

LANDON'S NOMINATION IS CONCEDED

Through the Editor's Spectacles

Ernest Hittson has become involved in the profundities of grammatical construction. He was wondering openly at Rotary club today noon whether "acoustics is" or "acoustics are" is correct.

Remarked Pansy Crawford, sitting near, in a subtle aside: "You know the definition of ignorance?" We did not. "Ignorance is when you don't know something and somebody finds it out. In this instance, the whole Rotary club has found Ernest out."

Aside from the fact of the rule which I dimly remember of my school days and which decreases that subject and verb shall agree in number among other things, it occurs to me that it is a good rule of the syntax of common usage to serve the most agreeable sound, unless a person happens to be a purist sufficiently versed in grammatical law to defend his usages under all circumstances.

The form of acoustics is plural, hence the form of verb it commands should also be plural. The visit of President Roosevelt to Fort Worth and Dallas tomorrow is an event that will place within the reach of many thousands of people their first opportunity to see a president of the United States.

These areas are remote from the main theaters of national governmental activity, and it is rare that a president or other high officials of the government are attracted to them.

HOUSTON, June 11. (AP)—President Roosevelt paid tribute to the Texas pioneers on the battlefields of San Jacinto today, asserting that "liberty-loving people always will do battle for principles they believe to be right."

Describing the people of Mexico as "our now friendly neighbors," President Roosevelt traced Texas' fight for independence from the Mexican government 100 years ago, saying:

"There are but few spots in the United States which have witnessed events equal in significance to that which occurred at San Jacinto.

He said, "The patriots whose memories we are honoring today were victorious in the same spirit that fired the colonists in 1776." The president and Mrs. Roosevelt were to go from Houston to San Antonio and Austin and from there to Dallas and Fort Worth to take part in the centennial.

In Fort Worth they will visit their son, Elliott.

Kansan Given Most of Changes in Platform Except Constitutional Amendment For States to Fix Minimum Wage Scales

CLEVELAND, June 11. (AP)—The nomination of Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, for the presidency by the republican convention is conceded on all sides. The republican platform emerged from the resolution subcommittee at noon today after a number of changes had been made at the request of Landon.

The subcommittee members said that Landon had been given almost everything he asked for in the changes of the original compromise platform except the plank for a constitutional amendment to permit minimum wage legislation by the states.

The Lions are coming. H. L. Dyer, general convention chairman, today announced that the Weatherford club has asked reservations for 55 persons at the district governor's banquet here Wednesday. A large delegation from Weatherford is expected throughout the convention.

Other reservations were pouring in also, and Dyer said that there would be approximately 50 visiting Lions here Monday night, before the convention opens.

Mavor J. T. Berry will welcome the visiting Lions, it was announced today. Lion C. M. Caldwell of Abilene will respond on behalf of the visitors.

James Haynie, decorating the city for the convention, announced that all the streamers and banners would be in place tomorrow.

The Sweetwater club, in a letter to The Daily Press this morning, said that a large delegation would be present to push the campaign of Ross Covey for district governor.

The junior chamber of commerce, meanwhile, was going forward with plans for holding a bathing revue to choose a Cisco representative Monday night. The representative will take part in the Lions revue Tuesday evening.

Borah Noncommittal

Frank Knox, of Illinois, and Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, are mentioned most likely for the vice presidential nomination, but Vandenberg has said he wouldn't accept. He urged Knox or Senator Borah, of Idaho, the big figure in all the proceedings, wouldn't say whether he would campaign for the ticket.

He seemed satisfied with the draft of the platform, but said: "The candidate is the platform. The fifth session had to be recessed until mid-afternoon to await the platform."

Gold Avoided

The policy of the subcommittee finally left out any direct mention of the gold standard, and made no recommendation for a constitutional amendment for minimum wage legislation. Landon's views on the matter had been obtained at the last minute, but were overridden on the amendment suggestion.

Borah was victorious for a declaration against joining the League of Nations, or World Court, and a pledge to attack the monopoly problems.

Mike Fleming Hurt By Fall at El Paso

From a letter from Mrs. C. H. Fleming, ordering the Daily Press sent to her address at El Paso, this paper is told that her father-in-law, Mike H. Fleming, sustained a fractured hip, caused by a fall by slipping on the residence steps as the family were leaving for an auto drive.

Mr. Fleming is now a patient at the Hotel Dieu, where he is recovering nicely, but where he will have to remain about three months, Mrs. Fleming said.

Mr. Fleming and son, Francis, have been in El Paso for a few weeks, visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fleming and children.

She also said that her little son, Charles, was in the Y.M.C.A. summer camp, which he was enjoying to the fullest measure.

DRILLING PAPERS FILED AT EASTLAND
Four applications to drill in the West Central Texas district were filed recently in the railroad commission office at Eastland.

The applications were as follows:
H. C. Knox of Graham No. 1 R. S. Dalton, T. E. L. company survey, block No. 1,789, Palo Pinto county. Work scheduled to start June 16 on contemplated 1,260 foot test.
Frank E. Green of Stephenville No. 1 J. B. Waddington and wife, three miles south of Alexander, Broscoe survey, abstract 43, Erath county. Work was scheduled to start Monday on the 4,100-foot test.

A. S. Hickok No. 2 Robinson & Co. section 68, block 3, T&P.

Born on a Georgia farm fifty-four years ago, came to Texas when he was eighteen. Worked as a farm hand in Grayson County his first year in Texas, clerked at Whitesboro and Greenville, and was for five years a salesman for a southern clothing manufacturer. In 1913 he began a successful mercantile career at Timpson, which he left to become secretary to the Governor in 1933, where he served for a few months before appointment as chairman of the Highway Commission.

Highway Commission Record

All of John Wood's life has been one of service, but his unexcelled record as chairman or senior member of the Highway Commission since 1933 has been the most fruitful period of his career. It has often been said that he has made the most outstanding Highway Commissioner ever to serve Texas.

John Wood set a precedent by becoming the first full-time working Commission member. He has championed and secured substantial wage raises for both skilled and unskilled workers. He has directed the expenditure of more funds in the greatest road, bridge, and street building program of any individual member ever to sit on the Highway board. During his administration $200,000,000.00 of the public funds have been expended without serious criticism from any quarter.

He is a strict adherent of an "open-door" policy on all highway matters.

He is an ardent advocate for the farm-to-market road program.

ELECT JOHN WOOD Railroad Commissioner

HE WILL MAKE A WORKING MEMBER!

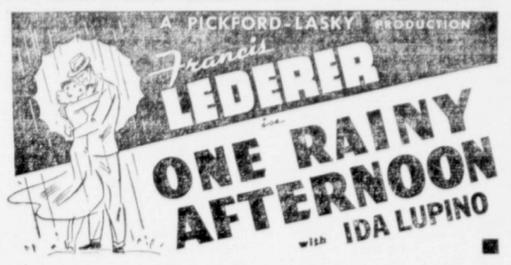

Texas farmers to participate in the agricultural conservation program, it was estimated recently by the state agricultural conservation committee upon surveying reports from county agricultural agents up to June 1.

Members of the state committee further pointed out that the 300,000 work sheets represent about 75 percent of all Texas farm acreage.

They said that out of the 500,000 farms in the state, some 400,000 should be eligible to receive grants.

It was for the purpose of giving farmers more time to sign up work sheets that June 10 was set as the final date in Texas.

Charles McKissick has left for Memphis, Tenn., where he will spend several weeks visiting his sister, Mrs. T. M. Ragsdale.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Philippe Pelerin, a young Parisian actor, has been carrying on a valid flirtation with Yvonne, who is married. Their rendezvous is a motion picture theatre. Philippe, in the darkened house, takes a seat opposite Monique Pelerin, mistaking her for Yvonne. He kisses her, and she slaps him, creating a scene. The gendarmes are summoned.

Chapter Two

PHILIPPE, THE FIEND

Madame President is as good as her word. She carried on. The very next morning she pays a visit to Monique's father, publisher of the "Morning Journal." Monsieur Pelerin receives her coldly. He is not interested in her story of some maniac who bothered a girl in a motion picture theatre. He is not interested in her Society for the per when at the Pelerin home he gets an inkling of the "kiss" episode.

"What is this?" he asks. "Did someone kiss Monique?"

"Yes," says Pelerin.

Count Alfredo turns to his fiancée. "Were you kissed, Monique?"

"I was kissed," says Monique.

"If there is any kissing of Monique going on," Count Alfredo says with dignity, "I should be kept informed."

"Don't worry!" says Pelerin. "The way things are going, you'll hear plenty."

He does. So does Philippe. The newspapers denounce the young actor as a fiend. His fellow actors make fun of him during rehearsals. Only the prompter, Toto, sticks by him.

Philippe has a minor part in a musical play that is doomed from the beginning to failure. Five of the chorus girls have already quit because they had not been paid. The electricians and stage carpenters walk out in a body for the same reason. The stage director threatens Protection of Public Morals, and he is not interested in her. There is more weighty news in the world.

"What if the girl happened to be your daughter?" Madame President demands.

"Fortunately for me," says Pelerin good-naturedly, "such is not the case."

"Monsieur Pelerin," says Madame President impressively and triumphantly, "your daughter, Monique, was the girl at the cinema."

Pelerin is shaken by this information, but not too much. It was only a kiss, and besides, his daughter knows how to take care of herself.

But Madame President and the ladies of the S. P. M. are not to be so lightly dismissed. Descendants of the cooking genius who once saved Rome, they are now prepared to save Paris. Madame President visits the Minister of Justice and demands action in the case.

She also gives the story to all the newspapers. They pick it up gleefully. The Affair of the Kiss threatens to overshadow the Dreyfus Case, or the Stavisky Scandal.

All innocent of the storm that is brewing, the principals of the affair begin their day cheerfully enough. But trouble descends upon them early.

Monique is engaged to be married to the Count Alfredo Demetelli de Pignacelli di Rostignac, etc. He is an amiable gentleman, but more distinguished for his good temper and his family than for his brains. When the newspaper photographers descend upon him he is flattered.

He loses some of his good temper when to quit, too. He has received no salary for six months.

"I haven't paid myself anything for a year," says Maillet, the producer. "Maybe I ought to quit, too."

He decides instead to fire some body. The victim is Philippe Maillet's first knowledge that he has the "fiend" in his employ comes when the reporters descend upon him. They want to know all about Philippe. Who is his favorite author? Does he prefer blondes? Has he ever attacked any of the girls around the theatre?

Maillet turns to his secretary, Felice. "Has he?" he asks.

"Not in his employ," the secretary Maillet sighs with relief. Nevertheless, he decides to get rid of the "monster." No telling when the "fiend" may break loose around the theatre. The stage director intercedes for Philippe in vain.

"He's just the fellow I want," says the stage director.

"Yes," says Maillet. "Well, he's just what the police want, too." And he points his finger at Philippe.

"You couldn't act in my theatre—even if you could act."

It is a hectic day for Philippe. Yvonne visits him to beg him to keep her name out of it whatever happens. He promises.

A process server arrives and presents him with a summons.

"What is this?" asks Philippe. "What do they want now?"

"You answers the process server. 'To appear for trial at the Court of Correction on the complaint of the Society for the Protection of Public Morals.'"

Robert E. Townsend Remembers When Indians Stole Horses From the Whites

By R. W. H. KENNON
Robert E. Eowensend, living in the Cook-Curtis community, is not only the dean of the pioneers of Eastland county, but he was here when the marauding Comanches stole cattle and horses from the early comers and menaced the lives and quietude of the early settlers. His residence as a citizen of Eastland county dates back to the year of 1870, probably the earliest of the present living pioneers of this section. However, he was water bound over in Comanche county for a year before locating in the county of Eastland. Born in Logan county, Kentucky, Bob Townsend came to

Texas in 1870, and made his first stop in Comanche county, about Christmas of that year. He came to Texas with his uncle, Jno. Townsend, who seemed pleased with the surroundings he found over in the adjoining county, for there he bought a house and lot and apparently was satisfied to make his home there. But the following spring took up some land at where Lem's switch is now located. The railroad had been surveyed then, but no construction work had been done.

Later, after a short stay at Lem's switch with his uncle, John Townsend, he located at Leon Springs, a farm now owned by Ed. Tonne, the Remans place, which he sold to Red Schaefer, father of Oscar Schaefer. "I lived for a while just south of my present farm, but sold this tract of land to Bob Snoddy in 1887, who still lives there.

"Judge Black lived on the Sabanno at that time but being elected county judge, he moved to Eastland and I bought my present home from his son-in-law, Cammett, but did not move here until after Christmas of 1900, but I have lived here ever since.

"In the early days Sabanno was a thriving little village, boasting of two or three stores, blacksmith shop, Presbyterian and Methodist churches, and I believe, a Baptist church. Later the Methodist moved from Sabanno, but I think the Presbyterian and Baptist church still remain. But most of the Sabanno folk were affiliated, and still are, with the Presbyterian denomination.

Raids from Comanche

"We had a visit or two from the Comanche Indians soon after I located in this section. The reds gave us some trouble by stealing horses and cattle. Uncle John

Townsend had lost some horses and cattle by these redskins.

"Charley Jenkins and I had been hauling rock to build a chimney, and had staked our horses and mules out to graze for the night. You know that our stake rope was our corn crib then. When I went to look after the mules about sundown they were gone. I found about one-half of the rope of one of the animals, which had been cut by the Indians.

"About this time Judge Buck and others, who had been trailing the Indians from Stephenville, rode up. They told Uncle John Townsend: 'I knew they would get your mules.' Uncle John said: 'Why the devil you didn't tell me before they got them?'

"The Indians had taken the rawhide hobbles from my pony and placed them around his neck, and about 10 o'clock the next day we found the pony.

"But we kept on trailing the Indians, and went through the Carter ranch, located on Sandy creek, just below where the big Lake Cisco is now embouching the vast lake of water. John Carter went with us. We followed the trail across Battle creek into Shackelford county, but never overtook them, as the herds of buffalo obliterated the trail and made it difficult to follow.

"Buffalo were numerous in this section then, and before we quit the trail rations became short, and we killed a beef near Phantom Hill, but since we had little bread and no salt this proved to be only temporary rations.

"These Indians were in reservation at Fort Sill, but would get furloughs to hunt in Texas, and it was on these leaves of absence that the redskins would pillage our stock and cattle.

"My horse became jaded and I dropped behind. To rest my mount I stopped and had unsaddled my horse preparatory to spending the night on the prairie, when Mart Owen, who was later one of the victims of the Cisco cyclone, came back and found me.

"Pursuing the Indians as far as Fort Griffin without overtaking them, we were given our supper the night before by the commander of the Fort.

Remember June Frost

"Yes, I remember the big frost of June 9, 1877. We got up early that morning and found frost on the corn, which was near ready to tassel, but thought it was not killed. Later in the day we came back and found the corn black and wilted.

"After the frost then came the two years of drouth, 1886 and 1887. During those times we lived principally on the rabbits we killed. They used to tell about John Gracy, while entertaining some preachers whom he served rabbit, noticing the ministers forking in the dish of rabbit trying to locate the chicken gizzards.

"Game was plentiful in the early days. Buffalo and deer were so thick they paid little attention to people. Seeing one coming they would stop eating for awhile, but began grazing right away.

"Joe Matthews' ranch was on Paint creek in Throckmorton county, and Jim Matthews, father of Mrs. Tom Blanton, had a ranch in Shackelford county.

"Cattle from the ranches in this section would drift during the winter, sometimes for 200 miles. Next spring the round-up would be held, and cattle men would round-up everything with a brand in this section, and drive them to the round-up point. There each man would cut his own cattle and drive them to his own grazing grounds.

Wild Steer

"On one of these round-ups we found one of Dan Wagner's steers.

It was as wild as a buffalo. We could not get it in the herd, so I killed it, and divided the meat with my neighbors.

"I was an experienced butcher, and knew how to dress a beef." (Here Mrs. Townsend, who was present during the interview, interrupted the conversation by saying: "Yes, he was a good butcher, and that is one reason why I married him. I was sure he would provide plenty to eat.")

"The country was full of mustangs, and they were a menace to the settlers, as they would get the domestic stock to join their herds, and soon the gentle cow pony would be as wild as the mustangs. I have seen hundreds on the land that is now the A. Reich farm, and have shot many of them to keep them from carrying away our cow ponies.

Few Settlers Here

"There were very few settlers in this section in those days, J. J. Dawson and Mart Owen, both of whom later married my sisters, were here. When we were trailing the Indians they rode with us to Fort Griffin. Both owned a bunch of cattle, as did practically everyone in this country. In fact, cattle raising was about the only occupation of the people of this section.

"That was a time before Cisco was. The post office then was Red Gap, with a Mr. Caldwell as postmaster. When the railroad came Red Gap moved to Cisco, and the post office and Postmaster Caldwell with it.

"When I first came we did our marketing at Comanche. Later when stores were opened there we did much of our trading at Sipe Springs. But we had little need of a market, as we lived at home, and produced most of the things we needed.

"Soon after Red Gap moved to where Cisco now is I remember a law suit in the justice court, wherein Postmaster Caldwell was defendant in a civil action, Attorney Laramie, brother-in-law of the late J. E. Luce, was Caldwell's attorney, and a Fort Worth lawyer came out to represent the plaintiff. During the trial the lawyers engaged in a personal encounter, and Caldwell drew his pocket knife to take a hand in the affray, but the constable interfered and stopped the fight."

Mr. Townsend was united in marriage Nov. 7, 1877, to Miss Estella Munn, daughter of the late Major W. M. Munn, who was for some time postmaster at Curtis. The ceremony was performed by J. J. Dawson, brother-in-law of Mr. Townsend, who was justice of the peace at that time. Mrs. Townsend is a sister of our A. L. Munn, and an aunt of John Munn, Cisco carpenter.

"In the early days land was cheap and could be had by simply filing on 160 acres, or buying a section of school land at $1 per acre by paying one-fortieth down, and one fortieth annually, with 3 percent interest.

"Only a few people cared to buy at that price, even. The land was free to use, as the country was open, and I suppose everybody thought it would always be that way.

"I preceded Rufe Weddington to this section, and he was one of the early comers. The Carter ranch on Sandy was operating when I came. J. J. Wallace came after I did.

"I can't say whether times were better then than now, but people seemed to be getting along better. We didn't need much, and got along without buying a great deal of anything.

"Yes, I remember the robbery of the le Vaux bank. My brother-in-law, Mart Owen, was in the bank at the time of the hold-up. The bandits hitched their horses in the wagon yard back of the bank, and left by the rear door to make their get-away.

"Oh, yes, I remember when John Noble was sheriff. He arrested me for violating the quarantine law, when Cisco was under quarantine for small pox. Several were placed under bonds but the cases never came to trial."

Texas Farmers Fill 300,000 Work Sheets

(Special to The Daily Press) COLLEGE STATION, June 11.—Approximately 300,000 work sheets have been filled out by Texas farmers to participate in the agricultural conservation program, it was estimated recently by the state agricultural conservation committee upon surveying reports from county agricultural agents up to June 1.

Members of the state committee further pointed out that the 300,000 work sheets represent about 75 percent of all Texas farm acreage.

They said that out of the 500,000 farms in the state, some 400,000 should be eligible to receive grants.

It was for the purpose of giving farmers more time to sign up work sheets that June 10 was set as the final date in Texas.

Charles McKissick has left for Memphis, Tenn., where he will spend several weeks visiting his sister, Mrs. T. M. Ragsdale.

Robert E. Townsend Remembers When Indians Stole Horses From the Whites

By R. W. H. KENNON
Robert E. Eownsend, living in the Cook-Curtis community, is not only the dean of the pioneers of Eastland county, but he was here when the marauding Comanches stole cattle and horses from the early comers and menaced the lives and quietude of the early settlers. His residence as a citizen of Eastland county dates back to the year of 1870, probably the earliest of the present living pioneers of this section. However, he was water bound over in Comanche county for a year before locating in the county of Eastland. Born in Logan county, Kentucky, Bob Townsend came to

Texas in 1870, and made his first stop in Comanche county, about Christmas of that year. He came to Texas with his uncle, Jno. Townsend, who seemed pleased with the surroundings he found over in the adjoining county, for there he bought a house and lot and apparently was satisfied to make his home there. But the following spring took up some land at where Lem's switch is now located. The railroad had been surveyed then, but no construction work had been done.

Later, after a short stay at Lem's switch with his uncle, John Townsend, he located at Leon Springs, a farm now owned by Ed. Tonne, the Remans place, which he sold to Red Schaefer, father of Oscar Schaefer. "I lived for a while just south of my present farm, but sold this tract of land to Bob Snoddy in 1887, who still lives there."

"Judge Black lived on the Sabanno at that time but being elected county judge, he moved to Eastland and I bought my present home from his son-in-law, Cammett, but did not move here until after Christmas of 1900, but I have lived here ever since."

"In the early days Sabanno was a thriving little village, boasting of two or three stores, blacksmith shop, Presbyterian and Methodist churches, and I believe a Baptist church. Later the Methodist moved from Sabanno, but I think the Presbyterian and Baptist church still remain. But most of the Sabanno folk were affiliates with the Presbytery ination."

Raids from Com

"We had a visit or two from Comanche Indians sooted in this section, gave us some trouble horses and cattle. It

Townsend had lost some horses and cattle by these redskins.

"Charley Jenkins and I had been hauling rock to build a chimney, and had staked our horses and mules out to graze for the night. You know that our stake rope was our corn crib then. When I went to look after the mules about sundown they were gone. I found about one-half of the rope of one of the animals, which had been cut by the Indians.

"About this time Judge Buck and others, who had been trailing the Indians from Stephenville, rode up. They told Uncle John Townsend: 'I knew they would get your mules.' Uncle John said: 'Why the devil you didn't tell me before they got them?'"

"The Indians had taken the rawhide hobbles from my pony and placed them around his neck, and about 10 o'clock the next day we found the pony."

"But we kept on trailing the Indians, and went through the Carter ranch, located on Sandy creek, just below where the big Lake Cisco is now embourning the vast lake of water. John Carter went with us. We followed the trail across Battle creek into Shackelford county, but never overtook them, as the herds of buffalo obliterated the trail and made it difficult to follow."

"Buffalo were numerous in this section then, and before we quit the trail rations became short, and we killed a beef near Phantom Hill, but since we had little bread and no salt this proved to be only temporary rations."

"These Indians were in reservation at Fort Sill, but would get furloughs to hunt in Texas, and it was on these leaves of absence that the redskins would pillage our stock and property."

Candidate For

RAILROAD COMMISSIONER

1. The office of railroad commissioner belongs to all the people and should be administered for their benefit, not for that of its holder or any favored group. John Wood's record as highway commissioner shows that he understands the obligations of public service and can be depended upon to work diligently and faithfully for the public interest.

2. Wood believes in fair wages and fair treatment for labor and has put that belief into practice as a member of the Highway Commission. He has championed and, in association with his colleagues, has secured substantial wage raises for both skilled and unskilled workers.

3. The Railroad Commission, like the Highway Commission, is composed of three members whose co-operation is essential to its proper functioning. Wood has worked and remained on friendly terms with his colleagues as a highway commissioner, without surrendering his convictions or making his judgments mere echoes of theirs. He will be able to do the same as railroad commissioner.

4. Since the Legislature has seen fit to add regulation of public utilities, including transportation, to the already extensive duties of the Railroad Commission, Wood pledges himself when elected to the commission, to give earnest and painstaking study to all problems involved in such regulation and to deal fairly with all parties concerned, seeking to serve the public interest without prejudice or partiality.

5. Texas is committed by its constitution and statutes to the conservation of its natural resources. When elected to the Railroad Commission, Wood pledges himself to faithful and fair administration of the conservation laws. He believes that, so far as governmental supervision of Texas industries is necessary, such supervision should be exercised by agencies of the state rather than those of the Federal Government.

6. The powers and duties of the Railroad Commission are so extensive and their proper exercise is of such importance to the welfare of all the people, that members should be capable of intensive and sustained effort, taxing them mentally and physically. John Wood has been a working member of the Highway Commission, and will be a working railroad commissioner when chosen to that office.

It was as wild as a buffalo. We could not get it in the herd, so I killed it, and divided the meat with my neighbors.

"I was an experienced butcher, and knew how to dress a beef." (Here Mrs. Townsend, who was present during the interview, interrupted the conversation by saying: "Yes, he was a good butcher, and that is one reason why I married him. I was sure he would provide plenty to eat.")

"The country was full of mus-tangs, and they were a menace to the settlers, as they would get the domestic stock to join their herds, and soon the gentle cow pony would be as wild as the mus-tangs. I have seen hundreds on the land that is now the A. Reich farm, and have shot many of them to keep them from carrying away our cow ponies."

Few Settlers Here

"There were very few settlers in this section in those days. J. J. Dawson and Mart Owen, both of whom later married my sisters, were here. When we were trailing the Indians they rode with us to Fort Griffin. Both owned a bunch of cattle, as did practically everyone in this country. In fact, cattle raising was about the only occupation of the people of this section.

"That was a time before Cisco was. The post office then was Red Gap, with a Mr. Caldwell as postmaster. When the railroads came Red Gap moved to Cisco, and the post office and Postmaster Caldwell with it."

"When I first came we did our marketing at Comanche. Later when stores were opened there we did much of our trading at Sipe Springs. But we had little need of a market, as we lived at home, and produced most of the things we needed."

"Soon after Red Gap moved to where Cisco now is I remember a law suit in the justice court, wherein Postmaster Caldwell was defendant in a civil action, Attorney Laramie, brother-in-law of the late J. E. Luce, was Caldwell's attorney, and a Fort Worth lawyer came out to represent the plaintiff. During the trial the lawyers engaged in a personal encounter, and Caldwell drew his pocket knife to take a hand in the affray, but the constable interfered and stopped the fight."

Mr. Townsend was united in marriage Nov. 7, 1877, to Miss Estella Munn, daughter of the late Major W. M. Munn, who was for some time postmaster at Curtis. The ceremony was performed by J. J. Dawson, brother-in-law of Mr. Townsend, who was justice of the peace at that time. Mrs. Townsend is a sister of our A. L. Munn, and an aunt of John Munn, Cisco carpenter.

"In the early days land was cheap and could be had by simply filing on 160 acres, or buying a section of school land at $1 per acre by paying one-fortieth down, and one fortieth annually, with 3 percent interest."

"Only a few people cared to buy at that price, even. The land was free to use, as the country was open, and I suppose everybody thought it would always be that way."

"I preceded Rufe Weddington to this section, and he was one of the early comers. The Carter ranch on Sandy was operating when I came. J. J. Wallace came after I did."

"I can't say whether times were better then than now, but people seemed to be getting along better. We didn't need much, and got along without buying a great deal of anything."

"Yes, I remember the robbery of the le Vaux bank. My brother-in-law, Mart Owen, was in the bank at the time of the hold-up. The bandits hitched their horses in the wagon yard back of the bank, and left by the rear door to make their get-away."

"Oh, yes, I remember when John Noble was sheriff. He arrested me for violating the quarantine law, when Cisco was under quarantine for small pox. Several were placed under bonds but the cases never came to trial."

John L. Nobles, Pioneer Sheriff Of County, Recalls Building of Jail

By R. W. H. KENNON

Another of the pioneer citizens of Eastland county is John L. Nobles, Eastland county's sixth sheriff and father of Jesse W. Nobles, who is now a candidate for the same office once held by the sixteenth sheriff of the county.

Mr. Nobles was born in Madison county, Ind., Feb. 10, 1852, and came to Texas in 1878, locating in Tarrant county where he was united in marriage to Miss Susan Hales. Two children were born of this marriage, one, Jesse Nobles, is the only survivor, his mother living only a few years after her marriage to Mr. Nobles.

He was married the second time to Miss Evrida Moseley, also of Tarrant county, Aug. 25, 1886, and came to Eastland county in 1891. Three children were born to this marriage, two of whom are living. Mrs. Violet Bollinger, wife of Ben Bollinger, of Waco, and Carl Henry Nobles, of Gallup, N. M.

His third marriage was with Miss Mittie Ferrell, whom he married in Eastland, Sept. 9, 1897, with whom he is now living. They have six children, making Mr. Nobles the father of 11 children, nine of whom are living. The children by the present wife are C. C. and R. L. Nobles, living near the home of their parents in the Grapevine community; Mrs. Odel Tucker, of Flatwoods; W. V. Nobles, at home; Mrs. M. A. Moore, of Grapevine, and Tom H. Nobles, living with his parents. There are 29 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren of this pioneer citizen.

Mr. Nobles says he has always enjoyed splendid health, and has had very little sickness, with the exception of a recent illness from which he has just recovered.

Despite his having passed the 84th milestone in life's pilgrimage this octogenarian can and does do a full day's work in the fields, reads without glasses, and is as active as a much younger man. He is a member of the old-settlers association, and attends the annual meetings which are held at Rising Star. I was present at the meeting last year, where I met Mr. Nobles for the first time, and it is worth anyone's time to see these old-timers meet and fraternize.

Elected Sheriff in 1898

John L. Nobles was elected Eastland county's sixth sheriff in 1898, and was re-elected in 1900, serving four years in that office, and those living during his administration say he made a splendid officer. With the exception of being school trustee this is the only office he ever held. Mr.

Nobles told me when I called at his home recently in company with Bill Dill and J. M. Williamson.

Tobe Roberts, T. M. Collier, Chunn, Richardson, Weaver and Stirman were the names of the members of the commissioners' court while he was sheriff, as he recalled.

"The present jail and old court house were built just before and while I was sheriff," he said. "The original seat of justice, where the courts were held, was at Old Merriman. Henry Schmick, as all remember, was the first sheriff of the county. I remember one day that Truman Conner, late of the court of appeals, but then a young attorney of Eastland, walked from Eastland to Merriman. Schmick, who is still living at Eastland but in poor health, carried a prisoner with him who was to be tried that day. Arriving at Merriman there were several fellows playing cards under a liveoak tree, and Schmick handcuffed his prisoner to a small liveoak while he joined in the game.

From Schmick to Foster

"Those who filled the sheriff's office (as I recall, were first Henry Schmick, who served four years; J. P. Shannon, second, two years; Jim Schmick, brother to Henry, third, three years and a few months; Sam Finley, fourth, four years; Joe Whiteside, fifth, two years; John L. Nobles, sixth, four years; G. E. (Bit) Bedford, seventh, eight years; Pack Kiborn, eighth, four years; Bob Skinner, ninth, four years; Elmer Lawrence, tenth, two years; Sam Nolly, eleventh, who only served part of his first term, and resigned; Doug Barton, who had been nominated in the primaries, was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Nolly, was elected as the twelfth sheriff, serving two years and a few months of Nolly's term; Bob Edwards, thirteenth, two years; John Hart, fourteenth, two years; Virge Foster, fifteenth, now serving his sixth year.

"These statements are made from memory only, and there is a possibility that I may have made some error, especially in the length of tenure of office.

"From my experience I do not believe a sheriff should hold office over two terms. I believe it is better for him and the public."

Mr. Nobles and Mrs. Nobles are living at the home in the Grapevine community, where they have resided since he left the sheriff's office, which is just one mile from the proposed Leon dam, and if it materializes will be on the old Hect place. Mrs. Hect has remarried since Hect died, her

Cotton Brings 18 Millions For 13 Year Period

For 13 years, included in a period from 1888 to 1932, with 27 years not given, the value of the cotton crop of Eastland county was $18,278,532. The figures for 1888 and 1891 are from the agriculture bureau; the other figures are from the Texas Almanac. No figures are given for the 27 missing years. This may be by reason of the arrival of the boll weevil, as one cause, and the farmers had plenty of money some of the missing years from the lease of their lands, so little or no cotton was planted due to one or both of these reasons.

Following are the figures for the years quoted, and some years the acreage and lint per acre is given, and each year the price per pound and the total value is given:

1888—10,635 acres, 3,446 bales, 166 pounds of lint per acre, 10c per pound, value $172,300.
1891—23,169 acres, 11,056 bales, 238 pounds to the acre, 7c per pound, value, $386,960.
1900—51,262 bales, 11c per pound, value $2,553,100.
1906—53,931 bales, 9.75c per pound, value $2,600,000.
1909—29,977 bales, 13c per pound, value $1,948,505.
1910—26,935 bales, 14c per pound, value $1,885,450.
1916—6,265 bales, 19c per pound, value $438,550.
1921—1,837 bales, 18c per pound, value $160,220.
1923—12,534 bales, 30c per pound, value $1,889,000.
1924—51,566 acres, 14,088 bales, 22.6c per pound, value $1,831,440.
1925—22,462 bales, 18.5c per pound, value $2,583,130.
1929—23,647 acres, 3,131 bales, 66 pounds lint to the acre, 16.7c per pound, value $261,438.
1932—4,671 bales, 5.8c per pound, value $135,459.

present husband is Bob Smith, and the farm is one of the most fertile in that section, Nobles said.

Though still quite a young man Curtis will be eligible for retirement next year, though he said he hardly thought he would be satisfied outside of the service, and may continue with his command. However, he said he was trying to SYNOPSIS: Rupert Joris, now ill in the Adirondacks, has married Hope Devine an hour after meeting her. Behind Hope there is a mystery, but in spite of the mystery and its many suspicious surrounding circumstances, Dirk Joris leaves Hope. Dirk is Rupert's younger brother. Now, just after Dirk and Hope have confessed their love for each other, Dirk returns from a business trip to Albany to find that Hope has disappeared, leaving notes for himself and Rupert. There is nothing to show where she has gone.

Chapter 36
THE COSSACK
No clue—nothing. Perhaps Rupert's note held something. Briefly hesitating, Dirk tore it open. She had written:

Dear Rupert:
Thank you for all you have done. It would not be right for me to stay longer. The five thousand dol-

HOPE.

Gone without a trace. But Hope must be found, for Rupert's sake, as well as his own. Rupert, Graves had reported that morning, had been asking for her, desired urgently to see her, though he would not consent to her coming on to Old Forge.

They would bring Rupert home the moment it was safe, because of his desire to be near Hope. Apparently he had emerged from his illness with some new resolve, some goading sense of duty, with even—though Dirk's mind veered from such a conclusion—some new affection. Such change was not unusual after violent illness.

Dirk telephoned to Logan who restrained him from going to the Araby to question Fazzini.

"That's my quarry," Logan said. "But I don't question him."
He asked for Mrs. Joris's home address—"It's not likely she's gone there." And said he would report next morning.

Dirk went into Hope's room. Impossible to feel that it would not furnish some trace, some betrayal of what she had meant to do.

One thing was absent—the guitar. It had lain in its case on the floor of the kas. Dirk thought of the revolver, and opened the wall safe. The revolver was there. She had forgotten, or abandoned it.

He went about the room, knocking on the walls, seeking for some spring, some hollow sound, that might indicate a sliding panel. There was no sign of either.

He could not stay in the house, but got into his car and drove into Manhattan, past the Araby. Opposite the Araby was a Russian restaurant whose doorman, dressed in red coat and Cossack boots, contributed a dash of color to the crowded sidewalk. Dirk, driving slowly, chanced to catch the doorman's eye, and that vivid personage winked, almost imperceptibly. The Cossack, tonight, at least, was Dinwiddie.

So they were at work on what, to Dinwiddie, was something of a lark. Dirk could himself see the grimness of the joke.

Logan found Hope on the day before Rupert was to return.

"You were right," he said, as he drove with Dirk to the house in which he was staying, a house in whose neighborhood Dinwiddie was at the moment lurking watchfully. "You were right when you said this Fazzini might not be Tony, but one of his brothers."

"He's not Tony—I knew that as soon as Dinwiddie showed him to me. Dinwiddie bought the doorman's job at the Russian Bear, and I've been inside eating caviar or waiting on tables. At ten o'clock this morning this man came out—the one Dinwiddie says Mrs. Joris went to see."

"He and several bags hopped a taxi, and I hopped another. Looked like he was bound for a train, but I figured—since I was pretty certain she wasn't in Fazzini's house—that he wouldn't go without seeing her.

"He didn't. He drove straight to this house in old Chelsea. She was evidently on the look-out for him, for she and another girl came out as soon as he got there. The other girl looked Scandinavian, or maybe Russian. A blond, ugly and strong looking, with bushy hair and knotty legs. I'd seen her before, coming out of Fazzini's place."
"They got in the taxi with the man, and they all drove to the dock. The man and the blond went aboard the "Porssa," a Finnish freighter, and Mrs. Joris came back alone, on a surface car. I saw her go into the house, then I phoned you. I didn't leave to meet you till Dinwiddie came."

"There's the place. I don't see Dinwiddie anywhere. She must have gone out."

Logan had designated one of a row of modest gray stone houses that must once have been private homes. They were in Twenty-second street now, had just turned out of Tenth avenue.

"I haven't asked any questions in the neighborhood," Logan added. "Don't want to scare the bird away. . . There's Dinwiddie now."

They had driven across Ninth avenue, and had come upon Dinwiddie parleying at a fruit-stall. Dinwiddie, dressed like a decent American, eating an apple.

Dinwiddie approached them casually, waited for an elevated-train to thunder by.

"She's just gone in that new house," he said then, and with his apple covertly indicated a Gothic doorway further along. "Black suit, red hat. Carrying a guitar."

It was a cold day with unmelted snow piled in the street. Dirk had been at home when Logan telephoned, and knowing he would see Hope, had brought her raccoon coat. He got out of the car now, and Dinwiddie took his place. The two men drove off, and Dirk walked on, waiting near the Gothic doorway for Hope to appear.

"Oh, but you shouldn't! You had no right."
He was certain she would have cried if they had not been on the street. He had overtaken her, had gently but firmly appropriated the guitar-case, managing a low and smiling, "Hello, Hope."

She released the guitar-case, but began to walk fast and faster, as if with some wild hope of escaping him. Presently—perhaps because people were noticing them—she let him put the fur coat over her cloth one. Then, as they walked on,

"What right have you to trail me like this?" she asked shakily, her face still white under the red beret. "I told you in my note not to find me. It was easy, I suppose, but why. . . Why can't I. . . What right have you?"

"I wouldn't the fact that you left your coat," he said, "give me the right to bring it to you? It's enough to make you ill, going without it, when you're used to it."

"Very well," she said halting. "You've brought it. Don't come any farther."

"But I've got to talk to you, Hope," halting too, and adding at once, "Don't worry, I'm not going to ask you any questions. I haven't trailed you, as you say, to find out why you ran away—though how you could do it when you knew how I cared, and what it would do to me—No matter. Can't we go somewhere and have luncheon? It's about Rupert," he added.

She looked at him for the first time since that shocked and startled glance.

"Rupert?" she repeated. Then, consulting her watch, "it will have to be somewhere near."

They found a neighborhood restaurant where they sat in a booth, eating they scarcely knew what, while Dirk explained to Hope that Rupert was asking for her, was straining to get better and come home, that he might be with her.

She seemed puzzled, slightly incredulous.

"Why? Why should he want to see me?"

"That I can't tell you. I'm merely quoting Graves."

He paused, and she said, "I can't understand it. Can you?"

"No. Sick men have their vagaries. But it may be serious for him if you're not there."

Presently she said, "It's decent of you not to say it's my obligation to come back, not to remind me that I married him, and all that. I'll go back with you, but. . . It's only fair to tell you I can only stay awhile."

"Fair," he repeated. "It's good to hear you say that word. Don't you leave? Not sneak off the way you did this time, and let me go to the devil, if I wanted to?"

"I know," she said. "But. . . I love you. You knew it. You would have stopped me. I had to go. You would have made it hard."

"Will you tell me, Hope. . . if I promise to let you go?"

"Do you promise that?" she asked.

"I do."

"Then," she said, "I promise to tell you."

"And you're coming back with me," he had risen.

"Yes," quickly. "But not this minute. I've got. . . There's something I must see to first."

T. J. Dean Hurt As Car Overtakes On Brownwood Road

T. J. Dean, Cisco druggist, was reported to be resting well at his home Wednesday after an automobile accident in which he was injured Tuesday afternoon.

The druggist sustained several fractured ribs and Mrs. Dean suffered bruises in the accident, which occurred near May between Cisco and Brownwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean were returning from Brownwood when a front tire blowout caused the car to swerve, turning it over in the ditch beside the road. Mr. Dean was given emergency treatment at Rising Star before returning to Cisco. The car was not badly damaged.

Plans Completed for Stephenville Garrett Rally

EASTLAND, June 11. — Plans for the Stephenville Garrett rally have been completed at Eastland by the executive committee for the county-wide participation in the celebration of the centennial of the county to Stephenville, Texas. The committee, headed by County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, will speak Friday night. Members of the committee, including citizens of Ranger, Eastland and adjacent communities, will converge on the south side of the Eastland square. The motorcade will leave Eastland at 1 o'clock. Stops and speeches will be made for Garrett's candidacy to the seventeenth congressional district post at Carbon, Gorman, De Leon and Dumas. The motorcade's schedule will include the group in Stephenville at 7 o'clock. The Stephenville rally will begin at 7:30. Speakers will include L. R. Pearson, Ranger; J. C. Crick, Gorman; Judge Garrett, Eastland; and others at the rally will include Nolan and West Texas.

LAKE CISCO TO BE SCENE OF ACTIVITY

Tentative plans for a mammoth celebration to combine the Cisco Centennial observance and the annual Fourth of July program at Lake Cisco were announced Saturday by the Chamber of Commerce celebration committee. Inasmuch as the celebration will combine two big events, the committee estimated that between 10,000 and 15,000 persons would attend. More than 5,000 have attended July 4 celebrations here in the past. The celebration will assume national importance as efforts are made to secure speakers of nationwide fame. Congressman Thomas L. Blanton has been invited to speak. Judge Clyde L. Garrett, candidate for congress, has already announced that he will be present and will speak at that time. All candidates for county and district offices will be invited to present their qualifications. Big Swim Meet During the afternoon the biggest swimming meet ever held in West Texas will be staged at the pool. The Fort Worth Y. M. C. A. team, which defeated the Cisco team Friday night at a Fort Worth indoor pool, will compete. Other well known swimming teams will also be invited. Several bands are expected to be here for the celebration. The Cisco Lobo band will be invited to play, as will others of this area. The Cisco baseball team will meet the leaders of the Fort Worth amateur circuit in games on July 3 and 4. An effort will be made to secure the Eastland County Singing Convention for Cisco for the Fourth. In addition several school Centennial choruses will be invited to appear on the program. Bathing Revue A bathing revue will be one of the features of the day's program, according to the present plans. Following the bathing revue there will be a fireworks display. The Cisco fire department will be invited to take charge of this feature. The Lake Cisco Amusement company will offer swimming and dancing as an important part of the day's activities. Plenty of free ice water will be provided throughout the day. Daily Press Want Ads will get the job done.

Humble Boosters Will Hold Picnic At Country Club

The annual picnic of the Humble Boosters of the Cisco district will be held at the Cisco Country club June 27, it was announced today by Rex Carrothers, chairman of the organization in charge of the picnic. Carrothers estimated that more than 1,000 persons would attend the picnic. Plans will be announced later, he said. Each year in the past the Humble company employes have held their picnic at Cisco, where a large crowd has gathered. Neathery Goes To Hatchery at Dundee C. H. Neathery, assistant to D. C. Harper, superintendent of the Cisco fish hatchery, has been transferred to the state hatchery at Dundee, Texas, according to Mr. Harper. He is succeeded here by L. A. Proctor, brother of J. E. Proctor, chief engineer at the West Texas Utilities ice plant. Mr. Proctor, with Mrs. Proctor, who comes from Dundee, will arrive tomorrow. He was a former assistant to Mr. Harper when the latter was superintendent of the Dundee plant.

George A. Davisson, Jr., Is Seeking Reelection to Texas Legislature

George A. Davisson, Jr., today authorized the Cisco Daily Press to say he is a candidate to succeed himself as representative from the 106th legislative district in the Texas legislature. Mr. Davisson issued the following statement with his announcement: Candidate To the Citizens of Eastland County: I think it eminently fitting that as we near the conclusion of the term of the Forty-fourth legislature that I should give an account of my stewardship to the people of my legislative district, and that in asking their support for reelection I think it behooves me to discuss at least a part of the issues I think most vital to the welfare of the people of Texas which must receive the consideration of the next legislature. During the regular session of the Forty-fourth legislature, it was my pleasure to sponsor a bill calling for the passage of an unemployment insurance act, designed to afford those unfortunate citizens of the state, who find themselves out of employment, a means of honorably sustaining themselves until reemployment is made possible. This act I advocated in keeping with the program of a national security bill providing for the repayment of the state of Texas 90 per cent of the tax collected from the wage-payers of this state in the event that Texas does provide its citizens with adequate unemployment insurance. Aided Old-Age Act Believing firmly in the precepts of social security, it was my pleasure to participate in the writing and the passage of the present Texas Old-Age Assistance act. I recognize the deficiencies and inadequacies of this existing legislation, framed as it was by a group of human legislators, and I can do no less than to pledge myself to an earnest and sincere effort in remedying, in the next legislature, those difficulties which at present exist. I think it well to call the attention of my people to the fact that during this past legislature, it was my privilege to support a drivers license law, a bill designed to prevent the sale of worthless securities to the people of our state and bills designed to care for the unfortunate in our state through increasing eleemosynary institutions. I call the attention of the people of my district to the fact that when my term of office began, the people of Texas were laboring under the highest ad valorem tax rate permitted by the constitution. During my term of office, this tax rate has been reduced from 77 cents to 62 cents, a saving of four and three-fourth million dollars to the people of Texas. While we have been making this financial saving we appropriated five million dollars per year for rural aid, or ten million dollars for the biennium, four million dollars more than was ever before given to the rural school children of Texas. Furthering this, we have this year paid a per capita apportionment of $18.50, the highest in the history of the state, and even after this apportionment, the school fund will end this year with a balance of more than a million dollars in cash. At the beginning of my term of office, Texas had issued fifteen million dollars worth of relief bonds. At the conclusion of my first term, Texas will owe less than fourteen million dollars worth of bonds and the interest on these bonds will have already been paid to August 31, 1937. This means that while we were spending five million dollars worth of bonds during the past two years, we were building up a fund to retire those bonds which now equal more than six million dollars. State Finances Sound Even a casual investigation into the finances of the state of Texas demonstrates its genuine soundness. I think it fitting that I call to the attention of the people of Eastland county that it was my privilege last year to write and pass an act to provide for the conservation of the water in Leon river and reclamation of land heretofore devastated by seasonal floods. The waters of the Leon river under the present act will now be controlled and utilized for the benefit of the agriculturists in this county. In asking the people of my county for their support in the coming campaign I dedicate myself to the proposition that the old-age assistance must be fairly and adequately supported, unemployment insurance must be successfully provided, and that the national program of social security must become a pertinent part of the governmental structure in this state. I dedicate myself and my policies to a program of economy, believing that the revenues of Texas should be carefully guarded and wisely spent. I assure the people of my district that I do most earnestly invite their suggestions, their assistance, and their help. Fundamentally, this government, being in democracy, belongs to all of us and each man should participate in it. I wish to express my most heart-and I earnestly and sincerely ask you to support me again in the continuation of the policies which I have thus far begun. Sincerely, GEORGE A. DAVISSON, JR.

GEORGE A. DAVISSON, JR. felt thanks for the support given me for this office two years ago.

700 Eligible For Farm Plan Benefits

At the close of the sign-up on the 1936 U. S. soil conservation program Wednesday, June 10th, the county committee reported that 700 farmers of Eastland county had made themselves eligible to receive grants under the program by signing work sheets. A last minute effort was made to get non-signers interested as many farmers of the county would have been eligible for benefits without appreciably changing their farming practices; however, it was emphasized that these could not qualify for a grant if a work sheet was not filed by June 10th. Monday morning the county committee consisting of R. F. Cox, R. R. Bradshaw and Dick Weeke started giving the work sheet their final inspection before they are typed and sent to the state board at College Station. It is expected these forms will go to the board about July 1.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplications. And thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me unto you.—Zech. 12: 10; 4: 7.

Give us this day our daily bread. Our hunger, Father, feed. The word that comes from the mouth of God. That is the bread we need.

There is a salvation offered by God in Christ, a reconciliation which is not of God to man, but of man to God, and of these messages of grace to a world held fast by its own impotence.

The Edison Foundation

THE world is eternally on the lookout for brains. Brains mean progress. It will never have enough of the Newtons, the Darwins, the Mayos, the Marconis, the Edisons.

SO the country has gone searching for more Edisons to take up where his genius left off and carry on to even greater heights of achievement.

Under the Courthouse Roof

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Patterson, Presiding)

New Cases Pending E. Payne vs. Laura Payne, divorce.

Johnnie Ruth Reynolds vs. A. F. Reynolds, divorce.

Judgments and Orders

In the case of the Cisco Mortgage and Loan Co. vs. S. E. Hittson, assigned for trial in the 88th court, Judge Patterson certified his own disqualifications to try the case, and Judge Davenport will hold the hearing when the parties can agree on a date for the trial, which will likely be next Saturday.

Judge Patterson left today for Aspermont, where he will hear a motion pending in that court, and will go to Dallas tomorrow to hear another motion in a case pending while presiding in one of the district courts of Dallas county.

THE NINETY-FIRST DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Davenport, Presiding)

There will be little or no business transacted in either of the district courts at Eastland next week. Judge Davenport, presiding judge of the 8th administrative district, by the authority vested in him as such, has assigned himself to hold court in one of the district courts of Dallas, county in which the presiding judge is disqualified.

Also, by the same authority, on the request of Judge Allen D. Montgomery, he has assigned Judge B. W. Patterson to preside over the 39th district court at Archer City during the week of June 15.

New Cases Pending

Vineta Dobbs vs. Earl E. Dobbs, divorce and custody of minor child. Ex parte Wiley House and Mary House, removal of disabilities of minority. Judgment and Orders Ex parte Wiley and Mary House, removal of disabilities of minority.

Action approved, and the decree of the court declared the petitioners legally competent to transact all matters, the same as if having attained the age of 21 years.

Mrs. Carrie Durham vs. Robert Durham, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff for divorce, restoration of former name of Mrs. Carrie Judd, and reinvestment of certain realty of which she was invested before her marriage, and assignment of one Chevrolet automobile.

G. W. Williams vs. J. E. Gray et al, action for debt. After a hearing for two days by a jury composed of C. O. Pass, O. E. Starkey, Clarence Henderson, John A. Burke, W. E. Crossley, John Joyce, H. S. McDonald, Lee White, R. W. Mancill, Charley Hatman, Carl Marsh, E. A. Boatman, the court approved a motion by the plaintiff for the case be withdrawn from the jury and left to the decision of the court, and that case be postponed that new parties may be added. This motion a campaign to raise an endowment for that foundation is now under way.

THE foundation would be a living memorial to the great inventor. It would provide annually 100 scholarships for deserving students who show aptitudes and qualities of character that make them fit subjects for scientific training.

Merely Negative

EVEN in the absence of any constructive proposals as alternatives, the strongest proof of the weakness of present opposition to the administrations of our own state and the national government are the policies of negation adopted by the opposition.

THE same situation holds true with respect to the state administration. The attack of Tom Hunter upon the Allred record is purely an attack. The Hunter alternative is so nebulous and so tangled up in invective and denunciation of Allred that the disappointed supporters of the man must certainly have got the impression that his is a campaign of personal hate and revenge.

An Education in Peril

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE original of my fiction character of "Judge Priest" was a certain Judge William Bishop, now deceased. One time, a good many years ago, the old Judge was acting as chairman of a committee of three lawyers who sat to examine a grangling young man from the country who sought a license to practice at the local bar.

gives the defendants the same statistics for May have reached the county clerk's office:

This case was originally instituted by G. W. Williamson, who, it was made known to the court, has since died, and before any judgment was rendered in the case, the court had granted the motion of A. W. Williamson, executor of the G. W. Williamson estate, to be substituted as plaintiff.

Hamilton McRae, Eastland, is attorney for J. E. Gray and Milton Lawrence, Monahans, is attorney for N. B. Gray. Grisham Bros. are attorneys for Williamson.

On trial Wednesday was the case of A. E. Ringold vs. A. E. Garza et ux, suit on note and foreclosure. This case was also withdrawn from the jury and submitted to the court, after which the parties asked the court for a postponement pending negotiations for a settlement.

THE DEPARTMENT OF THE COUNTY CLERK

Licenses to Marry

Bob Glenn and Miss Mahlia Henry, of Moran, was the single marriage license issued this week, but there was posted in the license record a request, signed by Mrs. Mary Franklin, notifying the county clerk to refuse the issuance of a license to Maggie Franklin, in which the writer said she was a minor under the age of 18 years.

Commissioners' Court

The commissioners' court was in regular session this week, transacting routine business. Among matters of importance was the passing of an order refunding an interest bearing road and bridge warrant, now delinquent, held by the R. B. George Machinery Co., for $3,000, of the serial number of 7673, issued Jan. 16, 1935.

Other Beer Permits

Other than those previously mentioned the following have been issued permits for the sale of beer and wine:

Alvis J. Ingram, Ranger; J. W. Brewer, Gorman; Ella Myers, Ranger.

County Court-Cases Filed

John H. Harrison vs. Tom Harrell, suit on note.

Probate Orders

Application of Neil J. Barber, administrator of the estate of P. P. Barber, deceased, to refinance an indebtedness against certain realty of the estate, amounting to $2,000, and taxes now delinquent, was approved, and the administrator was authorized to enter into negotiations with the Federal Land Bank at Houston for a loan of $2,100, with lien on the same property as security.

In re. estate of Roy Speed, deceased. Report of Hall Walker, O. G. Lanier and A. N. Lawson, appraisers, showing the valuation of the community estate, as per inventory filed by Dora Speed, surviving administratrix, to be $14,000. The bond of the administratrix, Mrs. Dora Speed for $14,180.56, herself as principal, and Arch Clark and Florence Clark, as sureties, was filed and approved.

Late Vital Statistics

The following belated vital staistics for May have reached the county clerk's office:

are aquatic; they never breed in grass, or weeds or bushes but rest or hide in vegetation. Male mosquitoes are vegetarians but the female of the species has developed a taste for blood and indeed blood has become indispensable for the full development of their eggs.

"The mosquito lays her eggs on the surface of the water and these will either float separately or stick together in irregular raft-like masses. In a day or two the eggs hatch out in larvae or "wigglers."

"Although the larva is an aquatic animal, it is a true air breather. The mosquito remains in the larval stage about one week and then is transformed into a comma-shaped creature known as the pupa. The pupa has no mouth and does not feed. It remains quietly on the surface of the water. This stage usually lasts two or three days and terminates in the winged insect. The time from egg to winged insect may be as short as nine days.

Individual Aid

"For the extermination of the mosquito the most effective measures are those which aim to destroy their breeding places and thus prevent their multiplication. For the best results both individual and communal effort are necessary, but the importance of individual effort alone cannot be too much emphasized.

"The individual, by attacking the problem on his own premises, cannot only do much to rid his own immediate neighborhood, but the example set will perhaps stimulate his neighbors to like effort."

Texas centennial half-dollar, proceeds from the sale of which will be used in construction of the first unit of the Texas memorial museum, will be on sale at the three major centennial expositions in Texas—the University centennial at Austin, the central exposition at Dallas, and the Frontier Day celebration in Fort Worth.

Farmers of County Demonstrating Inoculating Legumes to Check Pay

Several Eastland county farmers are inoculating cowpeas, peanuts and other legumes to determine whether the practice pays in the county. The inoculant being used is a commercial preparation containing the necessary bacteria which is mixed with the seed before planting. The inoculant used was obtained by the county agent who is interested in learning the benefits and passing the information on to other farmers.

In speaking of using inoculants, Mr. E. A. Miller, extension agronomist, states: "Judging from the reports of demonstrations, especially cowpeas, soybeans, and peanuts, results of the experiment station at Nacogdoches where the inoculation of cowpeas last year gave a 42% average increase in forage for all varieties, it is very important that we lay more stress on artificial inoculation."

The increases in size of vines is not the only benefit expected as the bacteria in the inoculant attach themselves to the roots of the plant, forming small nodules and taking nitrogen from the air, adding it to the soil. Nitrogen is the most expensive element found in fertilizers and is very essential to normal plant growth.

Some of the growers who are inoculating are H. M. Gilbert and H. R. Gilbert of Carbon, Dick Weeks and J. L. Brown of Alameda and W. B. Starr of Dan Horn. The county agent advises that he still has some inoculant on hand if there are any interested.

M., and shows to the court that he has more than $600 in excess of the amount necessary of the funds of said estate for the support and maintenance of his ward and that he has an opportunity to invest this excess fund in a vendors lien note, drawing 8 per cent interest, and secured by real estate and improvements in the town of Aspermont, proven to be worth twice the amount of the investment, and that parties have agreed to execute a new vendors lien note and deed of trust, to additionally secure the loan, prays the court for authority to invest the surplus funds of his ward in said securities. The terms of said loan or investment, to be repaid $200 annually. Therefore the court having investigated the securities, is of the opinion that it is to the interest of said estate to invest these surplus funds, and hereby authorized the said T. E. Poole Talks Entertainingly of Farm Life, Landscaping and Oil

By R. W. H. KENNON

Mr. Poole, with my old sidekick, Virgil Heyser (Brick for short) and I, just back from a short tour of some of the farms and ranches in Eastland and south Shackelford counties. Our immediate objective was the ranch and farm of R. B. Poole, one of the progressive farmer-ranchmen of Shackelford county. En route, we stopped at the ranch of Charles McClelland, who has something like a thousand acres of those fertile lands of Shackelford's lands. Mr. McClelland is one of our progressive county's progressive farmers, and owns a modern home on the highway, and like many who "lived by the side of the road" his portals are open to the weary and hungry. We were neither hungry or weary, but a quaff of his pure water, which soon slaked our thirst, and after looking at his cellar of canned vegetables and other produce, we returned to the modern rock home, and his newly erected barns for the accommodation of his stock, we took up our journey to the ranch. But not until he had shown us his wheat fields and his melon ground that he is going for just such wayfarers as we who visited him Monday.

Mr. McClelland is living in a bachelor way, as there were no signs of a wife to tidy up his home. But at that he is doing so bad. The floors, giving no evidence of having been swept that morning, in a fair state of cleanliness, I had to agree with him when he said I did not think he was a very good house-keeper for a bachelor.

Mr. Charles McClelland has a farm and a modern built rock home, and just why some enterprising woman does not go out and gather him in is not clear to me. He is a good provider, too, for his cellar is stocked with all kinds of canned goods, of his own canning, and his barns are filled with stock feed for his herds, and his acres are growing wheat, barley, oats and cotton, that will insure plenty in the future.

Heyser's Cattle Are Fat

Leaving Charles McClelland's ranch home we passed by Virgil Heyser's pasture, and there I saw some of the finest and fattest cattle in Shackelford county. Virgil, a former member of the city commission, has recently bought several head of white face cattle, and as these animals grazed on the luxuriant pastures they seemed indifferent to mankind, oblivious of the fact that they will probably be rounded out in the late summer and served as juicy steaks for continental visitors. But Heyser said that he might keep these heifers for brood cows, as all are well bred, and well formed.

Heyser's pasture is just north of the McClelland ranch, and the grass is luxuriant, owing to the recent splendid rains, giving abundant feed for the animals that will last till late in the fall.

But all pastures are good now, and fat cattle is not the exception. Virgil only had a few head on his ranch at the beginning of the year, but found a good buy, and annexed a fine bunch of heifers.

The Poole Ranch-Farm

Traveling along the Cisco-Moran highway, which is officially designated as highway No. 23 in the state maps, we passed many other fertile farms where there was no evidence of the wolf of poverty undermining the portals of the homes. Everywhere we went there were growing crops of yellow wheat and green feed, with fields of young cotton ready for the listing plows and the hoes of the cotton choppers, as well as pastures of fat cattle.

Shackelford county folk are not strong for cotton, but most every farmer has a small acreage in the staple just for a money crop. None of them rely entirely on cotton.

This we found to be true when we reached the Poole home, and found one of the prettiest pieces of land that the eye ever rested upon, planted to cotton—not very large. I would estimate it contained fifteen or twenty acres.

The rows were laid off as straight as an Indian's path, and the cotton had come up to a splendid stand. Mr. Poole had his helper listing around this cotton, and later it will be chopped to a stand, and the rest will be easy till picking time comes.

Mrs. Poole Gracious Hostess

I was somewhat disappointed in not finding Mr. Poole at the house when I arrived, as Mrs. Poole said he was somewhere about the ranch. While Heyser and "Brick" went in quest of Mr. Poole I enjoyed a most delightful hour with Mrs. Poole, as we chatted most delightfully, seated on the front porch, where a gentle breeze made the afternoon one of supreme comfort and ease.

And instead of getting an interview from Mr. Poole, as was my intention, I had the pleasure of getting, perhaps, a more comprehensive story from his wife.

In answer to my queries Mrs. Poole told me that their present homestead consisted of 210 acres, and every inch arable.

In addition to the Poole homestead being as fertile as the valley of the Nile, there are four producing oil wells on the farm, with a gross production of around 80 barrels. Of this the Poole interests is the royalty of one-eighth. No fortune, you may say, but a nice little augmentation to their other resources.

Meredith First Well

The discovery well drilled in the Moran field was the R. D. Meredith No. 1 English, whose initial production of about 20, as I remember, was drilled in about the year of 1919, and I am informed is still producing. This was followed by the first semi-deep test in that field, the Tarrant-Cloud well, whose initial production is not recalled, but it is still producing, showing that the Moran sand is of long life and plenty of activity.

From Pioneer Stock

Mrs. Poole comes from Pioneer ancestry, as her maternal grandfather was Horace Dofford, pioneer Texas ranger, who policed Eastland, Callahan and Shackelford counties in the early days when to be a Texas ranger meant more than a white-handled six-gun and a five gallon white hat—it meant intestinal fortitude.

He came from Mississippi via the "kivered" wagon route, and stopped over in Titus county before his coming to Erath county when Mrs. Poole's mother was yet in her teens.

While we were talking, the sweet notes of the southern songster—the mocking bird—was warbling from an adjacent tree. His melody attracted us both. And discussing the apparent passing of this song bird, Mrs. Poole said "we have a number of wild canaries that are taking the place of the confederate grey songster." This was a bit surprising, as it was the first I had learned of wild canaries in this climate, but my gracious hostess assured me they were not rare.

Herds Are Grade Herefords

Mr. Poole handles grade Herefords, principally. Mrs. Poole told me, buying and selling as the market justifies. He keeps a few Jerseys for milk stock, but has about 25 or 30 beef cattle at this time, most of them being of recent purchase. In addition to his cattle interests his farming operations include a few acres in cotton, the remainder of his cultivated lands are planted to wheat, barley, oats, black-eyed peas and other feed.

Mr. Poole will have several head of cattle for the late summer market, which are now being fattened on grass, later to be rounded out on meal and other dry feed for the market. He marketed about 50 head of steers this spring at around $7.50 per cwt, and these were replaced with others by purchase which will be ready for market in a month or so.

Descendant of Henry Hudson

An ancestor of Mrs. Poole was Charles Henry Hudson, for whom Hudson bay and the Hudson river were named, as it was he who came from Ireland and explored and discovered those waters.

Mr. and Mrs. Poole were married Dec. 4, 1893, she being Miss Emma Hudson, of Dublin, Texas. They came to Shackelford county about 1904, and located at their present homestead.

"We wore out one house, and this residence was built by Rev. Isom Lamb, who in addition to being a contractor and builder ministered to us spiritually while the structure was being erected," she said.

Moran and Oil Synonymous

Inasmuch as oil and Moran are synonymous, I hardly feel that I have given as much space to oil production as this story deserves, but shall not attempt to give a history of the Moran oil field. Just mention near production. Just across the road from the Poole homestead is the Jones tract of land on which are 32 wells of the Continental Oil Co., and near by is the John Pritchard tract with 29 producers, owned by the St. Mary's company.

Reverting to the feathered tribe Mrs. Poole said she was annoyed with the ravens, which destroyed many eggs. She told of a flock of these pests robbing a guinea nest of six eggs while she was going to the nest.

But it is not all farming, stock-raising and poultry production on the Poole ranch. Mrs. Poole finds time to beautify her premises in landscaping. She has in reserve many pieces of petrified wood with which she plans to improve the grounds. An attractive piece of landscaping is a Texas centennial five point star, just in front of the home, builded of native stone, in which is planted several varieties of cactus. While discussing the stones with which she is improving the premises she exhibited a stone, of conglomerate formation, which was picked up near the spot where Jackie Coogan's father was killed in Arizona.

But about that time "Brick" and Heyser returned from their futile quest of Mr. Poole and interrupted a most delightful tete-a-tete with a very interesting hostess.

J. A. Reynolds Is Looking for Good Crops This Year

J. A. Reynolds and young son, Joseph, and grandson, Harlin Reynolds, were welcome callers at the Daily Press office a few days ago, and showed much interest after being shown the mechanism of a printshop. They seemed especially interested in the working of the linotype, the first they had seen in operation.

Mr. Reynolds is a gin operator at Scranton. Naturally he is interested in crop conditions, especially the cotton crop. He reported that farming affairs in the Scranton country were especially favorable, that the lands were in a fine state of cultivation, with farmers busy stirring the ground right after the splendid rains.

Speaking of the probable cotton production he said: "The acreage in cotton had been materially reduced, but expected to gin 300 or 400 bales this year. We ginned only 153 bales last year," he said, "though normal receipts were around 500 bales. Last year much of the cotton was 'snapped,' but we can't handle the 'snapped' cotton, hence, that accounts largely for our reduced ginning receipts."

Scranton now has only two stores—the Gaddis Bros. and the Morgan stores—both handle hardware and groceries, and apparently are doing a nice business. Besides these we have a blacksmith shop and garage, combined, but when considering the fact that good roads have placed us much nearer the towns, I guess we are doing pretty well for an inland town.

"Much of the cotton that comes to the Scranton gin is from Callahan county, which is our best cotton tributary."

"The Scranton school is now functioning satisfactorily since they have settled the school controversy, and we hope to build a splendid school at Scranton."

Mr. Reynolds said he had lived in the Scranton community for the past 30 years except the two years he lived in Cisco when he was with the Reynolds Oil Co. "No, I was no relation to the Reynolds brothers, though I worked for them some time."

Mr. Reynolds was here to meet his daughter who had been attending school in Oklahoma. The young lady, Miss Remy Reynolds, was a student of Randolph college last year.

BARE TURK CAPTURES BEAR
ISTANBUL. (AP) — The theory that wild bears do not attack naked men, one of Turkey's popular beliefs, has reportedly been verified by a laborer at Bartin, Anatolia, who disrobed, entered the bear's den and brought it out in the open where it was killed.

Second "Skeleton" Murder Trial Is Due to Be as Sensational as First

The second "hanging skeleton murder" trial is likely to be more sensational than the first one, in which an Eastland county jury recently assessed Raymond Henry 50 years imprisonment for the death of H. L. McBee at Rising Star four years ago.

That conclusion came out of an interview by The Daily Press with Mrs. Barton, mother of Mrs. Henry, who is still facing trial for the murder of her former husband. Mrs. Barton, while courteously answering questions put to her, vigorously denied that her daughter had anything to do with the killing and appeared somewhat bitter over the amount of publicity the case has caused.

No Pictures
Approached at her home near Flatwood by a Daily Press representative and another newspaperman, Mrs. Barton quietly answered questions concerning the case but flatly refused to have anything to do with any pictures concerning any of the principals.

"Now, mister, my daughter said she didn't care about having her picture in the papers. She said that if she was guilty she wouldn't mind, but that they had the wrong one in that killing and she didn't want to have her picture in the paper with 'Murderer' over it."

Billy and Geneva McBee, children of Mrs. Henry, whose testimony was perhaps the most damaging to the state's case against their step-father of any presented during the recent trial, were at the home of their grandparents. When one of the newsmen asked to photograph them Geneva retreated out of sight in the house and said, "I don't want my picture taken," while Billy backed away and was as firm in his opposition to being photographed. No pictures were made, when Mrs. Barton joined the children and refused to sanction any picture-snapping activities in the absence of Mrs. Henry.

Another Car
Intimation that the defense probably knows something it has not yet told and which may cause a sensation in the courtroom came when Mrs. Barton accused another person of having a part in the crime. The accusation slipped from her when she was questioned concerning the car in which "McBee's body was taken away." "Well, now, mister, there were two cars in that," she said. "I don't know where they are." The state had alleged in the first trial that the car belonging to Lynn Smith was used, and the defense had sought to refute the testimony on the grounds that Smith did not have a car at that time.

"I wouldn't want to tell you whose car it was unless I knew for certain," Mrs. Barton continued. "Maybe I've forgotten." But when questioned further, she named a star witness for the state, who was not indicted for the crime, as owning the car which was used to transport the body of her former son-in-law from the scene of his death. Date for Mrs. Henry's trial has not been set, but it is expected to be held this fall. And when the case comes to trial, the hundreds of persons who packed the courtroom for the first trial can expect anything to happen.
