PORTALES, ROOSEVELT COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1919

NUMBER 12

New Company Incorporated

The Mesa Oil and Gas company has filed its articles of incorporation and has received its charter to do business. The officers are, E. B. Hawkins, president; Mrs. T. B. Chapman, secretary; A. L. Gregg, treasurer. The new corporation is capitalized for one hundred thousand dollars. The W. O. Oldham building has been leased and is being fitted with new furniture and fixtures. It also is being repainted and papered and generally put in good habitable condition. The location is a good one and will make roomy and comfortable offices. Mr. Chapman writes that the rig and complete drilling equipment was shipped on the 21st and that he is staying right with the train on which it is loaded and will see to it that not a minute's unnecessary delay shall occur. One of the best known geologists in the southwest has been secured to make a thorough examination of the two prospective locations and a written report will be forthcoming soon. The company has not definitely decided which of the two locations will be given the first test well, but a definite announcement will be made within the next ten days. On one of these locations there has been one report submitted by a geologist of known reputation, and it is a mighty favorable report, in fact, one of the best so far submitted in this portion of the state. The company feels confident that it has a good proposition and will proceed to the actual development just as soon as the rig and equipment arrives.

Frank Culberson Here

Lieutenant Frank Culberson has returned from over seas and was in the city Sunway and Monday of this week. Frank was on the firing line and went over the top on various occasions, was wounded and knows for a certainty that he got, at least, one Hun. He is an old Portales boy, was practically raised here and is known to every resident of the county. He was an applicant for a position in the city schools and after the position was awarded him, he received a better offer, which he accepted. Lieutenant Culberson has a world of friends here who will regret that he will not be with us during the coming year, but who will always wish for him the best there is to be had.

County Agent and Mrs. J. B. Peterson, returned Wednesday night from Roswell where they own a fine fruit farm. Mr. Peterson says that peaches at Roswell may be had at two-bits per bushel, purchaser to pick his own fruit; that hundreds of bushels are dumped out on the ground, fed to hogs and otherwise wasted. He also says that the apple crop will be immense and arrangements have been made for taking care of it.

J. B. Sledge informs the Journal man that he hopes to move into his new quarters, the brick building now occupied by the butcher shop, before the first of the year. The new building is in a splendid location, is roomy and one of the best in the town. The Sledge Hardware company carries a big line of goods and one that cannot be adequately displayed in the present location.

M'CUMBER DEFENDS SHANTUNG CLAUSE

REPUBLICAN SENATOR SAYS AMENDMENT IS ONLY TO MAKE TROUBLE

INVITES A WAR WITH JAPAN

In a Matter With Which We Have No Concern—Would Sacrifice Our White Boys to Defend An Inferior Yellow Race:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—Senator McCumber, for twenty years republican senator from North Dakota, in a speech in the senate today, charged that the majority of the foreign relations committee is trying to kill the peace treaty and the league of nations. Senator McCumber spoke after his second breach with the opponents of the treaty on the senate committee on foreign relations. In the present breach Senator McCumber voted alone with the supporters of the treaty and against the majority of the committee which voted to strike out "Japan" and insert "China" in the sections awarding the Shantung peninsula.

"Why did the majority of this committee pause in the midst of the hearings to make this particular amendment?" asked Senator McCumber. "The purpose is apparent. It is to signify to the country that the senate is hostile to this treaty. It is to put Japan in a position where she cannot without an appearance of being coerced do what she has promised to do. It is to create trouble between this country and Japan and thereby send the first dagger into the heart of this treaty.

"I am satisfied that no greater blow could ever be struck against the real interest of China than by such an amendment.

"Is it an act of true friendship toward China or a mere political move to defeat the treaty? If its sponsors now fall to come forward and openly pledge that if Japan is driven out of this treaty then the United States will proceed single-handed and alone to drive Japan out of China—will renew this world-war and send our soldiers into the Orient to fight for her, then by this act they are betraying China with a false kiss.

"If, on the other hand, they declare they will make war to drive Japan out of China, to prevent Japan receiving only those rights which the other great nations of the world have received, then they are proclaiming a policy which they have assailed as being the most wicked part of the league of nations—a policy of interference with the quarrels of the old world. Worse than that, while they violently condemn a joint agreement with the other great white nations of the world to shield the greater white races from annihilation they would send our sons to death to defend the inferior yellow races whom we claim to be so inferior as to be unfit to associate with us. We will bring both Japan and China into this league of nations which by the very terms of its provisions will compel Japan to return to China all the German rights acquired by Japan, not only by conquest but by agreement made by her with China herself or you will drive Japan out of this treaty where she will not be bound to by the obligations which she should assume by joining the league, and where she will be holding the German territory and all the German interests by the right of conquest and with the broken word of China, she can work her way to the very limit of subjugation of all the Chinese territory not now within the sphere of influence of other powers.

"With this league of nations China obtains an assurance which is the same as a guaranty by all the world that not only will Japan return to China what Germany wrestled from her in 1898, but henceforth and so long as this league shall last nowhere any nation shall rob China of an inch of her territory nor exercise any control over her people."

Senator McCumber then recited the history of the several treaties under which Japan took over the German rights in Shantung, promising to restore them to China. He then said: "By this amendment you declare that Japan cannot be depended upon to keep sacred her word, given not only to China alone but also given to the United States and every other important nation by reiterated declarations.

"There is but one honorable, upright and proper course to be pursued by all the great nations of the world, including China and Japan. Let China keep her treaty she gave Japan a chance to do what she has pledged her national honor to do; cease this attempt to juggle this country into war with Japan; defeat this proposed amendment which arrogates to ourselves the right to annul a treaty between China and Japan and sets at naught a treaty made during the stress of battle between our co-belligerents and Japan before we entered into the war; bring Japan and China into this world league and as sure as the sun shall rise tomorrow Japan will keep her pledge, China will receive complete justice and assured future protection.

Carl Turner and others returned this week from a fishing trip to the McMillan dam. They had a good time, caught lots of fish and brought some of them home, remembering the Journal man with about a five pound buffalo.

Ozark Trails

Something worth while at every session of the Ozark Trails convention, October 1, 2 and 3, is the slogan of Col. W. H. Harvey, of Monte Ne, Ark., president of the association. Col. Harvey has been at work on the program for weeks and promises that it will be one of the most worth while road conventions ever held. Not only will problems affecting the Ozark Trail be discussed but the general subject of road building receive much attention. County commissioners, road superintendents, and other officials will find the program when announced will justify the time and expense of attending.

There will be illustrated lectures on road building and road machinery. While the program is not yet complete, it is now assured that it will be snappy and full of good things from the opening session until the close.

Roswell is making careful preparations for the visitors. While the hotel facilities are larger than ever before, it will be necessary to provide hundreds of rooms in private homes for the visitors. This work has already been started and will be handled systematically so that everybody who comes will be assured of accommodations. Roswell free public camping ground, with all conveniences, will be available for visitors too, and because of its convenience it is expected that many will take advantage of it.

Mrs. Harry Buchanan was hostess Tuesday to the U. D. C. for their regular meeting at her home near town. The afternoon was spent in discussion of current topics followed by a unique guessing contest which was won by Mrs. Priddy and Mrs. Stuckey. Mrs. Harold Rogers and Mrs. Stucky were elected to honorary membership.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Peffer, of Baltimore, served a delicious ice course to the fifteen guests.

Miss Mignon Jones returned from Sacramento, California, last Saturday. Miss Jones will be one of the teachers in our public schools.

D. W. Jones Again

Probably the most widely copied newspaper article for many years is that which first appeared in this paper something over a year ago. It was the write-up of the Portales-Lovington road, wherein this paper gave an account of the feat of District Engineer Jones' in harnessing the wind for road building. This article has appeared in all the leading newspapers of the country, and in some of them more than once. It has been altered in some respects, abbreviated in some publications and enlarged on in others. As a result of it Mr. Jones has received hundreds of pounds of mail containing inquiries and offers of employment. One of these offers was from a big mining company in Utah which has fifty miles of sand road to build. This company offered him almost anything he wanted to either build the road or to go there and show them how to do so. The last comment is from the Dallas News, and is as follows;

In the New Mexican deserts county road builders are enlisting the aid of the winds in their work with notable success, says an article in "The Compressed Air Magazine" (New York.)

The ingenious arthur of this method is said in this magazine to be D. W. Jones, district highway superintendent of Curry, De Baca, Guadalupe and Roosevelt counties.

Ignoring all conventional methods of road building across sand wastes, he has constructed about eighty miles of highway simply by making a trench thru the sand extending it down to the clay bottom and then letting the desert winds finish the job. His method.

First tests of the Jones system were made on the Delphos road in Roosevelt county. This experimental strip included a nine-mile sand stretch, seven miles of which consisted of sand more than thirty inches deep, with pockets of unknown depth.

Following the clearing of the right of way of grass and weeds the first step in the experiment, the sand was taken out down to hard-pan. Removal was accomplished with Fresno scrapers and deposited in waste stacks at some ten feet from either edge of the cut.

Bottom width of the cut was approximately twelve feet. Between high walls of loose sand a narrow strip of clay road was constructed and left to wind action.

Spring and fall winds swept away the sand remaining on the surface of the clay and widened the original twelve-foot span to thirty-five feet over all the entire nine-mile length.

Unusual irregularity marked the clay surface while sand pockets ranging from thirty inches to five feet in depth grailing of the surface was delayed until the waste stacks by the roadside had disappeared and the widening of the surface by wind action has taken place.

Where pockets were less than thirty inches deep they were left to wind action and vehicle travel to eradicate. Where pockets greater than thirty inches in depth existed, clay was hauled to fill them.

Tonight! Take Dodson's Liver Tone! Better Than Calomel For Liver

Calomel sickens! If bilious, constipated and headachy read my guarantee.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the liver. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful tonight, and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning, I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the safe of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste. —Adv.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Donner

THE POTATO BUGS.

"Well, it is time we should get started," said Mrs. Potato Bug.

"And we must work hard," said Mr. Potato Bug. "We have such fun working," said the little potato bugs.

The Farmers Don't Like Our Jokes.

The potato bugs had six legs apiece. They had little black feelers and tiny eyes. They were yellow and black on the back, and blue and brown underneath.

They spit a little yellow juice on anyone who took hold of them, for they said: "It's all right for us to treat the potatoes badly, but it is a different thing for people to have the bad manners to pick us up as though we were little creatures of no importance."

There were also brick-red bugs with black dots on either side. These were the little potato bugs, while the others were the daddies and the mothers. They got on the leaves of the first potato crop and fed off them, eating away at the leaves as hard and as fast as such tiny creatures could do.

These little bugs were very anxious to kill the plants and they would have done so if they had gotten a good headway. That is, they would have done a great deal of harm if they hadn't been driven away in time.

But these bugs went to other potatoes and they saw some of the potato grubs, so they said to them:

"Potato grubs, what are you doing?"

"We're eating holes in the potatoes," said the grubs. "What are you doing?"

"We were eating leaves of potato plants," said the potato bugs. "We were driven away from some other plants, but here we are, and the dear little children have come, too."

"Are you going to eat the leaves here?" asked the grubs.

"We think they look good," said the potato bugs.

"They do," said the grubs, "but of course we pay all our compliments to the potatoes themselves. We don't bother about the leaves."

"Perhaps," said the potato bugs, "the potatoes wouldn't mind it if you didn't pay them such compliments."

"Perhaps not," said the grubs, "but we do, just the same. We say to the potatoes:

"Dear potatoes, we love you. Let us show you how fond we are of you by eating you."

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed the potato bugs, "that is a good joke."

"The farmers don't like the jokes, though," said the grubs. "They think they and their wives and their children and their neighbors and their friends are the ones who should pay such compliments to the potatoes."

"Absurd," said the potato bugs.

"Of course," admitted the grubs, "it is not so absurd if we put ourselves in their places, but who in the world ever imagined that a grub would put itself in the place of a person? No one would, so why should we do it? And we don't."

"That's so," said the potato bugs, "and neither do we. If we cared for people we wouldn't eat the leaves and we wouldn't try to destroy the plants."

"We're not friendly with farmers even if we do like potato hills," said the grubs.

"That's so," said the potato bugs, and why should we be friendly with the farmers? They don't like us. They ask us to leave. They try to get rid of us.

"They never invite us to have some of the leaves of the potatoes, any more than they ask you to bite holes and eat of the potatoes."

"We have to invite ourselves and look after ourselves. It's too bad the farmers don't like us when we like the potatoes they plant."

And so the potato bugs and the grubs tried to do all they could to hurt the farmer's crop of potatoes. And they were so mean about it that they didn't even feel badly, they were so naughty!

"Ha, Ha, Ha."

"Ha, Ha, Ha."

"We have to invite ourselves and look after ourselves. It's too bad the farmers don't like us when we like the potatoes they plant."

And so the potato bugs and the grubs tried to do all they could to hurt the farmer's crop of potatoes. And they were so mean about it that they didn't even feel badly, they were so naughty!

A gift frequently costs more than to buy outright.

Perhaps He Had Repented.
A funny one happened the other day in the office of a justice of the peace. A young couple were being married, surrounded by several friends. As usual, the ritual came to that place where the justice said:

"Does anyone present know of any reason why this couple should not become man and wife?"

And to everybody's amazement, the groom spoke up, "I do."

As he said afterwards, "that's what comes of too many rehearsals."

New York city contributed one-sixteenth of the entire nation's army.

In the Mazy Whirl.
Eleanor, five, had seen her first dance. She was frankly delighted watching the dancers, but had little to say when she got home that evening.

The next morning mamma told her to tell daddy about the dance, that daddy had never seen a dance. She explained it thus to daddy:

"Well, you see, daddy, they sort of cuddle up with their hands out this way on one side and hug with the other hands and then they scrape their feet on the floor and sort of run up one side of the floor, scraping their feet, and down the other other-side."

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without your or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Self-Announced.

A story told by Bishop Greer illustrates the plain nature of the man. On an occasion when he was to confirm a class a carriage was sent for him in charge of an English coachman who had been imported by a wealthy American. Bishop Greer walked unaccompanied and in non-clerical dress from his front door to the carriage and entered it—but the driver did not move his horses. After waiting for a moment the bishop asked the man why he did not drive on.

"I'm waiting for the lord bishop of New York, sir," the proper person replied.

"Well," said the bishop, "I'm it. Drive on."—Christian Register.

Practical Man.

"Helen's lips are drifting dust," quoted the literary person. "Now, that's my idea of a poetical line."

"It is rather pretty, I guess," said Mr. Gawker, who hasn't a thought outside of business. "I'm glad you mentioned it."

"Then you are a lover of poetry?"

"No, but that quotation reminds me that I have an engagement in about half an hour with a chap who wants to sell me the state rights to a new type of street sprinkler. I believe there's money in it."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Fond Mother—While playing doctor with his little playmates, he said: "Gentlemen, before we begin to operate you hold the patient's hands and feet. I'll get the three cents out of his right-hand pocket."

"You can't. I'm no human puzzle."

FUNERAL A PICNIC FOR DOG

Rover Had Quite a Good Time While on His Way to His Last Resting Place.

A big picnic was planned and I was slated to transport the refreshments and a crowd of relatives to the picnic grounds, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. I placed the boxes and baskets containing the sandwiches, cake, fried chicken, etc., in a trailer, hitched the trailer to my car, already filled to overflowing, and started gayly on my way.

A huge dog belonging to my aunt accompanied us, and I had the misfortune to run the heavily loaded machine over him, killing him instantly, as we all thought. My aunt was deeply affected and insisted that I take Rover's body along and bury it beside the river. I loaded the dog's carcass into the trailer and started on again, but not so gayly.

When we reached the picnic grounds and I reconnoitered in my trailer I beheld Rover sitting up licking his chops, as large as life, or larger, I should say, for he had devoured all our provisions.

Yes, From Boston.

In one of the southern training camps a profane and perspiring infantry sergeant was doing his best to pound into the heads of a squad of exceedingly raw "rookies" the rudiments of military science.

When the sergeant gave an order each willing recruit of the squad made a commendable effort to execute it, but every little rookie had a movement all his own, with highly unsatisfactory results.

"As you were!" bawled the sergeant.

At this point the proceedings were interrupted by a recruit from Boston, who, before enlisting, had been a Harvard student.

"Bew pawdon, sawgeant," said he, "but wouldn't it be moah propah to say: 'You will restoaah the status quo ante?'"—Cartoons Magazine.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Self-condemnation with its allied thoughts and emotions has been productive of a far greater loss in initiative, in will-power, and of a far greater degree of lowered vitality, both mental and physical, than any of us have perhaps realized.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

DISHES FOR QUICK LUNCHEON.

A choice may be made from these dishes, depending upon the foods at hand. With tomato soup and croûtons for a beginning follow up with Ox Tongue and Spinach.—The canned tongue may be used as well as the canned spinach. Heat the cooked tongue and place on a platter neatly sliced. Surround with chopped seasoned spinach, garnished with sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Cornbread or gems may be served with this meal, French fried potatoes and finish with Pineapple and Coconut Cup.—Cut canned pineapple in cubes and sprinkle with grated coconut; make a layer of each; sprinkle with sugar and serve in glass cups. Strawberries and pineapple, covered with a sugar syrup, make a most tasty dessert. Almost any kind of fruit or combination may be used.

Tuna Fish and Rice.—Boil one-half cupful of rice until soft and mix with a large can of tuna fish which has been flaked with a fork. Moisten with cream sauce, using one tablespoonful each of butter and flour and a half cupful of milk. Cook until smooth and thick. Season, put into individual ramekins and sprinkle with sifted crumbs over the top. Bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Corn Fritters.—To a can of kormlet or finely chopped corn add two beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, and flour with a teaspoonful of baking powder to make a drop batter. Drop by teaspoonfuls into hot fat and cook until brown.

Peach Mallows.—Fill halves of canned peaches with marshmallows. Take a cup of peach juice, add a teaspoonful of corn starch and the yolk of one egg. Flavor with a few drops of almond extract, added after cooking, and pour when cool over the peaches. Serve very cold in glass dishes or stemmed sherbet cups.

Corned-Beef Hash.—Empty a can of corned beef and grind it with five potatoes through the coarse part of the meat grinder. Mix and season well. Put into a hot frying pan a tablespoonful of sweet fat; when hot add the hash. If too dry, moisten with broth, milk or water. Cook slowly until well browned, then turn out on a hot platter. Arrange poached eggs around the hash and serve hot.

How sweet and gracious, even in common speech,
Is that fine sense which men call courtesy!
Wholesome as air and genial as light,
Welcome in every clime as breath of flowers—
It transmutes aliens into trusting friends,
And gives its own passport round the globe.
—James T. Fields.

FROZEN DISHES.

There is nothing so appealing to the palate during hot weather as refreshing frozen things.

Maple Parfait.—Pour a cupful of boiling hot maple sirup over the well-beaten yolks of four eggs; add a pint of thin cream—when cool and freeze as usual, by packing in ice and salt.

Golden Parfait.—Cook together one cupful of sugar, the rind of an orange, grated, and one-half cupful of water. Pour the hot sirup over the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, add a pint of cream or rich milk and freeze.

To make Nesselrode pudding, add one cupful of cooked and mashed chestnuts, one cupful of minced candied fruit soaked in orange juice until soft and one cupful of pineapple. Flavor with almond and rose and freeze as usual.

Cocoa Parfait.—Boil a cupful of sugar with one-half cupful of water ten minutes; pour the sirup over four tablespoonfuls of cocoa which has been beaten with four egg yolks; cook over hot water until of the consistency of soft custard. Beat until cold; add two cupfuls of cream which has been beaten stiff, a teaspoonful of vanilla and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Turn into a mold and pack in equal measures of ice and salt. Let stand four hours; unmold and garnish with sweetened and flavored whipped cream piped around with parfait.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin, calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

His Complaint.

"Say, looky yur!" began a citizen of the Sandy Mush region, entering the Palace drug store in Tumlinville. "You fellows sold me this yur rat p'izon last week, and three or four of my children got hold of the box and ett up right smart of the stuff. It didn't 'pear to damage 'em none, and I'll be dogged if I don't believe I've been swindled."
—Judge.

A DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPER

LIE HANDED TO FALL

When Senator Fall charged Senator McCumber with defending the theft of Chantung the latter promptly branded the statement as absolutely and unqualifiedly false. Fall also received a hot shot from Senator Nelson, Republican of Minnesota, when Fall made an attempt to lodge the issue by reason of the grey hairs of the Minnesota statesman. The little dialogue follows: "Senator Fall in the senate today, Tuesday, said senators who had not read the treaty and did not know its contents, were the most insistent that it be ratified immediately. Fall was interrupted by Senator Nelson, who asked what he proposed to do with the treaty. There is no use in trying to chop this treaty into mince meat, declared the Minnesota senator. Fall said he would not enter into a discussion with Senator Nelson in deference to the latter's age, whereupon Senator Nelson retorted, 'You needn't consider my age, but just consider me the youngest man in the senate. I am neither in my second childhood in this matter nor in the Mexican matter.'"

Senator McCumber also notified Fall that, as he was prescribing for the conduct of senators he should take some of his own medicine, adding, and you will take it before you are through."

Referring to statements by Senator McCumber that the committee had intended to "slap Japan in the face" and make trouble by the Shantung amendment. Senator Fall said he was "weary" of having his motives impugned and of the efforts of some to make the nation take the treaty "just as it came from the White House typewriter with no more consideration for the American people than was shown the Germans when they signed at the point of the bayonet."

Does Senator Fall deprecate the fact that Germany was compelled to sign the treaty at the point of the bayonet? Is it because he has a great sympathy with Germany that he is opposed to the treaty? His language would intimate such to be the case. As to his being weary of having his motives impugned, the relief lies at his own door. Were his motives actually above suspicion; did his acts portray a mind single in American interest and American patriotism, there would be none to impugn those motives except enemies of America. If Mr. Hall has been misunderstood and misinterpreted he has none but himself to blame. The personal hostility of Mr. Fall to the peace treaty and the league of nations has a tendency to further seriously embarrass the people of New Mexico, he being one of the senators from this state, and, taken in conjunction with the pardon granted one, Sylvano Vargas, a Mexican convicted in a New Mexico court of justice, of having murdered American soldiers and citizens in the Columbus raid, cannot but have a tendency to put the Americanism of the sunshine state in question. It is a false position in so far as our citizenship is concerned, but one from which there is no escape under present conditions. The presiding judge, the district attorney and the jury empaneled did their duty as American citizens and patriots. It will always remain a matter of deep regret that their motives were impugned and their patriotism rendered of no avail.

REGULATION TO PREVENT INTERSTATE SHIPMENT OF TUBERCULAR CATTLE

It is Impossible to Tell the Tubercular From the Healthy Cows by External Appearance.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The regulation prohibiting, after July 1, 1919, the interstate movement of cattle for breeding or dairy purposes unless they are properly tuberculin-tested, will prove to be a long step toward the control of tuberculosis and its eventual eradication in this country, according to officials of the United States department of agriculture. It supplements and strengthens state regulations on this subject.

The object of the regulation is specifically to prevent the interstate shipment of diseased animals to cattle breeders or dairymen who are trying to drive out or keep tuberculosis from their herds. Cattle consigned to a public stockyard, and steers and strictly range cattle may be moved interstate without restriction under the new regulation.

Copies of the regulation, which has been issued by the secretary of agriculture and is known as regulation seven of bureau of animal industry order 263, are being printed, and will be available soon for cattle owners, dealers, veterinarians and others who may desire them.

The regulation of interstate movement of cattle follows the same principle used successfully in the control of other animal diseases, and has been recommended to the department of agriculture by many cattle owners as an essential part of the campaign against tuberculosis, which is now getting well underway, and in which the federal government and 42 states are co-operating.

What Cattle May Be Moved.

Cattle known to be tubercular may be moved interstate for immediate slaughter under federal inspection. They must be marked for identification; must be accompanied by a certificate showing their condition, that they may be shipped interstate, and the purpose for which they are shipped; transportation companies must identify the cattle as tubercular on waybills and other papers; cars or boat compartments in which they are moved must be cleaned and disinfected under bureau regulations; and the cattle must not be transported in cars or boat compartments containing healthy cattle or hogs unless the latter are for immediate slaughter.

Pure-bred cattle which have been shipped interstate for breeding or feeding purposes, and which have reacted to the tuberculin test subsequent to such shipment, may be reshipped interstate upon proper certificate for purposes other than slaughter, provided they are consigned to the original owner at the same point of origin; the reshipment must be made within four months of the original shipment; they shall not be shipped to any state or territory that does not provide for quarantine of tubercular cattle; they cannot again be shipped interstate except for immediate slaughter under government inspection; requirements of identification and disinfection must be observed.

Briefly, heifers may be moved interstate for feeding or grazing on certification that they will not be used for other purposes, and cows may be shipped interstate from public stock yards on affidavit to the same effect. Bulls may be shipped from public stock yards for feeding provided the owner or shipper makes affidavit that they are for feeding only, and the state to which they are shipped provides for quarantine.

Certificate With Accredited Cattle.

Cattle from a herd officially accredited as free from tuberculosis may be shipped interstate if accompanied by official certificates showing they are from such a herd.

Tuberculin tests for the detection of tuberculosis may be made by veterinary inspectors of the bureau of animal industry at public stock yards or regular bureau stations or by a veterinarian of the state and approved by the bureau of animal industry.

GOOD DAIRY COWS IN DEMAND

Animal Is Wanted to Feed American People—Also Helps to Build Up the Soil.

There never was such a good demand for good dairy bred cows and heifers and the older the country gets the greater will be the demand for this class of live stock. The dairy cow is the animal that is wanted to feed the American people and the sooner farmers come to realize this fact the better they will be off. Not alone this, but the cow is the animal to feed the land as well.

FLY REPELLANT FOR CATTLE

North Dakota Station Recommends Mixture of Soap, Crude Oil, Naphthaline and Water.

The North Dakota experiment station recommends the following repellent for flies of all kinds: Dissolve one cake of laundry soap in four gallons of soft water, while boiling hot, and one gallon of crude oil, slowly, and stir vigorously for ten minutes, then add four ounces of naphthaline and shake or agitate for fifteen minutes. This repellent can be used most effectively in a sprayer or it may be put on animals with a moist new cloth, care being taken not to rub the skin. It should be applied to the hair only.

Weaning Pigs.

The weaning of pigs should be so planned that the removal from the mother will not be an incident in the pig's life. On too many farms weaning is an event that many pigs recover from but slowly. The cheapest gains are obtained from young animals.

KEEP DAIRY UTENSILS CLEAN

Fiber Brushes Are Preferable to Dish-rag—Vat Is Convenient for Washing Cans.

Fiber brushes for washing milk utensils should be used instead of the dish-rag, as they do better work and are more easily kept clean. A vat is convenient for washing dairy utensils, and one end of the vat can be used for washing and the other for rinsing and scalding. The stove for heating water for washing should be outside the milkroom and fitted with a basin. Connect with tank, water pipe or well

Shipping Eggs.

Many farmers give eggs little more care when taking them to town than they give apples or potatoes. Use good packages when carrying eggs to market. The use of carrying boxes with strong fillers would be a great aid in cutting down losses.

Cooling Milk Retards Souring.

Cooling the milk immediately after it is drawn from the cow will retard the development of bacteria and the more the temperature is lowered the more the bacterial growth will be retarded.

Calf Sucking Habit.

Very often when calves are on milk they are permitted to suck each other. This always results in misshapen udders and very often in one or more of the quarters failing to develop when the calves reach cowhood.

Fight the Lice.

Hens which are troubled with lice are soon devitalized and this lack of vigor soon results in illness which might have been avoided by a strong bird.

TALES FROM BIG CITIES

May Wear Suspenders and Still Be a Christian

COLUMBUS, O.—A man may wear suspenders and still be a Christian. And no one has the right to blacklist him for it, either. This Solomonic decision has just been rendered by Judge E. B. Kinkead of this city in a case which arose in Holmes county involving the beliefs and practices of the Amish Mennonites. Judge Kinkead is unbiased as to religion, and he is without prejudice, too, in the matter of suspenders. In the winter time Judge Kinkead wears suspenders, in the summer a belt.

Eli Ginerich is an Amish Mennonite farmer of Holmes county. He is fifty-two, but looks seventy. He believes in wearing suspenders. It is no one's business, he says, how a man holds up his trousers, so long as he holds them up. He is also opposed to "meidening," or blacklisting, by the church.

Ginerich persisted in wearing suspenders. He also discarded the little peajacket which true Amish Mennonites are supposed to wear. It is possible, too, that he rode in a buggy with a dashboard and a whip socket. He defied the church rules against suspenders and the church punished him by "meidening" him.

Life becoming unbearable in the Miller church, to which he belonged, he transferred his membership to the Bunker Hill church, and in this church the men may hold their trousers up as they please, and even own automobiles.

In the old Miller church neighborhood Ginerich had become ostracized. Then Ginerich went to court to establish his rights in the eyes of his fellowmen. He brought suit against seven bishops and elders of the Amish church. Judge Kinkead, who went to Millersburg, heard the case with the aid of interpreters and granted Ginerich the injunction he asked for, but denied him damages.

Cheyenne Girl Is Model for Frontier Day Poster

CHEYENNE, WYO.—Those fortunate eastern tourists who saw "Frontier Days" performances were loud in expression of admiration of the official poster, and thereby hangs a tale of which the easterners probably never heard.

Controversy between the East and the West on the question, "Who will pose for Cheyenne's Frontier Days' poster?" was spirited. The decision went to the West, and it was a typical western girl, Helen Bonham of Cheyenne, who was selected for the model of the poster. By the selection of Miss Bonham supporters of the movement to obtain a western girl model obtained just the young lady wanted—one who at one time held the world's title as champion woman broncho buster, a participant in scores of western "round-ups," "stampedes," and pioneer-day riding and roping contests, both in the western United States and western Canada, where she was prominent in frontier exhibitions in Calgary, Alberta. Furthermore, Miss Bonham hails right from Cheyenne, the home of this particular frontier days' fete.

So hot had become the dispute over the model question that Mrs. Jack Elliott, a star rider of Cheyenne, resolved on something spectacular.

Dashing up Capitol avenue on a black horse, across the sidewalks, and up the steep steps of the state capitol, she carried a message to Governor Carey.

Why the Preacher Shot the Blue Jay in Church

SAUNDERSVILLE, GA.—Agitated over the wrong done their pastor, Rev. W. A. Wray, in published reports of the shooting of a blue jay during church services on June 8, members of the Baptist church here have issued an official communique in which the facts are set forth.

Here is the official statement signed by the chairman of the board of deacons and the church clerk:

"Before, and after, the Sabbath school hour every conceivable effort was made to put the bird out of the building, but the ceiling being so high above the tops of the windows it was impossible. As the squawking of the bird so interrupted the work of the Sabbath school, it was thought best to remove it before the preaching hour. During the intermission a small gun was sent for, which shoots a cartridge about the size of one's little finger, loaded with mustard shot. This gun was placed in an anteroom that it might be used as a last resort.

"The bird continued to squawk as the pastor endeavored to read the Scripture. It was then fully realized that the service must either be dismissed or the bird shot.

"On the following Sunday, June 15, the church in conference, by a unanimous rising vote, signified that the action of the pastor in the entire proceedings was correct, and essential for the good of the cause."

How They Get Rid of Automobiles in a Big City

CHICAGO.—An ad inserted in a morning paper conveyed the information that Mrs. A. W. Johnston of the Shercom's hotel at 4035 Sheridan road desired to get rid of her sky blue roadster. A man who gave the name of McDonald met her in the hotel lobby. He was accompanied by his country cousin, who said he was in the market for a car.

The trio stepped into the "bus" and up and down Sheridan road they whisked for more than an hour.

"Soars like a baby carriage with wings," mused the prospective customer.

Riding on the smooth boulevard satisfied the "country cousin," but he was doubtful as to its ability to "make" the country roads. Mrs. Johnson was averse to driving 25 miles to find a country road, so they decided to motor up some of the bumpy thoroughfares in North Edgewater. This test also was satisfactory.

"What'll you say to a cash deposit of $800?" said McDonald.

So it was agreed. They would drive to the Great Northern hotel, where McDonald had left the key for his safety deposit vault. Then he would give her the $800.

When they reached Monroe street on the way to the hotel, the country cousin suddenly remembered that he owed his wife a phone call, so he stepped out of the machine. Nothing out of the ordinary, thought Mrs. Johnston. Soon they were in front of the hotel. McDonald brought Mrs. Johnston into the waiting room and whispered that "he'd be back in a couple of seconds." She waited for five minutes. Then she decided to go out and have a last look at her car.

A Teaspoonful of PERUNA Three Times a Day

Has Never Been Down Sick Since Taking PERUNA

Read this letter from Mr. Robt. Minnick, Grass Range, Montana.

"In 1900 I was out in Kansas running a threshing engine and the threshing crew had to sleep out of doors. One of the crew brought a Peruna Almanac to the engine one day and I was feeling very ill from sleeping out. I decided to give Peruna a trial and sent for a bottle of Peruna and a box of Peruna Tablets, which straightened me out in a hurry.

"I have never been down sick since that time. I do not take any other medicines except Peruna. I always keep it on hand. If I get my feet wet, get a cold, feel chilly, or a little bad, I always take Peruna. People should not wait until they are down sick and then take it, but should keep it on hand like I do and when they feel bad, they should use it."

GREEN FANCY LIARS.

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. They are doing hotel work for their board. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night two mounted men leave the tavern under odd circumstances. One is shot dead near by; the other is brought back dying. The sheriff detains Barnes. Green Fancy guests appear and say the mystery does not concern Green Fancy.

The two men looked at him, plainly perplexed.

"When was all this?" inquired De Soto.

"Early last evening. He picked up your latest guest at the corners, and she insisted in his driving me to the tavern before the storm broke. I've been terribly anxious about her. She must have been caught out in all that frightful—"

"What's this you are saying, Mr. Barnes?" cut in De Soto, frowning. "No guest arrived at Green Fancy last evening, nor was one expected."

Barnes stared. "Do you mean to say that she didn't get there, after all?"

"She? A woman, was it?" demanded O'Dowd. "Bedad, if she said she was coming to Green Fancy she was spoofing you. Are you sure it was old Peter who gave you that jolly ride?"

"No, I am not sure," said Barnes uneasily. "She was afoot, having walked from the station below. I met her at the corners and she asked me if I knew how far it was to Green Fancy, or something like that. Said she was going there. Then along came the automobile, rattling down this very road—an ancient Panhard driven by an old codger. She seemed to think it was all right to hop in and trust herself to him, although she'd never seen him before."

"The antique Panhard fits in all right," said O'Dowd, "but I'm hanged if the woman fits at all. No such person arrived at Green Fancy last night."

"Did you get a square look at the driver's face?" demanded De Soto.

"It was almost too dark to see, but he was old, hatchet-faced, and spoke with an accent."

"Then it couldn't have been Peter," said De Soto positively. "He's old, right enough, but he is as big as the side of a house, with a face like a full moon, and he is Yankee to his toes. By gad, Barnes, the plot thickens! A woman has been added to the mystery. Now, who the devil is she and what has become of her?"

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Stroll in the Wildwood Follows.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the commotion. He boomed all over the place, vocal castigations falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take oath now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his beastly appetite ought to defy it, if nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you omitted breakfast this morning."

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I implore you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and bacon at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft readily. "Luncheon is an esthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you. "Twelve-thirty, did you say?"

"It would give me great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the festal board. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes. "She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow!" beamed Rushcroft, seizing the other's hand. "One frequently reads in books about it coming like this, at first sight, but, damme, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—"

And Barnes, aghast, stopped before blurring out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companions, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our repast."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably.

The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to hear the star's indignant lamentations, that he and his party were in a position to depart when they pleased. It would have been difficult to imagine that he was not actually rolling in money instead of being absolutely penniless.

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly—perhaps impolitely—he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—er—misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of inquisition, you might as well substitute. The act of a polluted, impetuous, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was covertly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armpoles of his vest. He displayed no undue elation. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the would-be Samaritan. There was a heightened color in her cheeks.

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return at once to New York, if you so desire—by train." Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked sturdily.

He started, catching her meaning.

"My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to press."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to our friend and me. I fancy I know an honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, zipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray. "We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us, Dilly! We shall be in New York tomorrow!"

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes.

"The varlet!" barked Mr. Rushcroft. It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Hornville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Hart's Tavern. The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That, they declared, would be charity, and they preferred his friendship and his respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest.

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure. Egad, sir, I'll read the play to you. I'll—What ho, landlord. Have your best automobile sent around to the door as quickly as possible. A couple of my men are going to Hornville to fetch hither my—"

"Just a minute," interrupted Putnam Jones, wholly unimpressed. "A man just called you up on the phone, Mr. Barnes. I told him you was entertaining royalty at lunch and couldn't be disturbed. So he asked me to have you call him up as soon as you revived. His words, not mine. Call up Mr. O'Dowd at Green Fancy. Here's the number."

The mellow voice of the Irishman soon responded to Barnes' call.

"I called you up to relieve your mind regarding the young woman who came last night," he said. "You observe that I say 'came.' She's quite all right, safe and sound, and no cause for uneasiness. I thought you meant that she was coming here as a guest, and so I made the very natural mistake of saying she hadn't come at all, at all. The young woman in question is Mrs. Van Dyke's maid. But, bless me soul, how was I to know she was even in existence, much less expected by train or motor or Shanks' mare? Well, she's here, so there's the end of our mystery."

Barnes was slow in replying. He was doubting his own ears. It was not conceivable that an ordinary—or even an extraordinary—lady's maid could have possessed the exquisite voice and manner of his chance acquaintance of the day before, or the temerity to order that sour-faced chauffeur about as if—

"The chauffeur!"

"But I thought you said that Mr. Curtis' chauffeur was moon-faced and—"

"He is, bedad," broke in Mr. O'Dowd, chuckling. "That's what deceived me entirely, and no wonder. It wasn't Peter at all, but the rapsallion washer who went after her. He was instructed to tell Peter to meet the four o'clock train, and the blockhead forgot to give the order. Bedad, what does he do but sneak out after her himself, scared out of his boots for fear of what he was to get from Peter. I had the whole story from Mrs. Van Dyke."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our busted romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most affable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Roon and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosures of Miss Thackeray and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border, in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Roon and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the inside worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to rifle the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these palnstaking agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Roon's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and sauntered among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the doors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"Gad," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Of all the crazy ideas I ever—"

His reflections ended there. A woman crossed his vision; a woman strolling slowly toward him through the intricate avenues of the wildwood.

Barnes meets "Mrs. Van Dyke's maid," and the mystery deepens.

Never Lose Hope.

Hope is something to be busy with. It is something of which we should accumulate a store. Always have plenty of hopes, and have them so that they will reach out and last away into the years of the future.

There is really something mysterious about a hope. If you will cherish it faithfully and keep it warm in your heart, you will be almost sure to some time realize it. It is said that we are what we believe ourselves to be. But, perhaps, we might better say that we are what our hopes are.

Bad Sickness Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people only realized the health-destroying power of an acid-stomach—of the many kinds of sickness and misery it causes—the lives it literally wrecks—they would guard against it as carefully as they do against a deadly plague. You know in an instant the first symptoms of acid-stomach—pains of indigestion; distressing, painful bloating; sour, gassy stomach; belching; food repeating; heartburn, etc. Whenever your stomach feels this way you should lose no time in putting it to rights. If you don't, serious consequences are almost sure to follow, such as intestinal fermentation, auto-intoxication, impairment of the entire nervous system, headache, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, sometimes even catarrh of the stomach and intestinal ulcers and cancer.

If you are not feeling right, see if it isn't acid-stomach that is the cause of your ill health. Take EATONIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy. The baseball game Sunday between the home team and Texico resulted in a victory for the home boys by a score of two to one. The visitors appeared to be in a bad humor and gave up considerable loose head about some of the decisions of the umpire. The game was a good one and Umpire Dezonis, if anything, gave the visitors, at least all that was coming to them. Of course our boys gathered a little of their glue which did not have a tendency to put them in better spirits.
