United States Citizens Far Away Enthusiastic Members of the "Fourteenth" Division.

Among the most enthusiastic and energetic members of the American Red Cross are those citizens of the United States who live outside the continental boundaries of their country sons and daughters of the Stars and ipes residing at the far corners of These people compose the Insular and Foreign Division of the parent organization, generally known as the Fourteenth" Division, which has jurisdiction of all territory outside the country proper; that is, Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii, Virgin Islands, the Philippines, Guam, and even the island of Yap, which came under our flag as a result of the world war. For the year 1920 this division reported 80,808 paid up members. The main object of this division is to give our citizens everywhere the opportunity to participate in the work of the erganization which stands for the best national ideals. Americans in far places intensely loyal and patrictic, treasure their membership in the Red Cross as the outward expression of their citizenship. It is another tie to the homeland and to each other. There are chapters of this division in Argentine, Bolivia, Brazil, Canal zone, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, England, France, Guam, Guatemala, Haiti, Hawaii, Honduras, Japan, Manchuria, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Porto Rico, Siberia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Syria, Turkey, Uruguay, enezuela and Virgin Islands.

During the war these scattered members of the Red Cross contributed millions in money, and millions of deliars' worth of necessary articles for the men in service, and sent many doctors and nurses to France. At the same time they carried on an excellent Home Service in their respective communities for the families of those who had gone to war, and in some regions gave large sums of money and immeasurable personal service to the relief of disaster and disease victims.

The division is now establishing service clubs in foreign ports for the benefit of sailors in the American Merchant Marine, making plans to ald and completing arrangements for giving immediate adequate relief in case

It is the Fourteenth Division's part in the great Peace Time program of the American Red Cross.

PORTALES HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Portales High School foot ball team journeyed to Amarillo last Thursday and suffered a defeat at the hands of the Amarillo high school. AMERICAN RED GROSS TO GIVE RURAL HELP

Program for Public Health and Community Welfare Is Now Well Under Way.

Rural communities and towns of less than 8,000 population benefit in a very large part by the public health and community welfare work of the American Red Cross. Almost all of the 8,600 Red Cross chapters have some rural sections in their territory. Therefore the Red Cross Rural Service, Briefly, the purpose of Rural Ser ice is to assist people to get out of life more health, wealth and happiness. In this purpose public health instruction and general educational progress of both children and adults play a big

Recreation is found to be one of the biggest needs in rural life. There is lack of sufficient play-life for the children and social life for the adults. Picnics, pageants, debating clubs, baseball leagues, community singing and other social events which bring the people of surrounding communities together have been organized and carried on under the guidance of Bed Cross rural workers to great advantage. In many instances solving recreational problems and getting people-together proves to be the awakening of the community to other conditions which may be improved by united

As a result of community organization, townships in which there had been neither plans nor interest in community progress have been organised to work together with the unified purpose of bringing their community up to the most enlightened standards. Lecture and musical entertainment courses have been started as a regult of community meetings, as well as cir-culating libraries, Bed Cross schools of instruction in Home Mursing, Care of the Sick and First Aid. In the larger towns the need for restrooms and pub-lic comfost stations is being met. Playgrounds for the children have been established and recreational activities worked out for the year.

In order that there may be concerted effort in carrying on the programs of the various welfare agencies in the rural districts, Red Cross Rural Servthe ground. The main object of the service is to lend a hand everywhere and take the lead only where nece

These suggestions contained in a letter to the board of education "explaining" the advantages of limestone over terra cotta, Mayor Hylan said, were based solely on information contained in a memorandum drafted for him by Hettrick, whom he said he did not pack of lies.

Clashes With Untermyer.

While the mayor was on the stand he was continuously in a clash with Samuel Untermeyer of the committee's counsel. It was a battle of wits, the large crowd of spectators who by motor. jammed the hearing chamber and filled the lobby of the city hall. Several times Senator Lockwood, chairman of the committee, threatened to clear the room if the noisy demonstrations continued.

Mr. Untermeyer declared that "labor leader followers" had "quite a cloque present to applaud favorable remarks made by the witness.

Senator Abram Kaplan also opposed tion of the mayor, declaring that the committee's counsel was "indulging in too many side remarks that have nothing to do with this investigation, largely for the benefit of the gallery."

Unit at Camp Travis Is Now About 6,000 Men Short,

Washington. —Telegraphic orders were sent to the army recruiting stations to recruit the second division to Quality is 7.7 Per Cent Above the Gen its full strength immediately. It was explained at the war department that under the provisions of the national defense act one division of the army must be kept at full strength and that the second division had been selected by the general staff as the unit to be maintained at full strength.

The division, which is stationed at Camp Travis, Texas, is 6,000 short of its full strength and the war department said that the recruiting never before in time of peace had been given a similar task. Heretofore recruits for the second division have been drawn from the states of Texas and Oklahoma, but under the new order they will be taken from any place in the country.

The story of the gallantry of the Oklahoma boys is recorded in the war department where it stands out as one of the most conspicuous of the hundreds of incidents of the great war.

The little band crossed the valley toward the hidden machine gun nest, in the woods opposite, in the face of heavy fire by the enemy. Entering the woods they accomplished their mission in heroic manner and enabled their organization to advance without further loss. In the attack, however, the little Bryant being the only one to join his company unscratched.

CIL EXPLOSION STARTS BLAZE NEW YORK HARBOR SCENE OF SPECTACULAR BLAST

Surrounded by Tugs and Fire Fight ing Boats it Was Taken Down the Harbor to Ellis Island.

New York.—After a spectacular race against time down the Hudson river, surrounded by tugs and fire boats and flames licking about her forward decks, the burning Morgan line freighter El Mundo lay beached on the flats near Ellis island, out of the way of harbor traffic.

Thousands of spectators lined the shores and watched the heroic fleet of tiny tugs drag the freighter out of the river, as she was threatening to sink and block the shipping channel. The ship, a craft of 10,000 tons, is almost a complete wreck, with her side the organization and seriously inter- torn by blasts and her forward superstructure carried away by the fire.

All members of the crew of the illfated vessel, which arrived here from Galveston with a general cargo, have been accounted for, police officials say. Nine of the deck hands were reported seriously barned, one probably fatally, while three unidentified bodies among the seven enlisted men award. were found in the hold of the vessel. Longshoremen and members of the crew were unloading the vessel at the Southern Pacific line pier, when the fuel tank, containing several thousands of gallons of oil, blew up without warning, hurling men in all di-Oklahomans who received the citations | rections and carrying away a section of the deck. Plates on the port side were torn out and the ship immediately began to list.

Several tugs were pulling the steamer when another explosion oc curred, and flames leaped up the forward mast, sweeping the superstructure of the deck. She gave another heavy list and threatened to sink in mid-channel. More than a dozen tugs came to the rescue and after a gallant fight succeeded in dragging the burning ship two miles down stream. A short dictance north of Ellis island the freighter began to sink rapidly and it was found advisable to drag her

market as expressed in terms of the American dollar was again extremely nervous, denoting in greater measure the paramount position of this country as the world's sole "creditor nation." Heavy offerings of grain and cotton bills caused the British, or sterling opening in a barbedwire entanglement, rate to fall to 3.35 1/4 for demand bills as against the pre-war quotation of 4.86%. Low was 41/2c under the recent best but considerably over the low record of last February.

New minimum rates were made by French, Belgian, Italian, Spanish and Greek exchange, further demoralization was reported in the central and South American markets and American dollars rose sharply in Canada. Exchange on the Scandinavian countries also was heavy and in some instances dealers declined to quote prices of bills to several new eastern European war-created nations.

Private advices from London were to the effect that no immediate relief from existing conditions in England and France is probable. The same reports attributed the weakness of French rates to heavy purchases of American common.

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets that are Nausealess, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess colomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way tewards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time with a swallow of water-that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your coldhas vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for break-fast. 1S FAVORED LAND

Western Canada Country of Great Possibilities

Soll, Climate, and Weather Conditions All Factors in the Production of Unrivaled Fruit, Vegetables and Flowers as Well as Grain.

As recently as last month—to be correct, it was the 18th of October, a time of year when one naturally locks for the "frost upon the punkin," and is sinclined to wander through the woods In search of the ripened nuts, and admire the beautiful colorings that the -autumn atmosphere has bestowed upon the leaves; when one goes to his closet, or maybe his pawnbroker, to find his heavy clothing—it was that I found myself the guest of a Western Canada housewife in her beautiful home on the outskirts of the pretty little town of Moosomin, Saskatchewan. The din--ner! That's what Mrs. Wilde called It. I should have termed it a banquet. There were mallard duck, cooked to a turn, baked potatoes-and such big. mealy fellows they were, too caulidower-and say, did you ever taste one of those Western Canada caulidower?-then dessert. What was the dessert? I can see it now. Strawberries, strawberries that had been picked that morning. Help yourself to the cream-and it was cream that 4s cream. But what I wanted to write about was the strawberries picked on the 18th of October. As I ate, and turned my back while a second helping was placed in front of me, I could not but think how this goes to refute the once accepted idea that the climate of Western Canada is such that the ripening of strawberries at any season is one of the things that might be looked upon as next to impossible. Fortunately it is rapidly giving place to one which acknowledges that our sister nation to the north possesses a climate that makes it quite possible to develop and ripen strawberries even in October. But there is more to add. On October 14, just a few days previous, Mr. A. B. Smith, near the same town, plucked a splendid mess of green corn from his garden. Near Rocauville, Saskatchewan, wild raspberries were picked during the same week. The fact of ripening fruit at this date may seem of little moment, but when you are told that corn did not suffer from any vagaries of weather, more attention may be paid to it. The question of Western Canada's climate is no long the bugaboo it once was, and not so . .. long ago, either, when it caused thinking people to think, and anquestionably prevented many from going to Canada who under other confitions would have gone.

In various parts of this country, at government of the Dominion of Canada, during the past few weeks, installed exhibits of the grains and grasses grown in Western Canada, and at the same time showed fruits and vegetables that were grown there. None of these was placed in competition with the home-grown article. But to judges and others there came the full understanding of what it would mean to the local exhibitor if they were. The Western Canadian-and many of the exhibits were grown by former Americans-does not lay claim to any special dispensation of intellisence in the matter of the culture of the articles placed on exhibition, but willingly gives credit to the soil, the climate, and such other indigenous conditions as the country as a whole possesses, as being factors that bring shout the largest yields of the best of wheat, oats, harley, flax and rye, as well as vegetables. As is pointed out by the gentlemen in charge of these exhibits, and quite evident to all, the possibilities of growing vegetables and grain such as are shown can only exist where conditions such as have been mentioned exist cold.

In speaking of eating fresh strawberries and green corn in the middle of October I should not fail to refer to the heautiful bouquets that adorned the table, the sideboard, the window sills, and almost every other available vacant place in the room. Flowers!there were asters, phiox, gladioli, peonies, poppies, and I can't remember the names of them all, but they were there. Taken right from the garden, having a fragrance that gave the room tropical colors, and filled it with marvelously delightful perfumes. It was a very pretty sight. Then I went out into the garden, and took a photo of it. It was simply wonderful. I asked the good lady how she managed it. She said she had always been fond of flowers. In her old home, in one of the central states, she carried on garden horticulture, and had been acknowledged successful. "But my!" she said, "I never got such bloom, and such a variety as I do here." She admitted It was a lot of work, the watering, the weeding, the hoeing, but such work was a pleasure.

Well, such is some of the life fu Western Canada, and as I left the farm home I concluded that much of our surroundings are as we ourselves make them.-Advertisement.

Amy. "Surely you cannot intend-" "I do!" cried the girl, stripping the engagement ring from her finger and holding it out to Clinton. "Here if Is, sir! I quite agree with you that it is time to end this farce."

Clinton recoiled from the ring. "But -but, Miss Kirkland, you misunderstand-'

"Really?" she scoffed. "How about yourself? I have the pleasure of returning you your property, Mr. Clinton-Lowrie."

She bowed and left the room, smiling and composed in the face of the attendants in the corridor.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Amy. "What a kettle of fish!"

Clinton looked down into her quivering face, and his irritation gave way to remorse. "What a brute you must think me! Yet what else could I do? This muddle has become intolerableintolerable!"

"Do you mean because doctor wants you to stay here and rest a few days?" "You think I can rest here?" he exclaimed- "Here among a pack of lunatics, and the daftest of all this bally ass of a quack!

"No, no, Will; be calm!" she chided. "Remember, doctor is our dear old friend. He is only doing what he thinks is best for you."

"The idiot!" cried Clinton. "If he thinks it best to drive me mad he has set about it the quickest way. I have a horror of being locked in-confined." "Only for a few days," she soothed.

"How do I know that?" he rejoined: "No; I tell you a single day will be enough to make me furious at thethe asininity of the whole thing. Then he will be certain to keep me here, and a few more days will see me in a frenzy, I tell you I'd rather jump out of this window at once and-Amy's sweet eyes dilated with dread. "Please!" she whispered. "If you're violent they'll put you in a padded cell and not let me see you." "At least I shall have had a run for

"Safe at home," he suggested, as she

"Would you, Will, really?" she exelaimed. "I shall go to the doctor-" "No," he ordered. "That would be useless. You know it."

"Ye-es, it would," she reluctantly assented. "But how-" Suddenly her face brightened. "Tell me, honest and truly now-would you behave and be quiet as a mouse and not run away, if I took you home?"

"Anything to get out of this iunatic asylum!" he vowed.

"I'romise!" 'I promise"

Amy looked reproachfully at her mirthful companion. "Why do you laugh at me?"

"Pardon me," he apologized. "I was not laughing at you. It was the planning of our elope- I should say, my escape; all the accompaniments of melodrama, but with the parts reversed. Can't you see how comical it is?"

She peaked her eyebrows at him. You were never so-so humorous in your real personality. Sometimes I could almost wish-" "Yes?" he inquirea.

"But-wait- Who'll you tell?" "Nobody."

"That won't do. You can't come alone. I can't agree to that."

"It's when everybody is coming home from the theater," she replied. "Be ready. Good-by."

She tripped gayly across to the door and chirped to the attendant guard as she passed out: "I have cheered him up. He has promised to be quiet. Please disturb him as little as you

Midnight.

Clinton followed the girl to his door and watched her sprightly departure down the corridor. When she disappeared in the elevator he stepped back and nodded to the attendant.

"Tell Doctor Kirkland I do not wish to see him today. Oblige me by closing the door and keeping it closed.'

"As you wish, sir." The door closed noiselessly. Clinton went to the window, stepped up on the hot-water radiator window seat, lowered the upper sash a fev inches, and felt for a loose screw in the upper left-hand corner of the screen. All the screws were immovable. He reached over to the other side. One of the screws in that corner turned under the twist of his fingertip, and the screen swung outward.

He drew it shut, pushed up the window, and stepped down to examine the window-seat radiator. There was nothing about it to which a line could be fastened. He stepped up again and looked at the window cord. Taken together, the cords of both sashes might be strong enough to bear his weight. From the window he went to the bed. The sheets and coverlet. though light, were of fine, strong material. Having made these investigations he settled down beside the pile of magazines and began to read. He was not interrupted until close upon the tashionable hour for dining, when an attendant opened the door and announced that dinner would be served to him in his room.

A small table was presently brought in, and the meal served as neatly as in a first-class restaurant. The cooking was excellent, though noticeable for the absence of all highly seasoned dishes and of all stimulating drinks. Neither wine nor coffee nor even tea was served. Clinton drank his creamy milk without complaint, and complimented the cook and the pretty wait-

The girl, who was a trained nurse reported B 19 in good appetite and good humor. With the removal of the table, a male attendant brought in a suit of pajamas. After this Clinton presumed that be would be left alone for the night. He smoked a cigar that he happened to have in his pocket. read until eleven o'clock, took a bath and went to bed.

Within a minute after be had turned out his light, the door opened and an attendant stepped in, with an apologetic: "Beg pardon, sir; but your clothes." "What about my clothes?" demand-

There was no reply. Clinton sat up in bed and saw by the moonlight which streamed in through the window that the man was deftly emptying the pockets of his trousers.

"Here enough of that!" he ordered 'Keep your hands out of my pockets.' "But I cannot take out your clothes without emptying them, sir," replied

"Who the devil wants you to take out my clothes?" demanded Clinton. "The management, sir. We are required to clean and press all garments."

the moon sets I'll be waiting for you ! "Leave my clothes where they are, or I'll knock your head off."

"Yes, sir; very good, sir." The man bent over with his back to Clinton, as if replacing the trousers. When he rose he had Clinton's shoes in his hand. Before the owner could protest, he was at the door. A respectful explanation drifted back through the opening as the door was drawn shut: "Must polish them, sir. You'll find them here in the morning."

Clinton leaped out of bed and ran to ferk open the door. It was locked, He raised his hand to knock, and dropped it, probably remembering that the door was deadened. He faced about. On the floor lay the articles that the man had taken from his pockets. He went to replace them before the moon could glide down behind the ragged black mass of the mountains and leave him in darkness.

Catching up a handful of small change, he reached for his trousers. They were not where he had left them. They were neither on nor under the neatly hung coat and waistcoat. It was evident that the man had smuggled them out under his jacket.

Consternation alone saved Clinton from an explosion of his quick temper. It was truly a dilemma in which he found himself. To remain in the sanitarium might be to lose all chance of escape; but to leave without trousers-! The thought of fleeing in pajamas with a charming young lady whom one does not acknowledge to be one's sister is, to say the least, em barrassing

He put on his remaining clothes buttoned up the coat, examined his appearance in the waning moonlight. and blushed. Considerate of his feelings, the moon went down, and the merciful darkness clocked him about. In the obscurity, his courage rallied So dark a night, no one would see.

With burglarious stealth he crept to the bed and pulled off the coverlet and sheets. To knot them end to end was the work of only a few moments. He stole across to the window, lowered the upper sash, and tied one end of his line to the two window cords on one side. He did not open the screen, but stepped down to erouch in a corner and look at his watch by the light of a vesta. It was five to twelve He had not completed his preparations any too soon.

As he returned to the window he He sprang up on the window-seat and opened the top screen to peer out. The automobile slackened speed and stopped at the first house across the alley from the sanitarium. It seemed to be a coupe. At once he swung himself out over the window sashes, beered down to make certain that the window below was unlighted, and cautiously began to lower himself from the sili

"All aboard," he whispered, slipping into the seat beside the excited girl. The coupe glided out of the gutter and started up the street at quickly accelerated speed. As they swept across the lighted intersection Clinton crouched forward with his hands on his knees. Amy did not observe the embarrassed movement. "You've ventured to do all this absolutely alone?"

"Of course. Keep quiet. Here's our block. S-s-sh! Keep still now, No one must see us go in."

She turned off the coupe lights and drove slowly toward the other end of the long block. The light from the nearest intersection was just sufficient to show her clear young eyes where to turn into the yard. Under the pergola the darkness was so dense that she entered it at a snail's pace, one hand on the steering lever and the other thrust out of the side window to touch the grape leaves with the tips of her fingers.

"The porte-cochere door is un locked," she whispered. "Slip out now, and creep up to your room. I'm afraid to ston."

He closed the door, lighted a single gas jet, and dived into the closet. When he emerged, his pajamas were covered with trousers and his stockinged feet cramped into a pair of tight shoes.

At the same moment Amy slipped in at the door, beaming with the mischievous delight and exultance of a college girl at a midnight feast. Her first act was to turn down the gas, her second to hold up her lips for Clinton to kiss her. Instead, he caught her hands to keep her away from him. He tried to force his gaze away from her sweet face, and could not. He drew in a deep breath and murmured protestingly: "Miss Amy, you refuse to realize-

What Happens in the Dark?

The farmer receives on an average only about onethird of what the consumer pays for meats, grains, fruits, wool, vegetables and cotton. Somewhere between producer and consumer an enormous toll is added to the cost of farm-grown necessities.

The city consumer, not seeing the profit-taking along the road to him, blames the farmer for high prices. The local farmer, not knowing just what does happen in the dark, is at the mercy of the system. To turn on the light is one purpose of

The Japanese Beetle.

The Japanese beetle, brought in about the same time as the peach moth, has already gained such firm foothold that, in view of its habits and prolonged flight, it is probably incapable of extermination and may ultimately oversprend the United States. It attacks not only practically all fruits but also many garden vegetables and corn. Attempts to check the spread of this pest are being made by means of federal and local quarantines, particularly in New Jersey. Under this quarantine the government maintains a supervision over the movement of articles likely to carry the pest from infected areas to other sections of the country. Another foreign pest in comparatively recent years which has made its appearance in this country is the European corn horer. Infestations have been discovered in several eastern states and local quarantines by the federal horticultural board have been instituted to prevent its spread to the corn belt. She wrote from the heart, and wove into the story incidents from the lives of herself and her three sisters at Concord. She afterward wrote "An Old Fashioned Girl," "Little Men,"
"Aunt Jo's Scrap Bag," "The Eight Cousins" and "Rose in Bloom," besides other stories and sketches.

Miss Alcott had ambition and ability made her success as a writer of children's stories. While her receipts from ome later work were large for those times, she declared that she was more proud of the first $32 she received than of the larger amounts later.

One generation after another of young readers finds pleasure in Miss Alcott's cheery, healthful stories, and their vitality is indicated by their appearance on the movie screen.

TN their old-fashioned New England Mrs. March, their brisk and cheery four girls lovingly called "Marmee."

Pretty Meg, the oldest, was sixteen. little vain of her white hands, longed at heart to be a fine lady. Jo, fifteen, was tall, thin and coltish, and gloried in an unconcealed scorn of polite conventions. Beth. thirteen, was a lovable little thing, shy, fond of her dolls and devoted to music, which she tried hopefully to produce from the old, jingling tinpan of a piano. Amy, twelve, considered herself the flower of the family. An adorable blonde, she admitted that the trial of her life was her nose. For, when she was a baby, Jo had accidentally dropped her into the coal-hod and permanently flattened that feature, and though poor Amy slept with a patent clothespin pinching it, she couldn't attain the Grecian effect she so much desired.

Father March was an army chaplain in the Civil war, and in his absence Jo declared herself to be the man of the family. To add to their slender income, she went every day to read to Aunt March, a peppery okil lady; and Meg, too, earned a small salary as daily nursery governess to a neighbor's children. In the big house next door to the Marches lived a rich old gentleman, Mr. Laurence, and his grandson, a Though awe-inspiring at first, Mr. Laurence proved both kindly and generous, and even timid Beth mustered up courage to go over to the "Palace Beautiful" at twilight and play softly on the grand piano there. But, as she confessed to her mother, when she began she was so frightened her feet chattered on the floor.

The night Laurie took the two older girls to the theater, Amy, though not invited, insisted on going, too. Jo crossly declared she wouldn't go if Amy did, and furiously scolding her little sister, she slammed the door and went off, as Amy called out: "You'll be sorry for this, Jo March! See if you ain't!" The child made good her threat by burning up the manuscript of a precious book which Jo had written and on which she had spent three years of hard work. There was a terrible fracas, and, though at her mother's bidding Amy made contrite apology. Jo refused to be pacified. It was only when poor little Amy was nearly drowned by falling through the ice that conscience stricken Jo forgave her sister and learned a much-needed lesson of self-control. Meg, too, learned a salutary lesson, other youngster. "Have you one in when she went to visit some fash- your back yard?" ionable friends and had her first taste of "Vanity Fair." Her sisters gladly lent her all their best things, and, as she said to Jo: "You're a dear to tend me your gloves! I feel so rich and elegant with two new pairs and the old ones cleaned up for comme Yet she soon saw that her wardrobe was sadly inadequate to the environment in which she found herself. Whereupon the rich friends lent her some of their own finery; and, after laughingly applying paint and powder, they laced her into a sky-blue silk dress, so low that modest Meg blushed at herself in the mirror, and Laurie, who was at the party, openly expressed his surprised disapproval. Chagrin and remorse followed, and it was not until after full confession to Marmee, that Meg realized the trumpery value > worth of simplicity and contentment, All four of the girls had leanings toward a life of luxury and ease, and when Mrs. March smilingly proposed that they try a whole week of "all play and no work," they agreed eagerly. But the experiment was a miserable failure; and after mortifying scenes at a company luncheon, a canary bird dead from neglect, several slight illnesses and lost tempers, the girls decided that lounging and larking didn't

Now John Brooke, the tutor of Laurie, was a secret admirer of pretty Meg. Discovering this, the mischievous boy wrote Meg a passionate love letter, purporting to be from Brooke. This prank caused a terrible upset in both houses, but later on Brooke put the momentous question, and Meg meekly whispered, "Yes, John," and hid her face on his waistcoat. Jo, blundering in, was transfixed with astonishment and dismay, and exclaimed, "Oh, do somebody come quick! John Brooke is acting dreadfully, and Meg likes it!"

At Christmas, father March came home from the war, and great celefrom the Laurence house were invited. as a nurse for a time, but the work and there never was such a Christmas

Later came the first break in their restored home circle. The Dovecote was the name of the little brown house that John Brooke had prepared for his bride, and it was a tiny affair with a lawn in front about as big as a handkerchief! The wedding, beneath the June roses was a simple homey one, and the bridal journey was only the walk from the March home to the dear little new house. "I'm too happy to care what anyone says-I'm going to have my wedding for a high grade of literary work; she just as I want it!" Meg had declared; and so, leaning on her husband's arm, her hands full of flowers, she went away, saying, "Thank you all for my happy wedding day. Good-by, good-

Jo developed into a writer of somsational stories. This, however, was because she found a profitable market for such work and she wanted the money for herself and the others. For little Beth was ailing, and a summer stay at the seashore might, they all hoped, bring back the roses to her mother, who always had a "can-I-help cheeks. But it didn't, and after a you" look about her, and whom her time the dark days came when gentle Beth, like a tired but trustful child, clung to the hands that had led her and already showed domestic tastes all through life, as her father and and talents, though she detested the mother guided her tenderly through drudgery of household work; and, a the valley of the shadow and gave her up to God.

Then came a day when Laurie was invited to the Dovecote to see Meg's new baby. Jo appeared, a proud aunt, bearing a bundle on a pillow. "Shut your eyes and hold out your arms," she ordered, and Laurie, obeying, opened his eyes again, to see two bables! "Twins, by Jupiter!" he cried; "take 'em, quick, somebody! I'm going to laugh, and I shall drop 'em!"

Laurie had loved Jo for years, but Jo, though truly sorry, couldn't respond. As she said, "It's impossible for people to make themselves love other people if they don't!" And so, after a time, Laurie decided that Amy was the only woman in the world who could fill Jo's place and make him happy. And the two were very happy together, Amy taking great pride in her handsome husband, "Don't laugh," the said to him, "but your nose is 57ch a comfort to me!" and she caresed the well-cut feature with artistic satisfaction. Jo found her fate in an elderly professor, wise and kind, but too poor to think of marriage. For a year the pair worked and waited and hoped and loved, and then Aunt March died and jolly chummy boy called Laurie. Left Jo her fine old country place. Here Jo and her professor set up their home, and established a boys' school, which became a great success. Jo lived a very happy life, and as the years went on, two little lads of her own came to increase her happiness. Amy, too, had a dear child named Beth, but she was a frail little creature and the dread of losing her was the shadow over Amy's sunshine.

But the little women and all their dear ones formed a happy, united family, of whom Jo truly wrote: Lives whose brave music long shall

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists sho are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healist influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root of fashionable rivalry and the real soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are perjected is because kidney trouble in so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applica-tions are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes medium and large.

Women of Middle Age

Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change in her life without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms. Those dreadful hot flashes, smothering spells, fainting spells, nervous troubles and irregularities are symptoms that should have prompt attention. These two letters prove what a successful remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is for women at this time of life.

These Two Women Helped During Change of Life.

Taunton, Mass.—"I could not eat or sleep for six months, had fainting spells and could not walk without help for three months, caused by female trouble. My cousin, who was a doctor, told me to take Lydia E. Piakham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me greatly. Then during the Change of Life I used the same remedy. I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own house work and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends having the same troubles as I had. Your remedy is the best on earth. I cannot find words to express my gratitude for it."-Mrs. SUBAN C. STAPLES, 157 B School St.,

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 25th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

How Long Distance Service Is Constantly Guarded

As carefully a sthe sentinel guards the camp of his comrades in time of war, we guard your telephone talks over the long distance telephone lines.

Your telephone is sheltered in home or office, but the wires connecting it with telephones in other cities and towns cross bleak mountain ranges and storm-swept prairies, subject constantly to the ravages of the elements.

Day and night the wire chiefs watch the circuits, testing them, keeping them clear and preparing in cases of emergency to rush repairmen to the scene of trouble.

Every morning at six o'clock, before the day's business begins, tests are made with delicate apparatus, and with it the place can be determined within at least 100 feet where a loose wire, a broken cross-arm, or even a broken tree branch hanging in the wires, may be causing trouble.

Every month repairmen go over all the circuits. Cross-arms damaged by lightning are repaired, poles or wires loosened by the wind are strengthened, broken insulators are replaced and all other needed repairs are made. Even overhanging trees are trimmed up properly.

To insure the public against sudden breaking of poles, carrying down with them perhaps a score of wires, at regular intervals pole-to-pole inspections are made. Every pole is tested, decayed wood scraped away and a record of the condition of each pole placed on file so that replacements may be made as needed.

Carefully, constantly and unceasingly the long-distance lines are guarded to provide immediate service.
