AMMO NOTES

by Wm. F. (Bill) Bennett, Agronomist, Western Ammonia Corporation

CHLOROSIS IN GRAIN SORGHUM

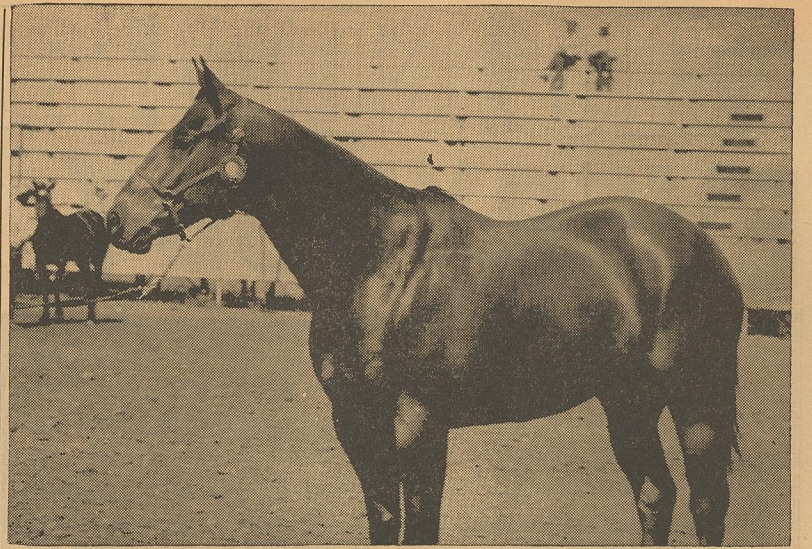

Some grain sorghum will usually start to turn yellow within 10 to 14 days after it comes up. This type of yellowing usually occurs on the gray soils which occur to some extent on almost every farm in this area of the High Plains. These gray soils are highly calcareous with a lot of free calcium carbonate present and usually have a soil pH of 8.0 to 8.3.

This yellowing, called iron chlorosis, is usually caused by a lack of available iron in the soil. The high calcium carbonate content keeps the iron in the soil in an unavailable form. The obvious control is to apply iron or reduce the soil pH so that iron will become available.

Possible controls include the spraying of iron on the plant, addition of iron compounds to the soil and reducing soil pH with the use of sulphur or sulphur-containing fertilizers. The first two are temporary controls and the latter is a permanent control. The addition of iron compounds to the soil has some drawbacks since availability of some iron compounds can be reduced when applied to the soil. An example is the soil application of iron sulphate in which the iron reverts quickly to an unavailable form when applied to the soil. Some new types of iron compounds will be available which will keep the iron in an available form. The use of sulphur or sulphur containing compounds to look at several points in regard to their use. For the time being, let's look only at the foliar application of iron and discuss the other two in a later column.

Iron sulphate (Coppers) can be applied on the plant as a spray application. For one acre, mix 4 pounds of iron sulphate in 20 gallons of water plus one-half teaspoon of a wetting agent. This first spray should be applied when plants are 10 to 15 days old. A second spray should be applied about 2 weeks later. In areas where chlorosis is severe, a third spray reappears.

Yield increases will depend on the severity of the chlorosis. Most of our gray soils will produce around 4,000 pounds grain per acre. Additional 1,000 lbs grain per acre can normally be expected from the application of the iron. Where chlorosis is exceptionally bad, yield may be only 1000 to 2000 lbs grain

Barnyard News

By Lanny Pullig, Agronomist, Red Barn Chemicals, Inc.

The rain we got last week sure was a big help to the farmers of this area. It helped bring up the crops that were planted, especially cotton. Some of the farmers were having a hard time getting their cotton up, but now most farmers have a fair to good stand.

Since the rain, I have been noticing the effects of the herbicides on weeds. The rain especially helped to activate Propazine and per acre. In these cases, an additional 1500 to 2000 lbs grain can be expected.

Cost of treatment is very low. The iron sulphate will cost about 50 cents to $1.00 per acre plus the cost of application. The main reason that chlorotic areas are not treated is that they are usually small areas in the field and the time of application comes when there are a lot of other things to do. However, where large acreages are chlorotic, it would certainly pay to apply iron sulphate.

Atrazine. I was in a field of grain sorghum, Monday that was sprayed with Atrazine as a post-emerge herbicide. When sprayed, it killed the weeds that were up, but it did not move in to the soil. Therefore weeds came up. Since the rain, it is killing weeds up to eight and ten inches high. Propazine is also killing rather large weeds.

Treflan is working good in some places, but other places it is not working very good. I think part of this is because some incorporated it better than others. It is also controlling voluntary maize in places.

As far as I can tell, there have been no herbicide damage to the crops.

Since we have been having a little damp weather, one had better have a careful eye out for insect buildup. I have been noticing quite a few flea hoppers, false chinch bugs and flea beetles. Trips will soon be hitting cotton, so keep an eye out for these pests.

Shirley Brockman Wins $300 With Historical Essay

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The News ran a story last week concerning Shirley Brockman of Nazareth who received a $300 scholarship for winning first place in the historical essay contest sponsored by Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative. The following is a copy of the essay.)

ESTABLISHING OF THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY ELECTRIC CO-OPERATIVE

As a result of the depression of the late 1920's and early 1930's the Rural Electrification was started. The Rural Electrification Administration was established in May 1935 by an executive order by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and in 1936 the Rural Electrification Act was passed. The first provision of the REA was to provide low interest money to private power companies. When these companies refused, co-operatives were formed. Because of the formation of these co-operatives, we enjoy all the comforts of home living today.

The objective of the rural electric system is to provide electricity to its members at the lowest possible cost with reliable service. Rural electric systems are locally owned, controlled, and operated by the people they serve.

It was a common practice for commercial companies, to ignore the rural residents since only twenty one per cent of the farms had electricity. Finally one day someone got disgusted and insisted that he be included in this special privilege. More and more of his neighbors saw the city improvements and wondered why they could not have running water or electric lights. Things started buzzing. Gradually more became interested until the private companies had to give in, but the farmers were required to pay the cost of the line and turn a title over to the power companies. Some user did not like the method and decided to create a system for the rural people. This desire grew and grew, and in 1935 REA was created in Texas. At this time only 11,406 farms or 2.3 per cent were receiving electricity. Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives of Texas took a deep interest in rural electrification. Through his intense interest and enthusiasm, the Rural Electrification Act was introduced in Congress in 1936 directing the REA Administrator to give preference in making loans to people for the expansion of electricity. At that time many people did not realize how dark the rural people lived. By a slim margin of one vote the measure passed and the first major step had been taken.

Not much longer would families have to eat by an oil lamp, or carry water, or wash clothes on a scrub board, for they would have electricity to do this for them. But this just did not happen in a matter of weeks. No it took months and even years in some instances.

As with most new ventures the hard work of organizing the rural electric co-operative generally fell to a handful of local farmers. These energetic few had to interest their neighbors and others. Gradually more and more became interested. There were questions to be answered. Most of the people wanted to know how they could pay back a loan that they had borrowed. Who would be the leader? How much would it cost? As REA field men explained more about the co-op, enthusiasm mounted. Finally the holes were dug, wire was strung, and people were excited, for within a short time they could have electricity. As interest grew, the Texas Panhandle became curious. Could we have such a thing? Progress picked up speed in 1936 and on April 30, 1937 it was incorporated.

The first application for a loan for the Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative was made on May 15, 1937. Next the most important step took place when early in 1938 construction began. Somebody was behind the people of this area encouraging them to take an active interest. The men can be called the generators or beginners of our local company. They were J. C. Ricketts, H. V. Hennen and S. O. Wilson. We, the users of electricity, can be thankful for such intuitive men.

After the interest had been generated, J. C. Ricketts, H. V. Hennen, and S. O. Wilson, T. L. Sparkman, Joe Warren, J. W. Hendrix, Lester Galley, and G. T. Watkins were the individuals involved in organizing the co-operative. The duty of these men was to get members to sign for electricity. This took much time and explanation, but due to their desire to get out of the dark age, they succeeded. Not only did just a few work, it took the combined effort of all area people. Capital, technical help, and trained workers volunteered so that electric power could be provided at a lower cost.

Before members could get electricity there had to be somewhere to get the "juice". Four miles east of Hereford, Texas-New Mexico Utility Company furnished the electricity for the first hook-ups. Naturally this was the first co-op's first sub-station offering its neighbors the first electricity. H. V. Hennen was project manager while Carl C. Cox was the project engineer.

Securing enough members was quite a chore. Anyone within the proposed service area not receiving power was eligible for membership. Since the rural area was so thinly settled, the cooperative had a minimum of three members to the line for a small fee of $2.50. Those living in isolated areas had to pay more, but they did not mind that. At their own expense, local workers canvassed the area to sign up applicants, secure right-of-way easements, and pinpoint locations on maps. Some of the first to sign were J. C. Ricketts, H. V. Hennen, S. O. Wilson, Joe Warren, Lester Galley, and others over the designated area. Through willingness of these men, the operating cost today is much lower than it normally would be.

In order to start the cooperative enough signers were necessary to justify an REA loan. After receiving the application, the applicant applied for a loan. Once he got the loan, poles, wire, and electricity were required. REA borrowers build lines for an average of less than $825 per mile including overhead, but between $1,500 and $2,000 would have been required before the institution of Rural Electrification Administration. REA knew that the cost would have to be cut if the farmers were to get electricity and pay for it. Excited refrains could be heard from the members receiving electricity. It was hard to realize that electric power had finally come. The wife's housework was lessened by the electrical aids. She had more time to devote to society and family, take part in organizations, and have her work done by some mechanical button gadget. These inventions helped the farmers in their struggle for survival. An electric motor could do the work of eight hired men in one third the time. No longer did men have to cut their faces with a razor blade, now he could use the cool, comfortable electric razor. Freezer lockers helped improve the diets of the rural family. At night the homes were lighted by an electric light bulb and the members enjoyed listening to the radio. As far as the farmer and his family were concerned, electricity had banished the word coal oil. Radio and television have put the once isolated farmer in touch with the world.

On October 28, 1938 the first annual area meeting was held in a rented theater in Hereford Texas. Approximately fifty members attended this first meeting, but gradually as the co-op increased, its members increased. Today meetings are held in bull barn with some six to eight hundred present. Today the co-op differs from that of some twenty-four years ago. But the goals are the same, to provide electricity at the lowest possible cost.

Once the members were receiving electricity, construction progressed steadily, with exception of the war years. Never was there only one working crew, but several. Before one job was finished, two or two others were started elsewhere. The rate of growth increased amazingly. In 1940 the average electric bill was $4.15 where today the average is $12.96. Twenty six per cent per year was the average growth in KWH usage.

Convincing people that they could afford the electric bill was a problem of the general manager assisted by his personnel. Securing volunteer help and applicants was a big task. One great tragedy faced the company. In November of 1940, an ice storm struck the Texas Panhandle. Some 5,500 poles were down in this area at the same time. People were without electricity for over a month. This incident had people wondering "Is it safe to join such a co-operative

Once people got electricity there were problems of all natures. Where too put his or can we have more than one clock? The main use of electricity was for running water. Household lighting and appliances were added. A pole with a meter was a common sight. The stoves, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, toasters and hundreds of other appliances found their way into the rural home. It took time to get accustomed to these strange servants. With the coming of electricity, farm shops were created. New and modern methods of welding, farming, and feeding were taught. Practically everyone with electricity had bought an electric pump. Nowadays mile after mile, we can see the poles and wires that bring us that important vital element, electricity.

Today the co-op suffers from territorial and wholesale competition. Private power companies try to rob customers for their line. But without this competition the co-op would not be as effective as it is. The biggest setback is from ice storms. Electricity is too wonderful, because when you are out of electricity, the day just drags past with nothing to do.

It would take more reasons than an ice storm to keep people from joining electric cooperatives. They join in order to receive needed electric service for feeding, watering, and most of all expanding farm operations.

Yes, Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative is truly a blessing in disguise. The number of members as of December 31, 1963 was 4,291 with 2,210 miles of line. In comparison of average KWH per month in 1940 which was 69 kilowatts per unit meter to 1963 which exceeds 481 kilowatts per unit meter, an eight per cent gain over the twenty three years. With such impressive figures and growth, still there is a future for the co-op.

The strengthening and enlarging of the present facilities is a major goal of our rural co-op. Converting three phase lines from the present single phase lines will be a great help to the farmer. No sound business is without a future. Always somewhere improvements can be made. The future is up to you—you—and me. Without interested people, it does the board of directors little good to see that the co-op is kept running in its best productive way.

Mr. Sloan Osborn of Friona, our present president, has the overall job of seeing that nothing is left unfinished. He is assisted by Mr. Webb Guber vice-president of Farwell, Mr. Tom Draper secretary from Hereford, Mr. Joe Birkenfeld of Nazareth, Mr. Noel Gollehon of Dimmitt, and Mr. Raymond Higginbotham of Hereford. These directors are not paid a salary for attending board meetings, but are reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses.

It is hard for me to imagine how it would be to live without electricity. When our electricity goes off, I think it is a crime. But not to have running water would be the greatest loss to mankind, not being able to go to the freezer and pick up any package of the variety of frozen foods would seem as if I was in a dream. As a typical teenager, I would naturally miss the radio, phonograph, and the television. We think that we sometimes have it hard. Just imagine how it was ten, twenty, or even thirty years ago. All our modern time savers would not appear. Yes, it is hard for me to realize how it would be to live without electricity. Where ever I look I see some electrical appliance. Many homes would be bare and their occupants dreary from the work that they would have to do because of no electricity. Electricity has raised farm production, assuring us more food and pleasures than our parents ever dreamed of. Without electricity vast quantity of jobs would not be available. Electricity is one of the greatest investments that Americans could have.

Rural Electric Cooperatives, the backbone of the country, are lo-

TOPDRESS PASTURES WITH "MR. GREEN" 30-10-0 AND GROW YOUR OWN FEED!

Would you like to double the forage yield of your pastures? The chances are good that you can do it with just one application of fertilizer!

This time of year it is important to see that your grasses have plenty of nitrogen, and a little phosphorus to boot. That's why we recommend an application of Spencer "Mr. Green" 30-10-0. Contains 30% nitrogen and 10% phosphorus. Top-dress your pastures with 300 pounds per acre, and see the results.

Tests at state experiment stations show that cattle grazed on well-fertilized forage alone have gained weight at a cost of less than 10c a pound. Drylot feeding often costs 2½ times that much!

That's why we say, "Grow your own feed with Spencer 'Mr. Green'!" See us for further details about pasture topdressing.

Walter Rogers' WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

Hearings are expected to begin about June 8 on the U. S. sugar supply question—an issue that shapes up as one of the hottest remaining to be decided in this 88th Congress. The House Agriculture committee will consider bills I and other members of the House have introduced to permit American sugar beet farmers and cane growers the right to serve a larger share of the American market. Americans are the world's best sugar consumers. All that is required to permit our people to consume the products of thousands upon thousands of new American sugar beet and cane farmers, processors, and workers is this legislative action: Reallocation of a major portion of the 3 million tons Cuba. This quantity of sugar now is being received from "off-shore"—sugar producers. As I have predicted for many months, the fight will be a tough one. The off-shore interests seeking to preserve the status quo include shippers and refiners along the East Coast. They will muster powerful support, as they did in 1962 when Congress resolved the same question in their favor. But this year I see signs of growing strength for the position I advocate—one that would correct, to the benefit of our economic position, a very unfair situation. Lake McClellan in southern Gray County is one of the most attractive recreation spots in the Panhandle. For several years I sought approval for new, needed construction work at the dam to preserve the recreational benefits provided by the lake and to protect property below the dam from occasional flesh flooding. In my capacity as chairman of the Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation of the House Interior Committee, I have long advocated that it is just as necessary to maintain existing water projects as to build new ones. I had felt that Lake McClellan was being neglected; recurrent floods proved it.

I am glad to say that the U. S. Forest Service, which has administered Lake McClellan since 1954, will open bids June 11 in Albuquerque to provide the needed work on the dam and spillway. The project, to be completed in 300 days after a contract is awarded, will include construction of a new, enlarged concrete spillway and extending the dam across the existing emergency spillway. Since 1959, the Forest Service has improved facilities at Lake McClellan by adding "family units" (fireplace, table, and benches), two boat ramps, two miles of improved road, a rehabilitated concession building, among other. In the current fiscal year, the Forest Service began a project to add additional picnic tables and fireplaces, sanitary facilities, a boat trailer parking area, boat ramps, and another mile and a half of roadway. Based on periodic counts by the Forest Service, approximately 110,000 visits are made to the lake each year.

When projects planned or underway are completed, the goal of upgrading facilities at Lake McClellan will be attained. Stan Musial, the former St. Louis Cardinals star who is now Consultant to the President on Physical Fitness, has sent me copies of "Vim" and "Vigor," the two new booklets prepared by the President's Council on Physical Fitness

WARNING!

THE BOLL WEEVIL IS HERE!

A SERIOUS PROBLEM:

- ★ BOLL WEEVILS, virtually unknown on the High Plains in 1960, have made their move. In 1963 they caused from 10 to 90 percent damage to 150,000 acres of cotton in seven of the 23 High Plains counties.
- ★ BOLL WEEVILS have proven their ability to live through the winter above the Coprock. They did survive the winter of 1963-64.
- ★ BOLL WEEVIL control in infested areas of the cotton belt costs from $5 to 6 cents per pound, or $25 to $50 per acre.
- ★ BOLL WEEVILS, where they are established, cause average yield losses of 13 percent despite control efforts.
- ★ BOLL WEEVILS have practically stopped cotton production in some areas.
- ★ BOLL WEEVILS threaten THE ENTIRE HIGH PLAINS. THEY MUST BE STOPPED!!!

A PRACTICAL SOLUTION:

- ★ DIAPAUSE CONTROL, according to the most eminent authorities in the U. S. CAN PROTECT THE HIGH PLAINS from the boll weevil.
- ★ DIAPAUSE CONTROL has been proven effective in commercial operations at the Texas Prison Farm and in the Presidio area of Texas.
- ★ DIAPAUSE CONTROL kills weevils in the Fall of the year when they are "Diapausing", or preparing for hibernation. A dead bear can't hibernate through the winter and come out biting and scratching in the Spring.
- ★ DIAPAUSE CONTROL is cheaper than in-season control, the method for which will be greatly reduced after 1964.
- ★ DIAPAUSE CONTROL does not kill beneficial insects.
- ★ DIAPAUSE CONTROL, carried out over ALL infested acreage back to the range land to the East, can reduce the weevil problem to a small patrolling operation in just a few years.

A comprehensive plan for getting the boll weevil out of the PCG area, . . . and keeping him out. . . is near completion and will be announced soon. Watch for it.

Mr. And Mrs. Homer Vining Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary, Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Vining of Plainview were honored on their Golden Wedding anniversary Sunday with a dinner at Wayne's Restaurant in Plainview for immediate family members and their husbands and wives.

Mrs. O. Z. Finley of Olton, Mrs. A. T. Watts of Farwell, Mrs. Monty Cox of Seminole, Mrs. J. D. Kirkpatrick of Wichita Falls and Glenn Vining of Earth.

Texas Restaurant Association, headquartered in Austin, is backing a proposal to legalize the sale of mixed drinks in Texas.

Executive Vice President W. Price Jr., of the 2600-member organization, reports that a six-member committee of his group has drawn a bill for presentation.

TRA's bill would authorize local option elections on the sale, by food establishments, of distilled spirits in sealed containers of two ounces or less.

Price said he has sounded out a number of legislators and found them enthusiastic. One of the most prominent members of the House of Representatives is expected to introduce the measure.

Repeated efforts to legalize over-the-bar sales of mixed drinks in Texas have collapsed in recent sessions of the Legislature under the combined weight of opposition by united dry forces and church groups.

"This is not a wet-dry issue," said non-drinking ex-restaurantur Price. "Texans can buy anything they want to drink right now.

Price, who also is secretary of the Texas Tourist Council, said he believes sale of mixed drinks "will definitely stimulate the tourist program in our state."

Furthermore, he estimated, the TRA bill would produce nearly $3,000,000 a year in new tax revenue.

Legislative Budget Board members heard a warning from their executive director, Vernon McGee, that "the sky seems to be the limit" on state agency spending requests for 1965-67.

As an example, McGee cited budget proposals of the State hospital system and institutions of higher education.

RUMP DELEGATION THREATENED

Threat of a rump liberal delegation to the national democratic convention was posed by State AFL-CIO President H. S. (Hank) Brown.

Gov. John Conally said moderate-conservative delegates will comprise two-thirds of the duly elected representatives at the June meeting and he does not want resolutions endorsing all planks of the National platform.

State Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Frank C. Erwin Jr. has named Austin attorney Will D. Davis as head of a SDEC panel to hear delegation contests from Bexar, Dallas, Harris, Hutchinson, Edwards, Randall and Sherman Counties.

The Houston convention will name delegates to the democratic national presidential nominating convention and select Texas national committee representatives.

PRESIDENT HONORED

President Lyndon B. Johnson returned to Austin and Johnson City to address commencement ceremonies, talk politics and visit with friends.

In his fourth trip to his home state since becoming president, Johnson addressed graduates of Johnson High School in Johnson City, where he graduated 40 years earlier, and the University of Texas.

J.E. PEAVY, M.D.
Commissioner of Health

Your eyes are your window to the world. But, even if you are able to read this, your vision may still be defective. Chances are slightly more than one out of two that something is wrong with your eyes, on the basis of statistics. Close to 80 million Americans wear glasses. At least two million of these have inadequate vision even with glasses. About one million persons are blind. Another 30, 000 Americans become blind each year. Unfortunately, many misconceptions and myths about eyes are still popular today. Take eye strain, for example. Ophthalmologists—physicians who specialize in eye care—usually agree that there is no such thing as eye strain. Those pains and discomforts that sometimes follow long hours of watching a jumpy television screen actually are due to eye fatigue. Your eyes need to rest, too. Children do not outgrow crossed eyes, and this condition should be treated as early as possible. Otherwise, some loss of sight could result. Good vision is important to safe driving of an auto, but perfect vision is by no means required. The driver who has a few drinks under his belt is much more dangerous than the nearsighted driver whose defect is reasonably well corrected with glasses. You've probably heard that eating plenty of carrots is good for your eyes. Eating carrots, however, does not necessarily improve vision. Carrots do contain vitamin A, but only a very small amount of it is needed. And it is found in many of the foods we eat, as well as carrots. Glaucoma—the most common of the serious eye diseases—cannot be cured. But it can usually be arrested by treatment, and further loss of vision can be prevented. Regular checkups for glaucoma are those past 40.

Senator YARBOROUGH'S REPORT

Dear Fellow Texan:
This week the Senate Commerce Committee, of which I am a member, began hearings on S. 2274, a bill to create a National Economic Conversion Commission. What will happen as the Defense Department develops stronger nuclear weapons, faster aircraft, more effective rockets, new military techniques that bring about major cutbacks and charges in defense spending? That does it mean to the cities in Texas who base their economies in large part on the payrolls of 178,000 servicemen and 58,000 civilian employees of the military? What does it mean to Texas where the Defense Department now spends each year between $4 and $5 billion on payrolls, defense contracts and related matters? What is the responsibility of the Federal government in planning for such changes, some of which are already taking place? For example, only last April the Defense Department consolidated 54 military installations in 29 states bringing about enormous economic changes where these installations were located. More changes can be expected. As a member of the Commerce Committee and Senator from one of the major military states, I have taken part with deep interest in hearings on our committee is now holding to find the answers to some of these questions.

The ultimate goal of S. 2274 is to establish a National Economic Conversion Commission to prevent full employment even though changes are made. In essence, the problem is this: As we have been geared for war for 25 years, shall we not also be prepared for peace?

Is there a day in the future when we can apply the American genius, our national resources, our skill, manpower and money to combating poverty and disease, to upgrading education? Is there a day coming when we can apply our energies to the enrichment of our lives, our country, our civilization? We are no longer accustomed to peace, but if we do not prepare, the damage to our great hopes and dreams can be as devastating in some ways as the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor which caught us unprepared for war.

Great things can be done. This is the challenge of the future.

Midge Research Is Stepped-Up

The "recreational" activities of the sorghum midge are under close scrutiny by Texas A&M University scientists.

James Harding, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologist, has taken 113 grass samples to date from fields over the South Plains. These samples are being held in the laboratory at the South Plain Research and Extension Center, Lubbock, Harding checks samples constantly for possible early midge emergence from the plant heads.

Willing cooperation of electrical power companies on the South Plains has allowed placement of 28 sticky, insect traps on power poles in a nine-county area. Counties are: Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Terry, Lynn, and Garza.

Harding says weekly grass samplings, along with checking of the insect traps on powerpoles, will give an insight into "why" and "how" the midge attains such damaging numbers to reduce yields of August-blooming grain sorghum.

A few adult midge began emergence during the middle of May and are suspected of depositing their eggs in available grass hosts. Study of the grass samples will determine this in the near future.

In contrast to early reports of midge activity, it is believed these are the first midge out. There are several orange, "midge-like-creatures" on the High Plains that are not sorghum midge, but greatly resemble them, says the entomologist.

Several "allies" in fight against the sorghum midge have been found this year. Two wasp-like parasites of ditapausing midge larvae have been obtained from midge-infested sorghum fields. An external mite has also been found living on adult sorghum midge. Up to nine mites per fly has been observed.
