A First Class Hotel Now Assured.

Edward Keightley and family of Marionville, Mo., arrived here Sunday and are stopping for the present with their old friends, W. M. Twigg and family. Since arriving here, Mr. Keightley has negotiated for the large brick building which has formerly been used as a sanitarium and will convert the place into a modern hotel. This being a commodious two-story brick structure fully equipped with all the conveniences which go to make a modern building, it can readily be seen how the place may easily be made an attractive one for hotel purposes. The building will be equipped and furnished in the most elaborate manner, and as Mr. Keightley and wife come to Portales with the very best of recommendations as to their ability to maintain a first-class hotel, it will be little wonder if they succeed in supplying the long felt want for a thoroughly modern hostelry. The place will be open to the public in a short while.

Methodist Meeting in Progress.

Yesterday Rev. James E. Savage of Oklahoma City arrived to take charge of the Methodist Revival meeting which has been in progress since Sunday. On Tuesday night Mr. Sweatson, the layman leader for this part of New Mexico, and who is a resident of Artesia, preached a very fine sermon. Mr. Fiscus has the music in charge, good crowds attend, and everything is progressing nicely.

A BOOST FOR SISTER CITY.

Portales, Roosevelt County, is Sent Resolutions from the Clovis Chamber of Commerce—E. W. Reagan Makes Move.

The business men of Portales, our sister city, eighteen miles to the south, will receive this week, if they have not already, resolutions from the Clovis Chamber of Commerce, representing the Clovis business men, commending the Portales and Roosevelt county citizenship upon the grit and push which they must have spent in their successful efforts at landing the big sugar beet proposition, which they have had in hand for some weeks. E. W. Reagan, of the Reagan Real Estate company, an ex-Roosevelt county man and now one of the live wires of our city proposed in the meeting called at the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening for the purpose of deciding upon the representative for the special Statehood train to Washington, this resolution, and said that he felt that the time was here when there should be cemented between the city of Portales and our town, a warm bond of friendship. Mr. Watson of the Watson Realty company, another of our big boosters, seconded the motion of Mr. Reagan and added that he believed that the people of Portales were deserving of this particular and distinct notice from her sister town, Clovis. All of those present at this meeting fell heartily into the idea and urged the passage of the resolution. Secretary R. A. Bayne was ordered to draw up and send the document.

RESOLUTION SENT TO PORTALES.

Whereas, the City of Clovis has watched with much interest and admiration the efforts of her sister city, Portales, (and territory tributary thereto) in installing the splendid power plant for the irrigation and development of 12,000 acres of her shallow water land and

Whereas, We learn that Portales and adjoining territory is now engaged in an effort to land a million and one-half dollar beet sugar factory, which will cause the development and irrigation of 32,000 acres more of her rich valley land; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Clovis, N. M., now in special meeting extend their hearty congratulations and best wishes to the city of Portales, and Roosevelt county, through their Commercial club, for these splendid achievements, and for the future success of same. And also be it Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the secretary of the Commercial Club at Portales, N. M.

M. BOYLE,
Pres. Chamber of Commerce.
R. A. BAYNE,
Sec'y. Chamber of Commerce.
—Clovis Journal.

How pleasant it is for sister towns to dwell together in amity!

It would be a small soul indeed who could not receive this high tribute of praise from the Clovis Chamber of Commerce with the highest degree of good will and reciprocation. That Clovis business men and the people of the outside world generally have seen fit to make recognition of the little band of boosters who are preparing Portales Valley for the new born day will be no cause for halting to think of past victories, for after all we have only done what we should with our natural advantages. The man who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before is the type of empire builder needed in the West today and Portales Valley is indeed fortunate that it possesses this character of citizenship. Whatever achievements are ours have not been won at the loss of our neighboring towns, and it is indeed a happy condition to find that after all there is room for all of us on this great fatness and that it is the get-up-and-get which wins and causes the other fellow to applaud. The Gem City has won her laurels in the same manner and there is not a person in Portales who does not admire her for what she has done. The Herald hopes that a bond of mutual interest will so cement Clovis and Portales that there will never be anything more between the two towns than the most wholesome rivalry.

Coe Howard Off to Law School.

Coe Howard and wife left Saturday for Lebanon, Tenn., where Mr. Howard will enter the great training school for aspirants to the bar of law. Mr. Howard is already a matriculate of this school, having taken courses there several years ago, and his many friends here congratulate him upon his determination to further store his mind with legal lore and predict for him a bright career after he secures his degree.

Superintendent Staples of the public schools requested the Herald to state that owing to the sessions of the county Teachers' Association which convene tomorrow, that there would be no school on that day.

Winter Months on the Farm

How to Improve Them

Feeding for Milk

Keeping the Dairy Herd Up to the Maximum Production in Cold Weather
By PROF. G. C. HUMPHREY
Wisconsin College of Agriculture

Copyright, 1910, by Western Newspaper Union

It is easy to make cows give an abundant flow of milk in summer when pastures are luxuriant and the days warm, but in the severe winter months the greatest skill of the feeder is demanded to keep up the production of the dairy herd. By buying plenty of expensive feeds it is possible to do this, but that removes the profits and the problem is, how to get a large production of milk from an economical system of feeding.

Many dairymen make a great mistake in not keeping enough grain and roughage to carry their herds through the winter. Instead they sell grain and roughage in large amounts and as a result find themselves handicapped for feed before spring pasture is available. Unless a man grows enormous crops, this sale of farm product in its original form not only robs the soil of fertility but also is a false economy, for the reason that in late winter the farmer has to buy feed at high prices when the supply is scarce or has to sell his cattle because of lack of feed for them.

Much wiser is the dairy farmer, who fills his feed bins and his silo or his root cellar and feeds their contents to his herd during the winter. He markets his produce in the form of milk and besides realizing a good profit from it also has the use of the manure from the herd to return to his fields. A money value is realized from the grains and also a fertilizing grain ration consists of wheat bran 3 parts, oats 3 parts, corn meal 2 parts, and distillers' grains 2 parts. Where the cow requires variation in her feed small amounts of dried brewers grains or oil meal are used occasionally.

Prof. W. A. Henry speaks as follows regarding these feeds: "Wheat bran is especially valuable due to its laxative properties. It furnishes bulk and plenty of protein and ash so essential in milk formation. The combination of bran and corn meal is not excelled as a dairy feed. The bulk of the oat though carrying little nutriment renders this grain a feed of light character which is easily digestible. Oats contain a higher proportion of digestible protein than corn or wheat. This grain in itself is a well-balanced ration. Corn meal is a heavy, rich feed and should always be lightened or extended by the use of bran, shorts, oil meal or some other feed of light character."

Feeding experiments prove that dried distillers' grains are more valuable than oats as a feed for the dairy herd. Cows are fond of brewers grains and their use influences a good milk flow. Because of the sloppy character of wet brewers grains they should be supplemented by some dry feed in the winter ration.

Oil meal is a very healthful feed and brings the animals into good condition, with pliable skins and oily

Careful mixing of feeds suited to the individual needs of each cow is the secret of successful feeding for milk. This feed cart makes the mixing of rations an easy matter.

value in that the manurial residues of these feeds is returned to the soil. The golden maxim of the dairy farmer should be "Produce as much feed as possible on the farm. Feed the grains and market them as milk and meat, at the same time making use of the manure as fertilizer."

Feed According to Production.
Each farmer should keep the production and expenses of every cow in his herd and should supply feed to the cow in proportion to her production and capacity. An excellent rule used in the Wisconsin College of Agriculture herd is to "feed as many pounds of grain daily as the animal produces pounds of butter fat during the week." Roughage should be supplied in amounts which the cow will clean up thoroughly.

Corn still remains the most valuable winter feed grown in the United States. It can be best fed as silage as in this form the dairy herd relishes it best and there is the least waste. Silage which is to the cow what canned vegetables are to the human race, is greatly relished by the dairy herd on account of its succulence. It should be fed after milking where fears are entertained that it will give an unpleasant flavor to the milk. Silage is rich in carbohydrates and low in protein and should be supplemented by clover hay or some similar leguminous hay as clover, alfalfa, pea or vetch hay in order to provide sufficient protein. Where silage is not available it is advisable to grow root crops as mangels, turnips and rutabagas and use them as part of the ration. These roots can be grown cheaply and can be substituted for a part of the grain in the dairy cow's ration, being especially relished on account of their succulence. Even with silage they furnish variety and are valuable. Alfalfa is very palatable and valuable as a feed on account of its large protein content. It is an excellent food, both for growth and milk elaboration. A very cheap ration for cattle consists of corn silage and alfalfa.

System of Winter Feeding.
During the winter the dairy herd at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture receives per head daily 20 to 40 pounds of corn silage according to the capacity of the animals, 8 to 3 pounds mixed hay, and as many pounds of grain daily as the cow produces pounds of butter fat per week. The sleek coats. It has a very beneficial effect upon the digestive tract but should not be fed in large quantities due to its concentrated character.

The nutritive ratio of a given ration depends upon the character of the feeds which it contains with reference to their protein, carbohydrate and fat content. Some feeds are deficient in protein and such feeds, therefore must be supplemented with feeds rich in protein substances in order that the animals may be supplied with the proper nutrients for nourishing the body and for the production of milk, beef, wool, etc.

An investigation of problems connected with the feeding of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture dairy herd, which has been conducted during the past nine years, furnishes additional evidence with regard to the proper protein supply of rations for dairy cows on Wisconsin farms and in other northwestern states. This investigation and practical feeding experience in this country have shown that a nutritive ratio of 1:6 or even 1:7, which is wider than that of 1:5.4 recommended by the German investigators, can be used successfully. The teachings of many carefully planned and conducted experiments and the experience of dairy farmers who have paid special attention to the question of the relative economy of the different kinds of feeds under their particular conditions indicate that a medium wide nutritive ratio is, in general, to be preferred under conditions of dairying in the northwest.

Medium Protein Rations Best.

This investigation mentioned above showed conclusively that the medium protein rations were more economical and produced better results than the high protein rations. On the average there was a gain in the net profit in favor of medium protein rations amounting to nearly 18 per cent. The significance of this result lies in the fact that the medium protein rations were composed largely of farm-grown feeds, supplemented by mill feeds and small amounts of the more expensive high protein feeds. This investigation leads to the conclusion that Wisconsin dairy farmers and others similarly situated will do well to feed their cows rations of medium protein contents which as a general rule will have relatively wide nutritive ratios; about 1:7.

WHO'S IN AND WHY

AGED INVENTOR'S SUCCESS

The people who declare that a man has outlived his usefulness when he attains the age of sixty years and should be put out of his misery with a dose of chloroform, will have to extend the limit if they wish to make a hit with the residents of San Jose, Cal. since it has become known that George Gates, a struggling seventy-year-old inventor of that city, will become a multi-millionaire through the sale to a syndicate of eleven of the greatest railway systems of the United States, of his patent rights in a concrete railroad tie which he has invented. The price to be paid for the new tie is $17,500,000.

Gates has been working on the concrete tie for about ten years. He cast thousands and thousands of concrete ties in those years and was not disheartened when they failed to stand tests and crumbled and cracked under the vibration of heavy traffic.

One day about two years ago Gates and his meager funds were about gone and he was almost ready to give up, but the barb wires suggested a means whereby he could reinforce the concrete. "I will just cast some of these barbed wires in the concrete." It was a happy idea, and one that afterward proved to be worth millions.

Ties were cast with barbed-wire strands running lengthwise. Tests showed that 36 strands twisted in a certain manner obtained the best results. A tie thus made will spring 1 1/2 inches and come back to line. And a single machine will turn out the ties at the rate of 3,500 per day.

Gates, who was born in Ottumwa, Iowa, lives in a modest cottage in San Jose, Cal. He is a small, spare and unassuming. He presents the appearance of a typical Yankee workman, and because he is out much in the air he is sunburned and does not look over sixty years of age.

RISE OF PENNILESS RUSSIAN

The failure of the Northern bank of New York for $3,000,000 and the story of Joseph G. Robin's career in New York is the story of the gold-dusted streets of America, that lures the ambitious of Europe here. Sixteen years ago he was a penniless immigrant, with perhaps a half-dozen words of English at his command. For the past year he has had a controlling voice in three banks, two bonding companies, two real estate development companies and two traction roads.

A Russian by birth, Robin came to the United States as Joseph Rabinowitz. He was about twenty-two years old then, and is now about thirty-eight. He came to this country alone, and he is still single and without relatives here.

A year after Rabinowitz reached America he fixed upon journalism as the profession he meant to follow. For rather less than a month he was a reporter on the Herald, with only broken English and tremendous determination as his stock in trade. Four years later Rabinowitz had become Robin and was attracting attention as deputy to Gen. James R. O'Beirne, Oom Paul Kruger's commissioner extraordinary for the Boers in the United States. Within five years more he was banker and financier both, his associates in ambitious enterprises including some of the best known men in the United States.

In 1906 Robin was president of the Bank of Discount, through which, as a base of operations, the merger which resulted in the Northern Bank of New York was carried out.

COMMANDER TALKED TOO MUCH

Commander W. S. Sims of the United States navy has gotten himself into a lot of trouble after a long and very creditable career. He attended a banquet in London and made a speech, during the course of which he had the misfortune to "slop over." He was very anxious to impress on the minds of his British hosts the feeling of friendship which exists in the United States, but he went too far and assured them that:

"If ever the time comes that the British empire is menaced by an external foe she can count on every man, every dollar, every ship and every drop of blood of her kindred across the sea."

Now, Uncle Sam thinks a whole lot of John Bull, but he doesn't propose to have every Tom, Dick and Harry making wholesale promises for him. So Commander Sims has been jacked up. President Taft characterizes the offense as conspicuous and orders that he be publicly reprimanded by the secretary of the navy.

This action on the part of the president was necessary, because had he taken no notice of the commander's exuberant speech other nations would have had a right to be offended. In international relationships it is necessary to steer a pretty straight course to avoid giving offense.

THE NEW SENATOR FROM OHIO

The election of a United States senator from Ohio, to succeed Senator Dick, precipitated a lively contest, which ended only with the selection of Atlee Pomerene of Canton, McKinley's old town. It is said to have been one of the hottest senatorial campaigns in the history of the state.

Mr. Pomerene is a lawyer and is forty-seven years old. He is a native of the state, a graduate of Princeton and has been a practicing attorney since 1886. He has held the office of city solicitor and prosecuting attorney and was the most formidable rival of Harmon for the nomination for governor. He was forced to accept second place, however, and was elected lieutenant governor.

Mr. Pomerene is married and his wife is one of Ohio's popular and cultured women, who will no doubt be warmly welcomed to senatorial circles at Washington.

One of the prominent senatorial candidates before the legislature was Representative Carl C. Anderson of Potosi, who had the endorsement of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Anderson began life as a bootblack and newsboy and has made a successful uphill struggle against early limitations.

McBride Dies of Tuberculosis.

The rumor has been persistent about the town for the past month that O. N. McBride of El Paso, Texas, but who formerly resided here and was connected with the Herald as associate editor, had died of the dread malady which attacked his young life and drove him to the Southwest, and it now occurs that the fears of his fondest friends here have proven true. The report was confirmed to the Herald writer only this week, though we were unable to obtain any of the details or the exact date of his death. While his early death was expected by those who knew of his condition yet the confirmation of this report will cause sorrow in the hearts of the hosts in Portales who loved the young man for his sterling worth.

The Visit of an Old Friend.

C. M. Kisor, of Montezuma, Texas, was a familiar figure on the streets of Portales the first of the week, having come here to be with his sons, Earl and Opra in their departure for their Iowa home. Mr. Kisor lives in the wake of the new railroad out of Texico and he says that grading has been done from that place to Montezuma, his home, and that a crew is grading from Knowles north to complete the grade from Texico to Knowles. He said that Mr. Healy, the original promoter of the new road, has sold his interests to some Texico capitalists who were going to put the project through, and that in addition to work being done on the line south of Texico, that a crew was also engaged on construction work from that place to Tucumcari. Mr. Kisor said that he had been keeping himself informed about Portales' prospects for getting the sugar beet industry by reading the Herald and that he believed we were on the right track for great things, as he was familiar with the conditions prevailing in Colorado where factories were located and that they had never failed in that State to meet the highest expectations of those engaged in the industry.

Fire Destroy Horse and Mule.

A fire occurred in Portales last Friday noon during the high prevailing winds which terminated in the burning of two valuable animals belonging to Fred Warnica. The sheds which are just to the rear of the Adams & Crow tin shop in some manner caught fire and before anyone discovered the conflagration the entire structure was a mass of flames. It was soon discovered that a mare and a mule were enclosed in the stable but the fire had made such headway that it was impossible to effect rescue of the dumb animals and they were burned to a charred mass. The fire department made a hurried call to the place but the flames had practically done its damage when the water was turned on.

The Clock

The clock struck nine, I looked at Kate,
Whose lips were luscious red.
"At quarter after nine I mean
To steal a kiss," I said.
She cast a roguish look at me,
And then she whispered low,
With the sweetest smile, "That clock
Is fifteen minutes slow."
