CISCO POLICE TO GUARD AGAINST RABIES

Unconfirmed Report Says Bob Mohler Held

Through the Editor's Spectacles By GEORGE

Members of the Twelfth Street Methodist church, hard pressed to carry forward their church program and pay off a mortgage on their parsonage, Saturday revealed their plight to be the danger of losing the residence unless a sufficient sum is raised to make a small payment on the balance due.

The money is owed to a finance company. M. H. Spoon, keeper of the east ward school building, is chairman of the committee who are attempting to raise the funds.

Two colored gentlemen who had just reduced the population of a farmer's hen-roost were making a getaway.

I received a telegram from Walter Holbrook of the press section of the Texas Centennial at Dallas directing me to ship to him the mother chapparel bird and three chicks which Dewey Lee found on his place southeast of Cisco.

Bob Mancill and I set out in the Ford to notify Lee. On directions received from the post office and misinterpreted by Bob, we chased over several miles of pasture and finally wound up around a mesquite clump in an unidentified portion of the county.

After we had twisted over an uncommon lot of up and down territory, dodging mesquite trees and opening wire gates—a duty which dampened a lot of Bob's original enthusiasm—we finally arrived upon a place where the road quit and a house erected itself in unpainted unpretentiousness from a barbed wire enclosure.

SUSPECT SAID TO BE HELD IN SWEETWATER

Officers Refuse Any Statement; Identity Not Positive

A man believed to be Bob Mohler, convicted slayer of Hugh Maples, Cisco taxi driver and rural mail carrier, in 1924, was reported to be held in Nolan county jail at Sweetwater.

Authorities refused to make any statement in connection with the arrest of the suspect, but it was understood that identification marks, except in one particular, tally exactly with the description of the man.

Former keepers of Mohler, whose crime was one of the most cold-blooded and gruesome in the history of the country, ranking with the now famed hanging skeleton murder case, were said to be planning to view the suspect in the effort to establish him as the escaped convict.

Mohler was arrested in 1924 after the disappearance of Hugh Maples, who had one hand off at the wrist. He was arrested in south Texas after a body identified as that of Maples was unearthed from a shallow grave in Coryell county.

Cisco Lions Take Second Place in Amateur Program

The Cisco Lions club delegation, carrying the "German Band" of the Lobo high school band, under direction of R. L. Maddox, as its contribution to an "Amateur Night" program, brought off second prize in the Weatherford Lions Ladies' night program Friday evening.

First place was taken by the Decatur club after a standing vote of the audience was resorted to to determine a close contest. Repeated efforts to settle the award by the applause of the audience were futile.

The Cisco band consisted of Mr. Maddox, Julian Ely, June Morehart, Dick Stansbury and Ralph McAnlies.

Horace Condley, past-district governor of District 2-E of Lions International, spoke for the Cisco group in advertising the annual district convention to be held here June 16 and 17.

Attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sander, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burnam, H. L. Dyer and Dallas Wales.

SIX BILLIONS ARE DEMANDED

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—Five hundred delegates of the Workers Alliance convention, accompanied by 100 police, marched to the White House today where they delivered a demand for the $6,000,000,000 relief program.

It was revealed that Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in January, told the senate foreign relations committee that the chances were nine against ten that there would not be "any general war," and warned that a "false impression" must not be spread that the United States "will not fight."

WEST HALF OF EIGHTH ST. IS ADVERTISED

Bids Yet to Be Asked on Eastern Part and Viaduct

Description of the sections of Eighth street affected by advertisement for bids on the relocation of Highway No. One over that route through Cisco was incorrectly reported to the Cisco Daily Press Friday to mean that the portion east of D avenue was advertised.

Nine-tenths mile from the west city limits to a junction with the present route of Highway No. one; eight-tenths of a mile from G avenue to the west city limits, and the block between F avenue and G avenue.

The east Cisco part of the new route and the viaduct which will take the highway over the Katy railroad tracks, are to be advertised for future lettings. Contracts on the three portions already advertised are tentatively due to be let April 28 and 29.

The entire re-location, which will carry this main state thoroughfare over a straight route through the heart of the city, will cost about $300,000. Federal money will be used and relief labor employed, although standard wages will be paid. At least six months will be required for the construction.

Parks will be constructed at two or three places along the highway in Cisco, providing an invitation for tourists to stop and refresh themselves. One of these, a large project, is under construction with NYA labor, supervised by highway engineers. It is located at the junction of Eighth street and Front street in west Cisco.

Calles Goes to San Diego Home of His Daughter

DALLAS, April 11. (AP)—Exiled General Plutarco Elias Calles, former president and Mexico's "strong man," left here by plane this morning for Los Angeles, thence by motor to his San Diego daughter's home, after an overnight rest at a Dallas hotel. A lost, haggard and beaten expression was evident yesterday. He seemed determined on a complete rest and expressed an aloofness to politics. He said:

"The government is trying to force people into communism and as a result there have been the worst strikes and labor trouble that has ever been known in Mexican history."

MOVE TO SEIZE CALLES PROPERTIES

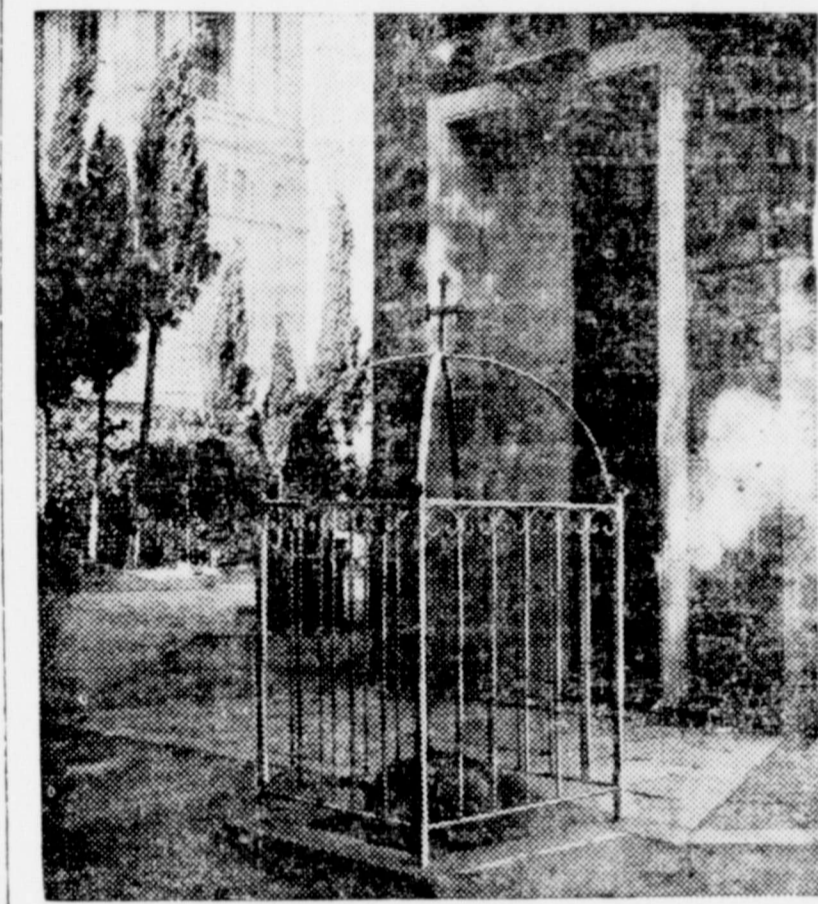

MEXICO CITY, April 11. (AP)—A move to expropriate the vast properties of the exiled former dictator of Mexico, General Plutarco Calles, was started today in the chamber of deputies by the leftists. The properties include the Santa Barbara ranch, several urban homes and extensive mining, industrial and rural holdings.

ATTEMPT TO SEIZE PROPERTIES

MEXICO CITY, April 11. (AP)—Fifty members of the Mexican workers federation today attempted to seize the residence of General Plutarco Calles, exiled former dictator. Police and guards repulsed them.

Go-to-Church Campaign Reaches Climax Today

Easter Sunday observance will be featured by the Knights Templar annual service held this year at the First Baptist church; the annual Lions club Easter Egg hunt at the city parks for the children of the city this afternoon, and a program of the Community Choral club at the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening.

Religious services of more than usual interest will be held in all churches of the city during the day. The period of the crucifixion on Good Friday was observed with a three-hour service at the First Methodist church, where various ministers of the city took part in a series of messages based on the seven words spoken by Christ as he hung from the cross.

Today represents the climax of a community-wide "Go-to-Church" movement, sponsored by the Cisco Ministerial Alliance. It is the aim of this campaign to have every person in Cisco attend some church during the month, and especially today to fill these churches with worshippers for the Easter services.

Commandery Service

The Rev. Fred Eastham, Eastland First Baptist church pastor, will preach the sermon for the annual Easter service of the Cisco Commandery which will be held at the First Baptist church this morning at 11 o'clock.

The service, open to the public, will be attended by the Knights Templar in a uniformed body. The ritual will be followed under the direction of Lory Boyd, commander.

Singers from other choirs in the city were invited to assist the First Baptist choir with the music under direction of Harry Schaefer.

5,000 Eggs to Be Hidden

Nearly 5,000 eggs were to be hidden at the Lions-Rotary and the city parks at Lake Cisco for the annual Lions club Easter egg hunt this afternoon.

The hunt will start at 3:30 from the bandstand in the city park where the Lobo band is expected to play. The area will be divided into three sections, each reserved to children of a certain age group, and in each group there will be prize eggs whose finders will receive rewards. Several other prizes have been offered by club members to

SMALL BOY IS BADLY BITTEN HERE FRIDAY

Vaccination Will Be Demanded to Prevent Outbreak

A warning to Ciscoans to guard against the possibility of an epidemic of mad dogs was issued from the city hall Saturday after a small boy was attacked and badly bitten by a large Newfoundland Friday afternoon.

The dog, chained at the rear of a neighborhood grocery store, attacked the child, Robert Kent, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Kent, when the boy started to play with it. Usually gentle, no thought was given to the possibility that the animal would bite the boy until it jumped on him. J. J. Beck, owner of the grocery store, beat the dog off with a club and rushed the boy to a local physician, who treated his wounds. Meanwhile, the dog was killed and the head sent to the Pastuer institute at Austin for examination for possible rabies.

The child suffered a badly chewed upper lip, while the right side of his face was severely bitten. His condition was reported to be satisfactory Saturday afternoon.

Police Saturday announced that a campaign for vaccination of dogs would be started immediately to guard against any epidemic. Last week a similar scare caused a general vaccination program to be carried on under police sponsorship with good results.

A veterinary will be brought here within the next few days, officers said, and all dogs in the city will be expected to receive the preventive treatment or kept up where they will not be potential menaces to the safety and health of the community.

TWO DEAD AS PLANE SINKS

MIAMI, Fla., April 11. (AP)—The 19-ton airliner, Brazilian Clipper, sank today after a collision with a fishing boat in the harbor of Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, drowning two passengers and the steward, and injuring possibly a score of others.

The Pan-American Airway's radio reported 22 others were rescued, including Jose Iturbi, the world-renowned pianist.

The huge plane overturned as the pilot swerved the craft in a vain attempt to avoid striking a small launch directly in its path during the take-off on the plane's southbound flight to Buenos Aires.

400 Ethiopians Reported Killed

ROME, April 11. (AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio today reported that 400 Ethiopians were slain in battle between Emperor Haile Selassie's regular troops and rebellious Azeba and Galla tribesmen on the northern front.

It was reported that Marshal Badoglio tomorrow was prepared to proclaim the abolition of slavery in all conquered Ethiopian territory.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

When the H. C. of L. Came Down By IRVIN S. COBB

AS I heard the tale it had to do with a small community in Texas where the railroad ran through the main street and on either side the track stood a short order restaurant owned and operated by a colored man.

One night the official bad man of the vicinity came lumbering in one of these rival establishments. While the uneasy negro made pretense at being glad to see him the bully flopped his long frame into a chair and demanded:

"Nigger, have you got a nice tender sirlain steak here?"

"Yes, suh!"

"All right, then; you cook it fur me and don't you cook it too long else I'll cook you awhile myself. And along with it you better bring me some fried onions and fried potatoes and some ceery and a mess of hot biscuits and green peas and roasting ears and pie and coffee and anything else tasty that you've got around this dump."

When the bad man had eaten he leaned back in his chair, drew a springback dirk knife out of his pocket. Suddenly he spoke and the negro jumped.

"What sort of dump does the other nigger over across the tracks run?" he asked.

"Oh, Mister Gatlin, you wouldn't lak dat place a-tall," stated the colored man.

"Yes," said the bully, "and what's more, he's a robber—he's a regular pirate. Last night I went into his joint and ordered just about what I've had here to-night. When I got through I asked him what the damage was and that black scoundrel had the gall to ask me for a dollar and a quarter? I got up intendin' to kill him. But all I done to him was just cut off both his ears with this here frog-sticker and feed 'em to him. By the way, what do I owe you for this mess of vittles?"

"Boss," said the darkey, "I reckon a dime would be ample."

W. V. Ballew is general chairman and J. Durrell Padgett, president of the Dallas Wholesale Merchants association, is vice chairman for the 35th annual business tour of the Dallas chamber of commerce and the Dallas Wholesale Merchants association. Among the featured entertainers that will be on this trip will be Alexander Keese, program director of Station WFAA, the Bumble Bees—the Southwest's outstanding male trio—Russell Koch, featured xylophone player of Early Bird fame; Jules Allen, the head of the Road Runners and a singer par-excellence of western songs. Other entertainment features will also be provided for the citizens of Cisco, who will be visited by Dallas business men on April 17th at 2:05 p. m., to spend 1 hour and 15 minutes with the good people of Cisco.

and a box of crackers. The crackers are all crumbs by now, but you will like them." They tasted like ambrosia and nectar.

That Megoni was a miracle man. Four nights later the advance reached Filu, up on a plateau where it was bitterly cold at night. Still wearing shorts and the scanty costume of a desert wardrobe, I huddled close to a camp fire at 2 a. m. It was too horribly cold to sleep. Suddenly out of the darkness appeared the fellow Megoni hugging a huge thermos bottle of scalding hot coffee. There was a unanimous vote around the fire that he will come out of this war with at least six medals.

Game Varies Soldier Fare
The diet of the soldiers in the fighting lines is nourishing and there is plenty of it. In the morning they get hot coffee and sugar. For lunch there is spaghetti or macaroni, meat and bread. For dinner there is spaghetti or rice or soup, meat and vegetable, bread and coffee.

This fare is supplemented by gazelles, dik diks, wild pig and other game the soldiers kill on march.

On rare occasions the army comes to a river where the troops, who often fight on less than a quart of drinking water a day, revel in an orgy of shower baths. Swimming is prohibited as crocodiles are in almost every stream. It is impossible, however, to keep the native soldiers from swimming. The natives believe that if they splash and yell loudly enough the crocodiles will stay away. The fact that natives frequently are attacked indicates the crocodiles have not been educated to this theory.

BLUFF CREEK AREA LEADS IN ACTIVITY

ALBANY, April 11.—Development continues at a reasonable pace in Shackelford county with several new locations staked this week. The Bluff Creek area of western Shackelford continues to lead in the number of active tests. One sale of production was reported wherein E. T. Green sold a 53 acre tract out of section No. 190, J. P. Morris ranch to White & Duncanson, of Wichita Falls, Texas, with one completed well in the Bluff Creek sand capable of 285 barrels per day. This same firm is drilling on their No. 2 well at a location 440 feet east of the No. 1.

Reliance-Jones & Stasney were forced to skid rig from their No. 1 Morris, section 190, because of collapsed casing, with the well drilled one foot into the sand and showing for a producer. They are now drilling ahead on the second test, 50 feet southwest of the abandoned location.

Baker and Pardue are drilling on their No. 2, Morris, section

200, at a location 440 feet north of No. 1, a 200 barrel well in the 1590 foot sand.

Bottled Water Marmalade Baths For Duce's Men

By MARK BARRON
WITH THE ITALIAN SOUTH-ERN ARMY IN ETHIOPIA, April 11. (AP)—A bath, a bottle of mineral water, a can of marmalade—these are the rare and simple pleasures of the Italian soldiers in the southern lines.

This is a mobile front, moving fast through hundreds of miles of jungle and desert, veldt and bush. The soldiers' program is one of move up quickly and fight. Sleep and meals are irregularly snatched when and where possible.

Like Drinking Gasoline
Drinking-water on the marches is purified by portable filters which kill all germs but leave the water tasting strongly of gasoline. Which explains why a bottle of mineral water, which sometimes mysteriously appears in the lines, is more highly prized than a magnum of champagne.

The outstanding hero, to this correspondent, at the battle of Deidei, was a smiling, young officer who came up to where I was sitting with a machine gun crew in the bush. The ground attack was being held up until the mountain cannon behind us got through shelling the hills where the Ethiopians were concentrated.

Feasting Amid Battle

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

In the end of the Sabbath day came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, to see the sepulchre; and the angel said unto the women: fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here, for he is risen, as he said.—Mat. 28: 1, 6.

How shall we spend the night
Before the breaking light
Of Easter, gleaming,
Brings redeeming?

Instead of frankincense
We shall bring confidence
That life is giving Us true living.

—BRANDER.

The joy of Easter is its faith, its power, and its inward peace. We know the truth and enter into its freedom. The Easter faith denies that the world sprang by chance, and asserts that it is created by a divine intelligence.—Rev. Dr. Paul Sargent.

Weapon to Be Used

IN response to an editorial in which the CISCO DAILY PRESS pointed out the other day that an effective weapon has been placed in the hands of local authorities to curb excessive speeds and careless handling of automobiles on the streets of Cisco, Mayor J. T. Berry told the PRESS that the weapon would certainly be used. It is the driver's license now required in the state of Texas. This license provides for the progressive curtailment of an offending driver's privileges. For the first conviction one of two perforated tabs is torn from the license. A second tab is removed upon second conviction. Third conviction results in taking up the license altogether and with it the offender's driver's right to operate an automobile upon a public thoroughfare. And convictions in a municipal court are just as effective as convictions of traffic violations anywhere in the state.

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Patterson Presiding)
New Cases Pending

There appears to be a dearth of new civil litigation in both of the district courts of Eastland county. The 91st docket failed to record a single new case filed during the past week, and there was only one new case filed on the docket of the 88th court. This case was Alvin W. Broyles vs. Emmett Jordan et al, an action on a note and foreclosure of lien.

Judgments and Orders

The following judgments and orders were rendered the past week by Judge B. W. Patterson:
J. R. Burnett, guardian of the estate of Mrs. Carrie E. Tipton, appealed to the 11th court of civil appeals. Reversed with instruction to the trial court to dismiss at the cost of appellants.

Orval Owen vs. Johnnie Owen, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff.

Mrs. Grace G. Shoemaker et al vs. Alexander A. Walton et al, application for receivership. Judgment for plaintiff. It appearing to the court that an emergency exists that necessitates the appointment of a receiver to take over the property of the defendants, consisting of certain oil and gas leases and other property of the joint partnership of Alexander A. Walton and Mrs. F. A. McCrew and husband, J. A. McCrew, and to administer the same under the direction of the court. It is further ordered and decreed that W. A. Stiles be named as receiver of said property, both real and personal, of every kind whatsoever. Said receivership to be inaugurated upon the said Stiles filing his bond with the court in the sum of $3,000.

In the matter of the bond of Lynn Smith, indicted in connection with the "hanging skeleton" murder case in which his bond was set at $3,000. The murder charge having been dismissed, it was believed the law will be safeguarded by reducing his bond to $1,000. The bond was filed Friday, and the defendant, Lynn Smith, released when the reduced bond was filed with W. F. Waldrop, John Proctor, S. C. Scales and F. E. Bynum, as sureties.

THE DEPARTMENT OF THE COUNTY CLERK

Marriage Licenses

The following have been licensed to wed during the past week by the county clerk:

J. T. Kim and Miss Willie Gertrude Carroll, Ranger.

Lewis Fagan and Miss Alta Everton, Carbon.

J. H. Wilson and Miss Zada Boykin, Rising Star.

R. B. Ballard and Miss Geraldine Flennor, Cisco.

James E. Everett, Olden, and Miss Lila Gay White, Carbon.

Probate Orders

State vs. Mrs. A. E. Jones, lunacy. Trial by jury resulted in a verdict of unsound mind, and the patient ordered conveyed to the state hospital at Wichita Falls for restraint and treatment.

Application of Mrs. C. E. Dean, guardian of Earl Burris, Jr., et al, for partition of an estate in which her wards own an undivided 1.11th interest. Application approved and guardian authorized to sign deeds to perfect the par-

Regulation or Salvation?

THE old argument has been advanced against the legalization of beer in next Saturday's election that by making the beverage legal Eastland county would be legalizing drunkenness and the driving of cars while intoxicated. Thus, it is maintained, encouragement of the use of the beverage would result and the evil flaunted in the public face with growing menace. With reference to the charge of legalizing drunkenness and its associated evils, the argument is wrong. Legalization of beer, even if it should be intoxicating, would not legalize drunkenness and driving of cars while under the influence of liquor, no more than failure to legalize it will prevent people from drinking it. On the contrary such a course will serve the healthful and more moral purpose of placing the responsibility where the responsibility belongs—not on the law, but on the individual who would still have to answer for his misdeeds. The man who drives a car while intoxicated is a criminal and he ought to be put behind bars and kept there. The man who gets drunk is a fool, and he ought to receive the full extent of the penalty. He will come a mighty long sight nearer doing that when the traffic is brought out of the dives and the slums and filthy back rooms and sunned in the public instinct for decency which would be effective where the sale and use of the beverage is in the open. The light of public opinion is a strong antidote for crime, just as much as sunshine is fatal to germs. The disgusting exhibitions of public drinking that have been seen since legislation of liquor in some places are nothing compared to the rotteness that has gone on in private behind the curtain of prohibition. The question of prohibition or lack of prohibition is a moral issue a great deal deeper than a simple, if sincere faith, in the efficacy of laws. The use of alcoholic liquors is a fact. There is no getting around it. The real question for the person who is ardently in favor of prohibiting drinking or the sale of intoxicants to answer is: Is there a sufficient moral foundation upon which to establish such a law?

FIGURES on law enforcement in Eastland county during the period that 4 per cent beer was being legally sold in Eastland, Cisco and Ranger, as compared with figures for the subsequent period are illuminating. They reflect less drunkenness and a much more decent and satisfactory state of affairs with respect to the use of alcoholic liquors during that period than now. Obviously, if the end sought is the proper regulation of the traffic then the bringing of it into the open where its evils may be the more apparent and the better dealt with is the proper course. If the end sought is the salvation of the individual, then we maintain that an effort is being made to use the law for an end for which it was never intended and for which it will never be effective. It is the business of the church to save people from immorality and degradation, to build character and provide the moral foundation upon which laws and good government rest. It is the business of law to regulate.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

The first announcement of some one living again who had been dead seemed to the mourning friends, even though they had all their lives been used to the doctrine of a resurrection, as "idle talk." Before we criticize the lack of faith of these early disciples let us analyze this morning our own Easter hope. How much of all that we will hear, not only of the lighter sentiments that have grown up about the day, but even of its deeper significance will be "idle talk." We go about this workaday world shut in by drab circumstances to a matter-of-fact existence until words of hope fall upon rather dull ears. We catch a faint glimpse of a distant realm of glory, but the assurance that it is for us does not take hold of us. Even ministers who expound the doctrine from thousands of pulpits this morning find in the theme a poetic ideal and an eloquent exhortation that often lacks the conviction of an eternal truth.

We can hardly appreciate the hope that is involved in this great promise of a resurrection by making it only the heart of an annual celebration. The idea is too much like a foreign element in the soul; to be assimilated and to become a lively hope it must become a daily exercise as habitual as breathing. Hope is a growth and not a sudden acquisition. If the resurrection is a subject of our daily meditation, a motive in our every action, and a constant undergirding for our every frailty then this season that especially emphasizes our possibilities for future life means a great deal. The weary world needs some word of cheer; and every other promise than this is fleeting.

The difference between idle talk and a lively hope in the Easter message lies in this element of reality that is put into the belief we have in a future life and a spiritual existence. If it seems to us as idle talk, a good enough sentiment and a beautiful expression but to be acted upon only when it proves its certainty, we are apt to let it alone. But if it is a living hope that fills us with courage and thrills us to action then it will not let us alone. Only this hope is strong enough to lift the world out of its grossness of temporal things.

Miss Flennor Bride In Theater Wedding

The Texas theater stage marriage, performed at 9 o'clock Friday evening proved a drawing attraction that packed that show house to capacity. The names of the newlyweds were carefully guarded until the wedding night, and only a few of their most intimate friends knew of their identities.

The contracting pair proved to be R. B. Ballard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ballard, of the Gem cafe, and Miss Geraldine Flennor, the daughter of Mrs. Flennor, a resident of east Cisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Ballard were the recipients of a number of useful presents with which they will embark on their matrimonial career.

Rev. C. D. Phillips, Church of God minister, performed the ceremony.

GOES TO CONVENTION

Mrs. S. E. Hittson, state chairman of motion pictures, will leave Tuesday for Fort Worth to attend the meeting of the State Music clubs.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) in that moment she would have been proud of him. Such grace is of the manor born and Bob did great credit to his origin and breeding.

To make a long story short the farm wife, with excellent English and equal courtesy, put him back on the right track and Bob, somewhat sheepish under his aplomb, started in to recite a chapter or two of family history to explain why he had led us on such a chase to get to a spot that was within a very short distance of Cisco and on one of the main lateral thoroughfares.

Reaching the Dewey Lee home was as simple as turning down a gravel road to the Lee Diversified farm (no relation) and stopping at a small farm house.

A colored woman entered the office of an insurance company in the south. "I wanna drop my husband's life insurance policy," she said. "Times is bad an' I can't pay de premium no mo'."

"What is the matter?" asked the insurance man. "Did your husband lose his job?"

"No," she said. "You see he died a couple of years ago and left me a poor widow."

Advertisement for bids on construction of portions of the new route of Highway One through Cisco over Eighth street is a cheering development. J. E. Spencer at the chamber of commerce has issued so many statements and made so many promises about the road that he was beginning to feel skittish every time a delegation of citizens came into the chamber of commerce. There was a beam of vast relief on his face and evidences of satisfaction in other quarters of the community when the news was published Friday.

Similarly, a great deal of satisfaction and relief attaches to the announcement that the WPA settling basin project for Cisco has not only been approved but the work will begin next Wednesday. I had something editorially to say about this project the other day and need not repeat those remarks here. Aside from its health value to the community, this project and the highway project give promise of plenty of employment for Cisco idle during the summer and fall. This will mean wages and prosperity.

Now, if we could just get a rain. R. E. Grantham has returned from Austin.

EASTER

There is no more inspiring sight than that of hands raised in prayer. Tranquil, composed, supplicating, they embody all that is spiritual and divine. There are the hands of the aged; wrinkled and lined with the toil of a life-time; little blue veins interweaving endlessly to tell of ebbing youth. There are the young man's hands; strong and calloused with the marks of work well done. There are the hands of the girl; fragile, trusting, graceful, soft and white. The hands of the child, so tiny and helpless, so compelling of love and tenderness. Let us all raise our hands in prayer to our God this Easter. For whether they be wrinkled or smooth, strong or weak, calloused or fine, little or brawny, they express to Him the hope, faith, and love of man.

Chapter 25
BODY BLOW

Iris looked up, her eyes full of tears. "You do beautiful work," she said. "Have you typed them and sent them out?"

Her father had done a little verse, and some art criticisms; she knew the procedure. Aunt Ella had typed clear beautiful copies on a little typewriter she bought, and had made a card index for sending and resending.

"Oh, I wouldn't dare,"

"Yes, you would. That's silly. I'll tell you just how to do it."

She began a matter-of-fact description of Aunt Ella's routine. Camilla stared at her, her dark face lighted with excitement; to the excitement was added another expression that had never been there before—hope.

Just then Owen came in, whistling, a tune Iris knew in even this short time meant a few minutes of stolen heaven with Sigrid; it was a Norwegian folksong, his unconscious Sigrid-motiv. Camilla, poor girl, could not know. Iris saw her hands tremble, saw her turn eagerly. She was at her worst with Owen.

He greeted her with that slow kindness which bequeath everyone and cast a look at his sister which meant "get rid of her."

So presently poor Camilla went, eager, hurt to the last moment.

"Don't forget about the poetry," Iris said. It seemed all the comfort she could give her. Camilla squeezed her hand gratefully, and was gone.

"Gosh!" said Owen, with a man's hardness, dropping on a chair. "Thanks for getting her out, Iris. You're a swell girl." He reached for a cigaret. "Any designs I make for the Camel are well-earned money, believe it or not."

"Oh, Owen! She's mad about you. And she is a real poet, I believe. She showed me some of her poetry."

But he strode off to change for dinner. Iris realized it was time she dressed too. She knew well enough that a heart of gold inside poor Camilla's nervous body had no chance against Sigrid's beautiful little northern face with its wheels of silvery hair.

Learning a hard-fighting game of bridge was the thing Iris liked least. Phina was firm about it; she adored bridge herself, and besides, as she pointed out, not being able to play it well was as bad as having gowdy clothes.

The three of them, with Honora called in, as she often was, to make a fourth, were playing a practice game one snowy January night.

"Too stormy to go to the show," Phina had decreed; "we'll work up your game a little."

They were sitting near the fire in the silver room, and Iris, a little drowsy with the fire and the dropping cards, wearied after a while.

"You'd play a fair game if you took it more seriously," her aunt said. "Who taught you?"

"Morgan Black." Her mind flew back to Morgan, teaching her the beginning of contract with Uncle Will. Outwardly a little rough with her, but how gentle with her mistakes, how admiring, how proud, when she played cleverly!

"Oh, yes, I wrote Will the other day—that reminds me—about the old music books you said you sang those songs from. He said Mr. Black would be coming over soon and he'd send them by him."

Iris's heart leaped. To see Morgan—too talk to him again!

"When?"

"I don't know. When his lady-love desires, I gather. It seems he's decided to settle down in Persia for life with a girl named—was it Katie Oliver?"

"Katie Oliver." Iris's voice was steady. She hoped her face was too. "Are you sure?"

"Well, nothing's sure but death and income taxes; I've only Will's word of it," Phina said carelessly. "Make it a heart."

Iris hoped she made her own bid in a voice that showed nothing. Men were like that. If you told them you didn't love them they found another girl who did. She hadn't known how sure she had felt of Morgan's continued love; that she could write, telephone, walk in any moment, and find his love waiting there for her, as sure and indestructible as her family. She hadn't known she cared as much as this.

Iris jumped as the house telephone rang. It might be Morgan. But it was "a man with a package," the known bootlegger's formula.

"That bootlegger does come at the most unearthly hours," Phina said. "Why he had to set eleven-thirty when we're in the middle of repeal, only he knows. Tell him to come up, Honora."

Iris leaned back in her place with a look which her aunt misinterpreted as one of relief at the game's end. She laughed.

"My dear, Allan Beckley is one of the best players in the city," she said. "You don't want him to think you're a dub."

"If he's such a pasha that I have to learn bridge to please him I don't think much of him!" Iris retorted like a child.

"There's the elevator, Iris. You talk to him. He's so frightfully conversational," said Phina. "Come on, Owen."

But it was Morgan who stood there—Morgan Black, quite at his ease in a dark overcoat she had never seen, an opera hat flat in his gloved hand, and the unmistakable square shape of Grandmother Lanning's 1870 music books under the other arm.

"Good evening, Iris; I hope I'm not too late in delivering this. I couldn't get away from the people I was dining with till just now."

She had been prepared for any Morgan but this sophisticated person with the light note of pleasant acquaintanceship in his voice. But after all—if Phina was right—this was the only Morgan she'd see from now on.

"Not too late a bit." She smiled. She did not know how sophisticated, how controlled she herself looked standing there slim and smart from her perfectly done waves to her red satin sandals. Demi-toilette for evenings at home was Phina's rule; tonight Iris wore a close-clinging red crepe of deceptive simplicity;
