Audit of County's Finances Printed In This Newspaper

The annual audit of Coke County funds, prepared by Auditor Weldon Fikes, is being published in this week's newspaper. County officials are having the annual financial statement published in both the Bronte Enterprise and Robert Lee Observer in order that all interested citizens may see how various county funds stand.

The first part of the audit is the condition of all county funds and winds up with a balance of $422,430.24 in all of them. This figure represents both operating and interest and sinking funds.

The second part of the statements shows the bonded and warranted indebtedness of the county and its commissioners precincts. The entry shows for each outstanding bond issue the date of issue, date of maturity, interest rate, amount of the issue, amount retired, amount outstanding, and principal and interest payments due this year.

Total amount of issues which have any part outstanding is $1,192,000. Of this amount, $779,000 has been retired, leaving an outstanding balance of $413,000.

The last part of the audit shows that Coke County owns $79,000 worth of bonds purchased as an investment. The first of these securities becomes due in 1967, while the last one matures in 1975.

Fikes urged that all taxpayers and other interested citizens of the county study the audit, as it shows how the county spent almost a half million dollars last year.

Plenty of work is in store for the hospital's board of directors during the coming year, as plans are about completed for building an addition which will raise the total number of beds to 42, and completely remodel the existing plant.

Plans call for the addition to consist of 20 new patient rooms, plus new operating room, emergency room, doctors and nurses lounges, administrative offices, nursery, labor room, visitors lobby, lab facilities, central supply, and a remodeled kitchen and dining room.

R. B. Vandiver, hospital administrator, said this week that the proposed addition will make the West Coke County Hospital completely modern and capable of serving this area with first class medical care.

The hospital improvement program will be financed by bonds which were voted last Apr. 1. The issue amounts to $110,000 and carried by a 343-163 vote, better than two to one. In addition to the bond money available, the district has received a $117,000 federal grant for use in building and equipping the hospital. Total estimated cost is $234,000.

Holdover directors who have another year to serve on the board are Fred McCabe, Sr., Cumbie Ivey Sr. and Quisenberry.

Emergency Feed Program

The County Committee voted in their meeting of March 1 to stop the livestock feed program on Monday, March 15. They felt that after the rain we have had in the county, heavy feeding could be stopped after that date.

If you have an approved application you may continue to purchase both corn and milo until Monday, March 15. You must have all the feed fed by April 30.

Feed Grain Program

Remember that the final date to sign up in the Feed Grain Program is Friday, March 26. If you wish to participate in the program and you have not already signed an intention, remember this date.

Domestic Cotton Allotment

If you wish to go your domestic cotton allotment, Friday, March 26, is the final date to sign up. If your effective allotment is 15 acres or less you do not need to sign up.

1965 ACP Program

The participation in the 1965 ACP Program has been slow. We have plenty of money to carry out approved practices. Remember that you must sign up before you start a practice to be eligible for payment. The final date for seeding grasses is May 15.

Wool Program

Here's a note from the ASCS office, containing some good advice to producers on how to increase the income they receive from wool. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is the office which makes the wool incentive payments under the National Wool Act—payments which were authorized as a means of encouraging the domestic production of wool. They provide growers additional income for wool and at the same time permit wool to compete freely in the open market.

With shearing time not far off, it's an appropriate time to talk about improving wool market returns. And ASCS says that the higher the individual's returns, the higher the payment he receives under the wool program. That's because the payments represent a uniform percentage of each grower's returns. So the grower himself has the key to higher returns and payments. The key is quality wool.

Marketing a quality product is important to both growers and the industry as a whole. That's why both industry and government are cooperating in an industry-wide campaign to encourage the proper shearing and packaging of the domestic wool clip.

You can get advice about improving the wool you send to market by consulting your county extension agent, your marketing agency, or your growers association. And while you're doing that, ask for suggestions on how to raise the kind of lambs that consumers prefer.

County Agents News Column

By STERLING LINDSEY

Coke County will be well represented in the San Angelo show this week with 85 entries being exhibited by 32 4-H and FFA members. Also, three Coke County 4-H Club members and three Robert Lee FFA Chapter members will compete for prizes in the San Angelo calf scramble.

The groups plan to have two heifers, two steers, 18 range ewe lambs, 10 registered Rambouillet sheep and 53 lambs.

The Rocker B Ranch, northwest of Barnhart, will be host for a program on functional efficiency of beef cattle on March 18. Dr. Jan Bonsma of South Africa and now lecturing out of Texas A&M University, will conduct the program for the day. He has gained worldwide recognition for his work with beef cattle and gives a very interesting program. If you would like to attend the program, please let me know.

LOTS OF BEEF CAME FROM TEXAS FEEDLOTS IN 1964 — During the past year, 969,000 head of cattle and calves were marketed from Texas feedlots. Ed Uvacek, Extension livestock marketing specialist and assistant professor at Texas A&M, said this was a 27 per cent increase over the number marketed in 1958.

Scientists at the Coastal Bend Experiment Station located near Beeville, believe a new grass variety, kleingrass, shows promise of being an excellent choice for improved pastures.

Bill Conrad, a scientist at the station, said research with the grass is not complete and seed is not available for general use, but their work indicates the grass is quite drought resistant and will grow from early spring to late fall.

The kleingrass they are evaluating was introduced from Africa in the late 1950's. It grows from three to five feet tall yet is very palatable.

At the Coastal Bend Station, the grass is grown and maintained in rows by annual cultivation. Kleingrass is a bunch grass and the rows help maintain proper plant population for good production in dry areas.

Conrad said this year they hope to run feeding trials with the grass at Beeville and several other stations.

Currently one problem with kleingrass is acquisition of seed. Its seeds tend to shatter soon after they mature, making seed harvest difficult. Researchers believe there are ways to overcome this problem.

A Texas A&M scientist said the grass will grow in many areas of Texas. He said several farmers in the High Plains are already using it.

FARM AND RANCH PRICES STILL CLIMBING — Texas farm and ranch land prices reached a record high of $94 an acre in 1963—a 10 per cent increase since 1960. The most important demand sources are established farmers and ranchmen who are buying land to increase the size of their units; industrial and urban developments; highway construction and city dwellers. Land prices are materially affected by industrial and urban developments. Little change is seen in the land market for the near future.

Jim Mullis spent the weekend with his sister, Mrs. R. L. Flanagan. He is presently living in Del Rio where he is a dispatcher for the Department of Public Safety.

Garland Davis Tells Club About Testing Programs

High School Principal Garland Davis spoke to members of the '64 Study Club when they met Monday in the recreation hall at Coke County Park.

Here's an inside tip for shoe shoppers. Consider new spring shoes with a leather lining—for comfort and long-lasting fashion.

Leather linings are making a comeback in shoe fashions this spring.

The "breathing" leather lining keeps feet dry and cool and the leather lining guards the foot from chafing and the irritation of burning feet. The leather lining adds body to the shoe without weight — in the pump, spectator and slingback designs. The lining helps the shoe hold its shape longer.

In many spring fashions of pumps, spectators and town walking shoes, the leather lining is actually two pieces. The forward section is smooth and dainty, and the back is napped for a no-slip hold on the foot. This design gives the wearer the feel of luxury and sure-footed walk.

Imaginative shoe designers are using leather linings to help set off the beauty of their shoes this spring. Many shoes have colored or tinted leather linings to match or contrast with the shoe upper leather color. In others, a smooth leather is used to set off a suede leather or brushed leather upper.

Figuring Wall Paper Needs

Do you need help in figuring the amount of wall paper needed to paper a room? If so, this information can be of help to you.

A single roll of wallpaper covers thirty-six square feet, and a double roll, seventy-two.

Figure the area of each wall — the height times the width — and add these together. Subtract the area of each window and door opening. Multiply by 1.1 — to take care of waste and matching.

You now have the area to be covered. So divide this by 72 or 36, depending on which size roll you wish to buy — single or double.

Read Labels To Prolong Fabrics

Piece-good departments are a maze of colors, designs and textures that tempt the home sewer into starting her spring and summer wardrobe.

With the endless array of fabrics on the market today, it is often difficult for the home seamstress to know what she's buying by looking and feeling.

Too often, the color, texture and pattern to be used influence the selection of the fabric — yet the home sewer also should take into consideration how the finished garment is to be cared for.

Information concerning the care of the fabric usually is tucked deep into the bolt of material, where buyers do not always see it. And, of course, this information always stays at the store.

A lot of time and work goes into making an outfit. To keep it looking chic, the garment must have proper care. So read the labels to know the characteristics of the fabrics being bought. Label-reading is just as important when selecting fabrics for home sewing as it is when choosing ready-made apparel.

After reading the fabric labels, write down special instructions for future reference.

Former UCRA Head Opposes Expansion Move

EDITOR'S Note: The story below was published in the San Angelo Standard-Times several days ago and refers to the proposed increase in size of the Upper Colorado River Authority. Youngblood is opposed to the enlargement and tells why below.)

L. T. Youngblood, board member and former chairman of the Upper Colorado River Authority, said Monday he doubts the wisdom of creating an Upper Colorado Authority with 10 counties as members.

He thinks, in fact, that the proposed new district comprising Coke, Tom Green, McCulloch, Menard, Schleicher, Concho, Irion, Coleman, Sterling and Runnels counties would be unwieldy in action because of limitations requiring votes in each county for approval of any program requiring ad valorem taxes.

Youngblood, Bronte banker, said: "I have worked 30 years for the Upper Colorado River Authority as now constituted serving Coke and Tom Green counties, and I would hate to see the work of the authority dissipated."

"In fact I would resent another authority bearing the same name, taking over our assets, with authority to spend UCRA money at its discretion. It would be something like a big school district taking over another. The former trustees would have no say about it. In similar fashion all the work already done by the UCRA as presently constituted could be dissipated."

Youngblood said he thinks the proposal to build the Stacy Dam will rouse those served by the Lower Colorado River Authority to greater opposition because of fears that the 1,800,000 acre-foot capacity proposed would rob LCRA of water to which it feels it now has a prior claim. Because of this opposition he doubts such a dam will ever get approval.

A dam proposed several years ago by Colorado River Municipal Water District in Mitchell County drew no opposition either from UCRA or LCRA. Protest arose only when CRMWD proposed moving the site of the dam to the vicinity of Robert Lee with a capacity of 488,000 acre-feet. Youngblood thinks that any dam with larger capacity nearer the LCRA territory would draw far greater opposition.

Youngblood said he doubts that any county in the proposed district, even Tom Green, would vote ad valorem taxes to pay for the Stacy Dam estimated now to cost $47 million. With the local interests required to pay one half the cost, that would test the natural resistance of the taxpayers to saddle themselves with a long-time payout, making the dam cost twice as much counting interest charges, he said.

Having spent 30 years with the UCRA, Youngblood said he feels that the work of the men who have labored long and hard for its accomplishments is deserving of better reward than a measure of oblivion.

He cites accomplishments of UCRA in the construction of the North Concho Dam, now the supply reservoir for San Angelo's water needs, and the water systems at Bronte, Robert Lee, Christoval and Carlsbad. The need for these has been shown clearly, and he asks now, "What would have happened had the UCRA not been on the job? He answers his own question. "No other water would have been available for human consumption."

Said Youngblood: "No member or officer ever tried to make any money by reason of his office. No more than $100 per month was paid to any officer of the UCRA, and that was limited to the chairman and secretary."

He credited about two dozen men involved in creation and service to the UCRA.

"Now when the prospects come to destroy, liquidate and absolve the UCRA and surrender all our efforts and authority to 12 men that we do not even know, to spend our money at their will and discretion, with money already paid by the citizens of Tom Green and Coke counties, it would leave only the name of the present UCRA.

It has cash, assets and bills receivable of approximately $1.4 million. That would slip out of our hands, and who can say that the interests of those who paid it in would be preserved as now guaranteed?

"I have spent my best years in the service of the UCRA without reward other than to do my job and serve the district to the best of my ability.

"It is my belief now that no permit will ever be granted to construct a dam at Stacy. The LCRA will be too much in opposition."
