GOVERNOR ALLEN OF LOUISIANA DIES

Funeral of King Ends With Burial Today

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Imagine rebuilding an arm! Putting together broken bones, growing muscles and flesh, covering the new arm with skin and making broken nerves to restore a sense of feel to the member. That is just what is being done at the little nine-year-old Duluth May Richardson has lain since November 20, last, her right arm amputated from its fingers and a shining surgical frame of ricketed steel that holds the bones together by means of a wire threaded through the joints.

This morning I watched Dr. Waddell, assistant to Dr. Graham, remove from the upper arm the dressing that had been placed about a skin grafting. Dr. Graham looked on with a teasing grin of comment, while little Duluth May bit her lips to keep back the cries of pain. The arm has been regrown, all except for the present grafting of skin and the rejoining of the nerves that will take back the flow of sensitive life to the new flesh.

When the dressings came off under Dr. Waddell's gentle touch, where the upper muscle has been replaced was a quivering, raw area of red flesh dotted with polka-like dots of good white skin. "Spreading like patches of Bermuda grass," said Dr. Graham. "Now in about two weeks, your mother can take you home for a while." The eyes of the child lighted up with happy anticipation. More than two months in bed, one's arm suspended above one's head, watching the slow regrowth of bone and flesh and sinew and skin under the surgeon's care, is an ordeal for a little nine-year-old girl. Across the bed sat Duluth May's mother, Mrs. J. M. Richardson, as happy as Duluth May at the news.

Dr. Graham lifted an edge of the cover and revealed a small red spot on the white skin of the little girl's leg, about the size of a dime. That was where one of the many little patches of epidermis dotting the raw muscle of the little arm had come from. Bits of live skin taken from various places over other parts of her body and placed upon the new muscle were taking root and spreading to cover the magic of the surgeon's skill with the skin that nature provided as so wonderful a protection to the human body.

Duluth May was injured in an automobile accident on the highway south of Cisco as she and relatives were driving to Cisco to visit a 10-year-old cousin of hers, Delma Fay Richardson, who had been struck by an automobile the same afternoon. The flesh was literally stripped and shredded from her arm and the bones were broken. Delma Fay has since recovered from the injuries she received. The doctors began first with the broken bones and restored them to normal size and position. Then the muscles were replaced and now the skin has been grafted back. All that remains to be done after the skin has healed, is to rejoin the nerves and Duluth May will be ready to go back to school and to play. She is a mighty brave little girl.

Calling the roll of the sanitarium this morning was like calling the roll of a section of Cisco. There was John Kleiner, getting over a severe bump on the head which he received when he was forced off the road Saturday night by a "road hog," and also recovering from a cold. John said he didn't remember much about the accident or about the interval between it and the hospital. He had a narrow escape, but he was getting ready to jump

CIRCUMSTANCE AND SORROW MARK RITES

Nation Pauses for Two Minutes as Casket Is Laid

WINDSOR, England, Jan. 23. (AP)—The long funeral journey of George V ended today at the royal vault in St. George's chapel. Burial was in the crypt for Great Britain's kings. It was a service of pomp, circumstance and sorrow—beginning with the removal of the body from Westminster Hall in London, and a tribute of 10,000 spectators, massed along the route, and ending with a simple burial service, attended by royalty and representatives of governments all over the world. The nation paused for two minutes of silence at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, the time for the casket to have been laid in the crypt. A delay in the marching of the cortage held up the time, however, 33 minutes.

Fischer Announces For Texas Governor

TYLER, Jan. 23 (AP)—F. W. Fischer, noted oil attorney, today announced his candidacy for the governorship of Texas.

Robinson Prepares To Blast Al Smith

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23 (AP)—Depicting Al Smith as an apostle of reaction, new deal adherents said that any democratic losses on account of his speech would be overbalanced by republican liberal support. Senator Robinson of Arkansas prepared to blast Smith in a radio address tonight.

NOT SERIOUS

Condition of W. K. Johnston was reported not to be serious this afternoon following a mild attack this morning. Mr. and Mrs. H. Brandon have returned from Canton where they accompanied Mrs. John Jensen and children to their home. Miss Mildred Yeagar of Putnam was in Cisco this morning.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

The Colonel's Checking System

By IRVIN S. COBB

ONE of the most widely known and most popular railroad men on the Western hemisphere has for many years handled the publicity for a Canadian system. He is as popular in the States as he is in the Dominion. Wherever he goes people pay him tribute for his abilities as a story teller, and for his genial and kindly habits generally. Those who know him are always glad to see him when he comes and always sorry to tell him goodbye when he leaves. Having so many friends and being of so social a disposition, it is almost inevitable that he must do his share of drinking. A few years ago he suffered an attack of illness and the physician who attended him put him on a diet. One of the regulations was that, until further notice he must take no more than one high-ball every twenty-four hours. A few months later he ran down to New York. He called upon a friend and the friend opened a bottle of prime Scotch. As the Canadian refilled his glass for the third time the friend said: "Look here, Colonel, I thought by the doctor's orders you were allowed to take only one drink for each day." "Yes, that's right," said the Colonel, "and I'm following instructions. This drink here, for example,"—and he raised the tumbler and gazed upon its delectable amber contents—"this is my drink for August the twenty-first of next year." (American News Features, Inc.)

LOBOES TO BE HONOR GUESTS AT BANQUET

"Bear" Wolf to Be Speaker for Annual Event at Laguna

Coach Wolf, line mentor of the Horned Frogs and athletic director of T. C. U. is one of the outstanding line coaches in the Southwest.

The banquet is annually sponsored by the Rotary and Lions clubs, but a public affair and not restricted to the club memberships. P. R. Warwick will be toastmaster.

The program announced by a committee consisting of H. Brandon and Dick Giles from the Lions, and R. L. Maddox and J. C. McAfee from the Rotarians, will include a xylophone solo by Julian Ely and a tenor solo by Joe Carrothers. Tickets are being sold at $1 each.

County Teachers to Meet Next Saturday

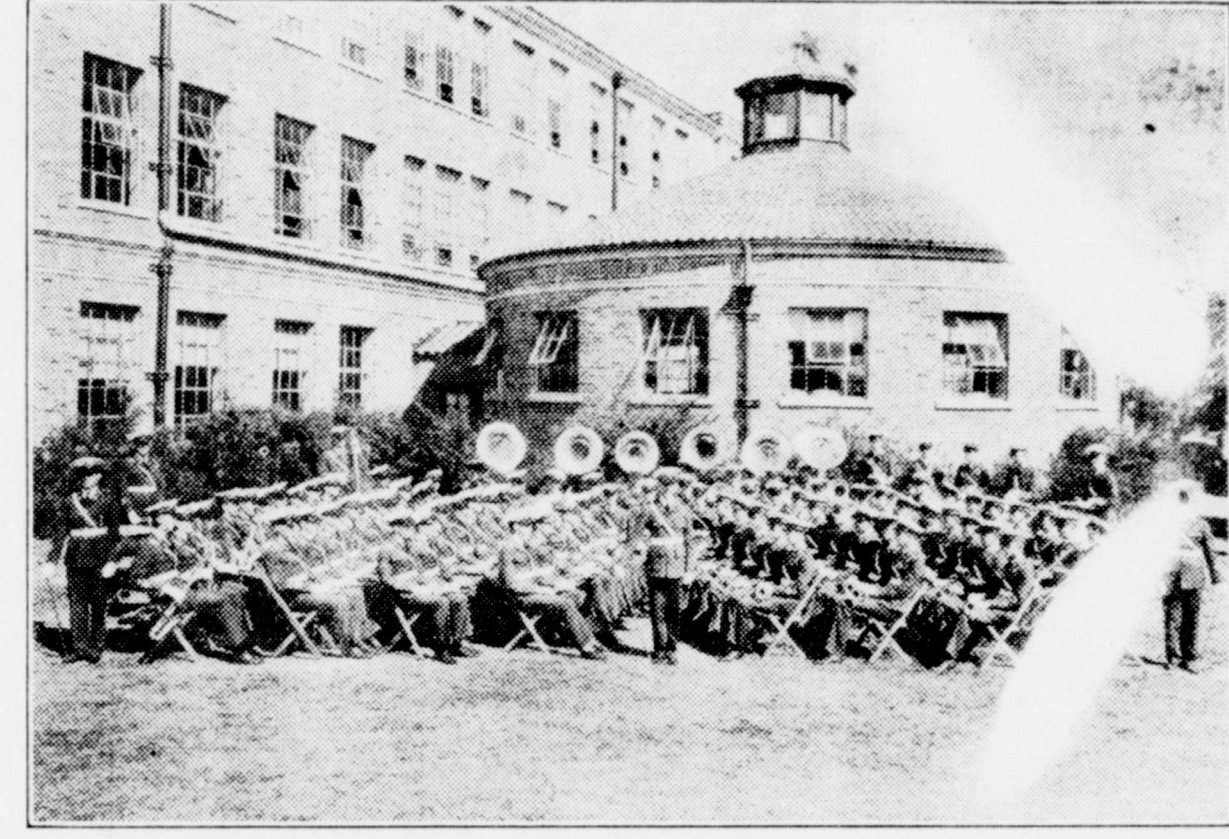

EASTLAND, Jan. 23.—While changing its name from the Eastland County Teachers Institute, the Eastland County Teachers association will hold its first meeting, as such, in the court house at Eastland next Saturday, beginning at 9 o'clock a. m.

This change of name for the organization was made last year by a vote of the members. While retaining obligations of the teachers institute, members of the organization decided to adopt a more extensive program which includes study of curriculum revision and encouragement of founding a circulating county library.

PATTERSON AT DALLAS

GENSUS SHOWS RELIGIOUS DISTRIBUTION IN CISCO

A religious census made by the cooperative action of most of the churches in the city today had revealed the following distribution of Cisco's population by church preference or affiliation: Baptists, 1,273; Methodist, 809; Nazarene, 204; First Christian, 320; Church of Christ, 244; Presbyterian, 232; Church of God, 121; Catholic, 44; Lutheran, 35; Episcopal, 24; Pentecostal, 97; all other denominations, 104, and no preference, 285. The total was 3,792.

The census did not include the negroes and Mexicans, nor did it reach all of the white population. It was estimated that only about four-fifths of the white population was reached. The results would indicate that the city's population is now 6,000 people or better inside the city limits. The census did not include the suburban areas.

Harlem Play Girls to Be at Lake Cisco

Bearing out his promise that whenever a dance is advertised by the Lake Cisco Amusement company at its pavilion here, the public may be certain that an outstanding orchestra has been secured, Manager P. G. Berry this week announced booking of two "tops" in the dance entertainment world for two dates in February and March. It was possible to catch these companies only "on the fly," Berry explained, hence the reason for booking the Harlem Play Girls on Monday, February 17, instead of on a weekend date.

ITALY CLAIMS NEW VICTORY

(By Associated Press) Italy claimed today that the Ethiopians were defeated in the battle on the northern front, and that the Italians captured the Swedish unit, which assertedly was carrying munitions to the southern front. Confident, the Italians predicted a continuation of their advance during the approaching rainy season. Excited Rome political circles discussed the possibility of an Italo-German accord, following a conference of Mussolini with Ulrich von Hassell, German ambassador.

In a telephone message from Deputy Tax Collector Clyde Karkalis this afternoon, the Daily Press was informed that Collector Tom Haley would have one of his office force in Cisco Wednesday for the purpose of collecting both poll taxes and property taxes. He will be located at the First National bank, and will remain here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Miss Mary Jane Morehart is visiting at home.

SUDDEN DEATH IS CAUSED BY HEMORRHAGE

Lieutenant of L. a t e Huey Long Seized at 8:30 This Morning

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 23. (AP)—Governor O. K. Allen died unexpectedly today at 10:40 a. m., from what was announced as cerebral hemorrhage. He was seized with a sudden attack at the executive mansion at 8:50 this morning. Apparently he had been in good health, and was just preparing to leave the mansion for his executive offices at the state capitol. A corps of physicians was hastily summoned but failed to rally the governor. His death was announced by A. P. White, the governor's secretary.

As the news of Governor Allen's death spread a large number of officials and other friends, hurried to the mansion, and formed a great crowd around the building. Lieut. Governor James A. Noe, of Monroe, automatically succeeded Governor Allen. Noe has always been a staunch supporter of the administrations of Huey P. Long and Governor Allen.

Governor Allen was born in Winfield, La., in 1881, and grew up as a boy companion of Long, who carried Allen along to political power. He was a member of the state legislature, chairman of the state highway commission and governor. Allen was nominated last week for the short term as United States senator.

Warmer Weather Succeeds Bitter Cold Wave Here

Rising temperatures, whose increasing warmth was offset by a penetrating south wind, today brought an end to the bitter northern which since Sunday morning had kept Cisco in a freezing grip. The West Texas Utilities company plant reported a temperature of 39 degrees at 1 o'clock this afternoon, after a gradual rise during the forenoon from a low of 28.5 degrees at 6 a. m.

At 6 p. m. yesterday, the plant reported, the mercury showed a reading of 31 degrees. This declined to 30 degrees at midnight and fell further to 28.5 degrees at 6 a. m. The rise which began was at the rate of one degree an hour until midmorning when the increase was accelerated. From 31 degrees at 10 o'clock, the reading jumped to 33 at 11 a. m. and 34 at noon.

RAINS PREVENT COLD DAMAGE

(By Associated Press) Drizzling rains took the sting out of freezing temperatures today in South Texas, and saved the winter vegetable crops from frost damage. The mercury was below freezing generally except along the Mexican border as the weather took a final cold fling that made way for warmer weather. Rains dampened the entire southern portion of the state.

COLDWELL BETTER

W. P. Coldwell, who has been seriously ill with a cold and threatened pneumonia, was reported to be much improved today and was expected to be able to return to his duties at the postoffice within three or four days. Henry Drumwright, manager of John H. Garner's, is in Dallas on a market trip. He is expected to return Wednesday.

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: Bobby Jones, fourth son of the Vicar of Marchholt, is playing golf with Dr. Thomas. Bobby's ball drops into the chasm he should have shot over, and in the bottom of the chasm he and the doctor find a dying man—tanned, handsome, about forty. Bobby stays with the man while the doctor goes for help. But the man dies, muttering, "Why didn't they ask Evans?" and Bobby, in taking out the man's handkerchief to cover his face, pulls out a photograph. The face of the picture stirs him strangely.

Chapter Two THE STRANGER

But it was the arresting quality of the face Bobby saw in the photograph rather than the beauty itself that seized upon the boy's imagination. It was the kind of face, he thought, not easy to forget.

Gently and reverently, he replaced the photograph in the pocket from which it had come. Then he sat down again to await the doctor's return.

The time passed very slowly—or at least so it seemed to the waiting boy. Also, he had just remembered something. He had promised his father to play the organ at the evening service at six o'clock, and it was now ten minutes to six.

Naturally his father would understand the circumstances, but all the same he wished that he had remembered to send a message by the Doctor. The Rev. Thomas Jones was a man of extremely nervous temperament. He was a fusser, and when he fussed, his digestive apparatus collapsed and he suffered agonizing pain.

Bobby, though he considered his father a nuisance, was nevertheless extremely fond of him. The Rev. Thomas, on the other hand, considered his fourth son a pitiful young ass, and with less tolerance than Bobby sought to effect improvement in the young man.

"The poor old gov-nor," thought Bobby. "He'll be ramping up and down. He won't know whether to start the service or not. He'll work himself up till he gets that pain in the tummy, and then he won't be able to eat his supper."

"He won't have the sense to realize that I wouldn't let him down unless it were quite unavoidable. And anyhow, what does it matter?"

"But he'll never see it that way. Nobody over fifty has got any sense—they worry themselves to death about little things that don't matter. They've been brought up all wrong, I suppose, and now they can't help themselves. Poor old Dad, he's got less sense than a chicken!"

He sat there thinking of his father with mingled affection and exasperation. His life at home seemed to him to be one long sacrifice to his father's peculiar ideas. To Mr. Jones, the same life seemed to be one long sacrifice on his part, ill understood or appreciated by the younger generation. So many ideas on the same subject differ.

What an age the Doctor was! Surely he might have been back by this time!

Bobby got up and stamped his feet moodily. At that moment he heard something above him and looked up, thankful that help was at hand and that his own services were no longer needed.

But it was not the Doctor. It was a man in plus-fours whom Bobby did not know.

"I say," said the newcomer. "Is anything the matter? Has there been an accident? Can I help in any way?"

He was a tall man with a pleasant tenor voice. Bobby could not see him very clearly, for it was now fast growing dusk.

He explained what had happened, while the stranger made shocked comments.

"There's nothing I can do?" he asked. "Get help or anything?"

Bobby explained that help was on the way and asked if the other could see any signs of its arriving.

"There's nothing at present."

"You see," went on Bobby, "I've got an appointment at six."

"And you don't like to leave—"

"No, I don't quite," said Bobby. "I mean, the poor chap's dead and all that, and of course one can't do anything, but all the same—"

He paused, finding it, as usual, difficult to put confused emotions into words.

The other, however, seemed to understand.

"I know," he said. "Look here, I'll come down—that is, if I can see my way—and I'll stay till these fellows arrive."

"Oh! would you?" said Bobby gratefully. "You see, it's my father. He's not a bad sort really, and things upset him. Can you see your way? A bit more to the left—now to the right—that's it. It's not really difficult."

He encouraged the other with directions until the two men were face to face on the narrow pleateau. The newcomer was a man of about thirty-five. He had a rather indecisive face which seemed to be calling for a monocle and a little moustache.

"I'm a stranger down here," he explained. "My name's Bassington-Trench, by the way. Came down to see about a house. I say, what a beastly thing to happen! Did he walk over the edge?"

Bobby nodded.

"Bit of mist got up," he explained. "It's a dangerous bit of path. Well, so long. Thanks very much. I've got to hurry. It's awfully good of you."

"Not at all," the other protested. "Anybody would do the same. Can't leave the poor chap lying—well, I mean, it wouldn't be decent somehow."

Bobby was scrambling up the precipitous path. At the top he waved his hand to the other then set off at brisk run across country. To save time he vaulted the churchyard wall instead of going round to the gate on the road—a proceeding observed by the Vicar from the vestry window and deeply disapproved of by him.

It was five minutes past six, but the bell was still tolling.

Explanations and recriminations were postponed until after the service. Breathless, Bobby sank into his seat and manipulated the stops of the ancient organ. Association of ideas led his fingers into Chopin's funeral march.

Afterwards, more in sorrow than in anger (as he expressly pointed out) the Vicar took his son to task.

"If you cannot do a thing properly, my dear Bobby," he said, "it is better not to do it at all. I know that you and all your young friends seem to have no idea of time, but there is One whom we should not keep waiting. You offered to play the organ of your own accord. I did not coerce you. Instead, faint-hearted, you preferred playing a game—"

Bobby thought he had better interrupt before his father got too well away.

By mild ripe tobacco we mean just this—

FIRST—ripened in the sunshine... and picked leaf by leaf from the right part of the stalk when fully ripe.

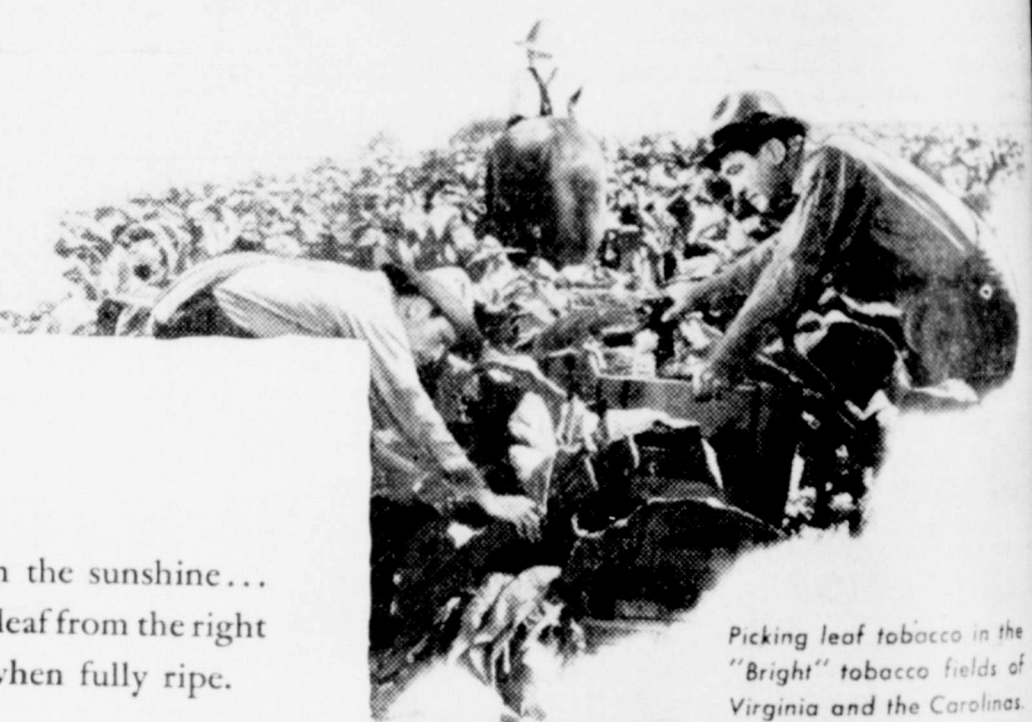

THEN—each day's picking cured right by the farmer... at the right time and in the right way... no "splotching" or brittleness, but every leaf of good color and flavor.

FINALLY—bought in the open market... re-dried for storage... then packed in wooden hogsheads to age and mellow for two years or more until free from harshness and bitterness.

That's what we mean by mild, ripe tobacco. And that's the kind of tobacco we use to give Chesterfields their milder, better taste.

From the Chief of Police to the Housewives and Citizens of Cisco

THIS IS A WARNING to BEWARE of STRANGERS posing as salesmen, solicitors or inspectors calling at your homes. THEY SHOULD NOT BE ADMITTED UNTIL THEIR CREDENTIALS HAVE BEEN CHECKED UP AND VERIFIED AND THAT YOU ARE SURE you are dealing with local people — REPRESENTATIVES OF LOCAL FIRMS. IN MANY CASES and from our police records lack of caution on the part of householders in allowing STRANGERS — without reliable credentials in the homes have resulted in costly property losses and bitter experiences. Often the man or woman calling today

—THE STRANGER — is the "spotter" or "locator" for a professional who follows in a later date.

DO NOT PAY CASH IN ADVANCE TO STRANGERS— On an order as too often we have had reports from our own citizens that THEY HAVE NEVER RECEIVED ANYTHING FOR THEIR CASH IN ADVANCE—much less the refund on the down payment.

DO NOT CASH CHECKS for STRANGERS — or issue a check to a stranger on an order as many times these checks have been altered and later cashed by an innocent party.

IT'S BETTER TO BE SAFE THAN SORRY — be absolutely sure you KNOW with whom you are dealing before granting admission to strangers to your home. IN CASE YOU ARE SUSPICIOUS PHONE THE POLICE AT ONCE — Phone 539. DO NOT DELAY THIS — as it will aid the police to locate the itinerant.

ONE NEED NOT BE AFRAID of OFFENDING the honest salesman known to you as a local citizen REPRESENTING LOCAL FIRMS. THEY HAVE THEIR CREDENTIALS WITH THEM — welcome such investigation.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Let them shout for joy, and be glad, that favor my righteous cause; yea, let them say continually: let the Lord be magnified, which hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant. As my tongue shall speak of thy righteousness, and of thy praise, all the day long.—Ps. 35: 27, 28.

"I know not what shall befall me; God hangs a mist o'er my eyes, And thus each step on my onward path He makes new senses to arise, And every joy he sends me comes, As a sweet and glad surprise."

Before we can bring happiness to others, we must first be happy ourselves; nor will happiness abide within us unless we confer it on others. If there be a smile upon our lips, those around us will smile too, and our happiness will become the truer and deeper as we see others are happy.—Maeterlinck.

Keep the Flag At Home

PROTECT the flag; but don't tote it around the world hunting trouble. Bring it home. The powers won't dare attack it here.—Gen. Smedley Butler.

THAT is mighty good advice. There is little danger of the American nation being embroiled in "foreign wars and entanglements" as long as we keep the flag at home. It is the jingo element and capitalistic influences that cause the United States to meddle in foreign politics and ultimate sanguinary conflicts.

GENERAL BUTLER spoke a great truth when he said the "powers won't dare to attack it (the flag) here."

OF COURSE General Butler was speaking figuratively, as State Press in the Dallas News facetiously comments, and did not mean that American ships must hide the flag when entering foreign ports.

BUT he did mean that Americans should never flaunt the flag offensively, but rather attend to our own business at home, and not meddle in the politics or take part in the dissensions of European nations.

Victimizing the Aged

THE tendency of old people, who need assistance but are ignorant of the laws governing old-age pensions in Texas, to drift into the hands of unscrupulous agents who promise pensions for a price is cited by the Texas Old Age Assistance commission in a recent warning. There is a breed of persons who are ready to victimize the most helpless and betray the confidence of the most trustful for money. The old age pension laws offer this individual a golden opportunity to fleece his victims.

THE APPLICANT for such pensions should beware him. The state agency charged with distribution of the old age benefits is being organized to where it is not believed necessary to resort to the help of paid agents in order to establish the right of the applicant to the pension. At any rate, any such applicant can and should get competent, honest advice from responsible public officers and legal friends before resorting to the services of agents who exact a fee for their assistance.

Another Tax

ANOTHER addition to the bookkeeping duties of employers has occurred coincident with the becoming of effect of the federal social security law this year. Employers of eight or more persons are required to keep accurate records of the salaries or wages earned by their employes, exact therefrom a certain percent and add to that an equal amount from their own pockets, all of which is to be paid into the federal treasury as internal revenue before January 31, 1937. This is the old age benefit tax of the social security program. It was conceived as a means of building up an insurance fund against old age and unemployment. It is another part of the New Deal designed to bring a new economic era to the nation.

REGULATIONS governing the collection of the tax have just been issued by the commissioner of internal revenue.

The object of the social security law is commendable. If it proves workable it will mean that great numbers of workers in slack times, or times of sudden economic changes, would not be cast upon the resources of charitable institutions such as was the case in the last depression. There is room for speculation, however, on the question of whether or not people can be made to provide their own security through the intervention of paternalism in government. Human nature is a funny critter, as the nation's experience with prohibition so strikingly illustrated.

Back to the Farm

A DEFINITE trend back to the land in Eastland county is evident from the department of commerce census bureau's preliminary farm census report just released. That report shows that the number of farms in the county increased from 1,990 in 1930 to 2,420 on January 1, 1935, and that approximately half of these, or 1,289 were operated by owners or part owners.

PRODUCTION of hay and other feedstuffs and cattle showed great increases over the period. In 1935, the census showed, 23,998 head of cattle in the county of which 13,166 were heifer calves and cows. This compares with 15,948 head in 1930.

THE VALUE of the farm lands and buildings in 1935 was little more than half the value of this property in 1930, according to the report. But that comparison is of little or no merit. The fact to be considered is that the amount of land in use and the production from that land was much greater in 1935 than in 1934. It is a healthful sign that the people of Eastland county are returning to a stable source of prosperity.

Increase of Cattle, Forage Crops and Farm Acreage Noted in Eastland Co.

An increase in cattle on January 1, 1935, over April 1, 1930, and an accompanying increase in hay and sorghums for forage in 1934 over 1929 in Eastland county is shown in preliminary figures from the 1935 federal farm census released this month by Director William L. Austin, bureau of commerce. Cattle increased 50 per cent while hay and sorghums for forage acreage increased 63 per cent. The production of hay and sorghums used for forage, however, increased only 15 per cent. A slight increase in horses was shown, together with the decrease in mules and a small decrease in hogs. Cows and heifers two years old and over showed a smaller proportionate increase in numbers than other cattle. Practically the same acreage of crop land was harvested in

Loss Woods Is Candidate For County Sheriff

This issue carries the announcement of Loss Woods for Sheriff of Eastland county. Loss has had a wide experience as a peace officer, having served four years as deputy sheriff under Bob Skinner beginning in 1911, two years as chief of police of the city of Eastland and has been deputy sheriff since January 1, 1929, under Virge Foster, the retiring sheriff. We have never heard of any criticism of Loss Woods' private or official life. His family consists of a wife and three daughters, all born and reared in this county. His announcement follows:

I feel that if I ever intend making the race for sheriff of Eastland county, I should do so at this time and therefore, I have definitely decided to run. Having lived among you, in this county, for the past 46 years, I feel that my public as well as my private life is well known to everyone who has had occasion to know me personally or has had any official dealings with me. My record as a peace officer is well known to everyone and my views as to law enforcement cannot be misunderstood by anyone. I personally believe in every law being obeyed, and I am sure that those who have had a chance to know me personally will vouch for my being at all times courteous, fair and considerate in complying with the provisions of the laws.

"I am not making the race for sheriff, or entering the race later, or making the campaign on the state plane; on my official efficiency, honesty and integrity, and if the voters of Eastland county will use their own judgment and cast their votes in my favor, I assure you it will be appreciated, and I will execute the duties of the office the best way I can."

"Sincerely yours, 'LOSS WOODS, 'Candidate for Sheriff, 'Eastland County, Texas."

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE "Nazareth, where he had been brought up." What a wealth of meaning is crowded into that phrase! The many things that enter into the bringing up of a boy or girl are there: parents who have most immediate influence; brothers and sisters who share directly in the bringing up; other relatives who have occasional say in it; neighbors, friends, acquaintances, all of whom affect the child favorably or adversely; institutions of business, education, religion, or amusement; various aspects of nature, biting winds that must be faced in coming or going, oppressive heat to be endured, pleasant mornings that fill with joy, refreshing showers, flowers that make the wayside or meadow brighter, beasts that run about or hide, and birds that nest and sing in bush or barn, in field or wood; all of these would enter into memory as one came back to "where he had been brought up." We believe that Jesus entered into these human experiences at the same time that He had others that we know not of. The old home community knows something of our bringing up and perhaps is accordingly less appreciative of our worth. If one knows the wars and blotches, the alternations and erasures that have entered into the bringing out of a finished piece of art he may include these in his conception of the work and miss the full appreciation of the art. Childhood acquaintances may know too much of the blundering way that we have grown up and never be able to dissociate these ideas from their estimation of our worth. We think that Jesus could not have been subject to such blundering, but the parents and other influential factors must have been. Even He had to say of his home community, "A prophet is not without honor save there."

as He implies, "Why not do as much for us as for these other towns?" And because He told them the truth about their inconsistency they undertook to throw Him out of town.
