NUMBER 42

Republican Failure

As the sessions of the fourth legislature draw to a close it is pertinent to review the work accomplished by the body and to apportion the praise or blame for what has been done and for what has been left undone.

Both parties went on record during the campaign of last fall as being pledged to the strictest economy in the administration of the business of the state. The Democratic party sought to carry out its pledges, and to some extent it succeeded in checking some of the most flagrant attempts of the majority to drive the state nearer to bankruptcy, but the overwhelming strength of the Republicans made many of the efforts of the minority futile, and the platform pledges of the Republicans were jettisoned at every opportunity and were disregarded from start to finish. Increased appropriations for everything in sight were asked by the Republicans, more appropriations were demanded for projects that had only the most shadowy claims on the support of the state, and additional jobs were created for members of the party in power, with a recklessness that pointed to only one aim, and that is the strengthening of the Republican party and its maintenance in the saddle. Some of the legislation passed at the session that closed last week was beneficial and necessary, some of it was foolish and unnecessary, and a great deal of it was plainly and openly for the benefit of some special interests.

One of the noteworthy aspects of the session was that the Republican party assumed the reins of authority at the first of the year apparently secure in its position as the dominant party, and it ended the session with its ranks split wide open and with its members on the verge of open rupture, and worst of all, for the party, was the growing dissatisfaction with the chief executive and with the methods that he has adopted in his management of the affairs of the party and of the state. More than one Republican sounded a note of warning of the dangers that were beginning to loom ahead of the party during the next two years, but their warnings were mostly met with a threat of brute force when they were not disregarded entirely.

It is the conclusion of political experts that the Republican party has shot its bolt in less than three months after taking over the control of the state, and that the next two years must see a thorough weeding out of the disturbing elements of the party, and not the least among those who are slated for weeding out is the chief executive, of the methods that he has sought to adopt, and of the false and un-American standards that he has sought to set up for the state of New Mexico.

W. A. Havener, of Clovis, has been appointed district attorney for the counties of Roosevelt, Curry and De Baca. Mr. Havener is a Republican, but otherwise he is all right. He is a good lawyer and may be depended upon to do his full duty at all times.

Letter from Fickensher

The Journal is in receipt of a letter from Henry Fickensher, also a clipping from the Cleveland Plaindealer. Mr. Fickensher is now one of three operators of four different picture shows in Cleveland. The press notice follows:

The West Side market house district, in the vicinity of W. 25th street and Lorain avenue, is scheduled to have a new moving picture theatre this year. It will cost approximately $150,000. The deal was reported closed through Faed L. Williams, American Trust building, yesterday.

The theatre will be built one block north of the West Side market and opposite the Fairyland theatre.

According to terms of the transaction Greenwald & Bernstein leased to the Rialto Amusement Co., 70 by 175 feet, the property when completed, for a consideration said to be about $15,000 a year.

The theatre which, it was said, will be one of the largest of its kind on the West side, will seat approximately 1,500 persons. It will be known as the Rialto and operated by P. E. Essick, H. Fickensher and H. Reif, owners of a chain of picture theaters including the Sunbeam and Ezella on the East side and the Ridge and Stork on the West Side.

The building will be two stories high with a white terra cotta front. Only high class pictures, it was said, are to be exhibited. There are to be special lighting effects and a symphony orchestra. — Cleveland Plaindealer.

Deputy Sheriff J. O. McCormick left Tuesday morning for Richmond, Virginia, to bring back one, Hicks, charged with wife desertion. Hicks waived requisition.

W. A. Havener Named District Attorney

Judge W. A. Havener was last week appointed by the governor as district attorney to serve the three counties of Curry, De Baca and Roosevelt. This bill was passed by the recent session of the legislature and gives the north end of the judicial district an attorney all to itself. Judge Havener is chairman of the county Republican organization and is one of the leading members of the Clovis bar. He will assume the duties of his new office at once and has announced the appointment of R. E. Rowells as assistant district attorney. — Clovis News.

John Langston has received his honorable discharge from the army at Camp Funston and has returned home. John made quite some reputation at the camp as a cook and, for that reason, had some difficulty in getting mustered out, good cooks being hard to find.

Notice

All persons having Red Cross garments will please return to Mrs. M. H. McDonald.

Lieutenant Temple Molinari has been appointed gasoline inspector for the Fifth judicial district. This is the largest district in the state and will make the job a difficult one, however Temple make good.

D. W. Jones Appointed

D. W. Jones, formerly county road superintendent, received this week notice of his appointment as district road engineer for the Sixth division, consisting of the counties of Quay, Curry, Roosevelt and Gaudalupe, and known as the eastern central division. This is one appointment made by the governor that will meet with the approval of every citizen of the district involved who has the interest of good roads at heart. For the past several years Mr. Jones has had charge of the greater part of the road building in eastern New Mexico, and in that time has proven his worth. At the very beginning of highway construction he was confronted with a problem that had every appearance of being hopeless. The sand hills presented a situation that would have dismayed and discouraged any other man with less courage and less initiative. Not so, however, in this case. Mr. Jones at once began a series of experiments in an effort to overcome the sand and it was not long until he solved the problem to his own satisfaction. He soon conceived the idea of harnessing the winds, that had been the most difficult factor heretofore, and discovered that he had a working force that was equal to many head of horses, and this force he used successfully. The only requisite now for a first class road is a clay or other hard foundation, somewhere under the sand. This discovery made by Mr. Jones has been brought to the attention of road experts from all parts of the country and have proven of inestimable value to many sections of the nation. There is not a road magazine published in the United States but what has had more than one article on the road discoveries of Mr. Jones, until it may be truthfully said that he has a reputation that is nation wide in scope. The people of this section of the state had been entertaining fears that they would be denied the services of Mr. Jones and that some new and inexperienced man would relieve him, and this appointment comes as one of the most agreeable surprises of the year. The Journal has criticized the state administration in the past, and expects to criticize more in the future, but the appointment of Mr. Jones to this position must and will receive the commendation of every right thinking citizen in the district. It is one appointment that was non-political and made with the one point in view, service, and it is, also, one appointment that will never bring discredit or criticism upon the appointing power. Mr. Jones has built every good road that has been constructed in eastern New Mexico, and it is but justice that he should have supervision of the completed work as well as the blocking out of the new. This appointment will, also, cause the people of this part of the state to look with more favor upon the issuance of bonds for road purposes, knowing that the money thus raised will not be wasted.

County Agricultural Agent J. B. Peterson left Tuesday morning for Roswell to look after business connected with his office.

About the Heroes

The following letter to Mr. Morrison, from a well-known stationery firm, is so good, we think, that we borrowed it and give it to our readers:

Topeka, Kans., Mar. 22, 1919.
Seth A. Morrison,
County Clerk,
Portales, New Mexico.

Dear Sir:

You know, the big war is over. We know you are not like the Missouri backwoodsman, who "drapped into town" and, seeing a bunch of men on the corner talking, edged up to them to hear what they "was sayin'," and hearing them talk about "war," he finally asked one of the men: "What's goin' on?" When asked if he did not know that the whole world was at war—that the United States, England and France were all fighting Germany, he said in astonishment: "Never heard tell of it." After standing there for a few minutes, and wanting to be sociable, he remarked: "Wal, they sure got a fine day fer it."

Being as how the war is over, it causes us to reflect—causes us to "make observations." Us "home-loving" orators (too fat to fight) who patted the boys on the back and "siced 'em on" to the front line trenches, are now busy welcoming what's left of them back home again. In altogether too many cases we're welcoming them back to "jobless jobs." It is the duty of every American to personally see to it that every one of these boys has a job, and a good job, at that. Is your conscience "at ease" regarding the part you have played in helping ONE returned soldier get a job? Is it?

We hear much about "this war having brought us all closer to God," and it has. With relatives and loved ones in the front line trenches "challenging death" many of us have been in the same position as the man who has a fire and has only carried about one-third enough insurance. A lot of us have been carrying about a 33 1/3 per cent load of religious protection, and many of us are hustling to beat the cars to get enough of it now to "play safe" in case of a total loss.

"Seven in One" for a good many years meant a combination of lubricating oils, or a slang expression for "seven drinks in one jag." Now it means that factor which made it possible for "us Methodists" to realize that the Jews and the Presbyterians and the Catholics and the Congregationalists and the Episcopalians and "us" are all worshipping the same God. "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good."

Have heard some criticize soldiers for writing back letters of the "hair-breadth escapes," etc. which they knew were not true. I'm for 'em. If you and I had given up good jobs and drilled twelve hours per day for months, and been seasick and dodged torpedoes, and been forced to make loue in a foreign language, we'd spread it on, too. I admire their imaginative, creative, expressive and descriptive ability. You probably have noticed, though, that the fellow who was right in the thick of it—the fellow who ran his saber through a Hun, the

Jobless Praise

One of the problems that come before the fourth state legislature, and one that has received a great deal of attention from the solons, has been care of the returning soldier. Resolutions have been passed both houses, the still undetermined plans of some of the departments of the government were endorsed, free burials were approved for the soldiers, and many expressions of admiration for the soldiers and their sacrifices were made by the members of the legislature, but when Democrats endeavored to tack an amendment on to the mount police bill, giving the soldier preference in the appointment to the jobs that would be open on that force, the Republicans killed the amendment with enthusiasm that showed exactly where they stand. The majority party in the fourth legislature will do anything for the returning soldiers except give the jobs that will enable them support themselves.

E. B. McConnell, editor of the News of this place, has purchased a newspaper at Hameston, Iowa, and his family left this week for that place. No announcement has, as yet, been made as to what disposition will be made of the News.

George Ball

George Ball, who has been serving with the aviation corps in France, returned home the latter part of the week. George has many interesting things to tell about the service, the people of that country, of England and of all the allied nations. Among other things, he says that the people of the west, that is, Australia, Canada and the United States, demonstrated their superiority over all others. He also stated that there was but one country for him and that that good, old United States looked mighty fine to him.

"Uncle" John Reynolds died at his home in Portales Friday night of last week. Funeral services were held Sunday and interment had in Portales cemetery.

Frank Greathouse and Miss Ester Marrs, of Longs, were married last Saturday, Rev. Leo Gambrell officiating.

Mrs. C. V. Harris returned today from Ft. Sumner, where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Roy Connally.

A. A. Rogers left Tuesday night for the oil fields where he has something like a section of two of oil land.

A. M. Eead, of Amarillo, Texas, is here visiting Sheriff Gregg and incidentally, looking into the situation.

Aubrey Anderson, brother of Louie, and a forester in the Dat mountains, was here this week visiting.

Claude Anderson, an old time in Portales, but now a druggist of Slaton, was visiting here this week.

Miss Mary L. Steddum left this week for Lebanon, Ohio, to visit with her parents.

A man who actually leveled his gun and "picked" the Hun off his job—isn't talking very much about it—in fact, they are the ones who ask you not to talk about it. It is a dreaded nightmare to them.

I know of a case where a mother didn't find out for over two months from her boy that he had "gone over the top" SEVENTEEN different times—he had been captured and made a German prisoner too. It took a mother two months to get this information from her only son.

The Kaiser as I Knew Him For Fourteen Years

By
ARTHUR N. DAVIS, D. D. S.

CHAPTER XV—Continued.

The jubilation with which the news of the sinking of the Lusitania was received by the German people was general. It was so significant that I believe America would have declared war immediately had it been known. I have failed to find a single German who did not exult over the dastardly crime, and the activity of the Zeppelins in their raids on open towns evoked similar demonstrations.

That the views which the people held regarding the conduct of the war were strongly influenced by the public press, which was absolutely controlled by the government, was only to be expected. The fact that in peace time the press of Germany was perhaps the most reliable in the world, made of it a particularly valuable tool in the hands of the government in time of war.

The German newspaper is gospel to the people. The last word in any argument was always furnished by proof supplied by some newspaper article. "Es steht in der Zeitung," liberally translated, "The paper says so," was always final and conclusive. Nothing the papers declared was too preposterous to be believed.

The press was used to excellent advantage to conceal reverses and to make the utmost capital out of successes. Right from the start the newspapers declared that Germany was fighting a defensive war; that the nations of the world had jumped on Germany's neck because they were jealous of her growing power.

The importance which the kaiser and his leaders placed in public opinion among the German people is clearly illustrated by the announcements they made and the measures they resorted to from time to time, for home consumption.

When in December, 1916, for instance, the kaiser realized that the resumption of unrestricted submarine warfare, which he had determined upon, might bring neutral nations, including the United States, into the war, he felt that it was necessary to do something to uphold the spirit of his people. It took the form of a proposal of peace to the allies.

This proposal was designed to accomplish two distinct purposes: First, it was to convince the German people that their kaiser was really the peace-loving monarch he had always professed to be; second, it was to demoralize the allies by dividing them against themselves.

This much is certain: The kaiser never intended the allies to accept the proposal he made. He admitted that much to me, as did also the Prince von Pless, his most intimate advisor. It was termed in such a way that the allies could not possibly accept it. But it served one of the purposes which it was intended to achieve, and nearly accomplished the other.

CHAPTER XVI.

Germany in Wartime.

While the German people have always been in thorough accord with the kaiser's ambitious project which is so significantly described by the popular slogan: "Deutschland uber alles!" when the great war, which was to achieve Germany's aims, commenced, it came almost as much as a surprise to the Germans as it was to the rest of the world. They knew it was inevitable and they looked forward eagerly to "Der Tag," but when it arrived the bustle and excitement, not to say panic, which developed throughout Germany was so pronounced that in some cases it approached the ludicrous.

Obviously the people were kept in ignorance of the plans of their war barons in order that hostilities might come as a complete surprise to them and give color to the government's contention that the war was forced upon Germany.

So little thought did we give to the complexities of the political situation that on Friday, July 31, 1914, my wife and I started off on a motor trip. We had heard so many rumors of war within the previous ten years that we saw no reason why an amicable solution should not again be found as it had always been before.

On our way out the Charlottenburger Chaussee we passed the kaiser and the kaiserin driving in Berlin from Potsdam at about sixty miles an hour, and there were other indications of activity, but we attached little importance to them.

When we reached Potsdam, however, and saw thousands of tons of coal heaped up between the railroad tracks which were ordinarily kept clear, we realized that preparations for war were being made in earnest and we stopped to consider whether it would not be better after all to return home. Such was our ignorance of war that we decided that, even though it were not advisable to motor in Belgium and France, where we were bound, we might safely plan a tour in the Black forest in Germany.

We had left Berlin late in the afternoon. In the evening, when we arrived at Gotha, we found that the younger waiters in the restaurants and hotels had already left and that the older reserves expected a general call the next day.

The next morning we started for Frankfurt. As we passed through village after village, war preparations became more and more evident. Measures were being taken everywhere to arouse enthusiasm—young men gathered on school steps were singing patriotic songs, students were marching and speeches were being made in the market places.

About five o'clock that afternoon we arrived in Frankfurt. The whole place was in a fever of excitement over the mobilization posters and their resentment against the French was being aroused by "extras," which were handed out without charge, announcing that the French had already dropped bombs on the railroad at Nurnberg and that French officers in autos had over-ridden the borders. The ridiculous statements about French flyers dropping bombs on the railroad at Nurnberg had not the slightest foundation, of course.

The older people who had lived through the war of 1870 had interested audiences for once while they related past experiences and gave advice as to what preparations to make. A possibility of food shortage seemed to be uppermost in all minds, and the groceries were stormed with eager buyers. Salt suddenly jumped to 75 cents a pound and other things in proportion.

On Sunday, August 2, all the gasoline in the country was commandeered, and we heard of many American tourists being put out of their cars in the cities and even on country roads, no matter how inaccessible to trains they might be. We accordingly decided to stow our car away in an old wagon shed attached to a hotel and sought to return to Berlin by train.

At the railway station there was such a tremendous crowd that it was quite impossible to get anywhere near the ticket office, and anyway no promise could be given as to trains to Berlin.

Trunks and bags were piled high in every available space and it was months before that enormous pile of baggage was finally sorted out.

We decided to defer our effort to reach Berlin until Monday, since there seemed no hope of getting away that day.

On Monday morning, the streets were filled with excited crowds destroying every sign with a French word on it and looking for spies. The papers had announced that the country was full of French spies, women as well as men. I saw the crowd stop an automobile, take a woman out and literally tear her clothes to shreds before the police succeeded in rescuing her from the mob and took her to the police station. The general supposition was that all the man spies were masquerading as women and the first thing the mob did was to pull out hair pins to see whether the hair was real.

On Monday evening, we managed to edge our way into the last through train to Berlin. We were side-tracked innumerable times to allow troop trains to pass through, and we were required to keep our windows closed so that no enemy passenger could drop bombs on the bridges we crossed. It was a hot August night and the lack of ventilation was most oppressive.

Our compartment was crowded with officers on their way to join their regiments and very grand and important they felt in their new field-gray uniforms which may have long been put away in moth balls for just this opportunity, but which took the German people as well as the allies completely by surprise.

At Naumberg, which is about halfway between Frankfurt and Berlin, a company of soldiers boarded the train and guarded the corridors while a non-commissioned officer questioned the passengers.

My wife, who was asleep in a corner of the coupe 1, was the only woman in the compartment. Believing that her sleep might be feigned and she might, in fact, be a man in woman's clothing, the officer yelled at her: "Where are you going?" Her American accent, revealed when she answered him, incensed him the more and he demanded angrily: "What right have you to use this train? Where is your passport?"

By that time I had produced all the papers of identification I could find and tried to tell him that my wife and I were returning to our home in Berlin, but he was too excited to listen and would have dragged us off the train had not an officer, with whom I had been talking en route, intervened and said: "I shall make myself personally responsible for these people." I was glad I had admired his new uniform.

From the coupe next to ours I saw soldiers drag six Russians, throw them down and kick them in the face, and one was a woman! The train pulled out as the crowd closed in on them so that I was unable to ascertain the fate of those innocent but helpless passengers.

When we finally reached Berlin, about five the next morning, it seemed like a dead city. There was not a droschke, a taxi or a tram in sight. Every available means of locomotion had been mobilized for the time being.

As we had heavy bags, we simply had to find something to take us home and after half an hour's search far from the station I found an old cab driver who thought he could take us for the liberal bonus I agreed to pay him. We had hardly got seated when an officer tried to force us out, and only my wife's quick plea of illness saved him a black eye and me iron bars or a large fine.

After England declared war, the efforts to capture spies were doubled, and the mob had a new lot of signs to tear down. We were forbidden to talk English on the telephone or on the street. We kept to our homes rather closely. Most of the buses, taxicabs and horses had been commandeered, and the only signs of life in Berlin were furnished by the officers driving madly about in high-powered cars which exceeded all speed limits and other traffic regulations.

After a few days, things began to return to normal again. The food supply seemed ample and the headlines in the newspapers were so encouraging and the reports of victories upon victories so convincing that every one expected the war to be over within a very short time and they began to eat up the stores they had so excitedly collected.

Bread cards were initiated, it is true, but the amount allowed was more than adequate for all except, perhaps, the very poor who depend almost entirely upon bread.

The press began advising the people to conserve food but at the same time said that if care was taken there was no danger of there not being enough for all. School teachers gave daily talks to the children to eat everything on their plates. One went so far as to announce: "I always lick my plate, children, and you should do the same!"

The result of these warnings was merely to increase hoarding and buying from food speculators. I never knew of a single German who voluntarily deprived himself of a single article of food out of patriotic motives. The only sacrifice a German is willing to make for his country is the one he cannot escape.

As time went on and England's blockade became increasingly effective, the internal condition of Germany went from bad to worse, and long before I left Berlin, on January 22, 1918, conditions had become well-nigh unbearable.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Economic Situation in Germany.

By the spring of 1916, butter and meat had become extremely scarce in Berlin. My wife had remained in America, where she had accompanied me in the summer of 1915, and during her absence I dined at hotels and restaurants where the food was still rather good. In June, 1916, I left for America again and just as I was leaving meat cards were issued for the first time.

I returned to Berlin with my family in October, 1916. Conditions had changed considerably for the worse during the summer. I found that every one who had the money had bought up every available pound of food and soap which had not already been commandeered by the government. Butter, potatoes, eggs, milk, flour, sugar, soap, bread and meat and dry groceries were all rationed and it was now no longer necessary for women to stand in line in front of the shops, sometimes all night, to await the morning opening.

Shopping by the card system was very complicated and the quantities permitted by the ration cards so small that a well-balanced meal was an impossibility. To dine in a restaurant it was necessary to take a whole pocketful of cards and make a careful analysis of them before ordering the meager meal which the law allowed.

Empty boxes were used to decorate the depleted show windows of the shops. The fact that they were empty was not known to the public and very often the windows would be broken by hungry mobs who couldn't resist the sight of what appeared to be so much food. This led the government to order the shopkeepers to label the boxes:

"Empty Boxes" in order to avert such disturbances and riots.

There was simply nothing to buy in the food line except substitutes, and of these there were hundreds, each worse than the last. The remark: "If things get much worse, we shall soon be eating rats as the Parisians did in 1870" brought the rejoinder: "Well, that wouldn't be so bad; what I'm dreading is the time when we shall have to be content with rat-substitute!"

When we finally had cards for coffee-substitute I gave up interest in substitutes and commenced to patronize the speculators, figuring that it was better to risk the penalties imposed by the law for such violations of the food regulations than to ruin our health through undernourishment.

Under the stress of the changed food conditions the hungry German soon replaced the honest German. Germans had always had a reputation for honesty, but their claims to such distinction disappeared with the food supply. Necessity soon brought out all that was worst in the German character.

Although the government decreed a high fine and imprisonment as punishment for buying or selling anything which had been commandeered, speculators sprang up on every side and people bragged openly of what they had stored away.

The worst deprivation was in the lack of fats. The people showed it very plainly. One seldom saw a fat man or a fat woman, although before the war fatness was almost characteristic of the German physique. Indeed, I saw a rather stout woman being followed by at least twenty boys who were jeering at her and making slurring remarks about the manner in which she had retained her avoirdupois. A fat person in Germany today is regarded with suspicion.

Naturally the weakened condition of the people makes them all easily susceptible to disease. Epidemics spread rapidly and I am inclined to believe that little care was taken by the authorities to protect the older people from infection. I know that my secretary's mother fell and broke both her legs last summer (1917) and was taken to the accident ward of a hospital where her fellow-patients were all crippled. Ten of the inmates of that ward died in a single day from dysentery, and the following day the death list was increased by twelve, the old lady with the broken legs being one of them. Twenty-two more bread cards saved at the expense of twenty-two useless women in one hospital alone—a fair record for two days! I have no proof that these unfortunate victims of disease were deliberately infected by the hospital authorities, but the mere fact that twenty-two patients in an accident ward died from dysentery in two days is certainly evidence of gross carelessness if nothing worse.

To buy new clothes it is necessary to secure a certificate from the government to the effect that you are absolutely in need of clothing, and, even then, you are compelled to give up the suit you are discarding.

Branch offices for investigating the necessity of replenishing one's wardrobe have been established all over the cities and they are always crowded. Women are in charge and they seemed thoroughly to enjoy their authority and their power to deny an application for new clothing.

When I left Berlin the law permitted a man just two shirts, two collars, two pairs of socks, etc., a year. Since soap had disappeared from the market so many inadequate substitutes had been tried that one's laundry invariably came home full of holes.

In November, 1917, I paid $100 for a suit of clothes which if it had been made out of cloth of good quality would have been worth about $35. As it was, the tailor frankly admitted that the goods was made of re-worked yarn, and because of the lack of cotton thread, the seams were worked with a material which looked like paper string.

This paper string was in general use at that time, the department stores all displaying notices warning customers not to carry their parcels by the string. Many purchases were no longer wrapped, to save paper, and no purchase amounting to less than $5 was delivered.

Before I left Berlin, artificial silk was the principal fabric obtainable for ladies' wearing apparel. Almost every woman in the land, princess or maid, was attired in art taffeta. It sold for $10 a yard. In normal times it would have been worth from 75 cents to $1. In the fall of 1917, a cloth suit was unobtainable for less than $300. It would have been worth $25 in normal times.

Through speculators, we obtained some imitation soft soap at $4 per pound. People said it was made from human corpses, but it was the only thing available outside of the substitutes which were soap only in name. A small cake of toilet soap easily brought $3.

One of the things the people missed most, of course, was their beer. While it was put on sale at 8 p. m. every night, only a limited amount was available and as soon as it was disposed of, only coffee or tea substitute, without sugar, milk or lemons, could be had.

The scarcity of metals required for munitions was evidenced early in the war when the interiors and exteriors of houses throughout the country were thoroughly ransacked and everything in the way of copper, brass or aluminum fixtures or cooking utensils that wasn't absolutely necessary was seized.

Horses were gradually disappearing from sight when I left early this year. One saw them lying about the streets where they dropped from exhaustion, and what disposition was made of their corpses can well be imagined. It is quite certain that no part was wasted.

Dogs, too, nearly vanished from city life. A man I know, who had kept a fine Newfoundland dog, told me that it had disappeared one night and the next day its skin was found hanging on the fence with a sign reading: "Died for the fatherland."

One of the principal articles of fresh meat to be seen in the butcher shops consisted of black crows. They were selling at 75 cents apiece. There was something ludicrous in the thought of the Germans being compelled to "eat crow," but there was little to laugh at in eating it oneself.

To obtain oil, prizes were offered to the school children to collect fruit seeds, from which it could be extracted, and veritable mountains of the seeds were thus obtained.

The last meal I had in Berlin was on January 21, 1918, when I dined at the Hotel Adlon. It consisted of one sardine, three thin slices of cold smoked salmon, soup which was hardly more than hot salt water, two small boiled potatoes and as a substitute for cornstarch pudding. No butter and no sauces of any kind were served. Black bread I took in my pocket. The check for this elaborate table d'hote meal amounted to $4.50.

To sum up the situation as I was able to observe it, living conditions in Germany in January of this year were rapidly becoming absolutely unbearable. How much worse they can become without bringing on internal troubles which will bring about the collapse of the German empire can be only a matter of conjecture.

The twentieth century has seen such radical changes in world conditions, views and aspirations, that I am afraid history will prove but a poor guide to the future. In the past few centuries Germany has experienced several more or less serious social revolutions, but it would be dangerous to predicate very much upon those abortive uprisings.

As long as the officers remain staunch to the kaiser little may be expected in the way of a successful revolution, no matter how discontented and rebellious the people at large may grow, but I believe that the time will surely come when the officers themselves will turn against their government.

There may be two revolutions. The civilians, consisting of women, old men and youths and others who have not been called into the army, may rise up, but their effort will be in vain. The defeat of such an uprising, however, may be the signal for a greater one in which a portion of the army itself will take part, and then a civil war will result which will have no counterpart in the world's history.

The basis for this belief lies in the fact that the officers of the German army realize the extent of the distress prevailing throughout the country. Their families, as well as those of the rank and file are suffering from undernourishment and privations, and they know, even better than their inferiors, the extent of the reverses which the German army has suffered and will continue to suffer and how the government has misrepresented actual conditions.

If the German officers consisted entirely of men of the old school—men who were willing to fight for fighting's sake and who would rather continue the war until the last German had dropped than give in—we could not look for much in this direction.

But the ravages of war have disposed of a large percentage of these bred-in-the-bone officers and their places have been taken by civilians who have been raised from the ranks. Therein lies the hope of a successful revolution.

I will not venture a guess as to when that will be, but I feel sure that it will certainly come about. Fortified by a large portion of the army, the German people will at last turn on their rulers and destroy the throne and the whole Hohenzollern regime.

In this connection, I recall a prophecy made early in the war by an honored colleague of mine of Dresden, an American dentist who had lived and practiced in Germany for forty years and understood the German people and their rulers as well, perhaps, as any man alive. He was a leader of his profession and a man whose judgment on all things was most accurate. He was in close contact with many leading figures of the German nobility.

"Germany will lose the war because her cause is wrong," he declared. "She will fight it through to the bitter end until the foundations of the empire are absolutely destroyed!"

THE END.

URIC ACID IN THE SYSTEM
BY LEE H. SMITH, M. D.

Uric acid is now generally recognized as the cause of more diseases than was heretofore believed. When the kidneys are out of order uric acid accumulates within the body in superabundance. The disordered kidneys do not filter the poisons out of the blood, as they ought to do, and so the poisons remain in the blood and float around until they find a place to lodge, in form of urate salts. The thing to remember is that you may have rheumatism in any part of the body—you may have pains anywhere—your back may ache and your head may be dizzy—but the trouble is not where the pain appears.

The trouble is in the kidneys, and what is the first thing to do? You must get that excess uric acid out of your system, which can be done by taking Anuric Tablets, the splendid remedy which Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has put on sale in the drug stores at a low price. Anuric Tablets (made double strength), when taken into the system as medicine, have the peculiar power of dissolving the uric acid deposited there. Drop a bit of sugar or salt into hot water, and it will disappear. In precisely the same way do these Anuric Tablets dissolve uric acid. Of course, after ridding the system of uric acid, it may return again unless you eat the right foods and live the right kind of life, but Dr. Pierce will advise you fully on proper food and correct living if you write and ask him. He makes no charge for such advice. Take Anuric Tablets today, by all means, and get that uric acid out of your system. Don't, don't, don't, put the matter off.

POULTRY FACTS

GREEN FEEDS FOR POULTRY

There is Much in Proper Curing and Handling.—Beets and Mangel-Wurzels Also Good.

If you have fed clover or alfalfa to poultry in its green state or dry you know its value. If you have not used it as a hen feed do so this winter, even if you have to buy some, and in future seasons you will lay in a good supply. There is much in curing and handling this food to have it right for hens. If it has been done properly, cut into one-quarter-inch lengths, and place it in a tub or barrel, then turn on steam or hot water, which at once brings back the aroma of the harvest field. Next spread out in the mixing box and sift on some cornmeal, middlings and animal meal, salt a little and you have as good a mess for laying hens as can be prepared. In some respects alfalfa is better than clover. It is very rich in protein, yields more in a year than clover, and hens like it better.

For poultry it should never be allowed to become woody. A good field of alfalfa will produce more hen feed than the same amount of space put into any other crop.

Next in order for a dependable winter food come beets and mangel-wurzels. There are different sorts, red, yellow and white. All make a good winter hen feed. They are composed largely of water, but it makes an excellent winter food, being easily grown and kept and is very handy to feed. By feeding plenty of green food to the hens in winter there is a profit derived in two ways. The hens will be more healthy, therefore lay better, and by working it into the daily ration the cost of feeding the flock is lessened considerably.

HINTS ON HANDLING POULTRY

Among Other Things for Farmer to Remember is That Male Doesn't Influence Number of Eggs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is urged that all farmers and poultrymen adhere strictly to the following principal rules in handling their poultry and eggs:

1. Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.
2. Gather the eggs twice daily.
3. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar.
4. Market the eggs at least twice a week.
5. Sell, kill or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.

One Hundreds Hens Should Be on Every Farm.

so as to produce infertile eggs. The male bird has no effect on the number of eggs produced.

MISSION OF OYSTER SHELL

Not Given to Supply Grit, but to Make Bone, Muscle and Feathers —Help Out Ration.

Many poultry growers, especially beginners, have the impression that oyster shells make a good grit for fowls, but such is not the case. Oyster shells, in some respects do help to grind the fowl's food, but the chief mission is to make bone, muscle and feathers. They form the shell of the egg, or assist in this matter and at the same time aid in making a complete ration when fowls are fed charcoal and grit together with their grain rations. If you keep them before the hens and do not feed fat-producing feeds, they will prevent soft-shelled eggs and keep them from acquiring the egg-eating habit, which is one of the greatest losses ever experienced by any poultryman. In almost every feed given to fowls we find a shortage of ash.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POISONS FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP

Why use ordinary cough remedies when Boschee's Syrup has been used so successfully for fifty-one years in all parts of the United States for coughs, bronchitis, colds settled in the throat, especially lung troubles? It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning, gives nature a chance to soothe the inflamed parts, throw off the disease, helping the patient to regain his health. Made in America and sold for more than half a century.—Adv.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

ROAD BUILDING

ROAD BUILDERS ARE NEEDED

Opportunities for Returned Soldiers—Both Skilled and Unskilled Labor Required.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In response to requests for information, the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture has collected from the highway departments of the various states figures indicating the profitable number of returned soldiers and sailors that can be used during 1919 in road construction and repair work. Of the 38 states replying only 29 gave definite figures. They report they can use 11,637 soldiers and sailors as skilled laborers, and 91,904 as unskilled. Under the head of skilled labor the state highway departments were asked to report on the requirements for masons, carpenters, quarry bosses, concrete finishers, road foremen, roller men and superintendents. Unskilled laborers were not separated into classes.

The states that have thus far given definite figures, with the estimated number of men that may be used, are: Alabama, skilled 60, unskilled 1,000; Arizona, skilled 48, unskilled 100; Colorado, unskilled 1,250; Connecticut, skilled and unskilled, 4,000; Delaware, skilled 100; unskilled 1,000; Florida, skilled 685; unskilled 4,315; Georgia, skilled and unskilled, 4,000; Idaho, unskilled 200; Illinois, skilled 2,500, unskilled 15,000; Kansas, skilled 1,000; unskilled 4,800; Kentucky, skilled 826; unskilled 3,500; Louisiana, skilled 110, unskilled 1,000; Maine, skilled 100; unskilled 1,000; Massachusetts, skilled 150; unskilled 2,000; Michigan, skilled 200, unskilled 2,500; Minnesota, skilled 1,200, unskilled 4,800; Mississippi, skilled and unskilled, 2,000; Montana, skilled 104, unskilled 644; Nebraska, skilled 267, unskilled 2,250; Nevada, skilled 35, unskilled 265; New Hampshire, skilled 332, unskilled 1,000; New

EXPENSE OF CONCRETE ROAD

Average Cost for Surface Only Estimated at About $12,300 Per Mile—Filling Cracks.

(By A. W. DEAN, Chief Engineer Mass. Highway Commission.)

The average cost of a concrete surface, 15 feet wide, not including grading, drainage, culvert work, etc., but including the concrete surface only, is about $12,300 per mile, according to contract prices under which concrete roads have been constructed by this commission. Of course, the cost of grading, drainage, culverts, etc. will vary greatly.

So far as the concrete surface be coming more or less cracked and full of holes after three or four years is concerned, I would state it is true that it cracks to a certain extent but if properly built, with expansion joints, no holes will appear, and very few cracks, and the cost of filling the cracks with bitumen is very slight.

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—Adv.

Their Future.

The Sunday school teacher was giving an address. She wanted to impress the idea upon the scholars "that the child is father to the man."

"That boy there," she said. "This girl here. What will they become when they grow up?"

And with one voice the class murmured: "Sweethearts."

Dr. T. G. Farnsworth, 76 S. Kansas St., Buckhannon, W. Here is Dr. Farnsworth's experience as he tells it: "It was just a few years after my retiring from practicing medicine that I found I was afflicted with severe disorder of the kidneys and bladder. I grew steadily worse, and sometimes I was unable to get around at all. The kidney secretions were retarded and so painful in passing I would cry out in misery. I was in a frightful condition. After I had lost hope in other remedies, Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and I tried them. I soon noticed a change for the better. I used several boxes and they cured me completely. Never in my practice did I know a remedy that would accomplish what Doan's Kidney Pills did, and I give them my heartiest endorsement."

PROBABLY EVOLVED FROM TOY

It Has Been Found Impossible to Trace the Invention of Cannon to Any Individual.

The fixed tube which uses powder to blow a missile from its mouth has been seen only six centuries of existence. All the evidence we have indicates that the gun had its birth in Europe and not until after the year 1300 A. D. For a long time it was supposed the gun was much older than it really is. But the art of reading history has advanced as much as any other of man's accomplishments, and later, more cautious search has caused us to change our views considerably regarding the age of the gun.

So far as we know the gun had no inventor. The honor has been ascribed to several, but their title to it has no home even casual scrutiny. It seems to have been a slow growth, perhaps from a preceding toy of similar form. The squib of paper or wood, if made fast, would shoot a stone a little distance. Then by making the tube larger and stronger some man or woman saw the chance to convert an innocent plaything into a dangerous weapon. When the thing was done they called it a cannon.—From "The Gun Book" by Thomas Heron McKee.

The Pattern in the Mount

By REV. RUSSELL, D. D., LL. D., Professor of Bible Doctrine and Homiletics, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—See that thou make all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount.—Heb. 8:5.

All the best work of life consists of carrying out the plans and purposes that come in our highest and best moments of thinking. Moses was able to construct a tabernacle of wondrous design and perfect adaptation to the needs of Israel because he had seen a pattern of it in the mount of solitude with God.

The case of Moses is not exceptional. Mental vision must always precede the creation of material form. In hours of vision upon mountain peaks of thought we see life as it should be, and then go down into the valley of practical everyday life to patiently arrange the gathered materials of duty according to the pattern seen in the mount.

All True Patterns From God. Moses got his pattern for the tabernacle from God. It was planned to spiritualize the thought and worship of an enslaved race. But all true patterns for life come from God, and only as we have vision of Christ in the solitude of holy meditation shall we know how to shape our lives.

If character is to be built cathedral-like in proportions and beauty, it cannot be done extemporaneously. The boy must have vision of his future manhood and be ready to make any sacrifice of boyish frivolities to attain that manhood of sobriety, sincerity and efficiency. The forward look gives steadiness to life. The man who digs a foundation with no thought but of his shovel and the clay, may become shiftless and lazy, but he who has in his heart a vision of the completed home, with its atmosphere of love and friendship, works with inspiration. Hence the difference between the mental attitude of a Michael Angelo toward a block of marble and the attitude of a common lapidary toward the same stone. To the one the day's labor means but a piece of silver, or the food and drink it will buy. To the other there is an angel within the stone, awaiting liberation, and its place of honor in a cathedral niche.

The Temple of Service.
The social, commercial and civil life of man is of such importance, and has such lofty ends in the economy of God as to need the divine plan for its pattern. The human soul is made to know God and to share all his moral beauty. All the present material existence, with its struggle for bread and pleasure, is as the transient, modern scaffolding beneath the rising arch that constitutes character. Human society is to be a brotherhood, illustrating the joy and blessedness of the divine family. The world's trade and commerce are to be God's method of distributing his bounties to all his children. Civil institutions are to reflect God's righteousness, and to bring the harmony of his truth into public affairs. The church is a spiritual temple in which every redeemed soul is a living stone, in perfect line of adjustment with the corner stone, Jesus Christ, glowing with the light of holiness, and with others constituting a spiritual sanctuary in which the sacrifice of praise and service is offered to God. For such a life man cannot furnish his own plan. The history of weary centuries in pagan lands reveals man's incapacity for producing ideals. Only as human life approaches the Bible ideal can there be the righteousness of peace and the peace of righteousness for which the world waits.

The Essentials of Life Building.
Vision, memory and fidelity are the essentials of the true life. Moses could not have received the pattern without waiting in the solitude with God. Only on the heights and in the quietness could the vision of his holy task come to his soul. We, too, must heed God's invitation for holy fellowship, and provide for hours of meditation when he can speak to us. The failure of most lives is the failure to receive vision. Life's cares and pleasures hold back from the mount of revelation.

To vision and memory must be added fidelity. The difficulty of builders today is to find contractors who will in all points follow specifications. Christ, the divine architect, has furnished the blue prints for our character building. Our highest thought should be that no shadow of disappointment shall sadden his face as our temple of character and service is reared.

BACKACHE AND HEAVY FEELING

Weak, Nervous, Restless Woman in Arkansas Hears of Cardui, Tries It and Is Greatly Benefited. Now Recommends It To Others.

Peach Orchard, Ark.—Mrs. Nonie Eligh, who lives near here, states: "Some time ago I began to have trouble with my back. I would ache and I could hardly get up when down. I was so weak I would just drag around and did not feel like doing anything at all. I was so nervous I felt I could scream, and . . . such a heavy feeling I could not rest at all. It looked like I was going to get down in bed . . ."

I heard of Cardui and thought I would try it and see what it would do for my case. After taking a few bottles I grew stronger . . . The bloated, heavy feeling left me. I wasn't so nervous, in fact, felt better all over. I took twelve bottles and certainly was greatly benefited and can recommend it to any one as a tonic or builder. I often tell others how it helped and strengthened me." Cardui is a mild vegetable tonic, with no bad after-effects. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution.

Ask your druggist. He knows about Cardui. Some druggists have sold it for 40 years.—Adv.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY CLEANSSES YOUR KIDNEYS

For centuries GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been a standard household remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble, and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, headache, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, difficulty when urinating, cloudy and bloody urine, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago, all warn you to look after your kidneys and bladder. All these indicate some weakness of the kidneys or other organs or that the enemy microbes which are always present in your system have attacked your weak spots. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

They are not a "patent medicine," nor a "new discovery." For 200 years they have been a standard household remedy. They are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, soothing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and through the bladder, driving out the poisonous germs. New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue the treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day; they will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not delay a minute. Delays are especially dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. All druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. ## DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. MOON TALKS.

"Well, I have never heard of anything to equal that," said Mr. Moon. "What is the trouble?" asked the Star Neighbor.

Now the Star Neighbor is a great friend of Mr. Moon's, just as many of our neighbors are great friends of ours.

"The trouble is this," said Mr. Moon. "I just heard the most conceited speech, and the silliest one at the same time. Now if a creature is conceited it is quite bad enough, but to have a creature so very, very, very silly at the same time is perfectly dreadful."

"Do tell me about it."

"I heard a creature talking," said Mr. Moon, "when I was looking over the top of those two pine trees yonder. I was winking and blinking and I was being just as cheery and nice and pleasant as a creature could be."

"I can understand that," said the Star Neighbor, smiling pleasantly. "Do go on with your story."

"The creatures are talking, as I have said before," continued Mr. Moon. "And the creature was a little boy. Another little boy was there, too, and they were skating on a pond while I gave them light. They weren't so very little really, and they should have had more sense. They were good-sized boys, as boys go, I believe."

"They were going skating, you said," remarked the Star Neighbor, and Mr. Moon smiled.

"One little boy said to the other little boy—"

"Why do you call them little boys when they were good-sized boys?"

"Because," said Mr. Moon, "I hate to think how big they were in size when they could say such silly little things. It hardly seems fair to them, and though they were not fair to me I want to be fair to them. And besides the insult to me doesn't seem so big when I say they were little boys."

"I see," said the Star Neighbor. "Forgive me for interrupting. I want to hear the rest of your story."

"Well," continued Mr. Moon, "the two boys were talking, as I said before. And one boy said to the other boy, 'I like to skate, but I don't like to skate on thin ice. When a pond isn't strong enough I don't go skating.'"

"And the other boy answered, 'I agree. There's no fun in going in the icy water and in running the risk of drowning and of never skating again. I don't like that at all.'"

"Then the first boy said, 'I would no more think of skating on ice that wasn't safe than I would of flying to the moon.'"

"It was all very well," continued Mr. Moon, "for the boys to talk about not skating on thin ice. That only showed they wanted to run no risks of drowning or of getting dreadful colds. But when that first boy said he would just as soon think of flying to the moon as he would think of skating on thin ice—well that was an insult."

"In the first place it was mighty conceited, for he couldn't fly to the moon if he tried. I'm not so easy to reach as all that."

"And in the second place it was very rude of him to act as though it would be just as foolish to fly to the moon (if he could do such a thing) as it would be to skate on thin ice."

"A h. M. r. Moon," said Star Neighbor, "you mustn't feel badly. The boy simply meant that it was impossible for him to do such a silly thing as skating on thin ice."

"But he knew it was impossible to fly to you, and so he said he would just as soon think of doing an impossible thing like that as he would do such a dangerous and silly thing as skating on thin ice."

"Oh," said Mr. Moon, "that makes things different. I am so glad you explained, Star Neighbor, for now I am happy once more."

Ugh! Calomel Sickens; Salivates!

Please Try Dodson's Liver Tone

I am sincere! My medicine does not upset liver and bowels so you lose a day's work.

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick; you may lose a day's work. Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

Acid-Stomach Ruins Health of Millions

Besides those painful attacks of indigestion; that awful bloated, lumpy feeling after eating and downright stomach misery that you who have experienced it know so well; besides disgusting belching, food-repeating, sour stomach and distressing heartburn—besides all this, ACID-STOMACH undermines the health and saps the strength of millions.

If you don't get rid of those stomach miseries there is no telling where your stomach troubles will end, for it is a well known scientific fact that many serious ailments have their start in an acid-stomach.

Start now—this very day—to get rid of your stomach miseries. Take EATONIC—the wonderful remedy that absorbs the excess acid from the stomach and brings INSTANT relief. You simply have no idea how much better, stronger and brighter you feel at once. It drives out all the gas and bloot, puts an immediate stop to belching and heartburn, ends stomach suffering and makes it cool, sweet, comfortable and strong.

There can be no further excuse for you to allow acid-stomach to wreck your health—pile up misery upon misery until you get to the point where you feel down and out and that life has lost all its joys. Remember, just as acid-mouth ruins teeth, so acid-stomach ruins health.

Take EATONIC. It's good, just like a bit of candy and makes the stomach feel fine. You can then eat the things you like and, what is more, every mouthful you eat will count in creating power and energy. You'll feel six months better—have punch and pep—the power and will to do things and get results, and your stomach misery will be gone.

Take our advice. Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist today. It costs so little. If it fails to remove your stomach distress, he will refund your money. That is guaranteed; you are to be satisfied or money refunded.
