Land Grant for Roads

A ten million acre grant of public land to New Mexico for roads, drainage and education would give a powerful forward impulse to the state," said C. M. Richards, cashier of the National Bank of Carlsbad to-day. "The growth of New Mexico will be exceedingly slow without a fairly complete system of highways. It is patent to every one that has been around the state that drainage will reclaim a large area of fertile valley land, and no one ever questions the advantage of education.

"But aside from the direct benefit of roads, drainage, and education, such a grant sold direct to actual settlers on easy terms would stimulate agriculture and the stock industry to a marked degree. The drained lands would attract desirable settlers. The stockmen would become the owners of the grazing lands and thereby place their business on a permanent basis. It is well enough understood that the stock raiser can grow more and better stock on land which he owns and protects, than on the open range.

"The bankers are directly interested in obtaining such a grant. Better roads and satisfactory drainage encourages development and growth increases business. Agricultural loans will become more acceptable with the proper drainage of the farms and the landowning stockman is a desirable risk. The taxable wealth will increase and thereby reduce the rate. I am certainly in favor of the grant."

The cattle men, the sheep men, the hog men, the good roads association and the New Mexico bankers meet in Roswell during the State Live Stock and Products Exposition, beginning October 4th. There never was a better time for every body to get together on a big proposition like this federal land grant for roads, drainage and education.

Will Attend State Rifle Meet

Company M will send four riflemen to the state rifle meet, which will be held at Albuquerque three days during the fair.

There will be three matches, one each day. The first will be for the state championship, long range, two men to the team. The second, for the individual championship of the state. The third to be the club team match for teams of ten men each from any of the various rifle organizations of the state.

Lieut. J. C. Compton, Elbert Terry, Charles Thomas and J. B. Maxwell are the crack shots of company M who will take in this meet, and we wish them success in hitting the bull's eye. It is customary to send only two men from each company, but owing to the exceedingly good record made by company M, General Herring gave orders for four men to attend.

Notice to Teachers

Contracts, certificates, health certificates and institute attendance certificates should be filed at once in the office of the county superintendent. Teachers who attended normal in Roosevelt county need not file institute certificate. The office of the state superintendent is calling for the list of teachers employed to teach this county for the present term.

Respectfully,
MRS. S. F. CULBERSON,
County Superintendent.

Felix Holmes, of west of town was a caller at this office, accompanied by four big delicious water melons, all for the News force. Thanks Felix, come again.

New Department in State University

Albuquerque, N.M., Sept. 23.—President David R. Boyd of the state university, has announced the acceptance of the chair of history in the university by Roscoe R. Hill, until recently lecturer in history and Latin American social and industrial conditions in Columbia university. Mr. Hill was chosen for the New Mexico position upon the recommendation of John Bassett Moore former counsellor of the state department and a personal friend of President Boyd who has been seeking a man specially equipped to head the new department of Latin American training, now to be opened in the university. Mr. Hill has specialized in the history and development of the south and Central American republics and is the author of several authoritative works thereon. He will inaugurate in the New Mexico university a department which will give special training in the history, commercial and social life and development of the Latin American nations, to the end of equipping young men and women for positions in the diplomatic service, in educational work and in industry and commerce in those countries. The demand for trained men and women, ready to accept service in the south American nations or in business enterprises having south American connections, is enormous and growing rapidly, and it is to meet this demand and at the same time open a new avenue to opportunity to New Mexico young people that the state university has established the new department.

C. H. Bostick, who lives about four miles south of town, made quite a record killing rattlers last Sunday. He and his family started visiting and as they were driving along the road he heard a snake and upon investigation found two old and eight young ones all in one nest. Mr. Bostick killed the entire lot.

Henry Wagner and family arrived Monday from Dallas, Texas, and will make this their home. Mr. Wagner is a son-in-law of F. G. Calloway. He has accepted a position with the First National bank, taking the place of A. W. Freeman who resigned and will move to Tennessee.

E. W. Green, of Girard, Texas, is visiting in the home of Sam J. Stinnett of the Doss community. He is very favorably impressed with the Portales Valley and he may locate here. Mr. Green is an uncle of Mrs. Stinnett.

Dr. Garmany, who was appointed surgeon of the National guard is taking the examination this week. Doc says it is like taking a post graduate examination, but he is staying with the job.

G. W. Carr, of this place, is among the list named this week by Governor McDonald as a delegate to the tenth international dry farming congress at Denver, Colorado.

Sheriff Deen, arrived Sunday with Theodore Lard, alias Joe Elvy. He is charged with horse theft with Jack Lightfoot who is now in jail awaiting trial. Mr. Deen caught Lard in Arizona.

Mrs. W. L. Johnson and children arrived Monday from Oklahoma City. She is the wife of Dr. Johnson, the chiropractic doctor.

Coe Howard returned Monday from Oklahoma City, Ft. Worth and Dallas. While away he closed a contract with a Dallas aviator to exhibit at the fair.

Judge G. L. Reese, returned Sunday from Roswell.

State Fair at Albuquerque

Albuquerque, Sept. 23.—The sale of boxes for the fair has been one of the most encouraging incidents connected with the management of the big enterprise. Letters were sent out to a number of prominent business men in every part of New Mexico offering the fair boxes for sale at fifty dollars each. It was not pretended that this sum represented the value of the boxes to those who were asked to purchase them. The offer was simply in the nature of an appeal to the Public spirit of the citizens of New Mexico to test their loyalty and enthusiasm for a big enterprise, being undertaken for the benefit of the people of the entire state. The result has surpassed all expectations. Nineteen boxes have been sold, and the returns are not all in.

The fair officials are now getting ready for the big pageant and ceremonial that is to mark the opening day of the big show Governor McDonald, United States Senators Catron and Fall, Congressman B. C. Hernandez, all the house officials and every district judge and district attorney in New Mexico are to be extended a special invitation to take part in the opening day ceremonies, and the occasion bids fair to be one of the most notable ones in the history of the state.

The appointment of M. E. Hickey, of Albuquerque as Grand Marshall of the day was announced last week and was received with gratification by all those interested in the fair. He is widely known throughout the state, is a man of wide experience and splendid executive ability. In the discharge of his duties he will have full control of the fair grounds and of all the programs taking place in front of the grand stand. The selection is considered a most happy one.

Try the Home Merchant

Listen! Before sending off that order to the mail order house for fall and winter goods, groceries, hardware or anything else, look over the ads in this paper, if you don't see what you want, call on them and let them show you their stock, they have it, compare prices with them, see the goods before you buy, let the merchant be responsible for delay and possible loss of the shipment and besides let them pay the freight. Your home merchant helps to build up your town, country, churches, schools and other enterprises, and without him what would you do? Especially in many instances where we need credit and help. He will be glad to figure with you and if you buy the standard brand of goods we feel positive he can save you money in the long run. Try it.

Returning from California

The following is not an advertisement for Blanton and Jordan for the Ford cars, but just a local item, as told by Mrs. W. T. Wilson of Vian, Oklahoma. With her family in one car and Mrs. T. S. Johnson and family in another, both Fords, were in Portales Monday and Tuesday enroute home from the expositions and other western points. They made the entire trip in these cars, visiting twelve states. Mrs. Wilson's car has made 6000 miles on this trip with only one accident, and her son, Albert Wilson, age 14, has driven it the entire trip. Mrs. Wilson says she is going to write Henry when she gets home and tell him of their trip.

SYNOPSIS.

Kenneth Griswold, an unsuccessful writer, because of socialistic tendencies, holds up Andrew Galbraith, president of the Bayou State Securities, in the president's private office and escapes with $100,000 in cash.

"You still think I could tell you that, if I chose?" she said, willfully misleading him, or at least allowing him to mislead himself.

bluffed me, don't you?—what? Let me tell you: some fine day this duck whose name isn't Gavitt will turn up here—to see you; then I'll nab him.

In two quiet upper rooms in the Widow Holcomb's house in upper Shawnee street.

For a third time, it was at three o'clock of this same Wednesday that Raymer came out of Jasper Grierson's bank with his head down and a cloud on his brow.

"You are getting to be as bad as all the others," was the greeting he got from the high driving seat.

"When you see him, tell him that we are still on earth over at Mereside," said the magnate's daughter.

One more small coincidence will serve to total the items on the Wednesday page.

"Who is that Bitter-creech-looking man crossing over to the Winnebago house?" asked Miss Grierson.

"Ob, on general principles, I guess. You wouldn't say he had any of the earmarks of a business man."

Miss Grierson did not say what she thought, then, or later, when she set Dahlgren down at the door of his newspaper office in Sioux avenue.

gave a brief audience in the Mereside library to a small, barefooted boy whose occupation was sufficiently indicated by the bundle of evening papers under one arm.

"Well, Johnnie, what did you find out?" she asked.

"Ain't had time," said the boy. "But he ain't no millyunaire lumber-shooter, I'll bet a nickel. I sold him a paper just now, down by Dutchie's lumber yard, and I ast him what kind o' lumber that was in the pile by the gate. He didn't know, no more'n a goat."

Miss Margery flipped a coin in the air and the newsboy caught it dexterously.

"That will do nicely for a beginning, Johnnie," she said sweetly.

"Come and see me every once in a while, and perhaps there'll be more little white cartwheels for you. Only don't tell, and don't let him catch you. That's all."

CHAPTER XVII.

The Forward Light.

During the days which followed his setting up of the standard of independence in Mrs. Holcomb's second floor front, Griswold found himself entering upon a new field—a world corresponding with gratifying fidelity to that prefigured future which he had struck out in the waking hours of his first night on the main-deck of the Belle Julie.

Wahaska, as a fortunate field for the post-graduate course in Experimental Humanity, was all that his fancy had pictured it. When he came to go about the town, as he did daily after the pleasant occupation of re-furnishing his study and bedroom was a pleasure past, he found that in some mysterious manner his fame had preceded him.

Coincidentally he discovered that, in the same mysterious manner, everybody seemed to know that he was, in the Wahaskan phrase, "well-fixed." Here, again, he guessed that something might be credited to Margery.

With the rewriting of the book fairly begun, he was already looking about for the practical opportunity when the growing friendship with Edward Raymer promised to offer an opening exactly fulfilling the experimental requirements.

"Your pair of minutes' must have found something to grow upon," laughed the patient waiter, when Raymer, finding Mrs. Holcomb's front door open, had climbed the stair to the newly established literary workshop.

"I'm not likely to," was the sober rejoinder. "My debt to Miss Grierson is a pretty big one, Raymer; bigger than you suspect, I imagine."

"I'm glad to hear you put the debt where it belongs, leaving her father out of it. You don't owe him anything, not even a cup of cold water. There's a latter-day buccaneer for you!" he went on, warming to his subject like a man with a sore into which salt has been freshly rubbed.

"How is that?" asked Griswold.

"I've been on the edge of telling you two or three times, but next to a quitter I do hate the fellow who puts his fingers into a trap and then squawks when the trap nips him. Grierson has got me down and he is about to cut my throat, Griswold."

told Grierson that I should need a year or more, and he didn't object."

"This was all in conversation!" said Griswold; "no writing?"

Raymer made a wry face. "Don't rub it in. I'm admitting that I was all the different kinds of a fool. There was no definite time limit mentioned. I was to give my personal notes and put up the family stock as collateral. A day or two later, when I went around to close the deal, the trap was standing wide open for me and a baby might have seen it. Grierson said he had proposed the loan to his directors, and that they had kicked on taking the stock as collateral. He offered to take my paper without an indorser if I would cover his personal risk with my stock collateral, assigning it, not to the bank, but to him. I fell for it like a woolly sheep. The stock transfers were made, and I signed a note for one hundred thousand dollars, due in sixty days; Grierson explaining that two months was the bank's usual limit on accommodation paper—which is true enough—but giving me to understand that a renewal and an extension of time would be merely a matter of routine."

Griswold was shaking his head sympathetically. "I can guess the rest," he said. "Grierson is preparing to swallow you whole."

"He has as good as done it," was the dejected reply. "The note falls due tomorrow; and, as I happened to be uptown this afternoon, I thought I would drop in and pay the discount and renew the paper. Grierson shot me through the heart. He gave me a cock-and-bull story about some bank examiner's protest, and told me I must be prepared to take up the paper tomorrow."

"Of course you reminded him of his agreement?"

"Sure; and he sawed me off short; said that any business man borrowing money on accommodation paper knew that it was likely to be called in on the expiration date; that an extension is really a new transaction, which the bank is at liberty to refuse to clammy, sitting back in his big chair and staring up at me through the smoke of a fat, black cigar while he did it!"

"Then I remembered the mother and sister, Kenneth, and did what I would have died rather than do for myself—I begged like a dog. But I might as well have gone outside and butted my head against the brick wall of the bank."

Griswold forgot his own real, though possibly indirect, obligation to Jasper Grierson.

"That is where you made a mistake; you should have told him to go to h—l with his money!" was his acrid comment. And then: "How near can you come to lifting this note tomorrow, Raymer?"

"Near isn't the word. Possibly I might sweep the corners and gather up twelve or fifteen thousand dollars."

Griswold's eyes were lighting up with altruistic fire.

"Once in a while, Raymer, a thing happens so fortuitously as to fairly compel a belief in the higher powers that our fathers included in the word 'Providence,'" he said, almost solemnly. "You have described exactly an industrial situation which seems to me to offer a solution of the whole vexed question of master and man, and to be a seed-sowing which is bound to be followed by an abundant and most humanizing harvest. Ever since I began to study, even in a haphazard way, the social system under which we sweat and groan, I've wanted in on a job like yours. I still want in. Will you take me as a silent partner, Raymer? I'm not making it a condition, mind you; come here any time after ten o'clock tomorrow, and you'll find the money waiting for you. But I do hope you won't turn me down."

Raymer was gripping the arms of his chair again, but this time they were not unpleasantly electrified.

"If I had only myself to consider, I shouldn't keep you waiting a second," he returned, heartily. "But it may take a little time to persuade my mother and sister. If they could only know you—why can't you come out to dinner with me tonight?"

"For the only reason that would make me refuse; I have a previous bidding. But I'll be glad to go some other day. There is no hurry about this business matter; take all the time you need—after you have made Mr. Grierson take his claws out of you."

Raymer had filled the borrowed pipe again and was pulling at it reflectively. "About this partnership; what would be your notion?" he asked.

"The simplest way is always the best. Increase your capital stock and let me in for as much as my ninety thousand dollars will buy," said the easily satisfied investor. "We'll let it go at that until you've had time to think it over, and talk it over with your mother and sister."

The iron founder got up and reached for his hat.

"You are certainly the friend in need, Griswold, if ever there was one," he said, gripping the hand of leave-taking as if he would crack the bones in it. "But there is one thing I'm going to ask you, and you mustn't take offense—this ninety thousand; could you afford to lose it—or is it your whole stake in the game?"

Griswold's smile was the ironmaster's assurance that he had not offended.

"It is practically my entire stake—and I can very well afford to lose it in the way I have indicated. You may call that a paradox, if you like, but both halves of it are true."

"Then there is one other thing you ought to know, and I'm going to tell it now," Raymer went on. "We do a general foundry and machine business, but a good fifty per cent of our profit comes from the Wahaska and Pineboro railroad repair work, which we have had ever since the road was opened."

Griswold was smiling again. "Why should I know that particularly," he asked.

"Because it is rumored that Jasper Grierson has been quietly absorbing the stock and bonds of the road, and if he means to remove me from the map—"

"I see," was the reply. "In that case you'll need a partner even worse than you do now. You can't scare me off that way. Shall I look for you at ten tomorrow?"

"At ten to the minute," said the rescued plunger; and he went downstairs so full of mingled thankfulness and triumph that he mistook Doctor Farnham's horse for his own at the hitching post two doors away, and was about to get into the doctor's buggy before he discovered his mistake.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Bridge of Jehennam.

Griswold took a final look at himself in his dressing case mirror before going to keep his evening appointment at the doctor's downtown office. It was comfortably reassuring. So far as he could determine, there was little in the clean-shaven, square-shouldered, correctly garmented young fellow who faced him in the mirror to suggest either the bearded outcast of New Orleans or the unkempt and toll-sodden roustabout of the Belle Julie. If only she had not made him speak to her. He had a sharp conviction that the greatest of all the hazards lay in the chance that she might remember his voice.

He found the cheery little doctor waiting for him when he had walked the few squares to the Main street office.

"I was beginning to be afraid you were going to be fashionably late," said the potential host; and then, with a humorous glance for the correct garmenting: "Regalia, heh? Hasn't Miss Grierson told you that Wahaska is still hopelessly unable to live up to the dress coat and standing collar? I'm sure she must have. But never mind; Bucephalus take us around to see if the neighbors have brought in anything good to eat."

The drive was a short one. Broffin was once more shadowing the house in which, first or last, he expected to trap his amateur MacHeath; and when the buggy was halted at the carriage step he was near enough to mark and recognize the doctor's companion.

"Not this time," he muttered sourly, when the two had passed together up the graveled path and the host was fitting his latchkey to the front door. "It's only the sick man that writes books. I wonder what sort of a book he thinks he's going to write in this in forgotten, turkey-trodden village along village of the Reuben Yaps?"

Griswold, waiting on the porch while Doctor Farnham fitted his key, had a nerve-tingling shiver of apprehension when the latch yielded with a click and he found himself under the hall lantern formally shaking hands with the statuesque young woman of the many imaginations.

"You are very welcome to Home Nook, Mr. Griswold; we have been hearing about you for many weeks," she was saying when he had relinquished the firm hand and was hanging his coat and hat on the hall rack. And then, with a half-embarrassed laugh: "I am afraid we are dreadful gossips; all Wahaska has been talking about you, you know, and wondering how it came to acquire you."

"It hasn't acquired anything very valuable," was the guest's modest disclaimer, its readiness arising out of a grateful easing of strains now that the actual face-to-face ordeal had safely passed its introductory stage. "And you mustn't say a word against your charming little city, Miss Farnham," he went on. "It is the friendliest, most hospitable—"

The doctor's daughter was interrupting with an enthusiastic show of applause.

"Come out to dinner, both of you," she urged; and then to Griswold: "I want you to say all those nice things to Aunt Fanny."

In the progress to the cozy, homelike dining-room Griswold found the contrast between the Farnham home and the ornate mansion three streets away on the lake front strikingly apparent; as clearly marked as that between Margery Grierson and the sweetly serene and conventional young person who was introducing him to her aunt across the small oval dining table.

So far, all was going well. But a little later, in the midst of a half-uttered direction to the serving maid, Miss Farnham stopped abruptly, and Griswold could feel her gaze, wide-eyed and half-terrified, seemingly fixed upon him.

It was all over in the turning of a leaf; had been no break in the doctor's genial rally, and the breathless little pause at the other end of the table was only momentary. When the dinner was over the doctor, in the act of filling two long-stemmed pipes for his guest and himself, was called away professionally. Miss Gilman, least obtrusive of chaperons, had been peacefully napping for a good half-hour in her low rocker under the reading lamp, and the pictures in a thick quarto of Gulf Coast views had pleasantly filled the interval for the two who were awake, when Griswold finally assured himself that the danger of recognition was a danger past. As a mental analyst he knew that the opening of each fresh door in the house of present familiarity was automatically closing other doors opening upon the past; and it came to him with a little flush of the seer's exaltation that once again his prefigurings were finding their exact fulfillment. In a spirit of artistic daring he yielded to a sudden impulse, as one crossing the flimsiest of bridges may run and leap to prove that his theory of safety stresses is a sufficient guaranty of his own immunity.

"You were speaking of first impressions of places," he said, while they were still turning the leaves of the picture book. "Are you a believer in the absolute correctness of first impressions?"

"I don't know," was the thoughtful reply; but its afterword was more definite: "As to places, I'm not sure that the first impression always persists; in a few instances I am quite certain it hasn't. I didn't like the Gulf coast at all, at first; it seemed so foreign and different and unhomelike. As to persons, however—"

She paused, and Griswold entered the breach hardily.

"I know," he affirmed. "There have been times when, with every reasonable fiber in you urging you to believe the evil, a still stronger impulse has made you believe in the good."

"How can you know that?" she asked; and again he saw in the expressive eyes the flying signals of indeterminate perplexity and apprehension.

Resolutely he pressed the hazardous experiment to its logical conclusion. Once for all, he must know if this young woman with the sympathetic voice and the goddesslike pose could, even under suggestion, be led to link up the past with the present.

"It is my trade to know," he said quietly, closing the book of views and laying it aside. "There have been moments in your life when you would have given much to be able to decide a question of duty or expediency entirely irrespective of your impressions. Isn't that so?"

For one flitting instant he thought he had gone too far. In the hardy determination to win all or lose all, he had been holding her eyes steadily, as the sure mirror in which he should be able to read his sentence, of acquittal or condemnation. This time there was no mistaking the sudden widening of the pupils to betray the equally sudden awakening of womanly terror.

"Don't be afraid," he began, and he had come thus far on the road to open confession when he saw that she was not looking at him; she was looking past him toward one of the windows giving upon the porch. "What is it?" he demanded, turning to look with her.

PROFIT IN ECONOMICAL FEEDING OF PIGS

Swinging Front to Pig Pens, to Prevent Pigs From Entering Trough Before the Food is All In.

(By W. R. GILBERT.)
A mistake that we often make is that we wean our pigs too young. I believe in getting the little pigs started off to eat at three or four weeks old, and there is nothing better than a little milk and shorts to get them started. Then feed them liberally and by the time you wean them at eight or ten weeks old, you have a big, strong, lusty pig.
I am satisfied that a great many of our farmers lose all the profit in the business by the way they handle the pigs at the weaning time. I am a strong believer in raising the little pigs out in the open. Of course you must have shelter for them in storms and for feeding purposes, but let them have access to the earth; keep them on the ground and give them green food, and you will get them to develop bone and muscle and a strong stomach.
They are always on their feed and always at their feed. I like to have them out on a clover pasture or on peas and rape. For later pastures, rape gives satisfactory results. Of course, you must feed the pigs reasonably at the same time.
We all know that for economic production a mixture of several grains fed together will give better results than any one grain fed alone.
I cannot lay down a hard and fast rule. Some seasons oats might be very satisfactory, but if you get such a combination as high-priced oats it would be foolish to advocate them, especially when we have to purchase our feed.

During the winter months in a root-growing country I believe roots are a good food, and should compose a large proportion of the ration, and I believe in boiling the roots and feeding some grain.
Do not load them up with a great lot of water; feed the roots in rather a thick batter, and mix in your shorts and middlings and whatever grain you might happen to have. For the larger pigs pulp the roots and feed the meal sprinkled on. In a section where winters are cold, it is well to take the chill off the food, and always see that the pigs clean the troughs up and do not leave any material in them.
A great many people make the mistake of having food left in the troughs. Pay particular attention to cleanliness, have dry beds and give them dry straw to lie on. The bedding should be changed often.
In the winter months give them wood ashes and charcoal and sod or earth of some kind. Earth seems to be absolutely necessary to keep the digestive organs in good condition. Milk is one of the best things for a pig. Nothing lengthens them out like milk, if properly handled.

APPLE TREES ARE INDIVIDUAL PROBLEMS

Just as your boy John seems wholly different from his brother Richard and your daughter Helen has to be either coaxed or punished while Mary is obedient to the slightest parental suggestion, so every tree in your apple orchard is an individual problem.
If apple growing is to reach its maximum possibilities, pruning must be carefully practiced, horticulturists agree, but specific rules universally applicable cannot be laid down.
There are certain general principles, however, and these F. S. Merrill, assistant in horticulture in the Kansas State Agricultural college, emphasizes. Not only young trees, but neglected ones, are discussed by Mr. Merrill.
"Condition Governs Pruning Time." "The time for pruning," says Mr. Merrill, "will be governed largely by the condition of the orchard. Where winter pruning is not too extensive, it is usually carried on in the late winter months. Pruning in winter is not dangerous to the tree, nor is it dangerous to saw off a limb when the wood is frozen. The greatest drawback to midwinter pruning is the inconvenience to the pruner.
"The effect of heavy winter pruning is to promote a heavy wood and watery growth. The reason for this is that the roots have been unchanged while the top has been reduced. To restore the balance that normally exists between the top and the root system, a vigorous growth takes place. This is important in rejuvenating old or neglected trees, but should be avoided in healthy trees of bearing age. A light pruning, however, will not cause the excessive wood growth, and may keep a tree in good physical condition.
To increase fruit production. "Summer pruning should be done after the rapid growth of the spring has been completed. This type of pruning tends to overcome the production of watersprouts and heavy wood growth and is frequently recommended as an agent for increasing production in barren trees. The summer pruning must be light, consisting in pinching back the growing shoots, and is not possible except in trees that have been well cared for.
"The pruning should be done annually. If it is done periodically, the tree becomes unbalanced and too many large limbs have to be removed. Such a condition is liable to be followed by heavy wood growth, and heavy fruit production does not take place in trees that are making rank wood growth.
Keep Fungous Diseases Out. "All cuts should be made close to the limb from which the branch is to be cut, and the surface should be as smooth as possible. This enables the callus to form and grow most easily. A cut should never be made so that water can lodge on or around it, for such a condition will increase the danger of infection by fungous diseases.
"If a large limb must be removed the pruner must be careful to prevent the limb from splitting at the base. He may do this by cutting off the limb a short distance from the trunk and then removing the stub. Even this additional work may be avoided by making an undercut from one-third to one-half through the limb. In making such a cut, it is often difficult to have the cuts meet and in that case the cuts should be smoothed over to aid the healing process.
How to Treat Young Trees. "The usual age of trees at the time of planting is either one or two years.

New Sports Sweater for Fall

No outfit is quite complete in these days without a sweater of some sort. And there is a wide and varied choice in sweaters, for they are claiming more attention than ever before in their history.
There are finely woven sweaters of k. in gay colors, which one sees at afternoon concert, at the country club, on the beaches and the golf links, and in any other outdoor meeting of fashionable. There are sweaters, considerably like them, made of wool, usually in more vivid colors than the all-stick variety. In these there are the practical wool sweaters, similar to that shown in the picture, and belonging to the same class as the new models are carefully designed to the end that they may emphasize the right style. In the sweater pictured here, for instance, it will be noticed that the sleeves are shaped and finished with a cuff and button. The patch pockets leave a turnover flap, and the new order of things in belts is recognized. The collar may be turned up close about the neck if required.
Because this is a sweater for real comfort in cool days it is rather heavy. Its usefulness begins with fall, and continues to the coming of another summer, for it reinforces the too tight wrap in the depths of winter. It is an excellent model to choose for the young girl to wear to school during the autumn months, and nothing could be better designed or arranged for sports wear.
Sweaters of wool stand the rough handling which they are likely to get from young people, and continue to look none the worse for it. Now that they are made in beautiful colors and with so much attention to style, the field of their usefulness is wonderfully increased.

GOOD RATIONS FOR EWES WITH LAMBS

Clover Hay Is Better Than Timothy—Mouldy or Sour Corn Silage Is Dangerous.

(By HOWARD HACKEDORN, Missouri Experiment Station.)
Clover hay and grain is a better ration for breeding ewes than timothy hay and grain.
Clover hay alone will maintain pregnant breeding ewes up to lambing time. After lambing, the addition of grain is advisable.
Corn silage when fed with clover hay, with grain, and with both clover hay and grain, is slightly better roughage than corn stover fed with the same combination of grain and clover hay.
Moldy or extremely sour corn silage is a dangerous feed for sheep. Eleven ewes were lost in one week from accidentally feeding moldy silage.
A ration of corn silage, clover hay and grain is the most efficient way of utilizing silage.
Feeding corn stover, clover hay and grain is the most satisfactory method of utilizing stover.
Corn silage and stover are better roughages than timothy hay when fed with grain.

ONE MAY PREVENT BLOAT IN CATTLE

Avoid Rank Grass and Wet Green Clover or Alfalfa—Some Precautions.

(By DR. A. S. ALEXANDER, Wisconsin Experiment Station.)
Rank grass and wet, green clover or alfalfa are likely to cause bloat in cattle. Bloat may be avoided if right precautions are taken. Here are a few of them:
Gradually change cows from winter grain and hay rations to fresh pastures and meadows.
Prevent indigestions, because indigestion is the direct cause of bloat.
Feed cows their usual ration of dry hay and grain before turning them out to pasture.
Keep cows off clover and alfalfa fields until dew or rain has dried off and never turn them on such fields in moisture-laden, "muggy" days.
Give cattle access to a mixture of salt and slacked lime.
Visit pastures frequently in early summer, and, if possible, take along proper remedies and instruments for relieving bad cases of bloat.

LIST OF BREEDING HORSES IMPORTED

Names of Animals, Their Registration Number and Name of Importer Is Included.

The bureau of animal industry has issued a list of horses imported for breeding purposes in 1914 for which certificates of pure breeding have been issued by the federal department. This list includes the names of animals, their registration number, the name of the importer, and the department number for the various breeds. The following table shows the number of certificated horses imported for breeding purposes during 1914:

Breeds	Stallions	Mares	Total
Belgian draft	24	157	181
Clydesdale	17	34	51
Hackney	3	19	22
Percheron	343	181	524
Shelton pony	2	22	24
Shire	54	14	68
Standard bred	2	2	4
Suffolk	11	19	30
Thoroughbred	31	5	36
Welsh pony	11	49	60
Totals	708	502	1,210

The list referred to can be obtained on application to the Bureau of Animal Industry.
Blanching Celery.
Celery may be blanched (whitened) by leaving dirt up around the stalks or by placing boards along the rows. Sometimes drain tiles are set over each plant to advantage. There are also several kinds of patent paper or wood bleachers.

NOTHING BUT CORN IS UNSATISFACTORY

Where Fed Exclusively to Hogs the Animals Become Fat and Do Not Develop.

Investigators have proved what good feeders already know that corn—good corn—is a good feed for any animal, and that there is no need of withholding it from any animal needing food. At the same time, it is shown that corn alone is not nearly so good or so profitable a feed as corn supplemented by some protein food, such as tankage, linseed meal or soy beans.
In hogs fed exclusively on corn the animals become very fat and chubby, and do not develop properly; the bones are brittle and easily broken.
Sixty-five hogs were used in a recent experiment and they were divided into lots of five each. Twelve different rations were used, with corn alone in two of them and corn with some other feed in the others.
The hogs fed on corn and linseed meal and those fed on tankage gained the most; those receiving corn alone were most unsatisfactory.

Prevent Flies From Breeding.
Powdered hellebore mixed with water and sprinkled over manure will prevent flies from breeding and be an extremely effective means for their control. It is inexpensive and the thing of special importance regarding it is that it does not insure the fertilizing value of the manure, as do most materials used in controlling flies.

FEWER BIRDS THAN IN FORMER TIMES

More Encouragement and Protection Would Increase Number and Decrease Pests.

Our bird population is much less than it ought to be, according to the biologists. More protection and encouragement would help to increase the number of birds and correspondingly decrease the number of insect pests.
That breeding birds prefer thickly-inhabited centers of population to forests in one of the conclusions of the census. This refutes the widespread belief that humans and birds are naturally antagonistic.
It also seems probable that as our human population increases so will our bird population.

Three New Models for Fall

Of all things, millinery requires careful choosing, and, after it is bought, the hat requires careful placing on the head, if it is to fulfill its destiny. According to an old millinery maxim that destiny is to improve the appearance of the wearer. "You must look better with your hat than without it"—that is the exacting test to which each new mode is to be subjected.
The three new models for fall, which appear here, are types that will repay a little study on the part of those who consider things before buying them. They include a small turban, a turban with extension crown which forms a halo brim, and one of the graceful wide-brimmed hats to which fashion is extending welcoming hands.
Quite a number of these wide-brimmed hats are shaped with brims turning upward at the back. This has brought in the underbrim trimming again and it is not confined to wide-brimmed shapes. Short, curling ostrich plumes fit into the trimming of the underbrim in the most graceful way.
The turban with extension crown is made of black velvet and white chiffon. A bead work ornament trims the front and is made entirely of white beads.
The soft and graceful brim of the third hat bespeaks for it, and for many others of the same character, first place in the favor of young women. It is made of velvet in black or one of the dark shades of fashionable colors. The trimming is of white fancy ostrich and looks like a bit of fireworks, done in frost. It shows its sprays in front of the left eye of the wearer with an abandon unknown to ornaments hitherto. But it is strong in the knowledge that it is less in the way of vision than many a veil.
The small turban is made of corded silk, and would be equally effective in panne velvet. The material is covered with corded tucks and serves for the covering of the hat and for its trimming. The edges are finished with a silver tinsel braid which has the effect of needlework. It looks like close-set overcast stitches, and needlework decoration is a feature of the new fall millinery.

THE CACKLE OF A HEN

Listen for the cackle of your hen. It has a money value to you. The winter season is approaching, when the price of eggs will advance and the cackle will become of even greater significance to you. Plan for the cackle, feed the hens in accordance with the demands of nature as propounded by the experts who have spent their life in the work. If the cackle is not heard with sufficient frequency, ask yourself why. Dig down and study the subject, for the more you study the oftener the hen will cackle, and cackling more eggs and a bigger bank account. It is the law of nature that a hen should lay and cackle. She should lay often and do much cackling, for that too, is nature's law. But she will not lay unless she receives proper food and care, and therein lies the wisdom of the man who thinks before he acts. Get hold of some good literature, read up on the subject of egg production, apply the knowledge you thus obtain, and in the end you will learn to experience a keen delight in every cackle of your hens. Your hen wants to cackle—she WILL cackle, if you give her a chance. And there's money in the cackle of a hen.

The bird never destroys its own nest. The nest is its home, where it deposits its eggs and rears its young. It builds but does not destroy. Are we superior in intelligence to the bird, or is the bird superior to us? Are we seeking to build up and maintain our nests—our stores, and shops, and various other industries? or are we unintentionally seeking to destroy them by making our purchases from people in other cities who thrive upon the misfortune of the local merchant or dealer? Think of the bird and then of yourself.

There is an estimable lady in this town who is regarded as about the shrewdest shopper in the whole community. She is not "close" but just careful and economical. She reads the ads in this paper every week, knows just where the bargains and best offerings are to be found, and goes there to spend her money. She finds that advertising pays her, because of the numerous savings on her purchases. It pays the merchant too, because of his increased sales. But what of the dealer who never advertises?

The demand for poultry and eggs this winter may not be as brisk as the howl for guns and ammunition, but nevertheless it will pay you to pay close attention to the egg production of your fowls. With proper care and feed the number may in many cases be almost doubled. And every egg in winter has a ready sale and a high market value.

In the bee world the drone and loafer is quickly put out of the way. But in the human family we cuss and feed him and let him rip. and this impels us to remark that the bee is an intelligent little fellow.

We dished up a perfectly fine editorial on "Don'ts" the other day, but when we came to reading it over a second time we found it tramped on our own toes so often we deemed it a part of wisdom to keep silent.

In any event, General Funston, does not have to worry over submarines on the Rio Grande.

to the manner of conducting the war against inequality and the crime of plutocracy, the plan of campaign had been sufficiently indicated in that white-hot moment of high resolves on the cargo-deck of the Belle Julie. For the propaganda, there was his book; for the demonstration, he would put the sacred fund into some industry where the weight of it would give him the casting vote in all questions involving the rights of the workers.

With the rewriting of the book fairly begun, he was already looking about for the practical opportunity when the growing friendship with Edward Raymer promised to offer an opening exactly fulfilling the experimental requirements. Raymer had overenlarged his plant and was needing more capital; and some of Raymer's half-confidences had led him to suspect that the need was, or was likely to become, imperative. Griswold waited patiently; he was still waiting on the Wednesday afternoon when Raymer called him over the telephone and made the appointment for a meeting at the house in Shawnee street.

Their Care and Cultivation

COLORS IN ANNUALS

By L. M. BENNINGTON.

For summer flowering, annuals are very satisfactory, blooming profusely through the entire season, while the cost of a seed packet is but a trifle.

Good taste dictates the system of planting large bunches of single species together rather than the old way of mixing a dozen varieties in as many square feet.

It is the same plan that places a dozen carnations or roses in a vase rather than the heterogeneous collection in the old-fashioned bouquet. Mass your flowers if you would secure the best effect.

The old callopis, "lady's breastpin" they used to call it, is a handsome plant, its long slender stems rendering it extremely useful for cutting, and the shades of gold and brown harmonizing nicely.

A mass of it next to the shrubbery in the background gives a most pleasing effect.

Some handsome forms of single dahlias may be secured by planting a packet of the seeds in pots early in the spring and transplanting the young seedlings to the garden as soon as danger from frost is over.

The colors of some are very fine and to use liking the single flowers the plan is a good one of getting a variety at a small price; but unless started very early these seedlings rarely mature tubers that will keep through the winter, though they commence flowering almost as soon as the plants are started from the tubers.

The chrysanthemum-flowered asters are much more pleasing, both grown in masses and for cutting, than the quilled bouquet sorts. If but two kinds are chosen, let them be lavender and white with rose as a third choice.

When ordering seeds there is a strong temptation to order mixed packets, yet if the very finest specimens are expected, the surer way is to single out one or two of the choicest colors.

These are made up from the best individuals, while the mixed packets are what the name implies, though in many instances highly satisfactory.

With pansies for spring, sweet peas for summer, and asters for autumn, one may be sure of having an abundance of the most beautiful cut-flowers for all occasions.

Water the Gloxinia.

WORK-A-DAY NOTES

By L. M. BENNINGTON.

If the season is a dry one some of the plants in the garden will have to be watered if you want flowers from them. Especially is this true of gloxinia.

Use enough water to penetrate all the soil in which their roots grow, and see that it is kept moist.

Watering today and neglecting for a week to come isn't the proper thing. Save the suds from wash day for this purpose. The soap in the water will benefit the plants.

Be sure to supply substantial supports for your dahlias. If this is not done you will likely find them broken some morning after a sudden wind or a hard rainstorm. The stakes should be at least four feet tall—allow an extra foot and a half for insertion in the ground and they should be at least an inch through, and of good solid wood. Split them a dull green and they will not be unpleasantly obtrusive. Tie the stalks to them with broad strips of cloth instead of strings. The latter will cut into the tender branches when they are whipped by the wind.

DO NOT OMIT THE SHRUBS

By JULIE ADAMS POWELL.

One corner of my garden shaded from the hot sun is devoted to herbs. If you have never had a herb bed this is a good time to plant one. I am going to add several herbs to mine this year and I give the list of those most useful. In some cases it is best to buy the plants, and such I note.

- Three sage plants.
- Three clumps of chives.
- Two lavender plants.
- Six roots of mint.
- One package summer savory.
- One package thyme.
- One package winter savory.
- Two plants of tarragon.
- One package dill for flavoring.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY, IT SICKENS! STOP USING SALIVATING DRUG

Don't Lose a Day's Work! If Your Liver is Sluggish or Bowels Constipated Take "Dodson's Liver Tone."—It's Fine!

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into your bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children! Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

Ready to Risk It.
"Mr. Jones wants a windy-pane twelve inches be fourteen," remarked young Patrick Mulrooney, entering the glazier's shop.
In the shop was a smart young assistant who wanted to have a joke with Pat.
"Haven't any that size!" he replied gravely. "Will one fourteen inches by twelve do?"
Pat looked thoughtful for a minute. Then he replied:
"He's wantin' it at once, and this is the only shop in town. Give me wan o' them. F'rhaps if we put it in sideways no one will notice."

"Isn't that statement correct?" asked the editor.
"Oh, she's visiting us all right enough," admitted Mr. Peck, "and I daresay my wife is enjoying it, but you can leave me out of it. If you put any more sarcastic remarks like that in your paper, I'll stop my subscription."

VICTIM OF CRUEL DECEPTION

Fair Seaside Visitor Satisfied She Had Seen Remarkable "Government Salting Apparatus."

They were passing the holiday at Onset and during the course of the sunny afternoon took a stroll on the beach. At one point they came upon an improvised breakwater, where some resident had filled bags with sand and piled them in breastworks fashion to prevent the sea from encroaching upon his land during the stormy season.

One of the young ladies was curious immediately. She would know what the bags were for.

"Why, it's very simple," explained her companion with due gravity. "The water in Onset bay originally was fresh, a peculiarity of nature which has puzzled scientists. It seemed too bad to deprive the place of seashore advantages so the government took the matter in hand, filled the bags with salt and thereby has imparted the proper flavor to Onset water."

Far from rebuking him for being "fresh," she is now telling her friends of having seen the "government salting apparatus" down there.

Such a Long Time Ago.
He had just reached the philosophical stage when he slipped into a restaurant between bars for a bit to eat. He ordered. Then he sat staring ahead, quietly thoughtful in expression, and waited.

It is admitted he did some waiting, too. What happened to his order couldn't be understood outside the peculiar convolutions of a restaurant kitchen, but he spent half an hour sitting there staring ahead of him.

At last it came. As the waitress put the order before him he started from his deep study, as if he had forgotten he had an order coming. Then, looking up at the fair transporter of edibles, he said:

Taking Papa Along.
The baggage master halted the family party and politely explained that under the new law the value of the contents of each trunk must be given.

After a brief consultation with her daughter, mamma pointed to her own trunk and said: "Please put this one down as containing one thousand dollars' worth of personal belongings. This one," indicating her daughter's trunk, "you may put down for eight hundred."

"How about this little one?" asked the baggage master, resting his heel on its top.

"Oh, that!" replied the lady contemptuously. "Ten or twelve dollars will cover that one."

"I see," returned the official. "Father's going along too."

Cotton in California.
Since cotton was first planted in Imperial valley, California, as an experiment, about eight years ago, the acreage has increased yearly until it is now 65,000, yielding 26,000 bales.

The United States department of agriculture says the valley's production per acre is more than twice that of any other part of the country. In the valley there are nineteen cotton gins, three cottonseed oil mills, and three compresses. Over half the acreage is in the vicinity of Calexico, there being there eight gins, two oil mills, and one compress, all busy day and night during the winter making by-products like cottonseed oil, cottonseed feed and hulls.

Let Us Hope She Got One.
The following, which was overheard quite by accident, clearly goes to show that some people must appreciate that their pet dogs are really human. The incident was in connection with the entering of the little pet dog in the dog show.

"Do you have a ribbon for each dog?" was asked by the lady as she fondled her pet.

"We have ribbons for all the winners," was the reply.

"Well, I don't know. You see, Tootsie here is so sensitive. If I entered her I know it would break her heart if she did not get a ribbon!"—Brockton Enterprise.

Her Worry.
"Darling, will you love me when I'm old?"
"I will if you'll promise to love me if I should grow fat."

Makes Hard Work Harder

A bad back makes a day's work twice as hard. Backache usually comes from weak kidneys, and if headaches, dizziness or urinary disorders are added, don't wait—get help before the kidney disease takes a grip—before dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease sets in. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new life and new strength to thousands of working men and women. Used and recommended the world over.

An Oklahoma Case

W. D. Carter, Correll, Okla., says: "I suffered for years from kidney trouble. My back ached and I was lame and often the attacks were so bad that I couldn't bend over to lace my shoes. Mornings I was as stiff as a board. My kidneys acted queerly. Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to good health and for a year I have been free from kidney complaint."

Paxtine

A Soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed For Douches

In the local treatment of woman's ailments, such as leucorrhoea and inflammation, hot douches of Paxtine are very efficacious. No woman who has ever used medicated douches will fail to appreciate the clean and healthy condition Paxtine produces and the prompt relief from soreness and discomfort which follows its use. This is because Paxtine possesses superior cleansing, disinfecting and healing properties. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Paxtine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been relieved say it is "worth its weight in gold." Meetings at Roswell

Two meetings will be held at Roswell during the week of October 4-9, which will be of interest to Portales people. The Eastern New Mexico Good Road Association will hold a meeting during the week, and the Eastern New Mexico Swine Breeders Association will have a meeting on Thursday, October 7. A good program has been arranged and a banquet will be held in the evening at the new hotel Gilder. Since the association includes the growers from Carlsbad to Portales. It is thought there will be a large attendance. W. F. Holloman, of Artesia, secretary of the association, has set his mark for one hundred men at the banquet and he believes he will get them. This will also be swine breeders day at the State Live Stock and Products exposition which begins on Monday of that week. The New Mexico Bankers Association will hold their annual convention in Roswell during that week, and the cattlemen of the state will have a meeting and banquet there on Wednesday, October 6. The cattlemen will form a state association to handle a number of problems vital to the cattle men.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY by George V. Hobart

John Henry on the Street Car

My friend, Hep Hardy, presented me with a neat little gold hammer day before yesterday. Why, I don't know.

But now that I have it I might as well use it. Every time I hop into one of those roomy, comfortable street cars in a city of the second, third or even fourth class I immediately contrast it with the wood boxes we use in New York, and I find myself growing red in the face and biting my nails. Those Squeezer cars that prowl the streets of New York are surely the breathless limit, aren't they? The Squeezer car is the best genteel imitation of a rough-house that has ever been invented.

They are called Squeezers because the conductor has to let the passengers out with a can opener. Brave and strong men climb into a street car, and they are full of health and life and vigor, but a few blocks of the road they fall out backward and inquire feebly for a sanitarium.

To ride on a Broadway street car, for instance, about eight o'clock of an evening brings out all that is in a man, including a lot of loud words he didn't know he had.

The last census shows us that the street cars in the city of New York have more ways of producing nervous prostration and palpitation of the brain to the square inch than the combined population of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Tinkerdam and Gotterdammerung.

To get in some of the street cars about six o'clock is a problem, and to get out again is an assassination. One evening recently I rode from Forty-second street to Fifty-ninth street without once touching the floor with my feet.

Some of the New York street cars lead a double life, because they are used all winter to act the part of refrigerators. It is a cold day when we cannot find it colder in the street cars. The germs in our street cars are extremely sociable and will follow a stranger all the way home.

Often while riding in the New York street cars I have felt a germ rubbing against my ankle like a kitten. Being a gentleman, at least superficially, I did not reach down and kick it away, because the law says we must not be disrespectful to dumb brutes.

Many of these street cars are built on the same general plan as a can of condensed milk. When you get out you cannot get in, and when you get in you cannot get out, because you hate to disturb the strange gentleman that is using your knee to lean over.

Between the seats there is a space of two feet, but in that space you will always find four feet, and their owners, unless one of them happens to have a wooden leg.

Under ordinary circumstances four into two won't go, but the Squeezer cars defy the laws of gravitation. A Squeezer conductor can put twenty-six into nine, and still have four to carry.

For a man with a small dining room the Squeezer car has its advantage, but when a stout man rides in them he finds himself supporting a lot of strangers he never met before.

One morning I jumped on one of those Squeezers feeling just like a two year old, full of health and happiness. During the first seven blocks three men, fresh from a distillery, grew up in front of me and removed the scenery.

One of them had to get out in a hurry, so he kicked me on the shins to show how sorry he was to leave me.

One of the other two must have been in the distillery a long time, because pretty soon he neglected to use his memory and sat down in my lap.

When I remonstrated with him, he replied that this is a free country, and if he wished to sit down I had no business to stop him.

Then his friend pulled us apart, and I resumed the use of my lap. During the next twenty blocks I had one of the worst daylight nightmares I ever rode behind.

The party who had been studying the exhibits of the distillery became obsessed with the idea that my foot was the loud pedal on a piano and he started to play the "Blue Danube Waltzes."

That man was such a hard drinker that he gave me the gout just from standing on my feet.

Then I jumped off and swore off and swore at and walked home.

If the man who invented the idea of standing up between seats in a Squeezer is alive he should have a monument.

My idea would be to catch him alive and place a monument on him, and have the conductor come around every ten minutes for his fare.

I've been up and down and over and across in the surface cars and my experience is ornamented by ripped trousers and discolored shins, but my intellect blows out a fuse every time I try to dope out the real way to be an End-Seat Hog.

Last Monday I jumped at an early-bird open-face car and it seemed that all the world was filled with joy and good wishes.

I was smoking one of those Bad Boy cigars. I call it a Bad Boy cigar because as soon as it goes out it gets a awful noisy.

The car was empty with the exception of a couple of benches.

Two blocks farther on the car stopped and a stout lady looked over the situation.

I think she must have been color blind, because she didn't see the empty seats and decided to cast her lot with me.

It was a terrific moment.

"John," I said to myself, "don't be a Hog—move over!"

And virtue triumphed.

I moved over, and the stout lady settled squashfully into the end seat.

Her displacement was about fifteen cents' worth of bench.

After we had gone about ten blocks more every seat in the car in front and behind us was crowded, but nobody could get in our section because the fat lady held them at bay like Horatius held the bridge in the brave days of old.

People would rush up to the car when it stopped, balance carelessly fore and aft until their eyes rested on the vacant seats in our direction, and then they would see the stout lady sitting there, as gracefully as a concrete Sphinx.

The people would look at the stout lady with no hope in their eyes, and then, with a sigh, they would retire and wait for the next car.

No one was brave enough to climb the mountain which grew up between him and the promised land.

After a while I began to get a tooth-ache in my conscience.

"John," I said to myself in a hoarse whisper, "perhaps after all you were twenty minutes, I began to discuss myself to myself.

"John," I whispered, "do you really think that the general public appreciates your effort to keep the Harbor open?"

And then myself replied to myself with a sigh of exhaustion, "I don't think!"

"John," I said to myself, "no matter what your motives may be the other fellow will always believe you are trying to get the best of it. If you move over and give the end seat to another gentleman, he will consider it only as his right. If you don't move over he will think you are a Hog for keeping that which is as much yours as it is his."

I began to grow confidential with myself.

"(Civilization is a fine idea, but Human Nature can give it cards and spades and then beat it out!" I told myself. "The Human Hog was invented long before the open-face street car began to stop for him, and there isn't anybody living who should stop to throw stones at him, because selfishness is like the measles—it breaks out in unexpected places. All of us may not be Hogs, but there is a moment in the life of every man when he gets near enough to it to be called a Ham Sandwich."

Just then the Disinfect brothers, Microbeini and Germicide, walked

"Have the Conductor Come Around Every Ten Minutes for His Fare."

over me and I had a short but exciting visit to the slums.

Since that eventful day I have moved over thirty-six times, and out of the thirty-six people I gave the end seat to all but three of them belonged to the Mucilage family, and stayed there.

Therefore I made myself a severe promise not to worry any more about my Hog qualifications when movable or immovable on an open-face car.

I will do as my conscience dictates, and walk downtown as much as possible.

And, speaking of street cars, I was in one of those cities recently where some of the cars stop on the near side of some of the streets and some stop on the far side of some of the streets.

Honestly, they had me in the air.

I left the hotel to attend to some business downtown and went over to the near side of the street to wait for a car.

When the car came along I held my thumb up in the atmosphere warningly, but the motorman kept on to the far side and stopped.

By the time I ran over to the far side he was gone again, and another car had stopped at the near side.

When I rushed back to the near side the car passed me going to the far side, and now the near side looked so much like the far side that I went back to the other side, which should have been the near side, but how could it be the near side when the car was on the far side, and I could not get near the side in time to catch the car before it was far away on the far side?

Just as I rushed back again to the far side the near side became the nearer side to catch the car, and when I rushed over again from the far side to the near side the nearer I got to the near side the clearer I could see that while the far side was far away it was nearer than the near side, which was always on the far side when I hoped to take a car on the near side.

Then I began to grit my teeth and made up my mind to anticipate the action of the next car by standing half way between the near side and the far side, so that I could run to either side the emergency called for.

I was standing there about a minute, much pleased with the idea, because the near side was about as far away as the far side, when just then an automobile sneaked up behind me and one of the forward turrets struck me on my personal far side and hoisted me over to the near side just as a car left for the far side.

I reached out my hand to grasp the far side step, but I missed it and caught the near side, and by this time the car was on the far side and the motorman grabbed the near side of the electric controller and pushed it over to the far side, whereupon the car started for El Paso, Tex., at a speed of about 3,000 miles a minute, and there I was with the near side of four fingers holding on to the far side of the step and the rest of my body sticking straight out in space like a pair of trousers on a clothesline in a gale of wind.

Then suddenly the near side of my fingers refused to hold on to the far side of the step, and with the near side of my face I struck the far side of the tracks, and the near side of my brain saw every individual star on the far side of the Universe.

Then I went back to the hotel and crawled into the far side of the bed while friend wife sent for a near-side doctor who lived on the far side of the block.

was the loud pedal on a piano and he started to play the "Blue Danube Waltzes."

That man was such a hard drinker that he gave me the gout just from standing on my feet.

Then I jumped off and swore off and swore at and walked home.

If the man who invented the idea of standing up between seats in a Squeezer is alive he should have a monument.

My idea would be to catch him alive and place a monument on him, and have the conductor come around every ten minutes for his fare.

I've been up and down and over and across in the surface cars and my experience is ornamented by ripped trousers and discolored shins, but my intellect blows out a fuse every time I try to dope out the real way to be an End-Seat Hog.

Last Monday I jumped at an early-bird open-face car and it seemed that all the world was filled with joy and good wishes.

I was smoking one of those Bad Boy cigars. I call it a Bad Boy cigar because as soon as it goes out it gets a awful noisy.

The car was empty with the exception of a couple of benches.

Two blocks farther on the car stopped and a stout lady looked over the situation.

I think she must have been color blind, because she didn't see the empty seats and decided to cast her lot with me.

It was a terrific moment.

"John," I said to myself, "don't be a Hog—move over!"

And virtue triumphed.

I moved over, and the stout lady settled squashfully into the end seat.

Her displacement was about fifteen cents' worth of bench.

After we had gone about ten blocks more every seat in the car in front and behind us was crowded, but nobody could get in our section because the fat lady held them at bay like Horatius held the bridge in the brave days of old.

People would rush up to the car when it stopped, balance carelessly fore and aft until their eyes rested on the vacant seats in our direction, and then they would see the stout lady sitting there, as gracefully as a concrete Sphinx.

The people would look at the stout lady with no hope in their eyes, and then, with a sigh, they would retire and wait for the next car.

No one was brave enough to climb the mountain which grew up between him and the promised land.

After a while I began to get a tooth-ache in my conscience.

"John," I said to myself in a hoarse whisper, "perhaps after all you were twenty minutes, I began to discuss myself to myself.

"John," I whispered, "do you really think that the general public appreciates your effort to keep the Harbor open?"

And then myself replied to myself with a sigh of exhaustion, "I don't think!"

"John," I said to myself, "no matter what your motives may be the other fellow will always believe you are trying to get the best of it. If you move over and give the end seat to another gentleman, he will consider it only as his right. If you don't move over he will think you are a Hog for keeping that which is as much yours as it is his."

I began to grow confidential with myself.

"(Civilization is a fine idea, but Human Nature can give it cards and spades and then beat it out!" I told myself. "The Human Hog was invented long before the open-face street car began to stop for him, and there isn't anybody living who should stop to throw stones at him, because selfishness is like the measles—it breaks out in unexpected places. All of us may not be Hogs, but there is a moment in the life of every man when he gets near enough to it to be called a Ham Sandwich."

Just then the Disinfect brothers, Microbeini and Germicide, walked over me and I had a short but exciting visit to the slums.

Since that eventful day I have moved over thirty-six times, and out of the thirty-six people I gave the end seat to all but three of them belonged to the Mucilage family, and stayed there.

Therefore I made myself a severe promise not to worry any more about my Hog qualifications when movable or immovable on an open-face car.

I will do as my conscience dictates, and walk downtown as much as possible.

And, speaking of street cars, I was in one of those cities recently where some of the cars stop on the near side of some of the streets and some stop on the far side of some of the streets.

Honestly, they had me in the air.

I left the hotel to attend to some business downtown and went over to the near side of the street to wait for a car.

When the car came along I held my thumb up in the atmosphere warningly, but the motorman kept on to the far side and stopped.

By the time I ran over to the far side he was gone again, and another car had stopped at the near side.

When I rushed back to the near side the car passed me going to the far side, and now the near side looked so much like the far side that I went back to the

SOME HINTS FOR BUILDERS

Great Care Should Be Taken in Selection of the Most Substantial Roofing Material.

If you were without preparation or plan, rudely placed in a wilderness, your first thought would be of food supply and your next of shelter, for these are the two most vital necessities of mankind. It is therefore natural that the best thought, and study are put upon these two essentials.

More forward steps have been taken in the building industry in the past fifteen years, as regards comfort, service and architectural beauty than in the fifty years previous.

Only in recent years has the handling of cement in building work been understood properly, and progress is still constantly being made with it. Modern hotels and office buildings are being equipped with sheet metal moldings and steel veneered doors. Nearly every important change in building construction is away from the fire hazard of wood.

One of the most significant developments of recent years is the crushed slate surfaced asphalt shingle which is, on new construction and old, rapidly supplanting the wooden article. There are many reasons for this. The slate surfaced shingles add beauty to any building—in fact, there is really no comparison from an architectural standpoint. Crushed slate of pleasing tints of red or green, is employed as a surfacing. The shingles are uniformly eight inches wide and are exposed four inches to the weather. No painting is necessary as the red or green crushed slate is natural and therefore cannot fade.

The purchaser, however, should guard himself against buying a slate surfaced shingle that is not guaranteed by a reliable and responsible manufacturer. There are so many kinds of roofing and shingles on the market today each claiming to be the best that it becomes necessary for the buyer to get some satisfactory assurance that the roofing or shingles are represented honestly.

What does it avail a woman to have troubles if she can't tell them?

Be Warned in Time

Do you have backache? Are you tired and worn out? Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed? Are the kidney secretions irregular? Highly colored; contain sediment? Likely your kidneys are at fault. Weak kidneys give warning of distress. Heed the warning; don't delay—Use a tested kidney remedy. None so well-recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. None so universally successful.

An Oklahoma Case

Mrs. T. Thompson, 406 W. Washington Ave., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "My kidneys were a badly congested after I caught cold and I suffered in ten days from pains through my back. I felt stiff and lame and could hardly do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills strengthened my kidneys and relieved the terrible pains in my back. I have felt a great deal better in every way since."

Partine

A Soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed For Douches

In the local treatment of woman's ill, such as leucorrhoea and inflammation, hot douches of Partine are very efficacious. No woman who has ever used medicated douches will fail to appreciate the clean and healthy condition Partine produces and the prompt relief from soreness and discomfort which follows its use. This is because Partine possesses superior cleansing, disinfecting and healing properties.

For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Partine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been relieved say it is "worth its weight in gold." At drug stores, 50c. large box or by mail. Sample free. The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

KEEPING BABY WELL

MATTERS OF GREATEST INTEREST TO EVERY MOTHER.

Care of Infant in City Much Greater Than in Smaller Places—Welfare Societies Have Done Excellent Work.

(Prepared by the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor.)

There is no doubt that the problems which arise in taking care of a baby in summer are more difficult for the city mother than for the one who lives in a village or in the country. Overcrowded houses, lack of fresh air, of sunshine, and of open spaces for play and out-of-door life make very hard conditions under which to rear healthy children.

During the summer months in most of the larger cities there is an enormous increase in the number of sick babies, many of whom fail to survive this period. These well-known facts have led to the establishment all over the country of what are known as infant welfare and milk stations. These stations are rooms in charge of trained nurses and physicians, to which any mother who desires may bring her baby for help and advice in his care.

The object of these welfare stations is to keep the babies well, and to prevent illness by watching the babies closely and by teaching the mothers how to take care of them. If a baby is found to be sick the mother is referred to her own physician if she has one. If not, she is usually sent to a dispensary. The principal factor in keeping the baby well is to have him properly fed. Accordingly the physician who cares for the baby should direct this very carefully. If the mother has no physician, the station doctor will examine the baby and order a diet for him. The nurse will be glad to assist the mother in following out his directions, and will visit her in her home for this purpose.

These stations are sometimes maintained by the city and sometimes by a private society. The mother can find out the location of the station nearest her home from the papers, or by inquiring of the health officer.

The baby is weighed at each visit, and examined to see if he needs any special care. If so, the doctor explains this to the mother. The baby should be brought back to the station at regular intervals in order that the doctor and nurse can watch him. In this way much of the illness from which babies suffer can be prevented and mothers and babies spared a great deal of suffering.

The mother who is expecting the birth of a baby should go to the station about once a month during her pregnancy for advice about herself. The doctor and nurse will tell her what food is best for her to eat, how to take care of the breasts and nipples, and help her to prepare for the baby's coming in the best way.

If she is suffering from any ailment, such as vomiting, varicose veins, headache or swollen feet, she may learn what to do for these troubles, and if she desires to go to a hospital for the birth the station doctor will probably be able to arrange the matter for her.

After the baby is born and the mother is up again, she may, if she chooses, send word to the station nurse, who will come to see her, now and then, until the mother is able to take the baby to the station again. Mothers who are ill or worn out with the burdens of home, may find in a visit with the baby to such a station unexpected help in their problems. Some effort is made to teach mothers the rudiments of domestic science in the home, when this is needed.

Mothers especially who go out to work by the day, should try to send the baby to the station by a caretaker, for such babies need the welfare station's help even more than others. If some member of the family is sick other than the baby and the baby is registered at the station, the nurses and doctors there will usually be able to advise her where and how to seek assistance. These infant welfare stations are intended for the use of all mothers in the neighborhood who need help in the care of their babies, and no one needing it, should fail to avail herself of this opportunity.

Oil Cloth Table Mats.

Oil cloth table mats for the children will save many soiled table cloths. They can be made by taking either a square or an oblong of white linen, drawing threads and hemstitching all around. Sew on a back, making the finished article look very much like a pillow cover with one end open for the pillow. Into this slip a piece of oil cloth the size of the mat, and you will have a useful and attractive means of keeping the table neat. The child's initial embroidered in the center would add much to the beauty of the article.

Dried Bread Crumbs.

Dried bread crumbs absorb more liquid and, therefore, are better for a moist dish, but crumbs grated or crumbled from a fresh loaf take a lighter, more delicate color, and are better, therefore, for a very dainty dish.

Important Alaskan Product.

The potato is Alaska's most important crop, and, according to a commerce report, it is a most profitable one. Potatoes have been grown in commercial quantities at the Fairbanks station for several years. The object of growing them there was to demonstrate that good potatoes could be grown in the interior, and the report says that the farmers in the vicinity have taken the hint. Nearly all of them now devote considerable acreage to this vegetable. One farmer estimated his crop as high as fifty tons, which, at 4 cents a pound, or $80 a ton, the lowest price at which potatoes have been sold in Alaska up to the present time, would bring him $4,000. Hog raising has also been started at Fairbanks, the hogs being fed on the unmerchantable potatoes.

BOY HAD USED HIS BRAINS

Certainly Window Was Broken, But Also It Had Been Repaired, and What Then?

An iron hoop bounded through the area railings of a suburban house and played havoc with the kitchen window. The woman waited, anger in her eyes, for the appearance of the hoop's owner. Presently he came.

"Please, I've broken your window," he said, "and here's father to mend it."

And sure enough, he was followed by a stolid-looking workman, who at once started to work, while the small boy took his hoop and ran off.

"That'll be four bits, ma'am," announced the glazier when the window was whole once more.

"Four bits!" gasped the woman. "But your little boy broke it—the little fellow with the hoop, you know. You're his father, aren't you?"

The stolid man shook his head.

"Don't know him from Adam," he said. "He came around to my place and told me his mother wanted her window fixed. You're his mother, aren't you?"

And the woman shook her head also.

Did He Put His Foot in It?

An English soldier, a member of the Second South Staffordshire regiment, says that one bitterly cold night in early spring he and his mates came out of the trenches. They were billeted in a barn, where they were packed in very close.

"Though numb with cold, we were soon asleep," said the soldier, in telling the incident. "I was awakened in the night by one of my chaps trying to put his boots on. After he had been trying for a minute or two I heard the fellow next to him say: " 'What the — are you doin'?' " 'Puttin' my boots on,' was the reply.

Naturally Indignant.

Lige, an old darkey, was suing his wife for divorce, and stated in his allegations that his wife had run off with another negro and that she refused to return and live with him.

A party meeting up with Lige remarked:

"Lige, I understand that you are suing your wife for divorce?"

"Ya-as sir, boss; I done gone and sued her."

"Well, Lige, upon what grounds are you bringing your suit?"

"Boss, it's jist like dis: She bin run off wid 'nudder nigger 'bout fo' years and I jist made up my mind to quit her."

Clear Title.

Uncle Mose aspired to the elective office of justice of the peace in the "black bottom" part of town. One bar there was to his preference. He could neither read nor write. His master advised him to go to the commissioner of elections and ask whether he was eligible. Mose went and returned.

"What did he tell you, Mose?" inquired the master.

"It's all right, suh," answered Mose; "dat gentlemun suttinly was kind, yas, suh. He tole me Ah was illegible fo' date office."

Gave Wifey Away.

"My house is so well organized," said Mrs. De Gaw, "that I don't go into my kitchen once a week."
"That's the pleasant way she puts it," her husband explained. "As a matter of fact, she's afraid of her cook."

"Maybe not. But sometimes it gets a trifle bilious."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Why He Missed Her.
"So you're little Willie Woodby?" said the new minister after Sunday school. "I called to see your mother yesterday, but unfortunately she was not at home."
"Oh, yes, she was," replied the boy, "but I guess she took you for the installment man. You look somethin' like him."

Cautious.
"Do you know how to swim?" asked Maude.
"Certainly not," replied Maymie.
"And, what's more, I don't propose to learn and lose my chance of being the heroine of a romantic rescue."

One little dimple has caused many a fall.

Many a patent-leather shoe hides an aching corn.

Considerate.
"They say Mrs. Brown hasn't paid her servants in three months."
"Why does she keep so many of them, then?"
"She says she feels it her duty to give employment to as many as possible in these hard times."

Unpreparedness.
"Was that speech you delivered extemporaneous?"
"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "I had to read it from notes. I didn't have time to commit an extemporaneous speech to memory."

Its Definition.
"What's this call of the wild they talk so much about?"
"The joy riders' honk."

A divorce judge, like a poor marksman, makes a good many misses.

The General Says:

Know-why and know-how are essential to any success. Every one of us has to acknowledge that the same sort of military preparedness that fits a nation for its defense is the most effective principle in making an industry of any kind serviceable and profitable both to manufacturer and consumer.

This Great Roofing Organization Is Trained Like an Army

Three enormous mills—offered and manned by the best trained force ever enlisted in an industrial army—three huge factories that are run like clockwork.

Military exactness in the securing and selection of raw material, and in every step from then on until the finished product is distributed and sold.

Constant readiness—being prepared every minute for the work to be done the next—Right there you have your finger on the great, essential reasons for the unflinching satisfaction every user finds in

Certain-teed

ROOFING

This roofing certainly has no superior. It is the best roofing that can possibly be made and it is manufactured in and guaranteed by the largest Roofing and Building Paper Mills in the World. 1-ply is guaranteed 5 years; 2-ply, 10 years, and 3-ply, 15 years, and this guarantee means the minimum life of the roofing. Thousands of Certain-teed Roofs all over the country are outliving the period of the guarantee.

When the General first entered the field the cost of roofing was two or three times more than it is today and the quality was not as high as Certain-teed is today. By reason of his enormous output the General has not only been able to bring down the cost and selling price of roofing, but he has also been able to raise the quality to its maximum. Today every fifth roll of roofing sold bears the Certain-teed label.

Certain-teed roofing, shingles, wall boards, felts, building papers, etc., bearing the General's name, are sold by your local lumber or hardware dealer at very reasonable prices. Don't send your money away for these goods. Patronize your home dealer.

Dr. J. L. Reid took some nice prizes at the Panhandle fair held at Amarillo this week. He won first prize on black Minorca cock, second on the hen and third on Rhode Island Red cock. In capturing these prizes it is evidence enough that Mr. Reid has the champion birds of the plains.

Forrest Kelly, of Omaha, Nebraska, arrived this week and accepted a position with the Kohl Garage. Mr. Kelly is an expert auto and gas engine repair man and this concern feels lucky in getting such a competent workman, and any work entrusted to his care will be backed up by the Kohl Garage.

See this remarkable play "The Marble Heart" An unusual 4 reel Romantic Imp Drama. Years ago the classiest melodrama on the speaking stage was played by the eminent Shakespearian Robert Mantellin every hamlet, town, village and city in the United States. The title was "The Marble Heart." In a remarkable multiple reel production, you can see this wonderful play produced in spectacular seings not possible on the musical stage. You all love King Baggott. Rarely has this wonderful actor done more notable work than in this play. See it by all means, at the Cosy Theater Saturday night, Sep. 25.
