Volume XVII, Number 40

LEAVE FOR VARIOUS OIL CENTERS

Officers of Nu-Mex Co. Depart for Various Places in the Interest of Their Company.

James E. Webb, superintendent of drilling for the Nu-Mex Oil Company, left Portales last Monday for Oklahoma, for the purpose of securing casing for the company's well. Mr. Webb was successful last week in closing the drilling contract with Mr. S. P. Smith of All en, Oklahoma, a man of considerable experience. Mr. Webb was very much elated over the fact that the company is able to secure the services of such a high grade man when other producing companies made every effort possible to secure his services.

Mr. Smith looks forward to great development work in this section and having an interest in the local proposition, decided to leave the Oklahoma field for the future possibilities of New Mexico.

Mr. Charles Burden, treasurer of the Nu-Mex Company, and wife, left for Ada, Oklahoma, and other points for the purpose of interesting capital in the local field. Mr. W. T. Shelton and wife left for Las Vegas and other points in New Mexico from which inquiry has been made in connection with leases and sale of stock of the local company.

Mr. J. W. Brown, vice-president of the company, left Thursday of this week for Amarillo and Wisconsin concerning new drilling contracts for Roosevelt county.

Jewel A. Grinstead has taken charge of the office of the Nu-Mex Company and has associated with her in the work Miss Helen Lindsey, who has just returned from Las Vegas, and Miss Leta Smith. A big publicity campaign has been planned by the company and thousands of circulars will be sent broadcast telling about the wonderful possibilities of Roosevelt county.

At the Baptist Church

Last Sunday was a good day with us. Good congregations at both hours and a splendid spirit prevailed. Baptizing at the evening service. Were you with us? If not, be sure to come next time. Next Sunday we will have Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., with M. B. Jones, superintendent. Preaching by the pastor at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m., and Sundays at 3 p. m. You are cordially invited to attend all these services. Don't fail to bring your glad hand with you and give it to somebody.

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel."

J. C. NEWMAN, Pastor.

State Poultryman Here

R. B. Thompson, state poultryman of the State College, will be here September 1st, 2nd and 3rd, and will give culling demonstrations for the poultry raisers of this county. Parties wishing to have their flocks culled will see County Agent Petersen as soon as possible so that he can arrange the dates and time.

Mrs. E. B. Hawkins entertained a number of young ladies Wednesday of this week at dinner honoring her daughter, Mrs. B. R. Anderson, who is spending the summer with her. Those invited were: Misses Eula Mae Terry, Irene Smith, Maude Amy Reese, and Mesdames Prue Connally, H. C. Rogers, H. C. Waggoner and Temple Molinari. A nice time is reported by those attending.

H. H. Petersen, father of the county agent, J. B. Petersen, arrived Wednesday from Illinois and will spend several days with his son.

MISS BRYANT ENTERTAINS

The U. D. C.'s enjoyed the delightful compliment given Tuesday by Miss Sallie Bryant at the hospitable Mears home, honoring Mrs. Kelsey, who leaves soon for California.

The affair was planned so the installation of the newly elected officers of the U. D. C. might form a part of the afternoon's entertainment, so Mrs. Coe Howard, as installing officer, presented the following:

President, Mrs. Ellen Jones.
1st Vice-President, Mrs. G. M. Williamson.
2nd Vice-President, Mrs. C. V. Harris.
Secretary, Mrs. T. E. Mears.
Treasurer, Mrs. C. O. Leach.
Historian, Mrs. W. B. Oldham.
Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. B. Priddy.
Press Reporter, Mrs. E. E. Hoagland.

Mrs. Jones is thus elected for the fourth time to lead the Daughters of Portales, the Chapter recently having adopted the name "Helen Jones Chapter," as an expression of love for their president.

Then came a unique part of the program in which Miss Bryant, in her own gracious manner, presented the different ladies asking that each respond with the most humorous or the most tragical incident of her experience.

Several delightful piano solos by Mrs. Harold Rogers were a pleasing addition to the program.

Delicious cake and punch, with Mrs. Kelsey serving, refreshed the guests in the dining room being the occasion for several toasts, the one to Miss Bryant as "the noblest woman of them all" voiced the sentiment of each member of Elln Jones Chapter.

Three charming additions to the social life of Portales, Mesdames Lasater, Webb, and Shelton, were invited guests.

J. L. Taylor, James A. Hall and Frank Shaw went over west of Fort Sumner the last of last week to a camp of so-called best geologists in the world, including Dr. Elliott and Dr. Maxwell and helpers. They say we have three majors, 1st, 2nd and 3rd, through the eastern portion of New Mexico and there is no question in their minds but what we will have the largest fields, for several reasons, in this state. Mr. Taylor has had many years experience and has associated with many geologists and he states that they are the most intelligent men that he has met with, knowing that their reports are facts and from their decision will cause many men from the east to invest in the wild-cat propositions in Eastern New Mexico.

The old Joe Lang homestead just south of town was sold this week to V. F. Newman of the Upton neighborhood. Mr. Newman expects to move into his new home the latter part of this month and will bring his fine herd of Jersey cows with him. This is a nice farm that has long been occupied by renters and we are glad to see an owner come onto it. The New Mexico Land, Oil and Cattle Company made the sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Raines, of Ada, Oklahoma, who have been visiting the officials of the Nu-Mex Oil Company, returned to their home Thursday of this week. Mr. Raines was so favorably impressed with the prospects of this section that he has assured the officials of the local company that he will be able to spread the good propoganda which is sure to mean new financial support for the company.

Incorporation papers were filed with the state department last week for the Portales Valley Sweet Potato Growers Association and the Roosevelt County Farm Bureau.

Don't Let the Cat Come Back!

Every War Saving Stamp you buy adds to the swelling ocean of investments which the Cat of Want cannot cross. Don't let the cat come back! Keep buying. Don't let the barrier be dried up by the scorching winds of Thriftlessness!

Have you bought your War Savings Stamp this week?

OBITUARY

The subject of this sketch, James Bertram Helsby, who died Monday afternoon, was born in Manchester, England, August 2, 1857. He came to America in 1875 and was married to Miss Emily Holland in 1879, to them were born five children, four sons and one daughter, all of the children are still living and with the exception of a son, S. J. Helsby, of Savannah, Mo., they were all present at the death angel came for the first time to this home that had known nothing of the sadness that such a visit would bring. Forty years in an unbroken circle! Surely, God has been merciful.

Mr. Helsby had been a patient sufferer for many months and when the end came he expressed his willingness to go. He had been a member of the M. E. church since 1892.

The family may be comforted by the fact that they did all in their power to make his last days on earth expressive of their devotion to him, their champion in adversities, their counsellor and guide in the different undertakings that life had to offer them.

Those of Mr. Helsby's family who were with him when the end came, were: his devoted wife, Mrs. B. A. Helsby; his daughter, Mrs. J. P. McClung, of Eastland, Texas; and his three sons, Bertram Helsby, of St. Jo, Mo., P. W. Helsby, of Pratt, Kan., E. L. Helsby, of Amarillo, Texas. To you who loved him most, a place is vacant in your hearts and home that can never be filled. The tears which unbidden start are only a small measure of the emptiness you feel and you cannot understand. But some day—it may be in a better land—you will read the meaning of your tears, then you will understand.

J. W. McMinn returned Sunday from Burkburnett, Texas, where he has been cutting meat for the past month. Mr. Mc says there is plenty of money there, but that he had rather have a little New Mexico climate mixed with it as to have so much money. We are all glad to see him back.

P. E. Jordan returned the first of the week from New York City and other Eastern cities, where he had been on business.

Misses Nora Fairly, Leota Merrill and Maude Amy Reese returned last Friday from Las Vegas where they have been attending the Normal University.

Everything went nicely and a good crowd was in attendance at Rogers last Saturday when they held their annual picnic. Stinnett, and also some recitations which had been prepared for the occasion, and all were enjoyed.

The ball game in the afternoon between the Portales team and a "pick-up" bunch of the Rogers community resulted in a defeat for the Rogers boys. Papers throughout the entire land are carrying articles on the possibilities of Eastern New Mexico and within the last few days papers of incorporation have been filed bringing to the state interests from Boston, New York, Vancouver, British Columbia, Detroit, Canada, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. Many other interests from the Eastern cities are now considering drilling contracts and Eastern New Mexico is certain to receive a big play from Eastern capitalists, as the entire oil fraternity is looking to Eastern New Mexico as the next new oil field of America, due to the favorable report of United States Geological Survey.

The State Tax Commission, composed of Joseph E. Saint, J. Rafael Aguilar and John Joerns, were in Portales two or three days this week meeting with the county commissioners in connection with the tax business.

The publicity given Roosevelt county and Eastern New Mexico by this company has brought inquiries concerning the local field from every large oil producing territory in the country. Papers throughout the entire land are carrying articles on the possibilities of Eastern New Mexico and within the last few days papers of incorporation have been filed bringing to the state interests from Boston, New York, Vancouver, British Columbia, Detroit, Canada, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. Many other interests from the Eastern cities are now considering drilling contracts and Eastern New Mexico is certain to receive a big play from Eastern capitalists, as the entire oil fraternity is looking to Eastern New Mexico as the next new oil field of America, due to the favorable report of United States Geological Survey.

The State Tax Commission, composed of Joseph E. Sant, J. Rafael Aguilar and John Joerns, were in Portales two or three days this week meeting with the county commissioners in connection with the tax business.

REIGN OF TERROR IN CHICAGO; RACE WAR RAGES ALL OVER CITY; STRIKE STOPS ALL STREET CARS

MEN VOTE ON IMMEDIATE WALKOUT AFTER THEIR LEADERS HAD AGREED TO A COMPROMISE

"TO HELL WITH THE PUBLIC" THEY SAY

Entire City Is Served Only By Motor Trucks, Jitneys and Private Conveyances—No Attempt To Use Strike Breakers.

Chicago.—Settlement of Chicago's street car strike in a day or so, and resumption of service, appeared probable when 15,000 surface and elevated line employees gathered in thirty-five mass meetings and expressed willingness to accept terms of 65 and 67 cents an hour by the companies. A referendum vote will be taken.

W. D. Mahon, international president of the Amalgamated association of Street Car Employees of America declared the strike illegal and urged the men to accept the "best and fairest offer ever made to any street car men in any city in this country."

A surprise strike of conductors and motormen on both elevated and street car lines voted at midnight for 4 a. m. ended service on the lines. A compromise suggested by the public utilities commission, was hooted down by the men.

Won't Attempt Service.

Heads of both lines announced they could not attempt resumption of service. Department stores, factories and other big business houses began early sending delivery trucks, motorcycles and touring cars for their employees. An appeal was made to the central department of the army here to lend its motor lorries for transportation service.

Department stores, undermanned somewhat, opened at the usual time. Consumers were urged to do their shopping by telephone subject to delayed delivery since trucks were to be used for passengers.

Mass Meeting Overruled Them.

A mass meeting of the men sprang the surprise by voting loudly against the compromise, and deciding to strike at 4 a. m., only a few hours after the meeting closed.

William D. Quinlan, head of the street car workers here, was howled down when he tried to present the compromise plan with his recommendations that it be adopted.

"To hell with the public, go, get off before we mob you," was the response he heard over a medley of catcalls.

Almost immediately the strike began to become effective. Cars on long runs were jerked back. At 3 a. m. the first was taken from its run. At 4:15 the last one had been parked and the electrical transportation giant was asleep.

Suburban trains awoke hours before their usual time. They were run into the city in long strings. Ancient coaches were pulled by huge freight engines. Observation cars rubbed bumpers with antiquated suburban carriers.

Horse Drawn Cabs.

Horse drawn cabs which made their last appearance on the gasless Sundays of last year hauled hundreds to their downtown work. Rates were high but every cab was loaded. Automobiles were filled to the running boards. Taxicabs could command any rate their drivers wanted to charge. Bidders offered startling sums for transportation to the loop. The supply of these carriers was limited, a fleet of 75 being held near one armory, commandeered by the state to transport militiamen to the riot district if it became necessary.

There was serious congestion in the downtown streets from which traffic officers had been drawn for service in the riot section.

The lake did duty as a passenger carrier. Launches and even yachts carried men and women to the downtown section. The trip necessarily was slow and Chicago's business district was slower than usual in coming to life.

London Bobbies To Go On Strike. London.—The London police declared a strike.

Arkansas For Suffrage.

Little Rock.—Both houses of the Arkansas legislature ratified the federal suffrage amendment. In the senate the vote was 23 to 2 and in the house it was 76 to 13. Arkansas is the twelfth state to ratify the amendment.

Italy After Big Loan.

Rome.—It is reported here that an appeal has been made to American bankers for 1,000,000,000 lire.

Army Cut To One-fifth.

Washington.—The strength of the army is now less than one-fifth of what it was on the day the armistice was signed. Up to June 26, 3,089,487 officers and men had been discharged, of which 497,187 were demobilized during June.

TOTAL DEATH LIST REPORTED BY POLICE IS THIRTY-TWO PERSONS AND HUNDREDS INJURED

10,000 STATE TROOPS ARE PATROLING THE STREETS

Ready To Take Possession of the City If Police Are Overcome.—Rioting Mostly in the Black Belt But Is Spreading All Over the City.

Chicago.—Race war terror and bloodshed have abated after four days and nights of rioting, but violence continues sporadically, notwithstanding the fact that an army of nearly 10,000 state troops and policemen are on active duty in the south side negro district.

The official corrected death list 32, of whom 18 were negroes.

The negro district is comparatively quiet again. The presence of the state troops apparently had calmed the negroes' fears, and had a salutary effect on disturbing elements among both whites and blacks. The troops were well distributed and the military machinery was running smoothly.

Food supplies were taken into the negro sections by co-operation of the police and the troops. The black belt remains a barred zone where whites might not enter and even the guarded trucks of groceries were driven only to the dead line by white chauffeurs, who were then relieved by negro drivers under police escort. Many of the poorer negroes were reported in dire need of food and without funds. On pay day at the stock yards the negroes feared to go there to draw their wages. Thousands of negroes have not attempted to go to work all week.

The fighting centered mainly in the heart of the black belt and to cope with the situation, some four thousand state troops were under arms in the city and as many more were under orders to be ready for emergency. There were two dangerous flare-ups, however, outside the black belt and other vicious fights took place in the downtown district in broad day light.

Fire added to the reign of terror. Incendiary flames were frequent in the negro district. Fire companies who responded to the alarms were fired upon and orders were issued for all companies to be furnished with arms. Two fire houses were rushed and fired upon by mobs.

500 Are Injured.

The city with its 100,000 negro population presented a strange aspect of terror. The people on the street and in the business district, there were hundreds of thousands of them, forced to walk by the street car strike, moved with fear and apprehension. At this corner or that corner some one would spy a negro and in a moment the mob would gather.

The number of dead is not definitely known but the police report 32 bodies in morgues. The list of injured has grown beyond counting. The hospitals are filled to overflowing. The police report the injured at 500.

In great sections of the black belt the appearance of a white face was the signal for a volley of rifle and pistol shots. The case of Harold Ringdall serves to illustrate. He had a business mission in the South State and Thirty-fourth street district, populated almost wholly by negroes. He walked into the death trap not realizing his danger. The street was almost deserted. A few negroes watched him. Suddenly there was a crash of arms from a cottage. Ringdall fell pierced with half a dozen bullets and died in the arms of rescuing policemen. The police stormed the house and arrested ten negroes, one of whom, a woman, boasted she did the killing.

A vicious race fight broke out in the county jail. The whites outnumbered the blacks by 20 to 1 and the guards were swept aside when they tried to stifle the trouble at its start.

Negroes began looting stores of whites in one district shortly after the firing of revolvers by a squad of policemen in an effort to break up a fight over a small purchase of groceries. The police soon emptied their guns. The looting continued until a special squad of police, armed with rifles, arrived. They fired low, felling a dozen blacks.

A white woman was pulled from a street car by a negro. He was soon lying unconscious against the curb. The angry whites left him for dead.

Groups of blacks formed in football fashion and charged against whites with razors and clubs. On one corner the scene was like a miniature battleground. Unconscious negroes and whites dotted the street. As they regained consciousness they were arrested or permitted to go and leave the neighborhood.

Scores of arrests were made but where the rioters were found to be unarmed, they were released.

DEGENERATE KILLS 6-YR.-OLD POLICE FORCE CONFESSION BY THIRD DEGREE

Watchman Had Hidden Body Under a Pile of Coal After Murdering Child.

Chicago.—Thomas Fitzgerald, 33 years old, married, confessed to the police that he killed little Janet Wilkinson, 6 years old, a neighbor's child, by strangling her. Then he accompanied the police to his home and showed them where he had concealed the body beneath coal under the basement steps and it was recovered.

The solution of the mystery which has stirred Chicago as few police cases have aroused the populace, came when Fitzgerald after five sleepless days and nights, constantly kept under a gruelling examination and never-ceasing scrutiny, called for an officer and made his confession. He alternately moaned and sobbed as he talked, pouring out words of self-loathing as he gave the details of his crime.

The crowd that surrounded the Fitzgerald home when the body was removed, groaned and then cries of indignation against the confessed murderer were heard. A strong guard of policemen was thrown around him and he was hurried away to a cell.

Fitzgerald was night watchman at the Virginia, a highly reputable residential hotel. He lived in the neighborhood. In the same building lived the Wilkinson family. Janet was one of four children, their father a grocer. She was a pretty child and was beloved of the neighbors.

Last December, Fitzgerald first showed a sinister attraction for the child, the father testified at the inquest. She came home after being at his home and told a story of mistreatment.

The parents preferred to hush up the affair and Fitzgerald escaped prosecution. But when little Janet disappeared suspicion was aroused against Fitzgerald and he was arrested. He was questioned about the child but denied everything. But the police held the man a prisoner, and subjected him to as severe an examination as few prisoners ever receive.

ANGLO-FRENCH-U. S. PACT

Given To The Senate for Ratification by President Wilson.

Washington.—President Wilson has transmitted to the senate the special treaty with France by which the United States pledges itself to come immediately to the aid of that republic in the event of an unprovoked attack by Germany and asked for its early ratification, "along with the treaty with Germany."

Submission of the treaty came after sharp criticism by senate republicans who for several days had openly charged on the senate floor that in failing to present the draft of the pact along with the treaty of Versailles, the president had violated one of the articles of the document. The president did not follow his usual custom of presenting the treaty in person. He sent it to the capitol by special messenger, along with a message explaining its object.

The Franco-American treaty is almost identical with the one signed between Great Britain and France. One difference between the texts as made public by the French foreign office, to which attention has been called, is that the United States pledges itself to go "immediately" to the assistance of France while Great Britain "consents" to assist that country.

England Approves Pact With French. London.—Royal assent was given to the German peace treaty and to the Anglo-French treaty, which thus become law.

Kaarle Stahlberg Finland President. Helsinki.—Dr. Kaarle Stahlberg was elected president of Finland by a majority of 80 votes over General Mannerheim. The diet vote was 134 to 34. The election of Dr. Stahlberg indicates that the possibility of intervention by Finland against the Bolsheviks is more remote than ever.

Universal Army Service Planned. Washington.—Senator Chamberlain of Oregon introduced a bill in the senate providing for universal military training.

WIRE CONTROL ENDS AT LAST

BURLESON RELINQUISHES MANAGEMENT TO PRIVATE OWNERS

RATE WAR MAY COME NEXT

If Postal Company Makes Good Its Offer To Cut Rates Twenty Per Cent.—No Change in Rates For Four Months.

Washington.—Government control of telegraph and telephone properties ended at midnight July 31.

Under the resolution of congress directing the return of the companies, government fixed intrastate telephone rates are to remain in force for a period of four months, unless sooner changed by state commissions, but no provision was made as to telegraph rates.

Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal company, in urging congress to provide for speedy return of the properties, said his company could reduce rates 20 per cent and still earn a profit.

This statement was recalled in connection with the return of the properties and a rate war between the telegraph companies was viewed in some quarters as a possibility. Telegraph rates were increased approximately 20 per cent last March to meet increased salaries of operators and other employees and rising costs of materials.

Control of the wire companies was taken over by the postmaster general as a war measure on July 22, 1914, under a resolution of congress and a proclamation by the president.

Administration of the affairs of the companies by the postmaster general led to sharp criticism and this found expression in congress when the resolution for their return to private management was considered.

In his final statement the postmaster general said his labors were "brought to an end with a consciousness on his part of having at all times administered these wire systems with justice and fairness to the employees and owners of these properties and in such a way as to render the best service possible to the general public under abnormal conditions."

Mackay Makes Good. New York.—The following interview was given out by President Mackay:

"In accordance with its promise to the public the Postal Telegraph Cable Company at midnight tonight will reduce telegraph rates throughout the United States 20 per cent by cutting off the 20 per cent increase which Postmaster General Burleson put into effect April 1st, (including leased wire rates) and restoring rates to what they were before Mr. Burleson seized the lines.

Old Missouri Rates to Hold. Kansas City.—Western Union officials here have been advised that a petition filed with the Missouri public utilities commission requesting permission to maintain present rates for a period of sixty days after the return of their business to private control has been granted. In its petition, the company stated that rates prior to the war increase of twenty per cent would not be profitable now, and asked that the extension of time be granted so that the commission might determine fair new rates.

Surplus Supplies At Fort Sill. Washington.—The offering for sale of 180,000 pounds of flour substitutes, now located at Fort Sill, Okla., and 46,000 pounds of aluminum trichloride and about one million pounds of white arsenic, now at Willoughby, Ohio, was announced by the surplus property division of the war department. Bids for the flour will be opened August 9 at the zone supply office at St. Louis, and those for the sale of the trichloride and arsenic on August 22 at the zone supply office of the army in Chicago.

Details of Selling Army Food. Washington.—Details for the distribution, through the parcel posts of the war department's 341,000,000 pounds of surplus foodstuffs are being worked out. In the meanwhile Assistant Secretary of War Cromwell was preparing a price list to be forwarded to postmasters and rural carriers throughout the country. The dispositions of the surplus in this manner is in conformance with a resolution sponsored by one of the sub-committees investigating the cost of the war and passed by the house.

Bushman's Goods Are Sold. Baltimore.—Furniture and other household effects of Francis X. Bushman, the movie star, were sold at sheriff's auction to satisfy claims of his divorced wife and other creditors.

Pershing Coming Home. Paris.—General Pershing will leave for the U. S. September 1. He is now at Coblenz for a final ten-day inspection of the Rhine district and the battle areas. The first division will begin its departure homeward Aug. 15.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR AUGUST 10

WINNING OTHERS TO CHRIST.

LESSON TEXTS—Acts 16:1-15; James 4:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Basmia, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Luke 12:1-12; John 13:1-17; Acts 20:17-21; 28:30, 31.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping others to know Jesus (Acts 16:3-16).

JUNIOR TOPIC—Telling our friends about Jesus (John 1:40-46).

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Witnessing for Christ.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Personal evangelism the duty and privilege of all Christians.

I. Paul Called to Macedonia (Acts 16:9-12).

The inclination of Paul and his companion was to tarry in the province of Asia, preaching the Word, but they were hurried along against their inclination. Realizing that the Spirit knew best they obeyed. In the guidance of the Spirit we find him just as active and as faithful in closing doors as in opening them. Those who are disposed to do the will of God should heed this fact. Being hemmed in on all sides, Paul saw in a vision a man of Macedonia pleading for help. He now saw clearly the mystery of the closed doors about him. As soon as the divine way was known they rendered immediate obedience. As true servants of God they did not question his wisdom nor delay action. Christ, the Divine servant, is the pattern of obedience for all time.

II. Paul Winning Lydia to Christ (Acts 16:13-15).

With Paul as leader, the missionaries went to Philippi where they spent several days studying the conditions there. The Jewish element in the city was very insignificant, as they could not afford a synagogue, making it necessary for the devout people to frequent the river side for worship. To this humble gathering Paul came and preached to the women gathered there. A certain woman by Thyatira, a proselyte, believed in his message and was baptized. The work of the Lord here had a very humble beginning, but it was destined to transform all Europe and the world. Lydia is a typical conversion, therefore it is worthy to note—

1. Her attendance at the place of prayer (v. 13).

2. She listened to the preaching of the Word of God (vv. 12-14).

3. Her heart was opened by the Lord (v. 14).

4. She was baptized (v. 15).

5. Her household believed (v. 15).

III. The Blessed Issue of Soul-Winning (James 5:19, 20).

The business of soul-saving is the most important in which a human being can engage. Anyone who has been saved can point lost souls to the Savior. Christ came to save the lost (Luke 19:10). It is the blessed privilege of all Christians to labor together with God in rescuing the perishing. The result of soul-saving is twofold:

1. It saves souls from death (v. 20). Meditation upon the three words "saves," "soul," "death," will make us conscious of the tremendous importance of soul-saving. We must realize the value of the souls before we can give ourselves to the work of saving them. A soul is of more value than the whole world (Matt. 16:26). God valued souls so much that he gave Jesus to die for them (John 3:16).

2. "Hides a multitude of sins" (v. 20). God's way of hiding sin is to save men from it. Every sinner has a multitude of sins, therefore every soul saved hides that multitude of sins. When sins are thus hidden they are out of God's sight forever. "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us" (Psalms 103:12). He remembers our sins against us no more. (Isa. 43:25.)

Open to the Light.

The heart of a true Christian appears like such a little white flower as we see in the spring of the year; low and humble on the ground; opening its bosom to receive the pleasant beams of the sun's glory; rejoicing as it were in a calm rapture; diffusing around a sweet fragrance; standing peacefully and lovingly in the midst of other flowers round about; all in like manner opening their bosoms to drink in the light of the sun.—Jonathan Edwards.

What Trial Is.

That which purifies us is trial, and trial is by what is contrary.—John Milton.

Dependancy and Hope.

Dependancy is ingratitude—hope is God's worship.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Growth.

To become like Christ is the only thing in the world worth caring for, the thing before which every ambition of man is folly, and all lower achievements vain. . . . Reflect the character of Christ and you will become like Christ.—Henry Drummond.

What Heaven Is Like.

Heaven is where love is, and where love is there heaven is. Our homes and the homes of our neighbors should give to each of us some idea of what the real heaven is like.

WOLVES OF THE SEA

Carlyle Sees One Chance— and Takes It.

Synopsis — Geoffrey Carlyle, master of sailing ships at twenty-six, is sentenced to 20 years' servitude in the American colonies for participation in the Mowmouth rebellion in England. Among the passengers on board the ship on which he is sent across are Roger Fairfax, wealthy Maryland planter; his niece, Dorothy Fairfax, and Lieutenant Sanchez, a Spaniard, who became acquainted with the Fairfaxes in London. Carlyle meets Dorothy, who informs him her uncle has bought his services. Sanchez shows himself an enemy of Carlyle. The Fairfax party, now on its own sloop in the Chesapeake bay, encounters a mysterious bark, the Namur of Rotterdam. Carlyle discovers that Sanchez is "Black Sanchez," planning to steal the Fairfax gold and abduct Dorothy. He fights Sanchez and leaves him for dead. In a battle with Sanchez' followers, however, he is overpowered and thrown into the bay.

The two must have hung in silence over the rail starting down. I dared not advance my head to look, nor even move a muscle of my body in the water.

"How came you aft here?"

"Because that fellow leaped the rail from the wharf. I saw him, and we met at the wheel."

"From the wharf, you say? He was not aboard, then? Santa Maria! I know not what that may mean. Yet what difference, so he be dead. Anderson, Mendez, throw that carrion overboard—no, bullies, never mind; let them lie where they are, and sink an auger in the sloop's bottom. What is that out yonder, Cochose?"

"A small boat, senor—a dory, I make it."

"Out the rope and send it adrift. Now come along with me."

The darker loom of the sloop vanished slowly, as the slight current sweeping about the end of the wharf drifted the released boat to which I clung outward into the bay. There was scarcely a ripple to the sea, and yet I felt that the boat was steadily drifting out into deep water. I was still strangely weak, barely able to retain my grasp. Finally I mustered every ounce of remaining energy in one supreme effort and succeeded in dragging my body up out of water over the boat's stern, sinking helplessly forward into the bottom. The moment this was accomplished every sense deserted me, and I lay there motionless, totally unconscious.

I shall never know how long I remained thus. Yet this time could not have been great. As though awakening from sleep a faint consciousness returned. Then the sharp pain of my wounds, accentuated by the stings of salt water, brought me swift realization of where I was and the circumstances bringing me there. I had evidently lost considerable blood, yet this had already ceased to flow, and a very slight exsanguination served to convince me that the knife slashes were none of them serious. My other injuries were merely bruises to add to my discomfort—the result of blows dealt me by Sanchez and Cochose, aggravated by the bearlike hug of the giant negro. Indeed, I awoke to the discovery that I was far from being a dead man; and, inspired by this knowledge, the various incidents of the night flashed swiftly back into my mind.

No gleam of light appeared in any direction; no sound echoed across the dark waste of water. It was clearly impossible for me to attempt any return to the wharf through the impenetrable black curtain which shut me in. What, then, could I do? What might I still hope to accomplish? Those fellows had swept the sloop clean, and had doubtless long ago scuttled it. They would suddenly find themselves leaderless, unguided. Would that suffice to stop them? Would the discovery of his body halt his followers and send them rushing back to their boat, eager to get safely away? This did not seem likely. Estada knew of my boarding the sloop from the wharf, and would at once connect the fact of my being ashore with the killing of Sanchez. This would satisfy him there was no further danger. Besides, these were not men to flee in panic. Surely not with that ruffian Estada yet alive to lead them, and the knowledge that fifty thousand pounds was yonder in that unguarded house, with no one to protect the treasure but two old men asleep, and the women. The women!—Dorothy! What would become of her? Into whose hands would she fall in that foul division of spoils? Estada's? And I, afloat and helpless in this boat, what could I do?

CHAPTER IX.

A Swim to the Namur.

All was black, hopeless; with head buried in my hands I sat on a thwart, dazed. Before me, pleading, expressive of agonized despair, arose the sweet face of Dorothy Fairfax. No doubt by this time all was over—the dead body of Sanchez discovered, the projected attack on the house carried out, the two old men left behind, either dead or severely wounded, and the girl borne off a helpless prisoner. Ay, but this I knew; there was only one place to which the villains might flee with their booty—the Namur of Rotterdam. Only on those decks and well at sea would they be safe or able to enjoy their spoils. The thought came to me in sudden revelation—why not? Was not here a chance even yet to foil them? With Sanchez dead no man aboard that pirate craft could recognize me. I felt assured of this. I had fought the giant negro in the dark; he could not, during that fierce encounter, have distinguished my features any more clearly than I had his own. There was no one else to fear. If only I might once succeed in getting safely aboard, slightly disguised, perhaps, and mingle unnoticed among the crew, the chances were not bad for me to pass undetected. Such ships carried large crews and were constantly changing in personnel. A strange face appearing among them need not arouse undue suspicion. And I felt convinced I could locate the Namur. But could I hope to attain the ship in advance of the returning party of raiders? God helping me, I would try! My brain throbbled with fresh resolution—the call to action.

There were oars in the boat. I shipped the useless rudder inboard and chose my course from the stars. My boat had drifted considerably farther out into the bay than I had supposed, and it required a good half hour of steady toil at the oars before I sighted ahead of me the darker outlines of the shore. At first I could identify nothing, but finally there suddenly arose, clearly defined, the gaunt limbs of a dead tree, bearing a faint resemblance to a gigantic cross, that had been pointed out on the sloop. This peculiar mark was at the extremity of the first headland lying north of the point itself, and consequently a straight course across the bay would land me within five hundred yards of where the Namur had last been at anchor.

To a degree my immediate plan of action had been definitely mapped out within my own mind while toiling at the oars. I would beach my dory and strike out on foot directly across the narrow neck of land. The Namur was not so far out from shore as to make swimming to her a dangerous feat, and I could approach and board her with far less chance of discovery in that manner than by the use of a boat. The greater danger would come after I had attained the deck, wet to the skin. The sharp bow of the dory ran up on the soft sand of the beach, and I stepped ashore.

Then there came to me the first real consciousness of the reckless nature of this adventure. As I faced then the probabilities there scarcely seemed one chance in a hundred. And yet I must admit there was the one chance; and in no other action could I perceive even that much encouragement. If Dorothy Fairfax was already in the hands of these men, then my only opportunity for serving her lay in my being close at hand. No alternative presented itself; no other effort could be effective. It was already too late to attempt the organization of a rescue party. No, the only choice left was for me either to accompany the girl or else abandon her entirely to her captors. I must either face the possibility of discovery and capture, which as surely meant torture and death, or otherwise play the coward and remain impotently behind. So I drove the temptation to falter away and strode on up the bank into the black shadow of the trees.

I found extremely hard walking as I advanced through tangled underbrush. Fortunately the distance was even shorter than I had anticipated. It was not until after I had advanced cautiously into the water and then stooped low to thus gain clearer vision along the surface that I succeeded in locating the vessel sought. Even then the Namur appeared only as a mere shadow, without so much as a light showing aboard, yet apparently anchored in the same position as when we had swept past the previous afternoon. I waded straight out through the lines of surf, until all excepting the head became completely submerged. If I were to reach the bark at all this was the one opportunity.

I stood there, resisting the undertow tugging at my limbs and barely able to retain my footing, intent upon my purpose. Full strength had come back to my muscles and my head was again clear. With strong, silent strokes I swam forward, directly breasting the force of the incoming sea, yet making fair progress. Some unconsidered current must have swept me to the right, for, when the outlines of the bark again became dimly visible through the night I found myself well to starboard of the vessel. Stroking well under water and with only my eyes exposed above the surface, I changed my course to the left and slowly and cautiously drew in toward the starboard bow. A few moments later, unperceived from above, and protected from observation by the bulge of the overhang and density of the shadow, my hands clung to the anchor hawser, my mind busy in devising some means for attaining the deck.

CHAPTER X.

On the Deck of the Namur.

It was here that fortune favored me, strengthening my decision and yielding a fresh courage to persevere. Forking out directly over where I clung desperately to the wet hawser, my eyes were able to trace the jibflapping ragged edges in the gusts of wind. Suddenly, as I stared upward, I became aware that two men were working their way out along the footropes, and, as they reached a point almost directly over my head, became busily engaged in tightening the gaskets to better secure the loosening sail. The foot of one slipped, and he hung dangling, giving vent to a stiff English oath before he succeeded in hauling himself back to safety. The other indulged in a chuckling laugh, yet he was careful not to speak loudly.

"Had one drink too many, Tom?" he asked. "That will pay yer fer finishin' the bottle an' never givin' me another sup."

"You, h—!! Yer hed the fu'st ov it. That's no sorter luck yer don't git yer fair share of, Bill Haines—trust yer fer that. What I ain't got straight yet is whar the stuff cum from so easy."

"That was part o' the luck, Tom. Did yer git eyes on that new feller Manuel Estevan brought back with him in the boat?"

"The one you and Jose carried aboard?"

"He's the lad. That wa'n't nuthin' the matter with the cove, 'cept he was dead drunk. We was waitin' on the beach fer Estevan, an' three feller he hed taken along with him inter town ter cum back—the nigger, Jose an' me—when this yere chap 'ove' longside. He never hailed us, ner nuthin'; just dim over into the boat, an' lay down. I shook him, an' kicked him, but it wa'n't no use; so we just left him lie thar fer Manuel ter say whut was ter be done with him. Only Jose he went through his pockets an' found three bottles o' rum. We took a few drinks an' hid whut was left in the boat locker."

"So that's how yer got it! Who was the party?"

"That's more'n I'll ever tell yer. I never got no sight o' him, 'cept in the dark. 'Bout all I know is he was white, an' likely a sailor. Bayhow, when Manuel got back he told us to haul the lad forrard out o' the way, an' fetch him along. So we pulled out with the feller cuddled up in the bog."

"I never seed nuthin' more of him after he was hauled aboard. Whut become o' the lad?"

Once on board the Namur, Carlyle knows he may have a chance to aid Dorothy. It is a desperate chance, but he is willing to take it. But how to get aboard without being seen? Can he avoid detection which will mean certain death?

Killing Off Predatory Wild Animals

By John D. Sherman

A PROTECTED CHEPMUNK

TROPHIES OF THE WARFARE

ONE OF MILLIONS

COYOTE IN A TRAP

WHILE the appropriations for the department of agriculture were under consideration in the house the following memorial from New Mexico was read:

"Whereas, we believe that the work of exterminating predatory wild animals and range-destroying rodents carried on under the direction of the biological survey during the past few years has been very successful, and that under the thorough organization and efficient plans of that bureau this evil will be largely minimized, if not entirely removed, provided the different states will heartily co-operate with the federal government in its plan of work; and

"Whereas at the present time the funds appropriated by congress for this purpose are wholly inadequate to meet the real requirements of the biological survey in carrying on this work, and on that account the results obtained are not satisfactory in most sections of the West; and

"Whereas it is our belief that the present laws of the states should be repealed, and in lieu thereof the various states should, through their several legislatures, enact laws appropriating sufficient money to equal the amounts to be expended by the federal government in the different states, and that such state appropriations should be expended under the direction of the biological survey, to be handled in conjunction with the funds appropriated by congress; therefore be it

"Resolved by the New Mexican Cattle and Horse Growers' association, in convention assembled at Albuquerque, N. M., March 25, 26 and 27, 1919, that we urge congress to appropriate the additional sum of $300,000 for immediate use in the extermination of predatory wild animals and range-destroying rodents, and that we petition the various states to make appropriations at least equal to the amounts expended by the federal government in the various states, said money, both federal and state, to be expended under the direction of the biological survey."

This question of predatory wild animals and rodents—which are also predatory animals in the true sense of the word, inasmuch as they raid and pillage the crops—is a serious one in many parts of the West. The case of New Mexico is typical; so the remarks of Representative Hernandez of New Mexico concerning the situation are of interest. He said in part:

"One of the serious problems confronting those engaged in promoting increased production of food crops and meat animals was the tremendous damage to growing crops and to range grasses caused by prairie dogs and other rodents, and the loss of cattle, sheep, and poultry from wild animals. Investigations by the United States biological survey show that the annual losses in the United States from predatory wild animals amounted to several hundred million dollars, and the loss from rodents is probably greater. The annual loss in New Mexico was variously estimated at from fifteen to twenty-five million dollars. The method used by the biological survey has been perfected by years of investigation and experimenting and is very successful. The 'kill' of prairie dogs is generally from 85 to 95 per cent by the use of poisoned oats. They followed up the work by using fumigants, rolled barley and later by using fumigants, such as bisulphide of carbon, with which, if carefully and thoroughly used, a good start has been made.

"The biological survey had co-operative arrangements in several states for exterminating rodents and predatory wild animals, and in every case the results are much more satisfactory and less expensive than under the bounty system. I have before me now a partial report made by the men in charge of this work in the southwestern part of the country through the council of defense of the state of New Mexico.

"In the spring of 1918 the governor of the state authorized the use of $25,000 from the fund known in our state as the war fund, and under an agreement covering the plan for the co-operative work as executed. Under this agreement $10,000 of this amount, in conjunction with an equal amount by the department of agriculture, was set aside and applied in reducing losses in live stock due to predatory wild animals, an increased force of hunters was placed in the field, trapping was resorted to by this experiment; the results have been very satisfactory.

"State hunters have a total of 1,972 days, at a cost of $5,741.44. They have taken 642 coyotes, 124 bob cats, 14 gray wolves, 5 predatory bears, including 3 grizzlies. The average cost of animals in June was $88.87; in July, $8.53; August, $5.93. The government operations in the state during the same periods cost $9,225.70, and resulted in the killing of 417 coyotes, 77 bob cats, 41 gray wolves, 13 mountain lions, 2 bears. No reasonable estimate of damage inflicted by predatory animals that has been advanced can show anything other than the return on this investment of a very high rate of interest. The estimate generally accepted—and it is conservative, indeed, in view of the present high value of live stock—is that each gray wolf destroys annually $1,000 worth of live stock; each mountain lion, $500; each coyote and bob cat, $50 worth; predatory bears may be rated in the same class with wolves. On this basis the saving represented in this co-operative work is nearly nine times the amount of expenditure. Thus you will observe that the estimated saving to the people of the nation, you might state, is $131,500, at a cost of about $20,000."

While the facts presented by the New Mexican representative are not clearly arranged, they afford a glimpse of the situation that prevails pretty much all over the far West, and the whole nation is interested, too, as Mr. Fernandez said in closing:

"We are all interested in that industry. We send our wool—20,000,000 or 25,000,000 pounds—to the cities of Philadelphia and Boston, so that those merchants can have that product, which will increase the employment of their people. We send our meat to the packing houses. All the American people are interested in that. There was a time when the people did not care how many animals were destroyed by predatory beasts, because meat was plentiful. But since meat has become all the way from $10 to $15, instead of from $1.50 to $2.50, we urge that the department give us experts in co-operation with our own activities for the extermination of these pests."

It is true that predatory wild animals, like the mountain lion and wolf, are expensive. The biological survey is emphatic in its statement that the average gray wolf kills $1,000 worth of live stock a year, and a mountain lion $500 worth. The coyote, which is the smaller prairie wolf, rivals his big cousin in destruction. The biological survey claims to have reduced the wolf population of New Mexico by 200 individuals in three years.

Incidentally, naturalists and sportsmen will be interested in the statement by the biological survey that in the Pecos mountain region bears have been very destructive. The survey uses these words:

"During the recent grazing season bears killed approximately 125 head of valuable cattle in the Pecos region. Similar damage in the Black range and in the Mogollon mountain makes it evident that a total of at least 250 head of cattle as well as a large number of sheep were killed by bears. These facts are worthy of consideration, in view of the general and concerted efforts now under way on the part of sportsmen to enact legislation that will prevent trapping of bears or hunting them with the aid of dogs."

Naturalists and big game hunters hold that bears seldom kill big game or stock, and that when individual bears get the stock-killing habit it is an acquired taste. Big-game hunters holding these views have been active in promoting state legislation for the protection of grizzly and black bears, which otherwise are doomed to speedy extermination except in the national parks, which are wild life sanctuaries.

The warfare against prairie dogs, chipmunks and other rodents is less exciting, but there is much more money at stake. In New Mexico in four summer months co-operative work in exterminating prairie dogs was conducted over 652,000 acres of infested land, 3,403 landowners assisting in the work. An average of over 90 per cent of the prairie dogs was killed. On the untreated land the total loss of the crop, or at least a 50 per cent loss, often occurred as a result of prairie-dog infestation. It is estimated that the crop saving effected by prairie-dog control amounts to approximately $500,000.

Multiply this by a dozen or more—the number of states doing the same kind of work—and the size of the job is apparent.

A new angle to the situation is the recent public announcement that prairie dogs are good eating and that various towns in the infested areas are going to put them on the bill of fare.

Couldn't Hurt That Toad

There are many surprising stories about toads, observes Philip Hale, editor of the "As the World Wags" column in Boston Herald. Here is one of them, taken from a book containing the names and crimes of people in Northumberland, England. In 1793 a stone mason, Mr. George Wilson, "wantonly tortured" a toad in a wall he was building, making for the toad a close cell of lime and stone, to fit it snugly, and plastering to prevent the admission of air. Sixteen years afterward a gap was made in the wall so that carts could pass through. The toad was found alive. Torpid at first, it was soon active, so that it made its way to a pile of stones and disappeared. There were cruel men in Northumberland. Mr. Thomas Anderson was punished in 1681 for playing on a bagpipe before a bridegroom on a Sunday. Among the women, Elizabeth Mills was brought into court for scolding and drying fish on the Lord's day.

No Wife for Him.

"This coat was made by some sentimental girl. I found a gushing note in one of the pockets."

"Did you write to the writer?"

"Not I." The coat was poorly made, and the buttons not half sewed on.

MUSCLES TIED IN A KNOT HE SAYS

That Is the Way J. F. Holley Says His Rheumatism Acted—Is A Well Man Since Taking Tanlac He Says.

"This Tanlac is the first medicine I have ever taken that did what people said it would do," said J. F. Holley, residing at 427 Breckenridge St., Lexington, Kentucky.

"I was in an awful fix for over two months," he continued, "and my whole system seemed to be run down and worn out. Rheumatism was my worst trouble, my muscles seemed to be tied in knots. I could hardly sleep at night and would feel as tired in the morning as when I lay down at night. My digestion was affected, I had no appetite, my nervous system was disordered, and I suffered with awful headaches. The rheumatism would draw me up so I couldn't use my right arm at all.

"One day a friend of mine told me about Tanlac and I got a bottle and started taking it. It has certainly made a new man of me. I can eat anything I want, and this is something I haven't been able to do in years, and I sleep like a log at night. That awful rheumatism is all gone and my strength has been restored and built up in every way. I sure am glad to tell others what Tanlac has done for me."

Couldn't Work

S. W. Bishop Was Laid Up By Kidney Trouble. Now Owes Good Health to Doan's.

"I owe my present good health, largely to Doan's Kidney Pills," says S. W. Bishop, 5122 Kensington Ave., St. Louis, Mo. "I wasn't able to work. Sharp pains would catch me when I stooped or tried to lift anything, and at night the kidney secretions were now of a purplish color. The discharges were scanty and were very painful. Specks seemed to be before my eyes and I would get dizzy. There was a puffiness under my eyes. I could see myself failing from day to day and I finally was laid up from June until September. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. I received relief with the first box and became stronger every day. I could sleep well at night and the kidney secretions were now of a natural color. The discharges and other troubles disappeared and I picked up in weight. After I had used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I looked and felt like my old self. The cure seemed a miracle and I firmly believe that my life was saved by this remedy."

MUCH NECKWEAR

Women seem to have become much addicted to wearing neckpieces of many kinds. A little journey through shops and departments that carry neckwear reveals such a world of it and such a variety of it that there must be a great demand for all kinds of neckwear. Many of the pieces are intended to replace summer furs. These include scarfs made of plushes, ostrich boas, ostrich capes and capes of marabout feathers or marabout finished with ostrich fringe. This ostrich fringe, which appears like marabout in black, white and natural color, is used in borders and bands in scarfs of gold and silver tissue. Some of the new plushes used for scarfs do not attempt a close imitation of fur but suggest the most popular summer furs, as ermine and broad-tail and moleskin. Besides these there are some handsome satin scarfs and capes trimmed with narrow bands of real fur, shown with hats to match like the smart affair that is shown at the right of the two figures above. Rich silk tassels and silk embroidered motifs put this in a class with the handsomest furs. Both ostrich and marabout make beautiful capes in the style of that shown at the right of the picture. Nearly all of these are in the natural taupe color of the feathers, but in ostrich capes and boas there is often a mixture of white and natural flues. Ruffs made of malines in very full platts and ruffs made of loops of wide satin ribbon are among old acquaintances that find themselves returned to favor, now that everything in neckwear proves to be of interest. They are not at all difficult to make, the platts of loops are simply stitched on to a band that lies about the neck, and they fasten with ties of narrow satin ribbon. Small chokers and other small neckpieces in furs appear to have displaced larger neckpieces and capes for summer wear and narrow scarfs of satin, finished at the ends with fringe, prove themselves a chic novelty on women who know how to wear them well. A Bodice of Ribbon. The bodice made entirely of ribbon is a feature of midsummer dances frocks—combined with skirts of either net, both silk and cotton; organdie, voile, lace and georgette.

'ALL DAY' DRESSES

One-piece dresses, to be worn in place of suits in and out of doors, received a great boost during the war. When tailors became scarce and the work of making street clothes went into the hands of dressmakers in Paris, the one-piece "all-day" dress began to replace suits. With the approval of Paris upon it, this style of street dress made great headway in America and appears to have established itself. The all-day dress, as it is called, appears, together with new suits, in the early showings of fall styles, sometimes having much the appearance of a suit and sometimes wholly different from one. These two types are shown together in the picture above. These dresses are made up in the same quiet colors and of the same materials as suits, although colors cover a wider range than are usually presented in suits, and there is more latitude in the matter of decorations. The dress at the left of the picture simulates a suit so closely that it is misleading. It will interest the girl who must soon be outfitted for college, because it is a youthful model that will see her through the fall without a wrap and prove comfortable in cold weather with the aid of a coat. It has the appearance of a suit with skirt and short box coat belted in. But the coat turns out to be only a bodice, with fronts lengthened below the narrow belt and disappearing at the sides under a seam in the skirt. It has a satin vest, prettily embroidered, and a few very large bone buttons emphasize its novel features. They are set along the side seams in which the jacket fronts lose themselves and on the odd lapsels into which the collar lengthens. Wool velour is an ideal material for a dress of this kind. The girl who aspires to look tall and slender should consider the long lines and simple composition of the dress at the right. The picture portrays it with so much fidelity that there is nothing that needs to be said about it. An underskirt of silk, with border of cloth, has the effect of a separate skirt, but the all-day dress is, above all things, convenient to put on, and this skirt is merely the lower part of a foundation that supports the dress. Any of the familiar and reliable wool suitings will serve to make these dresses.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Self-condemnation with its allied thoughts and emotions has been productive of a far greater loss in initiative, in will-power, and of a far greater degree of lowered vitality, both mental and physical, than any of us have perhaps realized.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

DISHES FOR QUICK LUNCHEON.

A choice may be made from these dishes, depending upon the foods at hand. With tomato soup and croutons for a beginning follow up with Ox Tongue and Spinach. The canned tongue may be used as well as the canned spinach. Heat the cooked tongue and place on a platter neatly sliced. Surround with chopped seasoned spinach, garnished with sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Cornbread or gems may be served with this meal, French fried potatoes and finish with Pineapple and Coconut Cup.—Cut canned pineapple in cubes and sprinkle with grated coconut; make a layer of each; sprinkle with sugar and serve in glass cups. Strawberries and pineapple, covered with a sugar syrup, make a most tasty dessert. Almost any kind of fruit or combination may be used.

Tuna Fish and Rice.—Boil one-half cupful of rice until soft and mix with a large can of tuna fish which has been flaked with a fork. Moisten with cream sauce, using one tablespoonful each of butter and flour and a half cupful of milk. Cook until smooth and thick. Season, put into individual ramekins and sprinkle with sifted crumbs over the top. Bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Corn Fritters.—To a can of kornet or finely chopped corn add two beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, and flour with a teaspoonful of baking powder to make a drop batter. Drop by teaspoonfuls into hot fat and cook until brown.

Peach Mallow.—Fill halves of canned peaches with marshmallows. Take a cup of peach juice, add a teaspoonful of corn starch and the yolk of one egg. Flavor with a few drops of almond extract, added after cooking, and pour when cool over the peaches. Serve very cold in glass dishes or stemmed sherbet cups.

Corned-Beef Hash.—Empty a can of corned beef and grind it with five potatoes through the coarse part of the meat grinder. Mix and season well. Put into a hot frying pan a tablespoonful of sweet fat; when hot add the hash. If too dry, moisten with broth, milk or water. Cook slowly until well browned, then turn out on a hot platter. Arrange poached eggs around the hash and serve hot.

How sweet and gracious, even in common speech, Is that fine sense which men call courtesy! Wholesome as air and genial as light, Welcome in every clime as breath of flowers.—It transmutes aliens into trusting friends, And gives its owner passport round the globe.—James T. Fields.

FROZEN DISHES.

There is nothing so appealing to the palate during hot weather as refreshing frozen things.

Maple Parfait.—Pour a cupful of boiling hot maple sirup over the well-beaten yolks of four eggs; add a pint of thin cream when cool and freeze as usual, by packing in ice and salt.

Golden Parfait.—Cook together one cupful of sugar, the rind of an orange, grated, and one-half cupful of water. Pour the hot sirup over the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, add a pint of cream or rich milk and freeze.

To make Nesselrode pudding, add one cupful of cooked and mashed chestnuts, one cupful of minced candied fruit soaked in orange juice until soft and one cupful of pineapple. Flavor with almond and rose and freeze as usual.

Cocoa Parfait.—Boil a cupful of sugar with one-half cupful of water ten minutes; pour the sirup over four tablespoonfuls of cocoa which has been beaten with four egg yolks; cook over hot water until of the consistency of soft custard. Beat until cold; add two cupfuls of cream which has been beaten stiff, a teaspoonful of vanilla and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Turn into a mold and pack in equal measures of ice and salt. Let stand four hours; unmold and garnish with sweetened and flavored whipped cream piped around with parfait.

Velvet Sherbet.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, the juice of three lemons and a quart of good rich milk. Freeze and let stand for two hours to ripen.

Strawberry and raspberry ice cream are most delicious. Mash a quart of the berries, strain carefully and sweeten with a sirup made of sugar and water cooked together and cooled. Add a quart of rich milk or milk and cream or thin cream, which is better; then freeze. A pinch of salt should be added to all frozen dishes. The sirup used instead of sugar in this recipe insures a firmer frozen dish.

You'll know it next morning, because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. Dodson's Liver Tonic is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tonic instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

It is especially compounded for the treatment of Eczema, Itch, Ring Worm, Tetter, and other itching skin diseases. Thousands of letters testify to its curative properties. M.
