COUNTESS VON BASSEWITZ

MPEROR WILLIAM highly pleased the democratic element which is anxious he should make it possible for them to remain loyal to him, by his gracious consent to the morganatic marriage of Prince Oscar, his fifth son, and the sprightly Countess Ina von Bassewitz-Levitzow, the empress' maid of honor. .

Indeed the recent history of European royalty would lead to the belief that the mysterious theory of "equal birth" is rapidly breaking down. Since beautiful Princess Sophia of Saxe-Weimar killed herself because she was restrained from wedding a simple nobleman the disintegrating tendency has been still stronger.

Probably the greatest single factor in breaking down the walls of Hohenzollern tradition of exclusiveness is the curious position of Queen Mary of England.

She is the granddaughter of a German morganatic marriage. Her grandfather, son of Duke Alexander of Wurtemburg, renounced his royal rank to contract a morganatic union with the Polish Countess Claudine von Rhedy. He was then created prince and duke of Teck.

So the Tecks do not belong to the "higher nobility" of Germany. This class includes only those who hold the title under the holy Roman empire. If Princess Mary of Teck had remained in Germany she could only have been the morganatic wife of even the youngest son of a reigning German family.

Indeed, her marriage with a member of a family which had once reigned, but long ago lost its possessions, would have been morganatic.

By this quaint theory of "equal birth." a marquis or even a duke may not have the "equal birth" of a plain count, supposing the count famfly is in the musty old list of the holy Roman empire and the duke and marquis are not.

The inconsistency of the "equal birth" theory was once admitted with much sang froid by Kaiser Friedrich, father of the present emperor according to an anecdote widely quoted. A country gentleman of the lowest rank was discussing families with Friedrich and finally exclaimed: "I can't say I understand all these rules, but I claim my family is quite as good as the Hohenzollerns!" where have got on faster. "but the Hohen-Perhaps the better standing of "u., riages" is to be attributed to the almost unifor felicity of such matches. Two non-royal mar riages in the English reigning family, that of Queen Victoria's daughter Louise to the late duke of Argyll and of King George's sister Louise to the duke of Fife, turned out most auspicious to the parties directly involved and at the same time did much to build up the product good feeling between the English rulers and their people. In Germany Frederick William II, king of Prussia from 1744 to 1797, bought off his fogal wife to agree to a separation so he could morganatically marry Fraulein von Voss, a maid of honor to his daughter, Princess Frederick. Saying it was simply a matter of state, the king's father-in-law, the old duke of Brunswick, actually arranged the separation of his royal daughter and the mor-

So eager was Prince Constance of Hohensollern to marry morganatically the daughter of Baron Schenk that he abdicated the the heads of the talented woman until her tormentors received the well-deserved title, "souls of lackeys." The colonel of a Prussian regiment stationed in Meiningen forbade his officers to greet the wife of the duke (now a baroness) when she passed them. The Hohenzollerns ignored her. By a curious coincidence on the day when his son publicly announced his coming morganatic marriage the kaiser for the first time sent a message of friendly greeting to the wife of his "cousin of Saxe-Meiningen," who that

The administrative tendency in Paris is for municipal ownership of all works supplying public wants and directly affecting public health. The cleaning, sewerage and water supplies are under the charge of the prefect, and the 615 miles of underground sewers are so large, and kept so clean and well ventilated, that an hour's excursion through them is one of the ordinary experiences of visitors, the journey being made partly in boats and partly by electric trolleys. WHERE EMERALDS COME FROM

Where do they come from-those flashing stones of pure pellucid green that often form the central setting of beauty's choicest gems? Diamonds form but satellites when that rarest of jewels, a perfect emerald, flashes its fire or lends its sheen to the jewel-incrusted crown of royalty. Its birth is hidden in the mystery of nature's alchemy, but its beauty and charm have been recognized from the very dawn of history.

Emeralds flashed on the shield of Aaron; the Ptolemies of Egypt treasured them, and their lapidaries knew the art of engraving on their. hard surfaces the mystic symbols of their ancient. faith: the Theban tombs revealed choice emeralds among their long-buried treasures, while Herculaneum and Pompeil have added their quota to the greed of modern excavators. Nero, that half-mad monster who once ruled the destinies of Rome, used an enormous emerald for a monocle, and in the filmy fabric of the gowns of Cleopatra emeralds shone 'n verdant luster.

Mt. Zabarah, in Upper Egypt, is said to have been the source of many of these ancient gems, but centuries have passed since these prolific mines were exhausted, and modern jewelers must now depend upon the western hemisphere for their supply.

In the spoils Pizarro sent to Spain were found the first fine specimens of American emeralds. and thus was revealed another source of the manifold wealth of the new world. Perhaps the most valuable single emerald found in modern times is the one in that famous collection of gems owned by the duke of Devoushire.

It is said to be a perfect hexagonal crystal, weighing eight ounces and 18 pennyweights, and two inches long. It came from the mines of mbia, and it is this South American republic that furnishes the greatest supply of fine emeralds known to the world today.

Not that Colombia is the only country that has emerald mines. Ecuador and Peru have contributed their share to the world's supply, and in the former country the city of Esmeraldas (Spanish for emeralds) takes its name from the precious stones found in the vicinity. Among the Astec treasures of Mexico were found emeralds as fine as those of the Peruvian Incas, and it is reported that Cortez was offered 40,000 ducats for one of the gems he gathered from the hoard of Montezuma.

In some areas of the United States limited quantities of the precious stones are found, but the gems of greatest beauty and value are to be had from the Muzo and Cosquez deposits near Bogota, the capital of Colombia.

her excellent singing voice. "After Wilhelm heard her sing he could not resist her," is the saying with regard to the removal of the kaiser's opposition. She is not strikingly beautiful, but her pleasing appearance has made her a brilliant star in the stodgy court of the German empress. All the other women attached to the empress' service have been in her service since the early days of her marriage and either are, or are old enough to be grandmothers.

The countess' best friend in her love affair has been the Crown Princess Cecilie, whose brother is the grand duke of Meklenburg, of which the countess' father is minister of state. Coming from the same place to Berlin, and with the same vivacity, good looks and pleasure in pretty clothes and piquant society, they naturally formed an alliance against the stiff and conventional surroundings.

The day after the marriage of Prince Oscar and Countess Ina the royal bridegroom will confer a settlement upon his wife. This is the "morgengabe" (morning gift), from which the term "morganatic" comes.

The marriage ceremony differs from the usual custom in that the bride joins her right hand to the bridegroom's left hand (a token of their unequal birth) and for this she cannot inherit the estates of her husband or receive his royal name.

Hence, the day after the marriage he bestows a new title upon her, according to the arrangements of the state, and a financial settlement.

This morganatic marriage is considered as founding an entirely new family. The kaiser will grant the family a new name and Prince Oscar will be paid a lump sum-instead of his princely allowance.

Morganatic marriages have from time to time been attacked as equivalent to concubinage.

This is a mistake, for the whole system of morganatic marriages has been built up by the Protestant church to preserve the purity of the marriage relation and at the same time preserve the sanctity of royalty.

The royal bridegroom cannot marry again in the lifetime of his morganatic wife unless she is regularly divorced.

The children take the title and rank of the mother, but they invariably obtain high office and rich emoluments from the royal family when they are grown and, as in the case of the Tecks, frequently marry into royalty.

PRIZE FOOD. Palatable, Economical, Nourishing.

A Nebr, woman has outlined the prize food in a few words, and that from personal experience. She writes:

"After our long experience with Grape-Nuts, I cannot say enough in its favor. We have used this food almost continually for seven years.

"We sometimes tried other advertined breakfast foods but we invariably returned to Grape-Nute as the most palatable, economical and nourishing of all.

"When I quit tes and coffee and began to use Postum and Grape-Nuta, I was almost a nervous wreck. I was so irritable I could not sleep nights, had no interest in life.

"After using Grape-Nuts a short time I began to improve and all these allments have disappeared and now I am a well woman. My two children have been almost raised on Grape-Nute, which they eat three times a day.

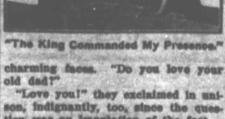

"They are pictures of health and have never had the least symptom of stomach trouble, even through the most severe slege of whooping cough not a sufficient number of chairs. In they could retain Grape Nuts when all plas failed.

"Grape-Nuts food has saved doctor bills, and has been, therefore, a most economical food for us."

NATION FACING MEAT FAMINE.

Economic experts of the Federal Government are giving the high cost of living problem thoughtful consideration and are investigating the high prices of meat. The Department of Agriculture has just completed a census of the meat-producing animals of the United States and finds that there has been a decrease of 4,183,009 head and an increase of $176,530,000 in value during the past year. On January 1, 1914, the berd numbered 144,-507,000, compared with 148,690,000 head a year ago.

The bulk of the nation's decreased meat supply is in the swine herd. Compared with last year the number of high in the United States has dicattle 000 head and sheep 1.763.090 head. The major portion of the increased values is credited to the beef animals The value of all cattle, excluding milch cows, when compared with last year, shows an increase of $169,688, 000; swine have gaines $9,842,000 in value, while sheep have depreciated $1,476,000.

FORGOTTEN ART OF WALKING: Americans, fonder of going and moving about than any other people in the world, do less walking. If we cannot have an automobile to carry us, a street car will serve, but under no circumstances must we walk more than a block or two. Such a thing as walking never enters our heads, unless it be insisted upon by our physician. The only time we walk voluntarily is around the billiard table or on the golf links. And yet walking is not only the best exercise in the world, as any physician will tell you, but it is one of the most delightful. A ramile along country lanes and through woodland shadows is one of the favor-Ite pastimes of our English cousins, and it might be made one of our greatest pleasures. One can never see the beauties of nature from a car window, and the automobile merely unrolls the landscape in one indefinite blur. Even the more leisurely horse permits much to escape us. The call of the spring to the open air is here. The warm sunshine, the dry roads not yet grown dusty, the chatter of the birds, all call us to the great outdoors. Health exhilaration and the sweet weariness that begets sound sleep await us there.

Bomebody with a timorous imagination says sauerkraut is a dangerous explosive. He claims it has all the constituents necessary to qualify as an extra hazardous product. And yet we don't seem to remember any holocausts caused by a barrel of krant letting go, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Nor do we hear that they are loading the Krupp guns with it over there in Essen, and if those daring Italian aviators are dropping it into Tripolitan camps the war correspondents have entirely overlooked it. In fact, until we are convinced that the cowardly bomb placer is setting shells loaded with kraut on the victim's back steps and blowing all the panels out of the kitchen door when the stuff goes of, we are going to take very litthe stock in the new scate.

Is no old established institution safe in this loppoclastic age? Now there are people casting doubt upon the sanitary utility of the tooth brush. They say that while it may be approved as a cosmetic there is nothing in statisties to show that school children who use it are freer from dental cares than those who do not. Undonbtedly the condition of the stomach has much to do with the health of the teeth. But there are other factors in the problem defendant, said cause being number-ed 1923 upon the Civil Docket of said of Sental decay, and it is unreasonable to believe that teeth kept from food

Before the cucumber vines entirely cover the ground, dig a deep hole between each four hills and dump into it a paliful of poultry droppings. Then when vines not thus treated dwindle for lack of food, these will find the nourishment needed and will continue to bear large, well formed fruit instead of the defective sort too often attributed to the effect of hot weather.

Gather the cucumbers every other day, and do not let more than two or three go to seed. The exertion of maturing a ripe fruit is sufficient to form many green ones. Even if some of them do escape your eye until too large for pickling, use them for sweet pickies, or better still, give them to squashes in the early summer, and is the hogs.

INSECT DESTROYERS. Many of Us Are Prone to Conside

This Little Bird in Matter of Fact Way, Like Others of Our Feathered Benefactors.

In all our vast farming territory scarcely a boy or girl could be found who is not familiar with the comm barn swallow. So small is this bird and so familiar that many of us are likely to consider it as we do other of our benefactors, in a matter of fact way, without giving it the appreciation which its services warrant. Perhaps, if we all knew that the swallow is one of the greatest destroyers of the insects which do so much harm we would be freer with our appreciation and more energetic in our protection.

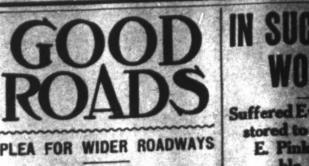

All over the country, in all the open arns and sheds are the little mud nests plastered on the beams and rafters, says Kansas City Star. From each of these nests protrude the head of four to six fledglings which look to be all mouths. All the children of the farm have "climbed to the populous nests on the raftess," perhaps not as did the children of "Evangeline" to seek "that wondrous stone, which the swallow brings from the shore of the sea to restore the sight of its fledglings," but just to see the speckled eggs or the big-mouthed birds.

The swallow is one of the latest the migratory birds to come in the spring and one of the first to depart

Fourteen-Foot Road Will Outlast Three Nine-Foot Roads and Is Much Better in Every Way.

Have not our counties and townships been wasting a good bit of our money by building 9-foot roadbeds on 24 by 10 foot wide road grades? A 24-foot wide grade is plenty wide enough for 14-foot roadbed. Then why spoil s good grade by putting on a $-foot road when it costs less than one-third more to make a good job of it? Fourteen feet is sufficient width for two tracks; that would mean just onehalf of the wear on the road. Then we can drive so as to have a wheel on each side of the center and that makes one more track and will be equal to a 9-foot road. So you see we have three times the wearing surface on a 14-foot roadbed that we do on a 9-foot. Then we have a chance to pass other rigs without one or both going into the ditch. Now this is claiming quite a lot for one-third more expense, but I think a 14-foot road will outlast three 9-foot roads, has a handler surface and is better in every way, writes John D. De Cou in Michigan Farmer. If you come up behind a rig you have a chance to get by. If you are driving an auto you do not have to go outside of the hard roadbed and take chances

PUT IN COMPLETE DRAINAGE SYSTEM

No Better or Safer Investment for Average Farmer Than Plan of Tile Drains.

(By W. M. KELLY.)

There has been much discussion in the agricultural press concerning the best investments for farmers. In my opinion there is no better or safer inveptment for the average farmer, than tile drainage on such parts of the farm as fall to produce maximum crops during wet seasons.

There are many acres of naturally fertile soil that are not paying the owner the cost of working, that could be made the most productive portion of the farm, if a good system of underdraining were put in.

In many cases the first crop will pay cubic feet of hay will vary according the entire cost of drainage. and built barns and sheds, the swallows plastered their nests in the protecting niches of rocky cliffs. This habit of nesting wild has been abandoned except in spatiely settled see tions.

Few birds surpass the swallow in its powers of flight. Its long wings and small, light body enable it to dart through the air at the rate of a mile a minute. As it pleases it can mount to great heights, or just skim above the ground or the surface of the water. It spends much of its time in the air and there it gathers most of its food which consists of various kinds of flies, beetles, bees and wasps. Sparrows seem to look upon the swallow as an object of their especial hatred. They take the swallow's nests for themselves and often destroy them seemingly for ne purpose but in a spirit of malice or mischief. Those who have built modern barns so tightly that the birds cannot enter would do well to provide entrances and exits for them. In New England, especially, where the swallows have been shut out of barns and where sparrows are most numerous, the numbers of our little friends of the air have been greatly decreased
