cniei, he has now reached heights where he can hold a gun to the head of Hitler himself," says Albert Grzesinski in the October issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Grzesinski, who was police chief in Berlin in 1933 and served as German demobilization commissioner in 1919, is now chairman of the French Government's refugee committee in Paris, a position which gives him access to confidential reports on the work of Himmler's agents both in and out of Germany. He was Home Minister of Prussia at one time and commanded Germany's old secret police. In an interview with Charles Hewitt, Jr., Grzesinski discusses the rise to power and the diabolic operations of Germany's only two hundred per cent Nazi.

"Hitler and Himmler, working together as never before, have brought says. "Its 350,000 members are the Himmler's power to an all-time peak with their new 'Grand War Plan'." says Grzesinski. "It runs as follows: Annexation of a ring of vassal states around the Third Reich. This will free millions of native Germans for the front line service, multiplying Germany's man power in the last war by two.'

Himmler is the spearpoint of Hitler's offense as well as his chief of defense, Grzesinski states. "The termites of the Gestapo," he writes. "must bore away at the foundations of any state Hitler wishes to destroy. Himmler foretold the march on Prague six months ahead."

Half private army and expedi-tionary force and half spies and executioners, the Gestapo makes its chief the greatest tyrant of the modern world, Grzesinski declares. His real genius is twofold-organi- cial effort is made to provide these zation and fanaticism. "Police Chief Himmler is first and foremost commander of a private army, the Schutzstaffel whose bizarre rules, 'Nordic Mission' and systematized sex life are still unfamiliar to America," Grzesinski cream of the German nation. They must pass a rigid examibeliefs and they are required to resign from church memberships, as Christianity is considered weakening

"Himmler's chief problem is to keep his black-shirted executioner: from succumbing to normal human influences, such as friendship, religion and domestic love. No battalion is allowed to serve in its home area, so when ordered to fire on civilian populations, they will be as heartless as their leader. They are not allowed to remain in one district long, lest they fraternize with the masses. Transfers currently take place on an average of every three weeks. This shuttling back and forth, plus the wait for special marriage permits from Hitler, cuts weddings to a minimum. But every offiyouths with less confining entertainment. Consequently, the S.S., or

EDITION

THE COLLEGE GIRL OF 1939

C HE has changed from the girl you knew a few years back. She O definitely feels the fashion urge. She is neater, more individual, and wears better looking and better fitting clothes. She goes in for new-hair-dos, she loves well-cut, well-made tweeds, she prefers one of two really good date-dresses to a lot of variety in cheaper ones. She believes in the simple basic dress of wool or of crepe.

She spreads her individuality in the way she wears her hair, in what both very good. Ski clothes are worn she puts on her feet, in her belts, her all winter long. Ski boots and ski jackets and her mittens. This year jacket are worn to classes on cold jackets and her mittens. This year in the East she went in for dirndls day and night, for wooden Dutch shoes, pigtails, cummerbunds, sou'westers, hair bows, rolled up slacks. cowboy hats and knee-boots in the rain. In the West they rushed crew hats, huaraches, coolies (loose shirts worn over skirts) and shell necklaces. By this fall there will be a flock of new fads-a new dress to replace the dirndl, new jackets. new nocks, new shoes, new coats with bigger pockets and hoods.

As to the basic things for campus wear. every college girl agrees upond good practical working wardrobe. The emphasis on dressier clothes varies with each college. For classes and on campus she needs plenty of cotton dresses in the early fall and late spring, at least four or five sime and for dinner. They need two or ple wool dresses, and an equal ours three of these. For evening they like bor of crepe dresses which she can dresses with jackets, and dresses wear when she dresses for dinner or goes away on a week-end. She likes Anitted elastic waists in her dresses. Site wants plenty of sweaters-"more than your mother thinks you n.ed." to quote a college gurl She likes tailored silk blouses to wear under them or alone and a number of tweed skirts in solid colors, in are worn for hiking, shorts for tenchecks, and in plaids. She prefers nis and sometime for bicycling. them gored wide or pleated full She lottes are more popular in the We likes loads of jackets for varity Good tweed ones, suedes, 'suedes widespread, and so are bright anporkets.
