Need for Paper Money. Fifty thousand dollars is needed to pay certain government expenses in Guam, and the request has been made that the money be sent in paper form, not in coin. The natives, it has been found, on receiving money in coin bury it. and go without the necessities of life, while having, in some instances, a goodly pot of treasure securely buried in the ground. They do not thus value paper money and it is hoped that the natives will now expend their wages, keep money in circulation and at the same time improve their mode of living.

She Was Willing. "Yes," says the husband, "I have consented to accept the nomination.' "I am so glad the party is beginning to recognize your merit," beams

DRY FEEDING OF FOWLS.

Opinion of One Poultryman That It is Not as Good as Mash.

I notice in a report of the Ontario station that the feeding of mashes to poultry is discouraged. If one will but read the report they will see that in the feeding of the hens at that station the very necessity for feeding mashes is removed. The men that advocate the feeding of mashes are generally right, for they do that merely to lessen the work of the digestive organs in grinding up dry grain. I see, in looking over this region, that the manager of the poultry department says that he has been unling sprouted grain in the place of the mashes. de l WA COST 194 Very well, that is just what we might expect. The idea in the feeding of mashes is carried out in the feeding of the sprouted grain. A lite tle further on I see that he is also feeding soaked grain and finds soaked oats very good. There is another substitute for dry grain. Still further on I read that mangels and meat also are fed. The report says that "during very cold weather in the winter they fed occasionally a little corn, either in the morning or evening," and that this is fed usually in the litter.

Now the writers who oppose feed ing mashes will take this report as an argument on their side, and I am will ing to admit that in the establishment of the professional feeder or raiser of poultry there is little or no need for mashes. But I find that on the farm we do not have the great variety of food for poultry that is had in such establishments. On the ordinary farm the fowls get grain and water almost entirely during the whole season when the birds have no access to green things out of doors. They get the scraps from the table, but in a flock of perhaps 200 fowls the table scraps do not go far. Se it is a good idea to induce every farmer keeping fowls under such conditions to feed a mash once a day preferably in the morning, for at that time the fowls will have empty crops and will make the most of the mash. At night the fowls, being perhaps not hungry, much of the mash may be left to freeze.

"If farmers can be induced to give a warm mash once a day it will save much sickness among the fowls, for most of the troubles come from indigestion. I have also found that most cases of indigestion are curable by feeding no corn or other grain for awhile, but feeding soft foods. The mash is very easily made by putting the meal or middlings in a pail and pouring in boiling water at night, allowing it to stand in the collar or the kitchen till morning. By morning this food will be all cooked.
