CHAPTER VI.

But Mark refused Colonel Howard's invitation to become his guest, and wolded the house in Massachusetts circle as much as he could with decency. He was courageous enough to analyze his reasons and he did not conceal the result from himself.

He wanted Eleanor with all the pentup longing of the denied years in the desert. His love was the strongest passion that he had ever felt, and yet, strangely for a man of his years, it had in it much more of the paternal element than of the lover. All his life he had been almost kinless, his only sister was dead, he wanted Eleanor's presence, Eleanor with him, to see her every day, whether as wife or daughter. Yet he was brave enough to acknowledge that this love, selfless in a measure, threatened to become a consuming passion if he did not hold himself rigidly in check.

He, the middle-aged captain, and Eleanor, with her station, her proshe meant to stay there. pects and her beauty-it was an impossible dream, or one that would ruin the girl's life if, in some wild moment, she made it truth.

He had his reward in Eleanor's increasing restraint, her quite visible indignation. They had fallen spart again, after that single meeting. It was a poor reward, but the sort that Mark had received all his life from fortune.

But there were lonely nights when life seemed unbearable, and he had to exert all his will power to keep himself in check. Mark had rented a little furnished apartment in the Northwest section, off Pennsylvania avenue, and he had found the desert more com-

One night he felt at the end of his ers. That was after a grilling day in the war office, one of those days that sometimes come in Washington toward the middle of September, when everything is as sticky as the asphalt sidewalks.

It had been a day of evil portent beddes. Colonel Howard, who had seemed of late to reflect Eleanor's coolness in some measure, had greeted him with a wry face when he came in.

"The devil's to pay, Mark," he said, "Draw up your chair. There's a leakage in the department."

"What?" cried Mark.

"Things are getting known-for instance, our dealings with the shipping people. They've found the exact number of ships we've requisitioned. You know whom I mean by 'they.'

Mark nodded. The cosmopolitan influences in Washington, whose ramifications extended to the ends of the earth, er. at least, across the Atlantic, were busy in every drawing room extracting news, the tiniest and least reliable of which was not despised, since many such single items make up a coherent story.

"The Brigadier's wild about it," continued the Colonel, pulling at his mustache. "And it seems impossible to detect how the leakage occurred. It must have been through the shipping companies, of course; yet they couldn't have pieced the thing together without concerted action, which is out of the question. Let's go through the papers."

They opened the safe and went through them one by one, but nothing was missing.

"Damn it !" growled Colonel Howard. "Twe been through this before, Mark -you know that. In that case there was a traitor at work. We found him. In this case there can be none, at least, in the war department. And I've told the Brigadie: I'll answer with my place for discovering where the leak lies."

He closed the safe and strode off into Kellerman's room, to return with Kellerman, looking angrier than be-

"What are we going to do, Kellerman?" he asked.

Kellerman pursed out his lips. "Well, Colonel, you know as much about it as any of us," he answered. "There's always been two of us present night and morning when the papers were transferred. I'll vouch for you, Wallace will, I presume, vouch for me, and you, I presume, will vouch for Wallace."

The sinister look on his face affected Mark more disagreeably than ever. Mark felt nettled, though the words had been fair. "If there's been a leak," he said "tt seems to me it's up to the Brigadier to discover it. It's outside; it isn't our business to locate it. We're doing our part-what more can we do?"

"Come along and tell the Brigadier that," suggested Howard.

Mark, nothing loath, accompanied him to the General's room. But the Brigadier was more furious than Howprought back to Mark's mind the recollection of the man whom he had seen outside the Misses Harpers' school.

And he began to follow him. It was a role that he had never played before, but justified, in his mind, by the necessity of discovering the fellow's identity. Without any very clear intention in his mind how he was to accomplish this, Mark made his way after the solitary figure, keeping well behind it. It soon became clear that the man, although he looked like a tramp, had a definite objective. Mark pursued him toward Pennsylvania avenue, until he discovered that he was nearing the least desirable part of Washington, whose location, so near the residence of the chief executive, has always been the wonder and scandal of visitors. He was in one of those streets that start bravely in the city and debouch into the low-lying land in that intermediate and hardly reclaimed region bordering the Potomac. The houses here were old, many appearing vacant and tumble-down, and for the most part

He was talking to the woman who had opened the door. She looked about five and thirty years of age, and her face, distinctly visible against the light in the hall, was well-bred, if not attractive. She seemed one of those cosmopolitans who frequent the capital: Mark was still uncertain whether her house was one of those residences that are still occupied in this district by the original owners, or whether she was the mistress of one of those gambling establishments that flourish of necessity along the avenues of the earlier alphabet.

the man's confidence if he was to learn the mystery. And he was satisfied that his interest in Eleanor's movement boded no harm to her.

In the morning, Hartley was gone, as he expected. But he had taken neither the cups nor the picture.

Mark saluted stiffly and went away. He sat down at his desk, fuming. Of. course Kellerman had referred to Eleanor: and it suddenly occurred to Mark that Kellerman might have made a good deal of headway during his absence.

RAPIDLY SPREADING

According to late reports issued by state and federal health authorities the Spanish Influenza epidemic is rapidly spreading to all parts of the country, and it now seems that practically every state in the Union will be seriously affected before it runs its course.

It has not only become a great and terrifying menace to the public health, but unless checked, it is apt to seriously affect the progress of war work in all its various departments. Already the shipping board has announced that ten per cent of its workers. had been affected.

The disease has made its greatest progress in the East where it has claimed its victims by the thousands. Reports from other sections, however, are equally alarming; and both eivil and military authorities have warned the public to take every precaution to prevent its further spread. In many cities schools, churches and theatres have been closed and public gatherings of all kinds forbidden.

Medical authorities agree that people who are weak and rundown are the earliest victims of the influenza epidemic. If you find yourself tired, weak and losing flesh, or if you are in a generally rundown condition, or if you catch cold easily this warning should be heeded promptly. Germany, Admittedly Defeated, Is Now Squirming to Prevent Utter Disaster.

GREAT CIVIL UPHEAVAL ON

Austria and Turkey Ready to Quit-Huns, Forced by Allies, Begin General Retreat From Belgium-Still Resisting Fiercely in Champagne.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD. Squirming, dodging, wailing, the German imperial government seemed ast week to be on its last leg. Thick and fast came the rumors of unconditional surrender and of the abdication of the kaiser, and though these were unconfirmed or contradicted as fast as they came out, enough av thentic news seeped through the vell of secrecy to show that things were in a desperate state in Germany. Its peace trap was sprung harmlessly by President Wilson when, in reply to what at first glance looked like full acceptance of his terms, he told the cepitulation would be considered and more than the great military reverses, from the Belgian batteries. would bring on a debacle for Germany.

With this sprit prevailing among the now victorious allies, could no longer be carried out with without humiliation?

The abdication of the kaiser, which after all would be but incidental, was considered likely, and it was reported and La Fere, the French maintained that he intended to step down in favor of Prince William Frederick, oldest son of the crown prince, who is only | that was continuous, though not rapid twelve years old.

President Wilson delayed his reply to the peace proposals of Austria-Hungary and Turkey, probably in order that the truth about their hopeless situation might soak into their minds, and reports showed they were realizing the facts and beginning to act accordingly. The break-up of the dual kingdom became more imminent, the Hungarians openly declaring their intention to separate from Austria, the Poles Croats and Bohemians holdly coming out for independence. It was taken for granted that Turkey, under the leadership of Izzet Pasha, the new grand vizier, was about ready to make a separate peace. In the effort to hold her in line, the German Black sea fleet was sent to Constantinople and the government was warned that the first step toward breaking away from the alliance with Germany would be the signal for a bombardment of the city. Despite the presence of the warships, 20 in number, a revolution broke out in Constantinople against the Young Turks, whose power had not been wholly broken by the change in cabinot.

Roumania, which has been frankly looking for a chance to get into the war again, may have the opportunity very soon. Already the inhabitants of the northern part of the country, in the province of Moldavia, have risen in armed revolt against the Austro-German forces of occupation.

On the western battle front the great event of the week was the smashing drive of the allies in Flangian seaports held by the Huns were practically cut off and the Germans were forced back rapidly almost to the government flatly that only absolute Dutch frontier. The allies captured vast stores and many heavy guns in Belgium.

Having forced the Huns out of Laon s steady pressure on both sides of the waning salient there, making progress because of the increased resistance of the enemy. As the Hunding line of refuge was approached, in the region of Rethel, an important German railway supply station on the Aisne, it became apparent that the Huns intended to try to hold that line for a time. Bolshevik forces in eastern Russia have been greatly strengthened of late and are reported to be pressing back the Czecho-Slovak troops there. The latter have appealed for help from the allies, and it may be that troops from the Siberian expedition have been sent to their relief. Meantime the allied forces in north Russia, including a considerable American contingent, are fighting their way along both banks of the Dvina in the direction of Welsk. northeast of Vologda. Their progress has been difficult, for the bolsheviki have been making heavy attacks and keeping the expedition under almost constant bombardment. On the river the enemy has gunboats, protected by nine fields and small islands, and the shells from these do considerable damage. The allies, however are getting along fairly well there and are confident and cheerful.

He also told of the splendid work of the American aviators and of the success and popularity of the American De Haviland planes and the Liberty motors. Another cheerful piece of news concerning aeronautics was disclosed by Maj. A. Cushman Rice, this being that the allies had worked out a practically perfected wireless telephone device which will enable the allied airmen to fly over the German lines and territory in immense fleets, all the planes directed by the voice of the commander. SCOUTS DOING A GREAT WORK.

The Boy Scouts of America have done big work this year-greater, more valuable work was never done.

Leaders and troops, old and young, went into America's fight for liberty with vim, stuck to it with vigor and harvested a crop of funds and food that meant victory.

Millions of dollars were secured for clothing, shelter and instruments of soldiers to stop the barbarian horde final scoutmasters' reports. attacking the civilization secured by man's struggle for 2,000 years,

SCOUTS WEAR HAT BADGE.

All genuine boy scouts should wear the badge on the hat

One important reason for this is the America alone among boy organizations to wear a uniform similar to sented, examined and approved, that of the United States army, so it and the clerk authorized to draw is only fair to the authorities that the scouts should wear the distinguishing mark of their organization on the hat, in order that they may not be confused

This is a most gratifying showing because while the amount in money is not so large as it was in the second campaign, the number of subscriptions secured is largely in excess of those secured for the second campaign. This spells real service of the highest degree because in the third campaign "gleaners after the reapers," all blanket corporation subscriptions were eliminated and the boys confined themselves to soliciting individuals, and the number of $50 and $100 bonds sold is a wonderful achievement.

John Gilbert Jones, an alleged twotime navy deserter, was captured by members of a boy scout troop in Ramapo mountains, near Wyckoff, N. J., and started under guard for Newport News Va.

For two months federal authorities had searched for Jones, but clever work on the part of the boy scouts of Wyckoff resulted in his apprehension. In an abandoned mountain schoolhouse the scouts came across a store of provisions and some navy clothing. When Jones returned, 11 scouts closed in on him at a prearranged sig-24x36 carbon paper for fancy nal. The deserter offered no resistance.

FORTY YEARS A DRUGGIST

Read this from Mr. L. A. Richardson

"I have been engaged in the retail drug business here for the past forty years. During this time I have seen many patent medicines come into use, flourish for one or two years and then gradually disappear. There are very few of these remedies that possess enough real merit to insure them long life. Peruna has always been a good seller with us, with a marked increase from year to year. The change in the formula some years increase from year to year. The change in the formula some years ago, by the addition of the slightly laxative properties, has made it reliable remedy for constipation and for colds. If taken hously in tablespoonful doses by adults it will break up the worst cold in two or three days' time. I take pleasure in urging my brother druggists to recommend it for these two ailments."

SCOUT WORK NOT PARADING

It isn't strange with the whole world at war and millions of men training at gun-drills that some boys will get the gun-drill fever. No doubt they think they can help their country in that way. Let's see about that, says Work on new barracks at the State a scout official in answering a scout who wants to drill with guns.

Uncle Sam has asked the boy scouts to serve in the first, the second and the third Liberty loan campaigns; he has enlisted them as his dispatch bearers in the drive against Hun propaganda in America; he has given them a big and important job in boosting the sale of Thrift and War Savings stamps; but as far as I have heard he hasn't asked a single boy scout to put a gun to his shoulder and drill.

Why hasn't Uncle Sam given guns tended His services to worship time in Tucumcari in a week have reto his boys? The boy scout movement is now. al ways has been and always will be a nonmilitaristic organization, and gun drills do not have a place in its program of activities. The best military experts in the country do not believe in gun drills for boys of scout age. And that is only one of the many reasons why military gun drill and "tin soldiering" activities are not made a part of scotting. There's plenty of other more necessary things to do for 'teen-age boys. When you are older Uncle Sam will give you the real thing in drill, under competent officers, and you will be taught the use of the rifle as a technical weapon the purpose of which is to kill. For the present, in preparation, the government wants the greatest country under the za have made their appearance in the boys to do other and more helpful and

ISAAC'S MARRIAGE TO REBECCA.

LESSON TEXT-Genesis 24. GOLDEN TEXT-Let not mercy and favor and good understanding in the sight of God and man.—Proverbs 2.3-4. DEVOTIONAL READING—Ephesiana "War Department regulations 5:2-33; I Thessalonians 4:13-18.

I. Abraham's Solicitude for a Wife

He knew that Isaac's success in life would much depend upon what kind of a wife he should have. Man's welfare None of these rules apply to depends upon his wife. For Isaac to have an idolatrous, Canaanitish wife would be fatal to his posterity, would subvert the plan of God as expressed in his covenant with Abraham. It sense an heir to the land through marriage, and would have tended to divert his mind from the heirship through the covenant promise.

1. The Servant's Oath (vv. 2-4). Abraham committed to his trusted servant the matter of securing a wife for Isaac; therefore, he made him swear that he would go to Abraham's ant more competent to select a wife than Isaac was to select one for him-

2. The Extent of the Servant's Reaponaibility (vv. 5, 8). Before the servant would take the oath he must have clearly defined the extent of his responsibility. If the woman would refuse be invitation, the servant would February 8, 1910, has as its honorary ters obligation ends when he has earnestly and intelligently made known

> 3. The Servant's Helper (v. 8), Abraham assured him that God would send his angel to make the mission successful. The servant found this to make the message of the minister successful.

II. The Servant's Obedience (*v.

1. He Took Ten Camels (v. 10). These were to carry presents to the bride, and to conduct her and her companions back to his master.

2. His Prayer for Guidance (vv. 12-14). He asked that the Lord would guide him to the woman whom he had chosen for Isaac. Earnest prayer for guldance should be made in the selection of a wife.

3. His Prayer Answered (vv. 15-27). Before he had done praying, the answer was realized to be in the process of fulfillment. The answer was according to the request, even in the matter of fulfillment. God does definitely answer prayer.

4. The Servant's Message (vv. 33-49). The Lord had prospered the old servant's way. He now was face to face with Rebecca. Supper was ready, but the delivery of his message was more important to him than eating when he was hungry. He said, "I will not eat till I have said my errand." much interested in delivering the good news in Christ. (1) His master was rich (v. 35). God the Heavenly Father is rich. The silver and gold and the cattle upon a thousand hills are all his. (2) All his riches have been given to his son (v. 36). All the riches of heaven, God the Father has given to Jesus Christ, his son. (3) Opportunity was given Rebecca to become the wife of saac (v. 49). He not only gave the opportunity, but he urged her to accept the invitation. III. Rebecca's Relatives Begging for Postponement of Action (v. 55). They did not object to her going sometime, but they desired that she postpone action for a time. What folly to remain and water sheep when she had the opportunity to become the bride of a rich man's son.

What folly for sinners to remain servants in the world when they have the privilege of becoming the bride of Christ.

IV.—Rebecca's Giorious Decision, (v.
