REPUBLICAN - VICTORY IN STATE AND NATION

Latest reports in the daily papers show that the Republican ticket has carried by a small majority, which is not authentic, however, as all he returns are not. But the lead is so strong that it is almost impossible to over-hounding carried the nation by overwhelming majority, and is claimed by the Republican leaders that they will have a majority of ten in the senate and nothing like 100 in the house.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET IS ELECTED IN THE COUNTY

All the boxes from the county precincts of the county have not been received as yet, but from all reports the county went Democratic without the loss of a candidate. Only two or three offices which were anything like close. Going to the large ballot and the number voting due to the men voting, it was quite a job counting the ballots. The vote was not as heavy as was expected in the county, only about voting in this precinct with more than a thousand registered. News will give the tabulated at next week.

WORKS READY FOR PORTALES ROAD WORK

Wm. Atchison, of the Atchison Construction Company, arrived here yesterday, and will be in charge of the construction of the state highway work between this city and Texico, and south to Portales. Three car loads of grading and road building machinery have arrived, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce today.

Work of rebuilding these two important highways will start immediately, it was stated in the Journal.

CHARLIE GREATHOUSE BAGS BIG BEAR

Charlie Greathouse returned Monday from the mountains near Coos, this state where he has been hunting for the past two weeks. Besides quite a lot of small game Charlie killed a big fine bear which weighed about 350 pounds. He will tan the hide and make him a fine floor rug. Charlie is one of the best hunters in this part of the country and usually brings back the game when he goes out.

New Confectionery

A. Swaggerty & Co., last day opened up their new confectionery in the bank building to the postoffice and served shipments to all those who called on them that evening. This is one of the swiftest places of business in this part of the county and we predict a successful business for them. If you have visited their place, do so.

Fred Childs and Miss Nettie Royal were married last Sunday in Portales. Both these young people have practically grown up here and have many friends who wish them a happy and prosperous married life.

Mrs. J. P. Henderson and son, George, left this morning for Arillo, Texas, where they will spend several days visiting with Henderson's daughter, Mrs. J. Baker and family.

J. Whiteman, who has been in town for the past three or four weeks helping Clarence Whiteman build a house, returned home Monday.

George Wallis, of Elgin, was in town Wednesday of this week after some business matters. He went on to Elgin this morning where he will spend a day or so.

ANDREW WALLACE MORGAN

On the 12th day of October, Andrew Morgan so unexpectedly came to the end of this life and went to his eternal home over there. He was born September 26, 1903, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Morgan living 11 miles west of Portales.

Andrew was a very fine boy, possessing so many good qualities that made for him the possibilities of a bright and happy future, had he lived. He was a leader in the Floyd High school and loved by all his school mates. His teachers discovered his aptness and his many manly qualities. His last examination papers were well nigh perfect. It is said, not only by his parents, but by his neighbors who have known the family since Andrew was a small boy, that he was thoughtful of his father and mother to a marked degree. His efforts were to help them lighten the burdens of life and add joy to the family circle. He loved his brother most tenderly and he loved his home.

His was a clean life. His thoughts were pure, his purpose noble, his future bright. Surely a young man of the highest type has been called from among us.

It was the writer's privilege to preach at Floyd just one month before this death summons came. In that afternoon service Andrew gave his life to the Lord. How deeply was he stirred, how completely did he repent and surrender all to Christ that day. He was happy. He joined the Baptist church and was baptised with his father, brother and a number of friends. Little did we think that his life was so near the end, but four weeks later he answered when they called from up there and is now in Heaven to await the coming, one by one, of his father, mother and brother that he loved so dear.

May God bless the memory of one so kind, so pure, and so noble, and keep the surviving loved ones until they all meet again over there.

His Pastor,
J. F. NIX.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Baptist church is having some very fine services. It was like being at a real revival Sunday night, October 30th. One old lady 77 years old responded when Rev. Nix closed his sermon and called for those who felt the need of prayer. A man in middle life came forward and confessed his sins and turned to live for Christ. A young lady was converted and took a fine stand to live a Christian life. You will miss something when you fail to attend services at the Baptist church.

Card of Thanks

To all those who were so kind in helping us during those long days and nights with our darling baby in her recent and last illness we wish to extend our sincere and heartfelt thanks. Your kind faces and presence will ever be remembered. May God bless each and every one of you.

Yours in grief,
W. C. Thornton and Family.

ROGERS REPORTS

The weather has been very cold the past week.

There was singing at Mr. Autrey's Sunday night. A large crowd attended.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Creek, a big baby girl. Last Friday we had an old time spelling match at school and great interest was shown, there being two visitors present, Mrs. Braley of Portales and Mr. McCormack of this place.

The boys at school have ordered a foot ball.

The girls at school are playing basket ball now and expect to play some match games later.

Mr. Harris and family and Miss Lois Graham of Plainview attended the entertainment at Rogers last Friday night.

The boys around the community had quite a lot of fun Sunday night playing Halloween pranks.

There was quite a crowd attended the Halloween entertainment given by the 6th and 8th grades Friday night. Ghosts and Goblins and Witches were present and Jack-O-Lanterns were plentiful. Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves especially fishing. The proceeds being $11.35 for civic improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ball returned last night from the mountains where they have been for the past two or three weeks on a hunting trip. They report a nice trip and good luck.

Marriage license were issued last Saturday by County Clerk Seth A. Morrison to Mr. Raymond Graves, of Dexter, N. M., and Miss Nina Albright, of Milnesand, N. M.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

The musical program given at the Cozy Theater last night by Mrs. L. J. Whiteman's music class and assisted by Unit One of the Portales Public schools and other local talent, was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all. The proceeds, which was a nice little sum, were used to finish paying for the phonograph for the primary department of the school which was purchased with the proceeds from the Mother Goose play given by Mrs. Whiteman and pupils during the summer.

PRICES COMING DOWN

It seems that the old question of "When will prices come down again," will soon be a thing of the past as everything now points to a reduction in most all lines of merchandise and necessities. Our best evidence of this fact is that three of our merchants are now holding big price adjustment sales, namely, Joyce-Fruit Company, The Universal Garage and the Priddy & Poohee Company. Have you read their ads. If you haven't you have surely missed some bargains.

We bought in the United States this year $379,570,112 worth of chewing gum, cameras and sporting goods, essentials. Were the amount spent for Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds $22.33 it would have bought $444,000,000 in 4% bonds and would have brought in annual interest $18,570,000. Shall it be chewing gum or Liberty Notes?

For the timid investors, who have been frightened by the fluctuations of Liberty Bonds, the government issues War Savings Stamps and United Treasury Savings Certificates. They are redeemable by the government at any time and are always worth more than they cost.

IMMIGRATION FROM HOLLAND

Mr. Editor—
It would seem to me that here is a chance for the Portales Valley to secure some of the best immigrants that come to the United States.

I suggest to the Portales Commercial Club that they give the authorities of the government all the needed information and ask that they help us get some of these people.

Please publish the enclosed article.

Yours truly,
E. P. KUHLE.

Immigrants from Holland are growing more and more numerous at the port of New York and information from abroad is that thousands more will be seen during the next twelve months. The prospective movement of Hollanders to this country is so great that authorities of that government are gathering information of value to the homeseekers and aiding them in securing locations in sections where they will have the largest opportunity. Fortunately for this country most of the Hollanders who are coming are seeking homes in the country. They want to become farmers, market gardeners, stock raisers. They are experienced in their line and the government of their birth seeks to get them distributed where their chances for success are the very best.

These people have money, but they have lost it in the war. Most of them have families of boys and girls trained to work. A considerable number have accumulated their little fortunes during the war or added to their wealth and now seek to find a place where the interruptions of war will not threaten their future. They are tired of war, worn by contact with the war refugees and annoyed by the discontent and turmoil of after-war days. They seek homes in a land of peace and opportunity, they come to join the forces of production and development, to become citizens, to educate their children, and to grow ultimately into real Americans. The country may safely welcome these people. It is good to see them in such large numbers among the immigrants because there are others whose value to the country, if they are admitted, is a serious question.

Little Ophia Pearl Thornton

The Lord in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take from our midst a darling little treasure who was left at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thornton some 3 months ago. Ophia Pearl was born August 2, 1920, and was taken to rest October 30, 1920. Her stay on earth was only two months and twenty-eight days, nevertheless she endeared herself to those around her, especially father and mother.

While upon this earth she suffered intensely, but now it is over and as Jesus had said "Suffer not little children, but come unto Me and I will give you rest."

Her little mission is filled and as she lay so peaceful in her beautiful little casket, we all knew she has everlasting rest in the arms of Jesus.

Another little Angel
Before the Heavenly throne,
Thy trials ended, thy rest is won,
Sheltered and safe from sorrow,
'Twas but a flower, too good for earth,
Sleep on sweet babe and take thy rest,
God has called thee home; He thought it best,
So beloved one farewell.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Extraordinary Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa. "I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered terribly and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. You can publish this and I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 26th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

CONDENSED CLASSICS

FILE No. 113

By GABORIAN

Condensed by E. L. Anderson

Mme. Gaborian was born in Sedan, Charante Inferieure, November 9, 1833. He died at Paris, September 26, 1873. Gaborian is an admirable example of a man who arrived by finding out for himself what his real job was. Leaving his clerk, volunteer in a cavalry regiment, he was writing with modest success pieces from life as it came before his eyes, when he wrote "L'Attaque de Lorraine" in 1868. He suddenly became a European, indeed an international, character as the great master of the detective story. He has been the case with Sherlock Holmes, readers were not content with the printed page, but demanded to see upon the stage the personages who had created their wild confusions in a career of crime. "Le Dossier No. 113," "Monsieur Lecoq," "La Corda su Cou," "La Desvignolade," "Le Crime d'Orleans," "Les Escrocs de Paris," "L'Arrest des Autres," are some of the books which have revealed the mysteries of crime, the procedure of the police courts, the pursuit by ingenious sleuths, and all such processes as give a thrill of delight to that very great body of humanity ranging from grave to gay who take pleasure in a good detective story.

"AN exceptionally daring robbery—prominent bank entered—huge sum taken" were the headlines in a Paris paper. In following up this extraordinary case the mystery deepened, unheard of crimes were unearthed and thrilling situations occurred which baffled even the celebrated detective, Lecoq. It appeared that upon opening the safe one morning, the cashier started the clerks by crying out: "I have been robbed!" They gathered about, but strangely enough upon inspection, the safe showed only a scratch, but no sign of having been broken open, although the 350,000 francs were missing. The day before, in order to pay at Louis de Clameran, a friend had been left a legacy by his father, Gaston. M. Fauvel, the president of the bank, and M. Prosper Berthemy, the cashier, were the only persons who possessed keys to the door of the safe. Credited with the knowledge of the combination, through their relations had been those of father and son, each now accused the other of taking the money.

The clerks were interviewed by the police, and search was made of the apartment over the bank, occupied by the president, his wife, and engagement niece, Madeleine, whose engagement to the cashier had been mysteriously broken off—it was suspected she had some money. Valentine Fauvel's handsome nephew, Raoul Lagors, the president's record was good, but suspicion was directed toward the cashier, as he had been living extravagantly. His arrest followed, although he protested his innocence. During the inspection of the bank and the apprehending of the cashier, he was seen to scribble a line hurriedly and throw it to the clerk. The latter was allowed to the cashier's apartment and the note procured. It was addressed to Mme. Gypsy, informing her of his arrest and advising her to hide. During the examination at court, Prosper remembered that he had been indiscreet the previous night in saying to Gypsy, when perhaps he might have been overheard by the count and Raoul, that he had reason for constantly thinking of her at his work, when she accused him of not thinking of her any longer. The word Gypsy opened the safe. For lack of sufficient evidence Prosper was released and the case filed in No. 113.

On Prosper's return to his apartment, Gypsy had gone, but a note addressed in small printed letters was delivered to him containing money. The clever Lecoq, now living with Prosper, under the disguise of an old friend of his father's, revealed that the printed letters had been cut from a prayer book. Surely there was a woman in the case! Later a torn prayer book was discovered hidden in Madeleine's room. Did she love Prosper and think him innocent and in need of money? Yet soon after that, to the surprise of everyone, her engagement was announced to the old Count de Clameran. The reason for this was that Madeleine, by chance, overheard a conversation between the count and her aunt. The old count threatened to tell of the family skeleton if she did not consent to the marriage. Madeleine appeared and said she would marry him to keep the secret and the honor of the family name. On learning of Madeleine's engagement, Prosper, who really had always loved her, became very angry, and thinking there must be a sinister motive for Mme. Fauvel's allowing it, wrote an anonymous letter to M. Fauvel, telling him to watch his wife.

Lecoq noticed that the good-looking Raoul still continued his frequent visits to the house. Did it mean that he was perhaps not the nephew, but the lover of Mme. Fauvel? Disguised, the great detective attended a masquerade ball and made insinuating remarks to Mme. Fauvel covering Raoul which caused her to faint, and when he spoke of money matters, Count Louis turned pale. Returning home that night the detective was followed by two men and stabbed, but, fortunately, not killed. Lecoq, thinking he recognized the count and Raoul, decided that they realized that the police suspected them of robbing the bank, and also that there must be an even greater mystery to unravel that had caused them to become would-be assassins. Records were looked up and an amazing story came to light.

Lecoq discovered that years ago Mme. Fauvel, then Valentine de Verberie, had been engaged to the count's brother, Gaston. In defending her name at a country inn, Gaston had killed a man and fled to America, although he was thought to have been drowned while escaping. A son was born to Valentine and given away by her mother. Later she had married Fauvel, who was told nothing.

The story was never unearthed until Count Louis had squandered the family money and by mere chance had heard of the child's existence from an old nurse. He made inquiries. Not long after this, the count introduced a young man to Mme. Fauvel as his son, to serve his own ends and to extract hush-money. This young man was called her nephew and proved to be Raoul Lagors.

The situation became even more complicated. Gaston returned from America immensely rich, not knowing of the existence of his son, but determined to see his old love Valentine once more. Louis, however, realized that for his own ends, Gaston and Mme. Fauvel must never meet. He joined Gaston in the south of France and got into his good graces. Gaston made a will, leaving everything to Louis; then poor Gaston became mysteriously ill and died. Louis returned to Paris rich.

Madeleine seemed to wish to delay her marriage. The count feared she still loved Prosper, so he promised Raoul a large sum if he would in some way ruin the cashier's reputation, thinking thus to hasten his own marriage, as he really was in love with Madeleine. The moment came when Raoul overheard Prosper telling Gypsy he constantly thought of her at the bank. He then went to his mother and said he would shoot himself if he did not have a large sum of money that very night to pay a gambling debt. She got for him the key to the safe. The poor lady had already given him all her money and jewels and had nothing left to bestow. At the last moment she tried to stop him, hence the scratch that was discovered later. When she inquired how he knew the word that made up the combination, Raoul said that Prosper had given it to him and they were to divide the money between themselves.

Owing to the anonymous letter, M. Fauvel intercepted his wife's mail, and one day found a letter from Raoul asking her to go to his villa. M. Fauvel followed, and on entering and seeing his wife in the arms of the young man, pulled out his pistol to shoot, but fortunately it did not go off, as Gypsy, who had become Madeleine's maid, under Lecoq's instructions in order to watch the house, had taken out the bullets. At this point the great detective appeared and told the banker the whole story. He then demanded the 350,000 francs which had been stolen and Raoul returned the money; and what was more remarkable still, Lecoq showed them papers that proved Raoul was not Mme. Fauvel's son after all—her son had died—and the impostor was the son of a Shecky hired by the count to play the part so as to secure money from Mme. Fauvel at the time when the count was poor, before Gaston had died.

During the conversation Raoul had made his escape, but no one cared, for the Fauvels naturally wished to keep the story secret, and it ended happily for M. Fauvel forgave his wife her early indiscretions. Lecoq was just about to arrest the count for his many crimes when the wicked old man went insane and kept repeating constantly that his brother Gaston was poisoning him. Strange to relate, the great Lecoq married pretty Mme. Gypsy, whom he had known and loved for years. Prosper, of course, married Madeleine, and M. Fauvel retired from the bank. The firm is now called Prosper Berthemy & Co. This amazing record of crime still remains in the police court in Paris and can be found in file No. 113.

HELPS TO CONSOLE INSANE

Association With Others of Unbalanced Mind Said to Have Tendency to Benefit Them.

There is a tendency for many people to believe that when an insane person is put with other insane people the contact disturbs their minds, says the New York Medical Journal. On the contrary, as a rule the insane are benefited by this association. The insane grow impatient and unsettled when they are constantly associated with those who are rational, because, irrational themselves, the constant disagreements irritate them.

On the other hand, when the insane are brought in contact with those who are more irrational than themselves they derive some consolation from the fact, for even for them contentment is the feeling that things might be worse. They are often stimulated by the example of the irrationality of those around them to realize their delusions and to use their own reasoning powers to a better advantage.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (C. 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 7

PRINCIPLES OF CHRISTIAN LIVING.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 6:1-7, 12. GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matt. 6:33. ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Mark 10:23-25; Luke 11:2-4; 12:22-32. PRIMARY TOPIC—Our Heavenly Father's Care. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching How to Pray. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Golden Rules for Living. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Counsels for Daily Living.

Having set forth in the previous chapters the standard of righteousness, Christ now exhibits the underlying principles which control the heir to the kingdom.

I. As to Giving (6:1-4). Doing alms before men, is not condemned, as that would contradict Matthew 5:16, but the doing of them before men to be seen of them. To seek publicity in doing our alms is to miss the reward of our heavenly Father.

II. As to Praying (6:5-15). 1. False prayer (vv. 5, 7). This consists (1) in praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). (2) Using vain repetitions (v. 7). This does not mean that we should ask but once, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-46; II Cor. 12:7, 8), but the using of meaningless repetitions.

2. True prayer (v. 6). Since prayer is a transaction of the soul with God, we should have a real desire for fellowship with the Father, then go and meet him in secret. 3. The model prayer (vv. 9-13). This involves (1) right relationship—"Our Father" (v. 9); (2) right attitude—"Hallowed be thy name" (v. 9, 10); (3) right spirit—"Give us our daily bread," "Forgive us our sins," "Lead us not into temptation" (v. 11-13).

III. As to Fasting (vv. 16-24). The Lord knew the temptation which would befall his children in their pilgrimage here below touching worldliness, and the anxiety to which it would lead; therefore, he sets forth the proper attitude toward them:

1. The nature of earthly riches (vv. 16, 21). (1) Uncertain (vv. 19, 20). Earthly treasures corrode, or are taken from us. (2) Seductive (v. 21). Christ called riches deceitful (Matt. 13:22). It is not wrong to possess earthly treasures, but when earthly treasures possess us they become a snare.

2. The effect of earthly riches (vv. 22-24). (1) They blunt the moral and spiritual perceptions (v. 22-23). When the heart is upon earthly treasures it is taken off God. (2) They render null and void all service (v. 24).

IV. As to Faith in the Heavenly Father (vv. 25-34). 1. Be not anxious about food and clothing (vv. 25-32). Because (1) it shows distrust for God (v. 30). It is useless (v. 31). Anxiety can bring nothing. (3) It is heathenish (v. 32). Those who have not learned to know God—worry over temporal affairs, but those who know him as a loving Father should be free from care.

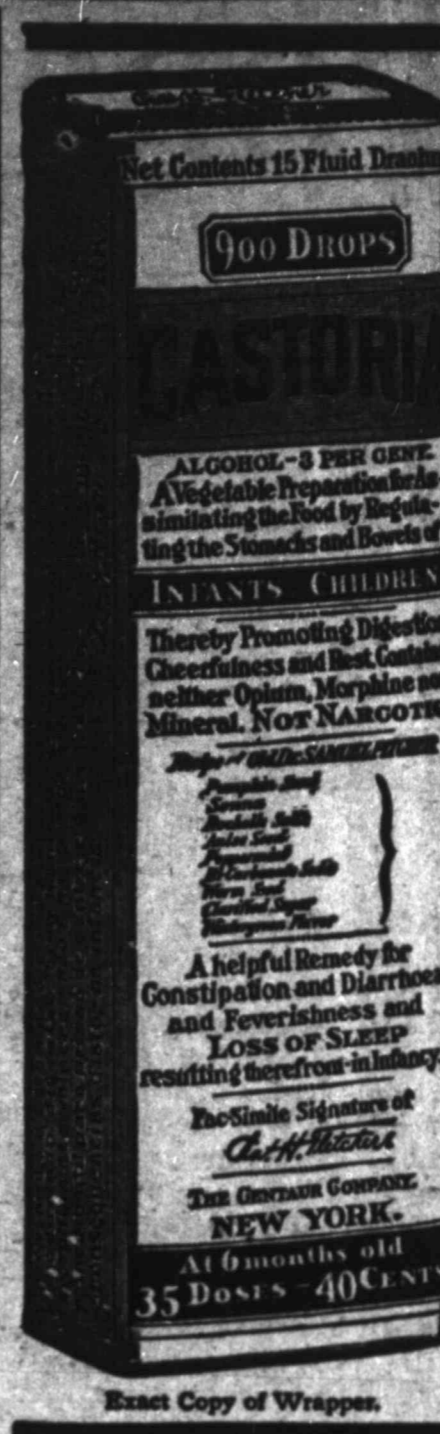

2. Be anxious to seek the kingdom of God and serve him (vv. 33, 34). This does not forbid proper forethought in making a reasonable support for one's self and family.

V. As to Censorious Judgments (7:1-12). 1. The sin and folly of censorious judgments. This does not forbid us making an estimate of the lives of those about us, for "by their fruits ye shall know them"; neither does it prevent us from administering rebuke to those who deserve it. It rebukes that readiness to blame others and to magnify their weakness and errors.

2. The duty of discrimination in dealing out holy things (v. 6). The gospel should be preached to all, but there should be discrimination, for "dogs and swine" have no comprehension as to holy things. 3. Qualification for discrimination (vv. 7-12). (1) A life of prayer (v. 7-11). A life of prayer is a requisite for rightly dividing the word of truth. (2) A disposition to treat others as one would be treated (v. 12). Confucius set forth this principle negatively, but only the Christ could do it positively. Between the negative and positive sides of this rule is found the difference between heathenism and Christianity. No man can live this rule unless he has been born from above and abides with Christ in the school of prayer, till he becomes like him.

What God Requires. What God requires is an undivided will—a yielding will, desiring only what he desires, rejecting only what he rejects, and both unreservedly. Where such a mind is, everything turns to good, and its very assessments become good works. Happy indeed is such a one.—Fenelon.

When Death Comes. When death, the great reconciler, has come, it is never our tenderness that we regret, but our severity.—George Eliot.

MILL GIRLS MARRY YOUNG HAD FAITH IN OLD ADAGE

Many Villages in the South Where There Are Absolutely No Old Maids Found. A village without an old maid sounds somewhat like a fairy tale, but several such places exist down below the Mason and Dixon line.

John D. Rockefeller Enters Mean Man He Once Knew in the Championship Stake.

"All the women get married in the mill villages of South Carolina, and at an early age," says a Y. W. C. A. industrial secretary stationed at Greenville, where she works among the girls in 13 mills. Perhaps economic independence has something to do with it, as marriage is not looked upon by the girls as a meal ticket, but as a fifty-fifty proposition.

John D. Rockefeller once said to a New York reporter: "The poorest way to wealth is the mean way. In Richmond, where I was born, we had a mean man, a very mean man, yet the fortune he left was a small one—you might say a mean one."

The Likeness. "A wit in respect is like an appreciative dog." "What is it?" "Because with both, the wag is always ready with a tale."

"At a church supper one night this man cut the corner of his lip with his knife. All searched their pocketbooks, but nobody had any court-plaster. What was to be done? The cut was bleeding.

Never Tires. "A woman's tongue is unlike any other engine of action."

Correct. A few days ago the public library gave an examination to the young women who wished to enter a library class. Among the questions concerning current events was, "Who is Babe Ruth?" One of the girls exclaimed, "Well, at least I know the answer to that one," and wrote, "Babe Ruth is a race horse."—Indianapolis News.

DODSON STOPS SALE OF CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" is Taking Place of Dangerous, Sickening Chemical, Say Druggists

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it," Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Adv.

AT LEAST ONE GIRL SORRY

Veteran Had to Confess He Left Behind Him in France One Sorrowful Maiden.

The moon was full, the summer night was balmy, the hammock was built for two, and it seemed a shame to break it all up.

"Jack," she asked, "was there a girl in France who was sorry to see you go?"

"I'd rather you didn't ask me that question, dear," he said.

"But I must know. We're engaged and you should tell me everything," she insisted.

"Dear, I don't like to talk about it."

"Oh, Jack, how could you when all the time you were engaged to me?"

"Listen a minute and I'll give you the whole story," he said in desperation. "Ede was—"

"Well?"

"She was my laundress. I owed her 12 francs."—Boston Globe.

Origin of Dollar Mark.
Some claim that it is a modification of the English symbol (£) for the pound. Another explanation is that it came from the letters D. S. written one over the other. Yet another theory is that the two upright marks represent two pillars of brass before the temple of Solomon, which early appeared on our coins and became intertwined with a scroll.

Sculptors now make use of the camera as a means of verifying the work of their chisels.

Was the longevity of the ancients due to the scarcity of medical college graduates? Certainly not.

LEAD WORLD IN TELEPHONES

Americans, With Their Business Instinct, Have Naturally Taken Kindly to the Instrument.

The telephone is an American invention, and we Americans have learned to use it better than any other people. Four-fifths of the world's telephones are in the United States. No other country has the exchange system developed to give such convenient service. In some of the most progressive European countries the exchange system is so cumbersome that it usually requires ten or fifteen minutes to get a connection.

The telephone in this country has expedited the transaction of business. Without our efficient telephone service, the work of most of our great industries would be slowed up and made more expensive. No other country has a rural system that compares with ours. The telephone has definitely affected and molded our business methods and our social and domestic life.—Alfred Westfall, Colorado Agricultural College.

Not Bad.
Amelia was four and full of initiative. The other day she removed three gold fish from their bowl and laid them out carefully on the library table. A little later, when her mother found them there dead, she exclaimed: "My, Amelia, but you are bad!" "No," Amelia said calmly. "I am not bad. I am cute."

Be of good courage; that is the main thing.—Thoreau.

KEEP SUITABLE FARM ACCOUNTS

Farming is a Profession and Must Be Conducted in a Businesslike Manner

HELPS CREDIT AT THE BANK

Once the Principles of Bookkeeping Are Understood a Simple System Can Be Developed to Meet the Farmer's Needs.

Farmer Jones desired to negotiate a loan at his local bank.

"Just what is your financial condition?" the banker asked him.

"Why," said Jones, "I own a house and land, and a couple of horses and some cows and live stock, and an orchard and—"

"Have you a detailed inventory showing the value of these things?" the banker interrupted him.

"No—o," the farmer replied. "I haven't time to bother keeping books."

"Good gracious, man!" exclaimed the banker, "anyone can keep books. The way the thing's worked out nowadays it doesn't require more than five minutes' work a day. Then when you come here for a loan you could produce a sheet of paper and say, 'Here's what I've got, here's what I owe, and here's what I'd have in cash if I sold out tomorrow.' As it is, I'm afraid I can't let you have the money until I have this information."

This conversation takes place in hundreds of towns every day, according to specialists of the office of farm management and farm economics, United States department of agriculture. Of course farmers are very busy men. They haven't the time to study complicated accounting methods. But, according to the federal specialists, once the principles of bookkeeping are understood and all farm conditions studied, a simple system of bookkeeping can be developed to meet the farmer's needs.

Show Assets and Liabilities.
The foundation of any set of books is an inventory showing the farmer's assets and liabilities. The assets include real estate, live stock, machinery and tools, produce, feed and supplies, cash on hand and in bank, and accounts receivable at the date the inventory is taken. Each item under these headings should be listed separately. Real estate should be valued at what it can be sold for under normal conditions; live stock, feed and farm produce at market prices, less cost of marketing; farm supplies at cost; machinery and tools at a price allowing for annual depreciation. The liabilities should include mortgages, notes and accounts payable. The sum of the liabilities deducted from the total assets will show the farmer's net worth.

Farmer's Wife Proves an Able Assistant in Keeping Farm Accounts.

Classification of Accounts.
While an inventory is generally the first thing a banker asks for when making a loan he also wants to know the sources of income. By going just a little further the farmer can keep records that will enable him to know his profits and losses. This requires a classification of accounts in which certain principles should be followed. The precise classification to be used is determined by the prevailing conditions on the farm in question.

Full details regarding the various phases of farm bookkeeping are contained in Farmers' Bulletin 511, "Farm Bookkeeping;" Farmers' Bulletin 572, "A System of Farm Cost Accounting," and Farmers' Bulletin 782, "The Use of a Diary for Farm Accounts." These bulletins can be had upon request of the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

APPLICATION OF PHOSPHATE

On Poorly Managed Farms a Mixed Fertilizer Can Undoubtedly Be Used With Profit.

"Knowing that corn receives much manure and usually follows clover on well-managed farms, a logical investment," says Prof. F. M. E. Bear of the soils department of the Ohio State university, "is in a larger application of phosphate." On farms that have been poorly managed, a mixed fertilizer can undoubtedly be used with profit. He says that until such a time as the price of potash is materially reduced, it would appear that it is wise for the farmer to invest liberally in limestone, phosphate and clover seed.

HOW TO SELECT BEEF CALF AND RAISE IT

Bulletin Written Especially for Young Farmers.

Desirable and Undesirable Types of Calves Are Discussed and Illustrated—Importance of Changing Its Ration.

For the prodigal who has finally turned away from growing inferior, unprofitable, and uninteresting live stock the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared a special farmers' bulletin, No. 1135. Under the title "The Beef Calf: Its Growth and Development," this new publication, written principally for young farmers, tells how to select a beef calf and raise it either for market or for use as a breeding animal.

A Good Type of Bull Calf.

The bulletin is a response to an unusual demand by members of boys' and girls' clubs for specific information on the principles and practices of raising well-bred calves, preparing them for show or sale, and disposing of them to advantage. Desirable and undesirable types of calves are discussed and illustrated.

There are chapters on equipment needed, keeping the calf healthy, feeding, and the importance of changing the ration as the animal develops, also methods of preventing parasites and disease. The bulletin describes clearly how to clip, curl, or otherwise prepare the coat of the various breeds of cattle preparatory to showing them, with additional directions regarding shipping and exhibiting. Persons desiring such information should write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin 1135.

PLOW LEVEL SOILS IN FALL

Stubborn Soda Are More Surely Exterminated and Moisture Supply is Greatly Increased.

If all ground was level we might make the assertion that all soils are benefited by fall plowing as there is much to be gained through this practice. Level soils that do not wash are benefited since stubborn sods are more easily exterminated and the moisture supply for the crop the following spring is greatly increased; however, hilly land or that inclined to wash is damaged by being fall plowed. The available plant foods are washed out, gullies are made in the hillsides and the fields are subject to weathering during the winter. The fertility of sandy soils or soils that are rolling is best conserved by plowing only in the spring and then as late as possible in order to get the crop out on time.

SUGAR BEET CROP IS LARGE

Bureau of Crop Estimates Puts Total at Nearly Nine Million Tons—Hits Sugar Prices.

According to the bureau of crop estimates the United States will harvest this year nearly 9,000,000 tons of beets or 2,000,000 tons more than the normal crop. Normally in the United States we produce about 17 pounds of beet sugar per capita, whereas this year we shall produce about 21 or 22 pounds of beet sugar per capita. This extra four or five pounds of beet sugar will doubtless have something to do with reducing sugar prices to a more reasonable basis during the next year.

FRESH AIR QUITE IMPORTANT

Chicken House Should Be Provided With Good Ventilating System Without Drafts.

Chickens seem to require more fresh air than do cattle or swine. An authority even says the amount of air breathed by a hen is three times greater than that required by cows or pigs. Give the poultry house plenty of ventilation without drafts; plenty of oxygen without cracks for the wind to enter.

TIME LOST TO MAKE REPAIRS

Farmer Would Not Be Compelled to Stop to Fix Machines if Given Proper Attention.

Man is like a machine. If kept in good working order each day he will seldom have to stop for repairs. More time is lost in making repairs than could possibly be used in taking care of machines in order to prevent the necessity of repairs.

COUNTY SUPT. McDONALD QUOTES JAS. J. HILL

Dallas, Texas.--"It is a brutal bed rock truth, that James J. Hill uttered when he said, 'If you want to know if you are going to be a success or a failure in life, the test is simple and infallible; are you able to save money? If not, drop out. You will fail as sure as you live. You may not think so, but the seed of success is not in you,'" said A. F. McDonald, County Superintendent of Dallas County, when a representative of the Savings Division had advocated children saving and investing in War Savings Stamps and other government Savings Securities.

"That saying of Hill is plastered all over my boy's room. It is on the head of his bed; it is stuck on his mirror, it is glued into his bank book, he sees it on his check book. I try to have him form the habit of asking himself whenever he spends, 'am I buying something worth, to me, what it costs?' He is now headed on that path. If he reads it continually, there is nothing to fear for his future. He will own his share of Treasury Certificates and Liberty Bonds."

If I Had a Thousand Dollars

How many times have you said that? Perhaps you could have closed a deal or made an investment that would have meant future independence.

A thousand dollars seems like a lot of money, but it is made up of dollars, fives, tens and twenties; is made of cigars, coco-colas, silk shirts, candy, cold drinks, silk stockings and expensive hats.

Unless you know how to use $10 you wouldn't know how to use $1,000. Use your $10 right by saving part of all you get, and you are very likely to get the thousand dollars.

RED CROSS RELIEF IN CENTRAL EUROPE

But for timely assistance of the American Red Cross during the last year, a large proportion of the 20,000,000 population of the Balkan States might have starved or perished from disease or exposure. Six million dollars worth of food, clothing and medical supplies have been sent to the Balkans—Roumania, Bulgaria, Albania, Montenegro, Serbia, Bosnia and Greece—since the beginning of Red Cross relief operations in Central Europe, while millions of dollars worth of food alone has been sent to the needy in these states.

The money expended by the Red Cross in this stricken portion of Europe has been used to set up hospitals, orphanages, dispensaries, mobile medical units and to help in the general reconstruction of devastated areas. American tractors and other farming implements have been sent to the agricultural regions where aid has been given in plowing the land.

By the last of this year probably all American Red Cross agencies administering relief in Central Europe will have withdrawn. By that time, it is believed, the people will have approached a normal state of living and will be able through their own agencies which the Red Cross has helped set up to provide for themselves.

HE TRAVELED ALL OVER THE WORLD

But Tanlac Helped Him More Than Treatments Here, In Europe and in South America.

"I have been treated for indigestion in France, Italy, Switzerland, North and South America and in fact all over the world, but Tanlac is the only thing I have ever found to do me much good," said H. L. Finniger watch-maker for Nathan Behramann & Co., San Francisco, Cal., living at 36 Plato St.

"Always after eating, continued Mr. Finniger, 'I would have such cramps in my stomach that I could hardly stand it. I had fallen off until I weighed only ninety-eight pounds and was so nervous the least little thing would upset me. I could sleep but little and got up in the mornings feeling all fagged out. My strength and energy left me and I felt like I would have to give up entirely. Besides taking every thing in the way of treatments and medicines I tried dieting and the erst cure, but never got more than a little passing relief. 'The way Tanlac brought me out is marvelous, I can eat anything now without any trouble afterwards, I have gained twenty pounds and my nerves are steady as a clock. I sleep fine every night and get up in the mornings ready for a good breakfast and a full day's work, and am enjoying better health than I have in years." Tanlac is sold in Portales by Ed J. Neer and in LaLands by the Reynolds Drug Co. adv

SWIFT AND ARMOUR WISH

PART OF BUSINESS

PRINCE IS TO HEAD NEW FIRM

The New Company Will Offer to the General Public the Sale of Shares
In Its Syndicate at All the National Stock Yards.

Washington.—Swift & company and Armour & company filed in the District of Columbia supreme court a new plan for disposing of their interest in stock yards, terminal railroads and terminal railroads and market newspapers. It was understood that Wilson & company would adhere to this plan, but Morrie & company and the Cudahy company were not a party to it.

Justice Stafford set November 8 as the final date for the department of justice to file objections to the new proposal, but Isadore Kressel, special assistant to the attorney general, indicated that the department would file no objection, if the court's order providing the plan into effect provided that the proposal did not conflict with existing legislation.

FARMERS ASK NEW CREDIT

Crop Holding Threatened Until Financial Aid is Given Them.

Washington.—Labor leaders participated with representatives of farmers from over the country in a further conference to devise ways and means of obtaining credits for "the orderly marketing of farm products. Failure to secure such credits, the speakers declared, might result in the inauguration of a general crop holding movement until market prices would provide cost of production and a reasonable profit. A general committee to draw up a policy to be followed by the conference was appointed, with John Tromble of Kansas as chairman and all the various agricultural interests represented. It went into executive session immediately.

Further conferences might be sought with the treasury department and the federal reserve board, it was said, and congress asked for relief if it could not be obtained otherwise.
The conference met on call of the committee appointed by a recent similar gathering to receive the answer of the federal reserve board to the plea for more credits. The statement of the board was declared by this committee to be unsatisfactory.

A loan of $1,000,000,000 by the United States to Germany was one plan laid before the policy committee.
Property of Germany and the German nationalities seized by the alien property custodian and claims arising from the seizure of German shipping would be offered as additional security. Mr.
Branan of New York said. Germany was ready to purchase $200,000,000 worth of agricultural products immediately, he asserted, on such an extension of credit.

Farmers Urged to Hold Products

Des Moines, Iowa.—Iowa farmers were urged to hold from market their commodities for the present by E. C.
Cunningham, secretary of the Iowa based his attitude on the recent changes in market prices of farm commodities.

Hope for Strikers Given Up

Cork.—Relatives of the hunger striking prisoners in Cork jail said the government would release the refused medical treatment.

BRITISH PLAN TO END STRIKE THE LEADERS FAVOR AN IM- MEDIATE SETTLEMENT

The Agreement is Skillfully Arranged So That All Concerned Will Be Interested in Increasing Output.

London.—The prospect is that the coal strike will terminate by the end of the week through the miners' acceptance of the agreement arranged with the government under which the miners will get two shillings advance unconditionally until the end of the year and in the future their wages will be settled by the creation of a national wage board.

In the event of any delay in starting the wage board, wages will in the interval be settled on the basis of increase or decrease, according to surplus profits or otherwise from coal exports. This depends upon such complex calculations as to render it hardly possible for any minor to understand; therefore in the ballot to be taken and made returnable, the miners must necessarily be guided by the recommendation of their leaders. The leaders favor a settlement on these terms.

The agreement is skillfully arranged, so that all concerned, including the coal owners, will be interested in increasing the output, as in case of a decreased output the owners will be penalized by a reduction in their 10 percentage share of the surplus profits.

PROPOSED LAW PROTESTED

Deaf Act Would Be Menace to Friendly Relations With Japan.

Tokio.—The political affairs committee of the Keisei-Kai opposition has adopted the following resolutions:
"Resolved, That the anti-Japanese legislation in California is not merely a threat against development of the Japanese nation abroad, but also a menace to the advancement of international friendships between this empire and America.

"Viewed either from the standpoint of humanity and justice, or the standpoint of Japan's rights acquired by treaty stipulations or from the principle of friendship binding two neighboring nations, such unreasonable and unjust legislation cannot be tolerated.

BRITAIN'S NOTE A SURPRISE

England Renounces Right to Seize Property.

Berlin.—England, by its formal notice upon Germany through the British ambassador, that Great Britain renounces any right it may have under the treaty of Versailles to seize German property in England or elsewhere where the British government might be able to lay hands on it to meet any default on the part of Germany in meeting reparations, came as a surprise to Germany.

This action of Great Britain unquestionably made a profound impression on the German public regardless of whatever reasons may lie behind such an apparently magnanimous decision.

zens, Arthur L. Moseley and Gustave

it was said, might have been Ignacio ber 1 for himself and wife and two children to visit relatives in Mexico.

volved in a concession for construction

OKLAHOMA CITY IS PARTLY INUNDATED

MAY DO $200,000 DAMAGE
AT WATER SITE WEST
OF THE CITY

WORST IN HISTORY OF THE CITY

Many Blocks Are Inundated and From 700 to 1,200 People Are Out of Their Homes as North Canadian Continues to Rise.

Oklahoma City.—While the main dam at the city water supply, twelve miles west of the city, is safe, the bypass embankment and the diversion dam, which separates the main lake from the settling basin, are in danger of destruction, with a loss of more than $200,000 to the city, the commissioner of public property declared.

Water at the reservoir is higher than it has been since the dam was built. He declared positively that a further rise of four feet would destroy both the by-pass embankment and the diversion dam, but asserted that information indicates that the water will go not more than twenty inches higher at the dam.

The water at the dam has been rising at a rate of a foot an hour for some time.

Interurban Service May Be Hampered
Washing out of the diversion dam would mean a loss of a part of the track of the interurban car line to El Seno.

The commissioner declared Wheeler park may be flooded any minute and that two Grand boulevard bridges probably will be destroyed. A part of the animals of the zoo at Wheeler park were removed to a safe place of keeping. A part of one of the boulevard bridges west of O. Packington went down stream.

Thirty-ninth street road to Yukon was impassable and the Tenth street bridge is likely to go at any minute.

A crew of a dozen men has been kept at the by-pass bridge near Lakeside Country club to remove driftwood.

The water has risen above the rip-rap on the by-pass embankment, it is asserted. Now it is leaping up against an embankment only of earth,
which may do much damage.

The force of the current above the water reservoir uprooted large trees and stripped the banks of underbrush.
A force of men was kept working removing the logs and debris from the maddened stream before they could do damage to the reservoir structure.
The current above the dam is the swiftest on record, it is said.

It is estimated that fifty blocks of the residence districts in low lands are flooded in south and east parts of the city and from 700 to 1,200 people are homeless on account of the rise in the river.

The flood has inundated South Rob-bison street and Exchange avenue for three to six blocks on each side of the bridge and it makes traffic impassable
to both Packington and Capitol Hill, although the street cars are still running.

The waters which rushed across the pavement to add their might to the yellow waste which engulfed the lowlands east of the street threatened to tear away the levee protecting the Choate Oil corporation refinery. A force of nearly fifty men was stationed along the top of the levee to act in case of the slightest break.

Railroads were notified to keep a close watch on their property and gangs were stationed at low points.

The water stood less than a foot below the road level at the South Walker avenue bridge. The bridge is in danger.

The baseball park is a lake. Exchange avenue is submerged in water knee deep. The lowlands north of the street are flooded completely. Further rise may force Packington car service to be discontinued.

R. R. ASK NEW INCREASE?

Net Revenue Stationary Despite Jump in Income, Reports Show.

Washington.—That the railroads of the country are preparing to demand another increase in freight and passenger fares on the ground that the increases granted last August have been swallowed up in the higher cost of operation is apparent from reports received by the interstate commerce commission.

The reports thus far received indicate that the roads will claim that although their gross returns have been increased the net revenues have remained practically stationary. The increased cost of labor and the cost of coal are cited by the railroads as reasons why the net returns are not larger.

DEATH FARMER'S PENALTY

cember 28. Hughes interrupted his mune. He said he killed Mankins in order to get possession of his wagon

DEATH TAKES KING OF GREECE AFTER WEEKS OF SUFFER- ING FROM MONKEY BITE

End Came At Athens.—Famous European Specialist Failed in Fight
To Save His Life.

Athens.—King Alexander of Greece is dead. His death was due to wounds received when a pet monkey attacked him early in October, the king being badly mutilated.

King Alexander became king of Greece on June 17, 1917, when his father, King Constantine, abdicated and fled from the country following a political disturbance.

His death was due to the bites of two monkeys inflicted on October 2
when King Alexander defended his favorite dog from an attack while he was walking in the park at the royal palace at Athens.

According to the story told in the dispatches the king's dog was attacked by a female monkey. When the king attempted to drive her away with his stick she fought back and inflicted a slight injury in one of the king's hands. The mate of the female monkey rushed violently to her defense and severely lacerated a gland in the king's thigh.

Both monkeys were afterward
found to be diseased and were killed.
A rumor which credited the famous French specialist, Dr. Vidal, who was urried to the bedside of the king, with the declaration that the monkeys had been inoculated with rabies in a deliberate plan to poison the king

King Alexander of Greece
has been rigorously denied by Dr.
Vidal, who recently returned to Paris.

Since being bitten by the monkeys
the condition of the king has gradually increased in a seriousness and little hope was at any time held out for his recovery.

The death of King Alexander gives rise to the question of succession to the Greek throne. Former King Constantine was reported, according to Swiss dispatches of October 17, as intending to take advantage of the situation created by his son's grave illness by returning to Greece and claiming the throne.

About the same time a regency was suggested and Constantine gave his opinion of this as follows:
"Sufficient unto the day is the evil
yet. My plans are those of my people."

Premier Venizelos expressed himself as confident that Prince Paul, Con-stantine's third son, would not be prevented from taking the throne of his father, as the latter would learn from the coming elections that there was no prospect for his return.

FAST LASTS FOR 73 DAYS

Mrs. MacSwiney Not With Him When End Came.

London.—Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, the most prominent of the Irish hunger strikers and said to have been the brains of the republican army in Ireland died in Brixton prison.

The end was not unexpected, for the lord-mayor had been unconscious several days. He was entering upon the seventy-fourth day of his hunger strike as a protest against a sentence of two years imprisonment on several charges, including one of having seditionous documents in his possession.

Only his brother, John MacSwiney,
and his private chaplain, Father
Domino, were with him when he died.
Mrs. MacSwiney and his two sisters were at a nearby hotel.

The lord mayor, who was terribly emaciated, as a result of his long abstinence from food, had been delirious many hours, and was unconscious when death came.

SOUND ADVICE ABOUT EATING

Alabama Lady Says We impose on Nature by Overeating, but Thedford's Black-Draught Will Make You Feel Better.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Recommending Thedford's Black-Draught to her friends and neighbors, Mrs. Mary Manning, of this place, says: "I never have and never expect to find better medicine than Black-Draught. When I've had a cold and needed a laxative, I used Black-Draught. I use it for sour stomach, headache and indigestion, and it does the work.

"I believe most ills we have are caused from inactive liver. We impose on nature by overeating, and then the liver don't act. We get lax and no-account. It is hard for us to do our work, and we'd get real sick if we didn't take something. The best remedy I have found yet is Black-Draught. It doesn't leave you complicated, and I feel better after taking a round of it."

THE MAN WHO WASN'T HIMSELF

ROBERT AMES BENNET

COPYRIGHT BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

"YOU BLACKMAILER!"

SYNOPSIS.—Alighting from a train at Denver a traveler is greeted as "Will" by an elderly lady and gentleman, who stop their auto to speak...

"As a friend of the—that is, of Mr. Lowrie," he remarked, "may I be permitted to suggest that this idea of his about a conspiracy rather supports Doctor Kirkland's theory of irresponsibility."

"Fardon me," remarked Bennet somewhat diffidently. "I wish to say I happen to know that the—er—party representing the bank in this matter is inclined to accept my theory that our friend disposed of—that is to say, misplaced the bonds while mentally irresponsible."

"Then why have they acted so outrageously to him?" demanded Amy. "Had he not attempted to leave town, y' know—"

"That is the worst of it!" exclaimed Mrs. Kirkland. "The publicity! The scandal!"

"Madam," reassured the official, "there has been no publicity so far; and there need be none if Mr. Lowrie can account for the bonds. We here are the only ones who know of his arrest, except the plain-clothes man who caught him at the depot. He won't leak."

"One moment, officer, if you please," interrupted Doctor Kirkland. He fixed his keen gaze on Clinton. "If released from custody would you leave town?" Clinton looked at Amy, and suddenly his anger vanished. He even smiled as he answered: "Those who dance must pay the piper. I could have telegraphed for my proofs; I could have told you all about my life. But I was too stubborn to do either. Bennet and this official refuse to believe my full statement about myself and my business. Therefore I now refuse to telegraph or say anything more, except that I no longer have any wish to go away. I wish to stay, even though it be in jail, until you have disproved this ridiculous charge and I am free to—"

He looked at Amy, smiled and strolled over to gaze at a photograph in the far corner of the room. Amy glided after him, to stand by his side and fondle his hand in silent sympathy. Ellen looked longingly at the couple, but lingered to hear what her father was saying to the official.

"This charge of conspiracy clearly indicates his delusional predisposition. You have my word, sir, that he was and is mentally irresponsible for his actions, in the full legal sense of the term."

The official looked his concern. "Bor-ry, doctor, but in the case of a warrant—"

"Very true," agreed the physician. "He must be kept in custody, unless admitted to bail. That does not prevent you from deputizing me and placing him in my custody. What he requires is sanitarium treatment. Confinement in jail would probably shatter his mind beyond all hope of recovery. The sanitarium, on the contrary, may restore him to his old self and enable him to remember how he lost the bonds."

Bennet smiled suavely at the police official. "Ah. In that case I venture to request you to accede to Doctor Kirkland's suggestion. I feel sure you may safely intrust Mr. Lowrie in his custody. Consider me as the doctor's second-in-command—what is the term?—his guarantor, if I am considered to have any standing."

"H'm," muttered the official. "It's a queer case. Well, I guess I'll take the responsibility of deputizing Doctor Kirkland and entrusting the prisoner to his custody. There's no precedent for it; but considering the circumstances and the fact that the doctor has often helped out the department with expert advice, I'll risk it."

The physician bowed in acknowledgment and walked over to Clinton. "My boy," he said, "we cannot compel you to give over your fancied idea of a conspiracy against you. However, our friend here has agreed to see you at liberty on my recognition. All I ask of you is your word as a gentleman that you will remain in Denver until cleared of this charge."

Clinton turned and impulsively held out his hand. "Doctor, I beg your pardon for my suspicion. It was the only way I could account for the persistence of everybody in identifying me with Mr. Lowrie. I see that I must have been mistaken. I give you my word that I will not leave town until I am cleared of this false and ridiculous charge."

"We shall stay with Amy until her— your mother returns," rather hastily remarked Mrs. Kirkland. She covered the betrayal of the doubt that troubled her with a smile, gracious and cordial: "And now you and Amy must come home to lunch with us."

"And Charlie, too," added Ellen. "He was so thoughtful, phoning to us." "Will is my best friend," said Bennet, looking at Amy. She gave him a grateful glance. He started for the door. "Count on me. I'd like to go with you, but I shall hunt up Will's suitcase and take it home for him on my way."

CHAPTER X.

Blackmail.

When Bennet drove up to the Kirkland residence in his big touring car he found Clinton dozing in a swing-bench, and the girls on guard over him. Each had her charming nose in a magazine that she might not be tempted to chatter and thereby disturb the repose of their drowsy charge.

Bennet's arrival roused Clinton, and for some time the four talked on impersonal topics. At last Ellen and Amy went inside. Bennet promptly shifted to a seat near Clinton and remarked in a sympathetic tone: "That was rotten—their serving you with a warrant. But I suppose they thought they were justified, when you started to leave town."

"That Was Rotten—Their Serving You With a Warrant"

"I suppose so," acquiesced Clinton. "The fact, however, is that nothing was further from my thoughts than these Lowrie bonds."

"Frankly," said Bennet, "what puzzles me is that you wished to go at all. You had agreed to stay, and we were all trying our best to treat you well."

"I presume the police searched my suitcase," irrelevantly observed Clinton. "To tell Bennet about Amy's visit to his room was unthinkable."

"You left it at Miss Lowrie's?" "Yes."

"That was very kind of you." "Don't mention it—I'm, old man, I've been wanting to talk with you about your—about Miss Amy."

"I fall to take you," said Clinton. "You forget that I am not your friend, Will Lowrie."

"Friend!" muttered Bennet. He forced a smile. "You're the one that has forgotten your identity. But, unluckily for me, you still retain an impression—or, as Doctor Kirkland would say, a subconscious memory—of your opposition to me."

"Must I repeat—?" "No. Yet you cannot deny you have this feeling, this prejudice against me, with regard to Amy."

"You refer to Miss Lowrie, I presume." "Dence take it!" exclaimed Bennet. "Haven't I stood your friend in this police affair? Am I not entitled to some consideration from you?"

"Very well," said Clinton. "Now if you will kindly proceed to elucidate what you are driving at."

"Right-O! We're getting down to bedrock," replied Bennet. "You're listening to me as her brother; you have my word that I am not so frivolous or fast—as I am said to be; and you know how I regard your sister. I may not be as desirable a match as some; but I am eligible, as you know, and though I seem to be doing nothing, I really am engaged in a serious and ambitious vocation."

"Due moment," said Clinton. "You insisted that I play the part of Miss Lowrie's brother; but I have not asked for any confidences from you. Kindly remember that you are speaking to a stranger."

"Indeed? Really now, you can't fancy you can shut me off the track at this stage of the game," scoffed Bennet. "A man in your situation might be expected to catch at hints. Perhaps your head really is added—I'll give you the benefit of the doubt."

"Thanks," said Clinton. "If it is not added, you certainly are a cool one," rejoined Bennet. "Don't you realize what a hole you are in over those bonds? Admitting for the sake of the argument that you remember nothing about them, I will explain that I know enough of what you did to—put you through."

"Most kind of you to tell me, Mr. Bennet." Bennet's gray-brown eyes lost their deceptive shallowness. Clinton looked into their depths and saw the man behind the jester. His steely glance struck flint instead of rubber. But Bennet's voice was very soft: "You see, old man, it is still a matter between friends. All you need do is to find the bonds, or their equivalent in money, if they have been disposed of. Doctor Kirkland believes you were irresponsible. If you have used any of the—er—proceeds, there's no doubt he will advance you the amount. If that is done—the bank reimbursed, y'know—the bank will accept his theory of your mental condition, and will allow the matter to be hushed up. This is provided I forget certain facts that, if recalled by me, would knock the doctor's hypothesis into a cocked hat."

"So—you remember certain facts?" muttered Clinton. "My dear Will, let us say that I do not now remember them. One may easily forget, where a friend is concerned. All I ask is that you, in turn, show your friendship by intimating the situation to Am—er—Miss Lowrie. Nothing raw, y'know. Just a hint. She admits that she likes me, and you know how she is. A word from you in my favor, and she would at once—"

For all his quickness, Bennet was not quick enough to elude the hand that shot out to clutch his collar. He pulled back to free himself. In the same instant Clinton rose over him, white with anger. Without a word, Clinton jerked him to his feet, whirled him around and rushed him to the head of the porch steps. Clinton's shoe assisted his flight down the steps.

The audacity even more than the suddenness of the attack had paralyzed Bennet's power of resistance. The spell was broken by the shock of his landing on the hard cement walk at the foot of the steps. He scrambled to his feet, his face twitching with fury. He put his hand to his hip.

"Drop that hand," ordered Clinton in a tone barely above a whisper. Bennet's furious glance fell before the look in Clinton's eyes. His hand slipped down, away from the hip-pocket. Clinton descended a step, and spoke in the same low-pitched tone: "You blackmailer—you cur! Get out of here!"

He sprang to meet and sweep her back into the house.

"No—not out here!" he muttered—"Private, where none can see or hear—till he comes back—The cur! the d-darned cur!"

"Hush! hush, dear!" urged the girl, putting up a hand over his mouth. "Oh, Will!" cried Ellen in the entrance of the drawing room. "You swore!"

"The scoundrel! The—the—" Clinton choked with wrath. Between them, the girls hurried him into a secluded room where he could not be heard. There he found voice; but the words that burst forth were so incoherent with rage that neither girl could understand what he said. Overcome with dread of his wild outburst, Ellen fled to tell her mother that he had become violently insane.

Mrs. Kirkland hastened to telephone the calamitous news to her husband. As soon as she received his promise to at once come home, she started to the rescue of Amy, timidly followed by Ellen. With a trepidation that by contrast emphasized her moral courage, the lady opened the door of the room in which Ellen had left the maniac. No sound came from within. Her palor increased. Shuddering with dread of what might be within, she rushed into the room. Ellen followed, still more fearful of what they might find.

"Drop That Hand," Ordered Clinton.

Clinton was reposing in the depths of a big "sleepy-hollow" chair, as peaceful and still as if asleep. Amy, perched on the arm of the chair, was stroking his forehead and closed eyes. She looked about at the intruders and touched her lips for silence. But her patient had opened his eyes. At sight of the frightened ladies, he captured Amy's hand and sat up in the chair, his face red with embarrassment.

"Oh keep your seat! Do not disturb yourself! Be calm!" urged Mrs. Kirkland.

Amy freed an arm and slipped it about his neck. "You are calm now. Aren't you, dear?" she cooed.

"Yes—yes, of course," mumbled Clinton, but his color deepened.

"But, dearest," murmured Ellen, "you must be dizzy. You look so queer."

Clinton's expression became still more peculiar. His features were convulsed. He wagged his hands. "This—this—," he gasped. "Whatever I—I Don't you—Chocolate Soldier?"

They looked at one another in acute alarm. There now could be no doubt as to his condition. He sought to explain: "The—the opera."

"Opera?" repeated Amy. "Oh, yes—yes, we understand, dear. You are reminded of that opera, when the hero comes into the castle and the ladies make such a fuss of him. Yes, dear, we understand. So now hush and be quiet."

But instead of obeying, he flung himself back in the chair and burst into a roar of laughter. The outburst was far more violent than the first. It did not end until he lay helpless from spent emotion, tears rolling down his cheeks, and his hands feebly beating the arms of the chair. Mrs. Kirkland hovered over him, ready with the bottle of lavender salts. On either side of him knelt Amy and Ellen, each with her arm about his neck, her head against his shoulder, and a hand stroking his face.
