BIDS CALLED ON HIGHWAY RELOCATION

Calles and Advisers Deported From Mexico

CONTRACTS TO BE AWARDED APRIL 28-29

Three Portions of New No. One Route Are Advertised

Prospect for early beginning of work upon the relocation of Highway No. One through Cisco over the Eighth street route was seen today when the state highway department at Austin asked bids on construction of three portions of the new route for tentative letting on April 28 and 29. The projects were included in a group of 20 approved highway construction jobs. Bids were called upon nine-tenths mile of grading, drainage structures, caliche base and triple asphalt surfacing from Cisco west, which will form the new approach of Highway One to the city from the west; construction of eight-tenths of a mile of the highway from C avenue east to the city limits, and one-tenth of a mile of the highway from C avenue to F avenue. According to these descriptions, the new east approach to the city limits and a portion of the new route west of D avenue yet to be advertised for letting. The construction of the viaduct which will carry the highway over the M. K. and T. railroad, will be under separate contract, it is understood. The whole project will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000. Federal money will be used and standard wages will be paid although the project is for relief employment.

Meetings on Soil Conservation Are Called by Agents

At the meeting held at Ranger Wednesday evening by the county and school agricultural agents, who discussed the new soil conservation program, the election of committeemen, and alternates of the Eastland-Ranger community, completed the county set-up to administer the soil conservation program, so far as the community members are concerned. All community committeemen will meet at Eastland Saturday, and these will name the county committee to administer the program. The community committeemen and alternates from the several sub-divisions of the county are as follows: Cisco--Oscar Schaefer, Joe Dunaway, R. R. Bradshaw, committeemen; Felix S. Boland and Edgar Alton, alternates. Ranger-Eastland--J. W. Davis, Dick Weeks, Ed Castleberry, committeemen; E. E. Blackwell, H. L. Fry, alternates. Rising Star--W. A. Williams, A. L. McDonald, R. F. Cox; alternates; J. E. Smith, O. D. Carver. Carbon--Howard Gilbert, Jim Guy, Henry Lovell; alternates; George Cooper, Doyle Craighead, Gorman--W. J. Jones, Ben Foad, L. A. Bennett; alternates; Clyde Willis, John Brown. To give further information on the operation of the soil conservation program, requirements for participation in the federal grants, etc., the county agent, Elmo V. Cook, has arranged a schedule of appointments at the several communities of the county. Mr. Cook will be assisted by Miss Ruth Ramey, home demonstration agent, and her assistant, Miss Cornelia Stewart, as well as T. G. Caudle, o'clock.

Passing of Cases Vacates 88th Jury

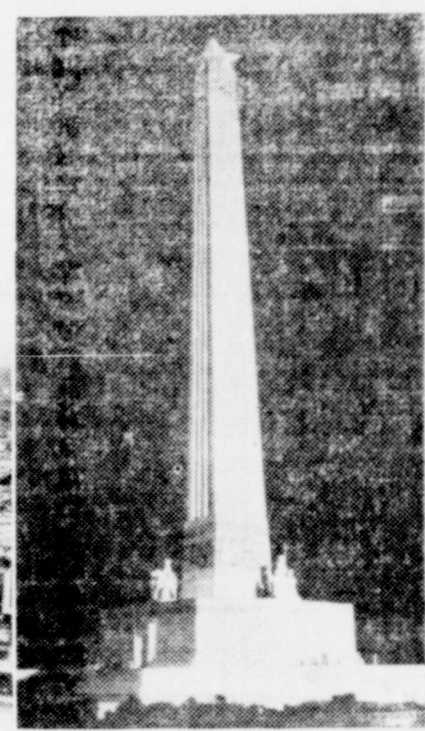

There will be no jury for next week of the 88th district court owing to the passing of cases assigned for the week. The jury summoned for service has been excused by Judge Patterson. On application of the plaintiff, the case of W. A. Stiles, receiver of the A. W. Drilling company, a corporation, vs. Dowell, Inc., et al., was continued. Case of W. S. Carter vs. A. D. Jenkins et al. was passed on agreement of parties.

BANK GIVEN JUDGMENT In the case of the Commercial State bank of Ranger vs. W. R. Havins, suit on chattel mortgage, tried in the county court this week, judgment was rendered in favor of the bank for $265, interest, cost of suit and foreclosure of lien on 31 head of stock.

EPISCOPAL SERVICE The Reverend C. C. Keller of Mineral Wells, will hold services at the Episcopal church in Breckenridge Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

Where Houston Celebrates Winning of Texas Freedom

Houston will be host to thousands April 12-21 when the San Jacinto Centennial celebrations hold forth for ten gala days. Visitors will witness colorful parades and pageants, and an entertainment highlight will be a public ball on Main Street in front of the site of the old capitol of the republic of Texas on San Jacinto Day thousands will participate in ceremonies to be broadcast nationally over both major networks. At the right is the gigantic shaft to be erected on the battlefield in honor of the heroes of Texas' struggle for liberty.

4 ARRESTED IN SURPRISE MOVE TODAY

Put Aboard Plane for Forced Exile in the United States

BROWNSVILLE, April 10. (AP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, arrived here by plane from Mexico City at 12:50 p. m. this afternoon, accompanied by three of his former political aides in their enforced exile from Mexico. United States officers met the exiles' plane at the airport here, and cleared through entry as quickly as possible. No difficulty is anticipated if their papers are in order.

In San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Josephine Torreblanca, General Calles' daughter, prepared to welcome the exile if he seeks a refuge there. In his previous absence from Mexico General Calles resided in California.

MEXICO CITY, April 10. (AP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, for eleven years Mexico's "iron man," was arrested today in a surprise move by the government.

Three of his principal advisers were also arrested. All four were placed aboard an airplane, carrying them into forced exile in the United States.

Federal troops and secret agents went to the homes of the four men at midnight to make the arrests. The others taken included Luis Morones, former minister of labor; Luis Leon, former minister of the interior and agriculture; and Rafael Melchor Ortega, former governor of Guanajuato.

The plane was headed towards Brownsville, where officials said that there were no reports at that time. It was thought the plane would arrive at the border about noon today.

General Calles and his former aides, after their arrest, were held under guard throughout the night. Their arrests followed the publication of charges by the left wing of the chamber of deputies that Calles was responsible for the bombing of the Vera Cruz train Monday, in which 12 persons were killed. The leftists also claimed he was fomenting an anti-government agitation in an attempt to provoke intervention by the United States. For the past four days Calles has been ill abed at his home at his Santa Barbara ranch, outside of the capital.

Quincey Lee has returned to his home in Austin.

Cisco Lions Go To Weatherford Program Tonight

A delegation of Cisco Lions and their wives will go to Weatherford for the Ladies Night program of the Weatherford Lions club. Eight Cisco Lions were scheduled to make the trip, six of them accompanied by their wives. They will advertise the district convention meeting here in June.

An "Amateur Night" program will follow a banquet at 7:30. The program will be presented at the Weatherford high school and the Cisco club's contribution will be the "German band" of the Lobo organization, directed by R. L. Maddox, Julian Ely, June Morhart, Dick Stansbury and Ralph McCantles.

Others scheduled to make the trip are: Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nance, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burnam, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sandler, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Condeley, and Dallas Wales and H. L. Dyer.

Eleven Births and 8 Deaths in Cisco in March

Eleven births and seven deaths were reported to Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer, for the month of March by local physicians, midwives and undertakers. Of these, three of the births and two of the deaths were outside of the city limits, while eight births were within the city limits. Five deaths were of Cisco residents.

Births in Cisco The following births were reported to be the children of Cisco parents: Born to B. D. Daniel and wife March 23, a girl. Born to James Robinson and wife, March 13, a girl. Born to Ida Kena Nix, March 13, a girl.

Tribesmen Rebels Cause Big Losses Upon Ethiopians

ROME, April 10. (AP)—Rebellious Galla tribesmen, who recently joined the Italians, inflicted upward of 2,000 casualties on Ethiopian warriors in a battle south of Lake Ashangi, Marshal Pietro Badoglio today informed Rome.

News of the battle came as informed sources revealed that Italy was determined to complete the disarmament of Ethiopia in order to turn the East African invasion into a program of police work, pending definite settlement of the boundaries of Italian spheres of influence.

Planes bombarded Sasa Baneh, Daggah Bur and other concentration points. Anti-aircraft fire and heavy rain failed to halt the fascist attack.

Special Program for Presbyterian Class

A special program will be presented at the men's bible class of the First Presbyterian Sunday school Sunday morning at 9:45, to which all men of the city, attending no other church, were invited.

The lesson for the morning will be based on the fourth and fifth chapters of First Corinthians. Dr. W. P. Lee is the teacher.

Mrs. Roshell Daniel is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keough in Dallas.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

Keeping the Color Tone

By IRVIN S. COBB

ON FIFTH AVENUE, Charley Towne, the poet, met Oliver Herford, the humorist.

"Ollie," said Towne, "sartorially you're a wonder to me. Always."

no matter what the season, you wear clothes of the same becoming shade of gray. Winter time or summer time, it makes no difference. The weight and the weave and the texture of your garment may change but the color doesn't. Now, what I'd like to know is how you always succeed in getting such a perfect tone. "Simple enough," said Herford. "You see, I've had the same tailor for years. He has my measurements on file. So whenever I need a new suit I just send him a sample of my dandruff and tell him to match it."

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

One of these days a song writer will become inspired with an idea and write a real Texas song. There comes to my desk today a copy of a song which has been written in observance of the Texas centennial by some New York "Tin Pan Alleyist" who probably knows enough about Texas to believe the Alamo is some kind of a window cleaner. In fairness to the song, I have not heard it played over, but I shall take it home this evening and have the head of the family tinkle its tune on her ivories.

Most of the songs that have been written sound to me like a wet rag with all the water wrung out of it. They are trying so hard to get somewhere and the result is about as anemic as a corpse. The trouble is that the writer wanted to say something and didn't know what it was. He or she may have lived in Texas all his or her life, but hadn't grasped the real sense or significance of the state's character. A song can be written about Texas that would truly reflect the spirit and character of the state without so much as mentioning the Alamo or Goliad or bluebonnets or any other historical or material symbol associated with the state. Right up until the present moment I give my vote to "The Eyes of Texas." It's one song that doesn't have to go roaming all over the history books to make itself understood.

A Scotchman walked into a telegraph office and, picking up a blank, asked the clerk, "How much will a message to Chicago cost?" "Twenty-five cents," replied the clerk, "for the first ten words and five cents for each additional word, and no charge for the signature." "All right," said the canny Scot, "send my signature." "And what is your name, please?" "After a moment's hesitation, the Scot answered, "Well, I may not look it, but I'm an Indian and my name is, 'I-Won't-Be-Humiliated-Friday.'"

A source of radio disturbance which is becoming more common is the amateur sending and receiving sets built by boys. The business of amateur radio to my mind offers a wonderful, explorative field for thrills and for the education of boys. There is a sense of conquest in reaching through hundreds of miles of ether to pick up a solitary voice by a means of one's own construction. Total strangers become bosom comrades of the air, although they would pass each other upon the street without a single urge of recollection. This association in virtual disembodiment is a field for experiment and discovery akin to that which beckoned the ancient mariners and soldiers of fortune, and it serves to better satisfaction that boyish instinct which expresses itself in the vicarious enjoyment of their storied exploits.

But, unfortunately, it interferes with the radio pleasures of the unoffending neighbors. The ungodly squawks that poorly grounded or faultily constructed amateur sets cause in commercial receiving sets often ruin to check them with great care, investigating their influence upon radios in the community, and see to it that their own pleasure and profit does not cost the rest of the neighborhood a great deal. That is only being fair, and most of the youngsters owning such sets will be only too glad to do so, not having thought of the possibility of such a disturbance before.

Campaign Mule Jailed in Spain

BARCELONA, Spain, April 9. (AP)—Precedent was established here when a mule was sentenced to two years in jail for electioneering.

The beast was placed in the garage of the city lock-up when found wandering about during the recent electoral campaign with campaign propaganda stenciled in large white letters on his black flanks.

A jury gravely convicted the dumb defendant on charges of violating an ordinance forbidding mobile electioneering.

Someone suggested that feeding and housing the prisoner might be a problem. Whereupon the judge sagely decided that the general amnesty decree, which had freed some 25,000 political prisoners should be applied to the mule and the animal was given to the Humane society.

Globe-Trotting Child Authors Publish Book

By JOHN SELBY NEW YORK, April 9. (AP)—Patience and Richard and John Abbe call their book, "Around the World in Eleven Years." They might as well have called it "The World Through Children's Eyes." That is what it is.

These three children of James E. Abbe, internationally known photographer, and Polly Platt, former New York actress, were born in Paris, and have lived almost everywhere—Russia to a ranch at Larkspur, Col.

They have made a book of themselves, Patience, the elder, being writer-in-chief and her two brothers being leg men and collaborators. The book has been published with no change, except for spelling. They have met incredible numbers of people, and liked them; they tell why, too. Specimens:

Mamma: "Mamma is very excitable. . . Of course Mamma is always mad at Pappa. And she always said she made a mistake to take up with a photographer."

Papa: "And Papa says, 'You mustn't mind Mamma, children. She's Irish.'"

Shimmy artist: "Gilda Gray and Gil Boag came to see us (in France) and took us up to San Simeon where we had tea, and played croquet on the lawn. Aunt Gilda became very angry at the English people because they played too much croquet during tea-time, and we almost had a fight." Dancer: "When we lived at St. Cloud Pavlova danced at the Theatre des Champs-Elysees. She saw me and liked me. Pavlova was a beautiful lady with beautiful thin legs and eyes that looked as though they had a lamp in them."

Proletarian: "We went in to see Lenin. He was dead six years but he didn't smell. He was the one who started the revolution and ever since Russia has been poor."

Brothers: "Richard is never going to get married. He says you have to work too hard when you are married. . . I, Patience, am positively going to be a dancer."

Science Puzzles Over Height of Chicken Eggs

PUYALLUP, Wash., April 9. (AP)—The question "How old is Ann?" pales into insignificance at the Western Washington experiment station here alongside the problem of "how tall is the white of an egg?"

Armed with calipers that resemble a miniature monkey wrench and a three-legged gadget which supports a screw-threaded shaft, state poultry experts are busy breaking eggs into flat bottomed pans and measuring the resulting smear.

"The better the egg the less its area, and the higher it supports the yolk, when it plops into the pan," explained Wayne Miller, poultry husbandman. "A poor quality egg has a watery albumen."

"Storage egg whites have a tendency to break down and become watery, but we have produced eggs, by selection and feeding experiments on our hens, which have been superior to light albumen but fresh laid eggs. The puzzle is to standardize that quality."

So Miller and his assistants sit at tables and break eggs into pans and apply the calipers. They determine the length and the breadth of the egg white when it has spread to its fullest extent, jot down the figures and determine the "area factor" of the individual egg.

Then they place the other instrument above the egg, screw down the shaft until its tip just touches the white, and then record the result.

Out of almost countless such comparisons on eggs produced under varying conditions, they hope to produce the superior egg and answer the question of "How tall is the white of an egg?"

Japan's rice crop last year totaled 287,000,000 bushels, an increase of 10.8 per cent from 1934 but a decline of 5.9 per cent from the five year average.

Golden Rain

by Margaret Wildemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning is being shown the gilded side of New York by her influential Aunt Phina and her weak but charming brother, Owen. Quite by accident, she is taken up by Allan Beckley, who is "somebody" and obviously fond of Iris. But now Iris learns that the uncle and aunt back in Persia, Pa., almost forgotten in the whirl of events, are both ill. She tells Phina she must go home, and Phina is furious that she is willing to lose so good an opportunity to "break in."

Chapter 24 UNCLE WILL

"Owen says Allan Beckley is planning to give a dinner for you," Phina went on. "You can't miss that."

"He was just going to set the date when I told him I had to go."

Phina spoke with controlled annoyance.

"Iris, do you realize just who and what Allan Beckley is? So far as there is any genuine society left in New York, he is at the very heart and powerhouse of it. You have the incredible luck to run into him practically as you come into the city, and to have him immediately plan to give you a dinner-party; and you say, 'I'm sorry, sir, but my uncle has the grippe, and I have to go home!'"

"I am sorry! But he has, and I do!"

Phina, reaching a long capable arm to a nearly invisible depression in the silvery mantel said, "I'll have Honora get him."

Who or what she meant Iris did not know until Honora's violet taffeta and wise smiling Irish face appeared.

"Get me Persia five-o-two-J, Honora, please."

When Honora returned with the news that she had the number, Phina rose and sauntered to the soundproof telephone in the next room.

Shortly she came back. "I have Will on the wire. He says he is perfectly well, and he thinks it would be foolish for you to break up your engagements and all our plans by coming back now. But you'd better talk to him yourself."

"My dear little girl," said her uncle's kind, precise voice when the first exclamations were over, "you mustn't think of returning and losing your educational advantages."

"We mustn't waste Josie's money," he went on. "Only tell me, are you well and happy and having a good time? And how is Owen? Owen's a fine boy."

"Yes, yes, darling. And Owen is a fine boy. He's as like you as he can be. It's all wonderful. I'm awfully happy. . . . Are you sure I'm not selfish? And are you really not very ill? Your letter frightened me."

"It was little more than a bad cold. I must insist on your staying, dear. Persia will still be here in the spring. Tell Josie I'll send the music books as soon as I can find them."

"Oh, I will! And I'll be over long before that for a visit, whether you want me or not."

"Staying, like a wise child?" said Phina when Iris returned. Iris nodded. "I thought Will would persuade you." She added with sudden intensity: "He's too good for this world! There's such a thing as being a fool for goodness, and that's what Will's always been!"

The flash of youthful violence Iris had once before seen, again came over Phina's massaged smoothed face.

"If I'd married him I suppose I'd be a high-minded idealistic unhappy idiot this minute," she said harshly. "Well, better as it is. Our ideas were too unlike; Ella doubtless did me a good turn. Iris, by the way, I want you to call Allan Beckley and tell him you aren't going away. Do it lightly, but have him put the dinner on again."

"Oh, Aunt Phina, I'd rather not."

"Your old-fashioned little thing! Again Honora was ordered to get a number, and Phina, laughing, sent Iris to the wire. She went, feeling a little ashamed of being ashamed.

But the clipped servant-voice that answered said neutrally that Mr. Beckley had gone out of town. He might be gone for some weeks. If Madame would leave her number?

Partly with relief, partly with disappointment, Iris returned and reported to Phina; who lifted a resigned eyebrow and suggested bed.

The autumn went on, and slipped into winter. The days seemed very short, they were so packed and tense. There were classes in social work, where she met Camilla again, and once or twice Georgia, and through which she made some pleasant acquaintances.

Everything touched and went away again here in New York; nothing came very close. There were all the theaters in the world, it seemed to her. There were luncheons at smart hotels with some of the friends she made, or with Phina or Owen. The riding lessons were fun; so was the tap dancing.

Iris thought on the whole she was enjoying herself, but the days were so full she had scarcely time to think about it. The day was engineered, dovetailed relentlessly.

She saw Dicky Hamilton a good deal. He gave her, indeed, a sort of little-brotherly relationship which she found was with most girls; a small-boy-privileged air.

Camilla Wendell, oddly enough, came to be Iris's most frequently met friend. Iris had the house to herself, with occasionally Owen, in the afternoons she was not riding or at dancing class. It was delightful and incredibly effortless.

A little group got into the habit of making it a rendezvous; Dicky and a handful of his friends; Camilla, one or two other girls. "Coming in for tea. Do have those little toasted things," a voice would say over the telephone; or, "Bringing a crowd. Tell Honora not to stint the barcardi--"

"As if it was a clubhouse!" Camilla said angrily to Iris one day.

"I adore it!" Iris said. "It's like the stories I was brought up on, of how the Lannings used to keep open house. If anybody interesting or famous came to Persia, they were always entertained there; and there were always people in for dinner--and coming and going." She laughed. "I suppose it was one reason we lost some of the money we did lose."

"It isn't at all like that," Camilla said, her brows knitting. She looked almost distinguished, still and straight in the half light. Iris thought, but why need she be cross about it? And then a wild cry rose from the other end of the room.

"Iris, hey, Iris! Some of these dumbbells want to go to the movies to see Mae West, and we want to go on over to Tony's. Make 'em see reason."

"I couldn't make anybody in this room see reason!" she said, laughing. "And I have to dine at home, anyhow. Fight it out the best you can."

Presently they were gone, and Honora reentered to air the room and collect the glasses. The two girls drifted up to Iris's own room.

"Maybe I can get a little painting done before it's time to go out with Phina," Iris said. She knew Camilla was happiest when one didn't focus on her. She went over to the window and began to paint. It was a miniature of Phina, partly from a photograph and partly from moments snatched from Phina's busy life.

"About this gang," Camilla began again.

"Oh, please don't, Camilla."

"All right. . . . Who taught you to do all the things you can do?"

"My father and aunt and uncle. I lived with three people who hadn't much to amuse them except giving me lessons."

Camilla relaxed into the soft chair for a minute, then straightened her shoulders in the perfectly-fitting dark crepe that, when she sat properly, triumphed over her awkwardness.

"Think of doing what you like to do," she said passionately. "I can't ever remember doing anything I really enjoyed since I was born. Except one thing--" She colored a dark red and stopped short.

Iris supposed it was going to be Owen, but it was not. I—I like writing poems," she said in a shamed low voice.

To Iris, brought up in the faith that any expression of art was more sacred than money, food, shelter, almost than life, this was simple enough.

"I'd love to see some," she said. "You're wonderful," Camilla said. "People either giggle or get embarrassed, usually, about poetry. And my mother hates it, because I won't read to people in parlors and bore them. I knew I bore them. But I have to write, or I wouldn't." She was alive and natural for the first time since Iris had met her. She clicked her handbag open and shyly gave Iris some clearly written sheets to read.

Iris, expecting to be kind, to be encouraging—Iris, who had been reared on poetry, as on music and art, since she could remember—read, reread, and looked up, amazed. This girl she had thought a stupid good-hearted fool had written poems which, if not great, were certainly lucid, exquisite, and technically fine.

Earliest Script of Arabic Discovered

JERUSALEM, April 10 (AP)—The earliest known specimen of Arabic writing has been found in two papyri among the 37 rolls so far discovered by the British Colt expedition at Ajaja Alhafir near Beersheba.

Nine rolls were found in the southern church and the rest in the northern church on the site of the ancient Byzantine town.

The oldest papyrus has been identified as of 565 A. D., the first year of Emperor Justin II. It recorded wheat land transactions.

In addition to the papyri a dozen fragments, in Latin and Greek, have been uncovered, relating to the fourth book of Virgil's Aeneid.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

For he that is dead is freed from sin. Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we also shall live with him: knowing that Christ, being raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no dominion over him.—Rom. 6: 7-9.

Wake, glad heart! awake! awake! And seek thy risen Lord; Joy in his resurrection take, And comfort in his word. Let thy life, through all his ways, One long thanksgiving be; In theme of joy, itsing of praise, Christ died and rose for me. —MONSELL

When the Good Shepherd leads his ransomed flock to pastures ever green and waters ever still, then we shall say from our hearts, "In thy presence is fullness of joy."—Thorold.

Ignoring Lake Cisco

ONE pictorial map issued in connection with Texas centennial advertising traces on one side the highways of the state with principal attractions, bodies of water, industries, etc., noted in miniature drawings, and on the reverse prints a collection of scenes of interesting or important institutions. Numerous water, lake and river views are presented. Cisco appears on the map in the proper place, but by no means in the proper proportion. The name of the city is printed in finer type than other and nearby towns much smaller in size, while Lake Cisco, obviously one of the most interesting and important artificial bodies of water in the state, gets no mention whatever. Not only was the construction of Lake Cisco dam an inspiring example of Texas community spirit and aggressiveness, but the dam itself is one of the largest and most outstanding examples of its type in the world. At the time of its construction it represented an important and certainly aggressive step forward in west Texas development, the initiation of a movement which is now being organized into immense programs of flood prevention and soil conservation in this state and elsewhere. The construction of such a dam by a city of 10,000 people, and the impounding of a reservoir of water which is one of the deepest, if not the deepest artificial lake in the state, as well as one of the largest of these artificial bodies in area, is certainly something to be cited as an outstanding example of initiative. The presence beneath the towering flanks of this dam of the largest concrete swimming pool in the world as well as other scenic and recreational institutions, multiply the value of this lake and resort. It is one of the most advantageous and attractive institutions for tourist interest along the whole course of State Highway No. One. Its importance should certainly be recognized in maps that are made to show these things.

Dust Storm Lessons

RAIN and snow, in the mid-western "dust bowl" area, reviving wheat crop prospects, stirs hope that some abatement of the depressing silt clouds which threaten to repeat last year's epidemic may be caused. There is nothing so depressing upon the spirits generally as the gloomy, sunshin-shutting presence and powdery feel of invisible dust such as sifts down from the stratosphere in one of these dust storms.

NO phenomenon so convincingly argues that something has been badly wrong with the agricultural system of the nation. Perhaps nothing will so inspire something to be done about it. The interdependence of the various sections of this country is hereby demonstrated. Not only will the presence of these dust clouds stimulate such programs in Texas as the Brazos valley conservation program and the Colorado river project, but it will create in this area a demand that something be done at the source of these clouds. The soil of this country cannot long stay in such a state of transiency without irreparable damage to the whole rich belt affected. No matter how fertile the soil of west Texas the recurring plague of dust will cause a depopulation which would seriously curtail the economic value of the area to the nation, and this would multiply the damage done to the regions which are the source of the dust.

ONCE the problem is solved at its origin, the experience ought to, and doubtless will, prove an effective admonition to Texas and other large scale farming sections to guard against methods and conditions that produced it. The prosecution of the Brazos Valley Conservation program and similar programs is the answer. The vital relation of flood waters to erosion has been too well demonstrated. The proper balance and regulation must be maintained by artificial means if nature's natural forces are to be interfered with by man's industry.

Farmer Market

THE town of Rising Star has called a mass meeting of interested farmers and business men to consider erection of market sheds and establishing a local market for peaches, watermelons and other fruits. Rising Star has already made itself an important farmer market center for this area. Its business policies and its community program have contributed to a farmer attraction that is present in the very atmosphere. The farmer goes there because he feels at home.

CISCO must do the same if it expects to profit from the farm potentialities here. A good start has been made in the direction of furnishing a market for whole milk, eggs and other produce. This beginning must be assiduously cultivated. The boom day period is over. No more will business come booming into the merchant's door seeking service and goods and waving price considerations aside. Such a condition is abnormal in any man's country or town. The course before this town is that of cultivating the soil that is given it. Otherwise communities elsewhere will extend their roots to our very doors while we drowse in futile recollections of what once was.

Crigler Paschall Resigns NRS Post for Abilene Job

EASTLAND, April 10.—Crigler Paschall of Cisco, manager of the Eastland county office of the National Re-employment service since its creation, resigned Wednesday afternoon to accept a position with an Abilene contracting firm. The county office, established in 1933, was moved from Cisco to Eastland in 1934. Paschall, as assistant director of District 5 of the NRS whose headquarters are in Abilene under E. A. Elliott, placed 1,500 on works progress administration projects. Three thousand and five hundred were placed on contracting and other jobs, including WPA, in 1935. While serving the government primarily recently, the office also acts as an employment agency to firms and individuals who desire any classification of workers. No successor to Paschall had been appointed Wednesday afternoon. Paschall reported Thursday as time keeper and labor management officer on a job at Winters for the J. Floyd Melton & Co. of Abilene. There are 48 counties in this NRS district.

New AAA Program Is Adding Many New Words to Farmer Vocabulary

Just as the old Triple A programs added such words as "adjusted acreage," "base acres," "contracted acres," "compliance" and a score of others to the farmer's language, so the new AAA soil conservation program is bringing new words to the farm. The meaning of some of them is explained by Elmo Cook and Hugh Barnhart, Eastland county agricultural agents. Most important from a financial stand-point, Cook says, are "soil conserving payment" and "soil building payment." The first is the grant a farmer may get for shifting acres from "soil depleting" to "soil conserving and building crops." The second is the payment, never in excess of $1 per acre, which a farmer may be entitled to receive to help finance new grass and legume and similar seedings. Farmers are beginning to talk readily about "soil depleting base." Soil depleting crops for Texas are corn, cotton, grain sorghums, sweet sorghums, millets, potatoes, rice sugar cane, commercial truck and canning crops, small grains harvested for grain or hay, and peanuts. These crops take much out of the soil, return little. Grown exclusively, in the long run they will ruin the farm and the farmer.

Seed Conserving Crops Then there are "soil conserving" crops. These help the soil hold its own, but only slightly increase fertility. These crops include all main kinds of old seed, and grasses such as sudan pasture if only grazed or clipped green; and winter cover crops if plowed under, or, if harvested, followed by summer legumes. Forest trees planted since 1933 also class as soil conserving. "Soil building crops" are legumes plowed under as green manuring crops; biennial and perennial legumes seeded in 1936; summer legumes with forage left on land; and winter cover crops plowed under and followed by summer legumes. Trees planted in 1936 count as soil builders this year.

Farmers who qualify for government grants of money in the new AAA soil conservation program must have at least one acre of soil conserving or soil building crops for every five acres of soil depleting crops in the base acreage, says Elmo Cook, county agricultural agent. A farmer who had 100 acres of corn and cotton (soil depleting crops) in the base period must have planted on his farm in 1936 at least 20 acres of conserving and building crops to participate in the program. Up to 35 per cent of the base acreage of cotton he may shift from cotton to soil improving or protecting crops and be eligible for payments. He may shift as much as 16 per cent of the wheat, corn, grain sorghum, potato or fruit and vegetable base acreage to legumes, cover crops or approved soil building practices and receive payment.

20 Per Cent on Peanuts In the case of peanuts the greatest shift of acreage for which payments may be made is 20 per cent.

No payments will be made in Texas for food and feed crops like corn or grain sorghums shifted to soil improvement uses unless it can be shown that these crops have been produced in excess of home needs. In that case the only diversions for which payment will be made are on the portion of the acreages which are in excess of home needs. Soil conserving payments may be granted to help recompense farmers for the sacrifice involved in giving up a part of their soil depleting cash crops in order to give a chance to improve the land.

"Taken as a whole, the new program helps a farmer shift to a good sound farming plan without loss of income and buying power while the changes are being made," Mr. Cook states.

"Better soil—better citizens, is the way I see it," said Jack Shelton, vice director and state agricultural agent of the Texas extension service.

Racial Gymnastics Derided in Reich By Hitler's Guards

BERLIN, April 10 (AP)—Racial gymnastics, guaranteed to make the earnest athlete blond as Siegfried and gradually re-form his skull along Nordic lines is the latest in Nazi Germany.

But such exercise is not recommended by government or party; in fact, a bitter attack on the new form of "physical culture" has been launched by the "Schwarze Korps," organ of Hitler's black-uniformed SS.

According to the SS paper the promoter of "racial gymnastics" is a Stuttgart physical culture teacher interested in financial returns of his book on how to become Nordic through exercise.

It seems one of the professor's readers wrote him a testimonial saying: "My skull rapidly is changing form. There are days when I can distinctly feel the pain in my cranial sutures."

Others recorded how the color of their hair or eyes was changing.

Something else that will be changing soon, the readers of the "Schwarze Korps" are encouraged to deduce, is the professor's place of residence.

Waterproofing of Laguna Wall Begun

W. A. Erwin of Erwin and Co., Galveston waterproofing firm, arrived last night to begin work this morning on waterproofing the parapet wall about the top of the Laguna hotel. Assistants and materials used, other than the waterproofing compound, will be locally obtained, Manager Dallas Wales said.

Although composed of a solid piece of material a new window shade is printed in stripes that give it the appearance and light effect of a Venetian blind.

New AAA--

sion service, in discussing the new agricultural program which concerns itself chiefly with soil conservation and good land use.

Centers of Prosperity

"It is provenly true that rural communities surrounded by rich farming lands are centers of prosperity, while these situated in the midst of lands that have lost their fertility and no longer produce bountifully are on the down grade and gradually lose, either through bankruptcy or moving away, many of the commercial establishments which prospered when the lands were productive," Shelton said.

"When you find people living on a fertile soil you find them living in the better type homes, riding in better cars, driving the best teams. On poor soils you find them in poorer homes, with very little paint on the buildings and fences."

"The soil reflects itself on the people who live on it and on their crops and livestock. As soil becomes depleted you grow cattle on that soil that have small bones, lacking the weight and bloom that are found on cattle grown on good soil. If the soil is that important, why shouldn't it be one of the main objectives of the farm program to build up that soil? How are we going to accomplish that? With terraces, pastures, legumes and livestock."

Great Opportunity

"The soil conservation and domestic allotment act gives Texas farmers and ranchmen a great opportunity to reorganize their business so as to rebuild the wasted lands and re-establish prosperity on the farms and ranches of Texas.

"The reception given the program as it has been presented to the people by the county agricultural agents shows that the situation has been realized, and the new act came at a time that it was very welcome," Shelton said.

"Make the new farm program table talk in every farm home in Texas," is the suggestion to rural home makers made by Miss Mildred Horton, vice director and state home demonstration agent of the extension service. Miss Horton pointed out that the program being established under the soil conservation and domestic allotment act is one in which every home maker is interested, and that developing details of the plan would be of interest to the whole family as they meet around the dining table three times a day.

Food Needs

The better cropping plans and land use systems to be instituted under the act include consideration for the farm family's needs of food for themselves and food for the farm work stock, Miss Horton stated.

"It is probably the first national agricultural plan offered in any country which makes such definite provision for the welfare of the family."

"No payments will be made for soil building crops planted on any land retired from soil depleting crops where the soil depleting crops were food and feed crops unless applicants for the grants show that the crops done away with were in excess of the needs of the family."

"The provision that corn evenly interplanted with peas may be counted as 50 per cent soil building and 50 per cent soil depleting is also favorable to the plans of home makers to provide ample supplies of feed for the poultry and live stock which are a part of the food budget for the family," Miss Horton said.

Huge 'Slack Rope' Hudson Tunnel Gets Interior Decorators' Touch

By HOWARD G. ALLAWAY
NEW YORK, April 10 (P)—Like a huge slack rope slung between two subterranean towers, a 31-foot metal tube, a mile and a half long and weighing 50,000 tons, sags in the muck 100 feet below the Hudson river between New Jersey and New York City.

Within 400 "interior decorators" in three shifts are working the clock around to add the $43,600,000 Midtown tunnel to the underground, under-water maze that pours millions of persons daily into America's industrial capital.

Protected by a steel shell 14 inches thick from the 400 feet of water and 60 feet of river ooze over their heads, workers are laying a roadway over which motorists, after Jan. 1, 1938, will speed in five minutes from Weehawken, N. J., to the heart of Manhattan island.

New York's second vehicular passage under the Hudson, the Midtown tunnel is but one unit in a projected system of submarine highways for expediting the world's heaviest motor traffic to and from the center of the metropolitan area.

Another Tunnel Planned
The Holland tunnel, completed in 1927, was the first. Even before work on the Midtown tube is ended, construction is expected to begin on a similar duct under the East river to connect Manhattan with Queensborough on Long Island.

"Sandhogs" broke all speed records for tunneling when they "holed through" the Midtown tube last August 2 after burrowing 5,000 feet in 14½ months. Pushing a 400-ton bulk-head with 1,800 tons of hydraulic power through the soft muck deep under the river bed they built the tube behind them by bolting together cast steel arcs 30 inches wide to form 2,376 continuous rings.

Work now in progress in the tunnel includes concreting the sidewalls and installing a lighting system, air ducts, water pipes and drain gutters, as well as laying a 21½-foot roadway. The walls are being finished with ceramic tile and the ceiling with glass. All this will take another 20 months.

Outside the tube an additional 400 workmen are constructing approaches at both ends and erecting three buildings to house 32 electric fans. The fans will force air into the tunnel through vents near the roadbed and will exhaust motor fumes from the top.

Long dreamed by transit engineers, the Midtown tunnel was begun in 1934 as a federal works project. All government funds have since been repaid, however, and except for an outright grant of $4,780,000 from the PWA, the construction is being financed by the sale of Port Authority bonds. These will be paid off by toll receipts.

British Pursue Steady Task On Suez Defenses

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, April 10 (P)—Despite increased European tension following Germany's occupation of the Rhineland demilitarized zone, Britain is pursuing with deadly seriousness her task of perfecting the defenses of Egypt and the Suez Canal.

How serious she is, is revealed by two hitherto unpublished incidents of recent royal navy activities off the harbor here.

It is not a generally known fact that besides all the ships and planes brought here by Britain, six of the R. A. F.'s new "Queen Bee" robot airplanes were transported here for the sole purpose of giving the naval anti-aircraft guns some real practice.

In actual warfare, the British air ministry expects these robot planes to be useful in carrying cargoes of bombs for release over enemy lines. As their cost is approximately $50,000 each, they make rather expensive targets.

Recently one of the "Queen Bees" was an elusive target for more than an hour off Alexandria harbor before it was brought down. Finally the little destroyer leader Galatea scored a hit.

Flight of the Queen Bees is directed by a radio control on land at the Aboukir airdrome which guides radio apparatus located in the rear cockpit of the robot machine.

Typical of the risks taken by naval fliers here was a recent practice flight of 27 planes from the aircraft carrier Glorious. Far out on the Mediterranean, a mist suddenly arose between them and their base. They flashed S. O. S. calls and the Glorious guided them for some time but a landing was impossible and their gasoline supplies diminished steadily.

Luckily the mist lifted and after some time the planes were able to come down.

Believes Stranger Stole Pot of Gold

COMMERCE, Pa., April 10 (P)—Mrs. D. C. Short says two men, armed with divining rods, pick and shovel, invaded her farm, did a bit of digging and walked away with a "pot of gold" for which people here have searched for years.

Neighbors say there's a freshly dug hole on the Short farm and the bottom is a round, smooth depression that could have been made by a pot.

Oldest residents say the "pot of gold" is supposed to have been buried before the Civil war on the Short farm, then owned by the Sanders family.

Mrs. Short has appealed to federal agents in Atlanta to aid in bringing the alleged finders to justice.

MAKING GOOD!

OUT OF THE WRECKAGE OF THE SMALL AUTOMOBILE EMERGED A YOUNG AND BEAUTIFUL GIRL! BADLY SHAKEN BUT ONLY BARELY BRUISED AND OTHERWISE UNINJURED, SHE SEEMED TERRIFIED BY HER NARROW ESCAPE!

I-I'M NOT HURT BUT—

NEVER MIND EXPLAININ' SISTER—SAVE YOUR STRENGTH—

SHE INJURED? RECKON WE'D BEST CALL AN AMBULANCE—AN' GIT HER TO THE HOSPITAL!

I DON'T WANT AN AMBULANCE—I'M NOT HURT A BIT—OH, I WISH I WERE DEAD!

JUST HER NERVES, I GUESS, AN'—

OH, IT ISN'T MY NERVES! IT'S MY JOB AND IT ISN'T MY CAR, AND, OH, IT'S JUST EVERYTHING!

THIS YOUNG LADY'S ALL RIGHT, ELMER—SHE WANTS TO GET AWAY FROM THIS CROWD, THOUGH—

STAND BACK, FOLKS!

WHEN THE EXCITEMENT SUBSIDED, BEN STARTED TO GET SOME FACTS FROM THE DISTURBED GIRL AND BEFORE LONG BOTH HE AND ELMER WERE MORE DISTURBED THAN SHE!

IF YOU SIT THERE QUIETLY FOR A FEW MINUTES—

BUT I DON'T WANT TO SIT QUIETLY! I'VE GOT TO GET BUSY—

YOU'VE BOTH BEEN AWFULLY NICE TO ME—I DON'T KNOW WHY I SHOULD BOTHER YOU BY TELLING YOU THIS, BUT I WILL—

MY NAME'S DOROTHY SMITH—I CAME HERE LOOKING FOR A JOB AND I GOT ONE—I'M SUPPOSED TO START THIS MORNING—I BORROWED A FRIEND'S CAR SO I'D BE THERE ON TIME—NOW LOOK WHAT'S HAPPENED!

I'VE HAD HARD LUCK FROM THE MOMENT I GOT HERE—ONLY REASON I CAME WAS BECAUSE MY FATHER'S BEST FRIEND, OLD CAPTAIN AVERY, USED TO LIVE HERE, BUT HE'S DEAD—

CAPTAIN PHINEAS Q. AVERY?

YES, CAPTAIN PHINEAS Q. AVERY—WHY?

LISTEN, YOUR HARD LUCK IS OVER!

DOTTY SMITH, YOU'RE IN CLOVER!

ELMER, YOU TAKE HER IN A TAXICAB TO THE PLACE WHERE HER JOB IS—I'LL BUY A NEW CAR FOR THE OLD ONE—

COME ON, DOTTY SMITH, WE'RE GOIN' TO GEE TO IT THAT YOU'RE ON TIME FER THE NEW JOB, AN' THAT YOU TRAVEL THERE IN STYLE!

TELL HER THERE'S NOTHING TOO GOOD FOR A FRIEND OF CAPTAIN AVERY'S, ELMER!

I'VE ALREADY TOLD HER SHE'S IN THE HANDS OF AN AVERY!

to residents outside the city limits of Cisco. There will be a meeting of the farmers of the Cisco trade territory at the Texas Theatre Saturday morning, April 12th, at 10 o'clock to discuss Cisco as the future market of Eastland county. The Western Produce plant here will outline their system. Mr. Dallas Wales of the junior chamber of commerce will speak. There will be a Free Show at this Theatre every Saturday starting at 10 o'clock, every Saturday morning and showing until 5 o'clock, to reorganize the town and the farmer. Bring your families, tell your friends, if we need a bank, a grocery store or anything if the service has not been exactly right, we want to know it. We can bring in men who can give you service. This show is run every Saturday for six months. We ask the co-operation of the citizens of Cisco with this showing. You can enter the Theatre if you want to pay the admission price. Firemen of the town will be present to handle the crowds. Signed—C. J. Stevens, Owner and Operator.
