

Regular Ford Way

Henry Ford tested the Ford starting and lighting system on his own car for one year.

Ten months ago the Ford Motor Company was not manufacturing electric starters: today the output of its starter department is greater than that of any other manufacturer of electric starting devices in the world. Its nearest competitor makes one thousand a day, whereas, the Ford Company's output is fast approaching the three thousand mark, two thousand eight hundred and eighty one already having been manufactured in one day.

The Ford starter and generator, for it is really two separate units, is not the result of a new idea or of a sudden decision. More than eight years ago Mr. Henry Ford's vision saw the need, and his electrical engineers were instructed to begin experimenting. After seven years of constant research, which took into consideration the many different climates in which the Ford car is used, together with the factors of size and weight and an adaptability to quantity production, twenty-three trial jobs were built. These were tested in many different ways. Mr. Ford himself used one on his car for a year. Still the engineers continued their experiments and improvements.

Then came the order from the government for 16,000 three-ton tanks, each one of which was to be equipped with two synchronized Ford motors. A starter was essential, so the one now being installed on Ford cars was evolved. But, only one starter and generator was used to turn over the two Ford motors in each tank. January first 1919, the Ford Motor company began equipping enclosed cars with this new starting and lighting system. Ford engineers say that although the entire system, starter and generator, weighs only thirty-one pounds. It produces a higher torque output (constant rotary motion) pound for pound, than any other system on the market.

When the department for building the starting and lighting system first began production, fifty hours labor was charged to each unit, but now that machinery and equipment have been installed, the time for unit is four hours. Two huge armature impregnating ovens have been installed, each with a capacity of 1700 every eight hours. In these ovens the armatures are dried, soaked in varnish and dried again. Eight hours time is required for this one operation.

The power from the starter to the motor is applied through the well known Bendix drive, which automatically engages the starter and then, once the motor is started, the starter immediately disengages. It is equipped with oilless bearings and needs practically no attention.

Within another thirty days or six weeks, the Ford company expects to be making enough starters so that every Ford car will be equipped with the new electric starting and lighting system.

Mrs. John Tyson Dead

Mrs. Minnie Brooks Tyson, wife of John G. Tyson, died at Guthrie Oklahoma, Friday, October 31, and was buried at Taiban, this state, Monday November 3. At the time of her death her father was also lying mortally wounded by Mexican bandits in Arizona, the wounds being received while in the discharge of his official duty on the border.

The burial ceremonies were attended by all the old time cow men of eastern New Mexico, and many from points farther away. Both the families of Mr. Tyson and Mrs. Brooks have been identified with the frontier and the stock business for many years and are among the best known in the plains country. Mrs. Tyson and family lived in Portales for a period of several years and during that time made many friends. The burial was at night and the surroundings especially fitting. Lanterns shed but a feeble light and the burial service was read while the mournful howl of the coyote was borne from the nearby hills.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss four children, Hollis, Lucy Evelyn, Ed M. and John Brooks, Tyson, and her husband, John G. Tyson.

U. D. C.

Mrs. Wollard was hostess to the U. D. C. on Tuesday afternoon.

A historical program led by Mrs. H. F. Jones, assisted by Mrs. Mears and Mrs. Lindsey, proved unusually interesting.

The Daughters planned a social meeting for Thanksgiving day to include the families of the members.

At the close of the program the hostess served dainty refreshments.

The Red Cross at Home

One of the field supervisors of the Red Cross for the state of New Mexico visited Portales and Roosevelt county this week, the main purpose of her visit being to make clear, before the beginning of the Red Cross campaign, the peace time program of the Red Cross. To put it in the fewest possible words, it is just neighborliness, the same kind of neighborliness that leads you to go to the home of the neighbor who is sick, and there to wash dishes, cook meals, take care of the children and the sick person. It is being your brother's keeper, to the extent of seeing that in time of sickness and need, help is provided.

The Roosevelt county chapter, through its executive committee voted to use the funds on hand for the employing of a county nurse, to visit all districts and communities of this county, to give instruction in sanitation, in diet for the sick, diet for babies and small children, first aid to the injured, what to do in case of contagious diseases, and the care of the sick. Such instruction will be given to everyone in the community who wishes to take it, and the nurse will be at the service of the entire county. The chapter, realizing that there must also be sufficient funds to relieve need when found by this nurse, is asking the county to Home Service.

One of the finest constructive activities of the American Red Cross in the war was Home Service in the United States, the friendly connecting link between the soldier far from home and his loved ones. This branch of the work which under the peace program of the Red Cross will be expanded, to benefit all who need the assistance it can provide, is directed by scientifically trained social workers. Since instituted Home Service has assisted 800,000 soldiers' and sailors' families. Opening of Floyd Schools

The Floyd consolidated school opened last Monday Nov. 3rd, with Prof. J. H. Kelso, principal, Miss Montana Grinstead, high school, Miss Maude Amy Reese, intermediate, and Mrs. J. H. Kelso, primary teacher.

There was an old fashioned picnic dinner spread and a get together meeting of the patrons, teachers and pupils. County Superintendent Sam J. Stinnett, Superintendent Wilson, of the Portales schools, and Rev. J. H. Stucky of Portales were present and made addresses. A number of interesting talks were made by the patrons, and the faculty. The enrollment was 120, 40 of this amount being enrolled in High school.

This is the first real consolidated school to be put in operation in the county, the children being hauled from the remote districts in automobile trucks hauling from 20 to 30 children on each truck making a distance from 12 to 16 miles one way. It is reported that the trucks run their distance and gather in the children from one hour to one and one fourth hour. The one district now formerly composed of six small districts. The patrons, pupils and teachers are looking forward to a most to a most successful term.

What Elida is Doing

Elida, always a strong branch of the Red Cross and willing to go a little beyond anything asked of it, has a brand-new-idea, and such an excellent one that it probably will be copied in many other communities. Having a physician, and being in the center of a wide stretch of settled country some of which is forty-five miles from the town, it is frequently visited by people from the farms and ranches who come to consult a doctor, and who find themselves ill to return to their homes, or who must stay in close touch with their doctor for treatment or observation. Elida says there is no suitable place for these people to stay; that hotels are not pleasant for sick people, nor or sick people pleasant for hotels. So they plan to secure a small house, make it as sanitary as paint and linoleum and much scrubbing and disinfecting can possibly make it, fit it with comfortable beds, supply gauze, cotton, bandages, linen, disinfectants, and whatever else is decided necessary, and then rent such rooms to those who come in for medical care, provided they can afford to pay rent; and to those who cannot afford such rental, the use will be given free. After each case, the house will be thoroughly disinfected by Dr. Evans, chairman of the Elida branch; and the members of the branch will see that scrupulous cleanliness is maintained, and that a complete supply of the necessary things are always on hand; Elida has the true Red Cross spirit, and is to be congratulated.

J. B. Sledge is having his recently purchased store room cleaned, painted, new shelving put in and otherwise improved. He will, probably, get moved to the new location next week. He has one of the largest hardware stocks in the eastern tier of counties, but heretofore, has not had the room to properly show it. In the new home you'll have no trouble finding what you want and when you want it.

Some Graft

That the Cannonball Motor company, the Western Tire Manufacturing company and the C. A. Robertson Brakage company of Texico had been under federal investigation came to light today in the announcement by Assistant United States Attorney J. O. Seth that ten indictments had been found against officials of the three companies charging them with using the mails to defraud.

The indictments were found by the United States grand Jury in Santa Fe, but announcement was withheld until all the men indicted had been placed in custody. They are now under bond. They include two Colorado bankers and a county judge of Texas.

The defendants included C. A. Robertson, Texico, fiscal agent, who is said to be the chief; Judge J. D. Hamblin, Farwell, president; E. A. Randall, Pueblo, Colorado bank president; J. E. Milne, Pueblo, banker; and several residents of western Texas, who are said not to be moving spirits in the organization. Judge Hamblin, who is county judge, was said to be a reputable citizen of Farwell. Roberson was required to give $125,000 and the bonds for the others were fixed at smaller amounts.

Pictures of the plant at Texico were said to have been sent out, making Texico look like Pittsburgh, according to Mr. Seth. He said the tire company built a small building and bought some second-hand machinery and that the motor company purchased an office building but had not begun building a plant. The brokerage company was said to have been organized primarily to sell stock in the other two concerns.

It was estimated, Mr. Seth said, that the companies got in cash between $350,000 and $400,000 from stock buyers in New Mexico, southern Colorado and Texas, and, he added, the greater part was paid-out as commissions.

At the adjourned meeting of the Roosevelt county chapter of the Red Cross, held Saturday, Nov. 1st, the following executive was elected for the coming year: E. E. Hoagland, chairman, Mrs. A. F. Jones, Secretary, A. D. Ribble, Dr. N. F. Wollard, Mrs. J. P. Stone, Dr. D. B. Williams, A. F. Jones.

Mr. Hoagland will also act as chairman of the home service section, and a home service secretary will be appointed at the next executive committee meeting. Meanwhile, any returned service man who wishes to make application for delayed allotment, for medical or hospital care, for compensation, mileage, bonus or anything else may have his papers made up by applying to Mr. Hoagland. It is the earnest desire of the Roosevelt county chapter that every man who was in service from this county shall have every single thing that is coming to him, and to render all possible assistance in getting it.

C. L. Whitcomb, wife and son, of Seattle, Washington, who have been here for the past week visiting C. J. Whitcomb and family, returned home the last of the week.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

MANDARIN AND WOOD DUCKS

"Well, sir," said the Mandarin Duck, "it's nice to meet you in the zoo pond. I'd rather meet you here than in the lion house."

"Ha, ha," said the Wood Duck, "quack, quack, you're a funny fellow."

The Mandarin Duck looked much pleased to be called a funny little fellow. He was making every effort to be thought so, even if he were not as funny as he might be!

"I must tell you something quite interesting," said the Wood Duck.

"Do," said the Mandarin Duck, "I'd like to hear what you have to say."

"Not long ago," said the Wood Duck, "there was a paper which published many pictures of interesting animals from the zoo."

"Yes," he continued, "and there was a picture of our pond with many of us swimming about."

"What a great honor," said the Mandarin Duck.

"Yes, wasn't it?" said the Wood Duck.

"I do hope," he added after a few moments, "that you will not think I am conceited when I say that I heard that below the picture was written these words—or words something like these."

"Try to get the right words," said the Mandarin Duck.

"Ah yes, I'll get the right ones. I may not get them in quite their right order. But I will certainly give them to you so you can understand them, and I will not give any wrong meaning to them. It was a great compliment paid me and I do not need to make it up! It was there, right in the paper."

"Do tell it to me, I am getting very much excited," said the Mandarin Duck.

"They said, that people should look at the picture which they said was a lovely one, but that they should principally notice the Wood Duck, the loveliest creature in the picture."

"Wasn't that nice?"

"Very nice," said the Mandarin Duck. "Well I've always said you were a handsome fellow."

"And so are you," said the Wood Duck. "I like to have such a handsome fellow for my companion."

"I am honored to think that I'm the duck chum of a duck whose picture was noticed especially in the paper."

"I don't know that it was noticed especially, only the paper said that

DIED DEFENDING HIS HERD

Gallant Oryx Bull Had No Thought of Evading Onslaught of Famed Jungle Monarch.

All day the herd of oryx antelope—thick-necked, slender-legged, deep-shouldered, sand-colored above, white below, black-banded between eyes and on the face—had hung about in sight of the drinking place in South Africa. I do not know how long the herd had gone without water—days perhaps—but they could go without no longer. The nearest other drink was forty miles away. They could not all make that and live. Not the calves; not the mothers; not the heavy cows. Then why not go to the drinking place—no more than holes, truly, dug by the beasts themselves in the sandy bed of a dried-up river—and have done with it?

Why? Why, lions, my friends—lions. Their splayed, round foot-prints, the pungent stench of their royal presence in the bushes all around the water holes. None had seen them. None need to; being oryx and wild antelope, their noses and their ears were their Marconi receivers and good enough.

At last night came swiftly walking over the burning plains. Then the leader of the oryx made up his mind, apparently, and gave the order to march. And the herd—all the herd, bulls, cows and calves—fell in behind, silent, springy and alert, as well they might be, for they were heading straight for the drinking place—the water holes of evil repute.

Having once started, that grand old bull oryx never looked back, but his orders, though silent, must have been conveyed to the others somehow. Else how was it, as they neared the twisted trees lining the banks of the river—dried up—the herd closed up behind him—cows and calves somehow in the middle—so that he could hear them press in on flanks, breathing hard in the stillness all about, a serried phalanx of long, glinting, straight horns?

And how was it, when they reached the river's bank, after a minute's statuesque pause, all came with him, in one solid, unbroken rush, to the drinking holes, and at gallop, and in a fashion unlike the drinking approach of any other antelopes? And how, too, sticking together close, shouldered to shoulder, they retreated, paused, and came back to drink again, always in packed formation with their leader? Surely no lion, even, could face that.

But the lion did. He was as famished for food as were the antelopes for water. He, too, had waited for days. So he came, out of the scrub and the dusk, coughing, and with great bounds, and of course, swift as thought, and without warning.

The old bull took the charge, thrusting forward to cover a cow over-anxious and reckless for her calf, and dropping to his knees, the better to throw all his power into the blow.

The shock of the impact was terrific. So was the choking dust that rose up; the appalling, crashing roars of the lion writhing to dismingle himself from those terrible thirty-inch horns, that had gone clean through him; the furious plunging of the oryx bull to free himself and get away.

But it was all to no purpose—or, rather, it was. Before the moon went down the herd drank, and later, away up the bank of the river, the hyenas and the jackals fought audibly over the bull oryx antelope and the lion, lying face to face—dead!

people should notice it," the Wood Duck said.

"Enough," said the Mandarin Duck. "That's a great, great honor."

"I am beautiful because I look like you," said the Wood Duck. "I'm very, very much like you, only you're a Chinese duck and I am a home grown duck."

"I have another name, as perhaps you know—I am also called the Summer Duck."

"Yes, I knew that," said the Mandarin Duck. "I do believe it is true that they say of all the ducks in the world we're as handsome as any. Our plumage is so beautiful with so many magnificent colors. We're rather rare too, choice, you know."

"The Mr. Mandarin Ducks and the Mr. Wood Ducks are far more handsome than the Mrs. Ducks of either family," said Mr. Wood Duck.

"True, true," said Mr. Mandarin Duck, "we're a handsome lot, we Mr. Ducks, but the Mrs. Ducks have to be busy thinking of other things and doing other things too. Besides it has always been the way with our families and there has been no hard feeling about it—none at all."

"That's so," said Mr. Wood Duck. "Well, I must add that our family has a good second name for this time of the year—the Summer Duck family. Even when we're called the Wood Duck it sounds nice and cool, doesn't it?"

"You've nothing to grumble about," said Mr. Mandarin Duck, "and for that matter neither have I. My family for years have been handsome and I'm no disgrace to them," he ended proudly.

Value of Quick Decision.

As a rule the man who has trained himself to quick decisions and prompt actions follows close to the right. He does not need to debate questions as does the man who has become a master of deliberation. His mental faculties seem to work automatically and they are generally right. I'm not sure but that they are more often right than they are with the man who is constantly weighing pros and cons and becoming confused with the issues. He saves time because he acts quickly and he saves everybody the uncertainty of indecision.

UNIFORM APPLE GRADE LAWS ASSIST IN SOLVING VARIOUS MARKETING PROBLEMS

Preparing Apples for Market—Packing in Barrels.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is a growing sentiment, both among apple growers and dealers, in favor of standard apple-grading laws, say specialists of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. The objects, they say, to be attained by such laws are: Elimination of fraud and deception, prevention of waste, establishing a basis for trading, creation and maintenance of confidence, stabilization of the market, and encouragement of better methods of production and handling.

The first definite attempt toward securing the passage of a national apple-grade law was initiated in 1907 by a number of prominent growers, shippers, and dealers, who were instrumental, after working on the problem for several years, in getting the Sulzer bill enacted in congress. This bill became a law in August, 1912, when it was signed by the president, to take effect July 1, 1913. Although this law was not mandatory, it served a valuable purpose in awakening and crystallizing public sentiment throughout the country favoring the enactment of legislation which would serve to stabilize the barrel-apple industry by eliminating fraudulent and deceptive packing and by establishing a uniform basis for buying and selling.

Barreled Apple-Grade Laws.
 The first state mandatory apple-grade law was passed in Maine in 1913. The following year New York passed a similar law covering barreled apples, which is still in effect in an amended form. This was followed by similar legislation in Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Wisconsin—a total of 13 states.

The state laws have not been wholly successful in obtaining the desired results, because the requirements in some cases have not been practical and because the extent to which they have been enforced in some states has varied so greatly that in many instances the grade terms have come to have little value. However, they have done much good. In spite of the objections mentioned, a state law that is practical in its specifications and intelligently enforced will carry with it many advantages.

Specialists in the bureau of markets have conducted investigations in all producing sections and at packing houses handling the products of approximately 1,000 commercial orchards from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts to ascertain the need of a national uniform apple-grade law. Apple dealers, county agricultural agents, and state college horticulturists were also consulted on the question. Ninety per cent of the growers and dealers who were visited were in favor of apple-grading laws, and county agents and college horticulturists were unanimous in their favor.

When it is considered that the value of the sweet potato has increased more than 80 per cent in the last ten years, that it now ranks second in value among the vegetables in the United States, that the value of the 1917 crop reached the huge sum of $90,000,000, and that of 1918 is estimated at almost $117,000,000, it is not difficult to understand why so much interest is being taken in this crop. The lowly potato, so long accustomed to coming to mar-

When some people feel for the poor they never feel in their pockets.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

HER ONE PRECIOUS MEMORY DIDN'T HELP TO GET CLOSE

It Was Not Dread of Influenza That Led Spinster to Dwell on Kissing Episode.

The spinster waited two or three hours to be admitted to the presence of the man who visited their town once a month to retail good advice and his own proprietary medicine to the come-ons.

At last she was admitted.
 "Yes, yes," said the brusque doctor.
 "I want to know if influenza can be transmitted by kissing?"
 "Beyond a doubt, madam."
 "Well, a man with a pronounced case of influenza kissed me."
 "So! How long ago was this?"
 "Well—let's see. I think it was about two months."
 "Why, madam! No harm can come to you now from the exposure. It is quite too late."
 "I knew it," she sighed, "but I just love to talk about it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Excellent Reason Why Old Gentleman Could Not Decipher the Letters on the Card.

The old man was applying at the eye hospital for some spectacles and the doctor was making a test of his eyes. A card was fixed on the wall twenty feet away from where the old man was sitting, and the doctor asked him: "Can you read that, my man?"
 "No, sir," said the old man, "I can't."
 The doctor told him to go nearer.
 "Well, can you read it now?"
 Again the old man replied, "No, sir."
 The doctor angrily pulled him forward till his nose almost touched the placard.
 "Well, can you read it now?"
 "No, sir," said the old man sadly, shaking his head. "You see, sir, I never learnt to read!"

Thunder and Lightning.
 Thunder is caused by electric discharge of lightning. This discharge, in forcing its way through the atmosphere, heats the air and vapor lying in its path to a high temperature, causing a violent expansion along the whole length of the flash. The result is a deep compression wave, or what is the same, a noise. Lightning is the flash of the electric explosion.
