Standardizing Gas Safety.

The work begun some months ago in connection with a national gas safety code has made good progress, and the United States bureau of standards is now receiving the co-operation of several engineering societies which have appointed representatives for the purpose. This gas safety code will relate to both the life and fire hazard and hence will cover the ground which, in the case of corresponding work in the electrical field, is covered by two codes-the underwriters' fire code and the national electrical safety code, which is being prepared by the bureau.

TREAT POTATOES FOR SCAB

Disease Cannot Be Prevented From Spreading If Infected Seed Is Used -Treatment is Simple.

While it is true that potato scab cannot be completely controlled by treatment of the seed, it is equally true that the disease cannot be prevented from spreading if infected seed is pair is being matched up, but if much | planted.

Potato scab remains in the soil as well as on the potatoes and it is therefore necessary to practice crop rotation in addition to treating the seed. It is seldom safe to grow potatoes upon the same soil for more than two years in succession and in case scab is evident, it is unwise to plant even the second crop, if other land is available.

The treatment of seed is so simple and inexpensive that all seed potatoes should be treated. Place one pint of formalin in 30 gallons of water which makes sufficient material to treat about twenty bushels of potatoes. Inmerse the potatoes in the solution for The team is so unlike in strength and about two hours, then remove them venient method is to place about a bushel of potatoes in a sack and suspend the sack in a barrel. LIMESTONE TO CORRECT SOIL

Some Experts Have Especially Fa vored It Because of Its Lower First Cost-Lasts for Years.

Pulverized limestone has recently been much recommended and some experts have especially favored it because of its lower first cost. Although it is sold at a relatively low cost a ton farmers should study its availability in connection with their own specific soil conditions and always remember that the results from its use cannot be expected promptly.

Limestone is carbonate of lime and ft will require twice as much an acre to furnish as much actual lime as is contained in burned lime.

Where Mixed Types of Live Stock Are Kept General-Purpose Woven-Wire Fabric Is Needed.

The best kind of wire fencing to erect depends on the purpose for which the fence is used. On a farm where mixed types of live stock are kept, a general-purpose woven-wire fabric is needed. If only cattle and horses are to be pastured, a coarser and less expensive woven fence can When fencing is needed to nclose extensive pastures where only cattle or horses are to be kept the excessive cost of a woven-wire fence would not make it desirable, for losses good coat of manure early in the to stock by injury on barbed wire spring, then harrow and cultivate be- would not be large enough to countween the rows. RAISING TURKEYS IS MOST PROFITABLE

Breeding Flock of Bronze Turkeys on Range

(Prepared by the United States Departiculation or from under the chicken ment of Agriculture.) hens and allowed to hatch the poults For those who are favorably situthemselves, or at night a newly ated for raising turkeys, a more profitable side line can hardly be found Given plenty of range where the turkeys can find grasshoppers and other insects, green vegetation, the seeds of weeds and grasses, waste grain, acorns and nuts of various kinds, the cost of raising them is very small and the profits large. Grain and stock farms are particularly well adapted to turkey raising, and it is on such farms that most of the turkeys are found. Little has ever been done in the way of raising turkeys in confinement, and where it has been tried the results have been discouraging. Plenty of range is essential to success in turkey raising. Breeding. In selecting turkeys for breeding, tho most important factors to be considered are vigor, size, shape, bone, early maturity and color of plumage. The body should be deep and wide, the back broad, and the breast round and full. The head should be of good size and of a clean, healthy appearance. A strong, well-made skeleton is shown by thick, sturdy shanks and straight, strong toes. It should be the aim of every turkey raiser to have a flock of purebred turkeys, even though they are sold at market prices. The male at the head of the flock should by all means be a purebred of the best type obtainable. The male is one-half the entire flock, and by continually select ing the best females of a similar type and mating these with a purebred male, one can soon have a flock of uniformly large, early maturing, strongboned, long and deep-bodied turkeys of the same color.

Fifteen turkey hens can safely be mated to a vigorous tom. If 25 or 30 hens are kept, two toms should not be allowed to run with them at the same time, but one should be confined one day and the other the next. When two toms are allowed to run together hatched poult can be slipped under each turkey hen that is to be given a brood of poults and by morning she will be glad to take them.

Brooding. If the weather is warm and dry no shelter is required, as the poults do better in the open. Should it be rainy, however, they need to be protected, for nothing is more injurious than for them to become wet and chilled. The most satisfactory plan is to confine the mother turkey hen to a coop and allow the poults to run in and out whenever rain does not prevent. This coop should be placed in a field where they can run out and find grasshop pers, green vegetation and other feed The coop should be moved to fresh ground every day.

Improper feeding, combined with close confinement, has been the cause of many failures in turkey raising Given free range on the average farm the poults can easily pick up their owr living, and one light feed a day for the purpose of inducing them to come in at night is sufficient. If the mother her is confined to a coop and the poults al lowed to run in and out, three times s day is often enough to feed and very little should be given at a time. The poults should always be ready to eat; if given all they will clean up several times a day, indigestion will be the result. If there is little or no feed outside the coop for the poults to pick up then they should be fed about five times a day, feeding only a small quan tity at a time. A good feed for the first few days is stale bread soaked in milk and squeezed dry. Corn bread crumbs and clabbered milk or cottage cheese is also quite often fed and with excellent results. Green feed and grit should be on hand at all times. As the poults grow older, the ration should gradually be changed to grain.

PROPER EGGS FOR HATCHING

Those From Old Hens Are Preferred to Ones Secured From Pullets-Have Them Uniform.

First of all, eggs for hatching should be from strong, healthy hens, says a writer in an exchange. A hen is not capable of producing a chick that will develop into a bird stronger than she herself was at the time the egg was laid. The eggs chosen should average in size, neither too large nor too small. I like for them to average about 24 ounces to the dozen. Eggs from old hens are usually to be preferred to those from pullets. When beginning to lay, and for a time afterward. pullets lay eggs that are under the average in size. When the eggs be come normal in size, it is usually safe to use them for incubation, especially during the mating season, they fight in the case of birds of the smaller badly and the stronger does practically breeds. The eggs chosen should be uniform in size, shape and color.

Eggs should not be older than ten days before they are placed in the in-

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Dr. Price's, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?'

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

There is no alum nor phosphate in Bertram. He slumped heavily into a chair, and scowled at Average Jones' well-littered desk, whereon he had just tossed a sheet of paper.

"A fake," he reiterated. "I've spent a night of pseudo-intellectual riot and ruin over ft."

"You would have it." returned Average Jones with a smile. "And I seem to recall a lofty intimation on your part that there never was a cipher so tough but you could rope and tie in record time."

"Cipher, yes," returned the other bitterly. "That thing isn't a cipher. It's an alphabetical riot. Maybe," he added hopefully, "there was some mistake in my copy."

"Look for yourself," said Average Jones, handing him the original.

It was a singular document, this problem in letters which had come to light up the gloom of a November day for Average Jones; a stiffish sheet of paper, ornamented on one side with color prints of alluring "spinners," and on the other inscribed with an appeal, haven't the slightest notion in the in print. Its original vehicle was an envelope, bearing a one-cent stamp, and addressed in typewriting:

Mr. William H. Robinson, The Caronia. Broadway and Evenside Ave.,

New York City. The advertisement on the reverse of the sheet ran as follows:

ANGLERS-WHEN YOU ARE LOOK ing for "Baits That Catch Fish," do you see these spinners in the store where you buy tackle? You will find here twelve balts, every one of which has a record and has literally caught tons of fish We call them "The 12 Surety Baits." Three days later Average Jones entered the Cosmic club, with that twinkling upturn of the mouth corners which, with him, indicated satisfactory accomplishment.

Need of the Hour. It is because the organization of national life is so eminently important, because its absence is one of the main sources of our peril, that we should be interested primarily in the development of a national consciousness and a discipline, which are good for peace, and which can be forwarded now by the peril of war if statesmen of vision. can be found to give the movement leadership. Any reaction of opinion which tends to retard or frustrate that development is a national peril. The lack of just that kind of leadership today is conspicuous. The time is ripe for the development of a discipline adapted to and expressive of the philosophhy of democracy for a definite and concrete program. Instead of such statesmanship, we have nothing as yet which is constructive, unless a propaganda for large expenditures on purely military and naval matters deserves the name.—George-W. Alger, in the Atlantic.

AULT IN CITY PLANNING

andardization of Streets Can Be Car ried to Excess, as California Journallet Points Out.

One of the greatest follies practiced modern city-building, particularly where the topography is broken in haracter, lies in standardization of reets, more especially regarding the width, says the Los Angeles Times. The writer lives on a "cross street," that is, one crossing at right angles a main thoroughfare - Avenue Sixtyfour—that carries at least several hundred times as much traffic as the one first noted, yet the widths of the two are the same. The one is three blocks long, "blind" at each end, havng no possibility of a direct outlet at either extremity. The other is the main highway from Los Angeles to Pasadena by way of Colorado street, and to Eagle Rock by the same "feed-

There is no question but a greater width is needed on Avenue Sixty-four, as is the case with scores of streets similiarly situated. It is equally certain that the crossing streets are twice as wide as need be. The miserable parkways are but 42 inches wide, an area so restricted that good street tree growth is impossible. Every property owner with whom the writer has talked on the subject would be pleased to have several feet on each side added to the parkway, yet majority does not rule, even in Los Angeles. No traffic is seen on such streets except the daily routine of the milkman, baker and vegetable peddler. Yet the width is the same as that of the one great highway running through the district.

The case cited is used merely because the writer has intimate personal acquaintance with it, having resided on this specific street for ten years. No personal grievance inspired this article, for the residents on the street have never sought to have it changed. All concede a widening of parkings, with a correspondingly narrower driveway, would make a more beautiful street, give it a more pleasant aspect, allow of fine parkway gardening, etc. But did they know that when the street is to be paved the cost of the useless strips of width in paving would pay for the change and new curbs, they might petition the proper officials to make such change. As all streets are of the same width, and ning and platting of such districts may safely be turned over to our children. And some of the latter would be better than their parents.

Economy in Fireproof Qualities. While fireproof qualities and permanence of materials are items apparently increasing the cost of the new house, the home-builder will find in the end that economy lies in these qualities; and applying the old adage of the chain, his house will be as lasting as its weakest part.

Hence the ratio between the life of different materials should be considered and permanence in the walls of a building should be duplicated in its foundations and roof. As for instance: a house of brick to be consistently permanent, requires concrete or stone foundation, and a slate roof.

The depreciation of a house of this type is said to be about 1 per cent a year, reckoning its life to be 100 years. But the permanency of materials is not restricted to brick alone, and that frame houses can be constructed to last 100 years, though not immune of course from the accident of fire, is typified in the numerous frame houses of historical interest standing in a state of good preservation throughout the country.

Among these are the old Cushing house at Higham, Mass., built in the early part of the eighteenth century; the Wadsworth house in Cambridge, built in 1728, and the Fairbanks house in Dedham, probably the oldest house in America, built about 1636.

White pine was used extensively in these houses, which fact is testimony to the lasting qualities of that wood.

How to Keep a City Clean. To make a city cleaner and neater and to substitute beauty for ugliness is to enhance the value of both public and private property. As to public property, this work can be easily controlled. But the city authorities can be expected to act only on the insistence of the general public. Unfortunately, however, no matter how careful a city may be about structures erected on public property, the general effect of street and open places may be spoiled by ugliness in surrounding structures and private property. Billboards, signs, ugly, garish or unkempt buildings, buildings out of repair, untidy yards and vacant lotsall may counteract whatever the city may do to make public property attractive. The only way to keep the city neat and to make it look as though it were really self-respecting is for all citizens to co-operate in insisting on private as well as public neatness and attention to good design. Cutting English Trees. England has 125,000 acres of crown forests, containing magnificent trees untouched by the woodman's ax. Now they are to go. England needs the lumber and has appealed to Canada to provide a Lattalion of axmen. Need less to say, Canada has responded gladly. There is now organizing a battalion of 1,500 experienced bushmen, who will wear the khaki, be subject to military direction and wield their axes on the ancestral oaks of the motherland. Soon the music of their blows will be heard ringing through the great New forest of Hampshire and Dean forest, in Gloucestershire. England must have the wood, but it is sad to think of these glorious old trees 'isappearing. Many of the woodsmen will come from Quebec, where experts in the craft abound.
