PORTALES, ROOSEVELT COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1919

NUMBER

District Court

The only case of any importance in court this week, in so far as the civil docket was concerned, was the First National bank of Elida against Cleve George. This case grew out of a promissory note on which Mr. George was one of the sureties, and the fact that he had moved his cattle to grass last fall, thus temporarily absenting himself from his accustomed abode, was made the ground for the suit in attachment. The case was a hard fought one, the bank being represented by John T. McClure, of Roswell, and T. E. Mears, of this city; and Cleve George was represented by Judge G. L. Reese, of this city. The court gave the jury the general instructions covering such cases and two special findings requested by the plaintiff bank. The jury found for the defendant in all matters. Notice was given of a motion for a new trial and appeal.

Another case on the civil docket that was disposed of was the suit of J. B. Sledge and others against the board of county commissioners. This was an old case and involved the accuracy of surveys that had been made through the Benson addition to the town of Portales. The jury found for the commissioners.

In the case of the state against Ursi Keen, charged with the larceny of ten head of neat cattle in one count of the indictment, and with having driven from their accustomed range, ten head of neat cattle, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. Robert C. Dow prosecuted and Judge James A. Hall defended.

Judge Bratton declared a court recess from Friday, March 21, until Monday March 31, on account of the fact that a large majority of the jurors were men who owned more or less cattle, and the present state of the weather demanded that they be at home to look after their stock, or run a risk of considerable loss. This courtesy and thoughtfulness of the court was appreciated by every juror of the panel and it will meet with the approval of those who were not affected by the order, as well as those who were.

Several arrests have been made upon indictments found by the last grand jury, but it is doubtful if any of them will be brought to trial at this term of court.

Leslie P. Briggs, county agent for De Baca county, and four farmers from near Fort Sumner, were in the city the first of the week looking into the sweet potato situation. They stated that a large acreage of sweet potatoes would be planted in their country and that a storage house would be erected.

J. A. Saylor, who recently moved to Albuquerque, was in the city last Saturday. He was enroute to the oil fields of Mill's county, Texas, where he has some land in the oil belt. It is more than probable that Mr. Saylor has made a hit that will put him on easy street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Bomar late of this county but now of Clovis, were in the city Tuesday of this week.

Interesting Letter from France
Company E, 439th Supply Train,
A. P. O. No. 918, Am. E. F.,
February 4, 1918.

Dear Uncle:
I have been so busy since my return that I have not had a chance to write you a letter telling about the trip that I had to Aix-les-Bains. But first of all, since I returned, they are granting the enlisted men leave to Nice, and from here one can go to Italy. I am sorry that I did not get in on this but glad that I have had my leave.

First, Aix is a city of, I should say, something like thirty thousand. It is situated in a valley and surrounded by the mountains, and a very large lake.

Aix-les-Bains is both a summer and winter resort but has been closed all the time that the war has been going on up to the time that the government (U.S.) opened it for a leave area for enlisted men.

There are many side trips that you may take. One is a trip to the top of Mt. Revard; you take the cog railway and it takes two hours to get on top. From here you can see Italy, Switzerland, and the famous Mt. Blanc. Of course there is lots of snow up here and one can get a sled or skees and have lots of fun.

We also made a side trip to Shambrey. This used to be the capital of Savoy, and a very historic city of France. This is the city that Hannibal passed through with his army of elephants on his way to Rome with reinforcements for his brother; as you remember, he was cut off by the Romans and defeated and beheaded and his head sent to his brother, and later his brother was beheaded. A monument of four elephants was erected in this city; and I sent you a postal of it.

Another trip to the Cat's Tooth, by boat across the lake and then a hike of ten miles and a third, gets you to the Cat's Tooth; but from here you see the valley the elephant army passed through, and the mountains are very pretty.

The Y. M. C. A. has the Casino leased from the French. As you remember, this is the gambling house of France. It is composed of large reception halls, parlors, library, theatre, and game rooms. The construction and architecture are very beautiful. The grounds surrounding are very pretty—many tennis courts, gardens, and such places as lovers would choose for a quiet talk, or a good place to make up after a misunderstanding with your best girl. This is the place that Harry Thaw won in a single night, along with a hotel across the street; but he lost the fortune the same night. And in this hotel that he won is where his wife, Evelin Thaw, took a bath in champagne; might say that this is where the first shot was fired by these men that afterwards caused the real shooting. Across the street is the famous Silver Grill Room, where Stanford White, while drinking, bet sixty thousand that he could hit the breast of the nude portrait of a woman, and lost, as he missed the picture; and the bullet hole is still there.

The lake here is beautiful, and very clear, all the water coming from the snow-covered mountains. It is said to be the largest in France. This lake rises and falls at will. It is said that it has an underground current. One morning you may go for your boat and find it in the mud, the water having fallen, and later you may go back and have to swim if you get to it. There is some very fine fish in this lake.

Another noted feature of this city is the baths. They have the hot water, about 115 degrees Fr., coming from the ground. The bath house looks like one of our banks from the outside, but when you get in you find library, reception halls, parlors, and suits of bath rooms. You may get an alum bath, sulphur bath, pure water and many other baths. Mr. Morgan had a suite of rooms and took these baths for treatment. As for me, I took the shower and in the pond and the needle bath, only had one Turkish bath.

The roads here in France are wonderful and as they use the bike over here lots I had a ride each morning around the lake, and some times up in the mountains. I made one trip to the Gorges, and you also should have postals of this, as well as all other trips that I made, as I sent two of each trip that I made.

The hotels here are finest in the land, and you can't beat the French bed. Just ask any A. E. F. man about the French beds and he will tell you that they are the best things in France; leaving out the good looking girls, and none of the boys will acknowledge that they had anything to do with them.

I mentioned the baths before, but will give you a little more history of the baths. It is said that here in Aix- was the first public baths dating back to B. C. To see these old tubs and rooms you have to go through a hole something like ten by ten for about a hundred and fifty yards back in the mountain; here in rooms are the old tubs, made of rock and a furnace built under them, and a smooth surface of stone where you get out of the tub. These large rooms back there are as they appear to me to have been full of water at one time, as the rock is honey comb. Here is where the well is, or where the original five streams of water that came from the mountain is confined to one stream. This work was done by Italian engineers. There was so much hot water coming out of the mountains in the five streams that they did not know what to do with it, so these engineers decided that they would drill a well farther back than where the streams were coming out, and try and find the main stream. This they did, but four of the five engineers were drowned and the city of Aix- flooded. But they finally confined the water to one well, and the water flows out at a rate of one mile per minute. It is very hot back in the cave where the water comes out and one can hardly stay in there.

I sent you a postal of the Roman stairway, and the building erected by the Romans both two thousand years. Also sent you postals of the A erected by the Roman gen in honor of his family, this d back two thousand years, and stands now without a crack, the walls, a wonderful piece work.

I might mention that the that we got at the hotels is no ing that can be compliment as for breakfast they gave us same thing all the time that were there—coffee, war bre apple butter no sugar. C morning I ordered four eggs, th only cost me five francs, or $1 however we are used to this. were in the following large cit on our way: Nancy, Dijon, Le the last one being second larg city in France, and a very m ern city. I was all over it, I not have much time and spent of it on the street cars seeing much of the place as possib This city is situated on the Sa river as I remember. I have been to Paris but will get the before I come back, if possib I will end this letter by aski you for some vest pocket film. These French films are no go and we can't get the America You may send these to me in bundle of papers such as Lif Posts. I hope that you don't g out of breath reading this.

How Soldiers Can Get Back Pay Is Announced

At least one million and a quarter soldiers and sailors will receive the bonus of $60 as back pay granted in a recent act of congress, according to information received from the department by the local board of this city. The allowance is in accordance with the act of congress approved February 24th.

Section 1406 of the Revenue Act authorizes the payment of a bonus of $60 to officers, soldiers, field clerks and nurses of the army, upon honorable separation from active service by discharge, resignation or otherwise. This bonus is not payable to the heirs or representatives of any deceased soldier.

Those who are discharged hereafter will receive this bonus on the same roll or voucher upon which they are paid their final pay. Those who have been discharged and have received their final pay without the $60 bonus, should write a letter to the Zone Finance Officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C., stating their service since April 6, 1917, the date of last discharge and their present address to which they desire their bonus checks to be sent, and their discharge certificate or military order for discharge and both if both were issued.

The Kaiser as I Knew Him For Fourteen Years

ARTHUR N. DAVIS, D. D. S.

After the kaiser had had his sleep, I was summoned to his dressing room. He entered the room attired in a red flannel undershirt. It was the first time I had ever seen him in such a state of plebian negligee, and I received more or less of a shock. I had been so accustomed to seeing him in uniform, both in pictures and in person, that it had never occurred to me that underneath that symbol of pomp the kaiser probably dressed the same as we lesser mortals. I noticed incidentally that when he put on his military coat he put it on right over his undershirt.

Homburg was much nearer the firing line than Pless, although, of course, at a very safe distance. I noticed, however, that here anti-aircraft guns had been planted, but apart from that there was hardly any more activity than there had been at Pless.

While walking down the corridor I was stopped by an officer and asked who I was, but, as a rule, I came and went without molestation and seldom had to show my pass, which one of the kaiser's adjutants had given me and which permitted me to enter and leave army headquarters for the whole year 1917.

When I was driven through the streets of Homburg, both coming from and going to the railroad station, in the kaiser's motorcar, and the second man, or bugler, on the front seat, blew the horn, people came running out of stores and from afar to get a view of the important personage who occupied the kaiser's own car! Many of them saluted me or raised their hats, and I thought how angry they would have been had they known they were putting themselves to so much trouble to salute an alien enemy!

The ridiculousness of the whole thing impressed me very much. For the moment I was part of the play which was ever being made to impress and awe those whom the kaiser was pleased to refer to as "my people," but whose approbation means everything, even to a monarch who rules "by divine right."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Kaiser and Things American.

Among the Germans generally there is a surprising degree of ignorance regarding conditions in America. The untraveled German has but the vaguest ideas concerning our people and our institutions. I have had patients of intelligence and education ask me how we are able to cope with the Indians. In view of the extent of German emigration to America and the vast volume of commercial transactions between the two countries, it is almost unbelievable that such erroneous notions should prevail in these enlightened days, but they do.

This fact partially serves to explain how easy it was for the kaiser and his inspired press to pull the wool over the people's eyes regarding the unimportance of America's entry into the war. It doesn't explain at all, however, how completely the kaiser himself underestimated us and our power, for I doubt whether there is any foreigner living, who has never visited America who knows more about our country than the German emperor. Indeed, he was more familiar with many of our problems than many of our countrymen, and he frequently revealed to me in the course of our conversations how thoroughly posted he was on American conditions.

Long before the subject of forest conservation was taken up seriously in his country, the kaiser pointed out to me what a great mistake we were making in not devoting more attention to it.

"Can you tell me, Davis, why you have so many forest fires in your country?" he asked, after a particularly destructive conflagration in the West had destroyed many acres of timber. "How does it happen?"

I explained to him that most of the forest fires came from sparks from locomotives. Careless lumbermen allowed the branches which they lopped off the trees to remain on the ground and when they were ignited by sparks the fire sometimes spread to the uncut timber. As the facilities for extinguishing fire in these unpopulated regions were practically nil and the climate made the timber particularly inflammable, these fires usually attained serious dimensions.

"That points out again the inefficiency of your form of government," he commented. "You have laws requiring the railways to use appliances to arrest the sparks from their engines, haven't you? Why don't you enforce them? Your people don't seem to realize that it takes years to grow a tree. Because you have more than you need today, you make no preparation for tomorrow. For every tree cut down another should be planted. If you don't adopt some such measure the time will surely come when America will have to turn to Germany for timber."

The kaiser was a harsh critic of our election system. The idea of a four-year term for the president was naturally repugnant to one who held such exalted notions as to the rights of rulers. It would be too much to expect the Hohenzollern mind to approve of a constitution which provided for the ruler's return to private life after a period of four years at the head of the government.

He declared that with a constant change of administration it was quite out of the question for this country to follow any definite policy. It was bad enough even so far as internal affairs were concerned, he said, but such a system made it impossible he thought for America ever to take a prominent place in international politics.

"You can't expect the nations of the world to deal with America as they deal among themselves when the next change of administration may mean the adoption of an entirely new foreign policy," he declared. "There can be nothing stable about the foreign policy of a nation whose leaders change every four years."

American party politics were a constant source of embarrassment to the kaiser. He always seemed undecided as to just how he should receive an American of prominence. If he happened to be of the same political faith as the administration, the kaiser was afraid to do him too much honor for fear of offending the opposing party, who might win the next election; and if he were not of the same party as the administration, the kaiser feared to honor him lest more immediate resentment be stirred up in America. Thus he refused to receive Bryan on two different occasions when a Republican administration was in power.

He criticized very strongly, too, our election methods. "Instead of discussing principles, your political candidates exchange personalities," he said. "My people would be shocked at the sort of speeches and accusations which figure in all your political campaigns. Over here, nothing of the kind is ever heard."

The kaiser was very much interested in our negro problem. It seemed to have a great fascination for him, and he frequently referred to it. He told me that he understood there were 15,000,000 negroes in this country, but they were dying off in great numbers through consumption and other diseases to which they offered but poor resistance.

"The negro will always be a great problem in your country, however," he added. "They don't mix socially with the whites, and there will be constant friction. My brother (Prince Henry), when he returned from his visit to America, told me a lot about these negroes. Indeed, one of the most impressive things he heard there was a choir of negro voices. He said they sang some wonderful melodies, and their voices were as clear as bells."

After the war started, the kaiser referred to the negroes again. "Now is your chance to settle your negro problem," he declared, half facetiously, of course. "If America insists upon coming into the war, why doesn't she send her negroes across and let us shoot them down?"

When a fleet of our battleships visited Kiel some six years ago the kaiser paid them a visit and was very much interested. When he called to see me shortly afterward he told me of his experience.

"I went over the ships from top to bottom," he declared. "They are excellent vessels, every one of them, and I was very much impressed with the way they are manned and officered. I have only one criticism—the lattice-work conning towers, or fighting masts. The only possible use I can see in them would be to train vines on them and install an elevator inside, and serve tea in the afternoon to the ladies on top—the most beautiful place for serving afternoon tea I can imagine."

"But, seriously speaking," he went on, "I can't see that these masts have any practical value. On the contrary, I can see very serious disadvantages in them. No matter what nation you might be fighting, your enemy would always be able to recognize you at a distance, before you could identify him, because the warships of all other nations look very much alike at a distance."

"They say these conning towers are armed," he went on, "but you would never get close enough to your enemy to use such small guns. Again, if one of those masts were hit it would send a shower of steel about the heads of the men on board, and would not only put many of them out of action, but would be in the way. Suppose, too, the mast were struck down and hung over the side? It would drag through the water, and would not only seriously impede the vessel, but it would cause the ship to list and expose a larger area on one side than would be safe. No, Davis, your fighting masts, as I have said, might answer first-rate for serving tea, but I don't think much of them for active service."

But if the kaiser saw much in American ways and customs to condemn, he likewise saw much to commend, and, before the war, he was liberal in his praise of many of our qualities and achievements.

He was very much interested, for instance, in the experiments and discoveries of Luther Burbank. To make Germany self-supporting as far as food resources were concerned was one of his dearest ambitions. He realized that in the event of a world war his people would probably suffer more from lack of food than they would from hostile bullets, and he was hoping that he would be able to obviate that condition before his country was put to the test. He was constantly preaching simplified diet and the conservation of food reserves, and he had great hopes that much could be done in a scientific way to help solve general food problems. When attending dinners given him by his officers, his wishes respecting simple menus were always carefully followed.

The kaiser enjoyed American humor. He was very fond of Mark Twain, and he followed one or two of the American monthlies and weeklies more or less regularly. He told me that, one evening while in his sitting room in the Berlin palace, reading something in an American magazine, he ran across a story which caused him to laugh so much and so loud that the ladies of the court, who heard him in an adjacent room, came running in with their knitting to see what the matter was.

The kaiser had little respect for our architecture. He thought our skyscrapers, of which he had seen illustrations, were hideous.

"How terrible to desecrate the landscape with such tall buildings," he commented.

Perhaps the quality that he envied most in us was our inventive genius. When Orville Wright was flying at Tempelhof Field, in Berlin, in the early days of aviation, the kaiser could not restrain his admiration.

"I wish I could encourage my people to become great inventors, such as America has produced," he declared, rather hopelessly. "I admire your wonderful inventive genius."

The kaiser objected very much to the fact that many of the foreign opera singers were attracted to New York by reason of the fabulous sums paid them at the Metropolitan opera house.

Despite the fact that the kaiser accused us of spending our money too lavishly, he repeatedly charged the English as well as ourselves with being money-worshippers.

"The Anglo-Saxons worship mammon, and they try to gloss it all over with a show of religion," he said. "Your rich Americans have so much money, Davis, that they really don't know what to do with it. Why, recently one of your millionaires saw my castle at Corfu and sent one of his representatives to the court with the presumptuous message, 'Please tell the kaiser that I will buy his castle at Corfu, and ask him what his price is!' I had word sent back that the castle was not for sale. The American then told my representative that he wouldn't take 'no' for an answer. The cheek of the man! He said he didn't care how much it cost. I sent word back to that man that there were not enough dollars in the world to buy that castle. There are some things that your dollars won't buy, Davis, and one of them is my beautiful castle at Corfu!"

CHAPTER XV.

The German People.

The oath of allegiance which every German soldier and public official takes binds him first to support the kaiser, with his life and his money, and then the fatherland.

That is what the kaiser referred to when he said, in the course of an address to a body of recruits at Potsdam:

"Body and soul you belong to me. If I command you to shoot your fathers and your mothers . . . you must follow my command without a murmur."

The same thought is involved, of course, in the kaiser's invariable use of the possessive pronoun, first person, in talking of the German people. He always says "my people," never "the people." The worst feature about it is that not only does the kaiser proceed upon the assumption that he owns the German people "body and soul," but the people themselves are willing to admit it. The Germans are the most willing vassals in the world.

Veneration and awe of the kaiser are bred in the bone of the Germans. Even among the socialists, who are not nearly as opposed to the monarchial idea as is commonly supposed, there is strong sentiment of loyalty toward the emperor. True, the socialists are clamoring constantly for the reform vote and other political changes, but I doubt very much whether—before the war, at any rate—any large percentage of socialists would have seized the opportunity to dethrone the kaiser had it presented itself. Certainly any such attempt would have been speedily smothered by those who remained loyal, even without the aid of the military.

As long as the kaiser is able to uphold Germany's place among the nations of the world, so long will his people uphold him. They will stand behind him as long as he goes forward; they will repudiate him as soon as he turns back. They will acclaim him in triumph, but will not tolerate him in defeat. The kaiser himself realizes that his tenure of office rests upon victory. The war was started for the sake of world dominion; it has been continued solely to save the kaiser's throne.

Coming into such intimate and frequent contact with the kaiser, I had a wonderful opportunity to observe the relations which existed between him and his people.

The conduct of the people since the war affords no safe criterion of their normal views and sentiments. The activity of government agents and the power of the inspired press exerted such a great influence on the feelings of the people that any outward signs of enthusiasm which they displayed must be liberally discounted. The demonstrations in favor of the kaiser and his leaders since the war have been more or less artificial, the crowd being worked up by government agents and the press accounts have invariably magnified them. Before the war, however, whatever acclaim the kaiser received from the public came spontaneously, and was for that reason of greater significance.

I know that whenever the kaiser called at my office great crowds gathered outside to catch a glimpse of him when he came out. They waited patiently, sometimes for as long as an hour, for the sake of greeting their emperor. Their conduct on these occasions showed very plainly that he had a strong hold on their affections. The kaiser was their idol, and they were ready to suffer any inconvenience for the sake of doing him honor.

It was customary for classes of school children to be taken to the Tiergarten from time to time to study the groups of statues of the kaiser's ancestors in the Sieges Allee. They usually passed my house on their way to their object-lesson in patriotism. Sometimes, when the kaiser was at my house, I have seen these children bailed in front of the place to await the emperor's departure, their teachers, no doubt, feeling that the youngsters would gain greater inspiration from a fleeting glimpse of the living monarch than they could possibly derive from a prolonged study of the statues of his departed ancestors.

Most of my patients knew that the kaiser visited me, and they never tired of asking questions about him. It was almost impossible for them to believe that they were to have the privilege of sitting in the very chair which their kaiser had occupied.

"Does the kaiser actually sit in this very chair?" they would ask in incredulous tones. "Does he ever talk about anything? Please tell me what he said the last time he was here."

A new German office girl whom I had engaged attracted the kaiser's attention, and he was gracious enough to shake hands with her. After he had left the girl held out the hand the kaiser had grasped and said she wouldn't wash it for a week!

"Just to think, this hand has grasped the kaiser's hand! When I tell my family about it tonight they won't believe it!"

The fact that the kaiser condescended to acknowledge the plaudits of his people by a salute or a wave of the hand was cited as proof of his graciousness and kindness; their god was smiling on them, and their gratification was overwhelming.

To maintain this state of veneration was one of the kaiser's principal concerns. That was why he never appeared in public except in full uniform; why he always rode a white horse, while the rest of his staff rode dark ones; why the pictures of him that were allowed to be circulated always showed him to the very best advantage; why every case of lese majeste was punished with the utmost severity; why, in short, every possible precaution was taken that the exalted ideas which the public held regarding their kaiser should never be undermined.

With this spirit of devotion dominating the people generally, it was only to be expected that they should have stood solidly behind their emperor when he sought to achieve the one ambition of his life—his dream of world dominion.

There is no doubt that the war was planned and made possible by the militarists and the junkers, and that every effort was made to conceal from the people its real purpose and ultimate goal; but if anyone imagines that the people at large would have held back had they realized the truth, he fails to understand the underlying spirit of the Teutonic race.

The Germans are the most quarrelsome people in the world. It is misleading to speak of the German militarists. All Germans are militarists. The records of their civil courts tell the story. In 1913 there were no less than 5,000,000 petty cases tried in the courts, and as every case naturally involved at least two parties, the astonishing fact is disclosed that some 10,000,000 Germans, or one-seventh of the entire population, appealed to the courts in a single year!

The bellicose character of the people was evidenced in countless other ways. It was the natural result of what I believe to be the most pronounced national shortcoming—selfishness. The average German is the most selfish individual in the world. He thinks of himself and his own comfort first, last and all the time. I have noticed it on the street cars, in the theaters, in the public highways, in the restaurants and hotels, where people congregate. Every one looked out for himself first and pushed aside those who stood in his way. In civil life, just as in a state of war, the German practiced the principle that might makes right.

Chivalry, courtesy, magnanimity are as foreign to the German makeup as they are characteristics of the French. A keen desire to make something out of nothing is another national trait of the Germans, if my observation has been accurate. What is commonly referred to as German thrift is only a polite name for German stinginess, and I have seen so many illustrations of the petty meanness of the German people that it seems idle to specify single instances.

One of the first impressions I received about the German people, when I went to live among them fourteen years ago, was the lack of comradeship among them. Class distinctions are drawn so fine, and there are so many gradations, that it was almost impossible to find two Germans on the same social plane. One was always the other's superior. After my fourteen years' experience among these people, I cannot say that that early impression has been removed; if anything, it has been deepened.

Such were the people behind the kaiser when the great war started. I shall never forget the sentiments expressed to me by private individuals in every walk of life as the various phases of the war developed.

No measure that was taken by Germany, no matter how atrocious or inconsistent with the world's idea of what is permissible in civilized warfare, ever brought a word of condemnation from the German public as a whole, although, of course, there were some notable exceptions. The great majority of Germans who discussed these matters with me, however, not only defended everything Germany did, but complained because more rigorous measures were not taken.

Merely by way of example, and not because her suggestion was any worse than hundreds of others raised by my German patients, I may mention the surprising viewpoint expressed by the Countess Sierstorff, a relative of Von Henckell-Donnersmarch. It was after Italy had joined the allies and when German resentment against that nation ran very high.

"What we should do at the very first available opportunity," she declared, "is to destroy every single work of art in Italy. Not a single one of their landmarks or art treasures should be left standing. Then when the war is over and Italy no longer derives the enormous revenue she has been collecting for years from tourists, she will be sorry for what she has done to Germany!"

Did the German people countenance the submarine warfare and the slaughter of innocent women and children, in defiance of all rules of international law and the dictates of common humanity? They had only one criticism to make of it—it was not comprehensive enough! It was absolute folly, if not a crime, they said, for Germany to prescribe safety lanes for neutral vessels to use. The whole world should have been declared a war zone, that death and destruction might be dealt wherever and whenever the opportunity offered. Every ship that sailed should be sunk, and every American who ventured within range of a German gun, on sea or land, should be shot. That was the universal sentiment.

The suggestion that a continuation of the submarine warfare would inevitably bring America into the war did not perturb the people in the slightest.

"How can America do us more harm than she is now doing?" they asked. "American bullets are shooting down our men, American food is sustaining our enemies, American dollars are working against us in every possible way. Let America come into the war and give us a chance to pay her back for what she has done to us. She couldn't harm us any more if she were a belligerent. Why allow her to remain neutral and go unscathed?"

Get New Kidneys!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

Do not delay a minute. At the first indication of trouble in the kidney, liver, bladder or urinary organs start taking Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules, and save yourself before it is too late. Instant treatment is necessary in kidney and bladder troubles. A delay is often fatal.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unerring remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles.

It is the pure, original Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used. About two capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A BOOKWORM.

"I tried cork biting once," said one bookworm to another bookworm.

They Could Have Hung the Books Up.

Now the second bookworm was known as Billie and the first bookworm was known as Willie.

"Tell me what you did," said Willie. "We will not pay attention to what foolish people say. We will forget about their pitiful ignorance."

"They call people who read books all the time bookworms and they aren't at all. So that shows you how foolish people are."

"That shows us," said Billie. "They don't care for books as I do."

"But then," said Willie, "I am called a bookworm and I really belong to the bookworm family and yet the last thing I did was to bite through a cork."

"Let us not talk of that subject any more then," said Billie. "It is rather confusing and mixing. Let us tell each other of the adventures we have had."

"Well," said Willie, "the last adventure I had was to bite through a cork, as I have just told you, and while it was a lovely adventure and while I enjoyed it so much, still as I say it again it does seem absurd to think how often I am known as THE bookworm when I find pleasure in biting corks."

"Well," said Billie, "would you like to hear about the last thing I did?"

"I would like to hear about it immensely," said Willie. "Pray tell it to me as soon as you can."

"I have been true to my family name, for I have gone through twenty-seven books, all standing together in a row. I have gone through every single page. I haven't skipped a single one."

"Twenty-seven volumes, or twenty-seven books," said Willie. "To think of that! That is truly amazing."

"Yes," said Billie. "I went through a whole set of books. I wasn't like some lazy creatures who pick up a little short book and go through its pages. But I chose a long set of books—I did."

"You deserve the family name," said Willie.

"Perhaps I do," said Billie, "but I am quite willing to share it with others."

"That's good of you," said Willie. "Well, did you find anything interesting in all those books?" asked Willie after a pause.

"Not a thing," said Billie. "To go through a book, or many books is one thing, but to read any of them would be quite different."

"I love books, but I don't care for reading. That might sound strange to some folks, but the bookworm families know that being a bookworm doesn't mean reading words."

"But ah, what do you think I did?" asked Billie.

"What?" asked Willie.

"I went through each page of each book along on the shelf in just the very same spot, so that they could have put through a ribbon or a string or anything they might have had near at hand through all those many holes and hung the books up instead of standing them on the shelves. I thought they might care to change the books a little, so I did my best to help."

"That was good of you," said Willie, "and you certainly have an adventure to relate well worth hearing."

"And the final result was quite worth seeing, too, and by final result I mean after I had finished going through all those many books in that same place, all the way through."

"I congratulate you," said Willie. "You're a bookworm all right."

"Thank you," said Billie, "but you're a bookworm too, even if you didn't do as I did."

BITTER TASTE SOUP STOMACH

Pills and Strong Medicines Made This Lady's Troubles Worse, But Thedford's Black-Draught Improved Her Appetite and Took Away Her Bile.

Nancy, Ky.—Mrs. Cora Waddle, a resident of this place, gives out this statement: "I have taken Black-Draught and found it to be the best liver medicine I ever used. It has just been fine for indigestion, sour stomach and a bitter taste in the mouth."

I used to get bilious and constipated and had to take something. Pills and other strong medicines would only tear my stomach up and leave me in a worse fix than before taking. I began to have sick headache.

After learning of Black-Draught I took it and was cured of sick headaches. One or two doses a week, or a pinch after meals, kept the bowels open and took away all bile. I have a good appetite, due to my use of Black-Draught.

If your liver is not acting properly you may suffer from such symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless relief is obtained serious trouble may result.

In its 70 years of successful use, Thedford's Black-Draught has been found to relieve these ailments and stimulate the liver to do its work. At all druggists.—Adv.

Good Reasons.

The Browns and Smiths have been friends—very good ones, too—until recently. The little five-year-old Brown boy was accustomed to spend quite as much time at the Smith home as at his own. Probably his continued presence made Mrs. Smith rather careless; perhaps she did not know that he was there that unfortunate day. But at any rate he was.

That night after supper he climbed on his mother's lap and stroked her cheek. Suddenly he looked at her more closely. "Mother," he exclaimed, earnestly, "you are getting old. You do look faded."

"Who said so?" demanded mother instantly.

"Mrs. Smith did," answered Little Brown, and then his mother decided no longer to keep her next-door neighbor on her speaking list.

The True Spirit.

"Your boy Josh made a fine soldier, I understand."

"No doubt about it," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "He jes' follows instructions and don't ask no whys an' wherefores. Why, Josh doesn't even complain 'bout wearin' one of them pointed hats that make him look like he was goin' to a masquerade."

Of Course Not.

"Those prohibition speeches were very tame."

ROAD BUILDING

ISSUE WEATHER FORECASTS

Aid for Automobile and Motortruck Traffic During Winter Over Lincoln Highway.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture has arranged, in co-operation with the state highway commission of Pennsylvania, to aid the automobile and motortruck traffic during the winter over the Lincoln highway between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg by giving out daily information of the weather conditions prevailing over the route and issuing weather forecasts and warnings of heavy snows and cold waves for the region traversed. The plan is for the assistant superintendents of highways at points along the route to report to the weather bureau office at Pittsburgh at eight o'clock each morning by telephone or telegraph the depth of snow or ice on the highway, giving its general condition. These reports are published in the newspapers and furnished to the different automobile clubs, thus becoming available to automobile and motortruck drivers passing over the highway. The forecasts and warnings are given public distribution and telegraphed to the superintendent of highways at Harrisburg, who gives instructions to his forces along the highway to make provisions for the anticipated weather conditions. This service was in operation last winter and gave great satisfaction. The weather bureau is ready to give similar service to other traffic routes as may be desired.

DRAGGING IS OF IMPORTANCE

Road Improvement May Well Be Considered Reconstruction Measure—Increases Farm Values.

Roads should not be neglected at this time in our endeavor to increase food production. Road improvement might well be deemed a reconstruction measure. In many communities they are much better than in others because the farmers are back of the good roads movement. They realize that a good road saves labor, time, horse flesh and automobile repairs and in addition increases the selling value of the farm.

Every progressive farmer should have a road drag and not be afraid to use it. A well-dragged road is a well-crowned road, and a well-drained road. The dragging should follow each rain. If properly used it will bring a thin layer of earth toward the center of the road at each dragging. The travel will roll and solidify it between rains.

On roads where too much crown has been formed the angle of the drag can be reversed. A few draggings will reduce the high crown to a more level and much safer road for fast automobile traffic.

FOUNDATION OF FARM LIFE

Upon Good Roads Depends Marketing of Various Crops and Better Schooling of Children.

Good roads are the very foundation of country life. Upon them depends the marketing of what farmers grow, the pleasures of social life, and the better schooling of the children. If life is made better by good roads, surely they are worth paying for. There is nothing so much worth while as happiness. The interurban lines have increased it for a few; the auto has brought it to many more, and good roads everywhere would bless all.

WERE NOT TRYING TO FLIRT

Nervous Woman Rather Flattered Herself as Being the Object of Strange Men's Attentions.

A woman who labored under the delusion that men were always on the lookout to speak to unaccompanied females was rather nervous walking along a city street one evening. Two men were just behind her, laughing and chatting in a very queer fashion, she thought.

"May I join you?" she asked of two women walking in front of her.

"Certainly," they replied. The three walked along. Still the two men followed. They were still laughing and making comments which, though inaudible, the woman felt were directed toward her.

"Thank you for letting me go along with you," she said to her two companions as she left them at a subway entrance. "As a matter of fact those two men walking back of us made me very nervous. I think they have been trying to speak to me."

The women glanced back.

"Oh, indeed!" replied one, laughing, "those men are our husbands!"—Judge.

A DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPER

SAVE YOUR THRIFT STAMPS

The government is making an appeal to the patriotic Americans to hold onto the Thrift Stamps purchased during the war. This was a loan made and accepted in good faith by both parties, and both parties should abide strictly by the terms of the agreement. The purchase of these stamps by the people constituted a big factor in the winning of the war; it gave to the government much needed money with which to equip our soldiers in the field, yet if this money is to be withdrawn immediately after the war is over, it would have been much better never to have bought them. The same principle is involved as would be if one were to loan to a friend and then when that friend got into a tight, demand his money and force a collection. Your government needs the money now just as desperately as it did during actual hostilities. Our soldiers are in a foreign land, they must come home; they must be fed and clothed; the government must furnish the money. Are you going to be a quitter; are you going to leave your country in the lurch; are you going to furnish the Bolsheviki the very evidence it wants to spread its propaganda? The failure of this government to make good its pledge to our army will go farther towards fastening upon us all the evils of Socialism and Bolshevism than any other known cause. We are at a critical stage; have reached a crisis in our national affairs and, if we are to escape the evils that are besetting Europe, we must bring our patriotism to the surface; must do our full part toward society and our government. The whole democratic structure of our nation is on trial and must stand or fall according to the intelligence and patriotism we bring to bear upon present conditions. Are you going to be one of those who will place the value of the few Thrift Stamps you own against the success or failure of your own government? Thrift is the greatest enemy of the Bolsheviki and the Thrift Stamps are the chevrons worn by their owners which signify that the spirit of Americanism and liberty is still alive in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Uncle Sam in Lumber Business

The Government put over a haymaker last year but it was war work. We were striving desperately then to save homes that were already built. Times have changed; Uncle Sam cleaned up on the Hun and the homes are no longer in danger. The Government is now taking an active practical interest in building more and better homes. A specified branch of the Government has been formed to aid in this work. Let us help you.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POISONS FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" IF CROSS, BILIOUS OR FEVERISH.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out of sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

GOING BACK TO NATURE

BY DR. W. LUCAS.

People get sick because they go away from Nature, and the only way to get well is to go back. Something grows out of the ground in the form of vegetation to cure almost every ill. Some of these vegetable growths are understood by man, and some are not. Animals, it would seem, know what to do when they are sick better than men and women. Observers have noted that a sick horse, dog or cat will stop eating food and seek out some vegetable growth in the field or yard, which, when found and eaten, often restores appetite and health. Haven't you seen these animals do this very thing yourself?

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found the herbs and roots provided by Nature to overcome constipation, and he had these vegetables collected and made up of Mayapple, leaves of Aloe, root of Jalap, into little white sugar-coated pills, that he called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. You must understand that when your intestines are stopped up, poisons and decayed matter are imprisoned in your system, and these are carried by the blood throughout your body. Thus does your head ache, you get dizzy, you can't sleep, your skin may break out, your appetite declines, you get tired and despondent. As a matter of fact, you may get sick all over. Don't you see how useless all this suffering is? All that is often needed is a few of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which he has placed in all drug stores for your convenience and health. Try them by all means. They are probably the very thing you need right now.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

A small bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—it costs but a few cents—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this. Adv.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale." According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

POULTRY

INJURY TO EGGS IN TRANSIT

Much of Damage Is Directly Due to Faulty Methods of Packing Valuable Foodstuff.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The bureau of chemistry, through the food research laboratory, has been assisting in reducing the damage to eggs in transit by giving practical demonstrations at shipping points in loading cars of eggs or mixed eggs and dressed poultry. Much of the damage is directly due to faulty methods of packing eggs in cases and stowing the cases in the car. Four meetings held recently in Iowa were attended by over a hundred shippers who send cars weekly, at least, to eastern markets and who expressed great interest in the methods which the department has worked out for the conservation of this valuable foodstuff. They and many others have found the department's folder, "How to Load Cars of Eggs," of assistance. Copies of this folder can be had by writing to the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Fiber-Board Box Filled With Corrugated Lining and Fillers of Same Material—Each Egg Has a Wrap.

VIGOROUS HEN FOR BREEDING

Fowl That Lays Well All Winter Unfit for That Purpose—Chicks Not Strong.

The old hens I use for breeders are selected early in the winter months and penned to themselves. In selecting hens for breeders, the first point I consider is vigor. A hen that does not show an appearance of vigor is rejected, no matter how many fancy points she scores.

The old hens are fed a maintenance ration—that is, a ration that will keep them well nourished without unduly stimulating egg production. My experience is that a hen that lays well all winter is unfit for the breeding pen, says a writer in an exchange. Her eggs will not usually run high in fertility, and the chicks that hatch will not be strong. The reason for this is that heavy egg production is weakening, and that the hen cannot impart to her offspring a strong, vigorous constitution when she herself is in a weakened condition.

A month before eggs are wanted for hatching I gradually work the hens back to a laying ration. Beef scrap is added to the mash and the ration is made less bulky in character. My experience is that when these hens do commence laying, they lay much better than the ones that laid well all winter. And they are much less likely to go broody at the time when eggs are especially wanted for breeding.

PULLETS HATCHED IN SPRING

Eggs Can Be Assured From Fowls in Fall—Proper Housing and Feeding of Importance.

Poultry owners who wish to obtain eggs in the fall and early winter should arrange to hatch their pullets in March or April, say specialists in the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. Birds hatched in March or April will be well matured in the fall. The rest is a matter of proper housing, feeding, and handling. The chicken house should be comfortably warm, well ventilated, and clean. The feed should include beef scrap or similar material. There should be temptation to exercise in scratching over clean litter on the floor.

Contented Hen Is Best. Keep your hens comfortable. Make them feel contented and happy. A singing hen is a laying hen.

Tonight! Take Dodson's Liver Tone! Better Than Calomel For Liver

Calomel sickens! If bilious, constipated and head-achy read my guarantee.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful tonight, and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning, I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not sallowate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.—Adv.

MORE GOOD SALADS.

Fruit and vegetables are absolutely essential to good health and should not be considered an extravagance. This does not mean buying them out of season, however, for there are always fruits to be had in the markets that are reasonable in price and are nutritious.

Mock Lobster Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of cold flaked cooked haddock with two cupfuls of celery, add two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped pimentos, season with salt, paprika and add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and let stand half an hour. Add a cupful of mayonnaise and serve at once. Garnish with lemon slices decorated with paprika.

New York Salad.—Arrange four slices of pineapple on lettuce leaves. Cut one-half cupful of celery into long slender strips and mix with one-half cupful of nut meats. Pile in the center of the pineapple and garnish with four sections freed from its membrane, laid symmetrically on the pineapple. The dressing is passed separately.

Marshmallow Salad.—Cut two oranges in halves, remove the pulp carefully leaving the cups. Cut a slice of pineapple and eight marshmallows in bits, chop one-fourth cupful of nuts, skin and seed one-half cupful of white grapes, mix with the orange pulp and a little dressing. Fill the cups, cover with dressing and cross with two strips of canned pimento. Place a half grape on the center of the salad and bits of chopped parsley between the strips of pimento.

Nut Fruit Salad.—Take one cupful of cooked peas, one cupful of celery, cut in cubes, one cupful of walnut meats and one cupful of shredded orange. Serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Chicken Salad.—Cut chicken into bits, using two cupfuls, add one cupful of celery, one cupful of diced cucumber and two tablespoonfuls of capers. Season with salt and pepper and mix with a boiled or mayonnaise dressing to which an equal quantity of whipped cream has been added. Serve on lettuce.

Friendship supplies the place of everything to those who know how to make the right use of it; it makes your prosperity more happy and it makes your adversity more easy.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Gelatin is an easily digested food and one especially good for desserts after a hearty meal.

Jellied Prunes.—Wash one pound of prunes, soak in cold water overnight and cook until tender; cut each prune into three or four pieces (discarding the stones). There should be about five cupfuls of the prunes and liquid. Dissolve one package of gelatin softened in one cupful of cold water in the hot prune juice; add one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of orange marmalade or the juice of one lemon; stir until it begins to thicken, then turn into a mold. Set aside in a cool place.

Casserole of Rice and Veal.—Line a mold slightly greased with steamed rice. Fill the center with two cupfuls of cold cooked, chopped veal, seasoned with salt, pepper, celery salt, cayenne, onion and lemon juice. Add one-fourth of a cupful of cracker crumbs, one egg slightly beaten and enough hot stock or water to moisten. Cover the meat with rice, cover the rice with a buttered paper to keep out the moisture, and steam 45 minutes. Serve on a platter surrounded with tomato sauce.

Tomato Sauce.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well-blended and cooked add one cupful of strained tomato which has been cooked with a slice of onion for flavor. Cook all together, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper.

Cream of Celery With Almonds.—Cook two cupfuls of chopped celery until tender, then drain. Add a tablespoonful of corn starch mixed with a cupful of cream and one cupful of almond meats blanched and chopped.

POEMS ARE WRITTEN ABOUT US.

Instead of having to live up to their ancestors; they mean the people who have gone before them, who are of their own family.

"For instance, a little boy's grandfather and his great grandfather and his grandmother and his great grandmother and those people of his family who came before him—they are all his ancestors."

"Well," said the second piece of coal, "we haven't any coal grandfathers."

"That is true," said the first piece of coal, "but I spoke of our ancestors meaning the coal which was around last winter. I am sorry if I mixed you up at all."

"I'll forgive you," said the second piece of coal. "I am glad to know what ancestors are. But I don't think they are as nice as roaring fires. Now if we had ancestors and could choose them ourselves I'd pick out furnaces and coal fires."

"That's a good idea," said the first piece of coal, "but of course ancestors are never chosen. We can't choose those who go before us, and besides the furnaces and the coal fires don't go before us. They go with us. They wouldn't do for ancestors anyway."

"Maybe not," said the second piece of coal, "but let us pretend they would. It's such a pleasant thought to be related to a furnace fire."

"That's so," said the first piece of coal. "As we can't have ready-made ancestors, and as we can't have any really at all, we might as well have some make-believe ones. But I was going to tell you what made it particularly hard for me to keep from boasting this year."

"Oh yes, tell me."

"Well, you know that we're always appreciated and liked in the winter. We were scarce last year and we're rather scarce too this year, so we're loved better than ever. Last year there were pictures drawn with coal as the most important thing in the picture, but oh, piece of coal, I have just heard that there have been two poems written about us. Yes, we've been written about in verse or verses, telling how valuable and fine and how much needed we were."

"That's surely enough to make it almost impossible to keep from boasting. To think, oh to think, that poems were written about us. Ah," ended the second piece of coal, "I believe I could almost write one myself. I would say something like this, 'Oh coal, bless my soul!'"

THE PROUD COAL

"I don't like to boast," said one piece of coal, "but still it is hard not to boast this winter."

"I find it hard every winter not to boast," said a second piece of coal.

"That is so," said the first piece of coal, "but it is harder as the winters go by. Now last winter I had the hardest time of all to keep from boasting."

"Why last winter, especially?" asked the second piece of coal.

"Last winter," said the first piece of coal in a deep, black voice, "we were very scarce. Folks had all they could do to get us. They were very often short of coal, and when we arrived anywhere we were very much appreciated. Yes, I've heard the ancestors talking about it."

"What are ancestors?" asked the second piece of coal.

"Ancestors," said the first piece of coal, "are things that go before us."

"I see," said the second piece of coal, "we'd call horses ancestors because they go before wagons. And we'd call the handle-bars of bicycles ancestors because they go before the children which ride them."

"Ha, ha, ha, not at all," said the first piece of coal.

"Then you must surely explain."

"I will. When folks talk about their ancestors, which, by the way, they're very apt to do, especially if they have had great and noble ancestors and want to boast, and think that they don't have to do anything but brag,

Forty Five Years of Success
The astonishing Record of
PERUNA

Not a cure-all, but a rational remedy for catarrh and all inflammation and congestion of the mucous membranes.

Catarrh attacks the mucous linings, in any organ, in any part of the body. It is not, as some imagine, confined to the nose and throat, although nasal catarrh is the most common form and afflicts many people.

Unchecked catarrh soon breaks down the tissue and destroys the organs or part. Evidence of the ravages of catarrh are all around us. Without desire to frighten anyone, we say: "Guard yourself against catarrh as you would against the direst plague. Fortify your system. Take Peruna."

A Good Medicine in the Family.
I had a bad case of LaGrippe and could get no relief. Peruna cured me. It is a fine medicine. We often use it in the family and find it good.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GIBBY'S TARTAR EMERALD CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or displace the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

Acid-Stomach Now Quickly Relieved

Those painful attacks of indigestion, heart-burn, belching, disgusting food-repeating; that puff bloated, lumpy feeling; after eating, dyspepsia and stomach miseries—all point to just one awful American disease—commonly known as ACID-STOMACH.

Fortunately there has been discovered a wonderful modern remedy—called EATONIC—that brings instant relief from all these stomach miseries because it absorbs the hurtful excess acid in the stomach and drives out the blast and gas. You won't know you have a stomach, so free of pain you'll feel. Besides, it saves you from more serious ailments because it is a scientific fact that ACID-STOMACH frequently creates conditions which baffle the best medical skill. Many cases of chronic stomach trouble, biliousness, severe headache, general weakness, rheumatism, gout, lumbago, intestinal ulcer, cancer of the stomach, heart pains and even heart failure can be traced directly to Acid-Stomach.

Avoid these dangers—don't let acid-stomach wreck your health. Don't drag out your days feeling all in, down and out, weak and ailing. Keep the vital spark flashing. Eat the things you like and digest your food in comfort. Then you'll feel fine—be fit—mentally alert—have pep and punch—the power and will to do things.

Hatch Early

Early hatched chicks get a better start than late hatched chicks and are therefore stronger and better able to withstand the attacks of lice and disease. If you will notice a flock of growing chicks which are lice infested you will find that it is the smaller, weaker chicks which are suffering most. Observation will also show that the lice are more troublesome during the warm weather than during the cooler weather of early spring, so that the chicks hatched early are not subjected to such severe attacks of lice while still very young as are the late hatched chicks. This of course does not mean that if the chicks are early hatched the matter of lice should be neglected. By all means examine them for lice, and if found, take measures to free the chicks from the pests. It does mean, however, that not so much trouble from lice will be experienced and that they will be easier to control and will therefore interfere less with the growth of the chicks.

It is usually the smaller, weaker chicks in a flock which are attacked by disease. The older chicks are stronger and larger and are more resistant to disease. This is true during the entire growing season, but is perhaps most evident in the fall and early winter. At this time immature fowls seem to be much more likely to develop colds. Pulletts immature when put in quarters are a menace to the whole flock, for not only are they more likely to develop colds, but they are liable to be the means of spreading the colds throughout the entire flock. It is important, therefore, to have the pulletts reasonably well matured when they are put in winter quarters, and the way to secure mature pulletts is to hatch early. The best time to hatch will depend upon the locality and the climate, and farmers and poultrymen are urged to consult their county agent for this information.
