March 26 Deadline To Sign Up For 1965 Grain Feed Program

Friday, March 26 is the last day growers may file application to take part in the 1965 feed grain program, according to C. E. Arrott, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee for this county.

He reminded farmers that only those who participate in the feed grain program will be eligible for price support on their 1965 corn, barley and grain sorghum crops. As last year, the support is made available through loans and price-support payments.

Besides qualifying for price support, the participating grower also earns a diversion payment for shifting part of his feed grain base to a conserving use. Minimum diversion is 20 percent of the individual farm's total feed grain base. Maximum diversion is 50 percent of the base or 25 acres if this is more. For diverting more than the minimum, the diversion payment will be figured at a higher rate. If the actual diversion is 40 percent or more, the higher rate applies to the whole diversion.

Arrott said that farmer interest in Coke County is higher than last year and indications are that 1965 participants will run well ahead of 1964.

He urged interested farmers to call at the ASCS county office as soon as possible, since only six working days are left before the March 26 deadline, and signing up is the first step in program participation. The ASCS office is open from 8 until 5 o'clock, Monday through Friday.

"We don't want anybody to be disappointed because he waited too long," Arrott said. "There's also the advantage of being able to get half the estimated diversion payment in advance at the time of signup or soon afterward."

Cotton & Wool Garments

The term "delayed cure" may sound like a health fad, but it actually refers to a new textile process which represents happy news for the family wardrobe.

Wash-wears finished by this technique have an exceptional ability to retain their shape during wear and after laundering.

Durable creases and pleats can be set in to last the life of the garment, even after repeated washing.

Slacks, trousers and work pants were the first cotton garments to be made by this new process. Sport shirts, blouses, and dresses are expected on the market this spring, and all-cotton suits are now being developed for men. At present most of the fabrics used are a blend of cotton with either nylon or polyester fiber.

The finish requires two steps. First, the fabric is treated with thermosetting resin and goes to the manufacturer to be made into garments — including sharp creases or pleats, if desired.

Then the finished garments are placed in a high-temperature oven to "cure" the finish by heat. This permanently "sets" the shape of the entire garment. It also reduces the problem of subsequent seam pucker and eliminates the need for touch-up ironing.

Certain wools are also being treated by a chemical process with a delayed setting similar to that used for cottons and cotton blends. Creases or pleats are made in finished woolen garments and the setting takes place in a subsequent step — again assuring the durable sharpness so important to a pleated fashion.

Avoid Torn Wrappers

If you buy fresh or fresh frozen poultry and if you intend to put it in the freezer, be sure the wrapping is tear-free and tight.

Exposure to air dries out frozen poultry quickly, and may turn it dark and develop off flavors.

Should you wish to repack the poultry or make packages larger or smaller, be sure to use a moisture-vapor-resistant wrapping material. Foil is fine for this purpose, and there are several types of freezer wraps available at most supermarkets.

Force the air out by pressing the wrapping close to the bird. Then fold the ends of the paper upward and over until the package is tight.

Store frozen chicken no longer than a year. Turkey, goose and duck should be used within six months.

Regular prices on frying chicken continue reasonable, and scattered specials bring these young chickens down to a hard-to-resist level.

Chicken hens and turkeys are excellent buys. Eggs are among bargain buys this week, with large sizes even better buys than a week ago. And they are so good for preparing Lenten dishes.

A number of specials are featured on beef this week. Consider succulent pot roasts, stews and favorite cuts of steak. Fresh pork choices include picnics, chops, loin roasts, hams and liver.

Prices are generally steady on Grade A bacon, with specials on lesser grades.

Canned tuna, pink salmon and frozen fish fillets offer other good values for Lenten menus.

Quality varies on some of the fresh vegetables. Carrots, cabbage, eggplant, turnips, head lettuce, celery and dry onions are among the best selections. Cooking greens are fair-to-good quality. Most potatoes are still high.

Grapefruit of excellent quality is moderately priced. Bananas, juice oranges, apples, and pears are other good fruit selections.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Netleton Industrial Museum

"Ask your grandmother if she remembers this old 1893 Mosley oil-fired water heater and folding bathtub . . . I dare say, it would hardly meet the needs of 1964 living—supplying dishwashers, clothes washers, bathtubs, and lavatories with instant clean hot water upon demand.

Few of us actually realize that over 2/3 of the water used in the home is hot water. With the completely automatic electric water heater there is no fear of a flame going out when hot water is needed the most. And being totally flameless, it requires no venting, is easier to install and maintenance is practically nil.

What a change from the 'good ol' days!'"
