ETHIOPIANS BLAST ROAD TO CAPITAL

STOP ITALIAN ADVANCE UPON SOUTH FRONT

Supreme Effort Made To Halt Drive Of Fascist Armies

(By Associated Press)
Ethiopian troops blasted entire sections of the Dessye-Addis Ababa road today in a supreme effort to stem the Italian advance.

The government claimed that several thousand Italians were slain in a fierce three-day battle on the southern front, ending in an Ethiopian victory.

Italian sources said that airplanes were savagely assaulting the Ethiopians to prevent the destruction of the road to the capital. A heavy fog is reported to be aiding the Ethiopian defenders.

Ras Nasibu, Ethiopian southern front commander, reported that the defending troops had defeated the Italians in an engagement near Badudanan, but gave no details.

Empress Asks Aid
In Addis Ababa, Empress Menen appealed to the world, especially to France and Great Britain, to aid Ethiopia in her fight against the Italians. She said that Ethiopia, undefeated, would continue to defend "our just cause to the end."

Italy's northern army pressed on toward the capital, confident of crushing the last Ethiopian forces under Emperor Haile Selassie.

Rome claimed that the southern army was continuing to advance despite the torrential rains.

France, fearing that Germany was preparing to "strike eastward," sought definite military plans under the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact. The Russian and French general staff members are scheduled to meet next week and work out a plan of strategy.

Touch of Realism Given Reading at Rotary Program

Mrs. Paul Woods who entertained the Cisco Rotary club today noon, produced a striking touch of realism in her reading of the Larry Chittendon poem, "The Cowboys' Christmas Ball" in the support of a violin and guitar and the presence of cowboy hats and red bandanas. Ernest Hutton and Harry Schaefer provided the music for that part of the reading dealing with the ball.

Preceding this feature of her program, which drew a storm of applause, Mrs. Woods observed the Texas centennial theme with a triad of Texas poems. She concluded with a toast to Texas.

Dick Weeks of Ranger, chairman of the Eastland county soil conservation committee, and County Agent Elmo V. Cook explained briefly the aims of the government's AAA conservation program. They were introduced by T. G. Caudle.

The program was presented by J. C. McAfee.

At the business session E. P. Crawford, chairman of the "On to Fort Worth" committee, distributed information relative to the conference of the 41st district at that city next month and urged Rotarians who are planning to attend to make the hotel reservations desired at once.

Swimming Pool Will Open Formally May 3

The Lake Cisco swimming pool will open May 3, it was announced today by P. G. Berry, manager of the Lake Cisco amusement company.

Details of the program for the opening were not announced immediately.

Illiterates Are Sought for Special Classes In Adult Schools; Nursery School Is Praised

The Cisco adult schools are looking for persons who cannot read or write. They are hoping to establish special classes for such persons and to remove the condition which has brought to the census rolls of the county 403 illiterates, according to R. E. White, state supervisor of adult education for this district.

"We will establish classes with only one pupil to the class if necessary in order to teach people to read and write," White said this morning.

White pointed out that adults who are unable to read and write are usually timid about entering a class with more advanced adults, but that they will enroll for individual instruction or for work in beginning classes.

Praised Nursery
In reviewing the work of the Cisco federal government schools, White especially praised that of the nursery schools, where children of pre-school age, whose parents are on relief rolls or earn wages below the WPA scale, are given training designed to build strong bodies and to make good citizens of them.

"I think that the nursery schools are by far the greatest investment of the WPA education program," White said. He pointed out that there are 73 boys and girls receiving training in the Cisco nursery, under competent teachers.

Daily Program
"Their training consists of free from local physicians when necessary.

More General Education
White praised the Cisco adult school and said that the only criticism he has to offer is that there might be more classes in general educational subjects. At present there are three classes in music, one in art, five in general education including commercial subjects, and 23 in home making. There are 33 teachers, with an enrollment of 839.

He praised the Cisco school system, which sponsored the adult and nursery schools, and the city, which has aided by furnishing buildings and equipment.

WORK RELIEF ORDERED CUT IN DISTRICT

Two-Thirds Original Figure By May 30 Is Necessary

Relief workers of this district will be reduced to two-thirds the original number by May 30, it was announced today by M. R. Russell of Abilene, assistant labor supervisor for District 13.

Lack of funds has made the reduction necessary for this district, Russell said. He pointed out that the reduction is already under way and that it will continue until the figure set has been reached.

"We regret having to cut the work lists," Russell said, "but have to because of lack of funds."

Already Reduced

The original figure of 5,338 men must be cut to 3,573 in this district by the end of May, Russell said. It has already been reduced to 4,010.

Russell produced reports from R. W. McCargo, employment supervisor for the district, to E. E. Hale, state employment director, to show how the number of men has been gradually being reduced.

On April 4 the number of men employed was reported at 4,268. On April 11 it was listed at 4,067, and by April 18 it had been cut further to 3,998.

Reduction Orders

The reduction orders call for the following cuts, a part of which have already been made: March 31, 4,316; April 15, 4,010; April 30, 3,790; May 15, 3,681; May 30, 3,572.

City's Employes Plan Outing For Next Thursday

City employes today were planning an outing for next Thursday, to be held at Lake Cisco, it was announced this morning.

The outing, to be in the nature of a barbecue, will be at 7 p. m. and will include all city employes and firemen.

Police Chief M. L. Perdue, Commissioner H. A. Bible, and R. H. Boon have charge of arrangements. Details of the barbecue and entertainment have not yet been worked out.

AAA Watching Texas As Dust Continues

WASHINGTON, April 23. (AP)—The AAA is keeping a close watch daily on the western "dust bowl" after Secretary of Agriculture Wallace predicted that another dry month would bring critical conditions in the southwest.

Wallace said the lack of moisture might damage the Texas cotton crop.

Operated by clockwork, a fan weighing less than two ounces has been invented, the blades of which fold themselves when it is not running so it can be carried in a pocket.

Representative Zioncheck Jailed For Disturbing Washington Court

WASHINGTON, April 23. (AP)—Representative Zioncheck, of Washington state, was forcibly removed from the court room of the traffic court today for creating a disturbance in objecting to the court recess after pleading guilty to the charge of speeding. He was locked in a cell.

The court room was in wild disorder as Zioncheck scuffled with court bailiffs. He had previously

160 MAJORITY IS GIVEN BEER

Returns of Election Canvassed Today

The official majority for beer in last Saturday's county-wide election to legalize sale of the beverage was found to be 160 votes when the county commissioners court canvassed the returns this morning.

The election authorized legal sale of beer and wine of not more than 14 per cent alcohol by volume.

The Nimrod box, only one missing since Monday, sent in its returns yesterday, showing 22 against legalization and 8 for. This brought the total vote for legalization to 2,358 as compared to 2,198 against.

Fifteen or 20 applications for licenses were on file in the county clerk's office today. These must remain in file for five days before licenses can be issued, so that Tuesday, April 28, will be the first day that beer can be legally sold in the county.

Martin Dies To Be On the Air Friday

Jed Johnson, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the national democratic congressional committee, advises the Daily Press that Congressman Martin Dies, of the Orange congressional district, who is one of the leading members of congress and author of much of the administration's monetary legislation, a member of the powerful rules committee and noted orator, will speak over a coast to coast hook-up through the facilities of the National Broadcasting company net-work on Friday, April 24, between 6:30 and 6:45 p. m. He can be heard over KPRC, Houston, WOIA, San Antonio, and WFAA, Dallas.

Dies will speak in the interest of the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, in which he will give a true story of the hard-working, conscientious and independent chief executive, who has fought and worked for the best interests of the masses, and at no time received his orders from the special interests.

TO BROWNWOOD

Two Men Removed From Living Death

MOOSE RIVER, N. S., April 23 (AP)—Dr. D. E. Robertson and Charles Scadding were removed from their ten day's living death in an underground tomb early today.

Hundreds of weary rescuers sang as the emaciated pair, sick and weak from their long imprisonment in the Moose River gold mine, were brought to the surface. Behind the living pair the body of Herman Magill, who died in the cavern Monday, was carried up the 141-foot passage to the surface.

Robertson, 62 years of age, withstood the privations better than Scadding, aged 42, who was too weak to crawl out.

The pair were immediately placed in an emergency hospital for a few days before going to a Halifax hospital, 75 miles away.

Still Taken BY OFFICIALS

No Arrests; Mash and Jars Are Found

Officers yesterday captured a 100-gallon still when they raided a place a mile south of the city limits. With the still they found 14 barrels of mash and four dozen half-gallon jars, all empty. No whiskey was found.

The officers made no arrests. They reported that the mash was about ready to run off when they arrived.

Officers making the raid were Sheriff Virge Foster and Police Chief M. L. Perdue.

"We must take another important step toward providing social security for our citizens. Texas should be prepared to establish a system of unemployment insurance in accordance with the national security act."

Capital Cases Will Come to Grand Jury

The grand jury of the 88th district court, which will convene in Eastland Monday, will have quite a bit of material for their investigation. The major cases which will come before the inquisitorial body for infractions of the criminal laws of the state will include a murder case, in which charges have been filed against three; and the alleged robbery with firearms, is another case where charges are pending against three, also.

Those against whom charges are filed are Bert Bradberry, Jim Elliott and Fate Campbell, in connection with the death of Buford Tarver, which occurred on Lake road, north of Cisco, on the night of April 2.

The robbery with firearms charge which will come before the body for investigation are against J. C. Gilliland, Chester White and Cora Vire Woods, for the alleged robbery of Cleve Spicer at Ranger last week.

Two out-of-county witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury.

One hundred of the Centennial exposition books of tickets have been delivered to the Cisco chamber of commerce for selling at $2.50 each. The book provides a $4.20 ticket value. Each contains five tickets and each ticket combines one general admission to the exposition and one admission to a leading entertainment concession. The books are transferable and may be used at any time during the 177 days of the exposition, which opens on June 6 and closes on November 29. The book will be taken off sale before the opening of the centennial.

The 100 books were purchased through the chamber of commerce in order to provide Cisco people with an opportunity to make a saving on their tickets to the centennial. They may be obtained at the chamber of commerce office now.

Worry, says a pertinent article in the Southwestern Ambassador, a trade brochure, is the result of a combination of fear and mental confusion. That, it declares, is a dangerous combination to carry around in a person's skull. It reduces effectiveness, destroys health and gets the worrier nowhere at all.

"So far as we can learn worry is more or less a natural instinct and the more responsible and conscientious a person is the more he is prey to worry. Therefore, worry to be banished must be replaced with something more effective, with a philosophy which seeks to remedy the trouble through intelligent planning and diligent work, and having done this, dismiss the matter from further thought."

After all, the article remarks, it has been truly said that most of the things we worry about don't happen.

"The difference between the cow and the milkman," said the would-be witty consumer, "is that the cow gives pure milk."

"There is another difference," retorted the milkman. "The cow doesn't give credit." — Stewart News.

Frank Leach, building superintendent for the post office, believes that folks are too much inclined to nature. Leach has resorted to various stratagems in order to protect his lawns against pedestrian trespassing. For a while he piled a barricade of brush along the curbing, but people soon found little trails among it and so crossed from the street to the building over his carefully tended Bermuda. Then the city constructed some sidewalks along the curb and leading to the main entrance to accommodate patrons getting out of cars. He removed the brush. Now he swears that people had rather walk on grass than concrete so he is contemplating tending the sidewalks and letting the grass go.

He ought to take a lesson out of the book of prohibition and put up signs forbidding people to use the walks. The very human instinct to do the forbidden—an instinct that goes clear back to the inquisitive Eve and the pliant Adam—will protect his lawns.

According to the latest figures, the automobile still goes on doing its great work of dividing the American people in two classes—the quick and the dead.

Governor Will Ride Centennial Special Train

DALLAS, April 22.—Governor James V. Allred early this week said definitely that he would ride the Texas Press Centennial Special train on its ten-day tour of the East and Midwest.

The Texas governor will lead 100 prominent Texans who leave Dallas April 26 to visit 17 principal cities and salute those states that were represented in Texas during the revolutionary period.

Included among the party of state officials will be Attorney General William G. McCraw, provided last minute official business does not detain him. The first member of the state senate to make reservation on the train was Senator Tom Holbrook, Galveston.

West Texas will be represented by several members of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce and prominent men from other cities of that section.

Carl Estes, Longview publisher and the man who bought the first train ducat, will lead the delegation from East Texas.

The Texas party will be accompanied by a special unit of the University of Texas Longhorn band and their director, Burnett Pharr.

city council, the court found the suit a direct attack upon the action of that council in granting the Brownwood Public Service company, a franchise. The opinion recognized, however, that the city council, on the record sustained by the court of civil appeals from a preliminary hearing of the case, had failed to discharge its duty in that it never purported to determine the sufficiency of the petition for a referendum. For that reason the court found that the plaintiff had not proceeded according to its sufficient legal remedy and held that it had no right to abandon its petition and attack the validity of the competitive franchise granted the defendant company by an injunction based upon the assumption that the action of the council on its petition was erroneous and the franchise void.

Could Be Removed
The opinion held that the names of petitioners secured by the T. P. and L. in its application to the city council could be removed by their own request up until the very moment that the council acted upon the petition. It said that the evidences of a misunderstanding of the purpose and effect of the petition on the part of the signers justified the council in permitting those who asked to do so to remove their names.

The opinion questioned the validity of the franchise taken over by the T. P. and L. over 24 years ago on the score of indefiniteness, but held that the dealings between the T. P. and L. and the city and its investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars in its service gave it a de facto franchise that was binding.

DALLAS, (AP)—The man who took up competitive marksmanship because he "grew tired of shootin' squirrels" is celebrating the completion of a decade in which he won hundreds of trophies and took part in 15 international matches.

He is sharp-shooting Thurman Randle of Dallas. He didn't take up shooting competition until he was 35 years old.

His greatest feat, to which he points with pride, was the world record he hung up in a Swiss match on July 2, 1934, at the Eastern Championships, Camp Ritchie, Md.

Endurance Contest, Too
In this match, where the contestant fires until he misses, Randle peppered the bull's-eye with 196 consecutive shots from the 200-yard mark. It was something of an endurance feat, too, requiring two hours 17 minutes.

Each year since he began matching shots with other sharpshooters, Randle has been a member of the DeWar team which engages England in international rivalry.

Twice he has gone to England, as a member of the United States Bisley cup team, and now he is preparing for another trip abroad next year when the series is resumed after a 6-year lapse.

Three times Randle shot with the F.I.D.A.C. cup team which competes against all nations. Gov. Paul McNutt of Indiana first offered the cup several years ago when he was national commander of the American Legion.

A Few Championships
In this country, Randle—a gunshop owner—has held the national midwinter small-bore championship, Missouri title twice, Oklahoma twice, California, Kansas, Texas seven times, eastern twice and southwestern the last five years.

In 1935 he won the national midwinter, southwestern, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas titles.

Besides being an expert marksman, Randle is a "missionary" devoted to spreading the popularity of his favorite sport—rifle-firing.

L. Dyer, chairman of that group, and T. G. Caudle had already been appointed. They will work with Secretary J. E. Spencer in preparing a Cisco panel to appear with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce exhibit in the Frontier Centennial exposition at Fort Worth and in the preparation of other advertising material.

Secretary Spencer was re-elected Cisco director on the board of the West Texas chamber. Cisco's membership in that body has reached this year only about one-third its quota, Mr. Spencer said. Some new members were obtained last night.

The board, by individual subscription, raised $15.50 toward paying the expenses of the group of boys whom Mr. Caudle, vocational agricultural director of the high school, will take to the state judging contest at A. and M. college next fall. Mr. Caudle asked for an appropriation of $20, but because the funds of the chamber have been overdrawn the directors made personal contributions.

(Note: In addition to the time which they give to the direction of the chamber of commerce, the directors are frequently called upon to make personal contributions of each in order to carry on worthy or necessary projects. They have done this willingly.)

Mail Slogan Aids Woman Mail Carrier

HAMPTON, Ga., April 22. (AP)—"Uncle Sam's mail must go through."

That's the slogan that has been a help to Mrs. Kenneth Barfield during a 17-year career as a carrier of mail over rural red clay Georgia roads.

She says that without it she would have failed to overcome some of the obstacles that confronted her.

She recalls that only several weeks ago she had to swing a heavy axe to clear the road of fallen limbs and twisted trees after an ice storm.

Once during a flood the bridge over a creek washed away a few seconds after she had driven her car across it.

But carrying the mail has its sunnier side, she says, pointing out that her romance with Mr. Barfield began when she drove her automobile into his service station 13 years ago to inquire about the oil supply.

TWO HOUSES BURN SUNDAY

Mexican Residences Are Total Loss

Fire early Sunday morning completely destroyed two frame residences in the Mexican section of East Cisco.

One of the houses was owned by Salvador Martinez and occupied by Juan Torrez. The other, owned by Joe Flores, was vacant.

There was no insurance on either of the buildings, but an unofficial estimate placed the damage between $600 and $700.

The second fire truck was said to have been delayed at the railroad crossing, allowing the flames to gain headway before the firemen arrived.

It will require four months to complete. A paved road will be laid from a junction with the present zoo road pavement to the site of the treatment plant.

The city's share of the cost will be about $5,000. Wesley Harrell is engineer for the city and R. S. Glenn is in charge for the WPA. Twenty-four men were employed Saturday, the third day of work.

Tom Hunter Enters Governor Race, Attacks Administration of Allred

(Special to The Daily Press)
DALLAS, April 23.—Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, twice a strong candidate for governor and runnerup in the close campaign two years ago, has entered the race for the governorship a third time in a formal announcement of his candidacy issued here.

Hunter, an aggressive campaigner, launched his campaign with a sharp arraignment of what he characterized as Governor James V. Allred's "callous neglect of the old people of Texas" with reference to the old age pension law. Terms Hunter applied were "shameful" and "outrageous."

The formal statement of announcement confined itself largely to a caustic review of Governor Allred's record, Hunter explaining that a forthcoming statement would take up specifically the principles and policies he will champion in his forthcoming campaign.

The announcement of his candidacy follows:
'Allred Social Laugh'
"A lead horse that never presses the collar can't guide the string, and by that old saying I am reminded of young Governor Jimmie. As an economic leader Jimmie Allred is a social laugh—except to the old folks. To them he is a heartache.

"This is not my opinion alone. Five weeks on the road checking sentiment from both those that supported me, and many who did not, conclusively shows that today the majority believes the election of Jaunty Jimmie was a mistake. It takes more than a personable young fellow forever off on some jaunt or other to guide the business of state government.

"From all sections I am told that the people now realize that the spending of an enormous cash fund in behalf of Allred during the closing days of the campaign two years ago took away from the friends of my program a victory they had won. The knowledge of that fact alone will, this time, galvanize my supporters into a statewide determined organization reinforced by recruits from former Allred voters who realize their error. I am, therefore, a candidate for governor.

"My position on public questions and the social welfare of the people is well known. I am instinctively in sympathy with the plain people and the unprivileged, and from time to time as the campaign progresses I shall discuss the urgent issues on which Jaunty Jimmie has proved so vacillating. And I shall insist that it is the governor's obligation to be a governor at the seat of government, not a glorified drum major leading a tournament of roses.

"An executive in Austin only two days or so a week is only a weekend governor—and pretty weak at that. He can hardly be expected to know what it is all about. The first office of Texas entails constantly weighty duties and one should be on the job in person for a study and a performance of those duties. As governor I will stay in the state and on the job except when duties require my service elsewhere. I shall be generous and divide honors when ribbons are to be cut at bridge openings, school parades are to be led, and when some of our thousands of beautiful queens are to be crowned. I will not be a galloping, gallivanting governor.

Target of Abuse
"In the last campaign I was the target for a tremendous barrage of false propaganda and personal abuse unloosed through the use of great sums of money. This bilge was spread by hired calumniators, was circulated in tons of printed matter and broadcast over expensive statewide networks. Yet I bear no rancor, nurse no grudge, although I was hurt. A blow below the belt is a shock to a man's sense of what is just, and my good wife and our children suffered this hurt with me. It has been my experience that one who will misstate facts in order to gain your confidence will misuse you while he has that confidence. I feel certain a great many voters made that discovery too late. There is only gall in fat promises unkept.

"Within a few days I shall discuss the old age pension amendment. I think it is about time that somebody recalls that the people demanded it in the most widely popular constitutional poll on record. But sometimes young fellows have short memories and need a little jogging up, and I shall have something to do about that. It is shameful that one in high office should make a political football of depleted lives and poverty in the twilight of life. Every person within the age scale who is not legally disqualified should receive this social insurance, for such it is, rather than a pension. Allred's callous neglect of the old people of Texas is outrageous! He should shudder to be alone with his conscience.

Dallas Trippers Present Program At Cisco Friday

It was a tired group of 102 Dallas business men and entertainers who paused in Cisco an hour and 15 minutes Friday afternoon on the 35th annual Dallas business tour, but the group gave Cisco a splendid program, amplified to a large crowd of Ciscoans by means of two loud speakers.

A group of chamber of commerce directors headed by President R. L. Ponsler and Secretary Spencer greeted the visitors at the station. Behind the Dallas band the Dallasites, dressed in brown "dusters" paraded to the chamber of commerce office where E. F. Anderson, master of ceremonies, presented the program of music, songs and novelty numbers. F. D. Wright greeted the trippers in behalf of Cisco and invited them to visit Lake Cisco.

during which the entertainers had worked from 8 a. m. to 12 p. m. each night, made a stop at Eastland before going back to Dallas to reach there at 8:30 Friday night.

Ciscoans, expecting to see Jimmy Jefferies of Station WFAA, were disappointed because the popular announcer had been required to return to Dallas at midweek. W. V. Ballew, chairman of the trip, concluded the program with an invitation to Ciscoans to visit and trade with Dallas wholesalers and to attend the Texas centennial exposition there this summer.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

O love the Lord, all ye saints: for the Lord preserveth the faithful, and plentifully rewardeth the proud doer. Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen you, all ye that hope in the Lord.—Ps. 31: 23, 24.

Like first faint rosy fingers of the dawn Exploring the darkness of receding night, Hope, tenuous, expectant, reaching out To God, foretells the coming of the light. Out of a night of fear, Behold God drawing near. —CLINGEN.

If we seek and utilize and develop the first things everything else will fall into its proper place. "The stone which the builders rejected" completed the ancient temple. If we find the one thing which is lacking in our lives, contradictory voices will be silenced. Discard will yield to harmony, and where discord reigned—medley will prevail.—Halifax Herald.

A New Basis for Valuation Wealth

THE much-maligned system of installment-selling is logically defended as the partner of mass production by Albert E. Haase, writing in Printer's Ink. The system has been appropriated by the federal housing administration, he reminds, and it is well adapted to the present needs and requirements of the building industry. Installment selling has been the chief reason for the development of mass production in this country, he explains, and mass production has made possible the selling of products at figures cheap enough to place them within the reach of most families thereby creating a higher standard of living than is found in the other parts of the world. The system has distributed wealth over a larger part of the population, while it has stimulated markets which have in turn stimulated greater production and greater employment.

MR. HAASE makes the explanation that a perceptible change has taken place over the past twenty years in the method of evaluating wealth. "Manufacturing," he says, "is coming to be evaluated less and less upon capital wealth per se, and more and more upon sales potential. Public wealth is becoming to be less a matter of capital worth than of wealth-in-use."

THAT condition, which explains a more active society and a lessening influence of the traditionally rich families existing upon accumulations of money, provides a distinctly different viewpoint from which to regard social and economic progress in this country. The sales effort and the creation of market

SELLING TRENCH SILOS TO EASTLAND COUNTY

One of the healthiest indications that agriculture in Eastland county is coming back into its own is the thorough selling of modern desire through effective advertising are coming to be more and more important as pillars of industry. The manufacturer with the big plant may be rich today because the capacity of his plant is taxed by a market demand for his product. Tomorrow that plant may become a liability and himself a poor man because the demand has ceased. The stimulation of consumption through sales and advertising effort and by the constant improvement of the article or service produced are coming to be more and more vital to the stability of investments. Installment selling simply broadens out the field for cultivation.

The Homeseeker Can Choose

THE Dallas News remarks editorially that the expansion of the average American city is similar to the growth of a tree with successive rings of population spreading out successively one beyond another. It suggests that this is due either to a negligent or pennywise landlordism which allows central tenements to depreciate below desirable living conditions on account of low rents. Another tendency should be mentioned, of which the Dallas News' suggestion is a manifestation. That is the normal desire of the human being to live in freedom and sunlight—close to nature, if you please. Congestion in cities is the result of the struggle for a living, which comes first on the program of man's endeavors by the pressure of economic exigency. The elevator made possible the congestion of today by eliminating stairs and adding numerous stories to a single floor, thus multiplying a space. Now the automobile and swift vehicular transportation are not only making the handling of traffic in these congested centers easier, but it is tending to eliminate the congestion itself by making it just as convenient and infinitely more pleasant to conduct business over a mile of distance as over a few feet.

THAT tendency finding satisfaction in modern society is gradually placing emphasis upon the smaller towns as home centers, a fact which summons attention to the comparative desirability of these communities for living. The art of living and genuine beauty and satisfaction in surroundings are becoming more and more possible of realization in these communities as compared with larger centers.

CISCO stands, we believe, not only in happy relation to that opportunity in respect to the metropolitan development of Texas' centers of business, but it possesses in natural and developed advantages a superior equipment for taking advantage of this tendency. But the demand of beautification, as well as convenience, must be met. The home seeker is today a more critical individual. He has a variety of choice.

Keeping Qualified

THERE were 4,556 votes cast in the election to legalize beer in Eastland county last Saturday. This figure compares well with the potential vote, especially for a special election. There have been 7014 poll taxes paid in the county, according to the tabulation of the county tax collector, and on the assumption that the total potential vote qualified at this time is approximately 9,000, it may be seen that 50 per cent of the voting populace participated in the election. This is in line with the usual voting record of the county.

IF the special election had come in an off-political year the result would have been meager. The tendency of the citizen to neglect the responsibility of qualifying him to go to the polls in these off years is marked. The beer election is demonstration of the need of the voter to be ready to guard and exercise his right of franchise at all times. He never can be sure when some issue of vital interest to his city, county or state will arise to demand his expression.

methods of farming. Of these, terracing and trench silos are taking leading roles in the farm programs that are being promulgated by the county agents and their assistants.

It was only to be expected that those whose duties are to give instructions in modern methods of farm programs and domestic economy (home demonstration), would take the lead for better farming. But this fact is not the inspiration of the thought I am trying to convey in this story. A more potent and encouraging reason that causes my predictions that future farming in Eastland county will be conducted on advanced diversification, as well as better home surroundings, are really selling the doctrine to the farmers, farm boys, and the homemakers, both women and girls. The fact that the preachment of better farming methods is soaking in on the rural folk—those who know and understand the practical side of farming and farm life—is reflected in the attentive attitude manifested by these people whenever a lecture is given on the modern programs.

This was especially noticeable when representatives of the Western Produce people were here to tell our people the benefits to be derived from milk and dairy products, with the attendant improvement of their dairy herds and more scientific feeding and breeding. There was not a single inattentive man or woman in the large and representative audience.

That the doctrine of better farming, stock-raising, etc., is further reflected in the enthusiasm manifested by the boys and girls clubs of the county, the FFA, 4-H, stock judging and other ju-

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

A Chance for the Visiting Angel

By IRVIN S. COBB

WHEN William Travers Jerome was District Attorney of New York he started a crusade of prosecutions against fortune tellers, soothsayers and fake mediums, who at that time infested parts of Manhattan and in numbers. A county detective named Al Thomas, a husky person with a wit of his own, was detailed to the job of securing evidence against three offenders and then arresting them. In pursuance of his object Thomas called upon a so-called crystalizer, pretending that he wanted a reading. The faker ushered the policeman into a dimly lit room. There he sat Thomas down at a table and taking a seat on the opposite side he took Thomas' brawny left hand palm upward in one of his own hands. Then seemingly he began to drift into a trance. His eyes dropped, head nodded, then at length his lips moved framing words. "A shape is hovering over me," he stated in rapt tones. "It draws near and yet nearer—it is an angel!" "Fine and dandy," broke in the impious tones of Detective Thomas; "said angel is a pal of yours you'd better fetch him along with you to tip the bail money. Because you're pinched!" (American News Features, Inc.)

venile clubs of the county. At each of these meetings appear representatives of the county agent, the home demonstration agent and the vocational agricultural instructors. At each of these meetings some subject is chosen on which the members are given instructions, of which reports are sent to the Cisco Press. These clubs elect a reporter, and the written reports all well arranged, which the Press willingly publishes. But they reflect more than merely well-prepared reports. They show the club members are taking an interest in the work, and appreciate the instructions given.

Soil Conservation

Soil conservation is assuming more importance than has ever previously been the case in Eastland county. The instructions on terracing and cultivating soil-building crops are beginning to be understood, and their importance fully appreciated.

Naturally the increased practice in these advanced programs will redound to the betterment and conservation of the soil of the county as a whole, as the more farmers who adopt such programs increased numbers will be added, as better methods of any kind of endeavor are contagious. If the present good work is continued the fertility of Eastland county farms will be vastly increased, and those who adopt the modern methods of cultivating their lands will be proportionately rewarded by increased yields, and better live-stock. The establishment of milk routes and a buying station in Cisco by the Western Produce company, I believe, will add materially to farm prosperity in the Cisco country.

LEAGUE HAS FAILED

Apparently the League of Nations has collapsed. Those great things that were expected of this court of last resort to promote "Peace on earth and good will toward men," has entirely failed. So far as accomplishing its purposes it has really proven a veritable boomerang. Only one major country—Great Britain—is giving the League that wholehearted support that its covenants prescribe. Of course Great Britain has the support of several of the smaller nations, who are signatories to its covenants, but Germany has withdrawn entirely, and so far as enforcing its decree Japan, Austria and even France are negligent. True, Russia is not raising a fuss about the violations of the covenants of the League, but she will remain faithful, probably, so long as the Russo-Franco alliance is perpetuated. Should that alliance fail it is probable Russian support would become luke-warm. Italy is in open revolt.

But the apparent collapse cannot be said to surprise anyone. As long as the greed and avarice of man for aggression and power exists it will hardly be possible for a League of Nations to exist under the covenants promulgated. So long as ambitious leaders are permitted to regard treaties—contracts between nations—as mere scraps of paper, there can be no Utopian world. And many statesmen of the United States worked and fought to have America to become one of the League of Nations signatories. President Wilson exercised the great influence of the presidency to bring America into the League, and President Wilson and his friends would have succeeded but for the stubborn opposition of Jim Reed, senator from Missouri; William E. Borah, Utah senator, and others of that stalwart American type, who threw their influence into the breach and checked the flow of approval that at one time seemed destined to draw America into the current and sweep this country into that "entangling foreign alliance" that would have proved most embarrassing at this time. There are probably several rea-yet avenge his servants, and send the "little rains" and strengthen the arm of Ethiopia to wage their guerrilla warfare on the fascist far-flung and widely-scattered lines, which may yet save a defenseless people from the aggression of a powerful modern army of invading foes. Should this come to pass the God of nations will have accomplished what the signatory nations of the League, and the League of nations, through their impotency, refused to do.

1900 Model Schacht Two-Lunger Here On Wheezy Jaunt Across Country

Blubbering its way across the southwest on the power of two lungs, one of the strangest vehicles of the automobile age paused in Cisco for a few minutes Saturday and then backed out and bumbled on its slow journey to Dallas and the Texas centennial. At the wheel of the strange craft, a 1900 model Schacht Runabout, bearded and sleepy, but Irish for all that, was Paul Hubbard, scenic artist and cartoonist who hails from San Jose, Cal., but originated in Bowie, Texas. Trailing behind the lumbering machine, whose engine is in the rear and antedates modern gasoline, was a canvas house mounted on a couple of motorcycle wheels.

Hubbard cranks the engine, which burns crude oil, with a handle at the rear, like twisting the tail of a bull. The two-cylinder motor develops seven horse power and is geared for six speeds ahead. It can attain a top speed of 15 miles per hour and it travels 35 miles on a gallon of fuel.

The long trip from San Francisco, Cal., to Dallas—a trip which a glance at the machine will convince required an uncommon temerity—is being financed by Hubbard through the sale of his drawings and paintings en route.

He had little time to spend in Cisco during daylight. "I want to get somewhere," he said. "I had only a couple of hours sleep last night and I'm tired."

MILK ROUTES ARE STARTED FROM CISCO

Although hampered by the rain which fell Monday night, the milk market for Cisco farmers opened today with two trucks making their first runs.

W. Atchison, local agent for the Western Produce company, told the Daily Press Tuesday that the Scranton route would begin this week and that four other routes would be started as soon as possible.

The routes which began this morning were numbers two and three, the Dothan and the Cook-Romney routes.

Atchison said that about 500 pounds of milk was brought to Cisco for transportation to the company's cheese factory at Abilene today.

"That's only our first day, with two trucks working, though," he said. He had previously expressed the view that the milk routes would be able to collect about 300 gallons daily inside of a week, about five times the amount brought in today.

Atchison pointed out that little milk was expected the first day, especially in view of the rain last night.

Work of landscaping the north side of the Cisco swimming pool, is going forward in connection with the beautification program for the Cisco resort.

Instead of terracing the land, the workmen are having the landscaping follow the natural contour of the land, smoothing and sodding it.

When this work is complete the landscaping will extend entirely around the pool and will enable Cisco to present a beautiful park area about the pool when the swimming season is formally opened for the summer crowds.

Pension Checks May Be Sent To Aged By June 1

AUSTIN, April 23. (P)—Needy old people in Texas today saw prospect of receiving their first pension checks June 1. Under the old age assistance act the payments must start July 1.

Orville Carpenter, pension director, was en route to Austin from Washington where Tuesday he secured formal approval of the Texas set-up from the Federal security board. That approval carries with it the agreement that the federal government will match dollar for dollar whatever old age assistance the state gives.

How much the initial pensions will be can not be known until the 160,000 applications have been shifted and the May report is made on income of the state liquor control board.

Three fourths of state revenue from liquor go to an old age assistance fund. On April 15 that income amounted to $2,401,000. It has been estimated unofficially that initial pension payment might be $9 a month.

It was known here that Director Carpenter had set June 1 as his goal in an attempt to speed payments under the old age assistance act. At pension headquarters it was not known if that could be accomplished. The act permits a month more to elapse before payments start.

Only needy may be paid under the act. The provision requires an investigation of all applicants. There are also many persons excluded by the terms of the act. These exclusions are based on length of residence in the state, property holdings and other income.

Director Carpenter telephoned Gov. James V. Allred that federal security board members had praised highly the terms of the Texas act.

Understanding

Governor Allred said he understood this included the provision in the act that assistance shall be limited to reasonable subsistence "in keeping with the accustomed standard of living of the applicant."

This clause had been criticized by T. H. McGregor, Austin, former member of the legislature, as unconstitutional.

"If Mr. McGregor doubts its constitutionality, he should bring his suit now," Governor Allred said.

The governor estimated that by July 1, there will be $2,000,000 funds net for old age assistance. This is net after paying administration costs of both old age assistance and liquor control, he said. Atty. Gen. William McCraw today ruled that the five per cent of administration cost permitted under the old age assistance act need not be 5 per cent of immediate aid but is to be computed on the administration and amount of aid to Sept. 1, 1937. He held that the legislature contemplated that initial expense would be larger than that of continuing administration.

Governor Allred said the reported estimate that 60,000 of the 160,000 applicants will get pensions is based on experience records of other states. He expected the number to be higher in Texas because the Texas law is more liberal than the law of most states.

Human and Other Nature
By W. F. BRUCE

A belated spring is of all things a trier of patience. March or almost February weather in April is not a reversal of seasons, but it does look like a case of the weather in low gear. If something goes wrong so as to cause one to have to run in second or even in low gear it puts the damper on the trip. The speed is cut down and the journey prolonged until one feels like he has been set back in time to the days of the creeping vehicles of yesterday. He is very much dissatisfied with the effectiveness of things.

Nature has a normal way of at least an average way of doing her work, of getting from one season to another. We unconsciously become accustomed to her ways. Sometimes she speeds up and we find ourselves enjoying spring in January, or having peas and potatoes before we know it.

It has somewhat the effect upon us that an unusually quick trip does. No mishaps, no spits and splutters, no flats nor jammed traffic; suddenly we surprise ourselves by getting out at our destination sound and ready to act upon our mission.

But if the bus or train has already left, or the program is about half over, the benediction is pronounced as we go in, or our friends have given us up and left home, then we get out of sorts. If nature spreads frost upon our gardens and berry bushes in full bloom, and browns the fresh spring dress of our ornamental shrubbery, and keeps us hanging on to our tattered winter undergarments it begins after under to become exasperating.

But I suppose nature, as well as our cars, will average up about right. Delayed spring will train one in patience, if he will take the training. We may be glad if we do not have another "year without a summer" such as the one of a hundred years ago that has been so often referred to.

248 Attend Rally for 4-H Clubs at Eastland on Sat.

EASTLAND, April 23.—Two hundred and forty-eight 4-H club boys and girls, accompanied by their sponsors and many with their parents, attended a rally Saturday at Eastland.

Headquarters for the rally was the high school auditorium at Eastland where speakers were heard in the morning.

Eastland chamber of commerce Secretary H. C. Davis gave the address of welcome and Miss Johnnie Foster, Carbon 4-H member, responded.

Other speakers were County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, the Rev. Charles W. Estes, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Eastland, and Miss Maurine Hearn, District 7 home demonstration agent, of College Station.

Miss Hearn cited rules which are necessary for the success of 4-H clubs.

Special guests were C. W. Lemberg, Brown county agent, and three club boys and Miss Vera Crippen, Taylor county home demonstration agent, and a club representative.

How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you should quickly notice an improvement. Continue to apply Emerald Oil until the veins and bunches are reduced.

Moore's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful penetrator and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed. It has brought much comfort to worried people all over the country.

W. E. COOPER IS ASSISTANT GRID MENTOR

Election of public school teachers for the coming year has been announced by the Cisco school board.

Listed among the teachers was the name of W. E. Cooper, new assistant coach elected to fill the place vacated by Clyde Van Sickle, who will become head coach at Little Rock, Ark., next fall. Cooper will come to Cisco from El Dorado, Texas, where he has been phenomenally successful as a Class B coach. He is graduate of Hardin-Simmons university and spent a year at Mercer College in Georgia.

O. J. Russell, president of the board, this morning said that the election of teachers is not yet quite complete. No special subject teachers had been considered and there still remained a few other matters for discussion by the board.

Superintendent R. N. Cluck today withheld assignment of teachers to the various schools until a later date.

Following are the names of the teachers elected for next year:

Teachers Elected
R. N. Cluck, superintendent; Dexter Shelley, coach; W. E. Cooper, assistant coach; Ralph Barton, E. C. Penningham, C. C. Duff, Robert Maddox, Miss Elizabeth Daniel, Miss Frances Bowen, T. G. Caudie, Miss Nellie Yunk, Mrs. Lucretia Irby, Miss Lucille Robinson, Miss Ella Andres, Miss Esther Bradshaw, Miss Travis Watson, Miss Marion Chambliss, Miss Ida Mae Collins.

O. L. Stamey, Mrs. Hazel Preston Bailey, Mrs. Lucille Gragg, Mrs. E. L. Hazlewood, Mrs. Lela Mason, Mrs. James Moore, Miss Lucine Lewis, Mrs. O. L. Stamey, A. C. Bradley, Arlin Birt, Mrs. Graham Connally, Miss Wilma Mason, Miss Mayme Estes, Mrs. Irene Hallmark, Mrs. T. C. Williams, Miss Ruby Rae Swift, Mrs. Callie McAfee, Mrs. R. E. Grantham, Miss Byrd Bacon, Miss Addie Stevens, Miss Fannie Stevens, T. C. Williams, Miss Lucille Spruill, Miss Lucy Kittrell; Abigail Love Haley, colored.

Janitors reelected were C. Jacobs, high school; Ben A. Brown, West Ward and Grammar school; M. H. Spoon, East Ward.

Cooper Praised
President Russell, speaking for the school board this morning, said Cisco is fortunate in securing Cooper as assistant coach. He pointed out that he is both an outstanding classroom teacher and a successful athletic coach, and one who will be a worthy successor of Clyde Van Sickle.

Cooper was a back on the Hardin-Simmons grid team, an all-conference basketball man, and captain of the Cowboys' track team. He is 26 years old and married.

Two years ago Cooper's team at El Dorado defeated the strong San Angelo Bobcats after spotting them a four touchdown lead in the first half.

The board, while praising Cooper and announcing that Cisco is fortunate in securing him, expressed regret at losing Van Sickle. The latter recently accepted a position as head coach of the Little Rock, Ark., high school, third largest school in the United States. This was regarded as a definite promotion in recognition of his work at Cisco and at DeQueen, Ark.

Beer Licenses Due To Issue April 28

EASTLAND, April 23.—Distributors and retailers of beer will be unable to obtain licenses until April 28, according to legal authority of County Judge Clyde L. Garrett.

Returns from the Saturday election still lacked the box at Nimrod with the totals standing at 2,359 wet votes and 2,172 dry votes.

Commissioners' court will meet in special session Thursday, according to law five days after the election, to canvass returns and declare results.

Then distributors and retailers must make application for their permits to County Judge Clyde L. Garrett. After the application is made and posted for five days then Judge Garrett is under law required to authorize the tax assessor-collector to issue the license.

For slicing bread or other soft articles of food into slices of even thickness a knife has been invented having two parallel blades, the space between which can be adjusted for width.

tern Alteration Told By Club Girl

EASTLAND, April 23.—Commie sage, wardrobe cooper of the ew Hope Girls' 4-H club, finds at any slip pattern can be alered to fit her. If the pattern is too short, it can be cut into the waistline and below the hips, and spread to the desired length. To make shorter, the pattern is folded in the places mentioned above. For larger hips, the pattern is slashed from the lower edge up, near the side seam, and spread necessary amount at the hips. Tucks can be made in the same places to make smaller. For comfortable fit, the pattern should measure about one and one-half inches more than the hip measure, says Miss Seago, according to Miss Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant home demonstrator.

New Hope Club Girl Plans Family Garden

EASTLAND, April 23.—If the dirt around the garden plants is loosened after a rain, a mulch will form, thus saving soil moisture, says Mary Lee Smith, garden demonstrator of the New Hope Girls' 4-H club. Gardens should be cultivated regularly in order to maintain the soil moisture, and to keep out weeds. Mary Lee has planned a garden for her entire family. The land has been broken and bedded, and the early vegetables already planted. In planning the garden, she has roughly estimated that one pound of vegetables can be harvested from one foot of row if growth is normal.

H. Brandon Resigns as Principal Of High School, Effective in June

In a statement which he requested the Cisco Daily Press to publish, H. Brandon, principal of Cisco high school, announced that he had resigned, effective at the close of the present school year.

His statement: "Apparently there are a few who think that I have served my usefulness to Cisco high school and to the city itself, and for that reason I have resigned as principal of the high school, effective at the close of the present year. "To the patrons and friends of the high school I wish to take this opportunity of expressing to you my sincere thanks and appreciation for your cooperation during the last six years. I, like all others, have made mistakes, but everything that has been done by me was what I thought the best for the school. My efforts have been directed toward honest leadership of the high school boys and girls of Cisco that they might become better citizens, capable of entering the activities of the world, assume responsibilities and discharge such in a creditable manner.

"I trust that I may always look upon the vast majority of the folk in Cisco as my friends, and I assure you that I have tried to be a true friend to all.

"Sincerely,
"H. BRANDON."

Audacious Chaco Warrior Dictator Of Paraguay, Is Remaking Nation

By PAUL SANDERS
 BUENOS AIRES, April 23. (AP) — Colonel Rafael Franco, most audacious of Chaco warriors, carries on his thickest shoulders a mighty burden in attempting to reconstruct a dictator his war-torn little country.

Installed as provisional president after a revolution brought by post-war discontent had deposed President Eusebio Ayala, Franco announced that he planned to reconstruct Paraguay economically and socially.

He announced a totalitarian system, resembling both the fascist and nazi regimes in Italy and Germany, declared revolutionary party and state a joint entity, ordered other political groups banned for a year, and declared the government supreme abiter in all social, industrial and labor questions.

Favors 'True Democracy'
 The next day he said a "true democracy of workers and peasants" would be his objective, but that "the revolution is not finished and we must govern revolutionarily until it is."

Franco may have contradicted himself in some of his declarations, but he made it clear that he wants to give land to the Paraguayan peasants, raise their low living standards, curb the influence of foreign capital, separate church and state, and give relief to war veterans.

Franco has been protesting against the state of affairs in Paraguay most of his life.

Born in Asuncion in 1896 and product of the Paraguayan military school, he entered the army in 1916. His first serious clash came in 1931 when he protested stern police measures against a demonstration of students. He was retired.

When the Chaco war started in 1932, Franco rejoined the army and became commander of the Ytororo regiment. Leading his troops, sharing thirst and hunger with his men, he became an idol.

Criticized His Commander
 At the same time he broadcast his dissatisfaction with the Ayala government. Paraguayan soldiers went to the war inadequately armed, whole regiments fighting only with knives.

Even when Paraguay began to win successes and later marched across the Chaco in a series of victories, Franco's dissatisfaction with the Ayala government, and with General Jose Felix Estigarribia, the commander-in-chief, only increased.

After the war he was given command of the military school. Estigarribia was made a marshal and pensioned for life.

Franco made invidious comparisons between this reward for the commander and what the government did for the rank and file of the veterans. He became presidential candidate of a veterans' organization and on February 5 the Ayala regime exiled him on charges of plotting against the government.

Just 12 days later young army officers and students deposed and imprisoned Ayala and called Franco back from Buenos Aires to take charge of the government. He used an airplane for that trip.

French Farmers Find Explosives From World War

PARIS, April 23 (AP) — While French and German soldiers glower at each other across their respective frontiers France's shell reclamation mission serenely goes along, excavating unexploded shells from the battlefields of the last war where 4,000,000 men lost their lives.

Farmers plowing in the shadow of the great maginot line of steel and concrete frontier fortifications between Belgium and Switzerland, still come across unexploded shells, grenades and bombs.

Tons of 'Duds' Salvaged
 Eighteen years after the armisce, requests still stream into the war ministry from the devastated regions that explosives found in the fields be carted away.

The war ministry reports that from January 1930 to January 1936, there were 4,320 such demands, that 1,450,000 tons of high explosives were removed and 167,000 tons—too dangerous to displace—were destroyed on the spot.

After the war, the ministry of the liberated regions inaugurated shell reclamation service to rid the battlefields of unexploded missiles.

Excavated shells, handled with care, first are submitted to a "dismantling" test, an operation which consists of withdrawing the fuse, if possible. The operator works behind a heavy, armored steel protector.

If the fuse can be extracted, the contents of the shell are emptied, placed in special containers, sealed and returned to the government. If the fuse resists the operation, the shell is detonated.

Shells of the latter variety—termed "defective"—are buried in a deep hole. Several inches above the interred shell is placed a quantity of dynamite or other explosive material, a detonator and a long fuse. The length of the fuse is calculated to give the operator ample time to run for cover.

Sights and Sounds Of Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS
 HOLLYWOOD—Gunga Din, the boo-boo-boo bull of the movies, brings to his screen career an idiosyncrasy that will probably place him on the list of temperamental stars.

Gunga Din cannot abide perfume. He will let Bing Crosby boo-boo-boo in his ears until the cows come home (begging your pardon) but perfume he will not tolerate. Wray Bergstrom, Gunga Din's personal representative, and John Cooper, the bull's bodyguard, spread the warning as they brought their prize-winning charge to work on the day "Rhythm on the Range" went into production.

They made it clear that Frances Farmer, Bing's leading lady, could be as sweet as a flower if she chose but must never wear the scent of one.

Gets 'Snorting Mad'
 "Don't know what it is about Gunga Din," declared Bergstrom, "but it makes him snorting mad to be within smelling distance of a fancy scent. Maybe he doesn't want the cows at home to think the worse of him when he gets back from his job in Hollywood."

Gunga Din had retired to his "dressing room" during preliminary scenes this first day. A mock section of Madison Square Garden, sawdust-floored for the big indoor rodeo, had been constructed for the occasion. Hundreds of extras crowded the tiers of seats while Director Norman Taurog, out in the arena with his camera, put through a few shots of professional rodeo stars roping galloping steers.

Cowboy Crosby strolled nonchalantly about the arena, milked a cow between scenes to show he could, and affirmed his success in learning to roll his own cigarettes.

 Neither Crosby nor Cowboy Bobby Burns, another actor, will have to undertake any fancy riding or roping, although Burns is plotted to win a prize at such tricks in order to get money to buy Gunga Din, for Gunga Din, in the story, belongs to Heroine Frances Farmer.

In the pre-luncheon shot Cowboy Crosby did a close-up waltz over the sawdust with a steer. He feinted and side-stepped, ducked and dodged, while the cameras purred.

Meanwhile, Gunga Din, unconcerned about his movie debut, rested his massive shining hulk in his private pen, reflecting—no doubt—that few movie stars, not even Crosby, rate a weekly bath in bay rum and olive oil.

Bay rum, it seems, is the one scent Gunga Din does not resent. That, says Spokesman Bergstrom, is because the oil neutralizes the odor.

Billy Rose Sees Frontier Show as Making History

(Special to The Daily Press)
 NEW YORK, April 23 — Fort Worth's frontier centennial is the showman's paradise, Billy Rose declared here today in explaining that his Texas undertaking will make show world history.

"Picture an open-air cafe-theatre seating at tables more than 3,000 persons before a beautiful lagoon floating a revolving stage, 130 feet in diameter, about three times the size of the Hippodrome stage which we built for Jumbo—until now the largest in the world," Rose said.

"Then visualize a circus building—the only one in the United States and the first to be built in the last 60 years. It will seat nearly 3,000 around a ring 60 feet in diameter and in a building about 260 by 200 feet. This will be the new home of Jumbo.

"Another building of even larger proportions with a greater seating capacity will house the "Last Frontier," an attraction that will dramatize the romantic and colorful history of Texas and be combined with a musical revue and rodeo features," Rose added.

"Add to this an enlarged reproduction of the old frontier town dance hall with its rip-roaring western atmosphere and such other buildings as constituted these villages that inspired the thrilling western novels and motion pictures.

"Place in this setting, the Frontier Follies with hundreds of beautiful girls, Paul Whiteman's orchestra, the stars of stage, screen and radio; Jumbo, the last frontier and many other attractions."

"We've had many compliments on the cleanliness of restrooms in our Humble Service Stations. Homefolks here in Texas have got so they expect clean restrooms when they stop at a Humble Station, and out-of-state visitors always make some comment. A lady from Illinois, for example, wrote us that Humble restrooms were the cleanest and the nicest she had found in a motor trip clear across the country. That's fine! We want folks to be pleased with our stations, our service and our products. We're doing all we can to make driving an automobile in Texas pleasant, comfortable and carefree, to make the Humble Service Station a real oasis of the highway. We invite you to drive in where you see our Humble sign, to try Humble service and Humble products—we're confident that both will please you!"

A TEXAS INSTITUTION MANNED BY TEXANS

© 1936, H. G. & CO.

Every year, the Humble Company receives thousands of voluntary comments on Humble Service Check Cards from Texas motorists and out-of-state visitors. These cards tell their own story of courteous, helpful service, of clean stations, of spotless restrooms. Humble Station men take a justifiable pride in these comments from their customers.

Humble Service Stations are carefully designed and landscaped to make them attractive features of the neighborhoods in which they are located. They are fully equipped for your comfort and the expert care your car requires. Humble men are proud of the Stations which they man, and this Centennial year, they're putting their best foot forward.

In a recent study of Humble Service Check Cards mailed to the Company by Humble customers, nearly half the comments complimented Humble Service Station men on their friendly courtesy. These trained men render the kind of service which motorists find helpful.

We make no exaggerated advertising claims for Humble products, but we do say, you'll find them definitely second to none. We ask you to try them in your own automobile; to test Humble Motor oils and Humble motor fuels under your own driving conditions. When you do, we're confident you'll come back for more.

Golden Rain

by Margaret Wildemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning, gently bred in a Pennsylvania small town atmosphere, has become a great success with the people who matter in New York, thanks to her Aunt Phina's money and her own charm. She is even engaged to Allan Hookley, whose grandmother, Mrs. Morgan, is the ruling dowager of the true inner set. Now Mrs. Morgan has asked Iris to come to her house, for an unannounced purpose. And Allan has been sent to take her there.

Chapter 35
PLAIN SPEECH

Allan appeared duly in the blue roadster.

"I adore you," he said. "You set me wild. Let's drive to the moon together, after we've finished with Granny."

"Any moon you say," she returned, lightly.

"I'll keep you to that. I know a lot of pretty hot moons," said he gayly. Presently they were at their destination.

It was an unpretentious authentic Georgian house, behind a white picket fence. Peaceful, humanized, reminding her of home. She said so. "I love your Granny's place, it's so like Persia."

Granny, rising stiffly from a kneeling mat before a bedful of sweet-williams, came forward in a preposterous smock to greet her.

Presently Mrs. Morgan, very much as if she were sending a little boy to play in the attic, said, "Allan, my dear, there are some business papers upstairs in your grandfather's study that I wish you'd go over. I'll entertain Miss Lanning while you're gone."

Allan, lifting a lazy eyebrow, smiled and went. "How long do you want them to keep me there?" he inquired as he passed the door.

"Half an hour," said his grandmother, as coolly. She smiled reassuringly as she turned to Iris, but none the less she got down to business.

"That rather dreadful young woman, Georgia Blair, was here this morning. I have to see more or less of her, as she is on the membership committee of our branch of the Junior League, and her mother and I are on various other committees together."

"It's no secret to you that she would rather you weren't a member of the League, or took part in the Anna Lispenard concert—I believe they are calling it a revue this year. I am a judge of human nature to rather more of an extent than any girl in her twenties."

"I credit you with honesty, breeding and ancestry, as well as your more patent qualities; prettiness and a singing voice and good clothes are easy enough to come by. They interest Allan, naturally, more than the others," said the old lady quietly, while Iris colored high.

"But why do you tell me this?" she asked as quietly, when Mrs. Morgan paused.

"I believe in plain speaking. I have hoped for a long time that such a girl as you existed, and that my only remaining grandson would find and be attracted by her. I have said all this to you because I want to ask for your word of honor that you haven't deceived me about yourself or yours in any way."

This amazing old lady stopped talking.

Iris pulled herself together and answered with dignity.

"Certainly I give you my word of honor. There's nothing to know about me. I haven't been outside the place where I was born, except to go to Philadelphia, a few miles away, since I was born. Your relative, Mrs. Cadwallader, could tell you all about us Lannings."

She rose to go. Mrs. Morgan threw a strong arm around her.

"My child, you mustn't be offended. I'm your friend, and I always hope to be." She kissed her, and Iris, realizing that what she said was true, returned the kiss.

"Did you make a hit with Granny?" said Allan, as they got into the car. "You must be an animal charmer. And now, what about the moon?"

"Things were relaxed and delightful again."

"Where are you going to take me?"

"Anywhere you say, you good little sport."

But the end was something neither of them had foreseen—the encounter at a service station of Dicky and three other of their friends, vociferous over a broken car and appropriating a ride home. Only, as she was dropped at her own door, Allan whispered "Postponed only!" And she nodded.

Next day was one of Camilla's fencing days. It coincided again with one of Owen's days at home, but Iris hoped it wouldn't matter. They were dressed after their swim when one of the maids rapped on the bathhouse door.

"A young person with the costumes, from Madame Phina's," she said.

"Oh, bother. I'll have to see her. Phina's golfing," Iris said.

"All right," Camilla said. "I'll wait for you under the striped umbrella."

"In the housekeepers room," said the maid. Iris entered. And there sat a small stiff figure in errand-girl black. Sigrid, with a devil in her eye.

"Why on earth are you waiting here—and what are you dressed like that for?" Iris demanded.

Sigrid lifted a face which Iris saw was deadly angry.

"Madame Phina sends me to bring down pageant costumes. I come, properly dressed, to the proper room. When Miss Iris has seen the costumes," Sigrid went on stiffly. "I would be glad if I might speak to him. I have something to tell him."

"I have something to tell you, you idiot! Owen's breaking his heart. You're tormenting him to death!"

"And what about me?" She glared at Iris. "Owen talks about gratitude and duty, and all the while he's getting deeper tangled in this life Phina's playing for, with the two of you for pawns. And what do I count, what do I matter?"

"But he loves you and wants to marry you."

"Then he has to break with Phina. This is a showdown. Send for him."

Iris rang; she sent a maid for Owen. Meanwhile she tried to reason with Sigrid.

"If you love him, why don't you marry him and let him go on doing what he considers his duty to Phina? I think the trouble is you don't trust Owen."

"Trust a man? If you still believe in trusting men you don't know what trouble is; you won't know till whoever it is lets you down. I know. I was married and divorced when I was sixteen. A gentleman who met me across a glove counter, and then let his family divorce and buy me off. Where did you think I got the money to buy into Phina's?"

Owen stood in the doorway. She turned on him, icy angry again.

"Owen, I know you will be glad to hear of any good luck that has happened to me. I have an offer to go to Paris, very advantageous. I am selling out at Madame Phina's. I sail next Monday. We are through, you and I."

"Sigrid—" He caught her in his arms, he bent down over her. Iris slipped away—her last glimpse was Sigrid moving from his arms with a cold finality, and beginning to speak.

Camilla looked keenly at Iris. She laid a big shapely brown hand over Iris's ivory long-fingered one.

"You've been wonderful to me, Iris. I shan't forget it. You know, Iris, you're real, no matter what Georgia says. Oh, do be careful of Georgia!"

"Why, what else could I be?" Iris said gayly. "As for Georgia, I am as careful as I can be. But I have to see her along with the rest."

Before Camilla's slow voice had begun to answer, Owen was there, standing above the two girls. He was as white as a ghost; he was as angry as Sigrid had been; he spoke to his sister in a voice she had never heard from him.

"You and Phina have succeeded. I see you have Camilla here. You would."

Camilla looked up at him, a little hurt and frightened.

"Am I in the way, Owen? I was going in a minute—" she said, meekly.

"No, you're just where you should be." He stood before the two girls, his stern, sensitive young face tight-lipped. "Camilla, will you marry me?"

Camilla never saw his bitterness. She lifted her face to his. It looked as if heaven were shining on it. In that moment she was beautiful. "Why, Owen—Owen, I didn't think you cared—" she put her hand out to him. Iris sprang up and ran.

In the days that followed Camilla bloomed. The engagement had, by Phina's insistence—and doing—instantly been made public. Iris was afraid Owen blamed her for this too; the only blot on those triumphant days was her brother's attitude of detached civility, instead of the warm affection he had given her before. To Camilla he was quiet, courteous, no more.

Iris enters the most bitter scene of her life, tomorrow.
