CURRY HELPED WHIP THE MALATIA.

A correspondent in Raton, N. M., of the Denver Times writes a rather interesting story of the early life of George Curry, who is named as the successor of Governor Hagerman.

The story is as follows:
Back in the stirring days of the '80's George Curry, now governor of Sonora, who probably will be appointed by President Roosevelt to succeed Governor Hagerman of New Mexico, was a well known character throughout this territory and took part in many exciting happenings during that unsettled period.

Dick Rogers, the noted outlaw, was one of Curry's friends before the former's lawlessness got him into trouble with the government and later resulted in his death. Even after Rogers began his life of outlawry Curry stood by him as a friend and assisted him in many ways, although always cautioning him against further wrong doing.

Among the most notable of the affairs in which Curry was interested was the pursuit of Rogers by company H, New Mexico National Guards, in the spring of 1885, after Rogers had shot John Hixenbaugh, sheriff of Colfax county. Governor Ross had organized the company for the express purpose of running down Rogers, and appointed Jim Masterson, captain. There were sixty men in the company.

For days and weeks the company scoured Colfax county looking for Rogers, but his numerous friends among the cowboys kept him informed of the malatia's movements, and he succeeded in keeping hid. After six weeks of this camping out in the prairies and mountains of New Mexico, the company returned to Raton and camped in the old Marcy stable over night. They had no guard out, and were captured before morning by the cowboys, who escorted them to the top of Raton pass at the Colorado line and warned them to never return to the territory. Curry was of the party of cowboys.

Charles Wheeler, who was then Governor Curry's employe, furnished Rogers with fresh horses when over the outlaw was in need of a fresh mount in order to escape the malatia pursuing him, and it fell to the lot of Curry two or three times to take the fresh mount to wherever the bandit was hidden.

Curry was a great believer in law and order, but he believed in the ethics of true friendship fully as much, and many times assisted his friends to safety after they had gotten into trouble of one kind or another.

During an attempted jail delivery of a prisoner named Dood, who, the cowboys asserted, had been unjustly accused of a crime and railroaded to prison for a long term, Dick Rogers, Red River Tom and Jim Curry, a brother of George Curry, were shot and killed. George Curry then joined a band which set out to avenge the deaths of the three, but the band was rounded up by a troop of United States cavalry sent out from Fort Union, forty miles away, to quell the trouble. The members were afterwards fined on a technical charge of disturbing the peace and inciting riot.

Shortly after this event Curry left Raton and went to Lincoln county to reside. There he was one of the foremost citizens. When the Spanish war broke out he joined the Rough Riders there and served under Colonel Theodore Roosevelt throughout the war. When Roosevelt became president Curry was remembered, and since 1900 has filled several government positions.

He is known to all his neighbors in New Mexico, and to all members of the Rough Riders as a man absolutely without fear, with a great sense of justice and a true friend.

Crop Conditions on May 1.

The Crop Reporting Board of the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture, from the reports of the correspondents and agents of the Bureau, finds the area under winter wheat remaining in cultivation on May 1 to have been about 28,132,000 acres. This is 11.2 per cent, or about 3,533,000 acres, less than the area reported as sown last fall, and 5 per cent, or about 1,467,000 acres, less than the area of winter wheat as reported as harvested last year.

The average condition of the growing winter wheat crop on May 1 was 82.9, as compared with 82.9 on April 1, 1907, 90.9 on May 1, 1906, 92.5

on May 1, 1905, and 85.5, the mean of the May averages for the past ten years.

The average condition of winter rye on May 1 was 88, as compared with 92 on April 1, 1907, 92.9 on May 1, 1906, 93.5 on May 1, 1905, and 89.5, the mean of the May averages of the last ten years.

The average condition of the meadow mowing lands on May 1 was 83.6, against 92 on May 1, 1906, 93.3 on May 1, 1905, and 90.4, the mean of the May averages for the past ten years.

The average condition of spring pastures on May 1 was 79.6, against 91.4 on May 1, 1906, 92.3 on May 1, 1905, and 89.2, the mean of the May averages for the last ten years.

Of the total acreage of spring plowing contemplated, 71.5 per cent is reported as actually done up to May 1, as compared with 63.9 per cent at the corresponding date last year and a ten year average on May 1 of 65.

Of spring planting, 47 per cent is reported as having been completed on May 1, as compared with 53 per cent on May 1, 1906.

Deterioration of the Mastiff.

Some breeds there are that have been driven into obscurity by the unbridled craving of breeders for particular properties. Most lamentable of these is the case of the mastiff who, 15 or 20 years ago, was the king of the heavy brigade. Size and massive heads became the alpha and omega of the breeders. Increase in size resulted in lumbering, overtired apathetics, that could not get out of their own way, and only by an effort could support their calfskin carcasses on sprawling legs and splay feet, says R. F. Mayhew, in Everybody's Magazine. And in the intensity of desire to produce massive heads, the hither end of the wretched animal was forgotten, and paralyzed or semiparalyzed hind-quarters were the result. Hence, the downfall of the mastiff and, in a measure, of the St. Bernard. Their former position in the dog world is now occupied by the Great Dane, the deerhound and the Russian wolfhound.

The Homemaker.

It must be taken into consideration, that every successful homemaker is necessarily a housekeeper—one who keeps the house in the hollow of her hand; so to speak. One whose eye guards every detail of expenditure; one whose heart and mind are centered in the beautifying, guidance and maintenance of her stronghold. It would be foolish to insist that every housekeeper possess the rare and beautiful gift of creating and evolving a home, says Margaret Anglin in Pictorial Review. The housekeeper works for her wages, oftentimes grudgingly; the homemaker takes up her daily tasks with inspiration. Her labor is performed with love; and as I believe some poet has remarked, even the sweeping of a room may become a beautiful action.

Indoor life, with the numerous artificial and unwholesome conditions which it imposes, is a powerful factor in lowering the vitality, diminishing the power to resist disease and in maintaining a continual contact with conditions productive of disease. Monkeys and most other wild animals deteriorate rapidly in captivity because of the deprivation of the fresh air and sunshine to which they are naturally adapted. Civilized women are almost compelled to live sedentary lives. This fact, declares a writer in Good Health, accounts in large degree for the almost universal invalidism among women.

Mexico is prosperous under the gold standard. The republic's fiscal receipts ($50,298,000 United States currency) for the year ended June 30, 1906, were far in excess of other years and much beyond what was expected even by the most optimistic economists. El Imparcial, a local newspaper, says the income 11 years ago was only $25, 140,000 United States currency, and concludes that the decided advance to $50,000,000 is due to careful financing. The gradual growth in the fiscal receipts during the last 11 years is the outcome of increased business prosperity and not of increased taxation.

Prince Henry of the Netherlands, husband of the queen, proved his humanity and his courage when the steamer Berlin was wrecked off the Hook of Holland last month. He learned that some passengers were left on the vessel, and took command of the rescue party which finally brought them off. When he came ashore with them he was cheered to the echo by the enthusiastic Dutchmen gathered on the beach. King Edward has bestowed on him the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath in recognition of his bravery.

The men and women who perish miserably in train wrecks have the consolation of knowing that they do not die in vain. They suggest safe modes of construction and running methods. They may not, it is true, appreciate the fact that they are public benefactors and may be selfish enough to prefer their lives to the glory of martyrdom, but still, human progress must have martyrs, and if there are not sufficient volunteers there must be conscripts to the cause.

There is a report that a serious revolt has broken out in the state of Tachira, in the western part of Venezuela. And somehow nobody who has kept track of Castro's doings is very much surprised at the news.

WOMAN HAS FINE RECORD.

Keeper of Lighthouse, She Has Saved Eighteen Lives.

Ida Lewis recently celebrated her fiftieth year as keeper of the Lime Island lighthouse in the harbor of Newport, R. I. As a girl and woman Ida Lewis has lived a remarkable life. Her bravery and skill in handling a boat are well known and her fame is secure as the great woman life saver in the world, for she has the credit of having saved no less than 18 lives, most of her rescues having been effected in the face of extreme danger and in winter. As keeper of the Lime Island lighthouse, to which post she was appointed in recognition of her bravery and record as a life saver on the death of her father, Miss Lewis has shown herself as careful and efficient as a man could be. She is one of the few women in such a position.

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING.

Eczema Covered Whole Body for a Year—No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove a Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief.

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured." Walter W. Paglusch, 207 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 16, 1906."

Refuges on Mont Blanc. Losing one's self on Mont Blanc will soon be counted among the vanished industries. In recent years a number of fine refuges have been built in various parts of the mountain by the Alpine clubs of England, France and other countries and by private individuals. These have made it almost impossible for a man having a bump of locality of average size to be lost, in spite of heavy mists and blinding snowstorms caused by sudden changes of temperature.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. Women Avoid Operations

MISS ROSE MOORE

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

ANOTHER BOW.

With this issue of the Herald the undersigned assumes the responsibility of manager and our salutatory and promises shall be brief, suffice to say that while we can neither preach like Paul or pray like Peter, we shall to our utmost endeavor to publish a good, interesting moral paper, and promise to give every one value received for every cent, whether in the way of subscriptions, advertising, or printing, and while we are no prophet, nor the son of a prophet, we will predict that the Herald will flourish if we can secure the co-operation of the people by way of business and contributing of news matter that may come under your observation.

It is an undisputed fact that the success of a town or a community depends largely on the newspaper, but a newspaper can not be a very successful medium along these lines without the proper support and there is not a successful business man but what does credit his success to advertising.

Not many years ago the Dr. Price Baking Powder Company called a meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of devising means for the cutting down of their expenses and it was decided to cut their advertising down one half with the result that their business fell off more than one half to that of the previous year and it was credited to insufficient advertising. Consequently, the amount expended in advertising was doubled, and has been increased every year.

The advertising columns of a newspaper is the best index of what a town is, therefore, before another issue of the Herald is heralded down south, up north back east and out west, it behoves every business man who is a town builder to have his enterprise represented in the columns of this paper to some extent.

We believe in reciprocity, and to thoroughly demonstrate our belief, we will say to prospective subscribers that if you wish a ring, come in and throw your dollar down. It will ring—you keep the ring and we keep the dollar, and send the Herald to any address for one year, or, if you wish an increase in money, bring us a five dollar bill and we will fold it four times—you may keep the increase and we keep the "fiver" and send six papers for one year to any address; you may name.

I am yours for the success of Portales and her people.

E. A. BERDELL.

Speak well of your home town.

Portales has the distinction of possessing within her midst a man who says he traveled at the rate of 1,075 5-6 miles per hour, and this statement can be verified.

There is one Curry that would remain in the Philippines if he knew how the knives were being sharpened up for his scalp as soon he is inaugurated governor of this territory.

It would seem that direct legislation by the people is the only hope of destroying party machines and grafters.

According to the new rule one must be a carpet-bagger in order to belly up to the political pie counter in this territory.

A petition is being circulated praying for the incorporating of Portales. If she comes in, she will come in as a wingling and not as a suckling.

This portion was visited with a delightful rain on Sunday and Wednesday, thus putting the ground and crops in an excellent condition for some time to come.

Arrangements are well under way for the organizing of a brass band here which is a much needed attraction. We have the talent and some instruments and every one should assist in the culminating of this enterprise.

The appointment of Geo. W. Prichard as attorney general makes it plain that acting governor Rayolds intends to provide places for deposed members of the old gang as rapidly as possible. By the time Governor Curry arrives on the scene the old machine will be in working order, and there will be nothing for him to do but fall in line—maybe. Kosch Record.

A fastidious young lady with the air of one who thought she knew more than a Webster's dictionary came tripping into Laster's grocery store the other day when we were in and asked for some succotash seed, the efficient clerk was equal to the occasion, he deftly tossed some corn and beans in a sack and handed them to her, and we could not help but think of that old chorus: "Oh, What Shall The Harvest Be?"

According to Mahlon Marshall, of Woodbury, N. J., a professional weather prophet, whose guesses this year have been exceedingly accurate, a heavy snow and blizzard will next month visit this entire country except in the extreme south. Marshall predicts another wave early in July, so severe as to make fires necessary in the homes. May and June will be the coldest on record in this country, according to the New Jersey prophet.

Our patriotic people now have the query going, "Are we going to observe the 4th of July with a celebration?" A committee should meet at once and decide the question, as it is not far off until that great memorable anniversary and we believe by beginning in time we will be able to put on a celebration that would attract a large audience from a distance—then too, we would be able to celebrate that eventful day and otherwise we are doubtful if we would have sufficient lucre to go elsewhere to celebrate.

Humphrey & Sledge have just received a car load of corrugated iron roofing.

Some systematic efforts should be made to advertise the country immediately around Portales. There never was a time in the history of the United States when so many people were seeking new homes as now. The movement is on and now is the time to invite people to come and see our country. A small amount of money spent in the right channels would bring good results.

The country surrounding Portales is the very best portion of Eastern New Mexico. The soil is very productive, the land lies well and an abundance of pure water is found close to the surface. The latter is or should be a leading factor to the intending settler. There is a vast difference in sinking a well twenty to fifty feet in comparison with sinking a well 250 to 400 feet as is necessary in some sections. The shipping facilities are good here and many other advantages could be enacted. But the chief attraction to the buyer is the price. Land can be purchased in this immediate vicinity for less than in other parts of the country, and as stated above, is the best portion of the country. A large number of settlers have been here for a number of years and have fully demonstrated the productiveness of the country one year with another. Churches and schools have been provided, Portales is a splendid trading point, and taken all in all, a better location for the intending settler could not be found.

A correspondent with a practical turn of mind has figured out in a Chicago newspaper that freight is at present moved in this country at the rate of twenty-seven miles per day, whereas, it was formerly moved by canal at the rate of 120 miles per day. He asserts that coal freight and the unperishable kind is moved much slower now than it used to be moved. For example, coal a few years ago was taken from West Virginia to Chicago in four days, while now the rate requires twelve days for the same shipment.

If the railroads had a railroad commissioner of the proper type behind them to prop them up a little the above conditions would be abridged and the extortionate freight and passenger rates would be lessened. Every state and territory should have a commission of this kind.

Would Run Hagerman For Congress.

The San Juan County Index, a strong Republican, has the following to say in regard to running Governor Hagerman for congress on the Republican ticket.

Believing that the work for clean government in New Mexico, started by Ex-Governor Herbert J. Hagerman, has only just begun instead of being finished by his retirement as governor, the Index voices the sentiments of hundreds of Republicans in San Juan County, with it raise the standard.

"HAGERMAN FOR CONGRESS." All over New Mexico the friends of Herbert J. Hagerman will rally to his support and uphold the principles he advocated and practiced during his too short incumbency of the chief executive's chair.

The confidence of the people of New Mexico in Mr. Hagerman will be proved if he will run for congress. Two years is not long to wait and the memory of Hagerman's treatment at the hands of Roosevelt should spur his friends to make such a showing that even Roosevelt will admit that a mistake was made in the removal of New Mexico's fearless champion of civic righteousness.

Long Confinement Breaks Geronimo.

Lawton, O. T.,—Calef Geronimo, the great Apache warrior, who is said to have scalped more white people than any other living Indian and who for twenty years has been a prisoner of war at Fort Sill military reservation near here, is reported today by an Apache Indian to have completely lost his mind and has to be guarded almost day and night by Apache scouts in the government service. Yesterday afternoon he wandered away from home and was not seen until after night fall, being discovered about dark wandering near Fort Sill and murmuring to himself. A carriage approached and he rushed toward it with a ferocious grin that frightened the occupants. He was taken in charge by two scouts and prevented him from following the party. Geronimo is believed to have grown demented because of the refusal of the war department and the President to grant him liberty or permission to return to Arizona, the scenes of his many devastations of villages and slaughter of whites. Since his last appeal to the President he has been morose and cross and a few weeks ago his wife, the eighth of his harem, left him to return no more.

Could YOU Marry Happily with So Many Millions?

MISS ETHEL DODGE
MR. HARTLEY DODGE

New York.—Is there any young couple in all the world as lucky as young Marcellus Hartley Dodge and pretty Miss Ethel Rockefeller?

They have announced their engagement. The wedding takes place within a few weeks—very quietly because of the recent death of Mr. Dodge's father. It will be a marriage of millions to millions.

But the millions are the small part of this newest engagement and coming marriage. Young Mr. Dodge has youth, health, talent and popularity. And Miss Rockefeller is as fortunate. There is nothing now in the world that they may not have, save each other—and that happy day is not far away.

Couple Has Vast Wealth.

When the clergyman says: "I pronounce you man and wife," out of the church will walk the richest young pair in all New York, if not in all the United States. Nobody knows how rich young Mr. Dodge is—he has something between $20,000,000 and $60,000,000, an estate which is increasing in size by leaps and bounds every day. It came from his grandfather, the late Marcellus Hartley. He cannot spend even the interest.

Miss Rockefeller is one of the heiresses to the vast wealth of William Rockefeller, her father. His holdings no man could possibly figure up, save only Mr. Rockefeller himself, who is a younger brother of John D. Rockefeller, head of the great Standard Oil and all its allied interests.

Just imagine how fortunate these young people are.

Suppose the great Rockefeller fortunes were to be wiped out in the twinkling of an eye; young Mrs. Dodge would still share in her husband's income of from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 a year—quite a tidy bit to keep the wolf from the door.

No Danger of Penury.

Should the Dodge estate go to pieces and leave not a penny, then young Mr. Dodge would have for a wife one of the richest heiresses in the United States—a wife who never has to count the cost of anything, be it a jeweled necklace that some queen once wore or an ocean-going steam yacht. No Rockefeller ever has to count the cost of anything, as even some of our poorer millionaires sometimes must.

But, money having been provided for these two young people from the day of their birth, they have other things to think of. Money doesn't bring happiness to a millionaire. He must have more, because money is always there to be the ready servant of his slightest whim. He doesn't have to think about the butcher or the baker or the landlord. He doesn't even have to pay them, his secretary does that for him.

Young Mr. Dodge went to Columbia university with the class of 1903. Probably he thought more of his career there than he did of the millions that now are his. He wanted to do something more, and he did. To begin with, he was extremely popular. When in '03 he graduated the young man was voted one of the luckiest three and one of the most popular three men in his class. Lucky? Yes! Not only because of his inheritance,

Avoids All Speculation.

He has been elected to many of the directorates which his grandfather once held. To-day he is a very busy young man. Wall street is his pet aversion. He refuses to speculate. When he invests some of his surplus income he buys stocks or bonds of gilt-edged companies outright and holds them for investment.

"If I can, I will make my name the synonym for the highest honor and business integrity," he has said.

Young Mr. Dodge has known Miss Rockefeller for several years, and there have been rumors before of their engagement. It was just the same old story—the love of two young people for one another. Miss Rockefeller didn't have that distressing feeling that perhaps she was being Men at the Tea Table.

It is amusing to find that tea drinking is at last being defended. Before men took to tea drinking we used to be told that we were ruining our nerves and our digestions with this "wisky-washy stuff," and one can remember households where early-morning tea and even the four o'clock fortifier had positively to be taken in secret. At the sacred hour now one finds every tea shop crowded with men.—London Lady's Pictorial.

Women Canada Wants.

Canada wants and welcomes the woman of practical ability. The idle woman, the namby-pamby woman, the woman who lives and breathes and has her being in "family," and the woman who is too proud to work might just as well stay at home.—Gen. Uxwoman.

Lady Isabel Attends a Sale

By Mrs. Neish
(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"What are you reading so attentively, Isabel?"

Lady Isabel looked up absently, and smiled.

"I'm only looking at this catalogue." She handed it to me across the table. "It's a sale at the Veringham's—you know, that lovely place of theirs in Sussex, and you remember poor Lord Veringham going smash the other day?"

"Did he?"

"Yes; he financed some company, or they unfinanced him, or something," she explained vaguely; "but, as you know, I don't understand finance, Marjorie."

"Don't you?" I asked innocently.

Lady Isabel laughed a little as she leaned back in her chair. "Well, perhaps I do a little," she admitted, "but only my own. It's a pity they've had to sell Maraden Hall," she continued; "but he's so fearfully honest he will insist on paying off all he can; however, I daresay the things will fetch very big prices."

"Are you going to the sale?"

"Oh, yes," she answered, "and so are you—I want you to help me by bidding for some of the things."

"But I don't want to buy anything," I protested.

"My dear child," expostulated Lady Isabel, "you surely don't suppose all the people you see at auction sales wish to buy things; why, lots of them are trying to sell."

"How sell?" I patiently awaited explanations.

"Well, you see, the art of supplying is to create a demand. Now supposing you bid for things and I bid for them too, it makes other people bid as well, because people always want what other people are trying to get."

"Some people," I corrected gently.

"I wish you'd give up that horrid habit of arguing, Marjorie; most people do," she repeated; "and then the bidding becomes very brisk, and everybody gets awfully keen to get things away from every one else, and even dealers sometimes lose their heads a little—especially if the things are really valuable."

"But supposing I bid and the thing is knocked down on me?" I said, feelingly once more inclined to argue.

"Oh, that won't matter," she said airily, "because you will only bid up to the reserve price and I will mark the reserve price on the side of your catalogue. It's only decent sympathy and friendship to try and help the sale to go," said Lady Isabel. "Just think how often you and I have been to the Veringham's parties—yes I know they were a horrid bore as a rule," she added hastily, in reply to a look, "but—reproachfully—"surely, my dear Marjorie, it's not very much to do for a friend."

"Of course it isn't," I agreed, feeling rather ashamed of myself, "and after all, as you say, if the things are really very valuable, it would be a shame to let the dealers get them too cheaply."

"Yes," she agreed, "and dealers are horribly tricky, you know. I have asked a good many people to go to this sale, because if outsiders don't go, the dealers will get all the things at knock-out prices."

"My dear Isabel, whatever are knock-out prices?"

"Don't you even know what a knock-out is?"

"No."

"Why, it's like this—so many dealers combine together to buy, say, a valuable Chelsea group of figures, but one only bids, and the others refrain from bidding so as not to spoil his chance."

"Oh well, that's rather nice of them."

"And then," continued Lady Isabel, ignoring my comment, "they all meet afterwards, generally at the nearest public-house, where they select a chairman from among themselves, and the thing is put up again and knocked down to the highest bidder, while the surplus above what it realized in the auction is divided up among the rest."

I sighed. "What a very complicated world it is."

"Very," said Isabel laconically; "and Dangerous Age.

If a man is going to commit a crime during his lifetime the chances are that he will do it at the age of 29. It is a curious fact that statistics have shown that man is more dangerous at this period of his life than at any other. The majority of criminals in the state of New York have for some time been of this age. The general supposition is that men have attained the highest development of their mental and physical powers at 29, and they are supposed to be able to distinguish between right and wrong and to realize the consequences liable to follow the indulgence of either. Next to the age of 29 the greatest number of criminals have been 21, 27 or 45 years of age. The intervening years, in which men do not commit as many crimes, have not been explained by expert criminologists who have made investigations proving the above statements to be true, and who are still working on a solution of the problem.

If conscience makes cowards of us all, cowardice, on the other hand, gives some of us about all the conscience we ever know.

"My dear child," expostulated Lady Isabel, "you surely don't suppose all the people you see at auction sales wish to buy things; why, lots of them are trying to sell."

"Well, my dear Marjorie, those special things, you see, were mine."

"but surely the Veringham's aren't paying you for helping them to sell their things?"

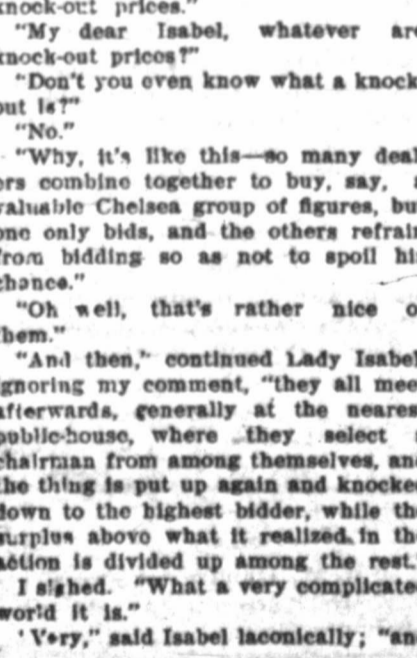

"My dear Marjorie," said Lady Isabel in a horrified voice, "what put such a dreadful idea into your head?"

"Well, what do you mean, then, about getting a cheque?"

"Oh, well, you see," she said hurriedly, "things one doesn't want—useless wedding presents, and all that, you know—sell so much better when they are put in a sale as part of a well-known collection, and the things I marked on your catalogue—very well, she hesitated, and leaned forward to bow to a friend.

"Well, Isabel?"

"Well, my dear Marjorie, those special things, you see, were mine."
