THE CITIZENS' TICKET WINS OUT IN CONTEST.

The Contest of Ballots Warm and Determined—Results in Doubt to the Last—C. M. Compton Mayor by Eleven Majority—Harvey and Harris in Lead.

After one of the fiercest local contests Portales has ever witnessed, the citizens' ticket won by a good majority in Thursday's election, the vote being as follows:

This result, while not a foregone conclusion, is easily accounted for. The declaration of the candidates and platform of the citizens ticket for prohibition claimed a good sprinkle of what otherwise would have been a straight prohibition vote, while the submission clause in the ticket's platform held out hope to the supporters of the saloons, and got their solid support, whereas the labor union naturally gave its strength to this ticket on the ground that two of the men on this ticket belong to that organization. In addition to this fusion of forces under the banner of the Citizens Ticket, the Prohibitionists had to carry charges of various shortcomings made against the old board. Of course there is nothing in the charges against the old board, except perhaps some honest mistakes. But they afforded the Citizens Ticket plenty of campaign thunder and helped to divert the minds of the people from the saloon issue and therefore was what the little boy said about a lie. On being asked what God said about a lie, a little boy promptly responded: "It is abomination in the sight of the Lord and a very present help in the time of trouble." So did the Citizens Ticket regard and make use of the old board.

BIG CELEBRATION

There was a big celebration, great felicitation and not a little jollification over the results of the election as soon as known. The tense feelings pent up for the last ten days, broke loose in wild and frantic disorder. Men screamed, shouted themselves hoarse, shot anvils, tied crepe on the doors of the business houses of those who remained loyal to the Prohibition Ticket and then, desiring not to be partial in bestowing their honors, they rushed to the homes of the Baptist and Methodist pastors and to the two churches of which these respective pastors are the overseers and hung the black signal of defeat and death upon the portals of their homes and churches. Well done! The churches and pastors accept the honor of living and dying with the moral issue of this and all other campaigns.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE

A new mayor and set of trustees have been elected in the town of Portales. They will take their oath of office sometime during the coming month. Their ideas of managing the prohibition proposition and the financial enterprises of the town are radically different from the idea of the old board. Some of us don't agree with their ideas; but it is but fair to them and to the town, a majority of whose voters have placed the welfare of the town in their hands for the next year at least, to say that we ought to give them a chance. If they can take up the financial propositions and the various other problems facing us as a town and solve them, make no mistakes, incur no criticisms and satisfy the demands of the situation, we believe the whole town will owe them a debt of gratitude.

They have played the role of fault-finder; let us play the role of helpers. It will take all every man in Portales can do to build here the town we ought to build; and one year of agitation and strife and bitterness will brand all our efforts of the past year with shame and failure. Let us hear the poet in his song entitled "One of These Days," which appears in another column on this page:—

IRRIGATION WORK PROGRESSING.

The walls of the irrigation plant are rising rapidly, being some twelve feet high at present. The foundation for the big engine will be finished within the next two days. The switch will be finished this evening and in use tomorrow. Four car loads of producers arrived today, and they are monsters. There are three of these and it will take six cars to haul them. They will be unloaded off the switch at the powerhouse tomorrow. The brick is on the ground to complete this immense building. The steel trusses will be placed Monday. About thirty-five men are at work on the building now. And, besides the poles and transformers which are here, the other machinery will arrive as fast as can be handled. So that, the power plant will be ready before the farmers have their ground in shape.

JOYCE-PRUIT COMPANY BEGIN THE BIG BUILDING

Construction Commenced Last Saturday on Big Building, S. P. Denning Having Supervision of the Work—Building to be 100x115 Ft., With 50x115 Basement.

As was announced in these columns some days since, the Joyce-Pruit Co. have launched the building of the largest store house yet erected in Portales. The building is to be 100x115 feet with 50x115 feet basement, built of brick and concrete, with modern plate glass front and perhaps also a furnace heating plant situated in the basement. The building is to be located on the southwest corner of the square in Portales and its construction, along with the Warren-Fooshee building on the other side of the square and the construction of the town power house and the Portales Irrigation power house, certainly marks the beginning of the new and greater Portales. Mr. Fred Wagner of Roswell is the architect and construction foreman of this new building, while Mr. Sam P. Denning of the same place is contractor. The construction work, however, will be sub-let in sections and the work, all things being equal, will be given to Portales workmen. As is known to some of our readers Mr. Denning is one of the oldest and best known contractors in eastern New Mexico, having built the Citizens National Bank building, the J. B. Sledge residence and other dwellings in Portales. The work of construction is to be pushed as fast as the material can be had, with a view to completing the building ready for occupancy within the next 60 or 90 days.

ONE OF THESE DAYS.

Say! Let's forget it! Let's put it aside!
Life is so large and the world is so wide,
Days are so short and there's so much to do,
What if it was false—there's so much that's true!
Say! Let's forget it! Let's brush it away
Now and forever—so what do you say?
All of the bitter words said shall be praise
One of these days.

Say! Let's forgive it! Let's wipe off the slate!
Find something higher to cherish than hate.
There's so much good in the world that we've had
Let's strike a balance and cross off the bad.
Say! Let's forgive it, whatever it be;
Let's not be slaves when we ought to be free.
We shall be walking in sunshiny ways
One of these days.

Say! Let's not mind it! Let's smile it away!
Bring not a withered rose from yesterday;
Flowers are so fresh by the wayside and wood,
Sorrows are blessings but half understood;
Say! Let's not mind it, however it seems;
Hope is so sweet and holds so many dreams;
All of the sere fields with blossoms shall blaze
One of these days.

Say! Let's not take it so sorely to heart;
Hates may be friendships just drifted apart;
Failure be genius not quite understood;
We could all help folks so much if we would!
Say! Let's get closer to somebody's side,
See what his dreams are and know how he tried;
Learn if our scoldings won't give way to praise
One of these days.

Say! Let's not wither! Let's branch out and rise
Out of the byways and nearer the skies;
Let's spread some shade that's refreshing and deep,
Where some tired traveler may lie down and sleep.
Say! Let's not tarry! Let's do it right now!
So much to do if we just find out how.
We may not be here to help folks or praise
One of these days.

GILLINWATERS ON THE ENABLING ACT.

Through the courtesy of Attorney W. A. Gillinwaters, the Herald is this week able to publish a summary of the enabling act, being an epitome of this document as prepared by Mr. Gillinwaters himself. We feel that our readers will appreciate this contribution from Mr. Gillinwaters, as it very clearly sets forth each provision of the act in language and terms which will be readily understood by the average layman. Though this gentleman has not been a resident of the territory for any great length of time, yet he is quite enthusiastic over our acts of statehood and has probably kept himself in closer touch with progress in this direction than most of us who can date our residence back for some years. The Herald desires to thank Mr. Gillinwaters for the contribution.

Mrs. Will Faggard is reported on the sick list.

THE FRUIT CROP.

There has been great anxiety about the fruit crop in the Portales Valley owing to the unusually warm March and the cold "snaps" which have rushed upon us suddenly since. After making diligent inquiry, we are glad to state that while the winter freezes killed the peach buds and the last few freezes have practically destroyed the plum and prune crop for this year, so far the apple crop has escaped with little harm. If it is possible to steer clear of further freezes, we have full promise of plenty of apples and grapes.

A WORD FOR THE RETIRING BOARD.

Now that the heat of our municipal election for city councilmen has somewhat subsided, calm reason and justice compels most of us to acknowledge that much was said and done on all sides that might have very properly been eliminated from the campaign. If such be the case it is now ours to make amends and bury the remembrance of former strife. There remains only one phase of the situation about which we would speak ere the chapter closes, and that is a word of appreciation to the retiring board for what it has accomplished in the face of so many difficulties. The Herald sincerely believes that this body of men has labored faithfully and untiringly for the best interests of the whole people, and if perchance there may have been mistakes made, we should remember that on the whole they have acquitted themselves nobly in the task before them. Of the truly thankless positions in public life, that of alderman is the most thankless of all. It is a real case of being "cussed if you did, or if you didn't." This board, like all bodies similarly placed, has been censured by every person who did not exactly agree with its policy in every particular, whether that policy was right or wrong. This is no more than human, and as some one has said, it is one of the "penalties of greatness" to be misunderstood and censured by good people in good faith on account of difference of opinion.

The Herald believes that this, the first board of the town under this form of government, has established a precedent for progressiveness and purity in the handling of public affairs that will be pointed back to with pride after all the smoke of this campaign has been dissipated.

SOME OF THE DUTIES OF A NEWSPAPER.

In passing through an ordeal such as this community has witnessed the past few days in the election of a board of aldermen, it very often develops that class of partisanship which believes that the only province of a newspaper is to take up one side or the other and utterly ignore the rights of the other party. In the first place there are two sides to every question—a right and a wrong side. The conscientious editor who does not presume to infallibility, will first of all seek to inform, and thus form the public mind and conscience. As an illustration of the point in question, the Herald last week sought to inform the public of both sides of matters about which all of us were vitally concerned, confining this "information" to the arguments and statements of the exponents of the two opposite factions represented in the political bout, at the same time giving utterance editorially to our own personal convictions in the matter in no uncertain terms. As to how well we succeeded in the effort we leave it to our thoughtful and unprejudiced readers. A newspaper cannot pursue any other course and remain true to the varied classes of people which it represents. Any thing short of a recognition of this duty to its constituency will justly entitle a newspaper to the severest criticism. An editor who will arrogate unto himself the right to permit only one side of a controverted issue to be aired in his columns depreciates the intelligence of his readers, in that he is willing to presume that the public will not be able to choose the right after the submission of both sides. However, the fulfilling of this obligation in no wise precludes a newspaper's inalienable right to express an opinion on all matters affecting the public weal and the "fence riding" class who would restrict the press to news-gathering alone is the same fellow who is always clamoring for the pulpit to preach the "simple gospel of the Master" and would inhibit the progressive and aggressive preacher from dealing with any personage more recent than Nicodemus or any event less remote than the Deluge. This limitation in either case would reduce the press and the pulpit to futility and impotence.

Now to reduce these premises to a practical working basis as regards the attitude of the Herald right here in Portales: That it is not the purpose of its editors to exclude the "other fellow's side" of any question, regardless of sect, creed or politics, which may concern the body politic—the community at large. The purpose of the management is to have a paper for the expression of all the people forming this democratic community of ours, only reserving the right to have "our say" after all has been said. We propose to hack away and let the chips fall where they may.

A STEP FORWARD.

The good ladies of Portales are certainly to be commended for the pride and zeal they are showing in the contemplated beautifying of the school grounds. It may safely be said that every community has at least one building which its owns in common; that is the school house. It is built by everybody, maintained by everybody and belongs to everybody. It ought to be of benefit to everybody. Of course the initial and essential use of a schoolhouse is to provide shelter for the children while they learn their lessons, but it ought to do a great deal more for them than that. It ought to educate them in taste, in the appreciation of art and in the knowledge of beauty, and thus increase their resources of happiness. This may be done by making the building and the grounds on which it stands as beautiful as the neighborhood can afford and by adorning the rooms with casts and prints of the best statues and pictures. This is not expensive. A house with good lines and simple dignity may even cost less than one which every day confronts the landscape, and casts and prints may be had for small prices. In the beautifying of the public school, there are two facts to have in mind. One of these is expressed in the phrase, "the almighty hall." This was used by a great schoolmaster to emphasize the vast and abiding influence of our surroundings. Unconsciously an inevitably the looks of the building make a difference in the life of the people who live in it. The bare little white schoolhouse at the cross roads, whose only decoration is a flag pole at the gable of the roof, is a symbol of the dullness and monotony of agricultural conditions. Both the conditions and the symbol of them may easily be improved. Cover the bare walls with vines and plant other flowers. The other fact is that children will re-

MISS McMANAWAY'S RECITAL.

(Contributed)

The recital given by the pupils of Miss McManaway at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Mears on last Friday afternoon and evening was pronounced a flattering success by those present.

Owing to the size of the class, it was necessary to have the recital in divisions; so in the afternoon the younger pupils entertained their friends with the following program:

The Blossom Waltz	Maud Amy Reese	Story
Heather Rose	Archie Williams	Lange
Falling Leaves Waltz	Eva Crosby	Westendorf
In the Swing	Earl Boucher	Allison
Recitation	Maurine Seay	Selected
The King's March	Eulalia Wollard	Gambrell
Les Pierrots Waltz	Carrie Jones	Streabbog
Solitude Reverie	Lerline Sandford	Streabbog
Wild Flowers Waltz	Quintella Boucher	Story
Recitation	Maurine Seay	Selected

In the evening from eight to eleven the more advanced pupils were heard in the following program:

Vocal Solo, Cavalry	Earle Williams
Instrumental Solo	Marguerite Johnson
Violin Solo	Clifford Wimberly
Piano accompaniment,	Earle Williams
Instrumental Solo	Lennie Wimberly
Vocal Duet	Belle and Morris Bramlett
Instrumental Solo	Fannie Williamson
Vocal Solo	Clifford Wimberly
Quartet	Fannie Williamson, Wessie Jones, Earle Williams, Clifford Wimberly
Instrumental Solo	Mattie Doss Hightower
Vocal Duet	Fannie Williamson, Wessie Jones
Instrumental Solo	Clyde Boucher
Vocal Solo	Wessie Jones

At the conclusion of the program, while refreshments were being served, there were several selections given on the violin and guitar by Carl and Clifford Wimberly accompanied by Earle Williams on the piano, which added very much to the enjoyment of the evening.

After each recital, ice cream and wafers were served by the hostess, and the young people spent a social hour before returning to their homes.

This is the second recital given by Miss McManaway's pupils this year, and the object is not only to let her patrons see just what work she is doing, but to accustom her pupils to playing in public, and to overcome the natural timidity of most young musicians.

PORTALES-LONGS TELEPHONE LINE.

T. H. Long, J. H. Lane and O. C. Duncan were in Portales the first part of this week getting subscriptions for the building of a telephone line from Portales to Longs, New Mexico. The response they received from the Portales people was very gratifying to these gentlemen. More than one third of the $300 requisite to build this line being donated freely and readily by Portalesites and it now seems certain that this much needed line will speedily be built.

spond to these endeavors. The school committee may say that no flowers will grow on school grounds and that hanging pictures on the walls is like hanging pearl necklaces on swine. They may say that children are destructive pests, and that the only wise course is to put them as far as possible with indestructible surroundings, but it does not work that way. Experience proves that children do respond. They will take care of the things which signify that people care for them and their lives be beautified. Let us, therefore, make the schoolhouse shine, and we venture to say it will illumine the faces of the children.

IRRIGATED AND DRY ALFALFA.

When putting in a crop that is to be irrigated, it is important to have the field in the best possible condition and leveled thoroughly in order to expedite the flow of water later on. Make the lateral ditches before the crop is planted and then sow between the ditches in order that no seed will get into them and cause the plants to come up and interfere with irrigation. Sow the seed as early as possible after the bed has been well prepared at the rate of from eight to twelve pounds of seed to the acre. Common practice is to use twenty pounds, but experience has shown this to be more than is necessary, so that eight to twelve pounds of seed are now regarded as quite sufficient.

As such weed seeds as dodder, sweet clover and narrow leaved plantain are likely to be mixed in with the alfalfa seed, it is important to get samples from the dealers and have them examined to determine the amount of weed seeds. These samples can also be tested to determine their germination. Simply place several hundred of the seeds in a moistened cloth or paper and keep moist for five to seven days. As this will supply all the conditions of germination, the seeds will sprout if they possess the vitality essential to growth.

Differences of opinion exist concerning the advisability of sowing alfalfa with or without a nurse crop. Different growers have been successful in establishing a stand under both systems. If a nurse crop is used, something that does not lodge easily like oats or spring wheat ought to be chosen and an amount of seed smaller than is generally used should be planted. In the case of oats, sixty pounds of seed to the acre will be sufficient. A point recommended by some successful growers is to sow brome grass, or blue joint, around the ditches in places where the crop is not likely to be cut. This will furnish fall pasture and will be better than alfalfa. If the alfalfa is seeded without a nurse crop, it ought to be cut back after it is up six or eight inches. Do not rake the hay off the field, but leave it lying there to protect the young root crowns. The cutting back will tend to kill the weeds and cause the alfalfa to root more deeply.

When seeding alfalfa on a dry farm, it is important that the land be summer fallowed the previous year in order that moisture may be accumulated. Sow the alfalfa as early as possible and do not use a nurse crop. Cut the crop back as soon as it has made a growth of six or eight inches, the same as on an irrigated field. It is good practice to disc alfalfa fields occasionally in the spring as soon as they are dry enough in order to admit air to the roots and to conserve the moisture by stirring up the surface soil.

GROWING CORN ON DRY LAND.

Those who have grown corn in a proper way on arid land have met with encouraging results. I have demonstrated that if the soil is properly prepared for the seed bed and the right kind of tillage given the growing crops, the yield will astonish the inexperienced grower. The ground should be plowed deep in the fall from eight to ten inches. It should be left unharrowed so that the natural unevenness will catch and retain the rain and snow. In the spring as soon as the ground is sufficiently dry so that the soil will not cling, the disc harrow should be put on and the land disced both ways. If any vegetation is growing at the time, lapping the disc half way will probably destroy it. If the vegetation is thick and it is impossible to cut it out with the disc, plow very shallow instead of discing. Harrow with a smoothing harrow and the seed bed is ready for the seed.

The time for planting, and the kind of seed corn is important. In most seasons from the middle of April until the middle of May is the most favorable time to plant. Home-grown seed that has become acclimated is the best. If this cannot be obtained, seed from any of the northern states will mature here. It should be planted in hills 34 or 4 feet each way with only two grains in a hill. Three and one-half feet apart gives 3625 hills to the acre. Two ears to the hill would be 7250 ears to the acre. Last year I raised a white flint corn. It shelled a pound to every five ears. At these figures this would be twenty-six bushels to the acre.

I raised a dent variety, the seed of which came from Nebraska. It shelled a pound to every two ears, which would be sixty-five bushels to the acre. It is better to have one stalk in the hill and get one good ear than to have more and get only a bunch of dried up stalks. A mulch of dry earth must be kept on the corn field to hold the moisture for the growing crop. The corn may be harrowed with a light iron harrow, the teeth tilted slightly back until it is six or eight inches high. This is all of the cultivation required unless storms pack the dust mulch. In such cases cultivate between the rows every time it is packed.

Numerous experiments in our arid states have shown that moisture is held in the ground for the growing corn with a mulch of dry earth three to six inches deep. Therefore maintain the dust mulch but do not cultivate so deep as to cut the roots of the corn. Jerusalem corn, which is a non-saccharine variety of cane, has greater drought resisting properties than corn. Prepare the ground the same as for corn. Give the same tillage. Plant two to four grains in a hill. Two to three heads make a pound. On irrigated land drill in rows thirty-two inches apart. Drill in one peck to the acre. It will outyield corn on both dry and irrigated land. Those who have raised it on irrigated land, claim to have produced 125 bushels to the acre. Its feeding value is very nearly the same as corn. It is a profitable crop and should be grown extensively.—G. M. DeVinney in Field and Farm.

A WARNING TO THE CITY MAN.

I am not going to waste any sympathy on the toiling masses of the cities who are clamoring for cheaper meat, for I had no part in sending those masses to the cities, and for more than thirty years have used tongue and pen to dissuade them from going there. We have toiling masses in the country as well as in the cities and very often their eight hour day consists of eight hours before noon and eight hours after noon, pitching hay under a broiling sun and hauling the same hay to the stock before the twenty-below-zero blasts of winter through four-foot snow drifts.

In the last three months I have seen thousands of stacks of unthreshed wheat, thousands of acres of unshucked corn in the fields and thousands of acres of unbaled hay, simply because the farmers could not obtain the labor to thresh, husk and bale. The losses which accrue from this condition must inevitably fall upon the consumer of farm produce in the end, for Jones pays the freight. I am heartily in accord with the movement toward getting the unemployed, or those who are not profitably employed in the cities back on the farms, but I must confess that I have my doubts as to the success of such a movement for several reasons.

If I were talking to an audience of city people on the subject, "back to the farm," I would candidly tell them that it took a great deal more brains and sweat to produce spuds, wheat and hay, milk butter and eggs than it does to measure calico, wrap up clothes pins, weigh out prunes, count dried herring by the cent's worth, or even to stand behind the desk of a hotel and sing out front. Of course, many of these people came from the farms and have some general idea of farm work, but agriculture and agricultural methods have changed so much in the last ten years that the man who knew pretty well how to farm in 1900 is a back number in 1910.

I want to see the movement from country to town stopped and would welcome a return to the country of men and women who would earnestly try to make homes for themselves; but I want to warn the city man who expects to come out to the country and then sit down and watch pigs grow into ten-cent hogs, and who expects to make five dollars a year out of every hen on a ten acre lot, that he has another guess coming. The cost of living in the country has increased sixty per cent or more in the last ten years and it costs us farmers fully that much more to live than it did a decade ago. Besides all this there are a thousand and one secrets of nature about which the city man has never heard and these things will have to be learned by him before he can expect to get along at all. Farming nowadays is not the old joke that it used to be and requires a lot of hustle.—C. D. Lyon in Field and Farm.

LETTERS BY TELEGRAPH

Announcement is made by the Western Union Telegraph Company, that it will shortly be prepared to handle long night messages at the rates customarily charged for ten-word day messages.

The announcement states that "a special Night Letter service will be established as soon as practicable. The charge for this service will be the standard day rate for ten words, for the transmission of fifty words or less, and one fifth of such standard day rate will be charged for each additional ten words or less."

To be taken at these rates "Night Letters" must be written in plain English language, that is to say, code words or communications written in foreign languages will not be accepted. The messages will be taken at any hour up to midnight and transmitted at the company's convenience during the night for delivery the following morning. A Night Letter sent by telegraph will reach its destination at the opening of business hours the following morning, thus saving as much as three or four days when long distances are involved.

THE LAWN BEAUTIFUL.

When a new lawn is sown in the spring and the ground was not prepared the previous fall, a concentrated commercial fertilizer should be used. No stable manure whatever, should be put on as there are weed seeds enough in the ground to spoil to a certain amount the good quality of the grass seed. When stable manure is used on an old lawn weed seeds have not as good a chance to grow as on newly plowed. Commercial fertilizers are so much easier and cleaner to apply and are not so unsightly as stable manure spread on an old lawn, that they should be used entirely even if the cost is a little more. Commercial fertilizers should be applied in early spring and again in mid summer for the best results; one hundred pounds will cover 3,000 to 4,000 feet. After the grass reaches two or three inches in height it should be mowed and not allowed to grow tall as it has tendency to become weak and slender, while weeds have a better chance to grow and produce seed. Weeds and fowl grasses will be destroyed by the constant use of a lawn mower, while lawn grass is benefited by it as it will keep greener and stool quicker than if allowed to grow tall. The right proportion of seed to use in starting a new lawn is one pound to every 150 square feet or a space 10x15 feet. Seed used mostly for lawns in this country is Kentucky blue grass although some seedsmen are palming off Canadian blue grass in lieu thereof. A lawn should be irrigated by sprinkling at least once a day and twice is better. The Denver Field and Farm.

S. E. Moore the photographer, is now prepared to do all fancy lightings, such as Rambrent's and others too numerous to mention. 24tf.

SUMMARY OF THE PROVISIONS OF THE ENABLING ACT

The qualified electors may hold an election which shall be called by the governor of the territory within thirty days after the approval of the enabling act by the president to elect delegates to the constitutional convention. This election shall take place not earlier than sixty days nor later than ninety days after the approval of the act. One hundred delegates in all shall be chosen, they are to be appointed among the several counties by the governor, the chief justice of the supreme court and the secretary of the territory, according to the vote cast for territorial delegate in congress in the election of 1908. Provided, that where a new county has been created since the election of 1908, the delegates from such counties shall be on a basis of the number of votes cast at said election in the different townships included in said new county. Such election shall be conducted in all things, including the qualification to vote, as is now provided for the election of members of the territorial legislature.

The delegates to the constitutional convention shall meet in the hall of the house of representatives at Santa Fe at noon on the fourth Monday after their election, and said convention, when organized, "shall be the sole judge of the election and qualifications of its own members." The members of the convention shall receive for their services the same pay and mileage as is now paid to the members of the territorial legislature, but in no case shall they receive pay except for the time they are actually in session and not for a greater number of days than sixty in all.

After the convention is organized they shall declare on the part of the proposed state that they adopt the constitution of the United States, and they are then authorized by the enabling act to form a constitution and provide for a state government. The constitution and government shall be republican in form, and shall make no distinction in civil or political rights of the people on account of race or color, and said constitution shall be agreeable to the constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence. The constitution shall also provide for perfect religious freedom, and that no inhabitant of the proposed state shall ever be molested in person or property on account of his or her religious worship. It shall also forever prohibit polygamous or plural marriages and polygamous co-habitation; the sale, barter or giving of intoxicating liquors to Indians and the introduction of liquors into Indian country, including lands owned or occupied by the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico. Except that the introduction of intoxicating liquors into lands of the Indian reservations which have been allotted, sold, reserved or otherwise disposed of shall be prohibited for a period of twenty-five years after such allotment or sale.

The inhabitants of the proposed state agree that the title to any and all lands within the boundaries of the new state, not otherwise granted or appropriated, and all lands held by any Indians or Indian tribes which was acquired through the United States, shall so long as the same remains the property of said Indians or Indian tribes, be under the absolute control of the congress of the United States; that no land or other property belonging to the citizens of the United States who do not reside in said new state, shall ever be taxed at a higher rate than property belonging to the residents of the said state; that no tax shall be laid upon lands or other property belonging to the United States or reserved for its use; that all lands or other property of any Indian outside of any reservation or grant shall be subject to the same tax as other property except such as shall be exempt by act of congress; that all debts and liabilities of said territory of New Mexico and the counties thereof which are valid when this act is passed shall be assumed and paid by the new state, and said state shall be entitled to all the rights now existing in favor of the territory and the counties thereof. But nothing in this act shall make valid in any manner any territorial, county, municipal or other bonds, obligations or other evidences of indebtedness which are illegal at the time said state is admitted, nor shall the legislature of the state pass any law legalizing the same.

No law shall ever be passed restricting the right to vote at any election on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude and ability to read, write and speak the English language well enough to conduct the duties of the office without the aid of an interpreter shall be a necessary qualification of all state officers and members of the legislature; that no law shall ever be passed or provisions made to change the capital from the city of Santa Fe until ceasing by the voters of the state, and no election shall be called for that purpose before the thirty-first day of December, 1925. And there is hereby reserved to the United States with the full consent of the said state, all rights and power for the carrying out of the provisions of an act of congress relating to irrigation projects approved June 17th, 1902 and acts amendatory thereof.

That provision shall be made in said constitution for the establishment and maintenance of a system of public schools open to all children of the state and which shall be free from sectarian control and be conducted in English. As a support of said school system, sections two, sixteen, thirty-two and thirty-six in every township in the territory which are not otherwise already disposed of are granted to the state. But where these sections are located in the national forest reserves the title to the same shall not vest in the state until that part of the national forest reserve is restored to the public domain. At the close of each year, there shall be paid by the secretary of the treasury of the United States to the state as income for its public school fund, a part of the gross receipts of the national forest reserve in proportion to the amount of school lands within said said forests, whether same be surveyed or unsurveyed. In addition to these grants, there is also granted to the new state for schools and other improvements, lands as follows, viz: For university, 200,000 acres; public buildings heretofore or hereafter erected, and for the payment of the bonds heretofore and hereafter issued for said purposes, 100,000 acres; insane asylums, 100,000 acres; schools and asylums for the deaf, dumb and blind, 100,000 acres; hospitals for disabled miners, 50,000 acres; normal schools, 200,000 acres; charitable, penal and reformatory institutions, 100,000; agricultural and mechanical colleges, 150,000; and the national appropriations heretofore made by the congress for mechanical and agricultural colleges shall, until further orders of congress, be paid to the state. For schools of mines, 150,000 acres; for military institutes, 100,000 acres. All said schools provided for in the act to be and remain under the control of the state and no part of the funds coming to the state for school purposes shall ever be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, and five per cent of the proceeds of the sales of lands within the borders of the state sold after the admission to the Union shall be paid to the state to form a fund and the interest of this fund is to be expended solely to support the schools of the state.

The lands granted to the state are granted to it in trust to be used for the specific purpose for which granted and they cannot be used for any other purpose, and any disposition of or use of the lands for other purposes other than that for which they were granted shall be deemed a breach of trust. No mortgage on any of said lands to any person or for any purpose shall ever be valid, and no sale or lease of any of said lands shall be made except to the highest and best bidder at public auction after due advertisement, except that leases for five years or less may be made without said advertisement. No lease or sale of said lands shall be made except after being appraised at their true value and shall not sell for less than their appraised value, and never for less than the minimum value fixed by this act, and in all sales the title shall not pass to the purchaser until the full purchase price is paid. Lands east of the line between ranges 18 and 19 east of the New Mexico principal meridian shall not be sold for less than $5.00 per acre, and lands west of said line for not less than $3.00 per acre, and lands susceptible to irrigation, not less than $25.00 per acre. Provided that the state shall from time to time release to the United States such lands as are needed for irrigation for which the state shall receive other lands from the United States under the direction and subject to the approval of the secretary of the interior according to an act of congress approved August 18th, 1894. All lands actually or prospectively valuable for the development of water power for hydro-electric use or transmission are hereby reserved to the United States and are to be ascertained and selected by the secretary of the interior within five years after the proclamation of the president declaring the admission of the state to the union, and, in lieu of such lands so reserved, there is hereby granted other lands to the state to be selected according to the act of congress of August 18, 1894. A separate fund shall be established for each of the separate objects for which the several grants herein are made, and the same shall be deposited with the treasurer of the state and by him kept separate and apart from any and every other fund, and the said treasurer shall keep all said funds invested in safe interest-bearing securities and shall at all times be under good and sufficient bond for the faithful performance of his duties, and every sale, lease, or conveyance or contract to sell lease or convey any of the lands herein granted which is not made in substantial conformity with the provisions of this act is null and void, and shall be so construed notwithstanding anything in the constitution or laws of the said state to the contrary. It shall be the duty of the attorney general of the United States to bring and prosecute such suits as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this act relative to the said lands herein granted and the products thereof and the funds derived therefrom.

The constitutional convention shall provide for the submission of the new constitution to the people at an election on a day named by the convention, which shall not be earlier than ninety days after the convention adjourns, at which the electors, who are qualified to vote for members of the territorial legislature shall be entitled to vote directly for or against the constitution and each provision of it which shall be separately submitted. If a majority of the legal votes cast at said election shall be against said constitution, the governor of the territory shall order the constitutional convention to convene a second time at a date not later than twenty days after the governor receives the documents showing the rejection of the constitution, and when so assembled, the convention shall form a new constitution, which shall be formed and submitted in the same manner as the first. If this constitution and the provisions which are separately submitted shall be accepted by the people of New Mexico a certified copy thereof shall be submitted to the president of the United States, and if congress and the president approve them, or if the president approves them and congress fails to approve them during the next regular session, then the president shall certify said facts to the governor of the territory and he shall, within thirty days, call an election at which all state, county and other officers for a full state government, provided for by said constitution, and two representatives in congress, to be elected at large, shall be chosen; said election to take place not earlier than sixty days and not later than ninety days after said call. The governor of said territory shall certify the result of said election to the president of the United States who shall immediately issue his proclamation and the said new state shall then be admitted to the union by virtue of this act on an equal footing with the other states. But until the state is so admitted and its officers are elected and qualified, the county and territorial officers, including the delegate in congress, shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices.

The said state when so admitted shall constitute one judicial district for the United States courts, and the circuit and district courts of said district shall be held at Santa Fe twice in each year, and said court shall be attached to the eighth judicial circuit of the United States. Said circuit, district and state courts shall be the successors of the district and supreme courts of said territory; and all cases pending at the time of the admission of the said state in any of the courts of said territory, which, if they had begun in a state, would be such as to be heard and decided in a federal court, shall be transferred to the proper United States court for said territory, and all cases not so transferred shall be heard and decided in the proper courts of the state. There are also numerous provisions in the enabling act relating to appeals, writs of error, habeas corpus, courts and officers thereof which are technical in their application and not of general interest and are therefore omitted.

All laws in force in said territory at the time of its admission, except such as are changed or modified by this act or by the constitution, shall remain in force until changed by the legislature of the new state, and all the laws of the United States shall have the same force and effect as in other states of the union.

To pay any and all kinds of expense connected with the election of delegates to the convention, the holding of the convention, pay of delegates, and for "all proper and necessary expense" for officers, clerks, messengers and printing the sum of one hundred thousand dollars is appropriated by the act, with the provision that if the expense exceeds that amount the excess shall be paid by the new state.

BUSTER BROWN IS COMING TO TOWN.

The enterprising firm of Miller & Luikart is going themselves one better in advertising stunts, their latest novelty being the announcement of a date for the real Buster Brown and his dog, Tige. This event is to be a monster gathering together of the boys and girls of the town and country on the night of May 3rd at Wonderland Theatre. The best part of the affair aside from the big stock of wholesome mirth that will be on tap for the youngsters, is that it's all to be free—thanks to Miller & Luikart. And it's the real, live, unadulterated Buster Brown and Tige, or it is Tige and Buster Brown—but as Buster says, "It makes no difference so people love you!" who will hold high carnival in a one hour's solid amusement on this date. True to the Sunday paper supplement caricatures, Buster and his dog Tige, a thoroughbred English bull dog, make decided hits as they appear on the stage in various roles, at first in the regulation costume of Buster, and later in the roles of cowboy, soldier, Scotch Highlander, cupid, sailor and in the perfect portrayal of an English lord. The program is sufficiently varied so that there is not a dull moment during the performance. Numerous songs and dances are given by Buster in addition to jokes and puns.

RESERVED: That we all go hear Buster Brown on May 3rd and have a good time.

STATEHOOD BILL STILL WAITING.

Washington, D. C., April 4.—When Senator Borah, in the Senate inquired what had become of the statehood report, it developed that the report had only been sent to the printer on Friday. A copy of the proof was received Saturday. The statehood bill will be called on the calendar next week after the return of Beveridge from Indianapolis, where he has important private business on hand in the Republican state convention. He is expected to return Friday. Tribune Citizen.

GERMAN SUICIDES.

George Albright, formerly of St. Louis, who had evidently not been exactly right mentally for some days, was taken in hand by the town marshal last Sunday morning at four o'clock and lodged in the county jail as a precautionary measure. He remained in the jail until Monday night when he cut up his clothing and made a string with which he hanged himself, being found dead next morning by the authorities. Mr. Albright was from Germany and owned property in Portales, Clovis, in Missouri and in the city of St. Louis. He had always appeared rational, agreeable and inoffensive until this visit to Portales when the change was noted and the sad end followed.

It will be seen, therefore, that Mr. Humphrey has been duly elected trustee to fill the place of Mr. Harris whose term expires.

MR. AND MRS. J. P. STONE APRIL FOOLED.

Last Friday was April-fool day and it was celebrated in an unusual way at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stone, this city. For Friday afternoon at 2:30 a bouncing, vigorous young man made his appearance and took up his residence in the Stone home. We predict great things for this child first, because he has no trace of superstition about him, deliberately entering into the world, making his discovery of America and taking charge of the kingdom of the Stone's on Friday. Then again, he undoubtedly has a keen sense of humor not hesitating to April-fool his parents as the first act of his life. The mother and son are doing well and the daddy is stepping high and wearing a broad smile that won't come off. Congratulations young man, we are counting on you!
