FARMERS CET ATTENTION

Evidently the senate is paying more attention to the farmers of the country than to the propaganda from the textile manufacturers, the packers and the food processors who have been filling the newspapers with attacks on the Agricultural Adjustment administration and the processing tax. For weeks the administration's farm pollcles have been deluged with criticism until the average city newspaper reader could easily believe that the Rooseveit administration is on the verge of complete failure and immediate defeat.

Yet, while this has been going on, the farmers' march to Washington took place; also there have been gatherngs of farmers throughout the country. Farmers e idently like AAA by the way they vote for the continuance of these contracts. Furthermore, it is growing evident daily that the Repubican party is not going to recommend abandonment of the only practical farm solicy (with cash returns) ever adopted by the government. It-seems to me that half the senators powerless to prevent the most notorious criminals from entering into the business."

From other sources it is known that there is today as much bootleg liquor as there is tax-paid stuff. No one knows how much money this country is still spending for bootleg stuff; but in the face of the violent outcries against the mounting costs of government and increased costs of living, may I point out that the official government returns show we had money enough to spend at least two billion dollars last year for booze. Out of this vast sum the government is getting only a tax of $375,000,000, which does not balance the budget as was promised; about half a billion men are at work in the liquor business, which did not solve the unemployment problem as was promised.

Recall the promises made by the drys for prohibition; recall the promises made by the wets for repeal; then realize the same sort of promises are being made by the opposition to the New Deal. The same sort of hysteris is now being agitated.

C Western Newspaper Union.

To deal with a complicated and very real situation such as this will tax the world's wisdom and the world's states manship to the utmost. These condltions, serious as they are, become more so when it is realized how closely they are bound up with the various revolutionary movements now actively going forward in the fields of economics, polltics and the social order.

DANIEL

LESSON TEXT-Daniel 1:8-29. GOLDEN TEXT-Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God?--I Corinthians 6:19. PRIMARY TOPIC-How Daniel Grew JUNIOR TOPIC-Ten Times Strong. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC-Obeying the Laws of Health YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP. IC-Motives for Total Abstinence.

The lesson committee has designated this lesson, "Temperance and Health." In the use of this as a temperance lesson it must be borne in mind that it is temperance in the sense of self-mastery, rather than having to do with indulgence in intoxicating liquors. Daniel's self-mastery was due to his right relation and loyalty to his God. It is utterly futile to hope to enforce a program of temperance upon those who are in rebellion against God.

I. Daniel in Captivity in Babylon (vv. 1-4)

Daniel with his companions were carried away to Babylon in the first seige of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar. At the command of the king, certain choice young men were carried away because they were "skillful in wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science," that they might be trained to stand in the king's palace

II. Daniel's Trials (vv. 5-7).

1. Conscience tested (v 5). By the appointment of the king, a daily provision was arranged of the king's meat and wine for Daniel and his companions This was conferry to the custom among the godly Jews. Being contrary to the Jewish customs they could not conscientiously partake of them.

2. The change of name (vv. 6, 7) Among the Hebrews names were given to children which were most significant. Daniel means "God is my Judge." The significance of this name is that all the problems of life were submitted to God for a decision. God was made the arbitrator of his life. His name was changed to Belteshazzar, which means "Bel's prince." It meant, therefore, one whom the chief god of the Babylonians favors. Hananiah means "gift or beloved of Jehovah." His name was changed to Shadrach. which signified "illumined by the sun god, Rach." Mishael means "who is as God?" His name was changed to Meshach, which means "who is like the goddess, Sheshach, the gentle ope?" Azariah means "Jehovah is our nelp." This was changed to Abednego, which means "the servant of Back of the change of names Nego." was the attempt of Salan to wipe out the name of the true God.

III. Daniel's Courtesy (vv. 8-15) Daniel seems to have been the spokesman for the company. Although his heart was fixed, he did not forget to be a gentleman. He requested to be excused from this meat and drink in order that he he not defiled. We should learn from this that in times even of great trials we should be courteons When Daniel asked that a test be made as to the effect of the MIDSUMMER prints are simply gorhow extravagant, how eloquent or picturesque, fall short of describing them. It is impossible to capture their beauty of color and design and release it via mere words. Like the full blown rose that reaches perfection of bloom in midsummer, the lovely prints now worn, especially the sumptuous evening prints, have reached to such heights of glamorous beauty one's very being thrills at the sight of them.

The enchanting gowns here pictured are self-explanatory as to why women continue to adore prints. The superlative loveliness of the stately model to the left in the group carries the message that no happier choice can be made in the way of a summery evening gown than a filmy, vaporous printed chiffon which silhouettes huge white waterlilles touched with pink and green shadows against a misty black background. The scarflike arrangement which falls across the shoul ders, floating in summer airiness at every move, is typical of current styl-

Then there is a frock of perfectly beautiful flower-printed silk fantasy crepe which the lady seated is wearing. To mar the perfection of this glorified print with a superfluous trimming touch would be an unforgivable gesture. Which is why the designer fashloned this superb print along absolutely simple lines. This print is vivid with splashes and dashes of warm tropical colors--as gay, as gorgeous as a bird of brilliant exotic plumage The lovely dress with a cape centered in the picture has a story of fascinating interest to tell. It is of violet-gray moussellne de sole. Huge flower appliques, cutouts from a silk

This gown is especially significant in that it demonstrates the use of cutout florals from printed fabric as a trimming feature. Designers are doing very clever things along this line of thought. One striking effect is the lei or garland which is worn about the shoulders like a boa or necklace, or is used to finish low-cut necklines, that is made entirely of cutout flowers taken from gay printed chiffons or crepes or whatever the silken material may be. Boutonnieres made of the same print as the frocks with which they are worn are also smartly in vogue. Perhaps one of the most unique and charming adapations of cutout print florals is seen in sleeves which are formed of the flower motifs which are caught in the center only, the petals fluttering out as if they were real flowers. These flower sleeves contrast a monotone frock. By the way, advance news in regard to fall fashions places special emphasis on the approaching vogue of contrasting sleeves, such as lace or silk print or embroid ered sleeves used with monotone silk or velvet or wool for the frock food upon the countenance of himself and companions, gracious consideration was given to them.

Again, speaking of the use of cut out print motifs, cunning collar and cuff sets are formed in the manner described above. The theme is one that may be handsomely worked out for bridesmaids' hat and muff sets.

IV. Daniel's Triumph (vv. 14-21). 1. As to physical health (vv. 14-16). A test was made for ten days, and it was shown that Daniel and his companions were fairer in countenance and fatter in flesh than those who indulged in the eating of the king's meat This ment and wine would have been pleasant to the palate, but would have meant a compromise of the conscience. It is obligatory upon God's children today to abstain from that which is contrary to his law.

2. Spiritual insight (v. 17). Because of Daniel's loyalty to God, Nebuchadnezzar's dream was revealed to him (2:31.45), and he was given visions sketching the whole history of the world.

3. Mental growth (vv. 17--20). Daniel and his companions were found to be ten times superior in matters of wisdom and understanding to their comrades. Those who abstain from indulgence in the use of strong drinks have clearer minds and are thus better equipped mentally for their work than those who indulge therein.

4. Their social and political preference (v. 19). They stood before the king. No higher position of influence and honor could have been given them.

5. Their temporal influence (v. 21). They were all advanced to positions of influence, and Daniel became president of the college of wise men, and the prime minister of the nation. This position he continued to hold during several dynasties.

Good Actions

Do you act as if you had ten thousand years to throw away. Death stands at your elbow. Be good for something, while you live and it is in your power. What remains but to live easy and cheerful, and crowd one good action so close to another that there may be the least empty space between them.

FLOWERS CURRENT THEME OF STYLISTS

"Flowers for Madame" is the current theme song of the stylists.

Fresh flowers are being used as a definite part of current costume ensembles, used in new and unusual ways. There is, in case you didn't know it, a "tailored corsage" of orchids, for whar with tallored daytime costumes The stems are wound with velbet ribbon, in a color to harmonize with the ensemble, and are pinned against the collar of the frock or jacket.

For evening gay young things are wearing a spray of small pink orchids across the back of the head, tiara ashlon.

Flowers in the hair are all the rage just now. Reminiscent of Carmen are the sprays of red camellias worn by dashing brunets these nights on their dark curls, just behind the right ear. Another new idea is that of attaching a single orchid to your jeweled braceiet.

Like soft, crushed girdles are the new silk patent leather belts for daytime dresses. They fit snugly around the waist, and are just a bit wider than the belts you've been wearing. The colors match or contrast with all your new summer dresses-bright red, dark red, pink, lilac, yellow and black. They give a smart touch that adds so much to your costume and proves that it pays to be up-to-date even in details!

Gentlemen:

We are recruting Junior Selectees for the Civilian Conservation Corps Saturday, August 10, 1935 at the City Hall in Abilene, Texas.

It occurs to me that every young man on the relief rolls, between the ages of 18 and 28 years, should avail himself of this opportunity to earn an honest living himself and family The greatest benefit to the young men and their families, however, is not the food, clothing, shelter, and the money they send home.

The schols afford them an opportunity to acquire a liberal education The training received, as a whole on the work projects, camp life, and the vocational guidance will help these young men to find themselves.

In other words a period of service in the Civilian Conservation Corps is a course of training in the business of living.

I shall appreciate a report stating whether you are in a position to fill the quota alloted you in telephonic

CIRCULATED HEAT IS HEALTHFUL HEAT

No mother wants to see her children sniff, sneeze and suffer with a dangerous cold. Yet, few consider the importance of proper house heating as a preventive.

Doctors tell us there is less chance of contractag colds in a home where a uniform temperature between 65 and 72 degrees is maintained in all rooms; that for healthful winter living avoid overheated, stuffy rooms with a chilling draft at floor level.

Gas floor furnaces and circulating heaters are the advanced types of heating equipment that maintain this comfort zone at low cost. They provide healthful heat because they circulate warm air to knock cold spots and chilling drafts. With a floor furnace no oxygen is taken from the air it circulates. Both are vented to eliminate wall sweating. Investigate this healthful gas heat and use it for fighting colds this winter!

NEW CIRCULATING HEAT'S -just attractive in appearance as it is efficient in performance.

Eden Eden-Laval formula was "entirely unacceptable." How ever, hope was not abandoned for there was a chance that modifications could be made that would satisfy the demands of the Italians.

Unofficially, it was said the British-French formula dealt with these points:

1. Conciliation and arbitration is to continue

2. Neither Italy nor Ethiopia is to resort to war measures in the meantime.

3. Appointment of a fifth arbitrator to the deadlocked Italo-Ethlopian concillation commission

4. Signatories of the 1906 treaty-Great Britain, France, and Italy-will lend their good offices to obtain a general broad solution of the conflict.

Italy was expected to protest against time limits fixed in the draft of the projected peace formula.

One deadline was set for September 1, by which time the arbitrators on the Italo-Ethiopian concillation commission, who would resume their work. would be required to report to the league council.

Another time limit was set for September 4, when the three powers and Ethiopia would be required to report their findings to the league council.

In any event the council would be scheduled to meet September 4. One important concession was made to Italy in the formula. It was agreed that the ownership of Uslual, scene of the frontier conflict involved, should not be discussed. The Ethiopian contention has been that responsibility for the border clash could not be established without the ownership of the locality being first determined.

Emperor Halle Selassie met his chieftains in council at Addis Ababa and they told him it might be now too late to prevent war for their tens of thousands of fighters were eager for hostilities to begin and could hardly be restrained. The emperor, however, sought to hold the chiefs back. At the same time he issued another defiant note informing the world that Ethiopia never would accept an Italian or other mandate, adding: "No amount of prosperity under foreign domina tion would compensate for the loss of independence."

GERMANY'S diplomatic note con-cerning the Communist attack on the liner Bremen in the port of New York took the form of a request that the offenders be punished but asked for no apology. Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, in his reply handed to the German charge d'Affaires, Dr. Rudolf Leitner, told briefly the efforts of the New York police to guard the vessel and to subdue the mob, and pointed out that some of those who took part in the attack were arrested. The German note said the incident constituted an insult to Germany.

In his press conference President Roosevelt declined to comment on the affair. Asked about the protest of Jewish organizations against the German government's religious attitude, the President Intimated that the administration's view was fully expressed by Mr. Phillips' reply in which he expressed sympathy for anyone who was denied religious liberty.

Representative Dickstein of New York told the house that no apology was due to Germany for the Bremen incident and that neither the federal nor the local authorities were to blame for it. He asserted the attack was made possible by "a selfish desir the part of the skipper of the Bremen. who would not take police advice to balt visiting to the ship and lose the revenue of visitors." Over in Germany the saner men in authority recognized that the Nazis were going too far and were probably headed for a fall if not restrained. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbark and econom'c dictator of the reich, uttered a solemn warning to the anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic forces, declaring that the great task which the German people must fulfill to comply with the wishes of Hitler cannot be fulfilled unless "all disturbances are ended, be they in the intellectual or economic field." Among developments in the current campaign against the Steel Helmets the World War Veterans' organization. the Schutzstaffel or "black corns" formed to protect the person of Hit ler, gave out a warning that it must be reckoned with in the event of a showdown against "state enemies." and asserting its complete loyalty to der fuehrer. Two Birthdays Musselini Waiting? Italy's Gold in London Match This, Mr. Swope

Two important human beings celebrated their birthdays recently. Henry Ford was seventy-

two. If you saw him going upstairs two steps at a time and guessed his age, you would say, at most, fiftyfive. Mussolini has just celebrated his fiftysecond birthday. You may spend a profitable three minutes contrasting those two leaders of men in your imagination's eye.

Arthur Brisbane Henry Ford has made millions of people independent of the law of gravitation.

History will tell exactly what Mussolini has done. His test lies in the future.

The London Times and Universal Service announce a clash between Ethiopians and Italians, 20 Ethiepians and 40 Italians, killed, a stream supplying the Italian camp turned in a new direction and the Italians compelled to retreat.

"Rome " has no information" on this incident.

Perhaps Mussolini, who knows that war should supply only good news, is waiting to add something such as: "Air bombardment of Addis Ababa has inflicted swift retribution for the killing of 40 Italians."

Italy has $100,000,000 in gold stored in London and can't get it. Why can not Italy get that gold? England says to Italy, "When you pay the money you borrowed in the war, you can have your gold."

Britons are practical. When they lent money to Italy they said, "Send along your gold; not that we question your honor, but as a mere formality."

Too bad this simple-minded country didn't think of that when it shipped $10,000,000,000 abroad. Perhaps we shall think of it next time, more probably not.

Washington. - President Roosevelt | time the Islands have been under has settled a controversy by the simple expedient of

Settle transferring two men Controversy from responsible positions in the Virgin Islands to jobs in Washington. He has taken Paul M. Pearson from the post of civil governor of the Virgin Islands and has made him assistant director of housing in the Interior department and has transferred Federal Director Judge T. Webber Wilson from his post in the islands to the federal parole board here in Washington. Each man has accepted his new appointment and in so far as a current controversy is concerned, the book is closed.

It will be recalled that Governor Pearson and Judge Wilson long have been at loggerheads over Virgin Island affairs. The battle was bitter. It came to a head when Paul Yates, executive assistant to the governor and a former Washington correspondent, resigned his job and came back here with a bag full of charges against his former chief. The Yates allegations ranged all the way from minor charges of poor judgment to gross accusations. He succeeded in getting a senate committee investigation and it was at that time that the Pearson-Wilson feud flared so openly that administration officials here were dragged in and the whole scope of differences aired.

As a matter of fact there is every reason to believe that Governor Pearson was far from a successful executive in the Islands. He frequently aroused the ire of natives and, according to testimony adduced by the senate investigation, had very little to show for the sums of money he expended in attempting to give the Virgin Islands a new lease on life. All of the information tends to establish that the islands continue to be "an effectual poorhouse" just as President Hoover described them on the occasion of a visit during his term as Chief Executive.

But Governor Pearson had his supporters in the administration. Chief among these was Secretary Ickes whose department is responsible for administration of the islands. Just why Mr. Ickes has been so enthusiastic about Governor Pearson's regime is not fully disclosed in any evidence here except that the interior secretary has certain ideas about social reform that some unkind critics refer to as pure socialism which Governor Pearson had been attempting to impose upon the island inhabitants. Governor Pearson has expended vast sums of PWA funds in the islands in his efforts to carry out the Ickes program of reformation. It seems, however, that the schemes were not as practical as they might have been and so trouble started in a rather extensive fashion.

The President stayed outside of the row until in the course of the senate inquiry Senator Tydings, a Maryland Democrat and usually an anti-Roosevelt Democrat, received a letter from Mr. Ickes. Mr. Ickes accused the investigating chairman with having whitewashed a witness whose testimony was all anti-Ickes and anti-Pearson. The senator flared up in a big way at that letter. His reply is likely to become a classic in official correspondence. He did not mince his words. After volcing his general conception of the attitude exhibited by Mr. Ickes and accusing him of attempting to interfere in the investigation, Senator Tydings informed the interior secretary that he may as well attempt to run the Department of the Interior and let the senators run the senate. He used just about those

United States rule, there has been a dire need for a plan of government sulted to those people. Each year congress has been appropriating thousands of dollars for the Island government and each year there has been miserably little in the way of improvement to show for these funds. Almost as frequently as congress has appropriated money it has made changes in the administration methods in use there. There has never been a long term program laid out and there has been nothing whatsoever done showing the sympathy of a socalled intellectual people as we claim to be for those downtrodden masses that populate the Virgin Islands.

All of this, it seems to me, shows the woeful need for careful consideration of that situation. It seems to me equally apparent that as long as congress keeps meddling in and as long as politicians from the mainland are sent there purely on a political basis we will continue to have a pack of trouble bundled up in those Virgin Islands.

Several attempts have been made to work out a governmental system worth while but the politicians are not among those who will let plums escape. It is certain, therefore, that the Pearson-Wilson-Ickes-Tydings battle royal is an outcropping of what amounts to a festering sore in American governmental policy.

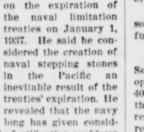

If congress continues in session past August 15, and it is now apparent that it may run to Sep-Long Session tember 1, it will have Severe Strain been in session 225 days, some weeks longer than the average of the so-called long sessions of congress. Prior to adoption of the "lame duck" amendment which did away with sessions of unequal length, the shorter sessions of congress averaged about 170 days. The longer terms were around 215 days before final adjournment was taken. Thus, the current session stands in a fair way to be among the list of hardy sessions.

All of which is by way of saying that the current session of congress has worn down its members both physically and mentally to an extent quite unusual. I was talking a few days ago with a veteran senator, a man who has served almost 25 years In the upper house of congress. He is known as a physically strong individual and usually lasts very we'l through the work that piles up before senators and representives. I inquire. of him concerning the general health of congress and his reply was:

"I regret to say we are just a bunch of debilitated old men, incapable of doing the job that is expected of us and everyone is hoping against hope that we can live through this work and this heat."

As a result of that converstaion the thought came to me that here was an answer to the oft repeated declaration that members of congress fail to earn their salaries of $10,000 per year. have observed congressional proceedings almost a score of years and it is my mature conviction that few times in that period has congress failed to earn its salt.

Sam Rayburn's motion that the house agree to the senate action on the bill was defeated, 210 to 155. Rayburn argued, pleaded and threatened, but to no avail. He warned the representatives that those who voted against his motion would be incurring the wrath of the administration, and at the last moment had read testimony before the senate lobbying commit tee to the effect that a New Jersey man had suggested the utilities com panies start a whispering campaign regarding the sanity of the New Deal leaders. Still the big majority in the house insisted on rejecting the Rayburn motion.

Then the house, by a vote of 183 to 172, adopted a resolution which virtually called for the exclusion of Ben Cohen, administration lobbyist, from future conferences on the bill.

DEMOCRATIC congressmen started the week briskly determined to push through the President's "soak the rich" tax bill at this session. Opposing them with equal de-

SENATOR GLASS scored perhaps the greatest victory in his long public career when the senate, without a record vote, passed his draft of the 1935 banking act, rejecting the central bank features urged by Gov. Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board and favored by the administration. The doughty Virginian, who was once secretary of the treasury, had fought desperately against the Eccles scheme and Senator Glass his triumph was decisive. There was no demand for a roll call on the final vote, for the fate met by the proposers of various amendments showed this procedure would be futile. Senator La Follette sought to strike out a provision permitting commercial banks to underwrite securities and his proposal was beaten, 39 to 22. Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota, another radical Republican, offered the central bank plan of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, which would se, up a government owned and wholly dominated system. It was voted down, 59 to 10.

That was the signal for Mr. Roosevelt to take a hand. It was easy to see that a few outbursts of that kind and Mr. Ickes might have found him self in a splendid position to resign from the cabinet. One might properly inquire why all of this agitation has occurred about the Virgin Islands.

Why the They are many hun-Agitation? dreds of miles from Washington. They lie in the Caribbean sea, considerably out of the usual pathway of ships; they are populated by about 22,000 Individuals, 95 per cent of whom are negroes and may generally be described as a "backward" place,

They may have some military and naval value. That has never been fully demonstrated. But the fact remains they are possessions of the United States and if our government is to be their protector, it is responsible for a sane administration of their affairs.

There is another reason why congressional sessions should not run so long and should not When Solons be carried on in the Are Tired Intense heat of a Washington summer.

One condition nearly always has obtained near the close of a long session. As the days drag by, persons with axes to grind and individual interests to serve have a way of digging up questionable bills that theretofore had been side-tracked and assumed to be dead. With resistance low, the average senator or representative is unable to fight off legislation which as knows to be bad with the same spirit that accompanied his activities earlier in the session. Likewise, he is unable to battle as successfully as before for legislation which he knows to be good. This condition opens the way for a revival of lobbles. They are back in Washington in numbers now despite the disclosures being made by the two congressional committees that are investigating the lobbles that operated to defeat, temporarily at least, the legislation killing utility holding companies. One would have assumed justly with the investigations under way after the utility legislation was passed that lobbyists and self-serving representatives would have been frightened away from Washington. Such was not the case. They are here in such numbers that some observers believe Mr. Roosevelt has made a mistake in demanding that congress stay until it has enacted the share-the wealth-tax bill and the legislation which will prohibit lawsuits against the government for damages resulting from abrogation of the promise in government bonds to pay them in gold. Mr. Roosevelt is insisting on these laws. He will get them. But in the opinion of many authorities he stands

AFTER WORLDS COLLIDE

CHAPTER XI-Continued -17-

They went cautiously toward the broken ship. No sound came from it. The crowd watching held its breath. The two men were under the shattered wing. . . . Now they were climbing the fuseiage.

Tony looked cautiously through a window. Inside the plane, alone, on its floor, in a puddle of blood, lay Von Beitz.

Tony yanked the door open. Taylor followed him inside. Von Beitz was badly wounded, but still breathing. They lifted him a lit-He opened his eyes. A stern smile came upon his Teutonic face.

"Good !" he mumbled. "I escaped. They have the power city. They plan to cut you off as soon as it is cold enough to freeze you to terms. I do not know where the power city is-it is not like the other cities." He closed his eyes.

"Did they kidnap you here?" Tony asked.

He thought that Von Beitz nodded an affirmative.

From the outside came a yell of warning from many throats. Tony looked. The gate was open. People were pointing. In the north was a fleet of enemy planes winging toward the spot.

"Hurry" Tony said to Taylor. "rake his feet. Gently-and fast! They're going to try to bomb us before we get Von Beitz's information back to the others!"

The watchers ceased to be mere spectators, and poured out of the city. Eliot James shouted for all but one other, besides himself, to keep under the shield of the city; and he and that other ran forward as Tony and Jack Taylor emerged from the half-wrecked plane and pulled out the limp form of Von Beitz,

The two uninjured men, bearing Von Beitz, began to run across the open space between the city and the ship; and Ellot with his companion, Waterman, ran toward them.

From the north the swarm of pursuing planes approached-the planes of the Other People, of the Vanished People of this planet, which had been appropriated by the Midianites.

Bullets, or some sort of projectiles, splashed up dirt but none of the four was hit,

The attack from the air ceased; the planes veered away and dispersed so suddenly that it seemed to Ellot that they must have been signaled.

Waterman and he reached Tony and Taylor, and the four bore Von Beitz within the gate, which swiftly was shut behind them.

Eliot pressed back the people who crowded too close. Dodson opened his kit, which had never been far from his hand during the perilous months on this planet. He began to administer drugs. "Half starved," he muttered. "No bones broken, Exhaustion. In terrible fight, Fists, Knife-at least some one had one in the fight. Wait !"

The German opened his eyes and sat up. "Danke schon," he said.

"Not yet !" Dodson warned, pushing his patient back into a reclining posino more of my attackers than that they must be men from earth.

"We spent I do not know how long hiding high in a building in this city. My eyes were taped shut. I was gagged much of the time, but I was given food, and-except on occasions which I will come to-I was not badly treated.

"At first they spoke between themselves in tongues I could not understand, but it was not language of another planet. It was speech from our old world-Russian sometimes, I am sure; sometimes, 1 think, Japanese." "Did you discover how many there were?" Eliot James asked.

"Here in this city watching us," Von Beitz proceeded after a moment, "there were four, at least. I am sure I heard four different voices speak. Sometimes it seemed to me that more moved back and forth; but I cannot be certain that more than four actually were here."

"Men?" asked Tony.

"They were all men. I heard no woman speak: it was never a woman's hand that touched me. But they talked a great deal about women as they watched us," Von Beltz said. "You mean, you heard them talking about our women? They talked in some language you understood?"

"No; not then. They talked about our women in their own tongues. But I did not need to understand the words to know they were talking about women."

"I see," said Tony.

"They did talk to me in English later-two of them did." He stopped again. "What did they tell you?"

"Tell me?" repeated Von Beitz. 'Nothing. They asked me."

"Asked you what?"

Tony and Jack Taylor Emerged From the Half-Wrecked Plane for a meeting, in the evening, of the Council of the Central Authority ; and he himself accompanied those who bore Von Reitz to Dodson's hospital. It was, of course, really a hospital of the Other People which Dodson had pre-empted. The plan of the place and its equipment delighted Dodson and at the same time drove him to despair trying to imagine the right uses of some of the implements of the surgery, and the procedures of those Vanished l'eothat the German would completely recover.

Tony went home-to the splendid, graceful apartment where he knew he would find Eve, and which he and Hendron's daughter called their home because they occupied it. But they could never be free from consciousness that it was not theirs-that minds and emotions immensely distant from them had designed this place of repose.

Minds far in the future, Tony always felt, though he knew that the Other People actually pertained to the epochal past; but though they had lived a million years ago, yet they had passed beyond the people of earth before they came to gaze on the dawn of their day of extinction. So, strangely. Tony knew he was living in an apartment of the past, but felt it to be like one of the future. Time had become completely confusing.

He was very tired, but excited, too; he was glad to find Eve alone, awaiting him.

He kissed her, and held her, and for a moment let himself forget all else but the softness of her in his arms, and the warmth of her lips on his.

"Lord of my love," she whispered; in her own ecstacy. "Lord of my love," she repeated; and holding him, went on:

To whom in vassalags, Thy merit hath my duty strongly knit. "Oh," said Tony.

SUMMER TIME IS HEALTHY TIME

Fifty years ago people looked forward with apprehension to the approach of the hot > weather season. They knew that the summer months were the most sickly months. More people died during the summer that at any other time of the year. Cholera, typhold fever and diarrhea were the dreaded diseases. These began during the late spring and spread like forest fire until the onset of cold weather in the late fall downed them. Every family had one or more members ill each summer with some type of diarrheal disease. Flux, they called it. And if a family escaped a long spell of fever, they considered themselves fortunate. Colic and diarrhea were the general rule for infants. A baby's first summer was a hazardous time; bables were expected to have diarrhea while teething, and they were not expected to show much gain in weight during hot weather.

My great-grandfather died of cholera In the southern part of Illinois in 1855. He was buried on an isolated plot of wooded ground on a high bluff overlooking a running stream; his body was carried across fields during the night so as to avoid people traveling the roads. Many cholera victims were buried in this summer, and many of the small isolated cemeteries we now see were started with one of these cholera graves.

It is hard for us to comprehend the fear and dread of illness suffered by our grandparents during the hot months of the year.

I can remember very well my grandfather telling me how the early settlers moved from place to place in their covered wagons, driving what live stock they possessed, seeking high ground to keep away from "chills and ague." This of course was malaria. They did not known then that mosquitoes car ried malaria; they thought malaria was in the night air of low places.

Now we look forward to the summer months with pleasant anticipation. We expect to be at our best with the fall colds, grippe and influenza strike us. We take it for granted that we are to spend our leisure time out-of-doors, free from all illness and in a state of well-being, mentally as well as physically. This change from fear, depression, worry, anxiety and sickness to one of pleasant outlook, has been brought about in an orderly and scientific manner. Medical and samtary science has closed up the avenues and highways by which the germs causing summer diseases travel from the sick to the healthy.

Germs cannot fly, walk or crawl. They must be carried in some vehicle. The first vehicle in importance is water: the second is milk Germs in water do not grow and multiply, but are passively carried from one place to another. Germs in milk, however, do grow and multiply; hence milk is doubly dangerous, being both a vehicle of travel and a good culture medium Purification of the drinking water and proper disposal of sewage have been responsible for the reduction in water borne diseases. Pasteurization of milk has destroyed the disease-producing bacteria in our milk supply and given us a safe, wholesome milk for human consumption. The pasteurization proc ess consists in heating the milk to a temperature that will destroy all disease-producing germs; it does not change the physical or nutritive properties of the milk. Pasteurization of milk has made us milk conscious in every way. The producers of milk have found it profitable to keep the milk clean from the time it leaves the cow until it is delivered to the consumer. This is as important as pasteurization. Typhoid fever was everywhere fifty years ago. When the largest cities began to purify their water and to dispose of their sewage properly, typhoid was pushed back to the small cities. Then as these communities did the same, typhoid was pushed still farther back to the smaller towns and villages, where it now has its chief hang-out. Typhoid fever is spread through the excreta of man coming in contact with water, milk or food. The fewer people sick the fewer germs are scattered about. Two out of each hundred recovered typhoid cases, however, continue to excrete the typhoid germs in their stools. These persons are called chronic carriers, and are now the principal reservoirs of typhoid The department of public germs. health in Illinois, in conjunction with the University of Illinois, has recently developed a method of X-ray treatment that will cure many of these chronic carriers. So these germs get another knockout blow.

"Take your time," Tony begged him as he gazed up through the shield over the city into the sky, for the airplanes which had pursued.

"Where are they?" Tony said to James. "What scared them off?"

Eliot shook his head; the planes were gone, whatever had turned them back; thought of them could engage neither Eliot nor Tony-nor Eve Hendren since they had spared Tony.

She clung close to him in tender concera. They were in the inner edge of the circle, watching the German, who lay now with eyes shut and a scowl on his face.

The spasm of pain appeared to pass : he opened his eyes, and looking up at Tony, he winked.

It was the most reassuring thing he could have done. "Good stuff !" Tony whispered to Eve.

"Where was he, Tony?"

The German seemed to have heard; he spoke to the doctor. "I should not sit up, ch? Pooh! You've been searching for me, eh? And now you want to know why I come in a ship from the north? Well-1 will tell you. 1 can eat later. But I will lie down. You must know at once.

To myself-four men seized me," Von Beitz said, in spite of Dodson's orders that he be quiet until his wounds were dressed and he had some hot soup. "A cord about the neck, a sack over the head. It gave me no fear that my assailants might have been men from Bronson Beta," Von Beitz added sardonically. "The technique was too much of our world as we have known it. I was down and helpless, knowing to know what we knew, how far we had progressed in mastering the secrets of the Old People."

"Ah !" said Tony.

"They were here-those four-be fore we moved into this city. They were sent here as similar squads of them were sent to every other city accessible to them. You see, they moved into their city-which apparently was the old capital of this planet or at least of this continent-long before we made any move at all."

"Yes," said Tony. "That's clear." "Our delay," breathed Von Beltz, "laid on us a great handicap. For they grasped the essentials of the situation almost at once. It lay, of course, in mastery of the mechanics of the ancient civilization. So they seized at once and occupied the key city; and they dispatched a squad to each of the other cities, to explore and bring back to them whatever might be useful."

Again he had to rest, then: "Particularly diagrams-the working plans of the cities, and the machinery and of the passages which, without the diagrams, you could not suspect."

"Underground passages?" "Precisely. That is how they took me out of the city. They laughed at us guarding all the gates! When they decided to take me away, two of them escorted me underground and led me on foot to a door that was opened only after some special ceremony, and which communicated with a conduit."

THE STORY FROM THE BEGINNING

Under the leadership of Cole Hendron, American scientist, over 300 persons escape in two Space Ships just before a cosmic collision wipes out the earth, and land on Bronson Beta, Vegetation is found, and great forests of dead trees, preserved by the absolute cold of space. An airplane flies over the camp, making no attempt to communicate with its people, who realize that they are not alone on the new planet, and that their visitors may be enemies. Exploring, Tony Drake and Eliot James come upon a city, enclosed under what seems like half an iridescent glass bubble. Among their finds, in the city, is an edible grain-millions of bushels. On their flight back they stumble on the camp of more than 200 persons who left the earth when they did, in a second Space Ship piloted by Dave Pansdell. Tony learns that Russian, Japanese and German scientist Com-munists have reached Bronson Beta, and probably sent the mysterious plane to spy on Hendron's camp. The Asiatics gas the Hendron camp, but when they return in an armada of the Bronson Betans' planes Tony and his men anni-hilate them with atomic blasts from the Space Ship's propulsion tubes. Hen-dren's health failing, he orders Tony to remove everybody to one of the Sealed Citties. This Tony succeeds in doing. Von Beitz, a leader, disappears. Hendron dies. Tony's party realizes that it receives heal, light, and power only because and great stores of food, but the "Midianites" still threaten.

and Pulled Out the Limp Form of Von Beitz. Eliot and His Companion, Waterman, Ran Toward Them.

"Why?"

"We have no help for ourselves-and they know it. For the truth is as we feared. For all these great cities of the eastern section of this continent." the German declared solemnly and slow. ly. "there is a single power city-or station. It is located deep underground -not directly beneath their city, but near it. Of course they control it, and control, therefore, light and powerand heat. Any of these we can enjoy only as they ration it to us.

"We move out, as we know, toward the cold orbit of Mars, where heat will mean life in our long dark nights. They wait for that moment for us to admit their godship, and come and bow down before them."

Tony stared silently at Von Beltz. The weakened man went on: "In the cavern city where are the engines which draw power from the hot center of this planet, a guard of the 'gods' stands watch. It is the citadel of their authority, the palladium of their power. I have not seen the station; but yesterday I learned its location. 1 stole a diagram and traced it before I was discovered. I escaped my guards. I fought my way into a ship this morning."

"You have the tracing?" Dodson whispered.

The German smiled. "I have it." He shut his eyes and gave a sigh that was partly a groan. Dodson leaned over him. "We'll carry you to the center of the city now. You've taken a terrible beating."

Von Beltz opened one eye, then, and a grin overspread his battered features. "My dear Dodson," he replied spiritedly, although in a low tone, "if you think I've taken a terrible beating. you ought to see the other fellows Three of them! One I left without so many teeth as he had had. The one who had the knife I robbed of his weapon, and I put it between his ribs -where, I fear, it will take a mortal effect. The third-alas, his own moth er would neither recognize nor receive him !"

With those words the courageous Von Beltz quietly fainted. Tony told Jack Taylor to post a call words, dear, for so many feelings? This place was planned for love, Tony.' "Yes."

"They loved here. Tony ; some couple very young-a million years ago. . . . Where are they?"

"Where we, some time, shall probably be; but why think of that? 'From fairest creatures'-finish that for me, Eve, can you?"

"The first sonnet, you mean?" "I don't know the number: but I knew it once-at Groton. I had to learn it to get into Harvard for the college board examinations. Wait: I've got more of it:

"From fairest creatures we desire increase,

That thereby beauty's rose shall never die."

"Where are Harvard, and Groton, now, Tony?"

"With Nineveh and Tyre; but you're here-and beauty's rose shall never die. . . . And by G-d, no one will take you from me-or freeze you in the cold, if I don't let you go."

"You've the diagram that Von Beitz brought?" asked Eve.

"I've seen it-studied it," Tony replied. "He did well; but not enough, We know now where is the great central power station; but we don't know even how they get in and out of this city."

"We can't say they still do?"

'We can't say that they don't. Undoubtedly Von Beitz was right; he was taken out by way of some conduit. We'll have to find that first, and stop it up or guard it; and then there may be a dozen undergrour.1 doors leading anywhere, for purposes we've not progressed enough to guiss. We've got to catch up on the old records of this place-though it's plata that some of them have been removed by the men who captured Von Beltz. Yet we've an awful lot to learn that we can learn."

Enemies of Grasshoppers

Among the most active of the insecenemies of grasshopters are several small two-winged flies and some little wasps. Maggots of the flies, either de posited directly on the grasshopper on hatching from eggs laid on it, pierce the hopper's body and feed on its contents. The wasps sthig their victin into a state of coma and then drag i off to their underground nests to feet their young.

Infantile paralysis and sleeping sickness are the two summer diseases we now dread. They are much more difficult to control than the diarrheal dis-eases, for they are diseases of the nervous system and are caused by germs too small to be seen with the microscope.

Science will eventually win over them very soon, we hope. But even in epidemic form, their fatalities will not begin to approach the magnitude of the diarrheal fatalities of fifty years ago. Western Newspaper Union.

Take mildness for one thing-how does it measure up for mildness?

Chesterfields are milder-not flat or insipid, of course, but with a pleasing flavor.

Then take taste for another thing does it have plenty of taste? Chesterfields taste better - not strong but just right. In other words, They Satisfythat's my yardstick for a cigarette.
