Let's face it. A federal jury trial just isn't a good place to pick up chicks. I think Samuel Vera of Lubbock realizes that by now.

Vera, a 27-year-old high school dropout, found himself on jury duty last year in Texas' biggest savingsand-loan fraud trial to date.

The trial, which had been moved to Lubbock from the Dallas area on a change of venue, charged six Dallas-area men of illegally pocketing $135 million in bogus loans from five thrifts in Texas and Ark-

So as the trial progressed, Vera started checking out the chicks. He smiled at several from his seat in the jury box. Eventually, one young woman smiled back.

He became infatuated with her from across the courtroom although he was married and had a

It turned out that she was married too, and also had a child. But he had had relationships with married women before.

They smiled, winked and flirted in the courtroom. He pursued her between court sessions. She seemed receptive. They started meeting. They kissed. They held hands. They engaged in at least one steamy session of heavy kissing and fondling.

The story is that Vera wanted sex, but the young woman put him off, then started avoiding him because (1) her husband had smelled Vera's cologne on her clothing and (Continued on Page 11)

Judge awards TRLA $201,000

US District Judge Mary Lou Robinson of Amarillo Saturday ordered five Castro County vegetable companies, 12 other area processors and officials of Deaf Smith County to pay more than $200,000 in legal fees, expenses and interest to Texas Rural Legal Aid.

The award arose from a suit which the growers filed in 1980 against the Texas Farm Workers Union, leader Jesus Moya and the TRLA in an attempt to halt a farm workers' strike and picketing in this area.

In separate rulings, two federal district judges threw out the growers' suit, then Moya and TRLA filed a counter-claim charging that the growers' legal action violated their constitutional rights to assemble peacefully and challenging the constitutionality of six Texas antipicketing statutes upon which the growers' case had been based.

Moya and TRLA won their counter-claim suit, and in the process, federal judges ruled all six of the challenged anti-picketing statutes to be unconstitutional.

The award ordered by Judge Robinson Saturday—$201,688.88—is to reimburse TRLA for the fees and expenses incurred during the eightyear process of trials and appeals stemming from the 1980 case.

The state of Texas already had been ordered to pay almost $40,000 in attorneys' fees and expenses to the legal aid agency in a 1989 settlement.

The award is the largest attorneys' fee award Texas growers have ever been required to pay in a case brought by farm workers, according to TRLA.

Castro County companies named in the ruling include Tri - Frye Brand of Easter; La Mantia, Cullum, Collier & Co., Inc. and Dimco Industries, both of Dimmitt; and Smith Potato, Inc. and H&S Produce Co., both of Hart.

Of the five county businesses affected by the decision, only three are still operating locally-Tri-Frye Brand, Smith Potato, Inc., and H&S Produce. Dimco and La Mantia, Cullum, Collier & Co., Inc. both shut down their Dimmitt operations in the 1980s as area farmers drastically cut back their vegetable

The Castro County Commissioners planned to open bids for repair and seal coating Rodeo Road in Dimmitt and First Street in Hart, but no bids were received.

County Judge Polly Simpson informed the commissioners that she had contacted five companies about the bids, but as of 9 a.m. no bids were brought in.

Simpson said the specs for the bids included tearing out the road, redoing it and seal coating it.

Residents living on First Street in Hart attended the meeting to air their views, and they don't think seal coating is the solution to the problem with the road.

Dwayne Brown, one of the First Street residents attending the meeting said he's just curious about how the commissioners plan to fix the

"I've lived on that road for 15 years, and they are never going to be able to patch the holes in that road and seal coat it where it will stay," Brown said. "That road is never going to drain correctly the way it is, it is just too low. I know you can't widen the road and seal coat it, that won't work," Brown said. "This road has very little base under it. Years and years ago, they pulled the dirt out of the barditches up to the middle and put a little caliche on top of it and put the coating on the top. It's never going to stay that Daschle is one of a handful 000 more farmers will be forced off the land under this proposal," King added. "This farm bill will spend less money over its five-year lifeabout 60 billion dollars-than this country will spend this year to clean up the greed and arrogance of those who stole from our thrift system.

"Just extending the disastrous policies of the 1985 farm bill would reduce net cash income to farmers by almost 30. This 1990 proposal is even worse. It is designed to help the wealthy multi-national grain processors and traders by keeping prices artificially low, and does not help our working men and women in rural America," King said.

"While this Farm Bill does have a number of good provisions, and while we are gratified that the dairy, sugar, peanut, wool/mohair and other provisions survived serious attack, corn growers cannot and will not support this bill," King said. "This bill destroys our income, does not raise our loan rate, does not assist our exports, and does not focus assistance to those in rural America who truly need it."

The American Corn Growers Association is a producer only organization of corn growers in 22 American corn growing states.

He will go to Southeastern Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, Mo., where he will conduct research on historic preservation.

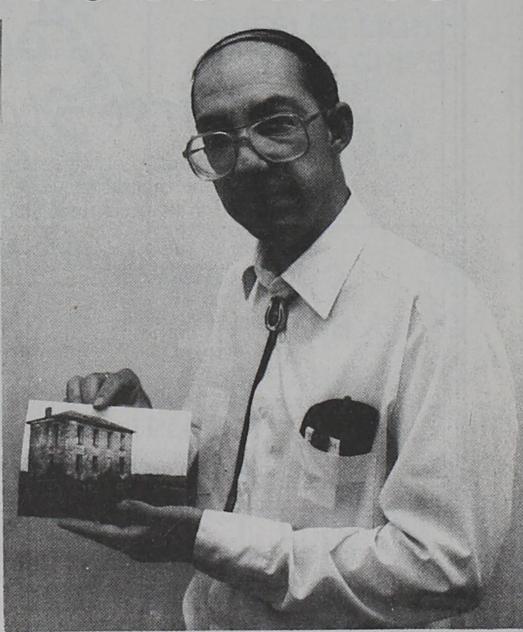

"The work will mainly be concerned with restoring historic buildings, but it also will involve work with archives," Autry said.

Through the years, Autry has become one of the most familiar figures in downtown Dimmitt as he served the public in Rhoads Memorial Library, and walked to and from work between the library and the only address he has ever had here - the Rawlings apartment building two blocks east.

When Autry came here in 1976, Rhoads Memorial Library was only three years old. But that didn't mean it was trouble-free.

"I arrived Oct. 19, 1976, during some of the very worst winter weather," he said. "It was snowing like the dickens. When the snow melted during the following week, the roof of the library started leaking like a sieve. At the same time, we lost our heat.

"Still, this was a pretty civilized place in comparison with where I had come from," he said. That was the Cocopah Indian Reservation near Yuma, Ariz., where he had established a library and museum (Continued on Page 12)

Tonight (Thursday) from 8:30 to 10, you'll be able to see one of the most unique dancing groups in all of North Texas at the Hart High School football field—the Kwahadi Indian Dancers.

The Kwahadis are older Boy Scouts from the Amarillo area who perform dances of the various Indian tribes of the Southwest. Both their dances and their costumes are authentic. They and their leaders have traveled throughout Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma through the years to learn the dances and duplicate the costuming.

The Kwahadis are in demand throughout the Southwest, and we understand they'll be going on an interstate performing tour after their appearance at Hart tonight. If you get to see their performance, you'll never forget it.

More fun is in store Friday evening, with a Fun Pet Show at 5:30 on the rear parking lot of the bank, followed by Adult and Kids Games in the street and Bingo at the fire station.

Saturday, of course, will be the biggest day of the Hart Days celebration. You can start at 9 in the morning and keep going until you're "too pooped to pucker."

Here's a wrap-up of Saturday's Hart Days schedule:

Letter

Smith invites public to attend Pct. 1 meeting

Dear Editor:

A public meeting to redo the budget for Precinct 1 will be held Friday at 3 p.m. in the basement of the courthouse in Dimmitt.

The reason we could not build more all-weather roads in 1990 was because of the budget I was forced to accept in 1989. Approximately 50% of the budget was to pay five full time employees and for their fringe benefits. These employees were to work 40 hours a week, 52 weeks a year or 2080 hours. Less 80 hours off for sick leave, 80 hours off for holidays, 80 hours off for vacation and approximately 80 hours off for bad weather, that only left approximately 1760 hours of actual work time. This is figured from the time they arrive at the county barn, less 30 minutes off for lunch, until they return to the county barn. The fringe benefits cost the county approximately $5,800 per worker per year. This is for Worker's Comp., social security longevity, health insurance and retirement benefits. We pay the men $1,352 a month in salaries or $16,224 a year plus $5800 in fringe benefits. It costs the county about $12.50 per hour on regular time and $18.75 when the men are on comp. time.

Other things to be discussed is dividing up judiciously and equitably between the precincts, putting all-weather roads to each occupied residence in the county, the county work policy, hauling improved road building material with the lowest bid and going to a variable hour work week for the county employees.

This is why in my 1990 - 91 budget I only want one full time employee and the balance, part time employees or retired workers on social security. I can set the pay scale on part time workers as an individual commissioner and not by the commissioners court. The present county policy for our full time workers only lets me use these men five days a week for eight hours a day Monday through Friday. I have to use only these men to have the improved road building material and not according to the low bid, as I want to.

In my 1990-91 budget, I have proposed to spend $200,000 on road improvement, which the other members of the Commissioners court say is unrealistic. I can't understand why we can't spend the taxpayers money to improve the roads instead of paying such a large percentage of it out on full time employees salary and fringe benefits, to drive the maintainers over the roads that will have to be redone again after every good rain. This will be an open meeting for the public.

I am asking Loyd Farris, Paul Armstrong, Preton Upshaw, F.A. Smith, Jimmy Cluck, Jack Dyer, Percy Merritt, Chris Hanes, Allen Webb, Rodney Smith, Bruce Schulte, John B. Lilley, Randy Popejoy, J.D. Myrick, Kenneth Covington, Rocky Kay, Lonnie Davis and others to speak.

-CHIROPRACTOR-

The Chiropractic Examination

When you visit a doctor of chiropractic, he'll use many of the methods used by other doctors. He'll take a case history to get a clear idea of your medical record. He'll consult with you about your health problems, and there'll be a physical examination.

If laboratory analysis or x-rays are needed, these will be performed. He will also a very careful examination of your spine. It's the attention to misalignments in your spine that makes the doctor of chiropractic different from some other health practitioners.

Misalignments in your spine can have a direct effect on the body's nervous system and the organs and tissues it serves. A total of 31 pairs of spinal nerves travel down the spine from the brain through a series of openings between the vertebrae. As these nerves leave the spine, they form a complex network that extends throughout your body.

Pressure or irritation of the nervous system may cause a disturbance in body functions, making them more susceptible disease. Through to chiropractic treatment, the narmiui pressure can be relieved so your body can function more efficiently and comfortably.

Commission releases unemployment figures

Castro County was 4.9%, according to a report from Mary Scott Nabers, Commissioner for the Texas Employment Commission.

"The good news is that over eight million Texans were working in June and that's a record for the year," said Nabers. "The bad news rate still increased."

The June employment rate was below 7% in June. 6.3 % up from 6.2% in May.

A record growth in the number of nonfarm salaried jobs was reported, also.

"That number increased by 28,-000 during the month," Nabers said.

Although the number of people working is on the increase, the number of people seeking jobs in the Texas job market is increasing faster. That is what is causing the rate to climb, according to the report.

"There is normally an upward push in June as summer jobseekers enter the labor force, so the monthly rate is not expected," said Nabers. "And, the estimated 539,100 unemployed workers is below the year ago level when the state's jobless rate was 7.0%. But, some areas of the state are suffering pretty severely with double digit unemployment rates."

Job growth was seen in trade, services and construction. Government declined as schools and colleges released workers for the sum- dessert, tea or coffee. mer months.

Metropolitan Statistical Areas sert, tea or coffee.

The June unemployment rate for (MSA) were slightly below those for May. However, four of the MSA's had current rates which were above those recorded a year

MSA's with the lowest unemployment rates were: Bryan-College Station, at 3.9%; Austin and Victoria, at 4.9%; and Dallas and is that the state's unemployment Sherman-Denison, at 5.3%. Sixteen of the Texas MSA's had rates Areas with highest June rates included: McAllen-Edinburg-Mission, at 15.7%; Brownsville-Harlingen, at 11.6%; El Paso, at 10.7%; Laredo, at 9.9%; an Beaumont-Port Arthur, with an 8% rate.

Deaf Smith County District Attorney Roland Saul and former assistants, Jerry Smith and Don Davis; and Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson were also ordered to pay a share of the award.

"It's going to hurt this areabad," said David Smith of Smith Potato, Inc. "The farmers are suffering and the workers are suffering because there aren't any jobs left." "I think it's a shame and a disgrace that the employer no longer has any rights," said Harold Smith, owner of Smith Potato, Inc. "I think it's time for the federal government to pass as many laws to protect the employer as they do the employee."

In 1980, farm workers protesting "sub-minimum wages and a lack of toilets and drinking water in the fields" walked out of Howard Gault Co.'s onion fields in Deaf Smith County, according to court documents.

The strike eventually spread to other growers and packing companies in Deaf Smith, Castro, Hale and Bailey counties.

15 vegetable companies in these four counties, along with two grower associations, filed suit against Moya, the farm workers union and TRLA on June 30, 1980, and obtained an injunction against the strike from State District Judge Wesley Gulley in Hereford.

TRLA filed a counter - suit against the growers saying they "had conspired with the district attorneys and the Deaf Smith County sheriff to violate the farm workers' First Amendment right to engage in a peaceful strike and pick-

Robinson ruled in favor of the union and TRLA.

Robinson also ruled six Texas anti-picketing statutes which the growers and officials had used constitutional.

The claim by TRLA as an organization was dismissed.

The growers and Deaf Smith County appealed the ruling in September 1985, but Judge Robinson's ruling was upheld by the US Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans on June 30, 1988.

"The growers' actions forced TRLA to spend a lot of time on this case over the last 10 years. I hope this will send a message, that if growers and officials violate the rights of farm workers and then fight to evade responsibility, they against the farm workers were un- will eventually have to pay for that obstinance," said Beardall.

Social Security in Castro County By MARY JANE SHANES

Some people think that if they delay filing an application for social security benefits they are entitled to benefits retroactively to the month of their first eligibility. That's not the case.

If you apply before reaching 65, with few exceptions, you cannot receive payments for months before you apply. If you apply after you reach 65, you may be entitled up to six months retroactive payments. This happens if you meet all the requirements for entitlement to benefits except for filing of an application.

Suppose you reach age 65 in June 1990 but you don't file an application for retirement benefits until June 1991. You can be entitled to retroactive payments back to December 1990. Let's suppose now that you reached 62 in June 1990 and don't file an application until June 1991. Benefits cannot be paid to a retired worker, a spouse or a widow or widower for months before applying if this would result in a permanent additional reduction of the benefits.

We say "if" because the retroactive payments do not always result in a permanent reduction of benefits. If your spouse is over 65 or under 65 with a child in his or her care, their benefits as your dependents are not subject to reduction, and they can receive retroactive payments and so can you.

You can receive retroactive benefits for months prior to 65 if you had excess earnings in the first year of entitlement, and these earnings can be applied to months before applying. The number of retroactive months that can be paid depends on the amount of the excess earnings and the months you worked.

Retroactive benefits can also be paid to a disabled surviving spouse or a disabled surviving divorced spouse who is entitled to retroactive benefits for any month before reaching age 60.

Also, a widower or a surviving divorced spouse who files an application in the month after the month of the worker's death may be entitled to benefits for the month of the worker's death.

Social Security is always concerned about the rights you have to retirement and survivors benefits under the program, as well as to Medicare. There are certain rules and waiting periods that insured people have to meet before Medicare is available to them. However, to permit a disabled widow or widower or disabled surviving divorced spouse to have Medicare as soon as possible (provided he or she meets all the requirements for eligibility) he or she is deemed entitled retroactively for up to 12 months, even if monthly benefits are not payable retroactively.

Bourbon Street. Not even Al Hirt or the world famous "hurricanes." I am visiting the Delta City because AFTMA is holding its annual extravaganza. The American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association meets each year to preview new products that will be introduced in 1990-91.

With nearly 2,000 booths dis-soon at your favorite tackle store. playing everything from boats to worm hooks, I am sure I missed something, but it was not for lack of walking and talking. As an avid collector of magic lures and secret potions, the AFTMA exhibition is writer has been.

The big news for 1991 is in fish finding electronics. Humminbird officially introduced Dimension 3, a three-dimensional display containing a relief map of the lake bottom, complete with where the fish are located. Expected to be available in the fall, this unit will finally help the average fisherman find concentrations of both baitfish and keeper gamefish. Only one problem—at a retail price of $600, than your fish boat.

This technology represents the way of the future. Look for other manufacturers to follow or see their sales plummet. By the way, I have an old "greenbox" fish finder by Ray Jefferson that is for sale—

It's a dirty job, but someone has cheap. I remember when it was state of the art.

Bottomline has a software pack-Why New Orleans? No, not age that reveals where the fish should be when you describe the gamefish and your type of water. It makes me wonder who is helping the fish fight off these electronic intrusions.

Dear Editor:

I wish to call your attention to our bindweed problem which is beginning to take over our county like an invasion skin cancer.

While driving along highways in our area, other parts of Texas, and adjoining areas of New Mexico, I've noted that it's unusual to drive a mile without seeing a patch of bindweed on the roadside. I see increasing numbers of adjacent fields showing the metastatic growth, which is malignant, because it will choke growth of crops on which our ecomony is dependent. Pastures which are invaded

Like a skin cancer, we can see the scourge spreading, but we can also act and control it, if we don't wait too long. It is a resistant perennial, but there are at least two herbicides which are effective in its eradication, though they may require more than one application.

The Texas Highway Dept. is aware of the problem, but they are hampered in its treatment because they aren't allowed to apply herbicides until after the roadside wildflowers have bloomed and matured seed due to the influence of "Lady Bird" Johnson on our state government many years ago. Since saving our soil is more important that pretty roadside flowers, we all ened to express our concerns to our state senators and representatives to effect a change in their policy.

It is not, however, the problem of our state government alone. Each person, family, or corporation which has the weed growing on their property must attack it, and soon, for it will not die out spontaneously. County commissioners must face the menace in their precincts, and though it will be expensive to control, each year it is postponed will greatly increase the expense as well as the likelihood of losing the battle.

Another difficult perennial weed, the silber leaf nightshade, or "whiteweed," with its lovely lavender-colored flowers, though not as invasive as the bindweed, also is becoming an increasing problem. It is found in the same areas as bindweed, and fortunately can be eliminated with the same herbicide.

Water management seminar is slated

A one-day seminar on water loss reduction and water meter application sizing will be offered in Lubbock on Aug. 15, free to managers and operators of Panhandle-area water systems utilizing groundwater from the Ogallala Aquifer.

The seminar will begin at 8 a.m. and will be held at the Sheraton Inn, 505 Avenue Q in Lubbock. It is sponsored by the Texas Rural Water Association.

"Water utility customers expect their water systems to be operated efficiently and economically. System managers attending this one-day seminar will learn how to undertake a comprehensive water audit. Using the information obtained from the audit, water utilities can implement cost-effective solutions to reduce unaccounted for water, reduce underground leakage and improve meter reading, billing and record keeping," said Larry Brown of the TRWA.

He adds that the Texas Dept. of Health has authorized seven hours of credit toward operator water licensing requirements for attendance at this seminar.

The seminar will be presented by James B. Smith, president of JBS continues to be extremely light. Borers have progressed slower than expected. This can probaby be attributed to lower temperatures over the past few weeks. Continue scouting for borers over the next few weeks, since they still have the potential of becoming a problem.

COTTON

No bollworm activity has been detected in cotton. During the next few weeks, corn will become less attractive to corn earworm (bollworm) moths and these moths will begin to lay eggs in cotton and sorghum. Cotton is well-fruited in many fields, yet will need to accumulate more heat units over the next several weeks.

SORGHUM

Some area sorghum is heading out and flowering. Greenbugs and mites continue to be the main pests appearing at the present time. As sorghum begins to bloom, scouters should watch for sorghum midge to appear.

WEEDS

Now that we are under less heat stress, problem weeds can be controlled on fallow or ground which will be planted to wheat this fall.

More about

Public librarian

Autry himself is of Indian descent, and that's how he had come to be in Arizona.

He grew up in Norman, Okla., and attended Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, "intending to go into speech and drama, but jobs were scarce in that field. Then I went to the University of Arizona to study library science, primarily because they offered a stipend for me to study at the Indian Graduate Library Institute there. I qualified for it because I'm about one-eighth Creck."

"(I'm officially one-eighth. Actually, I'm a little more than that, but my situation is about the same as Will Rogers explained his: 'I don't know enough math to know how much Indian I am.')" he added.

After earning his master's degree in library science and working on the Cocopah project, Autry came here to accept his first job as a public librarian.

Autry has strong ties to his Oklahoma home country and to the Indian culture there. In his spare time he has kept "a lot of irons in of library." the fire working on Oklahoma history and helping people with their family history research."

Two years ago he bought 70 acres of grassland with a house near Wetumka, which has been in his family for many years. And one of his historic-preservation projects in his new role at Southeastern Missouri State will involve an old building at the juncture of Wewoka Creek and the North Canadian River in southeastern Oklahoma. It's the only remaining building of the Wetumka Boarding School.

"The Baptists started the boarding school there in the 1850s, and my ancestors worked there," he explained. "Later the Creek Indians bought it and renamed it, and in 1885 they built this two-story stone building for a school hospital. Now it's all that's left of the school. I've taken it on as a personal project."

Although it may be a big switch, going from public librarian to historical preservationist, Autry quipped, "I'm just dropping what I'm doing here and going off and doing this thing that I want to do. It's something called temporary insanity, which sometimes hits guys about about the age of 40."

Autry guided Rhoads Memorial Library into the computer age through the Harrington Library Consortium, an association of Panhandle-area libraries.

"This consortium is the very first multi-level library consortium," he said proudly. "It includes public, university, public school and special libraries. And our computerized library cards are the first universal-use cards anywhere — you can use them anywhere, in any kind

That arrangement helps the local library to quickly locate every book in every library in the region, and to make it available to the local library patron.

But Autry said his proudest accomplishment here was getting the library's funding base changed. When he came here, the library was funded mainly by federal Revenue Sharing money-which played out several years ago. Now it's permanently funded through the county and city budgets.

Police Calls

On Monday, police were notified about a fight on W. Bedford. When officers arrived, the suspect had already left the scene. According to police reports, the suspect broked into the residence of the victim and assaulted the victim's mother. The victim wanted to file charges and the police officer told her to come in the morining to give a statement.

Later that evening, police were called back to the residence. The victim told police that the suspect had held them hostage. The victim and her mother were scared the suspect would return, so an officer stayed with them. The other officer went to look for the suspect. According to police reports, charges are pending with the district attor-

Kerry Kleman, owner of the Sweet Shop in Dimmitt, reported to police last Saturday that he was in the back of the store baking, when someone broke a window. The broken glass ruined four dozen donuts, according to police reports. This case is still under investigation.

According to police reports, a disturbance was reported on N.E. 7th Street on July 24. When police arrived to the scene, a 22-year-old Dimmitt man began using foul language at the officer. Then a 38year-old woman came towards the officer and began yelling at the officer. She was then placed under arrest for disorderly conduct, according to police. The first man was also placed under arrest for disorderly conduct. While trying to place the suspect under arrest, he tried to run away. The suspect refused to let the police put the handcuffs on him. The suspect was then charged with resisting arrest.

Another man at the scene was placed under arrest for public intoxication.

Police found a pickup parked at the city park. The officer noticed that the radio was missing, so he had the dispatcher run the license plate number to find the owner. The owner, Richard Jackson, was notified and identified the vehicle. According to police reports, the case is still under investigation.

An 18 - year - old Dimmitt man was arrested for disorderly conduct last Saturday. He was shouting profanities and arguing with his wife and sister-in-law in the parking lot of the courthouse. When a police officer asked him to stop with the obscene language, he refused to do

On July 24, the sheriff's dept. arrested an 18 - year - old Dimmitt man for bringing a contaband into a penal institute with intent to facilitate an escape.

According to police reports, three people were arrested for public intoxication. Two people were charged with driving while intoxicated.

During his years here, Autry also started a literacy program and later worked with the Dimmitt Literacy Association, was active in the United Lions Club and the Civil Air Patrol, and worked with the Boy Scouts.

He also is a Tejas Story Teller. That's an association of people who preserve Texas history and folklore through story-telling to the next generation.

Autry has some good memories -and some wacky ones-of his years as the public librarian here.

"There was the time when the kids in the Summer Reading Program pushed my car out into the street and stopped traffic," he said. "They were mad because I wouldn't reward them with Cokes for something they were reading.

"There was the time when I was showing films one Friday, and we had some candy corn that a man had donated, which I had set aside to give to the kids after the films. But they found it beforehand, and learned that a candy corn kernel makes a very good projectile. There was a Book Club meeting at the same time, and the Book Club ladies were coming in the door at the same time as these projectiles were flying through the air. Fortunately, none of them got hit.

"I bought a book of limericks once for the children to use, and when it came in I found out it wasn't intended for children at all! And I call myself a librarian—how about that?

"And I'll never forget Louis Allen, who worked for the library some time back under the Green Thumb program. When he would get tired of having kids around, he'd tell them that they were throwing dollar bills off the top of the bank. You'd be surprised how many of those kids would clear out and head for the bank."

Although Tuesday was his final day on the job here, he said he'll "be around about two more weeks, off and on" while making his move to Missouri.

"When I first came here, I said publicly that I thought Dimmitt was a nice friendly little town," he said. "And I still feel that way about it."

Dimmitt. Jill's children are 11-year-old Summer, who will be in the sixth grade next year, and nine-year-old Cassie, who will be in the fourth grade.

Jill first became an LVN through the school at the hospital in 1983. She continued her education until she became an RN with a degree from West Texas State University in 1989. She likes to work in her yard or read when not at the hospital. She says she loves to shop.

Jill says that the main bad changes since she started in 1983 are fewer patients in the hospital but a lot more paperwork. The good changes are that we have better equipment, better electronic monitoring devices, and better trained nurses because of the new emphasis on continuing education.

Jill's job as Quality Assurance Co-ordinator gets her actively involved with every department as we seek to constantly monitor and improve the quality of the care given to patients. Jill is a quality person and employee and most certainly deserves the honor of being Employee of the Month.
