CRUDE HERE HIKED FIVE CENTS BARREL

Large Italian Advance Reported Repulsed

Through the Editor's Spectacles By GEORGE

Bill Reagan unwittingly professed his ignorance of the game that Culberson, et al., made famous in a discussion with Bob Cluck today...

"Bridge," observed Reagan, "can't hold a candle to 'eighty-four.' You can have a lot of silent fun at bridge, but 'eighty-four' keeps in an uproar."

Evidently William Reagan never played bridge. His nearest approach to the game, no doubt, are the mathematical discussions that occupy the women's pages of the morning newspaper.

But at bridge, it's different. Four thin folks will set down to it with an airy, generous good-humor, resolved to spend an evening of smart conversation and polished skill.

I do not mean, of course, that all bridge games end that way. I simply, by extreme example, wish to illustrate what little an 'eighty-four' player knows about bridge.

Sometimes, at 'eighty-four,' Mayor Berry makes a dry remark, but usually he remains immersed in listening, said Reagan. J. B. Cate grunts his approval or disapproval.

President Sets Key-note in Jackson Day Speech

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—The democratic campaign for 1936 was officially under way under the spur of the president's Jackson Day dinner speech last night.

He tempered these words with a conciliatory note toward the business men, asserting that most of them had sought "no special advantage."

In an implied plea for the support of persons of all "political affiliations," he said the issue should be the "retention of popular government."

The president offered no AAA substitute pending a study of the question and issues involved.

Democrats hoped that this and similar dinners over the country had cleaned the party's $400,000 campaign deficit. Most vigorous applause came when he mentioned the supreme court's AAA decision, as he said the "attainment of justice, continuance of prosperity for American agriculture would remain the immediate and constant objective of my administration."

Appearance of Hauptmann Before Board Doubtful

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 9. (AP)—Governor Hoffman expressed a doubt today that the court of pardons would grant Richard Bruno Hauptmann's request for a personal appearance when the court hears his mercy plea Saturday.

Farm Heads Meet As Court Knocks Out AAA

THREE MEN QUESTIONED IN CASE OF MISSING TOURISTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Jan. 9.—Police questioned three men Wednesday concerning the desert mystery disappearance of four automobile tourists in New Mexico seven months ago.

The trio, Lawrence and Clarence Chanter, brothers, of Los Angeles, and Dewey (Tex) Goode of Dallas, were held on vagrancy charges pending investigation by authorities here and at Albuquerque, N. M.

Police Capt. George Healy said the three men denied knowledge of the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. George Lorus of East St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of Duquoin, Ill.

To Compare Handwriting Charred remains of the tourist party's clothing were found on the East Mesa five miles from Albuquerque some time after their disappearance.

Captain Healy said the three men's handwriting will be compared with that on the travelers' checks on the assumption Lorus' signature was forged.

The stock and fixtures of the store were purchased from A. Cliett of Hillsboro.

PROFITABLE

Demo National Committeemen Okeh New Deal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—The democratic national committee today voted its approval of the new deal with one dissenting vote—that of Governor Talmadge, of Georgia.

The committee will pick the national convention city after a luncheon at the White House.

Postmaster General Farley told the committeemen that they were approaching a campaign which will be a "campaign of defamation" from their opponents, financed by the "largest slush fund in the history of the nation," from the pocket of those "who have neither public conscience nor private scruples."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace (extreme left) met with farm leaders in Washington to discuss legislation to aid tenant farmers just as the supreme court was making known its decision nullifying the AAA.

150,000 Pension Applicants Seen

AUSTIN, Jan. 9. — Orville S. Carpenter, state auditor and nominee for executive director of old age pensions, today estimated 150,000 would apply for assistance, of which 50,000 would be eligible.

He said that while definite plans had not been perfected, the old age assistance commission would establish some district or county representative in each locality to represent it in receiving applications.

Application blanks, he said, would be distributed to the local agencies by Feb. 14, effective date for the pension act.

TOP OF $1.08 WILL BE PAID BY HUMBLE

Increase Compares With 15 Cents Raise in East Texas

An increase of five cents per barrel in the posted price for crude oil in the west central Texas district of about 16 counties, including Eastland, Brown, Coleman, Callahan, Stephen, etc., was announced by the Humble Oil and Refining company, effective at 7 a. m. today, in line with general increases over the state.

The advance was led off by the Sun Oil company which late yesterday announced an increase of 15 cents per barrel for east Texas crude. J. Edgar Pew, president of the Sun company, announced through the company's Dallas office that the increase was the "first tangible benefit to oil producers by reason of the production control measures of the states" and the Interstate Oil compact.

The new schedule for west central Texas begins at 84 cents for below 29 gravity oil and increases with a differential of two cents for each degree to a top of $1.08 for oil of 40 degrees and above.

On an allowable of 50,000 barrels for the district, the new prices mean an increase of $3,500 per day in oil income to the producers and royalty owners affected.

Local oil men, who had anticipated an increase for some time, saw the advance as indicating a healthful condition of the industry. Predictions that the oil business is facing a period of increased prosperity were given a sanction, and prospect of increased drilling about Cisco was raised. Hopes for deeper exploration were spurred.

HUMBLE POSTS ADVANCES

HOUSTON, Jan. 9.—The Humble company, which buys 250,000 barrels of oil daily, last night posted higher prices for all fields.

The prices, effective Thursday, include: North central Texas, 5-cent advance; east central Texas, 40 gravity and above, $1.15, 20 cents less for each degree down.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

The Sacrifice of a Wife By IRVIN S. COBB

TO a married man—and it doesn't make any difference how long he has been married, either—the workings of the female mind are puzzling.

difference of opinion with the estimable woman who bore his name and shared his lot.

"I believe in give and take," he said; "we started out that way at the beginning and we've always kept it up."

"How does the system work?" inquired his friend, who was a bachelor.

"Oh, bully. Now, for instance, here a few months ago we were going to buy some new draperies for the dining room. She wanted silk; but I wanted chintz. Well, we talked it over and finally we compromised."

"Compromised on what?" "Oh—on silk."

There is another yarn vaguely related to the foregoing little chapter out of the domestic life of a happily wedded pair.

Mr. Smith comes home with furrows of care in his brow.

"Mary," he says, "the way bills keep piling up is scandalous. We're spending more than I make. We've got to cut expenses to the bone—both of us—if we expect to make ends meet at the end of the year. We've got to make personal sacrifices, starting with the little things and going all along the line. Now, what would you suggest?"

Mrs. Smith ponders a moment.

"I'll tell you how we'll begin," she says, brightly then; "you shave yourself—and I'll cut your hair."

It was opened on December 15, 1935, by Clem Connally of Fort Worth, holder of a temporary license which is in effect until February 13.

RANDOLPH BOARD OF TRUSTEES IS ENLARGED TO 25 MEMBERS

Plans for a greater Randolph college were put in motion at a called meeting of the board of trustees of the institution yesterday afternoon, attended by eleven non-resident members in addition to the local members.
The board was enlarged to 25. President J. T. McKissick presented a report which showed that the enrollment at the school this year is in excess of enrollment last year, despite the fact that definite plans for the future of the school were not in effect until July 1 preceding the opening date. In his report, McKissick commended the people of Cisco for what he declared was the fine support they have given the school.
The following named, most of them from west Texas, were nominated for the board of trustees: B. D. Sartin, Wichita Falls; J. M. Hooks, Abilene; R. M. Means, Abilene; W. P. Stobaugh, Coleman; Dr. Hubert Seale, Cisco; Judge Dannis Ratliff, Haskell; J. D. Irons, San Antonio; J. E. Montgomery, Wichita Falls; Oscar Cliett, Cisco; L. A. Warren, Cisco; L. F. Heard, Sabinah; H. G. Bedford, Midland; J. M. Montgomery, Ft. Stockton; W. A. George and Hon. C. S. Perkins, Sweetwater; M. A. Buhier, Cleburne; C. L. Thomas, Pampa; W. M. LeMay, Brady; S. L. Bacon, Abilene; T. R. Bacon, Vernon; Mrs. R. A. Miller, Laredo; Mrs. L. C. Brite, Marfa; Mrs. G. E. Wilson, Mineral Wells; Mrs. Bivins, Amarillo.
Not all of these, however, have yet agreed to serve.
Another meeting will be held on January 23, when plans for a financial campaign expected to raise $50,000 for the school will be perfected. This sum will be required to retire a present mortgage and to place all buildings and other property in repair.
At the meeting yesterday, the by-laws of the school were amended to preclude possibility of any future mortgaging of the property or any part of it.
Out-of-town trustees present at the meeting were: W. M. LeMay of Brady, J. M. Hooks, R. M. Means and O. E. Phillips of Abilene, B. D. Sartin and J. E. Montgomery of Wichita Falls, Mr. Willis of Graham, A. C. Upleger of Waco, Mrs. G. E. Wilson and Ben F. Hearn of Mineral Wells, and Dr. F. M. Warren of Abilene.

Instructor Sees Cisco Fire Dep't Work Real Alarm

A blaze at the Presbyterian manse, home of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Stuart Pearce of the First Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon at 5:30 furnished actual demonstration of the efficiency of the Cisco fire department for Chief Williams, state firemen's school instructor who conducted a firemen's training school for the local department and guests last night.
The blaze was quickly extinguished by the booster truck of the department. Damage to the room in which it was located was estimated at $50. After it had been put out, the firemen mopped up water from the floor, preventing water damage to the hardwood.
The booster truck carries 250 gallons of water for instant use at a fire, thus getting water on the blaze before connection can be made to the fire plug. In many cases, as yesterday afternoon, it is found unnecessary to hook onto the plug.
Williams praised the work of the department in dealing with the fire. He also complimented it upon the manner in which its equipment is kept and the efficiency the members showed in the use of this equipment.
The school, attended by representatives from Eastland, Ranger and Breckenridge departments, lasted from 8 to 10:30 p. m., during which time the firemen were instructed in various phases of fire fighting and prevention.

The writer claimed to have overheard the three men discussing the desert mystery. It gave information about where they could be located here.

Clarence Chanter was quoted by Captain Healy as declaring the letter was a result of a mother's desire for revenge. Chanter said he referred to a woman who blamed one of the trio or her daughter's death.

Captain Healy said all of the men had police records. Goode, who the officer asserted went by the aliases of Robert Foore and Harry E. Park, said he came here two weeks ago from Temple, Texas. Chanter said the Chanter brothers came here about the same time.

A man driving a car later identified as that in which the four tourists disappeared, cashed a $10 traveler's cheque bearing the name of George Lorious at a Cisco service station last summer. Waldo Harris, service station manager, furnished local police a description of the stranger to aid in the investigation.

ward; west Texas and New Mexico, new base 75 cents for oil of 26 gravity and below, with increase of 2 cents for each degree up to 36 degrees, 95 cents for 36 gravity and above.

The new schedules of the Sun, announced by J. Edgar Pew of Philadelphia through the Dallas operating office, provide a 15 cent boost to $1.15 for east Texas crude, a hike of 15 cents for Conroe on a gravity basis ranging from $1.24 to $1.34 a barrel, a 10 cent increase on gulf coast grade B. On a gravity schedule ranging from 92 cents to $1.22, and a flat raise of 10 cents on gulf coast grade A and crudes from Duval and Washington counties.

The Sun advance affects approximately 65,000 barrels of oil a day. J. G. Pew of the Dallas office said.

No Action D. A. Little, president of Magnolia Petroleum company, said here his company had taken no action and he could not indicate when action would be taken.

Atlantic crude oil had taken no steps. It generally refers such questions to the Philadelphia office.

The price advance was the first general increase since September, 1933. The industry had been talking price increase for months without definite commitment.

J. Edgar Pew explained the price advance as "the first tangible benefit to oil producers by reason of the production control measures of the states and the coordination of these state measures under the intrastate oil compact."

"The higher prices must be regarded as somewhat tentative," he said. "As their permanent maintenance will be contingent upon the effective administration of these measures. That effective administration will be accomplished only through the hearty cooperation of producers, purchasers, the state regulatory bodies, and the cooperating authorities under the interstate compact."

NEVER MIND THE LADY by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: LaMarr is arriving at Ray West's town house to collect $30,000 blackmail for not divulging that Allaire "killed" a man in the tropics upon the occasion of her first meeting with Terry Willett. Willett is with Ray and George Fox, young diplomat, hoping that his knowledge that the man Allaire shot did not die will stop LaMarr. But Ray is almost as much exercised over the complete disappearance of his daughter who left the Washington home of her mother just after Terry called on her there.

Chanter 30 RUNAWAY There were several noteworthy features about the town of Carteret.

First, of course, was the way in which the town had held its rustic integrity against the onslaughts of state highways.

Then there was that statue in the square — noteworthy because very few towns had their own private heroes; usually there was a statue of a Civil War soldier; or a Minute Man, or a World War veteran, that symbolized Heroism as a whole.

And again, a person sensitive to those things might be able to assimilate the spirit of bugle calls, marching men, families burying their silver in mint beds as the guns of the invader drew near, and snowy-poled slaves leading fine saddle-horses up to porticoes of an early morning—all those things, in short, that exuded from the fine old houses and colonial gardens in and around the town.

Conceivably, indeed, that a person might come here on impulse and remain to think, to wonder, to dream, and forget for the moment an outside world that seemed to be going around in circles. It had been impulse that started Allaire off that night—the impulse of a girl who couldn't possibly have sat at one of her mother's lengthy state dinners like the torpid Trigger Fish of the Arundel Bar.

Not that she knew where she was going, but she wanted to be on her way with the hum of a powerful motor at the top of her shoe and the rush of wind past her ears. It wasn't until she had worn off the first edge of her speed that she had her idea.

Drop over to Carteret sometime, he had invited ironically, and take a look at a new marker in the churchyard. It said something about, "The storm is over now—"

In the swift flow of anger he had intimated that her evening on the docks had an association with a new marker in a Virginia churchyard. Feminine curiosity did the trick; she turned her wheel for Carteret and the next morning she had investigated markers under the kindly guide of an old minister who introduced himself as Doctor Ross.

He was a venerable, kindly man with faded blue eyes behind pince-nez.

"The storm is over now. The stars are out and the night wind is fresh and sweet." Lawrence Willett?

"Lawrence Willett?" she repeated. "Was he Terry's father?" The minister looked at her with sudden interest. Terence Willett knocking around footloose would seem to have made the acquaintance of a very attractive girl.

"Yes," he said. "He died recently of fever down in South America where he was working on an engineering project. Terence brought him back home."

"It was his father then," she murmured. "I don't understand, but I wish—I'd known."

"Why?" asked old Doctor Ross curiously, watching this grandly alive young person as she stood among those who had departed.

"Terry came to see me. I wasn't very nice to him, Doctor Ross."

"I'm sorry to hear that," he said gravely. "Terence needed sympathy when he left here. Not routine words but stimulating and inspiring understanding. He loved his father and yet he felt that he had been a failure as a son. Why, I don't know."

She was silent for a moment. She still didn't see how she was associated with the death of Terry's father.

"Wouldn't you care to tell me about it?" he invited gently. "Come on up to the house and tell me about Terry!"

For some strange reason she felt she would like to tell his gentle old man all about it. She had an uneasy feeling that she had made one of those silly, inane gestures she detested, so she accompanied him up to the wide shady verandah of the house gnarled with ivy and latticed with honeysuckle.

He waited in silence for her to make up her mind and finally she decided and impulsively told him of her meeting with Terry Willett and the quick, breathless evening that had followed.

"After that—there isn't much to tell, Doctor Ross. I—well, I'd been looking for somebody like Terry Willett a long, long time. A strong man going some place and not afraid of anything on earth. And I would have flung myself at him, I really think—" she flushed deeply, "—if he'd given me the chance. He walked out on me without a word, without a thought, just ambled on as though his life was nothing much and the people who preserved it came a dime a dozen. "It isn't the fact of saving his life," she said earnestly. "I mean I don't want to be crowned a little tin heroine. But I knew he was trying to do something and I felt as though I'd had a hand in helping him. My father once made a satiric remark about a pioneer woman shooting at Indians from a covered wagon. He thought it funny, but it wasn't funny—it was true. I did want to feel that—"

She stopped and laughed with embarrassment. "Heavens, I must sound like an idiot. Doctor Ross, you're a dangerous person. I never talked like that to anyone before in my life. Excuse it, please."

She jumped up, but he put a withered hand on her young arm.

"Don't go, my dear. I know what's wrong. You are in love with Terry Willett and you won't admit it."

She almost gasped. "Why, Doctor Ross—! Please, isn't that just a little bit far-fetched? It would make a very romantic dime novel in an ink-blotched magazine, but—it's not so."

"Well," his features crinkled into a smile, "I don't see why it shouldn't be. I think Terry could make some woman very happy. I like that young man immensely. Don't you really like him too, my dear? Just a little, perhaps?"

"But—"

"But—what?" he asked, as she fell silent.

Allaire uttered a little sigh. "Oh—you're right, I'm afraid. And I hate to admit it. I've fought against it, but I wanted to see him again, and when he came I sent him away. Everything's ruined and lost and soiled," she exclaimed passionately. "I'm so darned tired of all this."

He shook his head. "Why is everything ruined and lost and soiled?"

"Oh, it just is. I'd never get that same feeling as when I saw him for the first time. And he—probably hates me. So there you are, and I've wasted enough of your time bleating like a stricken high school sophomore."

But she didn't rise even though she seemed as though she were about to do that very thing. She sat where she was and knit slim dark brows in deep thought. Clearly, my lady was a bit disturbed.

"I don't believe," the minister said thoughtfully, "that Terry would ever deliberately disappoint anyone. Perhaps you never thought he might have something to say."

"I know he didn't say anything," she said flatly. "And I don't want to be in love with a person who's a disappointment."

"Perhaps," Doctor Ross commented gently, "that is why Queen Elizabeth never married."

Allaire's head came up with a start. "You talk like everybody else," she said regretfully. "I'm snooty? I'm not. Can't a woman have ideals—?"

"Can't a man?" he returned evenly, and held up a quick hand. "Please do not mistake me. I think you are a very fine person and you are trying to be sincere with yourself. Pride is a priceless thing to have if held within bounds, but inordinance can blind and defeat. Men like Willett don't answer whistles, my child. Why don't you find him?"

Her lips parted in amazement. "Chase after him, you mean?" she was close to being wrathful. "Things worth having are worth pursuing, but Terry would never know he was being pursued. One of the arts of women is to pursue the man she wants and all the while make him think he's pursuing her." He chuckled drily.

"Your hallowed white hairs, Doctor Ross," she said severely, "conceal a schemer's brain. I fear. So you think I am all wrong and ought to be ashamed of myself?"

"No. I say you want Terry Willett and therefore you should go after him."

"Never," she declared. "Not in a million years."

Allaire inspects a house, tomorrow.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

"The New Year is like unto a fearful man who inquired: 'What will the wolf do unto me?'"

"Across the fields of history There sometimes comes to me, A little lad just back from play— The lad I used to be. And yet he smiles so wistfully— Once he has crept within. I wonder if he hopes to see. The man I might have been?" —SHEPPARD.

One who fears the future, who fears failure, limits his activities. Failure is only the opportunity to begin more intelligently again.

The Townsend Plan

STARTLING, indeed, is the appeal that the Townsend old-age pension plan has for a large element of the people. Confronted with the facts of response to this "prosperity by the easy route" program, one is impelled to wonder if there is sufficient sanity inherent in the body politic to arrest its development before it gains proportions and power that will menace the whole economic system.

SUPPOSE the Townsend system should be invoked? Even if no inflation occurred, the amount of tax required to support the system coupled with the amount of productive energy that would certainly be withdrawn from field and farm and shop, would bog it down in such a financial morass in a moment that it would never get past the first stage of spending. But the real tragedy of the program exists in the supreme ignorance of economic factors with which it is so ingenuously presented. The plan is founded on the childish belief that value exists primarily in money. The contrary is true. Money represents value and that value is measured in relation to supply and demand.

THERE was never a greater injustice perpetrated upon the imagination of the American public and the sacred hopes of the aged of this country, than this idea that prosperity and social security can be purchased at so easy and absurd a price.

Stimulation

INCREASES in the posted prices for crude oil, initiated by the Sun Oil company and met by other major purchasers in the mid-continent area is a cherishing New Year's gift for the oil men and business generally. Although the increase is comparatively small, it indicates a healthful condition and a demand that will encourage activity with consequent benefits to all business.

Crude Hike for Oil Belt Five Cents Barrell

100,000 ARE INVOLVED IN BIG BATTLE

An increase of five cents per barrel in the posted price for crude oil in the west central Texas district of about 16 counties, including Eastland, Brown, Coleman, Callahan, Stephen, etc., was announced by the Humble Oil and Refining company, effective at 7 a. m. Thursday, in line with general increases over the state.

The advance was led off by the Sun Oil company which late Wednesday announced an increase of 15 cents per barrel for east Texas crude. J. Edgar Pew, president of the Sun company, announced through the company's Dallas office that the increase was the "first tangible benefit to oil producers by reason of the production control measures of the states" and the Interstate Oil compact.

The new schedule for west central Texas begins at 84 cents for below 29 gravity oil and increases with a differential of two cents for each degree to a top of $1.08 for oil of 40 degrees and above.

On an allowable of 50,000 barrels for the district, the new prices mean an increase of $3,500 per day in oil income to the producers and royalty owners affected.

Local oil men, who had anticipated an increase for some time, saw the advance as indicating a healthful condition of the industry. Predictions that the oil business is facing a period of increased prosperity were given a sanction, and prospect of increased drilling about Cisco was raised. Hopes for deeper exploration were spurred.

HUMBLE POSTS ADVANCES

HOUSTON, Jan. 9.—The Humble company, which buys 250,000 barrels of oil daily, last night posted higher prices for all fields.

The prices, effective Thursday, include: North central Texas, 5-cent advance; east central Texas, 40 gravity and above, $1.15, two cents less for each degree down.

THREE MEN QUESTIONED IN CASE OF MISSING TOURISTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Jan. 9.—Police questioned three men Wednesday concerning the desert mystery disappearance of four automobile tourists in New Mexico seven months ago.

The trio, Lawrence and Clarence Chanter, brothers, of Los Angeles, and Dewey (Tex) Goode of Dallas, were held on vagrancy charges pending investigation by authorities here and at Albuquerque, N. M.

Police Capt. George Healy said the three men denied knowledge of the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. George Lorus of East St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of Duquoin, Ill.

To Compare Handwriting Charred remains of the tourist party's clothing were found on the East Mesa five miles from Albuquerque some time after their disappearance. Their automobile was later discovered abandoned at Dallas, to which it was traced by a trail of travelers' checks bearing Lorus' name.

Captain Healy said the three men's handwriting will be compared with that on the travelers' checks on the assumption Lorus' signature was forged. The trio was arraigned on the vagrancy charges, after their arrest on anonymous letter to police, and bail was set at $2,000 bond or $1,000 cash each.

The letter was postmarked Los Angeles, Captain Healy said, and (CONTINUED ON BACK PAGE)

The committee will pick the national convention city after a luncheon at the White House. DEMO DRIVE OFFICIALLY UNDER WAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—The democratic campaign for 1936 was officially under way under the spur of the president's Jackson Day dinner speech last night, in which he declared that the "fight goes on" against the "forces of privilege and greed."

He tempered these words with a conciliatory note toward the business men, asserting that most of them had sought "no special advantage."

In an implied plea for the support of persons of all "political affiliations," he said the issue should be the "retention of popular government."

The president offered no AAA substitute pending a study of the question and issues involved.

Democrats hoped that this and similar dinners over the country had cleaned the party's $400,000 campaign deficit. Most vigorous applause came when he mentioned the supreme court's AAA decision, as he said the "attainment of justice, continuance of prosperity for American agriculture would remain the immediate and constant objective of my administration."

Appearance of Hauptmann Before Board Doubted

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 9. (AP)—Governor Hoffman expressed a doubt today that the court of pardons would grant Richard Bruno Hauptmann's request for a personal appearance when the court hears his mercy plea Saturday. He said he had no intention of granting Hauptmann a reprieve now.

It was reported that Attorney General Wilentz neither opposed nor consented to the clemency, feeling that the prosecution's part of the case had closed.

OVER 100,000 REPORTED TO BE INVOLVED

(By Associated Press) Informed Addis Ababa sources said Thursday that the government had received reports that the large scale Italian advance from the Dolo region was repulsed after an engagement involving over 100,000 troops.

Reported dispatches from Ras Demtu, commander of the southern armies, said that 43,000 Italians and Somalis, who attempted to invade the Rift valley, west of Dolo, were defeated by 60,000 Ethiopian troops.

Ethiopia officially announced that the heavy rains in the mountainous Tembien region, prompted the withdrawal of the invading fascist troops. However, an Italian communique said that the Ethiopian attack, south of Makale, was repulsed by big guns.

Aged Ciscoan Remembers Both Chicago Fire and Cisco Storm

By R. W. H. KENNON Charles A. Rinehart, one of the oldest citizens of Cisco in point of residence, was born in Coudersport, Potter county, Pennsylvania, Dec. 7, 1863, and came to Texas, with his parents, landing in Fort Worth in Oct. 1874.

The family came through Illinois, and spent about four years in that state, living about 80 miles from Chicago at the time of the great Chicago fire in 1872. He remembered how brilliantly the sky was lighted from the great conflagration that destroyed the best part of Chicago that year.

"I was just a small boy then, but remembered that fire with vividness.

"Proceeding on our journey, we spent one year in Missouri, then came on to Texas, landing in Fort Worth as mentioned. There was a wagon train of 15 vehicles in our party—all traditional 'prairie schooners,' as covered wagons were then termed. Our party made the entire trip from Illinois, via Missouri, in those covered wagons.

"When passing through the then Indian Territory (before Oklahoma state was organized) we encountered a band of savages. However, they did not seem blood-thirsty, and did not attempt to molest any of our party, only attempting to steal our horses—and we had a bunch of good horses.

Failed to Steal Our Horses "To protect our stock we pulled the wagons up in a circle, and within the circle we placed the horses. They failed to get any of the stock, though they made several attempts.

"Fort Worth was only a trading post, with a few houses, and not more than a small village.

"We remained in Fort Worth that winter and my father bought a quarter-section of land where the town of Arlington is now located. Soon after I left Arlington and came to Cisco in March, 1883, and have made this my home continuously since that date. The family joined me here that fall.

"Of course I was here when the memorable cyclone destroyed most of Cisco. In fact I was here about the time Cisco was established. It was not much of a town then, as there was little here except a few buildings, and most of these were occupied as saloons and gambling places. One of my early jobs was driving the mail and stage coach to Breckenridge for Bacon and Hines, liverymen. Bacon was an uncle of our present J. R. Bacon, now living out on Route 2. The stage changed horses at Gunsight. 'Grandpa' Baggett took care of the horses for the stage line.

"At that time the late John W. Shepard, father of Tom, Fleet and Floyd Shepard, operated a store at Gunsight. He was also the step-father of W. E. Brown, of the Home Furniture company.

"I was twice married. The first time to Prudence Austin, of near Eolian, just before the cyclone. Her parents lived in the same neighborhood where the father of Luther Norvell lived.

"As I was a new-married man, the big wind made quite an impression on my mind, and other circumstances attending that big blow.

Federal Court at Graham "The federal court was then located at Graham, and I remember a bunch of Cisco people had to go to Graham to attend court about that time—I think it was on the occasion when Jim Cook, stage driver, was attempted to be robbed. He got away, however, by driving his stage faster than the hi-jackers traveled.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Bill Reagan unwittingly professed his ignorance of the game that Culberson, et al., made famous in a discussion with Bob Cluck today anent the respective merits of bridge and "eighty-four." Cluck and he were concocting a plot to entice Mrs. Cluck away from bridge—the profundities of which are too much for the obtuse mind of a pedagogue—into the less formal game practiced by Reagan and his friends.

"Bridge," observed Reagan, "can't hold a candle to 'eighty-four.' You can have a lot of silent fun at bridge, but 'eighty-four' keeps in an uproar."

Evidently William Reagan never played bridge. His nearest approach to the game, no doubt, are the mathematical discussions that occupy the women's pages of the morning newspaper. Reagan thinks it's a game. He doesn't know that bridge is a war, compared to which the hostilities of Il Duce and the King of Kings is a mere skirmish on a molehill. There has been more furniture broken in the name of bridge than destroyed by the Texas rangers in their gambling raids, and I'd venture to say that the private lives of Messrs. and Mrs. John Does would reveal a toll of more broken heads than Gus, across the street at the police station, ever turned in during all his long and eventful record of head breaking. The business of bridge is a business of repression and ultimate explosion. At the harmless game of 'eighty-four' the steamed up enthusiasm of the players is let off in gusts of ebullient good humor, spiced, as in the case of Bill Reagan, with stories of a sometimes dubious shade.

But at bridge, it's different. Four thin folks will set down to it with an airy, generous good-humor, resolved to spend an evening of smart conversation and polished skill. Before long the smartness quits the conversation and the observant will note a sort of peculiar swelling, reminding one of a balloon filling up. After a while the swelling gets up to the lips, which grow red and pucker, as if they were trying to hold something irresistible back. Then the explosion occurs. The peculiar thing about it is that the same group will come back together evening after evening to play the same game and have the same explosions, as forgetful of the last as if it had never occurred.

I do not mean, of course, that all bridge games end that way. I simply, by extreme example, wish to illustrate what little an 'eighty-four' player knows about bridge.

Sometimes, at 'eighty-four,' Mayor Berry makes a dry remark, but usually he remains immersed in listening, said Reagan. J. B. Cate grunts his approval or disapproval. But Dr. W. P. Lee laughs all over himself without uttering a sound. Thus did Reagan compliment himself upon his ability to keep the game of 'eighty-four' in an uproar. He claims to do all the "hurrah."

Indictment Against Jockey Dismissed

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 9. (AP)—The indictment, charging Willie Saunders, a racing jockey, with being accessory to the murder of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski, was dismissed today. Walter Schaeffer, exercise boy, was acquitted last night of the charge of murder in connection with the woman's death, who was killed by an automobile after a wild party in October.

RE-GROUPING WOULD RESTORE OLD OIL BELT GRID DISTRICT

AUSTIN, Jan. 9 (AP)—Roy B. Henderson, executive secretary of the University of Texas inter-scholastic league, said today the executive committee would meet January 15 to consider proposed changes in grouping of schools in class A football districts.

The suggested changes have been submitted to the schools and objectors will be given a hearing by the committee, Henderson said.

Revisions were deemed advisable, Henderson said, because of the entrance of four additional schools in the Rio Grande valley into class A competition and to provide a more equitable arrangement in certain smaller districts.

A special district, No. 16, was proposed for the valley schools.

District No. 3, Sweetwater, San Angelo and Big Spring, would be abolished and Big Spring would be transferred to the Amarillo district with San Angelo and Sweetwater going back into the old "Oil Belt" district with Abilene, Breckenridge and other schools.

Another major change, Henderson said, would establish two districts north and east of Dallas of five schools each.

Under the existing grouping Paris and Greenville are the only schools in district No. 9. The proposed rearrangement would place Bonham, Denison, Gainesville, Paris and Sherman in district No. 6 and Denton, Greenville, Highland Park, McKinney and Sulphur Springs in district No. 7.

Others Re-Numbered
Other districts would remain unchanged except that Goose Creek would be added to the Houston district and the areas renumbered. The Fort Worth district would be No. 4, San Antonio-Austin No. 14, and Corpus Christi No. 15.

Districts under the proposed rearrangement follow:

- No. 1—Amarillo, Big Spring, Borger, Lubbock, Pampa, Plainview.
- No. 2—Austin (El Paso), Bowie (El Paso), Fabens, Ysleta.
- No. 3—Abilene, Breckenridge, Brownwood, Cisco, Eastland, Ranger, San Angelo, Sweetwater.
- No. 4—Central, North Side, Polytechnic, Stripling and Masonic Home of Fort Worth and Mineral Wells.
- No. 5—Childress, Electra, Quanah, Vernon, Wichita Falls.
- No. 6—Bonham, Denison, Gainesville, Paris, Sherman.
- No. 7—Denton, Greenville, Highland Park, McKinney, Sulphur Springs.

No. 8—Adamson, Tech, Forest Avenue, North Sunset and Woodrow Wilson, all of Dallas.

No. 9—Gladewater, Kilgore, Longview, Marshall, Texarkana, Tyler.

No. 10—Athens, Henderson, Jacksonville, Lufkin, Mexia, Nacogdoches, Palestine.

No. 11—Bryan, Cleburne, Corsicana, Hillsboro, Temple, Waco, Waxahachie.

GLASSES OF WATER!

Suppose someone threw a glass or two of water on your walls and furniture every hour. Literally, this happens in your home if you are troubled with "sweating" walls during the heating season.

All air contains some moisture and "sweating" walls are caused by too much moisture in the air of the room. Water vapor is exhaled by everyone at each breath and additional water vapor is given off by the fuel as it burns in your heating appliances. The water vapor from these sources combines with the moisture already present in the atmosphere and when the room air reaches a super-saturated condition the excess moisture or "sweat" collects on walls, doors, furniture and other cold surfaces.

"Sweating" walls are most commonly experienced in homes that use open flame types of individual room heaters exclusively but fail to provide adequate ventilation. This type of equipment is rarely vented to a flue and all the water vapor from the burning fuel is expelled into the room air. The unvented open flame heater is practical for quick heat in one room and can be used with great satisfaction if sufficient ventilation and circulation of air is provided to keep the room air from becoming over-loaded with moisture.

Moving air favors evaporation and helps prevent heat stagnation by keeping the temperature within normal limits. Therefore, open the window nearest the heater in each room slightly at the top and bottom. Keep connecting doors open so that a natural circulation of pure warmed air prevails throughout the house. With these simple and healthful methods of winter air-conditioning you will be able to reduce "wall sweating" to a minimum.

For your health's sake, and to obtain the greatest value from the fuel you are using, heat your entire house during the short winter season and provide adequate ventilation.

HIGH COURT HOLDS AAA IS ILLEGAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP)—The U. S. supreme court in a sweeping six to three ruling Monday held the entire Agricultural Adjustment Administration program unconstitutional. Justices Stone, Brandies and Cardozo dissented.

In the opinion read by Justice Roberts, the original adjustment act was declared an "invasion of state's rights" and beyond federal power under the "general welfare" clause. The opinion was delivered before the court had been in session ten minutes.

If the farm aid legislation were valid, Roberts said, it would be possible for congress "to regulate industry in its most meticulous form."

Speculation on how the presidential campaign would be affected was stirred instantly when the news reached the capitol. Legislators turned away from examination of the budget to mull over the possibilities.

It was indicated there would be no comment immediately from the administration.

Roberts said that the farm plan was "not in essence voluntary." It had a compulsory purpose. If the act called only for a voluntary plan it would be no better.

The opinion said that the AAA amendments made no difference as congress could not ratify something it did not have the power to do originally. It said "congress might redistribute the entire industrial population if this act is upheld."

Improvement in Business During '36 Is Promised

AUSTIN, Jan. 9.—Prospects for a continued improvement in business conditions are apparent as the new year starts, in the opinion of Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director and statistician in the bureau of business research, University of Texas.

"The upward trend in general business activity which began in July has not yet been reversed, but during the past three weeks the rate of increase has slackened considerably, and there are indications that a temporary recession in industrial activity may occur early in the new year," Dr. Buechel pointed out. "Notwithstanding this possibility, the outlook for next spring and the entire year 1936 is distinctly promising. Such uncertainties as exist are mostly of political origin—the convening of congress, and the tradition, unfounded though it may be, that a presidential election year is detrimental to business.

"Among the reasons for expecting a relatively good business year in 1936 are: The cumulative improvement in farm buying power; the probable cyclical upswing in construction, both residential and commercial, as well as in other durable goods industries; and the present tendency of many industrial concerns to launch programs of plant improvement with the view to lowering costs of production as evidenced by the sharp rise in activity in the machine tools industry. Although these constructive forces will, in part, be offset by growing taxes, a widening of profit margins should nevertheless result as industry attains more nearly its normal production stride."

Two Face Charges After Raid Saturday

COUNTY DRY AFTER FRIDAY BEER VOTE

Eastland county Friday voted against legalization of four per cent beer by a majority of 197, complete returns from 27 boxes revealed Saturday afternoon. The voting was light, only 1273 votes being cast.

Closeness of the result and a confused situation with respect to poll tax qualification promised that a contest of the election would be filed by those representing the "wets." According to a ruling of the attorney general only those holding last year's poll taxes, paid prior to February 1, 1935, were eligible to vote and judges refused to admit holders of this year's poll tax receipts, although many hundreds of voters had paid these taxes in order to be eligible to vote.

Cisco's two boxes registered a vote of 385 for legalization to 250 against legalization. Opposition to legalization came principally from the southern part of the county which rolled up a total against the proposal sufficiently large to overcome a favorable vote in the northern part of the county.

The election was called upon petition of interested voters following a high court ruling that a wet area could not legally exist in a dry county, under the local option laws. Eastland, Cisco and Ranger had been wet for beer and light wines for about two years.

Following are the returns by boxes:

County Farm Debt Adjustment Group Organize Monday

Organization of the Eastland county farm debt adjustment committee took place at a meeting at Eastland Monday night. W. R. Usery is chairman of the board and Felix Boland and A. M. Hearne are the other members. George I. Lane, supervisor of the farm resettlement program in the county, is executive secretary to the board.

Present to assist in the organization were H. L. Tweedy, district supervisor out of the Waco district office and Mr. Sims of Lubbock, who shortly will take charge of the Coleman district office. County Agent Metz Heald was also present.

Meeting dates of the committee were fixed for the first Tuesday in each month at 7 p. m.

Farmers and creditors will have in this committee a government-sponsored agency through which they may approach a satisfactory adjustment of obligations. "It is not a debt-paying institution," said Mr. Heald. "Any farmer wishing to adjust his obligations or refinance them through means that will be made available, may make application to the committee and fill out the necessary forms. His case will then be heard at the next meeting of the committee."

Heald pointed out that the committee will give an agency which both the creditor and the farmer may approach with confidence to bring about adjustment of obligations that are burdensome or in an unsatisfactory condition.

Offices of the committee were established in the Eastland National bank building.

Daily Press Want Ads will get the job done.

Farm Plans for RA Clients Completed

EASTLAND, Jan. 9 — Farm plans of 135 Eastland county farmers enrolled as rehabilitation clients in the Resettlement administration program have been completed. George I. Lane, county supervisor, announced Monday. Farm plans of 25 others enrolled in the program are complete, Lane added. Quota of clients for the county this year, previously announced at 200, was announced Monday by Lane "as many as we get."

COUNTY AGENT IS DIRECTED TO STOP WORK

As completely as a jammed projection machine arrests a motion picture into a "still," the ruling of the United States supreme court Tuesday halted all man-

HOG PRICES RISE

CHICAGO, Jan. 7. (P)—Hog farmers witnessed one of the most spectacular market price rises in history following the AAA decision.

festations of the Agricultural Adjustment administration. The effect of the ruling was immediate on every individual affected by the AAA.

County Agent C. Metz Heald at Eastland received a telegram Tuesday morning stopping action in all programs under the AAA and ordering him to take charge of all programs under the AAA and ordering him to take charge of all forms, records and property of the AAA.

Three thousand dollars in farm benefit payment checks, undelivered to contracting farmers for 1935 cooperation, were impounded. Another thousand dollars in these checks had not arrived. Until and unless the congress recognizes a "moral obligation" to the contracting farmers and appropriates funds from some source to pay these checks, they will not be delivered. Effect of the adverse ruling on checks already in the hands of the farmers was not known.

5 Programs Halted

All five programs under the AAA in Eastland county were brought to abrupt halt. Four AAA paid employees in Mr. Heald's office were released. They are W. W. Kelly, in charge of the corn-hog program; J. B. Hart, in charge of contract division for all programs; Miss Connie Groves, in charge of the subsidiary division and Miss Genevieve Lyons, general stenographer.

The five programs affected here are: the cotton control program; corn-hog, peanut, potato and wheat control programs. In charge of these were county committees number 13 for cotton control; 12 for peanut control; 12 for corn-hog control, six for wheat and six for potato control. The latter program was the most recent.

Telegram

The telegram received by Mr. Heald read:
"C. M. Heald,
"County Agent, Eastland County.

"Following telegram signed by C. W. Warburton and Chester Davis quote decision supreme court holds control program unconstitutional stop. Action these programs suspended pending further notice stop. Notify members state committees and boards, state field men, county control associations and committees to discontinue work and incur no expense pending further information stop. Notify county agents as federal employees to take charge all production control association forms, records and property unquote. You are to carry out these instructions to the letter stop. Be governed only by instructions from official sources stop. We will endeavor to keep you advised.

"H. H. WILLIAMSON."
Mr. Williamson is director of extension work in Texas.

Mr. Heald announced today that he had followed these instructions and that all activity under the control programs had been suspended pending further instructions.

He said it was his opinion, based on press reports, that congress would recognize a moral obligation to contracting farmers and provide funds for payment of benefit checks now withheld under the adverse court ruling. What would be done with respect to the remainder of the program is, he said, uncertain. At the present everything is at a standstill and will remain so pending further word from official sources, he said. No transfers of certificates or pooling of certificates will be permitted.

During 1935 and to January 1, 1936, Heald said he had distributed in benefit checks to Eastland county farmers on AAA control programs a total of $96,376.38. The total, with the $3,000 in impounded checks and the $1,000 in undelivered payments, would have run over $100,000 if the supreme court opinion had not brought it to a halt, he said.

Progressive Club in Regular Meeting

The Progressive Study club held its regular meeting Thursday morning at the club house with 9 members answering to roll call. Mrs. Asa Skiles was leader of the program on "Working for Vocal Range and Energy." Mrs. J. E. Spencer and Mrs. J. C. McAfee assisted with the program. Mrs. E. P. Crawford conducted the "Steps to Better Speech."

AAA Made Uncle Sam Biggest Land Tenant in History

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (P)—Great gang plows which nearly 20 years ago threw up earth from millions of acres of new western land, creating more fields to feed a world at war, led indirectly to the invalidated AAA's creation.

Proponents argued that production had been stepped up beyond peacetime needs and that AAA, through rental and benefit payments, afforded a means of subsidized reduction of yields.

Purpose: to increase the farmer's income to the point where his buying power would equal that of 1909-1914.

77,000,000 Acres Rented

In three years under AAA Uncle Sam became perhaps the greatest land tenant in world history. The cumulative total of acreage rented to the government in 1933, 1934 and 1935 in consideration of benefit payments to farmers — and thus withdrawn from commercial crop production — ran above 77,000,000.

The agricultural adjustment administration first had control only over wheat, cotton, corn, hogs, rice, tobacco and milk. In 1934 rye, flax, barley, grain sorghum, cattle, sugar and peanuts were added. In 1935 potatoes became the 15th commodity to be termed by congress "basic" and to become eligible for AAA benefits.

First Steps Drastic

Voluntary cooperation between growers and Uncle Sam was the original keynote. But acts were passed to use compulsion in controlling acreage of cotton, tobacco and potatoes. Compulsion was designed to supplement and police crop agreements for cotton and tobacco.

A force of 6,500 in the AAA itself, plus thousands of farmers aiding in AAA county or local committees, worked to keep the program going.

Marketing agreements were devised for milk, fruits and vegetables. Of a total of 52 agreements negotiated for milk, 30 were in effect at the turn of 1936. Of 35 negotiated for fruits and vegetables, 16 still were in effect.

There has been disagreement as to the ultimate soundness of the programs but price increases have been sharp. AAA officials say November 15, 1935, prices for wheat were 51.7 cents a bushel higher than the 1932 average; corn 25 cents higher, cotton 5 cents a pound higher, tobacco 10 cents a pound higher, hogs $5.20 per 100 pounds higher; cattle $1.80 per 100 pounds higher.

Aside from its strictly economic aspects, AAA brought about a cohesive, highly articulate farmer organization not bounded by sectional lines.

In six major referenda affecting adjustment programs, the question being whether such movements were to be continued, votes in favor of continuance were declared by AAA to have totaled 3,693,732 out of a total cast of 4,256,439.

Cotton Leaders Look to Congress After AAA Ruling

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 9 (AP) — Regret over the voiding of the Agricultural Adjustment act mingled with the expressed belief by cotton leaders that the government will, in some manner, retain regulatory control of cotton production.

"The cotton farmers are not going back to the old cut-throat method of growing cotton at a price below the cost of production," said N. C. Williamson, president of the American Cotton Co-operative association, when he learned of the high court's ruling.

"Congress will no doubt co-operate with the administration in passing legislation necessary to continue the program which has doubled the cotton farmers' income during the past two or three years," he continued.

E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the co-operative organization, also believed some new plan will be worked out.

See New Plan

"Certainly some sound means will be worked out within the limits of the constitution which will provide adequate crop control," Creekmore stated.

J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture for the state of Mississippi, said farmers in that state would lose $12,500,000 if AAA and Bankhead payments are cut off.

"The experience of the past four years has definitely shown the South that production control is necessary," Holton said. "I believe some plan will take the place of the AAA, which has been the saviour of the cotton farmer."

When the news of the court's finding the AAA unconstitutional was conveyed to 12 farmers representing co-operative growers in the state of Louisiana who were meeting here today Frank Dumnick, a cotton grower of Sunset, La., said:

"Well, boys, I guess we'll just have to change the constitution."

The other 11 nodded assent.

all collections of taxes and payments under the AAA.

After a three-hour discussion with counsel, the department issued the following statement:

"No further steps will be taken for the collection of processing taxes, new or old.

"For the present no checks will be issued for benefit or rental payments, or refunds, or for administrative purposes."

NEW AMENDMENT IS HINTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — A hint of a constitutional amendment emerged from the comment that swirled on capitol hill in the wake of the supreme court's invalidation of AAA.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, republican progressive veteran who supported President Roosevelt, said that if the AAA "is beyond repair, it will be a terrible thing."

He added:

"A constitutional amendment may be the only remedy, and with the opposition of political leaders that would be almost impossible to get."

NICK MILLER BUYS STORE

Nick Miller and Dick Lauderdale, for ten years partners in Miller-Lauderdale store which they founded in 1925, Tuesday announced purchase by Mr. Miller of Mr. Lauderdale's interest in the store.

In a formal statement they thanked customers and friends for their business they enjoyed during the ten years, promised continuance of the high class merchandizing policies which have made the store prosper and sought continued patronage.

The store recently moved to more commodious and beautiful quarters in the First National bank building.

New Production Is Promised in Shackelford Co.

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—Previously unexplored Shackelford county territory promised new production last week when F. Craig Morton et al No. 1 W. P. Newell, in section 114, E. T. railway survey, blew wild Friday making estimated 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas with a spray of oil, from five feet of Cook sand topped at 1,445 feet.

Operators were unable to start fishing for tools, which were blown up the hole and jammed, due to the fire hazard created by the large volume of gas. Preparations were made Friday to kill the well with mud and then proceed with fishing and work of setting casing for a production test.

The Morton et al No. 1 Newell, in the center of the south line of section 114, is a mile southwest of the Dean Brothers' production on the Newell ranch and two miles southwest of the Cook pool production.

Head production was reported Friday from Roeser & Pendleton and Humble Oil and Refining Company No. 2 J. P. Morris, in the northwest corner of section 191, E. T. Railway survey. The test is obtaining its oil showing from Bluff Creek sand at 1,595 feet. The Roeser & Pendleton and Humble well indicates production of 150 to 200 barrels per day. It finally completed for a commercial well, the No. 2 Morris will extend the Bluff Creek pool a half mile east.

Hybrid corn was credited by the federal bureau of plant industry with having met the test provided by the 1934 drought successfully.

GLASSES OF WATER!

Suppose someone threw a glass or two of water on your walls and furniture every hour. Literally, this happens in your home if you are troubled with "sweating" walls during the heating season.

All air contains some moisture and "sweating" walls are caused by too much moisture in the air of the room. Water vapor is exhaled by everyone at each breath and additional water vapor is given off by the fuel as it burns in your heating appliances. The water vapor from these sources combines with the moisture already present in the atmosphere and when the room air reaches a super-saturated condition the excess moisture or "sweat" collects on walls, doors, furniture and other cold surfaces.

"Sweating" walls are most commonly experienced in homes that use open flame types of individual room heaters exclusively but fail to provide adequate ventilation. This type of equipment is rarely vented to a flue and all the water vapor from the burning fuel is expelled into the room air. The unvented open flame heater is practical for quick heat in one room and can be used with great satisfaction if sufficient ventilation and circulation of air is provided to keep the room air from becoming over-loaded with moisture.

Moving air favors evaporation and helps prevent heat stagnation by keeping the temperature within normal limits. Therefore, open the window nearest the heater in each room slightly at the top and bottom. Keep connecting doors open so that a natural circulation of pure warmed air prevails throughout the house. With these simple and healthful methods of winter air-conditioning you will be able to reduce "wall sweating" to a minimum.

For your health's sake, and to obtain the greatest value from the fuel you are using, heat your entire house during the short winter season and provide adequate ventilation.
