The editor of this paper frankly confesses that his visit to the school Wednesday was a revelation to him. We had heard all sorts of good things said about the school and we thought we

We have two children in school who are making satisfactory progress. "But the half had not been told."

And just here we want to urge upon the patrons of our school and all friends of education to visit the Portales school, and take time to visit every room and see the character of the work being done. Also spend a time on the playgrounds and watch the various games endulged in which are calculated to develope the physical body and a desire for the "square deal," for it must be remembered that all these games are very carefully directed by teachers and they must be played "on the square." We do not mean to intimate that the student body would not play "on the spuare" even though the teachers were not present, for we believe as a whole they would. Superintendent Long, said, with considerable pride, "This is the finest student body I have every seen."

We spent two profitable hours at the school Wednesday afternoon. The spirit of progress and determination was everywhere manifest.

We were taken in charge by Superintendent J. S. Long who pileted us in his courteous, business like way through the ground.

Mr. Long is a busy man, busy in that most happy way in developing young manhood and young womanhood for lifes highest buties. Our first visit was to his room. His pupils showed they had cought some of the spirit of their teacher and entered into their work heartily and determinedly. They handled their arithmetic lesson excellently. They are being tought the "how and the "who" of mathematics. Our next visit was to Prof. Pryor B. Timmon's room. This was a study period and his pupils seemed to be doing good in the preparation of their several lessons. Mr. Timmons is a young man of high ideals, devoted to his calling and is leading

The pupils in Miss Wallace's studies for the period and were "just dieing" to finish some draw ing work they had started on the blackboard. This room is getting ready to celebrate Washington birthday.

Mrs. Corhn seemed perfectly at home in the school room. She is teaching for Mrs.Judge Reese while she is out on account of the sickness of her baby. This room is pointed to as the model room of the entire school. The pupils approach very closely the ideal in deportment, attendance and in the preparation of their lesson

The students in Miss Farnham's room were busy with their history lesson. Miss Farnham is a teacher of marked ability and her work is telling on her pupils.

There is a spirit of earnestness and cooperation on the part of the teacher and pupils that is indeed refreshing.

Ten teachers are employed, aside from the teacher of music. Mrs. Nixon, and teacher of oratory, Mrs. Hardy. Since Christmas there have been organized and are doing good chorus and glee club work. The members of this class will sing at the Cosy next Friday evening.

The enrollment of the school has reached 400. There are 84 in the high school. Only four have dropped out of the high school since the beginning of school. Supterintendent Long said: "This is the finest body of students I have ever seen. The school spirit is fine. Yet the school does not satisfy me. More hard study is nacessary. I should like to have more of the patrons visit the school and see what is being done. The ladies are especially good in this respect, but the men ought to visit and encourage the pupils more. The school is not as fully organized for effective work as I should like. It will take a long time yet to do this. There are some things we need. We need an auditorium so that the school could be made the social center of the community. This would In Miss White's room we not cost much. The manuel her students were taking work equipped.
