Another One

Last Monday evening J. F. Vaughan, of Midway community, worked over the head of Hermann Pieper, a native of Germany, in a manner that was thoroughly effective. There are two of the Piepers and they have a considerable bunch of cattle and not much grass. They have been in the habit of tying down the fence between their place and the pasture of Mr. Vaughan and letting their stock into his place to eat up his grass. Mr. Vaughan has notified them several times that this must stop but they paid no attention to him. Monday evening he found a big bunch of stuff in his pasture and took the matter up with the Piepers. They informed him that if there was any law to make them pay for the depredations of their stock they would pay, but otherwise not. The argument ended with Hermann Pieper coming away with his head looking like it had been run through a sausage mill. He came to town and instituted a suit in replevin to recover his stock. When the sheriff reached the place where the cattle were supposed to have been confined he found that the other Pieper had taken the fence down and driven the stock home and there was nothing to replevin. The men are subjects of Germany, the nation that is today, doing its utmost to annihilate the American soldiers at the front, perpetrating every outrage that is known to savagery or could be devised by demoniacal agency. They have quite a bunch of cattle, Hermann rendering his taxable property at $11,510.00 and he owes $1,400. Up to the time of the little argument neither had bought any bonds or Thrift stamps, neither had they contributed anything to the Red Cross. Mr. Vaughan has two boys in the American army and he is not disposed to permit any enemy subjects to pull any rough stuff on him and get by with it. A few more citizens in Roosevelt county possessed with the energy and determination of Mr. Vaughan and pro-Germanism and sedition would have a hard row to hoe.

Lieutenant Gregory Here

Last Monday night Lieutenant Gregory, of Albuquerque, spoke in the Cozy to an audience that might have been larger without discomfort. His address was made in the interest of food conservation and it was direct and to the point. He told of the troubles of the administration in the matter of conserving those food stuffs that were most needed by the armies of the allies and he also drew a striking picture of the character of those who were endeavoring to get by and smuggle those things essential to the feeding of our soldiers. He said that "They were so dammed low down that a cur dog would look like a thoroughbred in comparison." He also told of the deprivations suffered by those who are fighting our fight and made a strong appeal to all to agree to not buy any more wheat flour until after the termination of the war. Mr. Gregory is practicing what he preaches and paying much of his own expenses notwithstanding the fact that he might have all of them paid by government.

Tar and Feathers

The good people of Clovis administered a good coat of tar and feathers to one, T. Smith, of Melsee, for failure to buy Liberty Bonds and for utterances that showed that he was pro-German in his convictions. After the new suit was snugly fitted to his person he was placed in his own automobile and taken through the principal street of the town. This occurred Monday evening at about the time that Mr. Vaughan was making a christian out of another of the same kidney. The convicts at the state penitentiary, not to be outdone by people of Clovis, Tuesday administered a dose of the same medicine to an officer of the American army charged with disloyalty and who had been put in the state penitentiary pending his trial in the federal court. An investigation should be made and those responsible for this show of patriotism by the convicts given an unconditional pardon. It is a sad travesty on the national pride of some individuals that persons confined in penal institutions and put to hard labor for their crimes against society, should still have a warmer place in their hearts for their flag and their country than some who are on the outside. How long will we permit free citizens to do less for their country than convicts, and what must be their opinion of themselves? Surly the presence of these slackers in the state penal institution would have a tendency to corrupt the morals of the inmates.

Mrs. Miller returned from a visit to Magdalena, this week. She has been visiting her son, Andrew.

J. S. Long

Professor J. S. Long consented to make the canvas for representative only after much persuasion. He is a man well known in this and neighboring counties. He is honest and efficient. He believes that were he a member of the legislature he would be able to put through measures for better and more practical education for the children of the Sunshine state. Almost his whole life has been devoted to educational matters and he has always made good in his profession. For three years he was superintendent of the Portales schools and during his administration our schools for the first time in the history of the town were put on the map. His interests are in New Mexico, his home is in New Mexico and he hopes that the state of his adoption will not long occupy a back seat in matters educational, as well as in other matters. He hopes to meet the voters personally, but to those whom he may not see, he assures them that he is a Democrat; that he is a native of the greatest state of Texas, and that if nominated as representative from this district, that he will strive earnestly and diligently in the interests of the state as a whole and his particular constituency to the end that laws looking to the betterment of all and the general uplift will be enacted into statute. He asks for your suffrage.

Sam J. Stinnett

For re-election county superintendent of schools. I am now serving my first term, having served the people of the county for a little over a year. My record is before you and if my work has been satisfactory to you, I ask for your support and influence for another term.

I am making the race upon my merits. I appreciate the honor which the people conferred upon me two years ago by electing me to this important position I now hold.

In the discharge of my duties, I have been guided by the law and what I thought was right, have put forth my best efforts to make you an efficient, fair and impartial officer, ever looking to the best interests of the children, and have worked for a good school in each community.

We are living in a day when school conditions are readjusting themselves, especially in this new country. It is up to us to meet those new conditions in a cooperative spirit and build schools wherein all the children may be trained into good citizenship. The school laws of our new progressive state make it possible for all the children to receive a practical education. Efficiency is demanded in all lines of work and will be demanded more so in the future. I am with you in building the best schools possible that our circumstances will permit.

Being so busy at this time with my duties, it will be impossible to see each voter personally, but will appreciate your considerations and support just the same.

Respectfully yours,

Sam J. Stinnett.

Mayor E. B. Hawkins, Trustees Jack Wilcox and Inda Humphrey, Clerk W. H. Brsley and Engineer Arthur Bowers made a trip to Socorro this week to inspect the Fairbanks-Morse low grade oil engines in operation at that place. Their report was favorable and the town board contracted for two units, one of seventy-five horse power and one of a hundred, both direct connected. Shipment on the smaller unit to be made on June 1st.

Somewhere in France

My Dear Sister—I received the book you sent me and many thanks, it sure is a good story. Well Ora I'm well and having the time of my life. I got a box of cigarets from Charlie yesterday. I sure don't like this French tobacco. How is every thing in New Mexico, and how are you and Bob. I'm sure coming to see you after we whip the Dutch. Well Ora I would like to tell you about the places I have been but we are not allowed to write very much will tell you all about my travels when I get back home. Well Ora let me here from you often, thanking you again for the book will close. With Love, Private Frank G. Powell.

That "Over the Top" Spirit

It doesn't matter whether you are with Pershing somewhere in France, on a farm or ranch, clerking in a store, running a locomotive or serving as an officer you that need famous over the top spirit.

You need it in helping the Red Cross, in buying Liberty Bonds, Baby Bonds and Thrift Stamps, conserving food, raising your war garden and in everything you do and say.

The Red Cross work in Roosevelt county is rapidly getting the spirit and we will soon be over the top.

The traveling auditor has been with us and audited the books and found them correct, and complimented very highly the work of this chapter.

We hope that every auxiliary branch will continue the great work for it is the second battle line.

The best way for each of us to get the famous spirit is to go whole heartedly and unselfishly into work of making America more efficient in every line for it is out of the soil of unselfishness that the conquering over the top spirit springs. Let us then as real Americans, with concentrated thoughts and unselfish devotion do our bit in the great world conflict against Prussian autocracy. Make the big question, "how can I best serve."

Cordially,

J. S. Long,

Chairman Roosevelt county chapter Red Cross.

Portales Springs

There will be a box supper at the Luckeye school house, district 13, located eight and a half miles south of Portales, and one mile due south of Portales Springs; on Friday night, April 26. Every body from Portales and community are cordially invited to come, and especially the candidates, with well filled boxes and better filled pockets. We are giving this to raise money for the Junior Red Cross division of this neighborhood. The Junior Red Cross which was recently organized here, is working earnestly. This neighborhood has bought $801.00 worth of Bonds and Thrift Stamps. We are doing our best to help win the war.

Respectfully,

S. A. Crabb.

"Oh, I've been napping there in that chair, where I could keep one eye on you. I'm terribly selfish; I can't bear to lose one minute." After a while she said: "I've made a discovery. Father O'Malley snores dreadfully! Juanito never heard anything like it, and it frightened him nearly to death. He says the father must be a very fierce man to growl so loudly. He says, too, that he likes me much better than his mother."

It seemed to Dave that the bliss of this awakening and the sweet intimacy of this one moment more rewarded him for all he had gone through.

"I've been busy, too," she was saying. "I sent Juan to the village to learn the news, and it's not very nice. It's good we stopped here. He says Neuvo Pueblo has been destroyed, and the federal forces are all moving south, away from the border. So our troubles aren't over yet. We must reach the river tonight."

"Yes, by all means."
"Juan is going with us as guide."
"You arranged everything while I snoozed, eh? I'm ashamed of myself." Alaire nodded, then pretended to frown darkly. "You ought to be," she told him.

"My wife!" He laid his lips against her hair.
They were standing beside the window, speechless, oblivious to all except their great love, when Dolores entered to tell them that supper was ready and that the horses were saddled.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Dawn.

Juan Garcia proved to be a good guide, and he saved the refugees many miles on their road to the Rio Grande. But every farm and every village was a menace, and at first they were forced to make numerous detours. As the night grew older, however, they rode a straighter course, urging their horses to the limit, hoping against hope to reach the border before daylight overtook them. This they might have done had it not been for Father O'Malley and Dolores, who were unused to the saddle and unable to maintain the pace Juan set for them.

About midnight the party stopped on the crest of a flinty ridge to give their horses breath and to estimate their progress. The night was fine and clear; outlined against the sky were the stalks of countless sotol-plants standing slim and bare, like the upright lances of an army at rest; ahead the road meandered across a mesa, covered with grama grass and black, formless blots of shrubbery.

Father O'Malley groaned and shifted his weight. "Juan tells me we'll never reach Romero by morning, at this rate," he said; and Dave was forced to agree. "I think you and he and Alaire had better go on and leave Dolores and me to follow as best we can."

Dolores plaintively seconded this suggestion. "I would rather be burned at the stake than suffer these agonies," she confessed. "My bones are broken. The devil is in this horse." She began to weep softly. "Go, senora. Save yourself! It is my accursed fat stomach that hinders me. Tell Benito that I perished breathing his name, and see to it, when he remarries, that he retains none of my treasures."

Alaire reassured her by saying: "We won't leave you. Be brave and make the best of it."

"Yes, grit your teeth and hold on," Dave echoed. "We'll manage to make it somehow."

But progress was far slower than it should have been, and the elder woman continued to lag behind, voicing her distress in groans and lamentations. The priest, who was made of sterner stuff, did his best to bear his tortures cheerfully.

In spite of their efforts the first rosy herald of dawn discovered them still a long way from the river and just entering a more thickly settled country. Daylight came swiftly, and Juan finally gave them warning.

"We can't go on; the danger is too great," he told them. "If the soldiers are still in Romero, what then?"

"Have you no friends hereabouts who would take us in?" Dave inquired. The Mexican shook his head.

Dave considered for a moment. "You must hide here," he told his companions, "while I ride on to Romero and see what can be done. I suspect Benito's troops have left, and in that case everything will be all right."

"Suppose they haven't?" Alaire inquired. "All night she had been in the worst moods, and had steadily refused to take their perils seriously. Now her smile chased the frown from her husband's face.

"Well, perhaps I'll have breakfast with them," he laughed.

"Silly. I won't let you go," she told him, firmly; and, reading the expression in her face, he felt a dizzy wonder. "We'll find a nice secluded spot; then we'll sit down and wait for night to come. We'll pretend we're having a picnic."

Dolores sighed at the suggestion. "That would be heaven, but there can be no sitting down for me."

Garcia, who had been standing in his stirrups scanning the long, flat road ahead, spoke sharply: "Caramba! Here come those very soldiers now! See!"

Far away, but evidently approaching at a smart gait, was a body of mounted men. After one look at them Dave cried:

"Into the brush, quick!" He hurried his companions ahead of him, and when they had gone perhaps a hundred yards from the road he took Juan's repeater, saying: "Ride in a little way farther and wait. I'm going back. If you hear me shoot, break for the river. Ride hard and keep under cover as much as possible." Before they could remonstrate he had wheeled Montrosa and was gone.

This was luck, he told himself. Ten miles more and they would have been safe, for the Rio Grande is not a difficult river either to ford or to swim. He dismounted and made his way on foot to a point where he could command a view, but he had barely established himself when he found Alaire at his side.

"Go back," he told her. But she would not, and so they waited together.

There were perhaps a dozen men in the approaching squad, and Dave saw that they were heavily accoutred. They rode fast, too, and at their head galloped a large man under a wide-brimmed felt hat. It soon became evident that the soldiers were not uniformed. Therefore, Dave reasoned, they were not federals, but more probably some rebel scouting band from the south, and yet— He rubbed his eyes and stared again.

He Took Her Hand in His and They Rode on Silently, a Song in the Heart of Each of Them.

Dave pressed forward eagerly, incredulously; the next instant he had broken cover with a shout. Alaire was at his side, clapping her hands and laughing with excitement.

The cavalcade halted; the big man tumbled from his saddle and came straddling through the high grass, waving his hat and yelling.

"Blaze! You old scoundrel!" Dave cried, and seized one of the ranchman's palms while Alaire shook the other.

"Say! We're right glad to see you all," Jones exclaimed. "We reckoned you might be havin' a sort of unpleasantness with Longorio, so we organized up and came to get you."

The other horsemen were crowding close now, and their greetings were noisy. There were the two Guzman boys, Benito Gonzales, Phil Strange, and a number of Jonesville's younger and more adventurous citizens.

In the midst of the tumult Benito inquired for his wife, and Dave relieved his anxiety by calling Dolores and Father O'Malley. Then, in answer to the questions showered upon him, he swiftly sketched the story of Alaire's rescue and their flight from La Feria.

When he had finished Blaise Jones drew a deep breath. "We're mighty glad you got out safe, but you've kicked the legs from under one of my pet ambitions. I sure had planned to nail Longorio's hide on my barn door. Yes, and you've taken the bread out of the mouths of the space writers and sob sisters from here to Hudson's bay. Miz Austin, your picture's in every newspaper in the country, and believe me, it's the worst atrocity of the war."

"War!" Father O'Malley had joined the group now, and he asked, "Has war been declared?"

"Not yet, but we've got hopes." To Alaire Blaise explained: "Ellsworth's in Washington, wavin' the Stars and Stripes and singin' battle hymns, but I reckon the government figures that the original of these newspaper pictures would be safe anywhere. Well, we've got our own ideas in Jonesville, so some of us assembled ourselves and declared war on our own hook. These gentlemen"—Blaise waved his hand proudly at his neighbors—"constitute the Jonesville Guards, the finest body of American men that has invaded Mexican soil since me and Dave went after Ricardo Guzman's remains. Blamed if I ain't sorry you sidetracked our expedition."

It was evident, from the words of the others, that the Jonesville Guards were indeed quite as heedless of international complications as was their commander. One and all were highly incensed at Longorio's perfidy, and had Alaire suggested such a thing, it was patent that they would have ridden on La Feria and exacted a reckoning from him.

Such proof of friendship affected her deeply, and it was not until they were all under way back toward Romero that she felt she had made her appreciation fully known. When she reflected that these men were some of the very neighbors whom she had shunned and slighted, and whose honest interest she had so habitually misconstrued all these years, it seemed very strange that they should feel the least concern over her. It gave her a new appreciation of their chivalry and their worth; it filled her with a humble desire to know them better and to strengthen herself in their regard. Then, too, the esteem in which they held Dave—her husband—gratified her intensely. It made no more difference to them than to her that he was a poor man, a man without authority or position; they evidently saw and loved in him the qualities which she saw and loved. And that was as it should be.

They were gentle and considerate men, too, as she discovered when they told her, bit by bit, what had happened during her absence. She learned, much to her relief, that Ed's funeral had been held, and that all the distressing details of the inquiry had been attended to. Jose Sanchez, it appeared, had confessed freely. Although her new friends made plain their indignation at the manner of Ed's taking away, they likewise let her know that they considered his death only a slight loss, either to her or to the community. Not one of them pretended it was anything except a blessing.

THIS SEAL HAD CURIOSITY

Mammal Got Into Trouble Through Nosing Around Too Promiscuously Among Strangers.

Seals are very plentiful among the Orkneys, and are sometimes caught when asleep on the skerries. They are attracted by musical sounds, and at one time a considerable number were said to make their appearance in the bay of Hoy when the bell of the parish church close by was rung.

Seals are usually much on their guard against the approach of men, but when unmolested frequently come close to boats or people ashore. An instance of this occurred recently off Skralill bay, in Sandwick, where some yaws were led at haddock fishing, a writer in the Edinburgh Scotsman says.

A seal made its appearance, and showed great curiosity as to what was going on. It swam repeatedly between two boats a short distance apart, and ultimately devoted its attention to one of them, diving under the boat and coming up first on one side and then on the other. At last it made a spring at the water on a hand line. It failed to get a proper hold, but the fish was thrown back to afford another chance, which the seal quickly seized. It kept so near that eventually one of the fishermen got hold of its tail, and by the assistance of another it was taken into the boat.

It was a young one, about three feet in length. It did not seem to appreciate its new quarters, and made strenuous efforts to escape, but was kept a prisoner until the fishing ceased, and then taken ashore. Subsequently the seal was restored to its native element, which it seemed to appreciate all the more after its detention.

The journey drew to an end very quickly. Romero, deserted now by its garrison, stirred and stared sleepily at their presence no more than to wonder why they laughed and talked so spritely. Plainly, these gringos were a barbarous race of people, what with their rushing here and there, and with their loud, senseless laughter. God had wisely placed them beyond the Rio Grande, said the citizens of Romero.

The crossing was made; Alaire found herself in Texas once again, and it seemed to her that the sun had never been so bright, the air so clear, the sky so high, the world so smiling, as here and now. The men who had ridden forth to seek her were smiling, too, and they were shaking her hands and congratulating her. Even the Guzman boys, who were shy in the presence of American ladies, were wishing her the best of fortune and the greatest of happiness.

Blaise Jones was the last to leave. With especial emphasis upon her name, she said: "Miz Austin, Paloma and me would like to have you come to our house and stay until you feel like goin' back to Las Palmas."

When Alaire declined with moistened eyes, explaining that she could not well accept his invitation, he signified his understanding.

"We're goin' to see a lot of you, just the same," he promised her. "'cause we feel as if you sort of belonged to us. There's a lot of good people in this part of Texas, and them that ain't so good, God and the rangers is slowly weedin' out. We don't always know the ones we like best until something happens to 'em, but if you'd heard the prayers the folks of Jonesville have been sayin' lately you'd know you was our favorite." Then, with a meaning twinkle in his eye, he told her, gravely: "It seems a pity that I ain't younger and better-lookin'. I would sure cut short your grief." Then he raised his hat and rode away, chuckling.

Alaire turned to Dave in dismay. "He knows!" she cried.

"I'm afraid they all know. But don't worry; they'll respect our wishes."

Father O'Malley had ridden on ahead with Benito and Dolores; Dave and Alaire followed leisurely. Now that the moment of their parting was at hand, they lingered by the way, delaying it as long as possible, feeling a natural constraint at what was in their minds.

"How long—will it be?" he asked her, finally. "How long before I can really have you for my own?"

Alaire smiled into his eyes. "Not long. But you'll be patient, won't you, dear?"

He took her hand in his and they rode on silently, a song in the heart of each of them.

(THE END.)

will be the great test of a life and death struggle on the Western front. In the everyday walks of life, it is the spring time that brings ill health. One of the chief reasons why the run-down man finds himself in a bad state of health in March or April, is because he has spent nearly all his hours for the past four or five months penned up within the walls of house, factory or office. It is the reason for our diminished resistance—that is, lack of out-door life, coupled with perhaps over-eating, lack of good exercise, insufficient sleep, and constipation. In other words, we keep feeding the furnace with food but do not take out the "clinkers," and our fire does not burn brightly. Always keep the liver active.

There is nothing better for health than taking an occasional mild laxative, perhaps once a week; such a one as you can get at any drug store, made up of May-apple, jalap aloes (sugar-coated, tiny, easily taken), which has stood the test of fifty years of approval—namely, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. But for the "Spring Fever," the general run-down condition, the lack of ambition, the "blues," one should take a course of treatment every spring; such a standard tonic as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, now to be had in tablet form in sixty-cent vials. Watch the people go plodding along the street. There's no spring, no vitality. A vitalizing tonic such as this vegetable extract of Dr. Pierce's gives you the power to force yourself into action. The brain responds to the new blood in circulation, and thus you're ready to make a fight against stagnation which holds you in bondage. Try it now! Don't wait! Today is the day to begin. Gain a little "pep," and laugh and live. Vim and vitality are the natural out-pouring of a healthy body. It does not spring up in a night. Try this spring tonic, and you gain the courage that comes with good health.

REWARD FOR TELLING TRUTH

Portuguese Statesman May Not Have Been Flattered, but at Least He Won One Vote.

Senhor Costa, the Portuguese prime minister, is excusing himself from making a speech on the ground that he was no orator, told an amusing anecdote at a luncheon party given in his honor during his recent visit to London. It appears that when he first put up for the Portuguese national council he prefaced his opening address to the electors by alluding frankly to his lack of oratorical gifts. After he had finished a man pushed forward, grasped his hand warmly, and said:

"Senhor, I've been a lifelong opponent of yours, but at the coming election I shall vote for you."

"Thank you," said Costa, much gratified. "May I ask the particular reason for your change of views?"

"Because you are the first speaker on either side that I have heard tell the truth," was the reply. "You said when you began that you couldn't make much of a speech, and by heavens, Senhor, you can't."

RUNNING WATER FARM REQUISITE

Plant to Supply It Does Not Call for Great Expenditure of Money.

FITTINGS EASY TO PROCURE

Entire Outfit May Be Provided at Small Cost and Its Installation Is Easy for Any Man of Average Ingenuity.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority in all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose three-cent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
The first real improvement in a farm home comes with the supplying of water under pressure for domestic use. There always is a farm well or some kind of water supply. It is not difficult and not necessarily expensive to erect a tank.

The main thing is to arrange for domestic water on tap as needed. Hot and cold water in the kitchen sink is the main necessity. Other plumbing may be added as seen best.

All water pipes and fittings are standardized, so that the different sizes may be ordered from any supply house with the assurance that the threads will screw together and fit properly to make watertight joints.

The whole outfit necessary to supply running water may be enumerated as follows:

- One overhead tank (or low-down pressure tank) from 2,000 to 5,000 gallons.
- One force pump and jack to put water into the tank.
- One two-horse gasoline or kerosene engine to drive it.
- One water front for the kitchen range.
- One round 130-gallon water tank heater.
- One enameled kitchen sink, with hot and cold water connections, including a properly trapped waste pipe.
- In connection with these necessary furnishings will be the iron pipe and connect with a regular vitrified sewer pipe carried to a safe distance. The sewer is trapped and ventilated outside of the building and the sink waste pipe is trapped and ventilated inside of the building. The waste pipe trap is close up under the sink to prevent any possibility of foul air being forced through the waste pipe back into the kitchen. The ventilator pipe sticks out through the roof.

The farm kitchen should be large enough to hold a dining table to serve meals when extra help is employed.

It should have a rear or side wash room for the men to save tracking dirt into the kitchen.

A bathroom in a farm home is a great luxury. Boys and girls hesitate to leave the farm and go to the city when they have such modern conveniences and comforts at home.

A total bathroom outfit may be bought for $75 and the work of installing is not necessarily expensive.

A farmhouse of modern, convenient design is shown in the accompanying drawings. The rooms are placed so as to provide for the many additions that are common to the farm and are unknown in towns and cities.

The sides of the house are finished with clapboards and the roof is of the gable type shingled. There is a small porch in front over the entrance, while along the side is a long porch that can be used as the outdoor sitting room.

On the main floor, the dining room is the largest room and is combined with the kitchen. In a farmhouse plan it

The combining of the dining room and kitchen is more convenient for handling a large number of hearty eaters than a separate arrangement. This room is made readily accessible from both the back and front of the house. In back of the combination dining room and kitchen is a wash room, which assists considerably in keeping the house clean. The men can come in from the back porch without having to go into the kitchen and can wash in this room and the kitchen will not be crowded up just before meal times when working space is most needed.

The basement has an outside entrance and is equipped with a workshop, vegetable cellar, fruit closet, heater room and laundry. The vegetable and fruit rooms are placed away from the heating apparatus as far as possible so that they can be kept cool.

The second floor plan calls for three bedrooms and a bathroom. These are arranged with a hall opening to the stairs so as to be convenient. There is also another bedroom on the first floor for the help.

MORE CHICKENS ARE WANTED

Farmers Are Urged by Department of Agriculture to Stock Their Farms With More Poultry.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The United States department of agriculture urges as many as possible of the farmers who have not raised chickens to stock their farms this year with fowls, enough at least to supply the needs of their own households. This will be a big factor in the nation-wide campaign which will endeavor to double this year the chicken and egg production of the United States. According to the last census, of the 6,371,502 farms in the United States, 1,527,743 reported no egg production. The more-chicken-and-more-egg campaign is expected to displace millions of pounds of beef and pork in American menus and send the released product across the ocean to our soldiers, the allies, and the hungry people of the lands devastated by the Prussian war torch.

The department does not advise that the general farmer embark in extensive raising of poultry, but warns against such ventures. But it sees no reason why every farm should not produce enough chickens and eggs for its own use, and why there should not be enough surplus to make chickens and eggs available to the general public at reasonable prices and in such quantities that there will be markedly less domestic demand for the meats that are needed abroad and that can be transported there.

LIMBER NECK IN CHICKENS

Affliction Caused by Ptomaine Poisoning From Eating Decaying Flesh—Try to Prevent.

Limber neck in chickens is caused by ptomaine poisoning from eating decaying flesh. Where fowls run at large they frequently pick up dead rats, mice or other animals and in this way become affected with the germs, which quickly cause death. Whole flocks are sometimes wiped out in the course of a few weeks.

Prevention is the best remedy. If you are losing chickens from this cause shut up the flock and feed them on sound, sweet grain and feed. A simple effective treatment is to use permanganate of potash. Put an ounce of the crystals in a quart bottle and fill it with water. Add enough of this to the drinking water to give it a rich purple color, and allow the fowls no other water to drink. Fowls which show symptoms of the disease should be given a dose night and morning.

ATTENTION TO BREEDING PEN

If Fowls Cannot Be Kept in Good Health Give Range—Improve Quality by Culling.

If a yarded breeding pen cannot be kept in vigorous health, then it is better to give fowls range, and depend on improvement in quality by careful culling and grading up with the best possible males.

WHY HATCH EARLY.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Chickens hatched early in the spring are large in the summer, mature early in the fall, and lay eggs in the winter. They will sit early the following spring, produce earlier chickens—and the process will be repeated by the offspring.

But the chickens hatched late in the spring will not mature until late in the fall—so late that they will not lay in the winter. They will not sit until late in the following spring—and again the process will be repeated.

The jury finds that the argument is all in favor of early hatching—especially this year.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POISONS FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels needs a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

Chivalry of the Seas.
Naval history is full of instances of the seaman's chivalric humanity. When the captured Chesapeake was taken to Halifax, her Captain Lawrence ("don't give up the ship") was buried with military honors from those against whom he had fought, Park Benjamin writes in the New York Independent. A British officer who was one of his pallbearers later commanded the Boxer in her fight with our Enterprise. Mortally wounded, he sent his sword to the dying American captain, who died with it in his hands. And then all the people of Portland, Me., reverently received both bodies and buried them with equal honors, side by side.

SLACKERS

"The written word can not convey an impression of a situation so effectively and so alarmingly as the scene itself. If those "slackers" who have not bought Liberty Bonds could get a whiff of hell across No Man's land, see a few of the rapacious scenes of German occupation, and could understand the limit to which German soldiers spurred on by Kaiser Bill will go, they would tear their purses and pockets to pieces to buy bonds. They fail to apprehend the danger that lurks for America unless they do their part." - Amarillo News.

There are a few of these slackers, Socialists, for the most part, in Portales and Roosevelt county; there are also a few alleged preachers of the gospel who think more of their money than they do of their country or the lives of their soldiers. One preacher cow man, this week bought a $500 00 bond after much haggling and lying as to his financial ability. He is easily worth $75,000 00, is very devout publicly, penurious to the limit and a chronic knocker. As between a nickle and his God, his God would have mighty little show for his white ally. There is another so-called sky pilot who is worth around $10,000.00 and yet who cannot afford to buy a Baby Bond. There are also a few farmers who cannot bring themselves to the point of lending their government a little of their money to be used in the fight being waged in their behalf. Up to the present time, only the mildest of arguments have been used; but the time is fast arriving when arguments calculated to appeal to other and more potent agencies than their conscience and patriotism will be used. These slackers have got to come across. They will not be permitted to live in peace in Roosevelt county until they have done their duty by their government. Get in or get out; pay up or vamose, pronto. You are not Americans, you are contemptible slackers, copperheads, secessionists, the spawn of hell and boon companions to Kaiser Bill; you would hawk the charms of your own daughter from the auction block to acquire a few dollars. You are neither American, German or just common cur. Had you been spawned by Sycorax with the foul fiend for a sire and hell for your birth place, you would still be a disgrace to your parentage and a reproach to your nativity. You are tagged and shipping orders are on the way.

WE NEED THE MONEY

You are asked to spend wisely—to buy only the things honestly needed to maintain your health and efficiency. This is intelligent thrift. The Government asks it of you as a war measure :

Bonds Are Not A Burden, But A Blessing

Thrift requires the exercise of restraint and self-denial—qualities without which you cannot achieve the success in life which it is your ambition to achieve and for the lack of which you are likely to suffer in later years.

The money you acquire by thrift you are asked to loan—not give—to your country. It will come back to you when you may need it far more than you do now, and you will be paid interest for its use.

This war is a frightful thing, but it may prove of inestimable benefit to you, if it teaches you the good habit of thrift.

OWE THEIR LIVES TO WOMAN

How Mrs. John Hays Hammond Won Pardons From Grim Old "Oom Paul" Kruger.

John Hays Hammond, an American citizen, was in prison, under sentence of death. He had been tried and convicted of high treason to the South African Republic. One of four leaders of the reform movement in the Transvaal, he was charged with complicity in the famous Jameson raid, found guilty, and sentenced to die.

Only one person lived in the Transvaal with sufficient power to set aside the death sentence passed upon the man who is known today as the greatest mining engineer in the United States. This was Oom Paul Kruger, then president of the South African Republic. He was an old man—narrow, bigoted and possessed of an intense hatred for the eager, grasping strangers who he believed had sought his country only to despoil it.

John Hays Hammond was among the most enterprising and, consequently, one of the most disliked, of the foreign residents of the Transvaal. For years he had been employed as an engineer; first by Barney Barnato, the English mining operator, and later by Cecil Rhodes, to locate diamonds in Oom Paul's country. Oom Paul disliked him. He disliked all men who brought swarms of eager reckless adventurers into his country. And he made life as difficult for them as he could.

In 1895 the world was startled by the news that a British adventurer, Doctor Jameson, had led a raiding party of armed men into the Transvaal. The raid failed. John Hays Hammond was among those arrested on the accusation of having instigated Jameson's attack on the South African Republic.

public. He was found guilty and sentenced to die.

But the brave, cool-headed wife of the eminent American mining engineer did not intend that anything disagreeable should happen to her husband. Ever since their marriage, in 1890, Mrs. John Hays Hammond had followed the fortunes of her young engineer, no matter where they took him. But when they threw him into jail under a death sentence, she decided that it was time for her to interfere. She made up her mind to see Oom Paul Kruger and tell him that she had come to save him from the crime of putting an innocent man to death. It was not easy to see President Kruger, but Mrs. Hammond proved equal to the task. It was not easy to convince a man who harbored a deep, silent contempt for women, that a woman was worth listening to; but Mrs. Hammond was successful. Before she left his office, Mr. Kruger had promised to spare her husband's life. The president of the Transvaal republic kept his word to Natalie Hammond. Her husband's sentence was commuted to imprisonment for 15 years and later on, he was freed on payment of a fine of $125,000, and Mrs. Hammond had the extreme happiness of knowing that through her intercession, not only her husband's life but the lives of the men arrested with him had been saved.

Height Zeppelins Can Reach.

Basing his statement on accurate measurements of a Zeppelin that was brought down in England last October, on known facts regarding the lifting power of hydrogen gas, on the state of the barometer during the flight, on the temperatures of the air recorded in the airship's log, Jhadoo Jahoz writes in Aeronautics as follows:

"It would appear from the foregoing that the latest type of Zeppelin is designed to be able to attain a height of 17,000 to 18,000 feet when over its objective and after dropping its bombs, but is capable of going even higher under stress of circumstances and at the risk of suffering some slight damage on returning to its base. These conclusions accord well with Mr. Warner Allen's statements that these airships 'are built with a view to flying between 16,000 and 18,000 feet.' Of course, on a short flight they could go higher, in view of the reduced quantity of petrol to be carried."

"Too Many Old Men"—Lenine.

A favorite idea with Lenine, frequently advanced in his Petrograd career, is that there are too many old men in positions of supreme responsibility. Current Opinion states. His most dramatic effect before the council of soldiers and workers was won in a crisis on a vote that might have overthrown him. He bade the delegates in thunder tones to look into the first mirror they saw. The faces reflected would be those of young men. What, on the other hand, would be the color of the hair of the rulers opposed to the great social revolution? Gray. The revolution is youth, hope, the future. Against it are ranged the gray haired rulers of men without ideals. "Will you have an old men's war or a young men's peace?" The hit was immense.

Appreciation.

"How do you like Shakespeare?" "Oh, I treasure our set of Shakespeare more than any other works we have," said Mrs. Dubwaite. "I'm glad to hear you say so." "Yes. It's really the only set in our living room that matches the wallpaper."

How Do Your Sacrifices Compare With These?

THE American boy who goes to war gives up the position which means so much to his future, or the little business which has just begun to show promise of success.

He severs home ties; gives up home comforts; leaves behind parents, friends, wife or sweetheart.

He faces the probability of being obliged to take up life anew when he returns; of losing all the advantages which years of hard work have won for him.

He faces the possibility of coming back incapacitated for earning a living, and of being dependent upon his friends or upon charity.

He faces the possibility of never coming home at all.

Facing these things, he goes to France to fight for us who remain safely at home—and when the moment comes for him to go over the top—he GOES!

What will he think, how will he feel, if we complain because we are asked to make a few sacrifices for him—sacrifices so insignificant when compared with his?

Show him that to invest in Liberty Bonds is not a SACRIFICE but a PRIVILEGE—an appreciation of his sacrifice!

THISTLE IN SCOTCH HISTORY

Various Traditions Concerning Its Adoption by the Highland Clans as Their Emblem.

"The thistle of Scotland is said to be the oldest national flower, and tradition traces its adoption to the reign of Alexander III and the battle of Larga" (when an attacking Dane stepped upon a thistle and involuntarily gave the alarm, whereupon the Scots drove the invaders out).

"Another account of its adoption is of a very different character," writes Katherine M. Beals in Flower Lore and Legend. "About the middle of the fifteenth century a company of stern-faced men met in the council chamber of Edinburgh, and the occasion of that meeting was to discuss the advisability of substituting the thistle for the figure of St. Andrew on the national banner. The proceedings of the council were secret, but soon after the thistle appeared upon every Scottish banner. The national motto might have been adopted with appropriateness on either of these occasions: 'Nemo me impune lacessit.' The polite reading of this is, 'No man attacks me without being punished,' but the more simple translation of earlier days was, 'Touch me who dares!' while the original is supposed to have been, 'Wha dare meddle wi' me?' Another inscription which sometimes accompanies the Scottish emblem reads: 'Ce que Dieu garde, est bien garde.' That which God guards is well guarded."

"The thistle appeared officially for the first time during the reign of James II, who had it placed on the coinage of the kingdom and adopted it as his own badge. It also appeared upon the coins in the reigns of James IV, Mary Stuart, James V and James VI. The thistle merke was a silver shilling. The thistle dollar was a double merke. Each took its name from the emblem on it."

How to Read.

At best the printed words of an author represent but a poor fraction of what is in his thought and feeling, or what he would express if he could. Therefore, it is well to follow Ruskin's advice on "reading for the thought," and "get into the habit of looking intently at words and assure yourself of their meaning syllable by syllable—nay, letter by letter." Not only does this help you to understand the author's meaning by comprehending his words, but the act of concentration fertilizes and awakens your own mind and tends to bring you into such sympathy with the idea expressed and with the author, that you are illumined by far more of the subject than the printed words alone contain.—William E. Towne in Nautilus.

Abyssinia of Today.

The dominant race in Abyssinia is Semitic. The Hamitic is the aboriginal race. The court or official language is Amharic, but Ethiopic is that of the church and literature. The national religion is Monophysite Christianity, but Judaism is found among certain tribes, and Islam is the faith of a considerable element of the population. The head of the Abyssinian church is the Abuna, "our father," who is a Coptic monk, nominated by the Patriarch of Alexandria. The government is a despotic monarchy based on a system partly federal and partly feudal. The civilization of Abyssinia has long been retarded by isolation and anarchy, but there is now a national awakening to the civilized world.

How They Lived in Early Days.

Men and women who are complaining that the increasing cost of food staples is making the purchase of some luxuries beyond their means should read the account of the privations which the people of medieval England had to suffer, notes a correspondent. They lived without sugar until the thirteenth century, without coal until the fourteenth, without butter on their bread until the fifteenth, without tobacco until the sixteenth, and potatoes until the sixteenth, without tea, coffee and soap until the seventeenth, without umbrellas, lamps and puddings until the eighteenth, without trains, telegrams, gas, matches and chloroform until the nineteenth.

Pigeon a War Hero.

The feat of Napoleon's A. D. C., who galloped up with a message in the press of battle, and being asked: "You are wounded?" replied, "Pardon, sire, I am dead," and fell lifeless, has been equaled by an army pigeon. This pigeon flew home with one of its legs shot away, only to fall dead on the loft floor. But its message, almost driven into its body by the shot, saved the lives of hundreds of men.—From the European Edition of the New York Herald.

One Hundred and Forty-Two Years of Labor and Struggle

THE American people fought their first battles for liberty and the rights of self-government one hundred and forty-two years ago.

The immediate need is the investment of our money in LIBERTY BONDS!

At that time, and for many years thereafter, their realization of their national aspirations and of the goal toward which they were really striving was vague and indistinct. But step by step they struggled onward and upward toward a light which grew clearer as their eyes and minds slowly opened to its significance. Today, as a result of their struggles and their sacrifices, we possess and enjoy our priceless American institutions.

These institutions must be preserved. The structure so laboriously reared in these one hundred and forty-two years will be utterly destroyed if we do not spring to its defense with every atom of our energy and determination. This is not a situation which may be trifled with, or evaded, or put off. It is one which must be met now—today—no matter what sacrifices it may entail, or what the cost may be.

The license of Walter Crow to deal in poultry and eggs, and which was suspended by the state food administrator, was revived and the order of suspension revoked, it being clearly shown that he had been misled by the commission house at El Paso. There is not a more loyal man in the town than Walter Crow, in fact, he was the first man in the town to forcibly resent disparaging remarks about the flag, and he would not, knowingly, violate any of the food regulations of the nation.

At the patriotic meeting this week at Causey Baby Bonds were subscribed for in the amount of $1600.00 and the receipts for the Red Cross were $100.00. A sack of pinto beans were sold at auction and brought $100.00, the proceeds to be invested in bonds. This is an unusually good showing considering the fact that a large number of the people of the Causey community had bought bonds at other places.

Publicity of Slackers

W. O. Oldham is in receipt of a letter from J. W. Hoopes, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank, of Dallas, Texas, which indicates that bond slackers are to be tabbed. The letter follows:

To the Organizer Addressed:
As you are aware the third Liberty loan campaign is going to be conducted in a much more thorough manner than any previous loan, and the personal responsibility of every citizen is going to be brought home to him in a manner never attempted before. In this line of thought, we want you to be prepared, after the campaign has been in progress for about two weeks, to give to us a list of the names and addresses of every man in your county who is well known to possess wealth, and who has not done his full share in the purchase of Liberty bonds. That is to say who has not purchased just what you consider to be his individual quota. We trust you will have the names ready for us on call. You will realize the necessity and advantage of such a course and will call for your watching the subscription lists very closely. This is one of the duties which we ask you to assume in this campaign. We ask you to realize that records and data relating to the third Liberty loan campaign must be of permanent character, and we ask you to keep these records by you subject to our call at any time

Calomel Loses You a Day's Work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone Instead

Read my guarantee! If bilious, constipated or headachy you need not take nasty, sickening, dangerous calomel to get straightened up.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much, but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.—Adv.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Who can enjoy alone,
Or all enjoying, what contentment

FOR MEATLESS DAY.

The following soy bean loaf is very high in nutritive value and low in cost.

Take one cupful of soy beans, one-half cupful of kidney beans, one cupful of rice, one cupful of brown bread crumbs, one-half cupful each of chopped carrots and celery, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, a half cupful of flour, one egg, four tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of liquid, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper and a tablespoonful of finely minced parsley. Soak the beans over night and cook until soft. Chop the beans and vegetables and make a sauce of the fat, flour and liquid. Combine. Add egg and seasonings. Pack in a pan and steam until the vegetables are well cooked. Finish baking in the oven. Serve with Tomato Sauce.—Take a half cupful of condensed tomato, one cupful of water, two tablespoonfuls of butter and the same of flour. Heat the tomato and add it to the flour and butter, which have been cooked together and seasoned with a teaspoonful of salt. Stir and cook slowly for five minutes; add a few dashes of red pepper and serve.

Walnut Croquettes.—Mix together and form into croquettes the following: One cupful of walnut meats finely chopped, a cupful of mashed potato, a teaspoonful of salt, one egg slightly beaten, one cupful of soft bread crumbs and the yolks of three eggs; mix well and shape. Fry as usual and serve with tomato sauce.

Curried Chestnuts.—Shell and blanch one pound of chestnuts and stew them in stock until tender. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one teaspoonful of sugar, and a sliced onion, one chopped apple, one tablespoonful of curry and one teaspoonful of sweet chutney; moisten with one cupful of stock and cook until the apple is soft, then rub through a sieve and squeeze a little lemon juice over it, simmer until the nuts have absorbed the flavor. Serve hot.

INVITING DISHES.

The following will make a most nourishing meat substitute for a main dish:

Brown Vegetable Stew.—Take one pound of shoulder of beef, one-half cupful of barley flour, one cupful of canned corn or half a cupful of dried corn, one cupful of soaked soy beans, one cupful of tomato, four cupfuls of water, six potatoes, cut in half inch cubes, six onions, three carrots, two turnips diced, one tablespoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of peppercorns, a half a bay leaf, a half cupful of celery. Roll the meat in flour and brown in fat. Add the seasonings and beans which have been par-boiled in water to which one-fourth of a teaspoonful of soda has been added. Cook three to four hours. An hour before serving add the vegetables and cook until tender.

Scalloped Corn and Soy Beans.—Take two cupfuls each of yellow soy beans and canned corn, a cupful of tomato, one egg, a teaspoonful of salt, an eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, a tablespoonful of catsup, a small onion, two cupfuls of bread crumbs, well oiled. Soak the beans over night and cook until tender in water in which a little soda has been added. Put through a potato ricer; add corn, seasonings, egg and tomato. Place in a well oiled casserole, cover with the crumbs and bake one-half hour or until the crumbs are brown.

Potato Pancakes.—Take four grated potatoes, one cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, two eggs and a half cupful of milk. Drain the potatoes if desired or add less milk, beat the eggs and mix well with the other ingredients. Fry as usual, spreading them with a spoon as thin as possible. It is wise to try a test cake to see if the mixture is of the right consistency. Too much flour will make them unpalatable.

Bread Crumb Griddle Cakes.—Use one and a half cupfuls of bread crumbs, the same amount of milk, two tablespoonfuls of fat, a half cupful of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and two well beaten eggs. Mix and cook the same as any griddle cake. Any kind of bread crumbs may be used.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Keep the stables clean, dry, well aired and lighted.

The herd bull should not be kept in the same yard with the horses.

Horses and colts are worth money at the present time, and they should be well fed and cared for.

Clean out the stables every morning; a clean, dry stable promotes health.

Horses not having steady work should have their shoes removed and given daily exercise. If fed mostly on straw and fodder, a few ears of corn should be fed in severe weather.

If the sows are constipated, oilmeal or bran should be introduced into their ration until satisfactory condition results. For immediate action a reasonable dose of epsom salts should be given.

Feeds which have little or no market value may be marketed profitably by feeding them to live stock.

Breed the best to the best to produce the best, is one of the main essentials of profitable purebred sheep production.

Sheep are scavengers enough to keep the farm cleaned up of weeds and a class of cheap feed that cattle do not utilize, though they cannot subsist on this alone.

Other things being equal, pigs from mature sires and dams grow faster and feed better.

To make the greatest profit one must raise cattle of a type and breed best adapted to beef production and they must be well bred.

The demand at the present time for breeding ewes is enormous. Many are paying exorbitant prices and everyone is finding it difficult to get as many good breeding ewes as he might be able to use.

Obvious.

What She Would Take.

At an Irish asseize a deaf old lady, who had brought an action for damages against her neighbor, was being examined, when the judge suggested a compromise, and instructed counsel to ask what she would take to settle the matter.

"His lordship wants to know what you will take?" asked the learned counsel, bawling as loud as he could in the old lady's ear.

"I thank his lordship kindly," answered the dame; "and if it's no inconvenience to him, I'll take a little whisky and water."

Not So Bad.

"Target No. 3 was the one to shoot at and you hit target No. 7," said the captain.

"Yes, sir," replied the cross-eyed private.

"Didn't you look where you were shooting?"

"No, sir, I shot where I was looking."

Walter Tragresser, who is about all that is left of the catching staff of the Boston Braves, has been put in class 1-A for the draft. He was called late last summer for examination for service, but rejected because of twisted fingers, but nowadays Uncle Sam is overlooking such minor defects and Tragresser is expected to pass in the next call.

SOCCER PLAYERS LACK ENDURANCE AS SOLDIERS

A prominent medical man who has just returned from the western front says professional footballers are not wanted in the trenches, and explains that this is so because their endurance is less than one-third that of the ordinary soldier. He attributes this to the fact that they have been so long tuned to the highest pitch to take part in soccer games. In addition their nerves are so acute that they cannot stand gunfire.

The medical man adds: "It is like linking up a race horse with an artillery team." Strangely enough, he said, commanders find Rugby football players make our best aviators.

Strength Gave Out

Mrs. Schmitt Was Miserable From Kidney Trouble Until Doan's Came to Her Assistance. Now Well.

"My kidneys gave out during the change of life," says Mrs. Margaretha Schmitt, 63 Alabama Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. "My back ached and pained as if it were broken. When I moved in bed, sharp, darting pains caught me across my back and I couldn't turn. Mornings I was stiff and sore and it felt as if heavy weights were tied to me. I was so worn-out. I often came near falling from dizziness and flashes of fire would come before my eyes, blinding me."
"I had the most severe headaches and my kidneys didn't act regularly. The secretions passed too often and caused much distress. I was hardly able to do my housework and just to walk upstairs took all my strength."
"As soon as I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, I improved and six boxes put me in better health than I had enjoyed for years."

Mrs. Schmitt gave the foregoing statement in 1916 and on April 6, 1917, she said: "My cure has been permanent. I keep Doan's on hand, however, and take a few doses occasionally."

PISO'S

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE
BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. MEASLES' PUZZLE.

"Go away, go away," said Peter Goblin. "You mustn't come around here. No, you mustn't. I won't have it, not for a moment will I have it."

"May we talk to you, then?" asked Mr. Measles, as he hurried off.

"Yes, I will come and talk to you, but you mustn't stay around here. Goblins don't get measles, but children do, and I won't have it. Hurry off. Hurry off."

"How About Me?" Asked Mrs. Croup.

"Wouldn't they like to have us?" asked Mr. Mumps. "Just think how we'd make their faces puff up and look so fine and fat."

"Yes," said Peter Goblin, crossly, "and make it hard for them to swallow. No sir, no sir, you get right away from here."

"How about me?" asked Mrs. Croup.

"You go away, too," said Peter Goblin.

"Can't I have just one little look at a nice little boy or a nice little girl?" asked Master Chicken Pox.

"You most certainly cannot," said Peter Goblin.

"I don't see why not," said Mr. Measles crossly.

"I thought I'd told you to start off," said Peter Goblin. "Now I won't put up with any more of this nonsense. Be off—all of you. Be off, right away."

"You promised to talk to us," said Mr. Mumps. "You will, won't you?"

"But we'd rather have a little chat with a child first," said Mr. Mumps.

"Maybe you would like to," said Peter Goblin, "but you're not going to. And so, one, two, three—go! Everyone of you. I'll follow along."

"Now, what is the use," Mr. Mumps muttered, "of being able to make some folks fat when one isn't given the chance?"

"You don't want to make them fat and well," said Peter Goblin.

They had all wandered quite far away from the children and so Peter Goblin felt they were safe. He would get many of his goblins right to work to keep an eye on them, for goblins cannot get measles, mumps, chicken pox or croup.

"Yes, I make them fat," said Mr. Mumps. "I never bother about more than their cheeks. They grumble so after I've made them fat that I get disheartened."

"Good thing you do," said Peter Goblin. "You're certainly mean enough."

Mr. Mumps knew Peter was right, so didn't say another word. Mr. Measles spoke next.

"We wanted to have you talk to us," said Mr. Measles, "because we cannot understand you."

"Why not?" asked Peter Goblin. "I try to protect the children from getting measles, mumps, chicken pox and croup. Of course they have to help me by trying to keep as well and strong as they can so as to escape you. Whenever one of you gets past us, how badly we do feel. You often do, but we try our best to keep you out. We can't keep you out entirely but we can help."

"And then good, kind doctors drive you away."

"We hate doctors," said Mr. Measles.

"Well," said Mrs. Croup, "we shouldn't hate them so much, because we give them a lot of trouble, and we love to give trouble."

"That's so, we do," said Master Chicken Pox.

"But," said Mr. Measles, "people say, 'Oh, don't catch the measles. And be careful not to catch the mumps. Don't go near anyone with chicken pox or you might catch it.'"

"Now, to catch a thing," continued Mr. Measles, "means to chase after it or try to get it in some way. If they don't like us why do they talk about catching measles? They say 'Be careful not to catch Mr. Mumps.' It's very silly, for if they really don't like us, they should say, 'Don't let Mr. Mumps catch you.'"

"It's rather an absurd expression," admitted Peter Goblin.

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands. Adv.

To The American People

There is no foundation for the alleged violations of law attributed to our Company by agents of the Federal Trade Commission and I want to say emphatically that Swift & Company is not a party to any conspiracy to defraud the Government. Nor has Swift & Company been guilty of improperly storing foods or of making false entries or reports.

Conferences of packers, where prices have been discussed, have been held at the urgent request and in the presence of representatives of either the Food Administration or the Council of National Defense. And yet the packers have been accused of committing a felony by acting in collusion on Government bids!

We have done our best, with other packers, large and small, to comply with the directions of the United States Food Administration in all particulars, including the furnishing of food supplies for the U. S. Army and Navy and the Allies, now being handled through the Food Administration.

We will continue to do our utmost, under Government direction, to increase our production and assist the Food Administration. We consider that the opportunity to co-operate whole-heartedly and to our fullest powers with this branch of the Government is our plain and most pressing duty.

The Trade Commission Attorney has, by false inference and misplaced emphasis, given to disconnected portions of the correspondence taken from our private files and read into the Record, a false and sinister meaning with the plain purpose of creating antagonistic public opinion.

The services of the packers of the United States are most urgently needed, and I regret exceedingly that we should at this time have to spend our efforts in defending ourselves against unfounded, unproved, and unfair assertions such as are being daily made public.

22 Million Families in the United States

4 CUPS OF WHEAT FLOUR TO THE POUND

If each family used 4 cups of flour less per week, the saving would be 22 million pounds or 112,244 barrels every week.

The greatest help housekeepers can give to win the war is to make this saving and it can be done by using this recipe in place of white flour bread.

Corn Meal Biscuits

- 1/2 cup scalded milk
- 1 cup corn meal
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup white flour
- 4 teaspoons Dr. Price's Baking Powder

Save 1/2 cup of the measured flour for board. Pour milk over corn meal, add shortening and salt. When cold, add sifted flour and baking powder. Roll out lightly on floured board. Cut with biscuit cutter and bake in greased pan fifteen to twenty minutes.

Correct Spring Styles for Men

Copyright 1919 By
SCHLOSS BROS. & CO.
Fur Clothing Makers
Baltimore and New York

The correctness of Schloss Baltimore men's and young men's styles is one of their great advantages, one that is worth remembering.

The expert who designs these models is one of the best posted men on "what's what" in the United States. He knows what's right and how to get the right look in new models.

Because of his inimitable skill, and his ability to impart the "top-notch" of styles to his creations, he was placed in charge of the Schloss-Baltimore designing department at a large salary. His work is exclusively obtainable in Schloss-Baltimore clothes; the only way you could possibly equal it would be to pay another Fifth Avenue tailor about $80 the suit.

You can see what it means to get skill like his in the style-designing of your clothes, and the tailoring is on a par with the style. Best of all, they are moderate in price. See the new spring models today.

MADE FOR LOYALTY

Good Effect of Citizens' Battle With the Snow.

Gave Slacker an Opportunity to See Himself as Others See Him—Also Helped Realization of What War Means.

(By GEORGE E. BOWEN, of the Vigilantes)

It took a lot of backache and blisters and frostbite to clear this snow-bound western world of drifted obstruction, making it safe for travel, secure for the daily affairs of life.

Those two great January storms created a desperate situation—one that had to be met and overcome.

Everybody suddenly had the same idea—a strong shovel, a willing heart and a cheerful disposition.

There was nothing else to do. We had to be free. And we were.

Every patriot in the middle west who had a shovel and a backbone got out and used them.

Lot lines didn't count, for we were fighting a common enemy.

The shovelling spirit thrilled us, en masse—no one stopped to be saluted or introduced—no one stopped to theorize—no one claimed exemption or superiority. We just asserted our right of way—and dug it.

So, here is freedom—to go or come.

It was a great lesson in united action, a convincing example of the solidarity of human interest, a reassuring experience in loyalty to the cause of common welfare. It was an American demonstration.

The slacker was thoroughly unslacked when he saw his neighbor shovelling off his walk.

It was a worth-while storm.

Men met each other in these neighborhood trenches with a new expression in their eyes—a new feeling in their hearts.

Over the white-blocked barricades of snow, head high and miles in length, they were seeing those reddened, sand-bagged walls in Belgium. Seeing loyal bayonets shovelling humanity's way to freedom through storm-crushed Flanders. Seeing braver patriots than themselves struggling manfully against Alpine avalanches of steel and blizzards of fire, that the home-paths of mankind be not obstructed forever by any brutal drifts of hate or selfishness.

The roar of the Arctic terror these neighbors knew when the storm broke upon their unpreparedness was as nothing to the scream of shells and the thunder of artillery they are hearing now in those trenches across the sea—and in their souls.

They have realized in a small, bloodless way the meaning of war—war that is a perpetual offensive storm, instead of an occasional one in January.

When men meet in these snow trenches of the West, there's only one comment: "We've got to help them win."

And they mean it—as they meant every shovelful of snow they threw out of their paths of peace and contentment.

Some great blessings come thickly disguised.

Big Storm Recalled.

Just thirty years ago in January, the worst storm in the history of the United States weather bureau raged over the central West, taking a toll of more than 200 lives and killing thousands of farm animals. "Old-timers" asserted there had been a storm of equal, if not worse proportions, in 1880, but there are no definite records on the first storm, and it is known to have been more locally confined than the "great storm of '88." The storm originated in Nebraska and extended to central Iowa and Wisconsin eastward and to the Montana line on the west. The temperature was about freezing when the storm started, but by the next morning it had dropped to 54 degrees below zero in South Dakota. Grand Forks, N. D., reported a temperature of 52 degrees below, while at Sioux City, Ia., it was 28 below. Near Mitchell, S. D., a farmer and his son were unable to reach the house five rods distant before the boy was frozen to death.

PROUD OF "REMINDER BOOK"

Mr. Blinkinton Claims That by Its Aid He Has Been Saved Much Time and Worry.

"What I used to do when I put anything away," said Mr. Blinkinton, "was to bestow it with great care in some place where I would know just where to find it, and then I would forget it completely. More than once when I have wanted something that I had thus carefully put away I have had to tear the house apart to find it.

"So it was until I evolved my 'Things Put Away' book which has proved to be a great help and comfort.

"Now when I put anything away I first enter it in that book, which is, of course, indexed, so that I won't have to look through a long list of things when I want to find anything.

"Once soon after I started the book I put that away somewhere very carefully and then forgot where I had put it and had a terrible time looking it up; but since then I have kept it in a spot where it can't fail to come under my eye daily; and it works like a charm.

"Really I should say that for anybody who like myself is apt to forget things a 'Things Put Away' book would be indispensable."

Safety in Industries.

Industrial accidents cost this country 35,000 human lives and many millions of dollars annually, according to the Arizona State Safety News. "In addition, dismemberments and other serious injuries total about 850,000 yearly, while the annual number of minor accidents, causing loss of time, exceeds 2,000,000. The putting forward of Safety is effected by well-known methods: First, you must have an organization that will handle the proposition; second, you have to put your plant and equipment into a proper and safe condition; third, you have to educate people as to the importance of their own responsibility to the safety cause. To keep the ball rolling is the problem which confronts all Safety organizations."
