TARVER SLAYING IS REPORTED SOLVED

Henry Case Is Placed in Hands of Jury

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The hatch of the Cisco state fish hatchery will be materially reduced this year. Normally producing more than half a million baby bass, crappie and bream for distribution over the state, it will be pure luck if the ponds yield more than 150,000 fish this summer. D. C. Harper, superintendent, told me Saturday. Reason, the unseasonable April cold wave that drove the temperature below freezing at a most unnatural time.

The cold spell, said Harper, cost the hatchery 90 per cent of its spawn. Had it come a week later it would have done the damage, but newly spawned fish eggs cannot stand less than 55 degrees of temperature. A day or so after the eggs have hatched the young fish can stand water in the upper "40's." The first night of cold did not hurt the eggs. The water was warm. But during the next day the cold drove the temperature of the water to 52 degrees. Thereafter the spawn, seen clear and clean beneath the surface, grew cloudy and developed into a mass of nasty scum and fungi. Parts of the mass, lifted from the water, smelled with putrefaction.

In order to replenish the supply of spawn Harper is catching brood fish from Lake Cisco and seeking shipments of fry from the hatcheries in south Texas where the cold wave did not reach. The amount of young fish which he will be able to place in rearing ponds will be limited, he said.

A positive record of the temperature of the water in the ponds is kept during the spawning season, with recordings made each day, Harper said.

Mayor Berry produced the following story, lifted from a lumber trade publication:

It was the regular business meeting of the colored Sons of I Will Arise, and they had just finished the program proper when the chairman said:

"Now dat concludes de bizness pah't of ouah program, but if dey is anybody heah what has any new bizness to bring up or any moshuns to make, now is de time foh dem."

Loud and clear from the back of the hall came a voice:

"Mistuh Chayman, Ah makes a moshun dat Samuel Jackson am a dirty, low-down, sneakin' chicken-thief."

Down in front a wild-eyed darkey of medium size, bounded to his feet, glared around the room and demanded:

"Who makes dat moshun dat Ah'm a dirty, low-down chicken-thief?"

In the back of the room a huge, black, evil-eyed, scar-faced darkey rose slowly, and cast menacing eyes on Sam Jackson.

"I makes dat moshun," he growled.

"Mistuh Chayman," said Samuel Jackson. "Ah seckunds dat moshun."

ARGUMENTS GO TO LATE HOUR AT EASTLAND

First Defendant in "Skeleton" Cases Awaits Verdict

COURTROOM, EASTLAND, April 4.—The fate of Raymond Henry rested in the hands of 12 Eastland county men tonight as a jury in 88th district court began consideration of the H. L. McBee "hanging skeleton" murder case.

The case went to the jury at a late hour after attorney for the state and the defense had consumed more than nine hours in argument before a courtroom that was jammed with spectators, just as it had been at every session of the sensational trial all week.

As the case was submitted to the jury Defense Attorney R. E. Grantham asked the jurors to "give Raymond Henry the electric chair or turn him loose and let him walk out of the courthouse with you."

In his argument today Prosecutor Allen Dabney sought to establish a motive for the slaying of McBee. "Mrs. McBee was the motive," he said. "The others involved in the case weren't enemies of McBee. They were his friends, all but Raymond Henry."

The state asked that the jury find the defendant guilty of murder with malice aforethought and fix the penalty at death or life imprisonment.

The state contended that Henry stabbed McBee with an ice pick at the McBee home in Rising Star on the morning of May 1, 1933, that he watched him die, that night and went with two other men to bury him northeast of the town, that the body was disinterred three weeks later and hung from an oak tree near the grave where it was found on December 22, 1934, by two rabbit hunters.

The defense based its case on five principal points: the character of the state witnesses; a contention that McBee left his home on the morning on which he was alleged to have been stabbed; an alibi which held that Henry attended a drinking party at a friend's home the night he was alleged to have buried McBee; a fight in which McBee was said to have been killed by another person, probably a star witness for the state; and a discrepancy

Mother of Mrs. F. E. Clark Buried at Center, Texas

Mrs. W. W. McCary, 83-year-old mother of Mrs. F. E. Clark, died at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Clark at 2:45 a. m. Saturday. Funeral services were held at Center, Texas, Saturday afternoon. The body was taken to Center in a Green Funeral home hearse.

Mrs. McCary, who had made her home with Dr. and Mrs. Clark for a number of years, succumbed to a complication of kidney trouble and other ailments. She had been confined to her bed for three weeks or more. Two daughters and three sons survive her. They are Joe McCary and Burk McCary of Center, Texas; Rev. Jeff McCary of Jacksonville; Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Millie Griffin, wife of a former Cisco physician, who is now of Fort Worth.

The funeral cortege, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Clark and their children, left Cisco at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. Burial was at Center about 4 p. m.

24 APPLY FOR RELIEF GOODS

Twenty-four applications were made for relief commodities to Miss Elsie Glenn, case worker for the Eastland County Family Welfare association at the Cisco chamber of commerce here Saturday, she announced.

Miss Glenn took her place at the chamber of commerce Friday, after approval of the county set-up Thursday. Supplies of canned goods, vegetables and clothing will be available for distribution to needy families, she said.

Case histories were taken in all of the applications.

Brother-in-Law of H. D. Gorham Here

Heber Page, brother-in-law of H. D. Gorham, Cisco, and representative of the Page Interstate Co., Springfield, Mo., publishers of city directories, was in Cisco Saturday.

HELD FOR BANKRUPT FRAUD

ABILENE, April 4.—S. L. Levy of Stamford, was in the Taylor county jail in default of $2,500 bond. He was arrested on a capias Friday, charged with concealing bankrupt assets and conspiracy to violate the bankrupt act.

Bond of $500 was set in the case of C. L. McCann of Haskell, charged with possession of a non-registered still.

BOTH PONSLER AND WALLACE RE-ELECTED

Win Over Dyer and Seale in Record Vote for Trustees

R. L. Ponsler and W. W. Wallace were re-elected members of the Cisco public school board by more than a two to one vote in an election held here Saturday.

A record vote was cast, when 805 citizens went to the polls and cast their ballots.

The vote was announced as follows:

R. L. Ponsler 584
W. W. Wallace 525
Dr. Hubert Seale 221
H. L. Dyer 279

Mr. Ponsler was president of the board. The term of a member of the board under the present law is three years.

Other members are W. J. Armstrong, Mrs. N. A. Brown, Mrs. Sam Kimmel, O. J. Russell and Mrs. P. R. Warwick.

The re-elected members will take office immediately after the results of the election are canvassed at the next meeting.

Mr. Ponsler Saturday night stated that he wished to thank the voters for going to the polls in such large numbers Saturday.

"It is an inspiration to the members of the board to feel that the patrons of the school are taking such an interest," he said. "I am grateful for the confidence that has been expressed by this vote in myself and in Mr. Wallace. I assure you that we will devote every effort in justifying this confidence."

Baptist Revival To Be Closed at Service Tonight

The First Baptist church will close a very successful revival meeting at the service tonight when the Rev. E. F. Cole will preach on "Christ's Return." Rev. Cole is pastor of the First Baptist church of Lamesa. He has been bringing stirring messages to large congregations both morning and evening for two weeks.

This morning he will preach on "Heaven." Sunday school will be held at the usual hour. A goal of 450 has been set. One hundred and twenty at the training service program at 6:30 p. m. will be sought.

There have been 29 conversions and additions to the church during this series of services. The Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the church, spoke in the highest terms of the messages and evangelistic work of the visiting evangelist. He also expressed his appreciation to the newspapers, the other pastors and churches of the town and the general public for their loyalty and cooperation.

Music has been in charge of W. F. Walker and E. L. Wisdom. Members of other choirs in the city have given assistance. Rev. H. D. Blair, associational missionary, sang special solos a number of times.

Rev. Phillips Will Preach at Eastland

Rev. C. D. Phillips of Cisco, will supply for Rev. Robert E. Bowden, pastor of the Church of God at Eastland, who was called to Oklahoma by the death of his mother-in-law. Mr. Phillips said he would deliver the morning and evening messages to that congregation today.

Asks Re-Election

Judge B. W. Patterson, native Ciscoan, who is seeking re-election to the bench of the 88th district court at Eastland. He is concluding his first term. Judge Patterson is one of the busiest district judges in the state. When not busy in his own court, he has been constantly assigned to preside over others where dockets are crowded. This system has brought about both speedier and more satisfactory handling of litigation and more economy to the state. Last week he presided at the trial of the first of the famed "hanging skeleton" cases at Eastland.

3-Hour Service To Commemorate Death on Cross

Cisco First Methodist church will have a three-hour service on Good Friday, it was announced by Rev. W. H. Cole, pastor. This service will be from 12 o'clock noon to 3 o'clock p. m. This is the time that Christ hung on the cross. While He was on the cross He spoke seven sentences, sometimes called "Words from the Cross." These seven words will be discussed in the service. Each will be the thought for a 25 minute service. Different preachers of the city and surrounding towns will be on the program. Easter music will constitute a vital part of the program. The entire town was invited to participate in this three-hour service. People may attend that part of the service that each can be present for. Worshipers may come and go at the end of each 25-minute division. Regardless of church affiliation, all are invited. "Christ hung on the cross for three hours and this service offers the opportunity to relive with him the things he had to say during this intense suffering," said the pastor.

HAUPTMANN CASE THREATENS REACTION FOR GOV. HOFFMAN

TRENTON, N. J., April 4. (AP) — An immediate threat to Governor Hoffman's political future arose today as an aftermath of Hauptmann's execution.

Former Representative Franklin Fort announced that he would oppose the governor at the polls for position as delegate-at-large to the republican national convention on the sole issue of Hoffman's activity in the Lindbergh case.

"When a governor makes a mockery of the courts and juries, and drags his high office into the

ONE MAN IS IN JAIL AND TWO OTHERS SOUGHT AFTER SHOOTING ON HIGHWAY 23

Details of Difficulty Which Led to Death of 27-Year-Old Cisco Man Disclosed by Investigation of Officers

One man was in jail at Eastland facing a charge of murder, and two others were being sought late Saturday night as officers announced that the Buford Tarver slaying case had been solved. They asked that newspapers withhold the names of the three until expected arrests had been made.

Tarver, 27, was found shot to death, a single bullet hole in his chest, on Highway 23, a quarter of a mile north of Lake Cisco late Thursday night. His body was found about ten feet behind his car, the motor of which was still running and the lights on. Two men, Quinville Ingram and Herman Notgrass, who had been with him earlier in the evening, found the body when Tarver failed to follow them into Cisco, and reported to officers.

GEO. WINSTON HAS STROKE

George M. Winston, prominent retired business man of Cisco, suffered a slight paralytic stroke late Friday afternoon, while reading a newspaper at his home, 96½ West Twelfth street. There were none at home at the time except he and Mrs. Winston. She called a physician at once, and on his arrival, with the assistance of a neighbor, placed him in bed, where he was given medical attention.

The stroke only affected his right side, rendering his arm and leg practically useless. However, reports from his bedside late Saturday afternoon contained the gratifying information that he was considerably improved, and that he was able to use his fingers, and his articulation was much better.

His son, Lloyd Winston, was summoned from Midland, and reached here early Saturday morning. He stated that Friday night his father rested fitfully, and only slept at short intervals. Saturday he slept sounder and of longer periods, and a general improvement was noted, Lloyd said.

Emigres to Study Marine Biology

TEL AVIV, Palestine (Palcor) (AP) — Scientists of this Jewish city, reinforced by German-Jewish new-comers, are to open here soon the first institute to study of eastern Mediterranean marine biology.

The initiative came from Dr. Walter Steinitz, formerly lecturer in zoology at Breslau university, Germany.

Although there are 14 research stations around the western Mediterranean, not a single one exists in the eastern part of the sea.

The intention is to study sea life in the hitherto unexplored area of the eastern Mediterranean, Suez Canal and Red Sea, and to establish the value of fisheries.

HAUPTMANN CASE THREATENS REACTION FOR GOV. HOFFMAN

During the afternoon, Tarver, Ingram and Notgrass started to leave the ranch. Tarver and Ingram got in Tarver's car and came to Cisco. When Notgrass failed to show up, they went back and found that the Chevrolet coupe, which belonged to him, had been tampered with. They came back to Cisco and obtained a new distributor cap for the Notgrass car, taking it out to him. That was around 10:30. Notgrass' car developed a flat tire before they were out of the pasture and further time was complete breakdown.

In Kamenz, Germany, the victim's aged mother suffered a complete breakdown.

Chief of Police Perdue, Constable Grant Daniels and Loss Woods, whom Daniels deputized, worked on the case. They announced Saturday that investigation revealed the trouble which led to the shooting arose over a still.

"We are looking for two men," said Chief Perdue. "One of them did the shooting that resulted in Tarver's death. The other was present. When he can be located as a witness we expect to definitely establish the responsibility."

Made Confession He said the man in custody had made a confession.

The shooting, as reconstructed by investigators, was said to have occurred in this manner:

About 10 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, April 2, Tarver, Ingram and Notgrass went to the site of a still on the "Chilly" Williams ranch, leased by Ernest Hittson, and waited there until the afternoon. The three suspects in the case saw them go into the pasture but did not immediately identify them. Fearing that they were officers, the three came to Cisco and did not return until after dark. On the way out of the pasture, however, they found a Chevrolet coupe and removed the distributor cap.

That night the three went back to the highway and parked their machine in a cattle guard, opposite the cattleguard which gave entrance into the pasture.

During the afternoon, Ingram and Tarver moved the still about a mile north of its location and hid it in some brush. The still, of about 100-gallon capacity, was found at that point by officers who confiscated it. Constable Grand Daniels and Loss Woods, who had been deputized by him, found two coils in the garage at the Tarver home in Cisco and confiscated them. Notgrass declared he had nothing to do with moving the still.

Got New Cap

During the afternoon, Tarver, Ingram and Notgrass started to leave the ranch. Tarver and Ingram got in Tarver's car and came to Cisco. When Notgrass failed to show up, they went back and found that the Chevrolet coupe, which belonged to him, had been tampered with. They came back to Cisco and obtained a new distributor cap for the Notgrass car, taking it out to him. That was around 10:30. Notgrass' car developed a flat tire before they were out of the pasture and further time was complete breakdown.

The Reminder of Niagara

By IRVIN S. COBB

AFTER years of economy Mr. and Mrs. Smith had amassed a neat little fortune and had moved from the farm to a house in Buffalo, equipped with all the modern conveniences. A little later they made their first visit to view the wonders of Niagara Falls. Together they stood at the brink and watched the sweep of the waters as they poured over the edge of the cliff and fell with a roar into the chasm below.

"Ain't it wonderful?" asked Mr. Smith. "It's a marvelous sight ain't it Martha?"

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Smith. "But somehow it reminds me of something. I can't just think what it is. But it certainly is something." A spasm crossed her face and she clutched in horror at his arm. "Oh, Henry," she wailed. "Now I remember — I forgot and left the bathtub running!"

Spite Prompted Campaign, Supt. Cluck Declares

Supt. R. N. Cluck of the Cisco public schools, today issued the following statement with reference to what he declared was a personal attack being made upon him in connection with the election of two members of the school board Saturday:

To the Patrons of the Cisco Independent School District:
Mrs. A. J. Olson, in support of her candidates for the Cisco school board, has seen fit to make a vitriolic personal attack upon me. I have never thought it necessary or expedient to enter into a controversy with a woman, but due to the character of campaign she is carrying on, I believe it is my duty to the schools to make the following statements:

Sometime after the FERA schools were started here, Mrs. Olson made application for a teaching place. Because the schools were established primarily to provide work for unemployed teachers and because I knew that there were numerous others in urgent need of this work and did not believe Mrs. Olson in need of it, I declined to recommend to the Adult School Supervisor that she be employed. Shortly thereafter I became aware of a campaign against me and against the entire FERA adult school program that had been instituted here. Among other letters that she wrote, one addressed to the state superintendent of public instruction and one addressed to the state director of the adult education program, copies of which were sent to me from the state adult education headquarters, complained of the way the work was being carried on in these schools. She also wrote Cong. Thomas L. Blanton complaining about the way the FERA schools were being run in Cisco. A copy of this letter was sent to me from Austin, and I have it on file.

Investigation
These complaints resulted in a thorough investigation of the schools here, and reports from both the state and federal agencies show clearly that there was no merit in her contentions. The correspondence with reference to these matters, together with copies of the reports of investigations, is on file in my office and subject to the inspection of any who might be interested.

It appears that Mrs. Olson's failure to destroy the adult school program which has resulted in the employment of 35 to 40 unemployed teachers and an income of approximately $1,800 of federal funds per month in Cisco over a period of nearly three years, has incensed her and resulted in the action she is now taking.

I am aware that it has been the policy of the school board to keep our schools above petty politics and personal matters. I do believe, however, that if I am to be made an issue in this election, it becomes a personal matter, and I do believe, in justice to all concerned, that the public should be informed of the whole fact in relation thereto, in order that they may fairly judge of motives.

Schools Too Important
And I do believe that if the unbiased citizens who have the interest of the school at heart will check the official files they will be convinced that Mrs. Olson's activity in this campaign was prompted, not by a desire to improve the conditions of the schools, but to vent a personal spite and resentment against me. And I maintain that our schools are much too important to be made the agency or instrument for the exercise of a personal grudge.

I hesitate to reveal these facts, but I do feel that I have a duty to the schools to advise the citizens and patrons on the matters mentioned above.

I do not contest the right of any citizen to advocate a policy or a candidate. The exercise of that right is lawful. But it would be cowardly, I believe, to permit the character and motives behind such a personal campaign as is now being directed against me by Mrs. Olson, purely for reasons of spite and resentment, to go unchallenged. I tried to by my duty as I saw it and, in fairness to me and my policies as administrator of the schools, I ask that you view this matter in that light.

Father of Late W. H. Kittrell Was Firm Believer in God's Providence

By R. W. H. KENNON
(Editor's Note—By permission of Mrs. W. H. Kittrell, widow of the late W. H. Kittrell, the Daily Press will publish three episodes in the early life of Mr. Kittrell, written a short while before his death Feb. 28, 1934. These reminiscences will appear in three installments this being the second, as each speaks of an incident that occurred just previous to and shortly after the death of his father, Dr. Pleasant Kittrell, one of the early citizens of Texas, who was also prominent in shaping the civil destiny and laying the foundations for the splendid civilization Texans are now enjoying.)

EPISODE II

Being Late Saved His Life
"My father, the late Dr. Pleasant Kittrell, was a firm believer in God's overruling providence that 'the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord,' and that 'he watcheth over them.' "He often related the following incident, which occurred in February, 1853, when I was but two years of age. At the time of its occurrence his plantation was located on the Trinity river—now the Ferguson State farm. "With three of his neighbors they loaded their cotton crop, of several hundred bales, on a river steam boat, to go to Galveston to market. He and his neighbors took passage on the same boat. The river was low and falling fast. The captain of the boat told them they must hurry for the homeward trip for fear that the river might be too low to navigate. As quick as possible the cotton was unloaded and they hastened to sell and purchase needed supplies. "The boat was to start back at 10 o'clock the next morning, and his neighbors had completed the business in hand and were ready for the start. "Detained by Friends "Father said he had finished his purchases, and while en route to the wharf he was stopped by two men who engaged him in conversation. In spite of his urging that he must hurry to make the boat they detained him some moments. Then he rushed off, hurrying to get to the boat landing in time for its departure. But before he reached the wharf another acquaintance met him, and in spite of his entreaty to be excused, that he had to catch the boat, he was still detained. When he reached the wharf the boat had already departed, and was some distance out. So he was left behind; left some 160 miles or more from home, and no public transportation except steam boats. Not a railroad then in Texas. He said he was awfully upset by the predicament in which he was left, and mentally blamed his associates for causing him to miss the boat.

Explosion Killed Neighbors
"By just what means he reached home I have forgotten, but when he got in the vicinity of home he learned that when the boat reached a shoal in the river, near his home port, which was Cincinnati, the boat's boiler had exploded, and the small craft—about 70 feet long—was destroyed, his three neighbors perished, and he doubtless would have shared their fate had he not been detained while en route to the wharf by his three acquaintances who insisted on prolonging their conversations, which caused him to miss sailing on the return trip. Ever afterward he considered it the 'hand of God' of his being delayed by the men, which prevented his reaching the wharf on time for the disastrous trip. As we read: 'All things work together for good to them who love the Lord, and are the called according to his purpose.' "His neighbors were not God-fearing men, on the body of one of whom was found with several playing cards 'up his sleeve.' "Their trust was not in divine providence, or they, too, might have missed the boat as father did."

W. H. KITTRELL.

The third and last episode will appear in a future issue of The Daily Press.

Smart Simplicity in Miss Francis' Dress

Never before has Kay Francis' insistence on smart simplicity been so strictly adhered to as in her clothes for "I Found Stella Parish," the First National production now showing at the Texas theatre.

Smart because she is conservative—and conservative because she is smart—the star has won her reputation as a "best dressed woman" because her costumes are always wearable and practical. But the great team of Kay Francis, star, and Orry-Kelly, designer, has outdone itself in the wardrobe for her current picture.

When Orry-Kelly drapes, he still retains a slim line. Illustrative of this custom, which is eminently becoming to all women, is an informal afternoon frock of black crepe striped with inch and a half stripes of black satin.

The short-sleeved top drapes in a classical effect from the right shoulder to the left waistline, and another drape runs vertically down the right side of the skirt from belt to hem, while the skirt otherwise is slender.

Chinese Troops Rout Communist Army

PEIPING, China, April 4. (AP)—Government troops today routed a communist army campaigning in Shansi province, and the sieges of Hungtung and Pingyanfu were raised, reliable sources said today. It is believed dangers to missionaries are removed.

State Pensions Must Agree With U. S. Law

AUSTIN, April 4. (AP)—State Pension Director Orville Carpenter declared today that Texas will be denied federal aid if all persons over 65 years of age are paid pensions, regardless of qualifications, and without restriction. He said the state law was passed to agree with the national statute, which was voted for the purpose to aid states in "helping aged needy individuals."

Two elderly Franklin county, Kas., women deeded their homes to the county in return for care for the remainder of their lives.

Mrs. Refugio Yturria de Harris, 99, who watched Gen. Zachary Taylor raise the American flag at Matamoros, Mexico, died there recently.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
"Unreality" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, April 5, including First church, Eastland, Texas. The Golden Text is: "Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy" (1 Timothy 6:17).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together" (Romans 8:16, 17).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals will someday assert their freedom in the name of Almighty God. Then they will control their own bodies through the understanding of divine science. Dropping their present beliefs, they will recognize harmony as the spiritual reality and discord as the material unreality" (page 288).

: For The Bridge : Player

Too Many High Cards
Wealth in honor cards can prove embarrassing to a player who is endeavoring to set a contract. He may be subjected to a squeeze, whereas if his partner had some of those high cards the squeeze would not operate.

Especially is this the case when an adversary can be squeezed in three suits. Discards in a progressive squeeze will enable a declarer to make two more tricks than would be possible without the squeeze process. When one adversary is squeezed in two suits or each adversary is squeezed in one suit and both in a third suit it is possible for the declarer to set up only one extra trick.

On a train bound from Miami to New York I noticed Miss Betty Gard, who assists Eddie Cantor on the air, make a defender regret his double. This was the Miss Gard wound up in a little slam no trump all because of a psychic bid when she aimed at a game contract only. She opened the auction with an offer of one heart. West passed. North bid two clubs. East naturally passed. Because of her spade stopper and fit in clubs, Miss Gard then bid two diamonds, hoping to stop a diamond lead and play at three no trump if North could rebid. West passed again and North leaped to five diamonds. Miss Gard said five no trump and North went to six diamonds. In fear and trembling, Miss Gard said six no trump, hoping that North would not bid seven on something or other. But West doubled and everybody passed.

West opened the king of spades. In sight for the declarer were ten certain tricks—one spade, one heart, two diamonds (if a finesse worked), six clubs (if the suit broke). The only hope was a three-suit squeeze on West. West's king of spades was allowed to hold the first trick. That was one of the key plays of the hand. West obligingly continued spades, leading the queen. The declarer won with the ace and successfully finessed the queen of diamonds. Then all the clubs were run. With one club left to play the situation was:

On the club five the diamond seven was discarded South and the first pressure of the progressive squeeze was applied on West. A heart discard would enable South to make the queen, a diamond discard would make the North hand have three diamond winners. Whatever West did made no difference. Actually he shed the jack of spades. Miss Gard then led North's heart to the ace and led the spade ten, which squeezed West again. He let go the heart king. The queen of hearts took the last trick.

COTTON QUEEN KILLED
BRYAN, April 4. (AP)—Virginia Bruner, named A. & M. college cotton pageant belle from Amarillo, received a crushed vertebrae in an automobile accident north of her, last night. Mrs. Felix Madel received a broken leg and Mrs. T. P. Curran, Mrs. C. A. Robertson and Miss Aline Ballew were cut and bruised. All were from Amarillo. GO TO CHURCH

The Old Church at Jamestown, in Virginia, after being restored in the year 1906 by that city.
Young People who are not taught the solace of prayer, and the joy of faith, are being denied life's most profound opportunity for peace. To Mothers and Fathers everywhere, your religion urges that you teach your children that it is for their own happiness that the Church asks them to visit it every Sunday. There are special services for Youth, as He Himself wished it.

Texas Beauty Presents "Blue Bonnet Blue"

A new high note in fashions was struck last week
when the Texas
Centennial Celebrations presented happily "Blue Bonnet Blue" to the fashion world in a style show at the Waldorf Astoria
hotel in New York City. Scores of leading stylists, designers and fashion
editors applauded
when lovely Janice Jarratt, San Antonio girl known to the nation as Amer-
graphed girl, appeared in this striking Blue Bonnet gown designed especially for the occasion by Vogue.
Decorating the luxurious lounge were 250 flowering Blue
Bonnet plants gardened near San Antonio and Corpus Christi and air-expressed to New York.

Official adoption of "Blue Bonnet Blue" by fashion authorities has caused the lustrous
State flower of Texas to be introduced into spring and summer fashions
throughout the nation. This enthusiasm for the Texas
Centennial Celebrations, already extending in many fields, motivates progress in the fashion world.

New Business Man
Pleased at Response

M. Sheinberg, proprietor of the New Boston Store, said Saturday night that he was surprised and gratified at the business the new Cisco firm attracted at its opening. Although the store, which replaces the Boston Store of I.
Moldave, was not completely ready for business, the doors were opened anyway to take care of the trade.

"I am sure the public will be pleased with our opening sale, which will take place about Thursday," he said. "We didn't expect the amount of business we received Saturday and we did not have quite enough help, but we will correct this when the sale opens."

Mr. Sheinberg is leaving this morning for Dallas to bring his wife and two daughters, one of the girls only two months old, to their new home at 1006 West Sixth street.

Politics
At Random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau The Associated Press, Washington)

Probably no subject before congress has more amusing and bewildering aspects than the attempt to do something about the lobbyists.

The whole situation is one of paradoxes and anomalies. Every member of congress has a pretty good idea what a lobbyist is, yet the most astonishing intricacies arise when anyone tries to put a definition down on paper.

It does not suffice simply to follow the dictionary, and say that lobbying consists in trying to influence legislation.

That would make a lobbyist out of every president of the United States, who is required by the constitution to "recommend to their (congress) consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

It also would make lobbyists out of all groups and individuals who seek to exercise the constitutional right of petition. If a stigma were put upon that sort of activity, the tendency certainly would be to destroy one of the primary tenets of democratic government.

Legislators Also 'Lobby'

Neither does it help to say that a lobbyist is one who brings unusual or extra-legal political or other pressure to bear to influence legislation.

The strongest pressure most members of congress ever encounter comes from patronage-controlling administrations and political organizations. A great deal of such pressure comes from members themselves, who seek to crack the party whip or make "log-rolling" agreements with their colleagues.

Congress hardly could be expected to pass a statute making lobbyists out of its own members, and no party in power ever will make a law casting discredit on the numerous legislative agents of its own administration.

Consequently, an effort has been made to narrow the field.
The bill passed by the house is aimed at "those who accept employment . . . to influence legislation," and at organizations
"the principal purpose of which" is to influence legislation.

But where does that lead, and how effective would any such statute be in weeding out or exposing the evils of lobbying? Certainly a little reflection discloses many possible loopholes.

Proof Difficult

As to individuals, how could it ever be established that anyone was employed "to influence legislation?"

The best known case developed by months of senate lobby investigation was that of Mr. Hopson of Associated Gas and Electric.
Yet Hopson was employed as vice-president of the corporation; presumably his contract, if one existed, said nothing about influencing legislation.

There are in Washington hundreds of offices maintained by corporations and groups, some called "headquarters," some "branch offices," some "contact bureaus," to gather information for officials back home. Most of them may be engaged in lobbying; yet it is a safe bet that not

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

For he had compassion on me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing in yourself that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring substance.

Spirit is substance; God gives true supply; I shall not want. Undoubtedly I know That Love is ever present to pestow Abundance, which no mortal coin can buy.

The efforts of mortals have too often been based on the supposition that man has become separated from God through sin, and must, through material sacrifice, regain the favor of a so-called punishing God.

Let's Quit Kidding Ourselves

ON April 18, the voters of Eastland county will have an opportunity to deal with the farce of the beer question. There is, in the opinion of the CISCO DAILY PRESS, only one sensible and honest thing to do.

WHO cannot obtain beer in Cisco or any other community in Eastland county now? It is as easily obtained as walking into a place and asking for it.

BEER cannot be exterminated by the wish. The business of enforcing prohibition laws is a practical thing. Consequently, the regulation of beer and liquors must be done with common sense.

TO the north of Cisco runs the north loop of the Bankhead highway. Beer is legal along that route. It is obtainable along the south loop to such an extent that all the home people who want it can have it without restraint.

IT is impossible to settle a moral issue with geography. The liquor question is a personal issue, a question to be dealt with in terms of manhood and good character. The late Gov. Hogg, one of the outstanding southern statesmen of all time, was entirely correct when he declared that good morals cannot be created by law.

EASTLAND county can start house-cleaning April 18, if the voters will take a sensible view of this matter.

Congratulations

SOLUTION of the Tarver slaying case Thursday evening, is a distinct credit to the law enforcement agencies of Cisco, Chief Milton Perdue and Constable Grant Daniels, assisted by Loss Woods whom Mr. Daniels deputized for the investigation, are to be congratulated upon the swift and thorough manner in which they brought a solution out of the mystery.

The Hauptmann Case

'FINIS' has been written to the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. It was written in the volts of a deadly electric current by the hand of a gentle-appearing little executioner to whom the act of snuffing out the lives of doomed men is a common thing.

THE system of criminal procedure by which the immigrant German carpenter was convicted of the kidnap-slaying of the Lindbergh baby and put to death produces a peculiar succession of public reactions, according to one prominent lawyer whose opinion was sought upon the case.

IN ENGLAND, swift trials and speedy execution of the sentences imposed, prevent this pressure of public sentiment building up. Perhaps, English justice is too swift. But the American federal system of criminal procedure is just as positive and almost as swift in its manifestations.

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Patterson, Presiding) The entire time of the 88th district court has been consumed this week in the trial of the "skeleton hanging" murder case, and it has absorbed all interest in the offices and corridors of Eastland county's temple of justice.

New Cases Pending

The following new cases have been filed for litigation in the 88th court during the past week: Mary Ellen Shumate vs. C. E. Shumate, divorce, T. B. Stuart vs. O. M. Huest et al, note, Mrs. Grace Gilman Shoemaker vs. Alexander A. Walton, partnership accounting.

Mrs. Jon Howell vs. Charles W. Howell, divorce and custody of child. C. C. Clark vs. Effie Clark, divorce.

Judgments and Orders

Upon the order of the court the resolutions adopted by the Eastland County Bar association, on the death of Judge John D. McRae, who died Feb. 25, were ordered spread upon the minutes of the 88th and 91st courts.

These resolutions were prepared by a committee consisting of Judge O. C. Funderburk, of the civil court of appeals, Cyrus B. Frost and Virgil L. Seaberry, members of the Eastland bar.

Clarence Metz vs. A. W. Drilling Co., application of W. A. Stiles, receiver, for authority to borrow $1,000 for maintenance of the receivership property until production of one of the wells in receivership can be sold and paid for.

It appeared to the court that a loan to the receiver was necessary for the proper care of the property, it was the order of the court that the receiver be authorized to negotiate the loan for the amount requested, same to draw interest at 8 per cent, and be payable in 120 days.

Mrs. Velma Jennings vs. J. B. Jennings, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff for divorce and custody of minor child, and for maintenance of said minor. It was the order of the court that the defendant, J. B. Jennings, pay into the registry of the court the sum of $2.25 per week until said minor is 16 years of age, or upon the order of the court; and the further sum of $50 as attorney's fees incurred by the plaintiff in prosecuting this suit.

It was further ordered by the court that the plaintiff file monthly statements to the court showing the expenditure of this maintenance.

Pettit Jury for Next Week

Judge Patterson ordered the following summoned for jury service during the week of April 6.

H. D. Maxwell, Okra; Overton Stone, C. F. Stubblefield, Carbon; R. C. Mehaffy, F. S. Perry, Gorman; C. S. Davis, Ira Swift, Rising Star; T. S. Richardson, John D. Harvey, J. J. Letters From Our Readers

Eastland, Texas. Editor Cisco Daily Press:

Recently you wrote two editorials concerning the old age pension law passed by the legislature. The first was on March 15, and this editorial denounces the law as not being in accord with the constitutional amendment voted by the people last August, and calls upon the "officials responsible for the failure of the solemn mandate for a pension to the aged to explain the abortion that the legislature passed and the governor endorsed with his signature."

The second editorial appeared the following day and you give prominent mention to the fact that a candidate for the State senate from this district is advocating repeal of a certain clause in the law which reads: "provided that the assistance granted herein shall be granted in such amounts as will provide a reasonable subsistence in keeping with the standard of living of the applicant. That very language is included in the last five lines of subsection of section 9 of the law.

Now, while you call upon the officials to explain it, you yourself did not explain that our present Senator, Collie, is not responsible for that law, opposed it on the grounds it was not what the people voted for and expected, and that during the debate on its passage he did everything in his power to correct it. He even made a motion to strike out the above provision, and he has again and again contended the law would have to be rewritten. Certainly then, he should not be censured, even by inference, but on the contrary his hands should be up-held by the people. His efforts were recorded for all to see, and I do not believe it fair to say his opponent "is right" in advocating repeal of the above clause when Senator Collie tried to get that very same clause eliminated from the bill in the first instance, and no mention was made of his hard fight then, or since. He was defeated in his single handed efforts, but he gained the support of ten of his colleagues. Refer to page 265 of the official Senate Journal of last November. Here is what it shows: "Senator Collie sent up the following motion (when this bill was brought up for final passage).

"Mr. President: I move that the conference committee report on House Bill 26 be rejected and the committee be instructed to re-write section 6 and change the administrative cost from five per cent to not exceed two and one-half per cent; that the last five lines of sub-section (a) of section 9 be stricken out of the report; that subsection (f) of section 2 be made to mean specifically the net income, exclusive of all taxes, insurance and payments of interest on the property of his or her designated homestead; that sub-section (b) of section 11 be written so that the payments of the pensions must commence without delay; that the committee be instructed to report back not later than Monday, November the 11th."

That motion was made and argued by Senator Collie on the evening of November 8. It is self-explanatory, but it can be explained that instead of the law commencing next July he wanted it to start last November and he would have compelled the sponsors of the bill to bring back the report without delay, allowing Saturday and Sunday to do the work. These Senators voted for his motion: Collie, Davis, Hill, Isbell, Martin, Sanderford, Small, Stone, Sulak, Westerfield and Woodruff. It was lost eleven to sixteen and after that the majority put on the previous question which stopped the debate and any other amendment or motion and forced the final vote. He was compelled, as a true representative of the people, to vote against such a law, but his motion clearly bespeaks his friendliness for old age assistance and his determination to carry out the will of the people.

After his return from Austin, he wrote a lengthy article in the papers explaining the law, giving the people much information, and predicting it would prove unsatisfactory, unworkable and too expensive in administration. He said it was wrong to give the power to administrative officials to discriminate in the allowance of the pensions which this law gives, and that it should not be a relief measure as previously set up, but a wholesome governmental policy, guaranteeing security to our aged citizens that is equality before the law and justice under the law.

We should not criticize a faithful public official and censure him for the acts of others. "For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." The people will elect their lawmakers with concern this year and not be stampeded with bumcombe and false promises. "By their fruits ye shall know them," and I say we have been fortunate in having in the senate a young man who has stuck by his guns and devoted all his efforts to the cause of the people, and against special interests.

He voted for the bill to raise the money to pay the pensions as the people, by their vote, had expected him to do. Everybody knows the pensions couldn't be paid without the taxes and much revenue. No one man can control the legislature and no governor has ever done it. The state is large and there are now so many different sections with different interests legislation affecting one beneficially would result in great injury to another. Senator Collie has represented this district with known ability and faithfulness, and he has tried to carry out the mandate of the people of the state.

Although I made speeches for him four years ago I have never asked him a favor. He has made good as disclosed by the record. He fought for his campaign promises and carried out every one of them. Besides passing every bill for this district requested of him, he was instrumental in defeating legislation destructive to this district. He served on the most important senate committees and was appointed on three special investigating committees whose investigations saved the state millions of dollars. He never missed a meeting of any committee or a day from the senate in four years. He is now president pro-tem of the senate, being elected unanimously by that body. By reason of this distinction and deserved recognition by the members who know him, our district, for the first time in history, and during his first term, furnished the governor of Texas. This is doing pretty well for a home boy, it seems to me.

I think he has a record Eastland county is proud of. The district elected him before because the people here gave him an overwhelming vote. They will do it again, and I now predict even greater offices of service for him in the future.

FRANK JUDKINS. Cisco Daily Press: I would be very much pleased to have you print this little note.

Farm Program Meeting to Be Held This Week

Eastland county will be divided into five communities under the AAA soil conservation program and meetings of farmers of the county will be held during the week of April 6-11th to elect committees to administer the act and to explain the program and how it operates in Eastland county, it was announced by County Agent Elmo Cook.

Each farmer, whether landlord, tenant or operator of his own farm, is eligible to vote for committees in the meeting held for the section of the county where his farm is located.

The five divisions or "communities" of Eastland county, with places and dates of meetings to be held are as follows:

1. Includes every farm in Commissioner's Precinct No. 1. Meeting in Recreational hall, Ranger, at 2 p. m. Wednesday, April 8.
2. Includes the east half of Commissioner's Precinct No. 2, the division line being the road running south from the C. W. Hoover farm, by the Tom Barton farm, south to Simms place, crossing railroad and highway, east to D. D. Finley farm, then south to county line. The meeting will be held in Gorman, Tuesday, April 7, at 2 p. m.

3. Includes the west half of Commissioner's Precinct No. 2, the division line being the same as for Community No. 2. The meeting will be held in Carbon at 10 a. m. Tuesday, April 7.

4. Includes all of Commissioner's Precinct No. 4 and extends on south to the road running west from the east line of Precinct 3 by the Crip Martin farm, then through Long Branch community to Highway 23, then south to the Gerhart farm, then west on the Cook and Sabinno road to the county line. The meeting will be held at the city hall, Cisco, at 10 a. m. Monday, April 6th.

5. Includes all of Commissioner's Precinct No. 3 except that part included in division four as stated above. The meeting will be held in Rising Star at 2 p. m. Monday, April 6th.

The election meetings in these five districts or "communities" will be followed by meetings in each of the regular communities of the county to explain the program to smaller groups and in detail. As a thorough understanding of the new farm program requires a little study, all farmers are urged to attend the election meetings and also their home community meeting. Schedules for the smaller meetings will be announced at the election meetings, Mr. Cook said.

their lines, and still find a way to be an effective force in politics. For the time being, however, the situation is greatly confused. And that is pleasing to the old-liners, because they know that many an independent political venture of similar structure has been wrecked completely in the past by internal dissension.

Group Movements Quiet

Incidentally, the Townsend flare-up adds to a rather extraordinary list of tribulations suffered by the group movements of 1936 politics.

A year ago, it was the universal belief that the campaign would see something of a free-for-all among powerful organizations which over-lapped and disregarded party lines.

Now the leaders of the Liberty League seem to have abandoned any idea of a conservation coalition backing its own presidential ticket, and the share-or-wealth third-party notion has been almost forgotten.

Father Coughlin's Union for Social Justice has shown no recent indication of striking out for itself. The Talmadge revolt simmers, but administration leaders, even in Georgia, no longer speak of it with apprehension.

And the Townsend movement, which had more than one officeholder shaking in his boots, is occupied with its own domestic troubles.

The tendency of the campaign is more and more to fall into the old familiar lines. Broadly, it is becoming increasingly a contest between a strongly entrenched democratic organization and a revived and militant republican organization.

Trial of Judge Ritter Promises Senate Dramatics

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON, April 4. (AP)—The senate of the United States temporarily will lay aside regular duties April 6 and embark upon one of the rarest of dramatic governmental procedures—an impeachment trial.

A Florida federal district judge—Halsted L. Ritter—charged with "high crimes and misdemeanors in office" must appear before the bar of the senate at high noon on that day and be judged guilty or innocent.

The white-haired, sallow-complexioned Florida jurist, elevated to the federal bench by President Coolidge, will be the twelfth person in the nation's history to face a senate court of impeachment.

A president, a senator, a secretary of war and eight federal judges have preceded him.

While every effort will be made to expedite the trial of Ritter so that it will not interfere with the rush of the closing days of this session of congress, the very nature of the procedure requires the utmost in dignity and solemnity.

A President Was Tried

The most celebrated impeachment trial was that of President Andrew Jackson, accused of usurpation of the law in violating the tenure of office act. Only one vote of the requisite two-thirds saved Johnson from conviction and removal from office.

William Blount, a senator from Tennessee, was the first impeachment trial defendant. Accused of sedition, the charges were dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

Only one justice of the supreme court has ever faced ouster. He was Samuel Chase, accused of misconduct at trials, who finally was acquitted.

The secretary of war to be impeached was William K. Belknap, charged with bribery. He was acquitted, however, after he had resigned from the cabinet in 1876.

Three Judges Acquitted

Of the eight federal judges ordered before the bar of the senate, four were acquitted, three found guilty and removed from office, and one resigned before a verdict could be rendered.

The house of representatives inaugurates impeachment proceedings. Any member of that body has the privilege of preferring charges against a federal official. The house judiciary committee receives the charges unless they are tabled immediately.

The judiciary committee studies the evidence and recommends the action to be followed by the house. In the case of Judge Ritter, charged with accepting $4,500 from a former law partner who had been allowed a $75,000 fee in receivership, the house voted 181 to 146 to try him before the senate.

The Procedure

Judge Ritter will be prosecuted by three managers from the house headed by Representative Summers of Texas, chairman of the judiciary committee and a participant in two previous impeachment trials. The defendant is allowed counsel and may testify himself. Witnesses are called and cross-examined as in any court. The trial is open to the public.

If two-thirds of the senators vote for conviction, the defendant may be removed from office and disqualified "to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States."

Judgment in impeachment cases may not extend further than this, but the person convicted "shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to the law."

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Tastes differ. We do not all like the same thing whether it be victuals, books, friends, or political parties. Our tastes are our appreciations of things, and it is well, I suppose, that we have differences. Tastes are not created, but they are subject to considerable modification through cultivation and education. We notice as we grow older that they become less whimsical and more settled and sensible. It is hard for a child to go against his likings, but the mature individual has learned to like many things because they are good for him. Tastes may be greatly intensified by use; but they may just as surely be diminished, and lost, by disuse.

In Luke 14 is described in the graphic language of a parable the attitudes that men will take toward the spiritual values that are within reach of all. A great feast that would rejoice the soul, and yet they turn to transient affairs and ask to be excused. But the table was already spread and the need of guests was urgent; the need of the guests to partake was greater even than the need of the supper for partakers. The master hurried his servants out in the city for impromptu guests; then when room still remained, he sent into the highways and hedges with earnest entreaties for guests.

These afterthought guests could hardly have enjoyed the feast as the invited guests would have if they had come gladly; but they enjoyed it more than the latter did. None of them would get to taste of the supper; they had lost their opportunity—and no doubt the taste itself. Tastes atrophy by disuse; they may be crowded out by other interests. Interest in a hereafter is normal to man; indifference is abnormal. And yet like irresponsible or petulant children we neglect these needs for some transient excitement that takes our appetites. Prayer becomes a mechanical effort; the Bible lies unopened before our indifferent minds; reverence and gratitude have frozen up in the channels of our souls. How sad if man discovers himself in this state of emaciated spirit! What a response to an invitation like this of the Master to find that we have lost all taste for His supper.

Asks Senate to Vote Seed Loan Over Veto

WASHINGTON, April 4. (AP)—The senate agricultural committee voted today to ask the senate to override the president's veto of the $50,000,000 seed loan authorization bill. This action followed the failure of the farm credit administration and re-employment administration to assure loans to be made to farmers on relief. Get what you want through our Classified Ads.

The explosion in the Townsend camp is rated by many oldline politicians as one of the prime political developments of 1936.

Of course opinions differ as to the ultimate consequences, but the feeling is general that a profound change, of one kind or another, is taking place with respect to the most-discussed of all of the "group movements" of the current era.

This feeling is based in part on Dr. Townsend's abandonment of his position as a political independent, in part on the disagreements between him and his chief lieutenant, and in part on the vigorous handling of the Townsends at the congressional hearings.

Heretofore, those who have feared the Townsend movement have been concerned especially by its singleness of purpose, by the solidarity of its adherents, and by its absolute disregard for party lines and party labels.

These are qualities which make any wide-spread group movement formidable in politics. Consequently there is great curiosity as to the degree in which these qualities have been lost by the Townsends.

Politicians Wonder

Those experienced in politics openly expressed wonder whether Dr. Townsend, with his limited political background, had any notion of the consequences when he discarded his rating as an independent in politics, registered as a Republican, and announced his support of Senator Borah for president.

Either a group movement must be independent, or it must assume the involvements of partisanship.

Internal complications are easiest to avoid when such a movement has but a single plank in its platform. As the Townsend movement has had up to date, they multiply when the field is broadened to include attachment to such a thing as a presidential candidacy based on many issues.

It may be that those at the head of the movement can reform

Electrolux Silence IS THE KEY to every one of its Famous Advantages

• No moving parts to wear • Lasting efficiency • Continued low operating cost • Fullest food protection • Savings that pay for it

Electrolux operates on a basically different principle—silently without machinery. That's why it can assure you of long service at low cost.

THE silence of Electrolux is more than a comfort! It testifies to the simpler operation of this remarkable refrigerator... a simplicity which makes possible unmatched Electrolux advantages.

For note this, please! Electrolux has no machinery—not a single moving part! A tiny gas flame does all the work.

Such simplicity naturally means greater efficiency. Here are a few of the savings that enable Electrolux to pay for itself: a remarkably low operating cost, perfect food protection every minute of every day, and the very minimum of repairs—for parts that do not move cannot wear.

Today, more than half a million homes and apartments throughout the country are enjoying the comfort of modern Electrolux refrigeration. Each year it wins a higher percentage of all refrigerator sales because it has so much more to offer. See the 1936 Electrolux on display at our showroom. Get all the facts. Golden Rain

by Margaret Wildemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Launing is at the theater after a gorgeous dinner in her Aunt Phina's apartment. Aunt Phina is America's most famous couturiere. Iris' brother Owen designs for her. And Iris is the girl from Persia. Pa. brought up in aristocratic Pennsylvania, who only three days ago did not know whether her brother was alive or dead. Phina and Owen have separated Iris from home, kindly Uncle Will, and her Aunt Ella. Iris has met, by chance, some young things she had avoided with difficulty that afternoon on the train.

Chapter 19 SPEEDY LIFE

"Having a crowd in tomorrow p. m." said the girl. "Cocktails, Georgia Blair, in the book. You've got to come. Promise? Goodbye."

Iris supposed she had asked only Owen, but Dicky said swiftly: "Leave it to me, lady. I'll pick 'em up and bring 'em in. Gimme the house address, Sigrid."

Sigrid wrote swiftly on a card she gave him. Not so used to crowds as the others, Iris found herself caught far behind the other two in the hurry back to the seats. As before, it was Allan who saw, who left his group, caught her arm, said pleasantly, "I see your seats; I'll get you there."

"You always help me out of trouble!" she said gratefully. "I suppose you could see—I wasn't a New Yorker—"

He smiled down at her. "I could see that you had something most girls haven't; the delightful gift of making a man feel you need taking care of. I'll see you at Georgia's tomorrow, then. Here's your seat."

She did not know whether he had heard her hurried, "Oh, I don't know. I don't think so!" before he turned back to the others.

She nearly forgot the whole episode as, eyes wide, hands lightly clasped, she saw the second half of the revue. But when they came out Allan and Dicky were waiting in the lobby; and it was to Phina that Allan spoke easily and graciously, not to Iris.

"My name's Allan Beckley. I think you know my mother, Mrs. Willson Beckley. This is Madame Phina Weatherley. I know."

Aunt Phina's even teeth gleamed. "Otherwise Phina. Yes, indeed, your mother's figure is my pride! And thank you for protecting my little girl here. It's actually her first revue."

Iris wished that hadn't had to come out—he would think she was unsophisticated! But he said with no lessening of interest: "Dick Hamilton here wants to pick up your young people for Georgia Blair's cocktail party tomorrow. I wanted to make sure they were coming."

"Better come," said Dicky cheerily. "When Allan gets his eye on you you're Davy Crockett's coon. He may even keep Georgia from eating you. I don't know how he handles you gals!"

Phina more or less ignored Dicky. "My girls say they're coming," she said sweetly to Allan.

"Thanks a lot," he said, also ignoring Dicky.

As softly and easily as he had come, he was gone. Dicky remained a moment.

"Don't fall for him. Not safe! Fall for me!" he stage-whispered, and shouldered his way after Allan.

"But, Phina, honestly, she didn't ask Sigrid and me!" Iris gasped as they settled themselves in the taxi.

Even Owen laughed.

"Goosie, this isn't the Assembly Set in the seventies," he said.

"Allan Beckley took pains to make it all right," Phina explained. "Anybody can drift in on a party like that. They're charming young people, as I thought on the train."

Iris supposed they knew best. She sat still and stared at the colored advertisements that flapped over and over in a holder. There were nine before you got back to the first one, two kissing people who advertised chewing-gum. They looked very magnificent to be addicted to gum.

It was all very different, but Phina must know.

She saw herself as she passed the long frameless mirror in the downstairs foyer. She would not have known Uncle Will's Iris in all this black velvet, with rose chiffon tossing around her satin slippers, except for the live excited gray eyes shining below the polished waves of dusky hair.

As she stared Owen's kind gray eyes, black-lashed like her own, met hers a little wistfully in the glass. She nestled closer to him on the other side, with a thrill of kinship and comfort. Her very own brother! She knew, at that moment, that she was on his side in the warfare over Sigrid. She'd help him as much as she possibly could.

When she woke next morning she was lost at first. Where was the big engraving of Delarocche's "Christian Martyr" which had always faced her big brass bed against its back-ground of stained faded blue-and-brown wallpaper?

Instead she was staring at a group of gay rat-faced French gentlemen in woolly colors having an eighteenth century fete galante inside a gilt frame. Her arms lay on a deep fold of monogrammed linen, over a soft rose blanket.

She had scarcely oriented herself when Honora came in carrying a gay painted tray with legs, which she set above her, saying, "Good morning, Miss Iris. I hope you slept well. Miss Ross is coming in to chat while you breakfast—it's the early bird she is. Will you have sugar on your grapefruit?"

"Heaps, please."

"My child," said Phina, taut and erect in tailored black, from the ivory doorway, "do you mean that you have never had to diet?"

"Oh, good morning, Aunt Phina!" Life tightened and speeded itself when Miss Ross appeared. Iris, who had been lazing comfortably, sat higher on her pillows, and Honora put a rose silk jacket about her. "No never. I suppose running up and down stairs kept me thin."

"I've come in to discuss plans with you before I go over to the salon."

Phina sat down in the rose and ivory chair, unsoftened by its easiness, but she spoke easily.

"I want my little girl to have the happiest possible time. So I want you to tell me frankly what lessons you need—what accomplishments you have. Sometimes a lack of equipment makes all the difference to one's happiness. To begin with, I'm sending you to a riding school directly; and you'd better learn to drive a car unless you know how."

"Aunt Phina, you're doing such a lot! I'd love to learn to ride. I can drive, now."

"Oh, yes, all you young things pick it up. What about dancing?"

"Well, what you'd learn from the others."

Order For Vote on Beer Issued by County Clerk

Formal order of a countywide election to determine whether or not beer and wine of not more than 14 per cent alcoholic content should be legalized in Eastland county, Texas, has been posted by County Clerk T. M. Collie. The order was issued by the county commissioners court Wednesday, April 1, as follows:

On this the first day of April, 1936, came on to be considered by the commissioners court of Eastland county, Texas, petitions signed by qualified voters of Eastland county, Texas, requesting that this court should order an election in Eastland county, Texas, for the purpose of determining whether or not there should be legalized the sale of vinous and malt liquors that do not contain alcohol in excess of 14 per cent by volume in Eastland county, Texas; and the court after having heard and considered said petition is of the opinion that it is sufficient and it is the opinion of the court that said election should be held in each voting box in Eastland county, Texas, on the 18th of April, A. D., 1936, as is provided for by laws of the state of Texas, this being Article 666 of Vernons Annotated Civil and Criminal Statutes of the state of Texas, and being what is commonly known as the Texas Liquor Control act.

It is therefore ordered on this the first day of April, 1936, that said election shall be held at each voting box of Eastland county, Texas, on the 18th of April, 1936, and the clerk of this court shall post or cause to be posted at least one copy of this order in each election precinct for at least six days prior to said election; which election shall be held and return thereof made in conformity with the provisions of the General Laws of the State of Texas, and by the election officers appointed and qualified under such laws, and all officials shall take such further action as may be necessary to hold said election and carry out the purpose of this order.

The vote shall be by official ballot and there shall be printed on each ballot the following words:

"For legalizing the sale of vinous and malt liquors that do not contain alcohol in excess of 14 per cent by volume" and "Against legalizing the sale of vinous and malt liquors that do not contain alcohol in excess of 14 per cent by volume."

C. L. GARRETT,
County Judge.

I, Turner M. Collie, county clerk of Eastland county, Texas, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true and correct copy of an order passed by the county court of Eastland county, Texas, on the first of April, 1936, as the same appears from the

Star Witnesses

M. E. "Sandy" Tyler and Charles "Pete" Fenwick have been star witnesses for the state. Both were classed as accomplices in Judge B. W. Patterson's charge to the jury this morning.

Fenwick testified that Henry told him of having killed McBee by stabbing him on the morning of May 1, 1933, that he was at the McBee home that day and watched McBee die that night and helped Henry and Jack and Lynn Smith bury him. He told of having gone with the same men and Tyler three weeks later to exhume the body and hang it from a tree near Rising Star.

Tyler testified that he came to the McBee home and found McBee lying on the bed. He said that McBee told him that Raymond Henry had stabbed him with an ice pick that morning, and recalled going with McBee and the two Smiths to get some whisky after he had prevented them from going to get a doctor. Three weeks later, he testified, he was forced to go with the others to hang the skeleton and make it appear that McBee had committed suicide. Ted Crosswhite was used by the state to corroborate the testimony of Tyler and Fenwick. He told of going to the McBee home with Henry to get a belt, of seeing Henry and Mrs. McBee embrace while McBee lay on the bed, and leaving the room. He told of Henry rushing from the house with an ice pick in his hand and "a glassy stare in his eyes."

Henry's Claims

Henry contended that he left the house with Crosswhite, that he did not return that day, and that he was at a drinking party at the home of John Proctor that night. His testimony was upheld by the two children of McBee, Billy Ray, 11, and Geneva, 12.

The defense sought to link a fight in front of the house of Occar White on the night of May 1, 1933, and a voice resembling that of Tyler with the murder of McBee. At the same time, the defense Friday recalled O. C. Broughton, a state witness, to the stand to testify that he found a freshly dug hole with marks of a spade and of cloth on his land on the day the skeleton was discovered, that he found a hole which appeared to be much older on land near the home of Tyler, and that he found six sets of tracks going toward the place where the hole on his land was found, on May 17 or 18.

Sparks Retained

J. Frank Sparks, attorney for Mrs. Henry, the former Mrs. McBee, also charged with murder in the transaction, entered the case today when he announced that he had been retained by friends of Henry and that he would speak on behalf of the defendant in counsel's argument. Both he and Frank Judkins, attorney for Lynn Smith, charged as an accomplice, have remained in the courtroom as consultants of the defense attorneys, Grantham and L. H. Flewellen, who were appointed by the court.

Mrs. Henry, who has been attending the trial and has played an important part in aiding the attorneys to develop testimony, was apparently either very tired or on the verge of tears at one point in the argument of Special Prosecutor Allen Dabney this afternoon.

Throughout most of the trial she has displayed a keen interest in the case but has seldom displayed any emotions except excitement, amusement, and on one occasion anger.

As Ingram and Notgrass drove across the cattleguard into the Canyon road, a machine on the west side of the road flashed its lights on them and one of its occupants fired two shots from a 12-gauge shotgun. The shells were loaded with No. 4 shot.

The two speeded away toward Cisco. The motor was not running well and they came on to town to have it adjusted. The car containing the three suspects followed them for quite a distance. In the meantime Tarver's machine passed the car containing the three suspects and Tarver pulled over to the right side of the road and stopped. The car with the three suspects, pulled ahead of him and stopped.

Heard Two Shots

One of the three got out of the machine, went back and held a conversation with Tarver for a few minutes. Two shots were fired from a .38 calibre pistol. One went wild and the other struck Tarver in the chest.

of what had happened, came to town and had their motor adjusted. When Tarver failed to put in an appearance they went back and discovered his body lying in the highway, ten feet behind his car, the car lights on and the motor running. They got out of their machine and at that time some passersby drove up and stopped. The men got out of the machine and approached the body. One of them said: "The man's dead"

Notgrass told them not to touch him, that they would go back to Cisco and get the officers. He and Ingram came to Cisco and notified Night Chief Pierce who got Justice Joe Wilson and went to the scene.

The body was brought to Cisco in a Green ambulance. Funeral services were to be held at Scranton this afternoon.

AND NOW THE FINAL MOMENT OF DEPARTURE HAS ARRIVED FOR BOS'N HAL AND HIS FRIENDS --- ADMIRAL JONES' BIG DIRIGIBLE IS STRAINING AT ITS LEASH ---

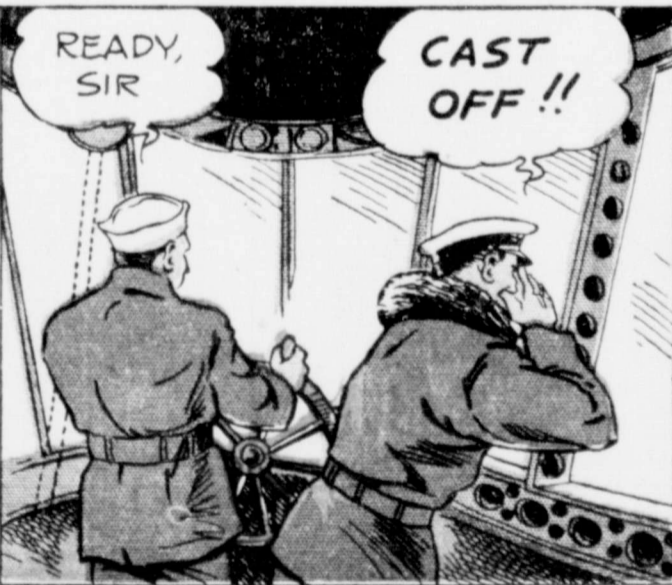

WE'RE OFF FOR A LONG, HARD CRUISE BUT THERE'LL BE PLENTY OF FUN AND THRILLS -- WE'RE ALL MEN OF THE NAVAL RESERVE AND COURAGE AND DEVOTION TO DUTY WILL SEE US THROUGH TO A HAPPY LANDING -- NOW, COMMANDER PERRY, TAKE OVER!

THINK OF IT, DAWN - IT WILL BE MONTHS BEFORE OUR FEET TOUCH UNITED STATES SOIL AGAIN!

AND WHEN WE DO - IF WE FIND THAT GOLD - WE'LL ALL BE MILLIONAIRES!

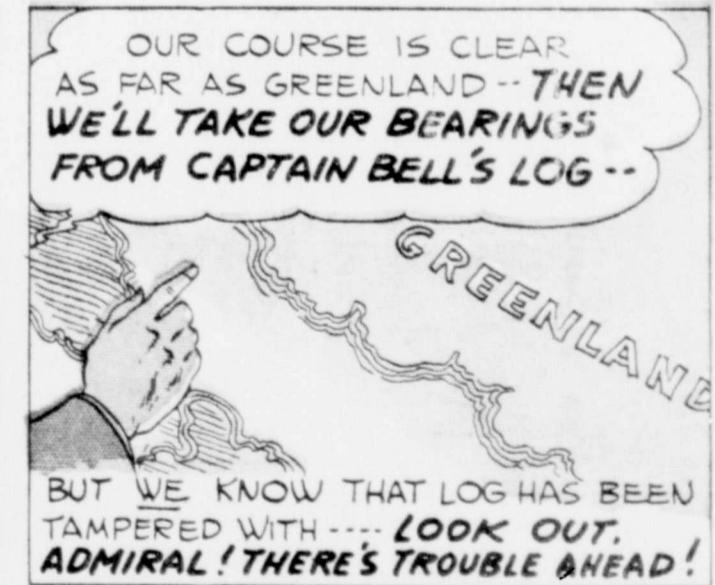

READY, SIR

CAST OFF!!

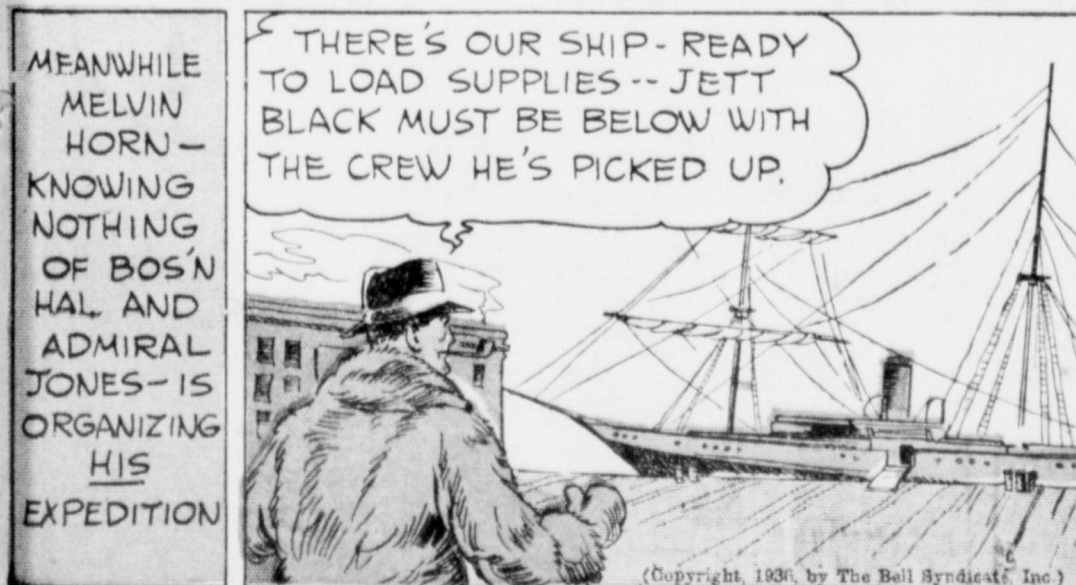

HOORAH! ADMIRAL - NOTHING CAN STOP US NOW!!

NO, HAL - THERE'S NO TURNING BACK!

OUR COURSE IS CLEAR AS FAR AS GREENLAND -- THEN WE'LL TAKE OUR BEARINGS FROM CAPTAIN BELL'S LOG --

BUT WE KNOW THAT LOG HAS BEEN TAMPERED WITH --- LOOK OUT, ADMIRAL! THERE'S TROUBLE AHEAD!

MEANWHILE MELVIN HORN - KNOWING NOTHING OF BOS'N HAL AND ADMIRAL JONES - IS ORGANIZING HIS EXPEDITION

THERE'S OUR SHIP - READY TO LOAD SUPPLIES -- JETT BLACK MUST BE BELOW WITH THE CREW HE'S PICKED UP.

NOW, MEN, DON'T FORGET TO LOOK TO ME FOR YOUR REAL ORDERS -- HORN'S ONLY A FIGUREHEAD ON THIS CRUISE!

SH-H! HERE HE COMES

HELLO, BLACK -- ARE THESE OUR SHIPMATES?

RIGHT YOU ARE, MISTER HORN - LOYAL TO THE CORE!

AYE, AYE, SIR!

HERE'S TROUBLE AHEAD FOR HORN, TOO!
