His death came rather sudden, as on the day of his death he came to town for the mail and to all appearances was as well as usual. His death came at ten o'clock that night.

The remains were shipped to San Bernardino, Calif., for burial, Sunday morning. His mother, Mrs. Martha Williams, and sister Miss Minnie Williams, accompanying the remains.

NEW RAILROAD FROM FT. WORTH TO THIS SECTION

The question of the building of a northwest railroad from Fort Worth into the heart of the plains country which has from time to time been agitated at both ends of the line, is at last assuming definite form.

The Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce has made the matter its major program work. The Fort Worth papers carry big headline front page articles of the proposed railroad which the citizens of that city propose to attempt to have constructed at an early date.

A meeting is being held in Ralls, Texas, on December 30, and another in Plainview on January 3, at which time a route will be discussed. The Clovis Chamber of Commerce has been invited to send representatives to both meetings.

One proposed route is via Lubbock, Crosbyton and Roswell. Another is via Plainview, Dimmitt, Hereford, Grady and Tucumcari and the other—and the one that appears the most likely—is via Plainview, Farwell and Clovis.

The latter route would pass thru the heart of the great Panhandle and not only through the greatest body of undeveloped land on earth—the Capitol Syndicate grant—but through the best developed land and most productive section of the plains.—Clovis Herald.

Portales should have been represented at the Plainview meeting on the third. Perhaps we could not have pulled the road to Portales, but we could have let them know that Portales was on the map and have given them some idea of the resources of the Portales Valley. Old timers say that the inactivity of Portales people is responsible for Clovis being located to the northeast of us. That a little encouragement would have located the shops here. Of this we do not know, but we do know that if we sit here and wait for outsiders to come in and develop our Valley and county, we will wait till there is no other place for capital to go. Fourteen years ago there was much talk of a line being built from Ft. Worth to the coal fields. Several surveys were made to the south of us, and the Kenna gap was favorably considered by the promoters as an outlet to the northwest. It would be a joke on us, if, while we sit here eating sweet potatoes, Kenna should make a second Clovis.

CATTLEMAN FACE AN ERA OF PROSPERITY SAYS EXCHANGE HEAD

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Cattlemen of the country stand on the threshold of an era of prosperity and the man who has cattle will soon be in a strong strategic position, according to President S. B. Stafford, of the Chicago livestock exchange in his annual statement. As an indication of approaching good times, he stated, cows suitable for breeding increased in value in western states ten to twenty dollars a head the last sixty days.

PLAINS RAIL BODY FORMED TO WORK FOR NEW OUTLET

PLAINVIEW, Tex., Jan. 3.—Formation of a permanent Fort Worth to South Plains Railway body took place at a meeting of three hundred delegates at a mass meeting here this afternoon. Delegates totaling 96 from 28 towns outside of county were present.

The meeting was called to order by R. A. Underwood, of Plainview and immediately afterward D. H. Cullom, Tulsa attorney, was elected permanent chairman. A. B. Spencer, of Crosbyton, was elected vice-president and John Boswell, of Plainview, secretary. These three officers will form an executive committee to have charge of any other meetings that may be called.

All the speakers emphasized the need of a railroad from Ft. Worth to the South Plains and declared that it was just a matter of time until it would be necessary for various counties to manifest their interest. Belief was expressed that the railroad could be started before one or two years or possibly longer because of financial conditions but that now was the time to begin creating sentiment for it.

A resolution committee was appointed consisting of the following: C. F. Kerr, Dimmitt; J. Q. Gilliam, Happy; D. L. McDonald, Hereford; R. R. Travis, Ralls, and E. H. Perry, Plainview.

The resolutions committee called attention to the large crops which cannot be marketed because of inadequate railroad facilities. Commendation was made of the action of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce in promoting the railroad project. It was recommended that each town appoint a committee of three to handle details for each community pertaining to the proposed railroad.

Praise was given to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for its efforts in behalf of the proposed railroad as well as to the press generally for its cooperation.

Mr. Spencer of Crosbyton expressed doubt whether it would be possible to get the road financed at the present time but said that agitation for it would be continued. Mr. Smith of Lockney, favored calling upon Santa Fe officials and seeing whether that road would be interested in such a line. Attendance was so large that it was necessary to change the meeting from the county court room to the district court room. Before the meeting convened the Plainview boy scout band played several selections.

Information was brought out that the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce would probably have a meeting shortly and make definite proposals regarding the construction of the railroad.

USE OF UNDERSEA CRAFT PROHIBITED UNDER AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The American proposal to prohibit use of submarines against merchant vessels, now the predominant issue of the arms negotiations has been accepted in principle by France, but her delegates have reserved final approval pending a discussion of the precise language of the declaration.

British acceptance previously has been given, and although neither the Italians nor the Japanese had received final instructions tonight, there were indications that neither Rome nor Tokio would interpose serious objection if the proposal received France's approval.

The exact nature of the French reservation was not revealed, but the impression was gathered here in some quarters that it might concern such a definition of the terms of the declaration as would make it clear just what conduct would be expected from merchantmen in view of their immunity from submarine attack.

WHO IS THE ROOSEVELT COUNTY FAIR ASSOCIATION?

The News is anxious to learn who the Roosevelt County Fair Association is? It still has a printing bill for the literature carried to Dallas but can find no one who will claim any responsibility for same. This work was done at high pressure, overtime work, costing the office extra. Stock was ordered by wire, and blank stock shipped by express.

The county commissioners contributed $300.00 for this fund, numerous contributions were made over town, the News paid its contributions in cash and gave column after column boosting the fair and the Dallas exhibit.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—

Congress will start upon the 1922 legislative program tomorrow faced with the prospects that it may be kept steadily at work until in the summer.

In addition to debates over the routine appropriation bills, there confronts the Senate the probability of one fight of a series over new international agreements resulting from the Washington Arms Conference.

President Harding is understood to be prepared to forward all of them to the Senate for consideration once the arms conference has concluded its work. For the first time, the House and Senate will deal with the measure applying money for all governmental functions in budget form. They are slated to be started through the House January 5, when the treasury appropriation is taken up.

The Senate will begin work with three agreements respecting important matters pending on its legislative calendar. The first of these, the resolution declaring Truman H. Newberry, Republican to be the duly elected senator from Michigan is due to be acted on early next week.

Acting Chairman McCumber announced today that the tariff proposals of the farm bloc of the Senate would be heard Thursday. Representatives of the Southern Tariff Congress and only two or three individuals will remain to be heard before the formulation of the bill will be started.

The House may give further time to general debate on the Dyer and anti-lynching bill tomorrow.

RUDE RURAL RHYMES

(By Bob Adams.)

The Ad On the Fence.

I love my country's rocks and rills and feign would move from off her hills the billboard ads for liver pills. I love to gaze on some old barn that stands by wood or rock or tarn. I love its curves and graceful lines, its weathered boards from oaks and pines. I love its silo-crobs and mows, its plowmouth rocks and brindle cows. My farm-born heart with pleasure swells when I inhale its rich ripe smells. But O, I hate to see its back exposed to road or railroad track, in glaring paint give doubtful dope on someone's double action soap, or urge relief from ills by chewing six horse power pills. Around you curve the engine scoots, and way-worn travelers press their snoots against the dusty window panes, while tired eyes and weary brains drink in the peace of hills and plains, forgetting cares and lack of cash, they gaze on fields of succotash, green growing groves where dryads roost, and babbling brooks their spirits boost. To keep these haunts for nymphs and Pan, the billious billboard let us ban from barn and cowshed, if we can.

American Valuation Plan Can be Easily Administered

—J. B. REYNOLDS

Financial Expert, Making Investigation for Senate Finance Committee, Says New System is Feasible.

Copyright by Harris & Ewing J. B. Reynolds, Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Favors American Valuation

The American Valuation plan of assessing import duties, as provided in the pending Fordney tariff bill, is possible of administration and the only feasible means of compiling a tariff that will afford adequate protection to the American manufacturer, according to J. B. Reynolds, former assistant Secretary of the Treasury and now director of valuation investigations for the Senate Finance Committee.

"There is nothing uncanny, nothing mysterious and nothing at all of a tremendously unusual or out-of-the-way nature about American valuation," Mr. Reynolds says, "Today, when imports are brought into this country they are assessed on the basis of the value in foreign countries. The invoice is presented and on that the importer puts his value.

Invoices Practically Worthless "These invoices—to give them all the credit that they are entitled to—in the average case are worth a little less, perhaps, than the paper on which they are printed. Now, I say, that after a long experience in handling invoices, and by that I mean that the certification that the consul abroad has made amounts to nothing. The invoices go through on the day before a ship sails; they go into a consular office in any part of the world where there is a large business between that country and the United States. You have a perfect string of people filing in with invoices to get the invoice off on the next boat with the automatic affixing of a stamp. It is a matter of a clerk signing the consul's name. And all that it does is to certify that that invoice is on the right colored paper, and nothing else.

"There is a proposition now put up against that. It seems to me it is a very simple one. Instead of putting the duties, assessing the ad valorem duties which are duties assessed on the value of goods, on the foreign or invoice value, the proposition is to put these duties on the value of the goods in the United States.

"The value of the goods in the United States is not an unknown quantity. It can be found. All the books, all the papers of the manufacturers, the jobbers and the sellers of every kind, are at the disposal of the Government. Prices are known in this country. We are dealing with an absolutely known and certain proposition and the whole idea is simply that where there is an ad valorem rate of duty on goods, we do not try to assess this on the foreign value, which is largely guess work, but upon the American value of the goods that is known in the United States, and it is capable of being found out.

A Feasible Plan "The American valuation plan, in my judgment, is absolutely possible of administration, and also feasible of enforcement. There is nothing in it that cannot be carried on after a little practice just as well as the present law is.

"The idea that it is impossible to find out what the American value of a piece of goods, is when you are supposed to find out the foreign value seems, to me preposterous. "There is one more thing to be kept in mind. The only way to take care of depreciated currency at the present time and to make the manufacturer safe in the tariff law, is to have a duty under depreciated currency, is to put aside the need for the manufacturer to wonder in what currency the duty will be assessed on the goods with which he has to compete, and wonder one day what it is going to be the next. He must have it fixed on the one stable thing in the financial world, and that is United States money. This is something that does not change and will not change. And the only way to have stable duties, the only way to have duties that will say what they mean and mean what they say, in the tariff law, is to have a duty that when it depends on the value of the goods it depends upon its American value and not on the value that it has in a foreign country that changes from day to day and from hour to hour."

TWO BOYS SENTENCED TO HANG JAN. 20 FOR MURDER OF JAILER

SANTA FE, Dec. 29.—The supreme court late yesterday set January 20 as the date for the hanging of Rinaldo Losano, 17 years old, and Elauterio Corral, 16 years old, for murdering Ventura Bencomo, jailer at the Grant county jail, Silver City.

The court recently affirmed their conviction on a charge of first degree murder in the district court of Grant county, but reversed the conviction of Jesus Rocha on the same charge.

The boys, facing the scaffold, had planned to escape from the penitentiary, where they have been confined in the death row, pending the court's decision on their appeal, but their attempt was frustrated shortly before the court announced they must go to the gallows, when Deputy Warden P. J. Dugan found knives made out of bed springs, files and hacksaws in the cell they occupied.

Their only chance to escape the hangman's noose now lies in Governor Mechem's hands.

BLANTON WOULD END FRET BODY RUBBERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—On the theory that the pay of a member of Congress is sufficient to provide a home with a bath, Representative Blanton, Democrat-Texas, today introduced a bill to close the free bath establishment, Turkish and domestic, in the house office building. The measure would drop from the government payroll what the Texan described in his measure as "body rubbers."

SURE DEATH

(Albuquerque Herald.) Sixty thousand counterfeit whiskey labels are seized by federal agents in a raid on a South State Street shop, Chicago. This only gets six lines in the telegraph news, because it's a common happening all over the country.

Counterfeit whiskey labels are being printed by the millions. The meaning is obvious: Bootleggers are flooding the country with counterfeit whisky—rankest poison.

A liquor runner, known in the east as one of the kings of the bootleggers, is telling his friends that a quart of pure aged whisky untampered with, cannot be bought in Pittsburg for less than $100.

If you pay less than that, except in coast or border cities, you might as well drink varnish remover.

Death formerly traveled on a skeleton horse. Now he makes his trips in the bootlegger's bottle.

INFORMATION ON REVENUE TAXES

The following statement is issued by the Collector of Internal Revenue, B. C. Hernandez, district of New Mexico:

In response to numerous inquiries taxpayers are advised that certain taxes, among them the so-called "nuisance" and "luxury" taxes, are repealed, effective January 1, 1922, by the revenue act of 1921.

Patrons of soda water fountains, ice cream parlors and "similar places of business" no longer are required to pay the tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof on the amount expended for sodas, sundaes, "or similar articles of food or drink." The small boy may rejoice in the fact that an ice-cream cone doesn't cost an extra penny. The tax imposed by the Revenue Act of 1921 is on "beverages and the constituent parts thereof" and is paid by the manufacturer.

The tax on the transportation of freight and passengers is repealed, effective January 1, 1922. Also the tax paid by the purchaser on amounts paid for men's and women's wearing apparel (shoes, hats, caps, neckwear, shirts, hose, etc.) in excess of a specified price.

Taxes imposed under Section 904 (which under the Revenue Act of 1918 included the taxes on wearing apparel) are now confined to a 5 per cent tax on the following articles: Carpets, on the amount in excess of $4.50 a square yard; rugs on the amount in excess of $6.00 a square yard; trunks, on the amount in excess of $35.00 each; valises, traveling bags, suit cases, hat boxes used by travelers and fitted toilet cases, on the amount in excess of $5.00 each; portable lighting fixtures, including lamps of all kinds, on the amount in excess of $10.00 each; fans, on the amount in excess of $1.00 each. These taxes are included in the manufacturers' excise taxes and are payable by the manufacturer, producer or importer, and not by the purchaser, as required by the Revenue Act of 1918. The manufacturer may reimburse himself by agreement with the purchaser, by quoting the selling price and tax in separate and exact amounts, or by stating to the purchaser in advance of the sale, what portion of the quoted price represents the price charged for the article and what portion represents the tax.

The taxes on sporting goods, (tennis rackets, fishing rods, baseball and football uniforms, etc.) are repealed, also the taxes on chewing gum, portable electric fans, thermostatic containers, articles made of fur, and toilet articles and musical instruments.

The tax on sales of jewelry, real or imitation, is 5 per cent, and is payable by the vendor. The tax on the sale of works of art (paintings, statuary, art porcelain and bronzes) is reduced from 10 to 5 per cent. This tax, payable by the vendor, applies except in the original sale by the artist, or to an educational institution or public art museum, or a sale by a recognized dealer in such articles to another such dealer for resale. When payable by the manufacturer or vendor, taxes must be in

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS FOR SUCCESSFUL AUCTIONS

A BIG CROWD MEANS MORE BIDDERS AND MORE BIDDERS MEAN BETTER PRICES FOR YOUR PROPERTY

YOU HAVE ONLY ONE CHANCE

Bear in mind that all your goods are going to be sold in ONE day, and on that day depends whether you make or lose perhaps several hundred dollars. A few dollars expense is absolutely nothing at all compared with the importance of advertising your sale RIGHT.

YOU CANNOT TAKE CHANCES ON SCRIMPING YOUR ADVERTISING

The following will be of material assistance in making up your list to be offered for sale. As the reader always goes over the list carefully be sure not to omit anything, as some particular article may bring a bidder many miles. Note after each article, in a short-and-to-the-point manner, a description, as "a fine matched team," "sound and well bred," "nearly new," "weight, color and age," "new milch," etc., as the case may be.

If you have any article that is of special value be sure to mention the fact. Well bred horses or cows, a fine lot of hogs, a flock of pure bred sheep, good implements and tools, will prove a drawing card.

GET READY BEFORE SALE DAY

The importance of getting ready before sale day can not be too much emphasized. Do this before sale day.

HELPFUL SALE SUGGESTIONS

YOUR HORSES AND CATTLE

Should be carefully groomed and made to look as well as possible. Number and tag every head. Lead it out by itself that the bidders may not have their attention diverted.

HOGS AND SHEEP

Should be graded if of different classes, not too many in a pen. All their surroundings clean and neat.

FOWLS

Should be cooped or crated, not crowded, and sold with the coops or crates. This increases bidders by furnishing them with a convenient method of taking them home.

MACHINERY, BUGGIES, ETC.

Should all be clean, in good repair, and so arranged that each piece can be seen by the bidders and the auctioneer can see his audience at all times. Harness should be newly cleaned and oiled and should be sold on the horses if possible.

MISCELLANEOUS ARTICLES

Should not be left in the corners of the yard, barn or house, or under piles of rubbish. If they are worth selling at all fish them out, clean them up, get them ready and get every cent possible out of them. DO JUST AS YOU ADVERTISE ALWAYS Nothing can be more important. A suspicion of side-bidding will kill a sale, no matter how big the crowd. Make it an open sale and take your chances.

BE SURE AND HAVE A LUNCH

Some auctioneers refuse to cry a sale without it. A full stomach, or the prospect of one, makes a good bidder. Don't omit the hot coffee.

THE AUCTIONEER

Get a good auctioneer—the best to be had—one who is honest and reliable and whose statements can be relied upon. He must be a man familiar with anything you may have to sell and be able to see and explain good points to bidders.

THE CLERK

Should be a plain and rapid writer, well known in the community where the sale is to be held, accurate in figures, and personally agreeable. He should also be familiar with the financial condition of bidders, so that he may be able to give advice along this line.

TERMS OF SALE

This depends on the time and other conditions. After harvest time is usually the most convenient time of payment. Sales held in the fall should have nine months' to one year's time, in the winter six to eight months; ask the auctioneer or the bank where you expect to dispose of your paper. As to charging interest or giving time without discounts for cash, etc., you should be governed by conditions.

After preparing your list bring it to

DEMOCRATIC IN POLITICS

The President of the Chicago Livestock Exchange says that the owner of breeding cattle will be in a stragic position within the next few months. He also says that breeding cows have advanced from $10 to $20 per head within the past sixty days. This is indeed good news for the Roosevelt county stock farmers and cattlemen. In the past twelve months that owners of breeding cattle in this section of the universe have been in a tragic position and they have had to advance interest, taxes and expense money along. In any instances these advances have exceeded $20.00 per head.

The organization of a taxpayers association for Roosevelt county will do much to bring the people of the county in direct contact with the tax problems of the county and state. It will do much good, in that it will put the whole people to thinking along these lines. And when the people of Roosevelt county take an active interest in the government of the county and state you may look for results.

The political campaign for 1922 is now opening up. In this issue of the News will be found the names of several who wish to represent you the next two years. Read the list carefully and make up your ballot with the view of securing the best government for the county possible.

The patrons of the Portales postoffice are well pleased with the efficiency of the handling of the holiday mail by the new postmistress, Miss Helen Lindsey and assistants. Tons of Christmas packages passed through this office, and they were handled with dispatch. Miss Lindsey is giving the public a service which should be greatly appreciated.

"BUSINESS GOES WHERE IT IS WELL TRTATED"

(Childress, Tex., Post.)
Advertising makes a town, and therefore, the men who do the advertising of any town are the makers of it and should have the credit for doing so. In Childress, as in all towns, there are some nonadvertisers—men who do business, or try to, with never a cent spent for advertising. These fellows get part of the benefit from their progressive neighbors' advertising; therefore in a sense, they are mooching on their neighbors' investment. When you come to town to spend your money, you should always try to trade with the firm that spends its money freely for advertising, for that is the kind of people that makes your town and keeps it going. The Post believes this is done very largely. The people are rapidly learning that it pays to trade where they are invited and many will shun the store that does not think enough of their business to solicit same.
"Business goes where it is well treated."

WITH THE CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH

That was a great congregation that greeted Rev. Carter at the Methodist church last Sunday morning. Brother Carter brought us a great message on the church. It means no little to have in our community a man who has attained his eighty-eighth birthday and almost every one of those eighty-eight years spent in the service of God. The pastor felt like he was sitting at the feet of one of the prophets of old as he listened to his discourse. If we should attain the ripe old age of eighty-eight years, could we look back on the years of our past and say to the best of our ability we have served God and our fellow man? That question is fundamental. How are you answering it?

We had a fine crowd at Sunday school also. One hundred eighty-four present. Why were there not two hundred and twenty-five there? There are two reasons why; here they are: First, some were providentially kept away. Second, a greater number were absent who could have been there. Into which class did you fall? There is a class for everybody. Won't you be there next Sunday? "If everybody were just like me, what kind of a Sunday school would my Sunday school be?"

Sunday morning the pastor hopes to greet a great crowd for the morning worship. Come to church. You owe it to yourself. You owe it to the community. You owe it to God.

The pastor's morning subject will be "Gathering Up the Mavericks." Are you a cattle man or have you even been? Come to church Sunday morning and I will tell about the greatest "Round-Up" the world ever saw.
A cordial welcome to all.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT

The commissioners' court has been in session for the past week in an earnest endeavor to reduce the taxes.

The principal business of the court has been in regard to the roads.

In an effort to save the taxpayers of the county, they have ordered all the phones out of the court house except one, this one being in the sheriff's office. This order also includes the phone in the jail.

The county budget for the coming year is one of the things that has had considerable attention and the taxpayers are expected to benefit by the work of the commissioners at this session.

NOTICE OF PENDENCY OF SUIT

THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO,
To Cornelia Fitch, Mary Hulse, all unknown heirs and all unknown devisees of Cornelia Fitch and Mary Hulse, and all unknown claimants and owners of the premises, defendants, GREETING:

You and each of you are hereby notified that a suit has been filed against you in the District Court of the Ninth Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, in and for Roosevelt county, wherein Maggie Burrow, Bell Butler, Aurelia Bumgardner, Addie May Haddock, Charles Roach and Henry Roach are plaintiffs, and you, the said Cornelia Fitch and Mary Hulse, all unknown heirs and all unknown devisees of Cornelia Fitch and Mary Hulse, and all unknown claimants and owners of the premises are defendants, said cause being numbered 1733 upon the Civil Docket of said Court.

The general objects of said action are as follows:

The plaintiffs allege that they are joint owners with the defendants and tenants in common with the defendants of the following described real estate, to-wit: Lot numbered nine in block numbered twenty-three in the Town of Portales, New Mexico; the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, the south half of the northwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section thirteen and the southwest quarter of section twelve all in township one south of range thirty-four east of the New Mexico Meridian, New Mexico; that said described lands and real estate were owned in fee simple by Sallie A. Nash at the time of her death on the second day of January, 1919, and that the above named plaintiffs and defendants are the owners of said described real estate, having inherited the same from the said Sallie A. Nash, deceased; that the father and mother of the said Sallie A. Nash predeceased her, and that she died intestate; that the plaintiffs, Maggie Burrow, Bell Butler and Aurelia Bumgardner are the sisters of the said Sallie A. Nash and own a three-sixths interest in and to said described real estate; and that the plaintiffs, Addie May Haddock, Charles Roach and Henry Roach are the adult children and only children of Virginia F. Beach, a deceased sister of the said Sallie A. Nash; and own a one-sixth interest in said real estate; that the defendants Cornelia Fitch and Mary Hulse are sisters of the said Sallie A. Nash, and if living they own an undivided two-sixth interest in said real estate, and if dead, their heirs and devisees own such two-sixths interest.

The plaintiffs pray for the decree of the court partitioning said premises and real estate according to the respective rights of the parties interested therein, and if it appears to the court that partition cannot be made without great prejudice to the owners, then, the plaintiffs pray that said described real estate be sold and the proceeds of such sale be distributed among the owners of said property as provided by law, and for general relief.

You, and each of you are notified that if you fail to appear and plead or answer in said cause on or before the 24th day of February, 1922, judgment by default will be taken against you, and the plaintiffs will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

You are further notified that George L. Reese is attorney for the plaintiff and that his postoffice address is Portales, New Mexico.
Witness my hand and the seal of said court on this the third day of January, 1922.

About thirty guests consisting of the business and professional men of Portales were present at the home of Dr. Wollard.

The evening was spent in smoking and spinning yarns.

Several speeches expressing the regrets of the citizenship of Portales in losing Dr. Williams were made.

A yarn spinning contest was indulged in by a number of the guests, but it soon dwindled down to about four. Judge Morgan won the "pup" at the end of the contest.

Refreshments, consisting of turkey sandwiches, coffee, chocolate pie and cake were served.

At a late hour the guests departed, expressing a hearty appreciation of the manner in which Dr. Wollard entertained.

Miss Helen Lindsey Entertains

Miss Helen Lindsey entertained on Wednesday evening for her house guest, Miss Esther Seale, of Albuquerque. At the "Fair" the guests were measured for the standing broad grin, and the foot race; they speeded on the magazine slide and competed in the cracker whistle. A palmist in Gipsy costume told of the past and predicted the events to come to each guest. As lunch was served, the guest of honor gave each a tiny red and green parrot from the Christmas tree.

The Misses Smiths Entertain

Miss Esther Seale was the guest of honor at a watch party given by Misses Leta and Irma Bell Smith on Saturday night. The New Year's advent was watched by all with intense interest. Early in 1922 the guests departed wishing Happy New Year to the guest of honor and to the charming hostesses.

A FINE BEGINNING

All in all, the New Year opened with great promise for the Central Christian church of Portales. It was not some great outstanding matter that gave such hope, but the large number of things of varying, individual importance, not the least of which was the burial with the Lord in baptism of two more last Lord's day afternoon.

Next Lord's day we are to have Bible school promptly at 10 a. m. Let the fine increase of last Sunday be exceeded. Morning worship at 11, subject, "The greatest Thing in the World." There is a demand upon the part of the young people for a Christian Endeavor society. Speaking from an experience of years in local societies, city union, and state organizations, the writer knows of nothing that has more real value to young people than Christian Endeavor work. The organization is undenominational over eighty communions having such organizations. It is worldwide in scope, having 4,000,000 members. The young people themselves purpose effecting an organization at the Christian church next Sunday evening to which we pledge every support. Come at 6:15. Evening worship with the Nazarenes in their revival campaign.

The GIRL HORSE AND A DOG

By FRANCIS LYNDE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Under his grandfather's will, Stanford Broughton, society idler, made his share of the estate, valued at something like $400,000, lie in a "safe repository," latitude and longitude described, and that is all. It may be identified by the presence nearby of a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl, a piebald horse, and a dog with a split face, half black and half white. Stanford at first regards the bequest as a joke, but after consideration sets out to find his legacy.

CHAPTER II.—On his way to Denver, the city nearest the meridian described in his grandfather's will, Stanford hears from a fellow traveler a story having to do with a flooded mine.

CHAPTER III.

Walls and Strays.

When I crawled out of my berth at the porter's call the next morning, my Pullman was standing in the Denver yard. While I was shaving in the washroom I asked the colored boy if my smoking-room chum of the night before was up yet.

"Yas, sah; he done been up an' gone, for the longest."

Of course, this was mere idle questioning on my part. Tracing the brown-bearded mining engineer who had used me as a convenient dumping ground for his story was the least of my intention at the moment. For that matter, since we hadn't exchanged cards, and I wasn't even sure that I'd heard his name straight, I couldn't have traced him if I had wanted to.

Recalling the story in the garish light of another day, it seemed a bit less credible than it had while I was listening to it, and I began to wonder if the teller of it might not be a member of the deathless guild of smoke-room romancers. I buried the story among the things to be smiled at and forgotten, when I took a taxi for the hotel. After an excellent breakfast I made a few inquiries about the meridian; the 105th, that the maps showed as passing just west of the city. The maps were right. The 105th meridian, which is the one from which mountain time is reckoned, ran a little west of the city proper, and, by consequence, west of the two other principal cities of the state, Colorado Springs and Pueblo.

I found that the 105th meridian, tracing it north from Denver, stops short against the 40th parallel of latitude just south of a little town called Erie. Trace south, it tracks the D. & R. G. railroad for about twenty miles and then takes to the mountain, barely shutting out Manitou, and passing, of course, well to the westward of Pueblo. This simplified matters—a little.

Yet this business of wandering aimlessly from post to pillar, combing the face of nature for blue-eyed maidens and piebald horses and harlequin-faced dogs was already beginning to strike me as about the most fantastic thing a body could conceive of doing. To attempt it without a plan of some kind seemed worse than useless; so, for perhaps the first time in a pretty rattle-brained life, I sat down to do some ground-and-leafy head work, with Cousin Percy's letter for a sort of nexus.

The third paragraph contained the meat of the matter: "Your portion of Grandfather Jasper's property was worth, at its latest valuation, something like $440,000. What single piece of property outside of a large city could be worth any such sum as that? I could think of nothing but a mine of some kind, unless it might be a cattle ranch, or a growth of standing timber; and in the area laid out for me, mines would outvote cattle or timber about a hundred to one, I thought.

Then there was that other phrase: "It lies in a perfectly safe repository." "Repository" implied a receptacle or container of some sort; a brick wall, or a barbed-wire fence, or any inclosing thing you like to imagine. Could a mine be said to be a "repository"?

As you see, I kept coming back to the mine idea, in spite of all I could do; and at last, without a word of warning, and right out of a clear sky, as you may say, smack! a thing hit me squarely between the shoulder-blades—Brown-beard and his eccentric old gentleman!

After I got cooled off a bit I had to admit that there was something less than one chance in a thousand that, at the price of a couple of cigars given to a fellow traveler in distress, I had purchased any real clue to my own puzzle.

Yet I couldn't get away from the notion that I was on the verge of a discovery. Oddly enough, the miraculous part of it—the one chance in a million that I should run across the one person in a hundred million who could tell me that particular story—didn't impress me at the time. I was too busily engaged in trying to fit the puzzle pieces together to think of anything else at the moment.

Come to sum them up, they fitted astoundingly well. Grandfather Jasper had always been exceedingly close-mouthed when speaking of his investments. Added to that, he would be the last man in the world to have confessed that he had been bitten, even indirectly, by a "gold-brick" game. Then, too, the course he had pursued with the mining engineer (always granting the truth of Brown-beard's story) was just like him; he would have wanted a year in which to think it over—or maybe longer. Also, it was like him to keep all the identifying marks as carefully hidden as a nut mess in its shell.

At this point I began to think about getting action. One word from Bullerton, or Bullerin, or whatever his name was, would settle the identities beyond question, and that word was his "old gentleman's" name. He hadn't mentioned it once in telling his yarn—which might have been by design, or just a happen-so. But, by heavens, I'd make him mention it!

I happened to think of the Mining exchange, and to wonder if somebody connected with it might not have a list of engineers and mining experts. A hike through the streets brought me to the exchange and the secretary not only had such a list, but was willing to show it to me. In its proper place I found the name, "Charles Bullerton." A query shot at the man behind the desk elicited the information that Mr. Charles Bullerton was in South America. At this, I could have shouted for joy, because it proved conclusively that Charles Bullerton was my man, and that the tale to which I had listened wasn't altogether made up out of whole cloth, as so many Pullman smoke-room romances are.

Bullerton's usual address, when he was in Colorado and not in Denver, was in care of a certain bank in Cripple Creek; or at least, that was the way it had been before he went to South America.

A telegraph office was the next thing on the program, and when I found one it seemed to be about a hundred-to-one shot that I'd never touch bottom, since I had no hint that Bullerton had been headed for Cripple Creek. My message, prepaid and answer prepaid, contained only a single question: "What was the name of the old gentleman who bought the watered mine and then died?" An answer to that would tell the story.

For two whole days, an interval which I spent in hither-and-yon chaffings of piebald ponies and harlequin-faced dogs about the streets of Denver—and found no blue-eyed girls attached to any of them—I thought I had merely shot up into the air with my telegram, and missed the whole face of the earth. Then, one morn-

Then One Morning the Answer Came. ing, the answer came in just two words, like this:

"To Stanford Broughton, "Hotel Savoy, "Denver."

"John Smith, "CHARLES BULLERTON."

That settled it with a vengeance, you'd say. And yet it didn't. It merely proved that Mr. Charles Bullerton had acquired a sudden excess of caution, and was probably causing himself plentifully for having been too loose-tongued with a perfect stranger in a Pullman smoker. He had answered my wire with a name that meant just as much or as little as if he'd said "Alexander the Great," and that was precisely the amount of information he had intended to convey.

Whether or not Bullerton's memorandum agreement with my grandfather would be binding upon me as Grandfather Jasper's heir, was a question for the courts to decide. But one thing was certain—that is, granting all the assumptions; if he should find the mine and go to work on his unwavering scheme, he would have a grip on things that might be handsomely troublesome to shake loose.

After I had argued it out thus far the next step suggested itself in a jiffy. I must have a heart-to-heart talk with the cautious Mr. Bullerton, telling him who I was, and perhaps giving him a chance to join forces with me in the search, if it should prove to be my grandfather's mine that he was looking for. Grabbing this impulse by the neck, so to speak, I took the first train for Cripple Creek. The next morning, when I made inquiry, I found that Bullerton had left town, though where he had gone the bank folks couldn't say.

I had gone into the chase more than half for the sheer fun of it; pretty much as the dog runs after the stick you've flung into the bushes, and which he hasn't much hope of finding. But now it was appealing to me as more of a man's job. There was a legacy; and however valueless it might be in its present condition, it had once been worth nearly half a million—and might be again. And a half-million is a whole lot of money, when you come to consider it.

From what little the bank folks told me it appeared that Bullerton was fairly well known in Cripple Creek and the region roundabout. Therefore, somebody in the near vicinity must know more than I had as yet been able to learn about the manner of his disappearance and his probable destination. My job was to find the somebody.

About the time I thought I had exhausted all the combinations, I found the one particular Bullerton friend I was hunting for. His name, as I recall it, was Hilton, or something like that, and he was the superintendent of a big drainage-tunnel undertaking designed to unwater a lot of flooded mines on the hills above the tunnel site.

"I can give you a little information, but not much," was his answer to my inquiry. "Bullerton is bughouse on the subject of a lost mine—not an unusual disease in any mining country—and he has gone to hunt for it. He has a sketch map of the location, but nothing to tie it to. I didn't ask him where the location was—or rather, where he thought it was."

"Then, of course, you have no idea where his hunt was to begin?" I threw in.

"Only a guess. In our talk, he asked me if I knew anything about a place called Placerville, in the Red desert; what sort of a town it was, and if a man could outfit there for a prospecting trip. I took it from this that he might be heading for Placerville, though he didn't say that he was."

As you'd imagine, this was enough for me. The next morning I was back in Denver, figuring out the quickest way to get to Placerville in the Red desert. I hoped Bullerton was on the true scent, but was mightily afraid he wasn't—in which case I, too, would go beautifully astray. But if he should happen to be on the right track, then I must beat him to the goal. True, he had a map to guide him, and was that much better off than I was. But, on the other hand, I had the girl, a horse and a dog.

CHAPTER IV.

At the Back of Beyond.

To my chagrin, the railroad ticket offices in Denver didn't know any such place as Placerville in the Red desert region, which was then, as now, traversed only by one railroad. The single "Placerville" they had listed was a station not far from Telluride, in quite another part of the state. Nor could the Mining exchange gentleman help me. However, he suggested that if I could find some old resident ("old-timer" was the word he used) whose memory reached back a ways, there might be something doing.

"Steer me," I begged; "I'm a half-orphan and a total stranger in Denver."

He laughed, and then thought for a minute, and said: "The Du Pont Powder people have been doing business here for a good many years, and they know the powder buyers all over the state. It's just possible that they could tell you. Suppose you ask at their office."

I went, forthwith; and the gentleman to whom I presented my card at the cashier's window had the dope. The Red Desert Placerville, he told me, was strictly a "has been." The placers had long ago been exhausted, and the place had afterward figured as a shipping point for some mine or mines on the desert slope of the Eastern Timanyons. He was not quite certain, but he thought the name "Placerville" had been changed to something else.

As to the manner of reaching the "has been," this, as he pointed out, was simple enough. There were through sleepers by way of the P. S. W. and Copah all the way to the Pacific coast.

Armed with this information, I quickly shook the dust of Denver (no slam here intended at the Queen City of the Plain) from my feet, taking a through ticket to Angels; and the following morning, when I ran my window shade up previous to turning out for breakfast, the train was rolling along over endless reaches of the driest, dreariest, most barren-looking country that the sun ever shone upon; red sand, it appeared to be, with withered bits of grass here and there and scattering bunches of what I afterward learned was called "greasewood." It was while luncheon was getting itself served that the train stopped to water the engine at the most desolate place that ever lay out of doors, I do think. The place was utterly deserted; there wasn't a human being in sight, either on the platform or in the street upon which the station faced; not even the bunch of loafers which usually materializes out of nowhere to see a train come and go. I was looking out of the window and wondering how anybody, even a hermit telegraph operator, could stand it to live in such a graveyard of a place when I got my shock.

It was a dog that connected up the high-voltage wires for me; a shaggy mongrel with his ears cocked and a red ribbon of a tongue hanging out as he jumped up on the high station platform as if to say "Hello, stranger!" to me. For, right down the center of that dog's face and dividing it as accurately as if it had been drawn by some mathematical draftsman, was a line marking off a black half from a white half!

I was just taking a swallow of hot chocolate when the dog appeared, and it nearly choked me. Luckily, I got the swallow down before I saw the horse—a grasshopper-headed cow pony, saddled and bridled and standing hitched to a gnawed wooden rail in front of one of the tumble-down shacks. "Piebald" is a sort of an elastic word, as the dictionaries define it, and it might apply to almost any beast-markings out of the ordinary. But the horse I was gazing at fell easily within any or all of the definitions; it was a true "calico," white and light sorrel in grotesque patchings; unmistakably "piebald." If a purist in the use of the mother-tongue—like Cousin Percy, for example—wished to call it so.

"H'm; Ticketed to Angels," He Muttered Half to Himself.

Before I could rush back to the steward's sentry-box in the vestibule of the car our train was chasing along again.

"Hey!" I shouted; "what's the name of that place where we stopped to water the engine?"

"Atropia,"

"Death-sleep," I translated with a grin. "It fits, all the way down to the ground. What are the industries of Atropia?"

"I don't get you."

"Excuse me; I'll try to put it in simpler form. Why is Atropia?"

He appeared to have reached the conclusion that I was an escaped lunatic, safe enough, most probably a harmless one. He looked first at the little colored slip sticking in my hat-band and then consulted a note-book drawn from his pocket.

"H'm; ticketed to Angels," he muttered half to himself. And then to me: "Was you expectin' to have friends meet you at Angels?"

This was too much, and, anxious as I was to find out something more about Atropia, I felt it an imperative duty—fool-like—to do my small part toward enlightening a rather sad world. So I said, solemnly:

"I shall be met by a parade of the Angels fire department, in uniform, and with the apparatus, headed by a brass band. But this is irrelevant to the present burning question. What I am thirsting to know is why there should be a dog with a face half white and half black standing on the Atropia station platform, and a piebald pony hitched to the horse-rack on the Atropia public square."

That finished him.

"Say, young feller, you've got 'em bad," he commented. "But that'll be all right. Just you wait till we get to Angels, and then you can find out all these funny things you're so dead anxious to know."

"Hold on a minute," I interposed as he was trying to escape. "Atropia hasn't always been as dead as it is now, has it? What was its name when it was alive and able to sit up and take nourishment?"

"Huh?" he queried; and then: "Oh, I get you, now; it used to be called Placerville."

"Thank you; that helps. Now how much farther is it to Angels?"

"'Bout twenty miles."

"All right. And when will there be a train coming back to this Atropia place?"

"Way-freight—tomorrh mornin'—eight-thirty out o' Angels."

"Good. Now if those fire people and the brass band don't miss me—I couldn't resist the temptation to give him a final shot, and it hit the bull's-eye. As he edged his expression that he still thought me crazy.

When I got back to my Pullman after luncheon I perceived at once that the train conductor had promptly passed the word about the episode in the dining car. The Pullman conductor evidently had his weather eye on me, and the negro porter shied every time he passed my section. This was rich, but if I could have known the tenth part of what was going to pop out of this Pandora box that I had foolishly dug up in the dining car, the amusement feature would speedily have been forgotten in a pretty strenuous effort to straighten things out while there was yet time.

I descended from the train at my ticket-named destination of Angels, and found a typical mining camp of a single street and a tawdry, dusty dreariness scarcely exceeded by that of the dead-alive Atropia. The first thing I saw on the station platform was my train conductor talking earnestly to a large, desperado-looking man whose greatest need was for a clean shave. By the manner of the two I saw that their talk was aiming itself at me; the railroad man was only too plainly warning the Angelic person that Angels the Blest had a probably harmless, but possibly dangerous, maniac in its midst.

Still I saw only the humorous side of it and refused to be disturbed. Fired by the ambition to find some way of returning at once to Atropia, before the magic horse and dog should disappear, I tramped off in search of a place where I could leave my two grips. The place that offered, and the only one, was the "Celestial Hotel," and I wondered what sly wag had suggested the name, which was a double pun upon the name of the town and the fact that the tavern, half restaurant and half lodging-house, was kept by a Chinaman.

But I secured accommodation, and as I was turning to leave the restaurant-tavern trouble loomed up in the shape of the heavy-shouldered desperado-looking person whom I had seen at the station talking with the train conductor.

"'M onto you with both feet," he remarked, boring me with an eye that I could easily fancy might strike terror into the heart of the most reckless criminal. "I'm givin' you warnin' right now that no funny business don't go in this man's town; see?"

"I'm quite harmless," I assured him. "Give me a little information, and I'll forthwith remove myself from the confines of your charming city. How far is it by wagon-road to Placerville-Atropia, and how can I get there?"

"My gosh!" he said gloomily; "two of you in the same dog-gone week!"

"Even so. When did the other one arrive?"

"Day before yistidday. He didn't look so much bughouse as you do, but I reckon he must 'a' been off his kah-whoop, too, 'r he wouldn't 'a' gone to Atropia."

"Let him rest in peace. Do I get my information?"

"Shore: we speeds the partin' guest. You've come apace your place. Twenty-mile mule back, and the way-freight 'll git you there to-morrh mornin'."

"I'm going to Atropia—this afternoon," I bragged.

He let me pass, and I tramped up the street until I found the one lively stable. Here, again, my fool reputation had quite evidently outrun me. The man had idle horses, plenty of them, as I couldn't help seeing, but I couldn't hire one for love or money. When it came right down to the pinch he wouldn't even sell me one.

By this time I was in a hot sweat of impatience to be on my way; to bridge that twenty-one miles before the elusive clue—if it were the clue—could once more dodge me and vanish into thin air. In that frame of mind I told the cautious liverman, in gentle phrase, what I thought of him and his kind, and hurried down to the railroad, hoping to be able to catch an east-bound train of some kind, any kind, whose crew could be bribed or cajoled into carrying me to Atropia. It was just as I was about to inquire of the telegraph operator what the chances were that the great temptation rose up and slapped me in the face. Up the grade from the westward a tiny, three-wheeled car, carrying two men, came spinning along. I recognized it at once as a track-inspection car, driven by a small gasoline engine; an evolution of the old velocipede car, foot and hand-driven and used by roadmasters and other railroad men for making quick trips over short distances.

In half a minute the little car rattled up to the station and made a quick stop, the two men setting the brakes and hopping off to dodge into the telegraph office. They left the little pop-popping engine running at idling speed, and in a flash I saw my chance. Of course, if I should steal the car, I'd be caught and arrested and hauled off somewhere to be tried and fined; but before any of these untoward things could happen, I should have settled that biting question of the ownership of the piebald pony and the harlequin-faced dog.

With a quick glance over my shoulder to make sure that the coast was still clear, I slipped into the driving-seat, jerked the throttle open and released the clutch, praying fervently that the switches might be set right for me at the upper end of the Angel yard.

As the machine began to gather speed, I looked back. What I saw was a-plenty. Three men, one of them,

What I Saw Was a-Plenty.

whom I took to be the telegraph operator, in his shirt-sleeves, came running up the station platform. The shirt-sleeved man was yelling and waving something that glistened in the sunlight. Next I heard the distance-diminished crack of a pistol and a blunt-nosed bullet sang a whining little lullaby to me as it tore past.

I flung up an arm to show the pistol-firer that he had missed, and then the small car swung around the shoulder of the nearest hill and Angels became only a backward-fitting memory.

$10,000,000 AID FOR VETERANS

Red Cross Provides Friendly Service of Many Kinds to Army of Disabled.

BULK OF WORK BY CHAPTERS

2,397 of These Are Helping Ex-Servicemen Obtain Benefits U. S. Provides.

One field of Red Cross service alone, that of assisting disabled veterans of the World War, entails expenditures $4,000,000 greater than the aggregate receipts of the Annual Roll Call of 1920, the American Red Cross announces in a statement...

An Ever Expanding Problem That the problem of the disabled servicemen is ever-expanding and probably will not reach the peak before 1925, is the assertion of well-informed Government officials...

Thousands of these men receiving medical treatment, compensation and vocational training from the Government today, started their efforts to obtain them through the Red Cross Chapter.

Many Forms of Assistance If there is delay before the man's claim is acted upon, the Red Cross Chapter lends the man money to meet the imperative needs of himself and his dependents.

Most vital to the man's gaining full benefit from the Government's care is keeping his mind free from worry about his home. Keeping the veteran's family from hardship of every kind and informing him of its welfare is another province of the Chapter.

Every month during the last year, the American Red Cross has given service of one kind or another to an average of 129,215 former service men and their families.

United States Valuation Would Correct Tariff Evils

—Judge De Vries.

"America's markets being the best, its prices the highest and its money at par, this country has become the goal of all regenerating trade," Judge Marion De Vries, of the United States Court of Customs Appeals, says in a statement just issued in favor of the new Fordney Tariff Bill.

"National self preservation, in that status, primarily demands, plenary defense of our markets against being made the dumping grounds of the world's products of cheap labor and production, augmented by extreme currency depreciation.

"One needs to travel but little to be taught the distress and dire needs of our manufacturers, producers and laborers by the vacant shops, the smokeless stacks, and hopeless faces of our workmen, where before were the hum of activity and the smile of contentment.

"Why? We turn to the morning paper. Every day is printed there the reason why. We read in one column, for example, that a cut of 20 per cent has been made in agricultural implements, in another that four and one-half million of our laborers are out of employment, while in another column you read an official report to the Department of Commerce that the great Krupp plants of Germany, the pre-war output of and workmen in which contributed more to the world calamity and human suffering than any like institution in history, now employ 99,000 men as against 81,000 men prior to the war; that they are contented and reasonably paid; that the daily output of agricultural and varied products of that institution is greater than in history.

"Upon every hand we find in our land that to-day our goods are being driven from our markets, our factories closed, our farms impoverished and our laborers thrown into idleness by the cheap productions of foreign countries which are hourly being dumped into this country. Three years ago the war closed. Almost every great commercial nation of the world save the United States has put up the tariff barriers against this deluge of cheap foreign goods. October 1st free trade England raised her duties 33 1/3% on six thousand articles. Previously she provided special duty against German goods of 50 per cent, and a depreciated currency provision of 75 per cent.

"The question now, whether the import duties levied by the United States shall be calculated upon foreign or American valuation basis is perhaps the most important import tariff issue seriously considered by the Congress since 1833.

"The existing foreign valuation system is without doubt the weakest ever enacted. Thereunder, ordinarily to introduce foreign merchandise into the commerce of the United States, in competition with American productions, no single oath by the foreigner is required as to their value, or is otherwise made necessary.

"It is absolutely impossible under the existing law to gain accurate information as to foreign home market values. Under our existing system, every appraiser throughout the United States is presumed, every morning that he goes to his office to, have knowledge of the market value of every imported article in every country of the United States exporting hereto.

"No appraising officer in the United States is supplied by any efficient means of acquiring or of being supplied with this information. He has before him invoices only which indicate, if anything, export value alone in the country of exportation. This throws but little if any light upon what he is required to know, to wit home market value in the country of exportation.

quoted price represents the price charged for the article and what portion represents the tax.

The taxes on sporting goods, (tennis rackets, fishing rods, baseball and football uniforms, etc.) are repealed, also the taxes on chewing gum, portable electric fans, thermostatic containers, articles made of fur, and toilet articles and musical instruments.

The tax on sales of jewelry, real or imitation, is 5 per cent, and is payable by the vendor. The tax on the sale of works of art (paintings, statuary, art porcelain and bronzes) is reduced from 10 to 5 per cent. This tax, payable by the vendor, applies except in the original sale by the artist, or to an educational institution or public art museum, or a sale by a recognized dealer in such articles to another such dealer for resale.

Does More For Less

THAT the Ford One-ton truck does more for the farmer or the merchant is proved by the great number of them now in daily use,—that it does this at less cost is shown by the actual figures—a smaller first cost and a much lower expense for operation and upkeep.

The Ford One-ton Truck has proved a great money saver, as well as a labor saver. It has solved the problems of economic transportation between the farm and the city.

The Ford One-ton truck has all the merits of the Ford car, with added strength for greater capacity. The worm drive of aluminum bronze gives unusual and positive power at a very low cost.

Come in and let us show you how the Ford One-ton Truck will help you and save you money in your work.

IMPORTANT

We are prepared to furnish the Ford Truck equipped either with Standard or Special Gearing. The Standard Gearing gives the truck a maximum of power. The Special Gearing increases the speed of the truck from five to seven miles an hour, converting it into a Fast Delivery Car.
