State budget woes impact 4-H position

County Judge Bill Sava informed commissioners on Monday that the Extension office is going to lose a significant amount of state money and will have to eliminate the position held by 4-H agent Suzanne Gibbs, effective Aug. 31. "I feel we should visit with our remaining agents and get their input before making any decision about how we will continue," said Precinct 1 Commissioner Newlon Roland. "I certainly appreciate the work that these people have done and want them to be involved in any decision we make." The item was tabled without more discussion until the June 23 meeting. Commissioners also continued their budget session, which continued on Tuesday. Right now, commissioners are comparing requested budgets with the budgets in place for this year. These preliminary sessions must be finished before department heads meet with commissioners to finalize budgets for the coming fiscal year, which starts October 1.

Johnny and Janet Stanford, along with Johnny's sister and her husband, Dick and Nelda Lillie spent seven days in the Bahamas. The Lillies have a cottage on Guana Cay. This is off the beaten path. But was very nice. This is a very small island with only two restaurants and one grocery store. The mode of transportation for the week was a golf cart. They landed at Mission Harbor in the Bahamas and took a taxi over to Abaco, then from there a ferry to Guana Cay. The cottage had no phone, computer or TV. So it was a quiet, restful time. They watched movies and read books in the afternoon and snorkeled in the mornings. They hunted for sea shells and swam a lot and all-in-all, had a great time.

Genell Craig went to see Kaye Stevens over Memorial Day weekend. They went to eat prime rib at Black Angus on Friday night.

Saturday they painted the dining room and hall in Kaye's home. Genell had gone out last year at this time to help her paint, but they never did get time to do it then. Kaye has just remodeled her kitchen, so couldn't put the painting off any longer. Kaye had an engagement Saturday night, so Genell and Barbara Wheat took in the sights of Albuquerque.

Sunday they had breakfast with Barbara and Wannie Stevens. They live four doors down from Kaye. Then Genell, Barb and Kaye went shopping for most of the day.

Monday morning, Genell and Kaye got up and went to Old Town and shopped some more. They had lunch at La Hacienda Restaurant. Then Genell came back home.

Kaye Stevens, former Dimmitt resident, who now lives in Albuquerque, N.M., has been elected 2003-2004 president of the Albuquerque, N.M. Beta Sigma Phi sorority City Council. She assumed her duties on May 5.

She is outgoing president of Xi Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, and has been a representative to the Beta Sigma Phi City Council for two years. She was recently selected Woman of the Year for 2002-2003 for Xi Alpha Chapter.

She will serve as City Council President for one year. She will continue as co-chairman of the 2005 New Mexico State Beta Sigma Phi Convention, to be held in Albuquerque.

She moved to Albuquerque from Dimmitt in January of 2001 to work for Moses Law Firm. Her sister-in-law, Barbara Wheat, works for the same firm. She is a member of the Del Norte Baptist Church, where she sings in the choir. She is also a member of the Moses Law Bowling team and spends her spare time remodeling and decorating her home.

Howard and Belinda Rhodes gathered up Frances King, Martha Jo Hyman, Bessie Strickland, Zelma Thomas, Glendora Clark and Dorothy Hopson for an afternoon trek to Groom to see the gigantic cross. The cross is overwhelming, but the sculptures around the base of the cross of Jesus' 13 steps of the crucifixion were most impressive

There is a life-size tomb - empty except for a life-size angel looking where Jesus had lain. A man-made hill with steps leading up to the three crosses where Jesus hung between two thieves. One of these was repentant and spends eternity in heaven. The unrepentant thief who scolded Jesus for not saving them and himself was doomed to hell forever.

As you walk from place-to-place, it can be a real spiritually uplifting and pensive time.

A gift and snack shop is under construction. It is right next to a beautiful man-made waterfall. If you've never been to see this, it is well worth your time.

The group came back from Groom through Amarillo and stopped at the Ware Memorial Convalescent home and gathered up Mary Edna Hendrix and took her with them to eat supper. She is doing much better and the group really enjoyed seeing her.

Mary Edna's daughter, Mary Lyn Lankford, of Amarillo, met her long-time friend, Decimae Dennis at Mary Edna's home Saturday for Dimmitt's big Garage Sale. Decimae is a retired teacher and literally a world-wide traveler.

She has visited the North Pole and South Pole and many countries in between. I hope to give an update on her recent travels soon. She now lives in Midland. She is a native of Dimmitt and the sister of Edgar Dennis.

Sara Hill suggested that since our Chamber of Commerce and others are working hard to entice one cheese company to come to our area, that we should be displaying "We love cheese" bumper stickers and signs everywhere. I think this is a good idea.

Irene Carpenter's daughter Joyce, her husband James of Rockyford, Colo., their daughter Lou Ann and granddaughter Dana came through Dimmitt to get Irene and drive to Abilene to their grandson's wedding. Lou Ann and Dana live in Denver. Lou Ann drove from Denver to Dimmitt with sheets of rain following them all of the way. They called us from 14 miles outside of Dimmitt to meet them in town for supper. It was not raining when they called, but we had a deluge of water filling our town before we got to the restaurant.

Let's not forget to thank God for the rain. It's been wonderful.

Not much news this week. Only that I did a survey on people that came to the City Wide Garage sales. Some of the towns I can remember are Abernathy, Hereford, Earth, Plainview, Texico, Clovis, Littlefield, Bovina, Muleshoe, Nazareth, and Hart.

I asked around and some of the people that had garage sales, and they all reported very good sales. I had a special visitor at my garage sale on Saturday. He was my school teacher in Jr. High at Springlake-Earth. His name is Cecil Slover and his wife Marie Slover. We visited for a long time and remembered some good ole times.

The Acevedos from Littlefield and the Acevedos from Muleshoe were in town this weekend.

They were selling roasted corn at our garage sale. They did extremely well. They Aguilar, Julia Aguilar, Alyssa really enjoyed themselves.

BEWARE OF FIREWORKS

Every year, thousands of children and adults across the US are rushed to the emergency room because fireworks damage their eyes. National Fireworks Month, held from June 1 to July 4, stresses the need to be extra careful during this holiday time. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission reports the following:

- * Fireworks cause about 9,000 reported injuries a year. Approximately 55 percent of fireworks-related injuries are
- burns.
- Most injuries involve the hands, eye and head/face. Over 40 percent of victims are under the age of 15, and about 75 percent are male.
- * Rockets cause the greatest number of eye injuries, followed by sparklers.
- * Fireworks injure bystanders more than the operators themselves.

Learning to be a good listener

I think we would all agree that the key to any relationship is good communication. The key to being a good communicator is being a good listener. One can't adequately communicate without being a good listener. The fact of the matter is if we are to be effective in life we must learn to listen. Think about it, students must listen at school, employees must listen at work, families must listen to one another and we all must listen to God.

The sad truth is that we acknowledge God, muchless listen to Him. How are we to be adequate followers of God if we refuse to listen to Him? You may be thinking that God hasn't spoken to you and that He doesn't speak to us today. God doesn't speak to us through a burning bush as He did to Moses, but He does speak to us through His Word. "Consequently, faith comes from hearing the message, and the message is heard through the word of Christ." (Rom. 10:17) As we listen to God's Word, we live in a world that doesn't hear exactly what He ex-

Luminiary tributes available

Castro County residents are encouraged to help support the American Cancer Society Relay for Life and to remember or honor a loved one by purchasing a luminary tribute for $5. The luminary (candle in a paper bag with sand) will be lighted to give off a warm glow during the Castro County Relay for Life on June 20.

You can dedicate this glowing tribute to someone who lost the battle with cancer, in honor of someone who fought and won, someone who is still fighting cancer or even someone who worked hard for the cause. Names of the individuals will be read aloud during the special Luminary Ceremony that night. Everyone is invited to attend the ceremony to see your tribute come to life at a very impressive ceremony, which should begin around 9:15 p.m. at the high school track. Melissa Carpenter and Vicki Buckley are co-chairs for the luminary event. Luminary packets are available at various businesses throughout town.

Chuck Ball pects of us all.

How can we be good, effective and faithful Christians if we are not good listeners? This idea of being a good listener is a basic fundamental of Christian teaching that should be put into practice. "My dear brothers, take note of this: Everyone should be quick to listen, slow to speak and slow to become angry, for man's anger does not bring about the righteous life that God desires." (Jas. 1:19-20) James teaches that Christians are to be quick to listen, in other words, we are to be good listeners. It seems that at times we are quick to speak and quick to become angry and slow to listen. If we are going to be effective in our service to God, we absolutely must learn to be good listeners.

Lessons in soaring

By The Rev. Doris Huckert

There is an ancient tale about an eagle egg being placed with turkey eggs. The egg hatched a little eaglet and it was raised with turkeys.

He wandered around the yard eating grain off the ground and playing games with the turkeys, but down deep he realized he was different.

Something happened one day as an eagle flew over he felt the inward call. He knew his own identity. He was an eagle.

He proceeded to try to get off the ground and an updraft caught him and off he went - soaring into the sky leaving the turkeys behind in the pen on the ground.

Many of us are like the eagle, one the ground, raised in sin and without any hope of change. Little do we realize there is an escape. Ephesians 1:5 "In love, He predestined us to be adopted as His sons through Jesus Christ, in accordance with His pleasure and will."

Jesus came to give Himself of us (our sins) so that we are not under the Law's sentence of eternal death. John 10:10 "That they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly" now and through all eternity. The cross on which He died paid the full penalty for our sins.

With acceptance and confession of Jesus as Savior of our lives, we too come into a new dimension. We can then say Galatians 2:20: "I have bene crucified with Christ; it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me, and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me." Therefore, we need to encourage one another to store up eternal treasures in heaven for treasures on earth will rot and fade away.

Do you know who you are?

You have a choice! Are you content to be a turkey still in the pen of sin or are you going to accept Jesus Christ as your Savior and soar with the eagles?

The Rev. Doris Huckert is Chaplain at Dimmitt Nursing and Rehab and Hospice Chaplain at Castro County Hospital District.

Letters to the editor:

Dear Editor:

We are writing in support of, and out of concern for, our schools and children in Dimmitt. In our opinion we have a great school and teachers, but we do have our problems, as do all schools.

The education our children receive could be put up against any school around. DISD has so much to offer in technology and education. (KCAT, KATZ, wood working, mechanics, computer classes, college credit courses, etc.)

Please join parents, community, school board, faculty, etc., in coming together with our concerns, support, ideas and solutions for the problems we have at the town meeting, set for 7 p.m., Monday, June 16, 2003, in the DHS auditorium. The school board has offered to listen and hopes to find solutions, with the help of the community and without fear of retribution, for our problems. A main concern being the numerous transfers out of our schools in Dimmitt. You are invited to speak about the positive and/or negative, or struck Texas at a time just come and listen to show your support.

Hopefully we will hear problems and ideas for solutions to fix them from people who have transferred already, and those that are considering this alternative. We don't want to lose anymore of our children. Let's work on this now for the betterment of everyone.

Let's show our children how important they are to us. They are our future.

Thank you, Bryan and Donna Reinart

Dear Editor and all Dimmitt residents:

I attended the high school graduation last week. The wind was pretty bad, but everything went as planned. I thought it was so beautiful and I felt so proud because all the speeches and prayers were like they used to be.

They brought our Lord into speeches and even prayed. Thank you so much, every Senior, for including God in your class and all the officials also spoke of God.

Many schools can't mention anything pertaining to our Lord Jesus Christ.

This is very sad because God has been so good to us as Americans. It's great that our young people are taught this in our public schools.

Dimmitt, we're proud of you. "If God is for us, who can be against us?" God bless America.

LaRue Hasley Dimmitt

Castro County News June 12, 2003 * Weather affects speculative buying on Cotton Exchange

Constructive export sales and shipments coupled with another round of severe weather and beneficial showers in West Texas monopolized most conversations this week as speculative and trade buying reversed the course of cotton futures on the New York Cotton Exchange and closed higher on Wednesday and Thursday after eight consecutive days of losses.

Heavy rain and hail when the spring planting season was drawing to a close in the state and across the U.S. Cotton Belt. However, many in the industry believe the benefits of the precipitation will far outweigh the damages. As of this writing, producers still are not sure how much of their crop has been damaged, but some in the industry expect the crop losses in West reach Texas to approximately 50,000 bales. "When you stand back and look at the bigger picture, 50,000 acres lost out of a projected 3.5 million bale Texas crop isn't a major factor for this year's production," an analyst noted.

Most of the loss is said to be the result of washout and conditions being too wet, but some cotton also will experience root rot. Additionally, many fields still will be too wet to the previous week, shipments cutoff date.

Meanwhile, USDA reported net upland cotton sales of 128,500 bales in the week ended May 29 were two-thirds above the week earlier but 30 percent below the four-week average. Major increases for Turkey, South Korea, China, Taiwan and India were partially offset by net decreases for Mexico.

Although shipments of 2002-03 crop U.S. cotton for the same week fell 16 percent from replant by the insurance still were enough to raise the season's total above exports at the same time one year ago. Consequently, shipments this season are on track to exceed the 11.0 million bales exported in 2002. Major export destinations included China, Mexico and Turkey.

with just over eight weeks remaining in the marketing year, export shipments export have surpassed last year's total to the same point by good numbers posted again shipped.

this week added a sense of urgency to raise USDA's export projection due to be released June 11, according to some analysts.

Upland shipments have exceeded 225,000 bales each week for the last 13 weeks. Less than 1.5 million bales of upland cotton need to be shipped Latest data indicate that in the remaining nine weeks to hit USDA's current estimate.

One year ago, the U.S. exported 1.6 million bales in this period, the previous almost 90,000 bales. The year 1.3 million bales were

District to landowners: Cap your open wells

Conservation District No. 1 urges landowners to properly close any open abandoned water accidents. wells on their property.

"Open, abandoned water wells pose a safety hazard to animals and humans. They also provide a direct conduit for contaminants to enter ground water stored in the Ogallala formation," said Arnold Husky, Water Use Division Director.

Open wells can range from 6 to 16 inches in may cap the well themselves. diameter. These larger openings are particularly dangerous since animals or children can become trapped in wells. Potential for open wells is more likely in areas where former agricultural land is being developed for subdivisions and commercial property. This could be a hazardous situation for children playing in the area.

Issue update from Cong. Mac Thornberry strength of our country has always rested with our people.

This is true of our military, where our servicemen and women continue to prove they are the best-trained, most-highly skilled troops in the world.

And it is true for our economy, where tens of thousands of entrepreneurs, small business owners and other working Americans demonstrate to the world why the United States is not only a military superpower, but an economic superpower as well.

Today, our economy continues to lead the way around the world.

But at home, we know that things could be better. Unemployment is up. Productivity is down.

And the positive feeling we had about the future is no longer so positive.

In short, a lot of people are uncertain about the economy. And they are looking for Washington to act.

Of course, there is only so much Washington can do.

WASHINGTON - The energetic individuals and companies who thrive in freedom and are constrained by mandates.

Far too often over the past half century, the federal government has provided just the opposite - opportunities for individuals to work, opportunities for companies to invest, opportunities for parents to raise a family and put their kids through school, opportunities for all Americans to create a better life. Fortunately, Congress and the President recently reached agreement on a plan that would do just that.

Called "The Jobs and Growth Tax Reconciliation Act," the bill would create opportunities by letting taxpayers keeps more of what they earn and by encouraging small businesses to invest and add jobs.

Among other things, this plan would speedup the tax cuts that were passed in 2001, increase the child tax credit to $1,000, reduce the tax penalty on marriage and cut income tax rates across the board.

50 percent and, for 2003 through 2007, increase the amount small businesses can expense (immediately deduct) from $25,000 to $100,000. The bill would also extend the five-year net operating loss carryback for three years.

Under this plan, a married couple with one child and an income of $40,000 a year will see their taxes decline by $732 (from $2,235 to $1,503) in 2003, a reduction of 33 percent. Likewise, 23 million small business owners would receive tax cuts averaging $2,209.

While I preferred a plan that would have done even more, I believe the bill that was agreed to will help the economy as a whole because it will help create opportunities for individuals and businesses.

And that's what it is all about - opportunity.

As Ronald Reagan stated in his First Inaugural Address, "Government can and must provide opportunity, not smother it; foster productivity, not stifle it."

The "Jobs and Growth Tax Reconciliation Act" helps

Stopping irrigation tailwater waste

Most agricultural producers on the Texas High Plains wouldn't dream of throwing their money away in a roadside ditch. Figuratively, they are doing just that when they allow irrigation tailwater to escape from their farms. In addition to wasting water, they are wasting energy.

Even though tailwater waste occurs less often than in the past, the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 in Lubbock encourages agricultural producers to be aware of the problem and work to prevent it.

High Plains Water District rules and state law define tailwater waste as "ground water pumped for irrigation that escapes off the property and into any river, creek, natural watercourse, depression, lake, reservoir, drain, sewer, highway, road or ditch, or onto land other than the owner of the well."

As long as water stays on property where it was originally pumped, the landowner is not in violation of Texas state law or the rules of the water district.

Water sprayed onto county roads from the end gun of a center pivot or side row irrigation system is also considered tailwater waste. Landowners and operators may be liable for any accidents caused as a result of this water waste.

"With increased use of center pivot and drip irrigation systems, tailwater waste is much less than it was 50 years ago. Some problems still occur when producers irrigate the corners of a field with the end gun of a center pivot irrigation system or with gated pipe," said Arnold Husky, Water Use Division Director. Farmers can prevent irrigation water from running off the property by building strong borders at the end of their fields.

In the 2002 irrigation season, field technicians investigated a total of 63 tailwater complains within the water district's 15-county service area.

"Farmers within the water district realize the importance of stopping irrigation tailwater waste," Husky said. "They improved their irrigation practices to slow tailwater. Also, they don't hesitate to notify us when they see water waste."

Husky said most tailwater reports are received through telephone calls to the water district office or through the water district website, although district field technicians often find tailwater incidents during their daily work. If tailwater is reported, water district field technicians investigate the complaint, take pictures and document the violation. The landowner is then notified by letter and asked to correct the problem. If the violation habitually continues, the water district has the authority to got o district court and seek and injunction against the landowner. "This is truly a last resort. The High Plains Water District has a 'neighbor helping neighbor' philosophy," Husky said. "We prefer to work with the landowner or operator to help them solve their tailwater waste problem, rather than seek legal action." For more information on how to stop irrigation tailwater waste, contact Arnold Husky at the High Plains Water District at (806) 762-0181 or e-mail him at ahusky@hdwd.com. More information is also available at the water district's Website at www.hpwd.com

Tech's Dean of Agriculture retires

Abernathy, Ph.D., dean of ences and Natural Rethe Texas Tech University sources, has announced his

LCP-II application now being accepted

Did you miss the LCP (Livestock Compensation Program) filing deadline last year? Applications are now being accepted for LCP-II.

This is NOT a new program for livestock producers who already applied and were paid.

This program is in response to last year's drought. Eligible livestock for LIP are dairy and beef cattle, sheep, goats, buffalo and catfish.

Payments will made on a per-head basis. Livestock must have been owned for a minimum of 90 calendar days. The date of "June 1, 2002" must be within the 90-calendar day period.

Producers will provide necessary information, including documentation of livestock owned as of June 1, 2002. Benefits are also limited to those persons who have gross revenue of $2.5 million or less for the 2001 tax year. Additional requirements stipulate that producers meet all conservation compliance provisions and that the applicant's combined per-entity benefits for LCP-I or LCP-II cannot exceed $40,000.

Texas Girl Scouts will enhance their knowledge of nutrition and health thanks to a program called "Fit for a Princess" that is jointly conducted by the beef checkoff program and the Girl Scouts of America.

The beef checkoff provides "Fit for a Princess" educational kits to Girl Scout Councils so individual scouts can earn a Texas Beef Council, Texas program patch.

"I will miss the energy and dynamic atmosphere that the faculty and students bring to this university," said Abernathy. "My family and I plan to spend a lot of time with each other and do things that we haven't been able to do. Although I am retiring from Texas Tech, I am not retiring from the love of agriculture."

Two of the greatest accomplishments within the college include partnerships with other universities and agencies and the student congressional internships, he said.

nerships have made the college an outstanding resource for our students and Tech in 1997.

Insects prove beneficial in croplands

TEMPLE -- Not every insect you see flying or crawling on crops is a pest. Beneficial insects such as lacewings, ladybugs, hoverflies, trichogramma, honeybees, and parasitic wasps are only a few varieties in Texas that help to eliminate pests on crops, thus reducing the need for pesticides.

June 12, 2003

Ladybugs are beneficial to crops because they eat aphids, scales, and mealybugs, three pests with which farmers find themselves battling often. One adult ladybug can eat as many as 5,000 aphids in its lifetime.

Lacewings do not eat pests as adults, but their larvae are voracious predators of aphids, mealybugs, thrips, small caterpillars, and caterpillar eggs. Lacewings have Many farmers keep beehuge appetites, and have even been called "garbage disposal" bugs by some agricultural producers.

Hoverflies lay eggs near aphid colonies, and the grubs only eat aphids. Hoverflies are beneficial to crops because they can eat aphids that are twice their own size.

There are many types of parasitic wasps that lay their eggs within aphids, thus killing the aphid. Trichogramma is one type of wasp that eats the eggs of corn borers and cabbage loopers, two pests that can cause much damage to farmers' crops.

Honeybees help to pollinate our crops' flowers while gathering their food.

hives on their farms to ensure the pollination of their crops. Butterflies, hummingbirds and some types of wasps also help with pollination as they fly from flower to flower.

To help eliminate the need for heavy pesticide use and to help in pest remediation, agricultural producers should learn to identify beneficial insects and to protect beneficial insects. For more information on pests or beneficial insects, please contact the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board at (254) 773-2250, or email Amber Preston at apreston@tsswcb.state.tx.us <mailto:apreston@tsswcb.state.tx.us>.

New toll-free connection provides needed help with alluring poisons things children love enticing colors, intriguing containers, inviting contents that look and smell like a favorite food or a familiar beverage. To a small child, that decongestant on the nightstand looks just like red cinnamon candies, and

So many of them are the laxative in the bathroom cabinet is almost identical to a square of chocolate. That yellow lamp oil in the seethrough bottle on the kitchen counter smells a lot like lemonade. And the cleanser in the round green can under the sink? It bears a close resemblance to a container of sprinkle-on grated Parmesan cheese.

> Poison control centers know all too well about "look-alikes" those perfectly good products that become dangerous when mistaken for something yummy by a curious crawler or climber, said Judy Whitfield, coordinator for the Texas Poison Center Network and a staff member of the Bureau of Epidemiology at the Texas Department of Health. Nationally, about 30 deaths and nearly 1 million incidents each year involve children under 5 exposed to potential poisons.

"What makes small children especially vulnerable to accidental poisoning is that they are constantly exploring and investigating the world around them, often putting what they see and can reach into their mouths," Whitfield said. "That's why it is so important to use products child-resistant with packaging and keep medicines and chemicals locked up and out of sight." If a suspected poisoning occurs, people have a new nationwide toll-free number that connects with the nearest poison control center. "Write it down: 1-800-222-1222. Post it by all the phones in the house and program it into your cell phones," Whitfield said.

Those who call the tollfree number are connected to the nearest poison control center and a network of nurses. pharmacists, paramedics and physicians.

Little Aubree Milner is lucky. As an infant, she suffered but survived a sometimes deadly disease called pertussis, commonly known as whooping cough. What began as a raspy little cough progressed over the course of several weeks to pneumonia. In between,

Tax credit advance payments set to go

WASHINGTON - Beginning the last week of July, eligible taxpayers whoclaimed the Child Tax Credit on their 2002 tax returns will automatically receive an advance payment of the 2003 increase in this credit, the Treasury Department and Internal Revenue Service announced today.

Taxpayers will not have to take any action to get this advance payment of up to $400 per qualifying child. The Treasury Department and IRS will perform all the calculations and automatically mail a notice and a check to each eligible taxpayer. "The only thing the taxpayer needs to do is cash the check," said Mark W. Everson, IRS Commissioner. "If you qualify, we will send you a notice. There's no need to call, no need to apply, no need to fill out another form. The IRS will do all the work. A few days after the notice, you willget the check." The checks - an advance payment of the 2003 increase in the Child Tax Credit - will be based on the child tax credit claimed on the taxpayer's2002 tax return. The Jobs and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003 increased the maximum_child tax credit for 2003 to $1,000 per child, up from $600 for tax year 2002. The law further instructed the TreasuryDepartment to provide the difference - up to $400 per child - as an advance payment to each eligible taxpayer this summer. The Treasury Department will issue about 25 million of these checks this year, beginning with three principal mailings on July 25, Aug. 1 and Aug. 8. Taxpayers who filed returns after April 15 - for example, those with automatic extensions - will receive their advance payments after the IRSprocesses their returns. They should not make any change to their 2002 returns or remittances based on an expectation of an advance paymentcheck. The IRS will send notices to taxpayers on July 23, July 30 and Aug. 6, informing them of their advance payment amount. The IRS urges taxpayers to hold on to these notices for their 2003 tax returns. They will need totake the advance payment into account when determining the amount of their child tax credit on the 2003 tax return. Taxpayers who are not eligible for the advance payment may still qualify for the increased child tax credit of up to $1,000 when they file the 2003 tax return next year. For instance, a taxpayer who did not have a child in2002, but had one in 2003, would not receive an advance payment but may qualify for the full $1,000 credit on the 2003 tax return. More information, including answers to frequently asked questions, is available on the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov.

there were numerous visits to doctors, antibiotic treatments, respiratory therapy, choking episodes, difficulty breathing because her airways were so restricted by mucous, a cough so severe that it sometimes caused her to lose consciousness and several hospitalizations, the last of which was 12 days in pediatric intensive care with IVs in her feet and head. Because she was just a few weeks old when she contracted the disease, she was too young to have started the DTaP (diphtheria, tetanus and acellular pertussis) vaccine series recommended for babies at 2, 4, 6, 12 and 15-18 months of age.

So, what makes Aubree lucky? Unlike 10 other Texas babies who have died from pertussis in the past 27 months, she pulled through, recovered completely and is now an energetic 2-yearold. She's also up to date on all her vaccinations.

Vaccines save lives and prevent serious illnesses. For that reason, Texas First Lady Anita Perry and Texas Commissioner of Health Eduardo Sanchez, M.D., are working together to persuade more parents to get their children vaccinated. "Immunizations are one of the most important ways parents can protect their children against serious diseases," Sanchez said. "We can now prevent more diseases than ever before. However, parents are often not aware of what it takes to fully immunize a child." Pertussis is one of 11 vaccine-preventable diseases that babies should be protected against by age 2. The others are hepatitis B, diphtheria, tetanus (lockjaw), diseases caused by the Haemophilus influenzae type b organism, polio, pneumococcal diseases, chicken pox, measles, mumps and rubella (German measles). In addition, children living in areas having a high incidence of hepatitis A disease should receive two doses of the hepatitis A vaccine - one at age 2 and a second shot six months later. About 49 Texas counties have a high incidence of hepatitis A. Parents should check with their local health department or their health-care provider to see if their child should have the vaccination. Then, at age 14, children should receive a booster dose of the tetanus and diphtheria vaccine.

"Following

immunizations schedule will ensure that your child is vaccinated against these debilitating and even deadly diseases," said Mrs. Perry. "All parents want to provide a safe environment for their children, and vaccines are one of the most effective ways we as parents can achieve that goal."
