken fence with his car sitting on it.

Police Prose

A gentleman driving up Fifth avenue late at night slipped past a light that was just changing, stopping, of course, at the next corner. A cop who had been standing on the corner approached him and said: "Whatsa matter, ya blind? Din ya see the lights change? Where's ya license and registration?" He thereupon took the license and registration over under a street lamp, and wrote laboriously in his notebook. He tore out the page, folded it up, handed it to the driver, and snarled: "Get going, now." Stopping at the next light, our man unfolded the paper and read, in careful block printing: "Don't pass no red lights."—New Yorker.

Welcome Nugget

The largest gold nugget ever found was the Welcome Nugget, discovered at Bakery Hill, Ballarat, Australia, on June 11, 1858. In the early days of placer mining in California and Australia, nuggets of considerable size were found with much greater frequency than they are today, but the Welcome was the greatest of them all. It weighed 2,217 oz. 16 dwt. (troy), and was sold for $10,500. No wonder it was called "Welcome"—Montreal Herald.

TASTY SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPERS (See Recipes Below)

Sunday Night Suppers

Even though you expect everyone to have had a noon meal with staying power on Sundays, people do like to eat when Sunday evening rolls 'round! To be sure, they like food that's somewhat lighter, and food that's out of the ordinary. So it's a grand time to leave the beaten path and serve something a little different.

If you serve left-overs, be sure to serve them in a new way or with an unusual accompaniment like the jellied chili sauce I've suggested in menu No. III. If you plan a meal especially for Sunday night, plan one which can be served "help-yourself" style and arrange foods, dishes and silver on the table so that guests may serve themselves. Appetites will be quickened by the eye-appealing arrangement of the table, and the air of informality makes Sunday night supper a sociable affair.

These menus are suited, too, to serving larger numbers—lodge groups, church organizations or clubs. Recipes for the main dish and salad in every menu are easily increased. Unless you have special recipes and equipment, cakes and pastries are likely to be better if the single recipe is used.

Lettuce and Tomatoes With Roquefort Cheese Dressing. (Serves 6)

1 head lettuce
2 tomatoes
1/4 pound Roquefort cheese (crumbled)
French dressing
Remove coarse outer leaves from head of lettuce. Cut into wedges. Peel tomatoes, remove stem end, and cut into eighths. Place in salad bowl with the lettuce. Add crumbled Roquefort cheese and French dressing. Toss lightly until well mixed.

Casserole
1 7-ounce can tuna
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup cooked peas
1 can button mushrooms
2 cups cooked noodles (medium width)
Salt, pepper and butter
1 cup milk
Butter individual baking dishes. Sprinkle tuna with lemon juice. (This brings out the tuna flavor). Arrange alternate layers of tuna, peas, mushrooms and noodles, putting noodles on top. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Dot top generously with butter. Pour milk into dish and top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes. (Serves 4-6.)

Jellied Chili Sauce.

1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup chili sauce (or catsup)
Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Add to chili sauce, which has been heated to the boiling point, and stir until dissolved. Pour into tiny paper cups, individual molds, or small pan from which the chili sauce may be sliced or cut in attractive shapes when firm. Chill thoroughly before serving.

There are so many points to be considered in planning meals. One which is all too likely to be overlooked is this—that the dessert is more than something to satisfy the family's "sweet tooth"; it really plays an important part in the menu.

Next week in this column Eleanor Howe will tell you why—and will give you, too—some of her favorite recipes for "Desserts That Are Different."

Toasted Loaf.

Trim top and side crusts from a loaf of unsliced white bread. Cut through the center of the loaf, lengthwise, cutting just to the lower crust, but not through it. Then cut crosswise, spacing the cuts about 2 inches apart. Brush top and sides generously with melted butter. Toast in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) until the loaf is golden brown. Serve hot.

Clam Chowder. (Serves 6.)

1/2 cup carrot (chopped)
2 tablespoons onion (chopped)
1 1/4 cups potato (chopped)
3/4 cup celery (chopped fine)
1 pint clams
2 cups water and clam liquor
Salt and pepper to taste
1 pint milk
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 tablespoons parsley
1/2 teaspoon paprika

Chop the vegetables in small pieces and place in large kettle. Chop the clams and add together with the clam liquor, water, salt, and pepper. Cover and cook about 1/2 hour, or until vegetables are tender. Scald milk. Make a smooth paste of the flour and water. Add half of this flour paste to the clam mixture and half to the scalded milk. Cook each, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Combine and add butter, parsley and paprika. Serve very hot.

HEZEKIAH: A KING WHO REMEMBERED GOD

LESSON TEXT—II Chronicles 30:13-22. GOLDEN TEXT—Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.—Psalm 80:3.

The way out—that seems to be the chief object of the search of men. The world is in what seems like hopeless confusion with the imminent danger of a devastating explosion which may in the judgment of some destroy civilization. Politics, economics, education, yes, even religion, have tried their hands at solving the problem and we seem to be worse off than ever. Conditions are much as they were when Hezekiah came to the throne after the death of his wicked father Ahab. The young king brought the nation back within a few years to peace and prosperity. How did he do it? He did not do it. God did it, and He did it because Hezekiah remembered Him and led His people in a return to God, in a recognition of His Word, and to restored worship. God therefore prospered them.

It is significant that while our lesson is about King Hezekiah, his person quickly recedes into the background of our thinking and God is given our attention and our praise. Truly great men do not magnify themselves or their own names, but point by their very greatness to the eternal God to whom they give the glory. Let us consider how God worked through Hezekiah.

I. A Cleansed Temple.

Our lesson calls for attention to the context. Read chapter 29 and learn how the priests and Levites first were directed by the king to cleanse the temple which had suffered degradation and disgrace under King Ahab. Sixteen days were devoted to a thorough clean-up.

That's a good place to start. America, how about cleaning up our churches? Some of them need attention to their physical property, cleaning and rehabilitation. Others are beautifully kept up as far as the building is concerned, but the rubbish is in the teaching and in the manner of worship. Let's clean that up, too.

II. A Prepared Priesthood.

Hezekiah gathered the scattered priests and Levites, but he did not permit them to serve in the temple until they had been sanctified and prepared for their work. The men who stand in the sanctuary to direct the worship of God must not only be men of God's own choosing, but they must be cleansed by the blood. As the sacrifices were offered in Hezekiah's day, so for us has One been given in holy sacrifice, and unless those who profess to be His ministers have been cleansed by His blood they have no proper place in His service or in the sanctuary.

III. A Purified People.

The people of the nation were not ready for God's blessing. Some of those in the northern kingdom, to whom the royal invitation had graciously been extended to come to the Passover, scorned the invitation (30:10). There was nothing that could be done for them. But others humbled themselves and came (v. 11), and those in Judah came out in a great assembly (vv. 12, 13).

Observe carefully that this was more than a great homecoming or jubilee event. The people were here to worship God and they needed to be prepared by being "healed" of their sins (vv. 18, 20). They too needed the cleansing blood. Sin is what we must be cleansed from and healed of if God is to bless our land.

IV. A Feast of Joy and Blessing.

The nation and its leaders kept the feast not only for seven days, for they were not satisfied with this, but they kept it for seven more days. Think of many of us who can hardly sit through an hour of service on Sunday morning, and if we also go to Sunday school we are quite worn out. It is just "impossible" for us to get to the Sunday evening service or to the midweek prayer meeting. Evidently we do not have the spirit of the people of Hezekiah's day or the joy that they found in their hearts as they worshiped God. If we did, we would seek His house and give ourselves gladly to His worship. The result would be that we would receive some of the great blessings which came to Judah.

II Chronicles 31 and 32 will reveal how God responded to the cry of His people and how He blessed and prospered them. He is the same God today and He can and will do wondrous things for those who trust and honor Him.

Milady's Stockings

COBWEBS were used by a Frenchman in 1740 to make stockings. A spider's web consists of silken strands.

Some stockings for summer wear have been chemically treated to repel mosquitoes.

Before knitting and weaving were invented leg coverings or stockings were made of leather.

Stockings made from the inner tubes of automobile tires are sold in Turkey, Syria, and the Balkan states.

A museum for stockings is to be established in Apolda, Germany, where stockings have been made for three and a half centuries.—Fact Digest.

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Have you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "Torpid Liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calotabs, the nausealess calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water,—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Refuse imitations. Trial package only ten cents; family package twenty-five cents, at your dealer's (Adv.)

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They are the "kidney specialist" of the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Miss College Girl Is Engaging Attention of Fashion Designers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S no secret as to who has been chosen to play the part of leading lady on the stage of fashion during the early fall days—College Girl is her name. To this important personage all fashiondom is paying homage at the present moment. On every side you are reminded that the idea is motivating to cater to the whims and wardrobe needs of the girl who is going away to school.

The style program arranged for Miss College Girl and her younger schoolgirl sister fairly teems with excitement. For instance, there is the new bustle dress. The idea has taken the collegiate set by storm. The quaint bustle dresses that grandmothers galavanted in as girls in the '80s are actually proving inspiration for frocks that the modern girl will wear this fall.

The highpoints of these oldtime silhouettes are being revived such as waistlines of vanishing inches, slim corseted midriffs and wide back-swirling skirts interpreted in novel bustle treatments but modified so cleverly they are made thoroughly practical and wearable for this day and age. Then there is the new vogue that calls for a velvet or velveteen jacket worn with a gay plaided wool skirt or a contrasting or matched solid color as fancy dictates. The decided military air that the new fashions take on is also a big factor in the new mode and most outstanding of all is the importance attached to fine materials.

High Color Tweed

Here is a smart version of the costume suit that combines plain woolen with gay tweed. The fitted jacket is of yellow and black tweed in a diagonal weave. Yellow and gold tones are held in high favor in the advance Paris collections. The costume includes a jacket, swagger coat and skirt. This idea of both jacket and topcoat done in matching color scheme is very practical. The saucer brim hat is of black felt.

These and other significant style trends were revealed at their glamorous best in an advance fall fashion revue staged by the Style Creators of Chicago. The three models pictured were especially applauded by the audience of visiting merchants as fashions that are representative of what the up-to-date fashion-alert girl will be selecting for her going-away-to-school wardrobe.

The clever little date frock of shepherd check velveteen shown to the left in the group is sure to enjoy a gay campus career. Its cunning tunic bustleback and its full circular-cut skirt gives it swank and distinction such as collegiate fashionables demand. Its red suede belt supplies a fetching dash of color. Approval for the new bustle-back dresses is assured for being interpreted in simple words, bustle-back is merely a way of saying "back fullness" achieved in ingenious ways that are conservative and wearable without being overdone.

The suit to the right is very style-revealing, stressing as it does the continued triumph in the mode of richly colorful striped woollens. The stripes, the plaids and the marvelous artistry with which designers combine them with monotonous related tone simply hold one spellbound. The gorgeous striped wool that fashions the costume suit keys to the smartest fall colors, harmonizing vibrant greens with luscious blackberry tones. The skirt is all-around pleated. The boxy jacket tops an emerald green velvet blouse closing with novel key-and-keyhole ornaments. An oversize quill tops the moss green sailor hat.

You may expect to see gay little velvet jackets dotted all over the college campus. The girl centered in the picture wears a snug black velveteen jacket quite military looking as so many of the newer fashions are, with a plaid skirt that introduces an artful blend of grape, pink and yellow tones, climaxed with a sweater in warm yellow hues. Juniors, likewise college sophisticates, simply dote on the new plaids and stripes. A Scotch cap of black velvet with satin ribbon streamer, together with the plaid carries the message that fashions for young folks have gone very Scotch this season.

Whims of Fashion

Smartness and practicality have joined hands in two new hats designed by Agnes. Red, white and blue prints with a military air are the presentation of an Eastern designer. Rough hem is another fabric to become dashing enough for the dance floor. For a smart, trim suit for town and country wear, one East Coast designer is using a pin wale corduroy in a putty color.

Shelf Edging Dresses Up Kitchen Windows

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SOME of us can remember seeing our mothers cut scalloped shelf papers. Dextrously they folded and snipped the edge in points or curves; sometimes adding a cut out diamond in the center of each scallop. For many there is more satisfaction in this creation of their own hands, than in using fancy lace edge paper by the roll. Today, we find that same satisfaction when we choose oilcloth shelf edgings—thinking in terms of color has a fascination even beyond scallops with diamonds in the center.

The suggestion sketched here for using shelf edging to dress up kitchen windows was sent in by a reader. The busy homemaker will appreciate the fact that the curtains are perfectly straight and plain and easy to remove for laundering. When windows and shelves match the effect is especially good. Banded towels may be of the same color, and tin containers for bread, sugar, and spices may be painted with bright enamel, to match.

The new Sewing Book No. 3 by Mrs. Spears is packed full of useful, money saving ideas, that almost any homemaker may put to practical use. Every idea is clearly illustrated with large sketches. You will be fascinated with the variety of interesting things to make for the home and for gifts. The price is only 10 cents postpaid. Send coin with name and address to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Moral: It's an Art To Know When to Fight

A loud, noisy and particularly objectionable skunk, obsessed by its own prominence and the attention paid to it, challenged a lion to single combat. The challenge was promptly declined by the lion. "Huh!" sneered the skunk. "You're afraid to fight me."
 "No," answered the lion, coolly, "but why should I fight you? You would gain fame from fighting me, even though I gave you the worst licking of your life, as I would do. How about me, though? I couldn't possibly gain anything by defeating you while on the other hand, everyone who met me for a month would know I had been in the company of a skunk."

The gins in Robert Lee this year will start at 9 o'clock and will quit weighing in cotton at 7 o'clock. However, all cotton weighed in until that time will be ginned. Also they will close down thirty minutes at noon between 12:00 and 12:30.

The reasons for this policy is in order that the gins may comply with the Federal wage and hour laws, as the men can only work so many hours per week, and the crop is so short this season that we will be unable to use two crews of hands.
