Portales Power and IrrigationCo. Proposes to Take Over City Plant

uld Be Mutual Help to Town

There is a movement of foot which it is goes through will give the town of Portules and the Portules Valley The Portales Power and Irrigation Company through its president proyal of the board of directors has made a proposal to Mayon and town council to take over the town pissit and furnish power to the town for pumping water at the same rate as w paid by power consumers through-

An Second: -The Power and Irrigation Company furnish current to the City for pumping of water at a special rate comparing with that at which their are furnishing power for all industrial purposes, Third:—That the Power and Irriperion Company pay for the City plant by agreeing to pay the interest in $25,000 worth of bonds and further

This would have to be done sub-ject to legislative enactments empowering the City to sell its property. A contract could be drawn up thoroughly safeguarding the City and our selves pending such legislative enactments, and furnishing a working busin in the interim.

It would be entirely satisfactory to the Portales Power and Irrigation Company the City should safeguard its property by such clauses as would prevent the Power and Irrigation Company from running down their property or from selling all of this property to parties who would not maintain service properly, due to lack of financial ability. In other words, the City would reserve the right to

SYNOPSIS.

Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaves her bome in California to go to him in Allaha, India. Umballa, pretender to the throne, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir. Arriving in Allaha Kathlyn is informed by Umballa that her father being dead she is to be queen, and must marry him. She refuses and is informed by the priests that no woman can rule unmarried. She is given seven days to think it over. She still refuses, and is told that she must undergo two ordeals with wild beasts. If she survives she will be permitted to rule. John Bruce, an American, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the

Outside the palace courtyard stood Rajah, the howdah securely attached once more. Kathlyn was bidden to mount. A water bottle and some cakes were placed in the howdah beside her. Then a drunken mahout mounted behind Rajah's ears. The elephant did not like the feel of the man's legs, and he began to sway ominously. Nevertheless, he permitted the mahout to direct him to one of the city gates, the soldiers trooping alongside.

It appeared that there was a much shorter route to Allaha. Time being essential, Bruce had had to make for the frontier blindly, as it were. The regular highway was a moderately decent road which led along the banks of one of these streams which eventually join the sacred Jumna. This, of course, was also sacred. Many Hindus were bathing in the ghats. They passed by these and presently came upon a funeral pyre.

Sometimes one sleeps with one's eye open, and thus it was with Kathlyn. Out of that funeral pyre her feverish thoughts builded a frightful

Poor sheep! They had discovered the shattered idol. It did not matter at all that the return of their ancient goddess was to bring back prosperity. She had broken their favorite idol. Damnatton would come in a devil's wind that night.

The holy man who had missed the chance of claiming the miraculous appearance of Kathlyn as a work of his own now saw an opportunity to rehabilitate himself in the eyes of those who had made his holiness a comfortable existence. With a piece of the idol in his hand he roused Kathlyn and shook the clay before her face, jabbering violently. Kathlyn understood readily enough. She had unwittingly committed a sacrilege.

The natives gathered about and menaced her. Kathlyn rose, standing in the sarcophagus, and extended her but it would never do to let them see it. What Hindustani she knew would in this case be of ho manner of use. But we human beings can, by facial expression and gesture, make known our messages with understandable clearness. From her gestures, then, the holy men gathered that she could recreate the god. She pointed toward the sun and counted on her fingers. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Maybe you might fancy some wild experiment if you had with you a white companion, man or woman, if you went into the jungle you might, if you were a woman, fancy the comfort of a native woman companion.

But Mrs. Roby chose for her guides and followers simply the black men of the trackless African country, and in her as queen of the Congo.

Recuperating from an attack of blackwater fever, the result of her reent explorations, Mrs. Roby talked entertainingly of her unusual voyagings and some of the queer experiences she had in the course of an 8,000-mile tramp through the largely unexplored and mostly cannibal Kasai country in the lower Congo region of Africa, with only the natives for companions. Mrs. Roby was in New York for eight weeks on her way to the seashore.

"I suppose," she said, "it does take courage—mental as well as physical to sit all night, as I have, back to back with the negro boy, each well armed with rifles, in an endeavor to quell a mutiny; to be days at a time ing big game. without the sight of a white person; to travel through the districts infested with sleeping sickness—whole villages were practically wiped out with this dreadful scourge—to have your eating and drinking supplies stolen in the depths of the wilderness; to face the hair and patted my hands. "My carriers deserted one day at a point between two warring villages, leaving me alone with my interpreter. The village we were making for was inhabited by cannibals, whose chief had a habit of either eating or making slaves of all the other natives who had the temerity to approach his bailiwick. As I approached I feigned not to see him, but kept my gaze on the sky, watching some birds winging by. Then departing had so won the affection of picking up my gun, I fired, and the the natives that they wanted to have birds began dropping all around us. This had the desired effect of impressing him, as I hoped it would, and he became very friendly, promising me food for my followers and myself-a very special kind of meat. Imagine my horror when a few minutes later I saw two men carrying the leg of a black man they had killed the day previous and were then using for food. Shoots Big Game.

> "The greatest danger," continued Mrs. Roby, "is not from native treachery or even violence, but from the wild beasts, which infest the camps."

journey by bicycle. "It is difficult to blase new trails in African territory," said Mrs. Roby, "for whenever a new chief comes to the fore the village or province is named after him or by a name of his selection. So the hopelessness of trying to follow a map of any kind is apparent, and mistakes must naturally follow on account of these inevitable errors in maps and charts.

"On my return trip I took many detours, because I heard that the natives had rebelled and were being cruelly massacred. I found them in revolt, it is true, but I saw no single instance of the intense cruelty pictured to me, and the natives were really happy, prosperous and contented. EARTH'S MOST LONELY SPOTS slands Where Communication With the Great World is at Rare Intervale-Trietan da Cunha.

Though scientific progress has made it possible to do a double journey between England and America in a fortnight, there remain many islands with which it takes years to communicate.

Off the Scottish coast are the groups of islands known as the Heorides, Orkneys and Shetlands. Of these the most isolated islands is St. Kilda, some three miles long and two miles broad. The inhabitants lead lives of great loneliness, for it takes month to get to the next island, and the sea often makes any communication with St. Kilda impossible for months.

The group of eight Phoenix islands in the Pacific has a total population of only 158, while another little bit of the British empire is Fanning Island. This is a landing place for the Pacific submarine cable, and usually there are about one hundred people in the

The loneliest of all parts of British territory is the Island of Tristan Da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, which is also the smallest inhabited island in the empire. It is 1,800 miles from land, has a population of 74 Scottish Americans, and the inhabitants get news of the outer world usually once every two years."

One Too Many.

The bus was rolling up Fifth avenue in a heavy groundswell, on a murky night. Perhaps it was only that the chauffeur and conductor were both sleepy, or maybe it was only the mugginess that deceived them.

On the corner at Thirty-fifth street stood, waiting to cross, a belated delivery boy, holding erect by the waist a dressmaker's dress form. The chauffeur thought he detected a fare, and slowed his craft in to the curb. The conductor looked out through the fog. shook his head, and rang the bell to go ahead.

"Room for one only," he said, and the 'bus rolled on.-New York Evening Post.

Why Com Testing Pays

(By G. R. Ingalls, Representative, Eau Sec.5. The Legislature may exempt Claire county Agricultural Experiment station, the University of Wisconsin.)

Cow testing shows the money makers. The best cows in many Wisconsin herds are returning a profit of $100 or more every year tracts. The plowing of land shall not be considered as adding value thereun-It is possible to have every cow kept do as well.

sume more than they return, are quickly spotted and eliminated when the cow test is used, No successful meschant handles a school district or board of education; or against any incorporated city town or village, school district or board of education, line of goods on which he loses upon any judgment covered against him in his official capacity and for money; likewise, no progressive which the county, incrporated city. dairyman will milk a cow on board of education, is liable. which he does not make a profit. but the same shall be paid The milking of cows is a straight out of the proceeds of a tax levy as business proposition and no far ated cities, of counties, incorporated cities, towns or villages, school districts or boards of education, and time or pay high priced labor to counts treasurer to the judgment credmilk cows which do not pay their board: Let's make the $100 return per cow our standard.

To build up a profitable herd the cow test is indespensable. It makes the dairyman to quickly get a high producing herd by selecting heiters from only the best cows. In this connection the sires that are capable of transmitting dairy quality and temperament to their offsprings can be proven. The very general practice of sending mature bulls to their prime for breeding purposes, is detrimental to our dairy in dustry and should be stopped.

Cow testing also pays because surplus stock of both sexes sells for higher prices when buyers can see what the ancestors of these animals have done in the line of milk and butter production When using the test, farmers may know their cows as individ "15," "15

WHAT OUR 1400 LB. SHELL'S LOOK LIKE .

N INVESTMENT of $250,000,000 is something well worth while analyzing for the purpose of determining the best way to utilize all the possibilities for service to the investor.

The taxpayers of the United States have considerably more than this amount already invested in the United States

The insurance of peace and prosperity to the individual and to the corporation under the United States government given by the army and navy undoubtedly pays a considerable percentage of dividends on the investment, but utilization of all possibilities for efficiency is the standard of achievement for all modern industries. In addition to the protection feature of the navy, there are three ways in which, it seems to me, there might be possibilities for future service to individual taxpayers and to individual employers fortunate enough to live in the United States.

A widespread feeling is abroad in the land that the present w of education does not give to boys aged seventeen to twenty-one the maximum return for the time spent in study.

This feeling is based upon the fact that the specialized industries of today demand specialized education. Vocational training in the public schools, in extension courses and the still more highly specialized training of the corporation schools, are all long steps in the right direction.

An accurate fitting of the round peg to the round hole demands, however, something in addition to the above. The navy requires 34 trades to administer to its needs. All these trades are under the common direction of one head. Each ship contains modern machinery for each trade to attain maximum efficiency.

Does it not seem possible that during the four years of the enlistment period the natural capabilities of each man might be worked out in such a way as to practically insure locating this man in any profession to which his particular type of brain and mental and physical equipment best fit him?

Fitting the individual man in the navy to his position of maximum usefulness means a careful, personal, unselfish consideration of the ambitions and capabilities of each man by the officers under whom he serves. Mutual understanding between officer and enlisted man in the navy is being developed at a wonderfully rapid rate. In the first place, a very large majority of the work in the navy is with machinery. Officer and man are both in overalls.

The officer is Mr. Brooks, for example, and the man is simply "Smith;" but that is practically the only distinction between the officer and the man, except such as is given by the power of the officer to serve the enlisted man and to bring him to his highest point of efficiency.

In the forward turret of the Alabama, for example, the ordinary seaman in charge of the hoist motor has found that tightening a certain clutch will give greater speed to his car

"Mr. Brooks, I think a little change will give us a quicker ammunition supply. "What do you recommend?

The man then explains his idea and the entire turret crew gather around to discuss the advisability of the change. Each member of the turret crew is just as vitally interested in the success of the turret as the officer is, and each man knows that his best effort is absolutely essential to the maximum score of hits.

In this way machinery on the ships has proved a great force working toward intelligent democ-

The second force tending to draw officer and man together is the fact that the efficiency of each officer and man, from the commander in chief to the latest recruit on board, is a matter

"The shots that hit are the shots that count," and, incidentally, they are the only shots that

The number of hits of each officer for each gun, of each man for each gun and of each man for each shot of each gun is put on the record of the officer and the enlisted man and nomes a matter of public knowledge, published in the newspapers of the country, advertising the efficiency of each, if the score is good enough; and, on the other hand, advertising inefficiency if the score is bad enough.

The engineering competition applies the same methods to the number of pounds of coal,

the number of gallons of oil and the number of gallons of water used in the engines, dynamos

ACCOUNTREMENTS

CIACKIES READING THE LATEST NEWS

Competition thus engendered and intelligently rewarded for success or failure has compelled a study of the enlisted man by the officer which has resulted in a feeling of mutual interdependence which has brought officer and man in a relationship which makes snobbishness on the one hand and misunderstanding on the other more nearly impossible every day.

To fit the man to his position of maximum usefulness in the navy demands, therefore, no change in existing mechanism of effort. The only thing necessary is to co-ordinate and to direct to a given end the forces already in existence on every ship and at every station of the

This given purpose is two-fold in character. First, to use the navy to give education, broadmindedness and personal efficiency to each officer and enlisted man in the service, training each individually to give the highest possible returns in actual useful effort for the money expended for his pay and training.

This first aim will send forth among our citizenship each year approximately 7,000 men, each of whom is qualified by his industrial training. by his association with officers and men of different nations, by his habit of mind of intelligent comprehension and quick, well-disciplined action and by his broad understanding of world politics, to act as a center for spreading knowledge of discipline, of good citizenship, of the highest ideals of mental, physical and spiritual efficiency, through every section of our United

Second, from the body of men thus qualified the employer will be able to select, from exact records, the man fitted in every respect for best efficiency in any given position. Letters from some of the largest employers of labor in the country show that they are now employing men holding honorable discharges from the navy and getting from them higher efficiency than from

Give greater certainty of direction to the industrial education of each man and it is not possible to avoid the conclusion that greater efficiency still will result.

Let us pass now to consideration of the material side of the navy. Do you realize that when a ship of our fleet visits a foreign port she carries on board practical, complete, working demonstrations of the best and latest American-made types of machinery? Suppose I am a mine owner in Rio de Janeiro. It is my desire to install a $250,000 pumping plant in the mines under my direction. The fleet visits Rio de Janeiro and I go on board the ship as a visitor. In the engine room and in the fire room I find American pumps operating so smoothly and efficiently and with so small a necessity for supervision that I am impressed immediately with the fact that those pumps, made by an American manufacturer, are the only ones that will serve my purpos

In other words, the actual demonstration of the machinery has overcome any means brought to bear by foreign manufacturers to convert me to their product. A systematic use through the consular service of the possibilities in this line would, it seems other by efficiently coordinating their mutual power and necessity. In the opinion of some of our distinguished fellow citizens the army and the navy are an industrial waste. The watchword of modern industry is "Turn your wastes into profits." The navy has comprehended the wonderful power and inspiration for service expressed in it, and at the present time on every vessel of the navy and at every station under its supervission greater effort is being put forth from day to day to render to the great public a more efficient service in return for the appropriations made for their maintenance. I am not talking for a greater navy, I am not talking for the military form of management! I am asking you simply to understand that each officer and enlisted man of the United States navy is feeling more and more every day that in order to live up to the full measure of his usefulness he must give you service; and I ask for them from every dweller under the Stars and Stripes the heartiest co-operation in helping each of us to find and use, in the broadest way, all

In many ways military organization is the most peaceful of activities. All the helmets are covered with beside the feeble and irregular endowment of research by commercialism, its little short-sighted snatches at profit by innovation and scientific economy, see how remarkable is the steady and the kaiser's men march to the great rapid development of method and appliances in naval and military affairs!

Nothing is more striking than to compare the progress of civil conveniences which has been left almost entirely to the trader, to the progress in military apparatus during the last few decades. The house appliances of today, for example, are little better than they were 50 years ago. A house of today is still almost as ill-ventilated, ing wonder with mouths agape. badly heated by wasteful fires, clumsily arranged and furnished as the house of 1858. Houses a couple of hundred years old are still satisfactory places of residence so little have our standards risen. But the rifle or battleship of 50 years ago was beyond all comparison inferior to those we possess; in power, in speed, in convenience alike. | the eyes of the kaiser, but on the side-No one has a use now for such superannuated

Yielding to the dictates of reason and humanity, the civil government at the last moment disbanded the civil guard, which the Germans would not recognize. The soldiers and ordinary police were then intrusted with the maintenance of order.

After a day of wild panic and slumberless nights the citizens remained at their windows. Few sought their couches.

Cry "Here They .Come." The morning broke brilliantly. The city was astir early and on all lips were the words: "They are here," or

"They are coming." The "they" referred to were already outside the boundaries of the city in great force. The artillery was packed off on the road to Waterloo. Horse, foot, and sapper were packed deep on the Louvain and Tervervueren roads.

An enterprising motorist came in with the information and the crowds in the busy centers immediately became calm.

Burgomaster Gives Up. . At eleven o'clock it was reported that an officer with a half a troop of hussars bearing white flags had halt-

From noon until two o'clock the crowds waited expectantly. Shortly after two o'clock the booming of cannon and later the sound of military music conveyed to the people of Brussels the intimation that the triumph- diers. ant march of the enemy on the ancient city had begun.

On they came, preceded by a scouting party of uhlans, horse, foot, and artillery and sappers, with a siege train complete. A special feature of the procession was 100 motor cars on which quick firers were mounted. Every regiment and battery was headed by a band, horse or foot. Now came the drums and fifes; now the blare of brass and soldiers singing "Die Wacht am Rhein"

and "Deutschland uber Alles."

The business of breeding pure-bree swine, is a business by itself and f should not be undertaken by anyone who cannot keep records straight and who is not willing to invest good money for improved blood.

The most conservative course is to select the breed most popular in your vicinity and improve upon the common individuals by the use of improved breeding boars.

The idea of perfect comfort should predominate in every building that is constructed for hogs.

WHAT TO DO WITH GRAPES.

Grape juice cannot be too highly recommended as a wholesome, nutritious and attractive drink. It may be served as an invalid's drink and prove a most valuable one, or as a refreshing drink for a hot day for anybody.

Wash, drain and stem the grapes. Put them in a deep kettle, mash well with a wooden potato masher and heat slowly, adding a very little water. Cook until the grapes look much lighter in color, then drain in a jelly bag. made of three thicknesses of cheese cloth. Wring the clothes out of hot water, put into it the hot pulp two quarts at a time, and hang up to drain. When no more of the juice drops, squeeze the pulp as dry as possible, keeping the cloudy portion separate. To a quart of the juice add a cupful of sugar or less, cook for twenty minutes, then bottle and seal the corks with wax.

Spiced Grapes.-Wash and stem the grapes, rejecting all that are not perfect. Remove the pulp by hand, dropping the pulp into a kettle and cook until the seeds may be easily separated in a sieve. To this sieved pulp add the skins, then measure. For four quarts add a half pint of good cider vinegar, three pounds of granulated ugar, one ounce of whole cloves, a half ounce of cassia buds and two ounces of stick cinnamon. Tie the spices in a cloth and put into the kettle with the vinegar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the grape mixture and boil until thick as marmalade. Bottle and seal.

Four gallons crude oil. Sixteen gallons water. One pound soap.

The soap should be dissolved in the water by heating. An emulsion is then made by adding the oil and thoroughly churning the mixture. Water in different sections differs very great ly in the way it will combine with soap. If this amount of soap does not give a good emulsion simply add more soap. Avoid oily dips in cold weather While the hogs are taking the dip thoroughly clean and then disinfect out all the juice from the pulp and measure. To each pint allow one the pens. In case of true mange the fence posts, trees, and everything against which the hogs can rub must also be disinfected. Use a strong disinfectant and plenty of it. After treatment do not put hogs back into lousy or mangy pens.

Secret Not Yet Found.

In spite of the great amount of work which has been done by scientific investigators in studying materials for combating fungous diseases and insect pests of orchard and garden, the ideal spray material has not been discovered. This is not so much from the standpoint of efficiency in the control of the pests and diseases.

GET UPPER HAND OF ORCHARD QUESTION

Georgia Peach Pickers

If trees in your orchard are more than thirty or thirty-five years old, do not expect them to take on new life. even with the best of care. Seldom does it pay to work the older trees.

Orchards located in pockets or on flat land cannot be expected to pay. Spring frosts get too good a chance at the fruit buds, or they will be winter killed.

A hillside naturally well drained is a good location for peach trees Frosts will not strike so readily as on the lower ground, but at the same time, beware of too sunny exposures or the first warm days will coax the buds to their destruction.

Peach trees develop and mature rapidly and are correspondingly shortlived. Owners of good orchards today must plant new trees for a few years

Spraying materials grow cheaper every year. The wise orchardist learns all he can on this subject and as improvements in materials and appliances go right on he is surely going to get the upper hand of the orchard question.

If the tops of your trees are nipped by excessive cold next winter, do not chop down the trees, but wait until the leaves start, prune off all the dead wood and cultivate the ground thoroughly.

Have your grape vines been allowed to grow rank? Trim them to stubs this winter. No fruit next year, but after that, with the proper care, you will have sufficiently bettered crops to pay for the one season's depriva-

Pick the apples as soon as ripe and store in a cool place immediately. Don't forget that stable manure is a good thing for the orchard. When poor fruit is produced there s a reason. Aim to find it by careful study of the trees and conditions gen-

If the hot fruit is placed in cold stor age it immediately sweats, to the detriment of the easy wiping and pack

In picking apples be careful not to pick off the spurs.

The pear tree needs little culture. Encouraging strong growth only in-duces blight. A good sod surface with slow growth is more favorable.

The grape is one of the longe lived of fruit plants. It will live and bear fruit for over a hundred years. First-class fruit in first-class shape will probably develop an inquiry for more of the same kind. When proper care is taken the life of a peach tree is from 12 to 16 years.

SIMPLE REMEDIES FOR GARDEN PESTS

Cucumber Beetles and Cabbage Worms Are Among Worst Insects to Encounter.

Simple and effective remedies for two of the most common and destructive garden pests are offered by Prof. L. M. Montgomery of the Ohio College of Agriculture. Cucumber beetles and cabbage worms are among the worst pests the gardener has to fight. The cucumber beetle is a small yellow beetle with black stripes running down its back. It causes heavy damage not only to cucumbers but to melons and other vining plants. One part paris green to 50 to 100 parts of air-slacked lime is a very effective remedy. This should be sifted over the plants in the morning when they are covered with dew, For the cabbage worm, one ounce of white hellebore dissolved in two or three gallons of water is used. This should be sprinkled over sprayed heavily on the cabbage. If some soap is added it will add to the sticking properties of the solution The hellebore may also be applied in powder form. It is a poison of vegetable origin, and its poisonous properties are lost on exposure to the air for two or three days. This makes it necessary to repeat the application on the plants every few days.

Hog Worm Remedy. A subscriber suspects that his young pigs have worms. He wishes to know a remedy. There are a number of pro-prietary remedies on the market that have given good results. A splendid remedy, which may be mixed at home and which has given excellent results under many different conditions, is five grains of calomel and six grains of santonin per 100 pounds of live weight. Give mixed in a thin slop, and be sure that each pig gets his share. Give a 30-pound pig one-third as much as a 100-pound pig. If all the worms do not seem to be removed the first time, repeat in ten days.

Permanent supports for ladders, to be erected in ground close to trees to permit fruit to be picked without endangering the tree branches, have been patented by a Californian.

periment Station.

At the Nebraska experiment station mulching gave favorable results for cabbage, tomatoes, beans, cucumbers potatoes and sweet potatoes. The yield of each of these crops was materially increased by mulching and the labor required was considerably less than in the case of cultivation

Mulched cabbage produced larger heads than cultivated cabbage, and there was less injury from rot. The Pigor of tomate plants was decreased by mulching, but the yield of fruit increased. The fruit was also cleaner and less subject to rot. Mulched cu-cumbers produced perfect fruit during dry periods when the fruit from the cultivated plants was small and im-perfect. The quality of potatoes was not hurt by mulching except in wet places. Celery is another crop often much benefited by heavy mulching.

HOW TO MEND SACKS AT THRESHING TIME

Considerable Time May Be Saved by Using Paste Made of Flour on Patches.

When you have sacks to mend at When you have sacks to mend at threshing time, do not waste your moments with needle and thread, but stir up some flour paste to make a thick paste.
