GARRETT CONGRESS LEAD INCREASES

Allred's Majority Climbs to 33,816 Votes

Through the

By GEORGE

Returns in the congressional race to date show that Clyde Garrett, Eastland county judge, had received a majority over both Cong. Blanton and Fred O. Jaye in six of the 12 counties of the district and that he received a plurality in one other. He also ran ahead of Blanton in Comanche county, the home of Jaye, who held a slight lead over Blanton there. Comanche was the only county in which the DeLeon candidate, endorsed by the Townsend club of the district, achieved a lead over either of his opponents.

Blanton gained majorities over Garrett and Jaye in Taylor and Shackelford counties, and received pluralities in Fisher, Hamilton and Erath. The latter are the three new counties added to the district in the last redistricting of the state.

Garrett's majorities were achieved in Nolan, Callahan, Eastland, Jones and Palo Pinto. In some of them the lead was small enough to be affected by later returns although most of the vote is in and there is hardly more than 10,000 yet to be accounted for if the district vote is consistent with the history of primary balloting. On the other hand Blanton's plurality in Fisher was little more than a hundred votes and it was also slight in Hamilton and Erath. Stephens county gave Garrett a plurality of a little over 300 votes, so that Garrett was only 69 votes behind the combined total of both his opponents.

Political contests are like football games. They have their moments of supreme thrill and bitter disappointment. It is better, say some, to be beaten by a thousand points than one. There is so much of conclusiveness about a big beating, and there is so much of "it might have been" about the narrow victory. The disappointed contestant has the feeling that if he could just strain a little he could push the immovable margin of defeat into a margin of victory.

Take the race between Clyde Karkalits and Earl O'Brien for assessor-collector, for instance. According to unofficial complete returns O'Brien won it by 19 votes. That is a heart-breaking score for Karkalits, a shuddery one for O'Brien. The latter does not like to think of the margin, no doubt, for fear it might turn out to be a nightmare of some sort and the 19 votes in his favor flop over to Clyde's side of the ledger. Clyde, on the other hand, thinks of the 19 in terms of what he might have done to convert that narrow number against him into supporters.

Lotief and Tip Ross are headed for the run-off in the campaign for nomination for representative from the 107th district. Thus Eastland county has the certainty of placing two men in the house of representatives, one to represent the 106th, which is

Runoffs Loom in Five Districts; Result Nearly Complete

(By Associated Press)
The primary returns today assured that Governor James V. Allred was nominated without a run-off. Allred accumulated 455,781 votes, out of a total of 877,746, from 246 counties, his majority being 33,816; Tom Hunter was runner-up candidate, with 201,272. It was indicated that only a few straggling votes remained to be tabulated.

Thirteen incumbents and one new comer had congressional seats cinched. Run-offs loomed for the remaining five districts. Hatton Summers came through by a narrow margin. Thomas L. Blanton trailed Clyde Garrett, of Eastland. Martin Clys, Morgan Sanders, Sam Rayburn, Luther Johnson, Nat Patton, J. J. Mansfield, J. P. Buchanan, Richard Kleberg, Milton West, Marvin Jones, George Mahon and Charles L. South, are the incumbents.

W. R. Poage, former state senator, was successful. Maury Maverick, of the twentieth district, incumbent, was forced to make a run-off with Lamar Seeligson. W. D. McFarland faces a run-off in the thirteenth district. Fritz Lanhams has a run-off in the twelfth district. Oscar Holcombe, mayor of Houston, and Albert Thomas will be in a run-off in the eighth district.

Reports by Bob Barker, secretary of the senate, indicated that five state senate veterans were nominated.

Senators Burns of Huntsville, Nelson of Tahoka, pace of Tyler, Collie of Eastland, and Small of Amarillo were renominated. Martin of Hillsboro and Hornsby of Austin, were defeated. Houghton Brownlee of Austin, succeeds Hornsby. Pete Harris of Hills-

Court Refuses To Stop Inquiry Of Investments

WASHINGTON, July 27. (AP)—Justice Oscar Luring of the District of Columbia federal court, refused today to issue a temporary order forbidding the Securities and Exchange commission to investigate investments trusts. The action came after the commission recessed public hearings on the investment inquiry pending the outcome of legal efforts to block them.

The judge set the hearing for August 5. David Schenker, commission attorney, said the investigation would proceed today.

Clements Denies He Will Quit Race

Joe Clements, who will contest Arch Bint in the run-off for commissioner of Precinct No. 4, emphatically denied a rumor which today said he intended to withdraw from the race.

Mr. Clements declared he was in the race to the end. He said he would have a statement to make in a day or two.

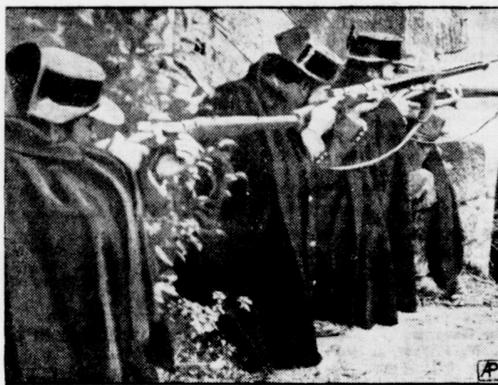

Judge J. E. Hickman of Austin, visited in Eastland and Cisco Sunday.

Mrs. L. C. Moore and daughter, Salina, who have been visiting relatives in Moran, have returned home.

Plans Made for F.F.A. Encampment in August

Plans were being shaped today for the annual Tri-district Future Farmers encampment to be held at Lake Cisco August 6, 7, and 8.

T. G. Caudie, sponsor of the two Cisco F. F. A. chapters and host-director of the camp, announced the directors who will have charge of the various events, and said arrangements were being made to accommodate the crowd of boys who will begin arriving from all parts of west Texas August 6.

The kitchen and "mess hall" of the camp will be in sections of the dam at Lake Cisco, where the boys will be protected from rain and where the temperature remains constant, due to the water

THREE BIG CHANGES ARE SEEN IN LATE COUNTY VOTE RESULTS

O'BRIEN WINS; LOTIEF LEADS IN NEW TALLY

Woods and Hill Will Enter Runoff For County Sheriff

With election returns from the county virtually complete, it appeared today that final results of at least three races will be materially changed from these tabulated early Sunday morning.

With returns complete on the county tax assessor-collector's race, C. H. Earl O'Brien was leading by 19 votes. Previously C. S. Karkalits had been shown to have a 671 majority, but late returns from the south part of the county placed O'Brien in the lead.

State Representative Cecil A. Lotief, trailing his two opponents in early returns Saturday night, jumped into a considerable lead as Eastland county votes poured in, giving him a substantial margin over Tip Ross, who had the edge over Ed Curry. The total from Eastland and Callahan counties, with returns from neither county complete, showed the following vote:

Ross	2,854
Curry	2,708
Lotief	3,702

Sheriff's Race Close

The sheriff's race proved to be a hotly contested three-cornered fight, with Steele Hill finally going into the runoff with Loss Woods. After trailing both Woods

Nine Are Killed In Collision At Rail Crossing

HAMILTON, Ohio, July 27. (AP)—Nine members of one family, including five children, were killed today in a train-automobile crash at an unguarded crossing in one of the worst accidents of the kind in Ohio in years. The tenth member of the family escaped serious injury.

The dead are Mrs. Walter Seward, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Schweitzer, their son-in-law and daughter of Mrs. Seward, and two Schweitzer children; Mrs. David Vogan, also a daughter of Mrs. Seward, and Mrs. Vogan's son; Harlan Seward and Patricia Ann Jene-wein, grandson and granddaughter of Mrs. Seward.

To Establish Phone For Injured Lobo

In order to aid Orbie D. Jacobs, injured Lobo football player, to establish a magazine agency as a means of earning a livelihood, the Methodist Men's Bible class has agreed to have a telephone installed at his home and to pay the telephone rent for three months. It was announced this morning. It was hoped that another organization would continue the telephone after that time.

Miss Laura Kittrell has returned to her home in Winters after a visit with her mother, Mrs. W. H. Kittrell, Sr.

Jumps Into Lead

Representative Cecil A. Lotief jumped into the lead in the three cornered race for 107th floratorial district representative today as late returns from Eastland county swelled his total. Previously it had appeared that Tip Ross would lead the ticket. Today's returns placed him in the runoff with Lotief.

ALVIN KARPIS IS SENTENCED

Public Enemy, Pal Get Kidnap Terms

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 27. (AP)—Alvin Karpis and Charles Fitzgerald, participants in the $100,000 William Hamm kidnaping case, were sentenced today by Judge M. M. Joyce.

Both had pleaded guilty earlier. Before was imposed Karpis said: "Jack Peifer absolutely had nothing to do with the kidnaping."

"Peifer, St. Paul night club operator, charged as the "finger man," in the case, was convicted of his part in the abduction plot by the federal court jury Saturday.

Storage Tanks Erected For Oil Test Tomorrow

Workmen today were erecting additional storage on the lease a mile north of town preparatory to a test of the City No. 2 well, which created a sensation Friday when drilled into the upper Ranger lime for oil production estimated variously from 500 to 1,000 barrels a day.

A 24-hour potential test is expected to be made tomorrow to fix a basis for figuring the allowable. This test will determine what the well is actually good for. With the bit only two feet in the prolific upper Ranger stratum, it has been reacting in a manner similar to the actions of the early Ranger oil boom wells from the same character of pay. About two and a quarter million feet of gas accompanies the oil.

JUDGE'S LEAD IS 4760 OVER TOM BLANTON

Runoff Foreseen For Pair; Jaye Ballot Splits Up Vote

Clyde L. Garrett, county judge of Eastland county, this morning had increased his lead over Congressman Thomas L. Blanton for the nomination for congress from the 17th Texas district to 4,761 votes according to returns received at Eastland.

The totals for the three candidates stood at the time as:

Garrett	23,864
Blanton	19,103
Jaye	6,792

These figures accounted for slightly less than 50,000 votes. The district normally casts between 50,000 and 60,000 votes of the approximately 75,000 in the 12 counties. They give Garrett a lead of 4,761 over Blanton, making him lack only 2,032 votes of having a majority over both.

Runoff Foreseen

A run-off was regarded as certain, since it was not believed sufficient votes were out to give Garrett the probability of overcoming the 2,000 margin between his total and the combined totals

Changes in U. S. Legal Setup Are Urged by Groups

WASHINGTON, July 27. (AP)—Two groups today advocated changes in the nation's legal system because it is too bewildering. The American Bar association committee advocated the creation of a federal administration court to take over judicial functions of 73 government agencies because of the great hardship and injustice of overlapping agencies.

The bureau of labor statistics urged the co-ordination into an effective whole, with agencies furnishing counsel to citizens too poor to seek their legal rights.

Reelected

Sweeping aside their opposition in the first primary, the three men above appeared to have received majorities Saturday to assure their reelection. Senator Wilburne B. Collie of Eastland won easily over his two opponents, while State Comptroller appeared to have a majority, as did George A. Davison, Jr., of Eastland, 106th district representative.

Garrett Leads---

the lead had increased to 3,000 votes.

Eastland county voters appeared to be giving Garrett remarkable support, with completed returns from Cisco, Eastland, Ranger and other boxes swelling his plurality. On the other hand, Blanton did not receive commensurate support in his home county, the Taylor county voters allowing him only about a 1,100 majority on the basis of incomplete but comprehensive returns. Prior to tabulation of the complete votes of Cisco, Eastland, Ranger and other large boxes which were giving him large majorities, Garrett received 4,103 of his county's ballots while Blanton got only 1,229 and Jaye 608. In contrast the Eastland county man invaded Blanton's home county to gather 3,252 votes to Blanton's 4,378 and Jaye's 573. Jones gave Garrett a majority over both Blanton and Jaye. Comanche, home county of Jaye, gave him a large plurality.

Congressional Vote

At 12:30 this morning the vote stood as follows:

Garrett	19,495
Blanton	16,425
Jaye	5,703

This represented an estimated two-thirds of the vote cast in the district and gave what was considered a fairly accurate indication of the relative standing of the candidates in the final tabulation.

With this relationship continuing, Garrett will enter the run-off with his 3,000 majority over Blanton plus the prospect of gaining a greater percentage of the votes cast for the DeLeon candidate in the first primary.

On the basis of these returns counties which went to Garrett either with a majority over both other candidates or a plurality were Eastland county, Nolan county, Palo Pinto, Stephens, Callahan, Jones, and Fisher while Blanton was favored by Taylor, Shackelford, Erath and Hamilton.

Hazlewood Visited Old Tennessee Home

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Hazelwood, their daughter, Mrs. Ullala Dungan, granddaughter, Bettie Jean Dungan and Willie Livingston, of Dan Horn, returned Friday night from a two weeks visit to Morris-town, Tenn., the old home of the Hazelwoods.

Mr. Hazelwood visited the Daily Press office Saturday and stated they had a most enjoyable visit, meeting old friends and relatives whom he has not seen since he left that state 47 years ago.

Besides the places of interest in Tennessee they visited points of interest in North and South Carolina. While there they were the guests of his two sisters and brothers, of whom he had not heard in some years.

"I will make another visit back there some time in the future, as it was a very pleasant vacation, but I would not care to live there, as the hills are too close together. They give one the feeling that they might fall on him," he said.

Enemy Puzzling Washington

ROBERT PLUMMER
 (Press Staff Writer)
 WASHINGTON, July 27. (AP)—The enemies of Capitol Hill are so numerous and so powerful that they often transcend factional lines. Frequent who assails each other in campaign state speeches are, in private, the closest of friends.

President Garner and the Longworth, republican of the house, are famed. There have been few in politics of recent years comparable to that of the Texan and the Ohioan. They were intimates until Longworth's time they entered the together until Longworth's though in politics they each other incessantly.

Garner and Longworth are "darned peculiar," says Longworth, "that a silver spoon like Nick and one of the people like me should hit and we tried to outsmart for 30 years."

The advent of the New Deal has brought the two most bitter enemies of the floor of the senate, Robinson of Arkansas and Longworth, into a wheel horse, Delaware, staunchly. They have stormed at each other on the floor of the senate. They are the most renowned fishing in the senate.

Robinson of North Carolina and Longworth of Massachusetts are, respectively, chairman of the power house ways and means committee and ranking republican member.

When revenue legislation is before the committee and the house they glare at each other and scarp as if they were lifelong enemies. Actually each counts the other as a close personal friend.

Harrison and Watson

Nothing delights Pat Harrison of Mississippi, democratic chairman of the senate finance committee, more than to lock horns with Charlie McNary, republican leader of the senate, and they do frequently. Yet whenever opportunity permits the two may be found on the golf links at an exclusive country club in the capital, probably with Couzens of Michigan and Hale of Maine, republicans.

The same was true with Harrison and former Senator "Jim" Watson, Indiana republican, when they sat together in the senate on opposite sides of the chamber. Rarely a day passed these two didn't clash on the floor in a give-and-take encounter. Invariably, however, after the smoke had cleared away, the two could be found in a cloakroom or senate corridors chuckling over the incident.

The history of American politics abounds also with instances of close friendships turned to personal hatreds which have profoundly affected the political currents of the nation.

Bitter Breaks, Too

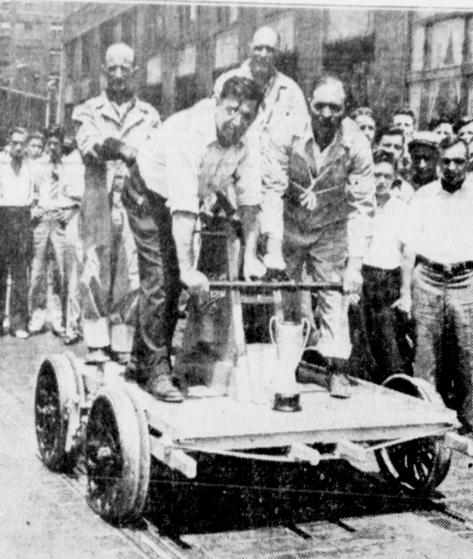

Most conspicuous of these at present, or course, is the break between Al Smith and President Roosevelt.

At Madison Square Garden in 1924 Franklin D. Roosevelt, lately recovered from his illness, achieved new heights as a speaker in his "Happy Warrior" address nominating Smith for the presidency.

Again at Houston in 1928, F. D. Roosevelt nominated Friend Al and then acquiescing in Smith's importunings that he run for governor of New York.

The status of that once famous friendship is now history.

RAIL WORKERS SET NEW RECORD

CHICAGO, July 25.—The crack of the starter's gun and the second annual Handcar Derby is on! Down double-tracked Franklin street in downtown Chicago speeds the handcars of six Western Railroads, each manned by a quartette of hussies. Thousands of noon-day spectators line the curbs—cheer lustily as the Chicago & North Western team shows a brilliant burst of speed to take the lead in this race against elapsed time—groan sympathetically as the Illinois Central, Soo Line, Rock Island and Burlington cars are slowed down by temporary derailments.

The finish! Chicago & North Western first! A new Handcar Derby speed record—one minute and fifty seconds! A loving cup and cash awards to the winners! Second place money to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul team, only five seconds behind the winner. Third, the Soo Line entry—time, two minutes and five seconds.

Such was the excitement offered by the recent Handcar classic, sponsored by the Chicago Junior Traffic club and staged in connection with Railroad week.

The Handcar Derby was followed by a Red Cap Marathon, in which twelve hand picked red caps, loaded with four suitcases, competed for speed honors. To the winner, Robert Hood of the Illinois Central station (shown at right) went a loving cup and a cash award.

Judges for both events were: H. B. Vorhees, vice president of the Alton R. R.; F. G. Nicholson, general manager of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois and M. L. Lyles, assistant to the president of the Santa Fe. E. H. Randall, Chicago freight agent of the Santa Fe was general chairman.

New Science of Cooling Enlisting Natural Gas Throughout Southwest

DALLAS, July 27.—Heat that cooks 210,000 family meals daily and warms some 70,000 residences in winter is now bringing summer comfort to Dallas homes.

Natural gas is forging to the front in the air-conditioning field in Dallas, with gas engine-operated cooling systems already installed approximating 600 tons. Gas operates three representative buildings at the centennial, the southwest's greatest airconditioned area, and with development of a new air-conditioning unit, consisting of a gas engine and compressor inclosed in a soundproof cabinet which measures only 3 by 5 feet, air cooling has reached the point where it is practical for residential use.

"An eight-room home can be comfortably cooled by natural gas in the hottest summer months as cheaply as it can be heated in the winter months," L. A. Bickel, secretary-engineer of the Dallas Gas company and chairman of the national process and comfort air conditioning committee of the American Gas association, says.

Adaptability

"The adaptability of gas and its efficiency for air conditioning purposes is proved by installations already made in Dallas to fit widely varying requirements of users," Bickel said.

Air conditioning systems operated by natural gas engines now installed in Dallas total approximately 600 tons of refrigeration, according to a survey recently prepared by Mr. Bickel. "These range from the largest silica-gel air conditioning system installed five years ago in our own office building to a complete air cooling and conditioning system in a Northwest Highway residence," he added.

The three natural gas air-conditioning installations at the centennial include the Hall of Religion with 42.3 tons of refrigeration capacity; the Masonic house, with 11.9 tons refrigeration, and the Contemporary home with 14 tons.

Three Dallas theater air-conditioning systems are also operated by natural gas engines. The Rialto and the Capitol on Elm street provide clean, cool, dehumidified air through a system rated at about 125 tons of refrigeration. Two natural gas engines furnish the energy for this installation. The other theater installation is in the new Village Theater in Highland Park, which has about 75 tons of refrigeration and is supplied by a single gas engine.

Other Installations

Other natural gas air-conditioning installations cited by Bickel as typical of the widely varying customer requirements which the natural gas engines are meeting include the 275-ton capacity system just installed for Sears-Roebuck company, consisting of two gas engine compressor units. An air-conditioning system just installed for the headquarters office of the Southern Ice and Utilities company is rated at 15 tons. A Ford V-8 motor, converted to burn natural gas, supplies the power for the compressor of this system. The third installation, typical of types installed, is in a Northwest highway residence and consists of a natural gas engine and compressor unit rated at 7 tons of refrigeration capacity.

"Cooling requirements of the average home are about 1 ton of refrigeration per room, with the living room requiring from 1 to 2 tons," Mr. Bickel explains.

"A ton of refrigeration is simply an engineering term used to rate capacity of refrigeration plants, or in this instance, air-conditioning systems. It means the cooling effect of the melting of 2,000 pounds of ice in 24 hours, or of 83 1-3 pounds of ice in an hour. Figuring on the basis of 1,000 b. t. u. gas furnished in Dallas, 100 cubic feet of gas per hour, costing about 5 cents, will furnish energy for air conditioning an average eight-room home one hour."

Complete Air Conditioning

"The complete air-conditioning system is, of course, more than just a process to cool the air," Bickel explains. "Complete air-conditioning not only cools the air when it is too warm but dehumidifies it when too moist, cleans it of pollen, dust and odors, warms it when it is too cool, humidifies it when too dry and circulates it at all times, so that it is fresh and properly conditioned for persons occupying the home or office."

Flexibility to meet rapidly varying requirements of Texas weather and economy of operation are outstanding advantages which natural gas air conditioning systems offer, according to Mr. Bickel. This is brought about by the ease with which the speed of a gas engine can be automatically controlled to meet any load requirement.

Equipment is now available, through co-operation of gas appliance manufacturers and air-conditioning manufacturers, to handle effectively any kind of process or comfort air conditioning job economically with natural gas, according to Bickel. He pointed to the gas engine and compressor unit mentioned above as an example of the progress being made by manufacturers of gas equipment.

Vince Di Maggio Holds High Hopes For Brother Joe

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 27 (AP)—Slumping down on the players' bench at the local ball park, Vince Di Maggio, hustling right-fielder of the San Diego Padres, began a discourse on a favorite subject—his brother, Joe, freshman star of the New York Yankees.

Vince, 23, and two years older than Joe, is a capable ball player himself, and hopes eventually to land in the big time. Right now, however, he is content to perform in the Pacific coast league, and praise brother Joe. Vince has great hopes for Joe.

"Joe's got everything it takes to make good," Vince said. "I'd be almost willing to bet that he will hit .325 or better this year. He has 10 years of major league baseball ahead of him, I think."

"You know, Joe's only been playing baseball for about three years. He only played a couple of games in 1932, and then joined the Seals in 1933. That was the year he established the coast league record for consecutive hitting. He hit for 61 games straight. Joe felt kind of bad when he was finally stopped. He wanted to set a new record for all leagues. Maybe he'll do it yet in the big time."

"He's a natural hitter. He just holds the bat on his shoulder, waits, and then takes a swing at the last second."

"Nothing bothers Joe at the plate, and that's why the pitchers can't dope him out. He hits any kind of ball. Just put it in reach and he'll tag it."

Vince predicted New York—and Brother Joe—would be in the World Series.

"Joe is like me when it comes to writing letters," he explained. "And I haven't heard from him in a long time. But if the Yanks get into the world series, I'm sure gonna write him a letter. Boy he's got to fix me up with some ducats for that show."

Hollywood Quicker Than Camera's Eye

HOLLYWOOD, July 27. (AP)—Even in hot weather movie technicians solve problems.

Edward Arnold has a scene in which he steps from a train and greets the station master at a crossroads settlement.

There is no train, actually. A big spotlight plays upon a train's silhouette, casting its shadow before the camera. A prop man works a smoke pot, and its black belches are fanned over the set.

You won't see a train, but you'll have the impression you saw one.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The Lord taketh pleasure in them that fear Him, in those that hope in His mercy. He maketh peace in thy borders, and filleth thee with the finest of the wheat.—Ps. 147: 11, 14.

Yield to the Lord with simple heart, All that thou hast, and all thou art! Renounce all strength but strength divine, And peace shall be forever thine.

We make a great deal of peace with heaven. Christ made much of peace on earth. Religion is not a strange or added thing, but the inspiration of the secular life, the breathing of an eternal spirit through the temporal world.—Drummond.

Garrett's Lead

OF all the contests in the first democratic primary Saturday that which probably occasioned most surprise even among those most hopeful for the Eastland county judge was the race between Clyde Garrett, Cong. Thomas L. Blanton and Fred O. Jaye for nomination for congress from the 17th congressional district. Garrett's lead over the veteran Blanton which on returns received to this morning was 4,761 set a precedent and a big one. For the first time in his political career in the district Blanton came out behind and rather far behind the leader.

THE fact that Garrett's lead over Blanton has been increasing on late returns indicates that much of the support that Mr. Blanton has normally received in the rural areas of the district has turned to Garrett. The magnificent vote which the Eastland county judge received in his own county is a splendid testimonial as well as a certain indication that the Eastland county man has not lost his hold upon the affections of his home voters.

MR. BLANTON'S qualifications as a campaigner, as excellent as they are, will meet a supreme test in the next four weeks. He is nearer to being defeated than he has been since the 1928 senatorial contest.

Allred's Victory

A cause for gratification is the splendid vote which Texas gave its youthful governor, James V. Allred, for re-election. The stamp of approval which the citizens placed upon his unfairly maligned administration by returning him to office over four opponents in the first primary, is a deserved tribute. Eastland county for the first time gave Allred a plurality for governor. This is a further reason for gratification.

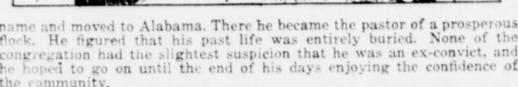

Laughing Around the World

Straight From the Scriptures

By IRVIN S. COBB

SEVERAL versions of this story are current but the one I like best of them all goes like this: There was a colored preacher who served a term in state's prison in West Virginia for horse-stealing. After his release he changed his name and moved to Alabama. There he became the pastor of a prosperous flock. He figured that his past life was entirely buried. None of the congregation had the slightest suspicion that he was an ex-convict, and he hoped to go on until the end of his days enjoying the confidence of the community.

and Jess Noble, Cisco candidate, in early returns, Hill advanced to the runoff as results from the last few boxes were reported. The county gave a plurality to Governor Allred, Cliff Day for commissioner of agriculture, Representative Cecil A. Lotief, T. L. Cooper for county judge, Loss Woods for sheriff, and County Clerk Turner Collie.

The county gave majorities to Senator Morris Sheppard, Carl Hardin for railroad commissioner, Comptroller George A. Sheppard, W. H. McDonald for land commissioner, Treasurer Charles Lockhart, State Superintendent L. A. Woods, Judge Clyde L. Garrett, Senator Wilbourne B. Collie, Representative George A. Davison, Jr., Earl Conner, Jr., for district attorney, and C. H. O'Brien for tax assessor-collector.

composed of the county alone, and the other to represent the 107th, which is composed of Eastland and Callahan. Ross is from Gorman. Lotief, recently of Cross Plains in Callahan, moved his business to Eastland a few months ago.

Callahan gave Ross a healthy vote to hoist him into second place. Eastland county boomed Lotief, the incumbent, with a healthy majority to send him into the contest with Ross.

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Every campaign development emphasizes more clearly the great importance of the roles which are to be played in 1936 politics by democratic chairman, Jas. A. Farley and Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton.

These two roles are as different as are the two men to whom they have been assigned. Yet each in its own way carries responsibilities which ordinarily do not attach to party chairmanship, and which may easily be tremendous factors in the result of the election.

Always a presidential campaign has two parts. One is the public part—the speech-making, the "front," the radio, and the delineation of party policy. The other is the submerged part—the business of organization down in the wards and precincts, the collection of campaign funds and their expenditure, the assembling and instruction of party workers.

Very often in the past the presidential nominee has provided the "front," determining policies and taking the cheers and the publicity, while the national chairman has done the real work of practical organization. Sometimes the nominee has taken care of both duties, and the chairman has been a mere figurehead. Neither of these rules seems to apply fully this year.

On the democratic side it is quite plain that many party workers will look to President Roosevelt not only to take the lead in actual campaigning, but to indicate in all important matters what the practical tactics of the campaign are to be. It would be too sweeping a statement, however, to say that Mr. Roosevelt will be looked to as his own campaign manager. Such a statement would overlook the great responsibility he places on Farley for carrying into effect the detail of party work in specific situations.

In no sense is Farley regarded as a figurehead by those who know him and have seen him in action. He relies on his chief for the selection of objectives; but once the goal is pointed out, he uses his own methods to attain the desired end. And in this the president has given him wide latitude.

Nor is there any doubt that in the realm of political detail, Farley has established a formidable reputation among politicians. The results of his foresight and his intensive private effort were apparent at the Philadelphia convention when such powerful factors as the Tammany organization in New York and the Hague organization in New Jersey, which had opposed the original Roosevelt nomination bitterly, voted solidly for the re-nomination.

Many think important states may swing in November on Farley's ability to keep these and similar big-city machines completely in line for the ticket.

Landon Best As Organizer Among the republicans the situation is quite different. It appears that instead of figuring chiefly as a "front" for the campaign, Governor Landon will take a decisive part in the intensive work of party organization; while Chairman Hamilton, instead of devoting all of his attention to organizing, probably will make more speeches than the nominee. For Landon is not regarded even by his warmest friends as the best of candidate who displays his sort of qualities on the stump. On the contrary, his political reputation in Kansas was established by his ability at party conciliation and unified organization, first as the republican state chairman, later as governor.

Conversely, Hamilton is recognized as a vigorous campaigner, and his inexperience as an organizer led to much private objection from some of the old-line leaders when he first was mentioned for the chairmanship. That he will be an important part of the "front" of the republican campaign is generally conceded, whatever part he may play otherwise.

By and large, it is difficult to recall a year when such heavy responsibilities rested on the two party chairmen. Or when the two chairmen, each in his own way, went more vigorously to work to discharge those responsibilities.

of his two opponents. But the figures give the Eastland county judge a heavy advantage over his incumbent opponent, since the Jaye vote is felt to be more friendly to Garrett than to Blanton who was caustic in his criticism of the Townsend old-age pension plan, whose supporters had endorsed the DeLeon man, Garrett, while disclaiming faith in the Townsend program, took a position favoring more adequate federal old-age pensions. With the 4,761 lead that the Eastland county holds over him, Blanton is faced with the necessity of winning at least two-thirds of the Jaye vote to get abreast of Garrett in the run-off.

See Bitter Fight

Observers look for one of the hardest fought and bitterest run-off campaigns in the history of the district as Blanton fights to win back the advantage he seems to have lost and to overcome the heavy lead given his opponent. Eastland county gave Garrett the expected support. He received a majority of two to one over both opponents with a vote of 4,704 to Blanton's 1,696 and Jaye's 806. In Taylor county, Blanton's heavy vote, Garrett received a home vote, running only 1,200 behind Blanton. Jaye got 591 votes there. Blanton's majority over both was only 573 votes.

Judge Garrett at Eastland morning said he was preparing a statement to be issued to the people of the district this afternoon. Judge Blanton made public a statement at Abilene Saturday midnight in which he said he was grateful for the support given him by his friends. "I was forced to remain in Washington on official business too late to make a thorough campaign of my big district," he said. "Should there be a run-off, I will have time before the August primary to visit all parts of my district. In the meantime from the depths of my heart I thank all of my friends."

Vicious Fighting Renewed in Spain

(By Associated Press)

Vicious fighting broke out anew today in the Spanish rebellion. American and British refugees are evacuating their Madrid embassies. Frankly Speaking

By FRANK LANGSTON

Surprising to many people in this district was the vote which Judge Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland polled in the first primary Saturday, leading both Congressman Thomas L. Blanton and Judge Fred O. Jaye in the race for the U. S. representative's post.

The Eastland county voters had been counted on to give Judge Garrett a substantial majority, but he appeared to have carried most of the rest of the district as well.

The big vote turnout for Garrett apparently justified the judge's statement to The Daily Press last week, in which Garrett predicted he would lead the ticket, except that his prediction was a little conservative.

The sudden shift in votes, for county tax assessor-collector Sunday was surprising to Ciscoans, after The Daily Press had correctly reported Clyde S. Karkalits to have a substantial lead in the basis of early returns. The later tabulations of additional boxes showed C. H. O'Brien to be leading by a margin of 19.

There will be a change of district attorneys for the county, with the election of Earl Conner, Jr., over Grady Owen. The sheriff's race was baffling to many. A three-sided affair from the first, it finally developed into a fight between Steele Hill and Jess Noble for the place as runoff opponent of Loss Woods. Both Woods and Hill have served as deputies under Virge Foster.

Leon Maner, who blames everything, including the weather, on the democrats, told the sequel to his dog bite story Sunday. Saturday he had told how, after voting in the democratic primary, he had been dog bitten. Sunday morning he went out to the garage to get his car and discovered that someone had stolen the two front tires and wheels. That, said he, is what comes of taking part in democratic politics.

Henry Stubblefield, who had built up a reputation for being able to "pick 'em" in local politics, lost caste in Saturday's election. His predictions were concerned principally with the congressional gubernatorial, and sheriff's races, all of which he missed.

A movie based on the life of Tod Sloan, famous jockey, is in production.

MORRIS WELL PROVES BLUFF CREEK EXTENSION

ALBANY, July 27.—Crawford, Groover & Rose No. 1 J. P. Morris was completed in Bluff Creek sand this week for a quarter-mile southeast extension to the Bluff Creek field in western Shackelford. It was estimated to be a 250-barrel well, with a showing of 200,000 feet of gas. Sand was topped at 1,542 and drilled to 1-558 feet. Location is 220 feet from the north and 220 feet from the west lines of the southeast quarter of section 190, ETRR survey.

Offset Started

Following the showing, offsets were started on the west by Reliance Oil & Royalty corporation No. 3, Morris, and on the north by White & Duncan of Wichita Falls. Reliance staked 220 feet from the north and east lines of the southwest quarter of section 190; and White & Duncan staked 220 feet from the south and west lines of the northeast quarter of the section.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF TEXAS

S. J. R. No. 26

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to Section 11 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Texas, so as to provide for a Board of Pardons and Paroles, composed of three members, whose terms of office shall be for a period of six years, one to be appointed by the Governor, one by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Texas, and one by the presiding Justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals, such appointments to be with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate present, and so as to provide that the Governor of the State shall have the power on the recommendation and advice of the majority of the Board of Pardons and Paroles to grant reprieves, commutations of punishment and pardons and to remit fines and forfeitures, and, with the advice and consent of the Legislature, to grant reprieves, commutations of punishment and pardons in cases of treason; and to provide that the Governor shall have power to grant one reprieve in any capital case not to exceed thirty (30) days; and shall have the power to revoke paroles and conditional pardons; and to provide that the Legislature shall have power to regulate procedure before the Board and to enact parole laws; and to provide for an election for such proposed constitutional amendment, and to make an appropriation therefor.

and Paroles, he shall have the power remit fines and forfeitures. The governor shall have the power to grant one reprieve in any capital case for a period not to exceed thirty (30) days; and he shall have the power to revoke paroles and conditional pardons. With the advice and consent of the Legislature, he may grant reprieves, commutations of punishment and pardons in cases of treason.

The Legislature shall have power to regulate procedure before the Board of Pardons and Paroles and shall require it to keep record of its actions and the reasons therefor, and shall have authority to enact parole laws.

SECTION 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to the electors of this State who are qualified to vote on proposed constitutional amendments at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1936, at which election each ballot shall have printed thereon the words:

"FOR the amendment of Section 11 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Texas, so as to provide for a Board of Pardons and Paroles, and to make the Governor's pardoning power subject to recommendation of said Board, except in cases of treason the Governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons with the advice and consent of the Legislature."

Fund for persons employed in public schools, colleges and universities, supported wholly or partly by the State; provided that the amount contributed by the State to such Retirement Fund shall equal the amount paid for the same purpose from the income of each such person, and shall not exceed at any time five per centum of the compensation paid to each such person by the State, and or school districts, and shall in no one year exceed the sum of One Hundred Eighty ($180.00) Dollars for any such person; provided no person shall be eligible for a pension under this Amendment who has not taught twenty years in the State of Texas, but shall be entitled to a refund of the moneys paid into the fund.

All funds provided from the compensation of said persons, or by the State of Texas, for such Retirement Fund, as are received by the Treasury of the State of Texas, shall be invested in bonds of the United States, the State of Texas, or counties or cities of this State, or in bonds issued by any agency of the United States Government, the payment of the principal of and interest on which is guaranteed by the United States; provided that a sufficient amount of said funds shall be kept on hand to meet the immediate payment of the amounts that may become due each year under such retirement plan as may be provided by law; and provided that the recipients of such retirement fund shall not be eligible for any other pension retirement funds or direct aid from the State of Texas, unless such retirement fund, contributed by the State, is released to the State of Texas as a condition to receiving such other pension aid."

SECTION 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at the next General Election to be held on Tuesday, after the first Monday in November, which is November 3rd, 1936, at which election all voters favoring said proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the words:

"FOR the Amendment to the Constitution authorizing Retirement and the Creation of a retirement fund for persons employed in public schools and colleges and universities supported wholly or partly by the state."

Those opposing said proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the words:

"AGAINST the Amendment to the Constitution authorizing retirement and the creation of a retirement fund for persons employed in public schools and in colleges and universities supported wholly or partly by the state."

SECTION 3. The Governor of the State of Texas is hereby directed to issue the necessary Proclamation for said election and to have same published as required by the Constitution for amendments thereto.

SECTION 4. The sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State of Texas, not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expense of such publication and election.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: It seems clear to Inspector Hylton that it must have been Dale Shipley who murdered old Arthur Bordett, the most unpopular man in Hugo Enderlin and a miser to boot. When the Inspector learns from Shipley's housekeeper that Dale has gone to London, Hylton is convinced. But now Nancy Featherstone tells Hylton that Dale is at her house, and takes him there to meet the young man. Dale has had too much to drink, Nancy says—and lets Hylton into a small, dark and misty room.

Chapter 29 PRISONER

The door proved difficult to open, but Hylton called out cheerfully. "I say, Miss Featherstone—"

"Give the door a push, would you? It's got stuck or something."

"No, it isn't stuck—I've locked it."

Fifteen seconds of silence followed this remarkable declaration. "You've—er—locked it?" Hylton asked at length.

"Yes. The key's in the lock now, on the outside, here."

"Are you playing some sort of a game, Miss Featherstone?" Hylton asked. "What's all this about, and where is Dale Shipley?"

"I haven't any idea where he is," a voice explained apologetically, "and that's why I had to do it. It was the only way I could think of to stop you telephoning, and all that."

It isn't pleasant for any man to realize that someone has made an utter and complete fool of him, and it says a good deal for Kingsley Hylton that he didn't fly into a temper.

"Look here, Miss Featherstone," he said, "I do beg of you to be sensible. You must know that you are acting in a very foolish way and one that will get you into trouble, serious trouble."

"Oh yes, I realize all that, thank you."

"Well please have the sense to end it now, and I'll not say anything about it."

"It's a very sporting offer, but I couldn't possibly think of it."

"I'm sure you don't realize—"

"Oh I do truly—please don't worry yourself about that."

"For God's sake, woman, have the sense to unlock that door and put an end to this damned idocy. You can't know what you're letting yourself in for."

"Yes I do—accessory after the fact, isn't it?"

Hylton didn't answer... accessory after the fact... what fact? he wondered how much she knew...

Shipley had told her, of course, and bolted, and she had hatched up this plot to help him.

And a day's delay in getting out his description and wearing all the ports might easily mean losing him. A sudden access of impotent temper made him rattle the door handle vigorously.

"Miss Featherstone."

"Yes."

"In the name of the law I ask you to open this door at once and let me out."

A pause; then "Inspector Hylton, will you please listen to me for a minute?"

"Yes, of course, what is it?"

"I'm frightfully sorry that you are going to be inconvenienced, but I'm not going to open that door for quite a time yet."

"You're not?"

"No. Of course you can shout if you want to; but I honestly don't think it will be much good; you see I'm all alone in the house until ten o'clock tonight and I'm going down now to send the groom off on an all day trip. I'm only telling you all this to save you tiring yourself out unnecessarily."

Hylton was finding himself rather stumped for suitable conversation. After a bit he said, "Miss Featherstone, why are you acting in this absolutely insane way?"

It is not easy for an atmosphere of dramatic intensity to be established between two people separated by half an inch of solid oak, but somehow it sprang up between those two at that moment.

"Do you think I want to? Because I had to. He must have a chance, I couldn't let you get him like that—like a pack of hounds."

That was the last time Hylton was to hear Nancy Featherstone's voice for several hours. When he realized that she was no longer outside the door he first of all examined his material surroundings. The room he was in had originally been designed as a sort of primitive strong room in the old days when farmers knew nothing of banks; subsequently it had been used as an apple store and a linen room, and now it had almost passed out of regular use altogether.

He found that by standing on the ottoman he could just see out of the narrow window—a slit some twelve inches by five. He had a splendid view of three horses grazing half a mile away on the other side of the valley. The walls were solid and might have yielded to an hour or two's hard work with a crowbar, but was a hopeless task to attempt with bare hands.

Hylton realized that for all practical purposes he was a prisoner until Nancy chose to let him out, and the thought sobered and even, in a way, amused him.

Turning his mind to what would come of Nancy's escapade, he felt unhappy. Dale Shipley had done the murder, of so much he now felt certain... how long dare the woman keep him locked up there? Even if it were only twelve hours, and Shipley acted with decision it might give him all the start he wanted. Hylton swore audibly, what a damned fool he would look when he got back to the Yard.

Hylton sighed, drew one of his thin black cigars out, lit it, took a pencil from his note book and devoted himself to drawing chess problems on the conveniently bare and distempered wall.

Nancy Featherstone went straight downstairs to the stable and sent the mildly astonished groom on a footing and complicated errand well the other side of Morechester. When she had seen him safely off the premises she went into the drawing room and sat in front of the fire thinking.

Like the man upstairs she, too, reviewed the events which had brought her to the present extraordinary situation. She drew from her handbag a letter. It had come to her by the first post that morning, one of the very few that Dale Shipley had ever written to her; but she knew the handwriting well, and had been surprised to notice a London post mark on the stamp. With a growing conviction that there was bad news in it, she had drawn out the letter and read it.

Now, for the tenth time, she drew it out and read it again.

It was written on cheap paper, bearing neither date nor address:

"Dear Nancy, You won't see me for dinner tonight (they had arranged to dine together, a fact which for twenty-four hours had colored Nancy's life with happiness and expectation). I've had to get away in a hurry. I daresay people will soon be saying nasty things about me but I can't help that. Dale."

As soon as she had read that she had become absolutely cold with a sick fear. Dale had done it... half a dozen uncomfortable little whis-pers suddenly roared into an unendurable shouting in her head. And, somehow, she knew (and now realized that she had known all along) that it was just the sort of thing that Dale would do.

At half past ten she could not stand being alone in the house any longer; she was eaten up with anxiety to find out whether they knew in the village about Dale; if they didn't yet, they soon would; she realized that was inevitable. Although she knew that it would do no good, she felt that she must go up to Fielden Cottage and speak about Dale to Mrs. Somers.

When she got there the front door was open and Mrs. Somers was already in conversation with someone. As soon as Nancy saw who it was she felt quite sick with reawakened fear... the Detective from Scotland Yard. They were after him already, then. She overheard half a dozen quick questions and answers and realized that Hylton was himself only just learning about Dale.

There and then, without the slightest idea how it could be accomplished, she realized that she must help Dale by delaying his pursuers.

Sitting in front of the fire in the drawing-room thus thinking over the events of that extraordinary morning, she actually laughed; but it was a laugh without much mirth in it... tragic fools, she thought, mankind must be to blunder into a messes that they get into.

Dale was just the sort of headstrong fool, of course, who would get caught up in the fatal and fantastically simple business of murder. And she was a fool seven times greater to be emeshed in this extraordinary situation when she ought to be out hunting on the grey in the winter sunshine, with the day running peacefully by in its normal way. (Copyright, 1936, Laurence W. Meynell)

BLANTON HURLS DEBATE CHALLENGE

Hickok Well Given First Test

MOVE STARTS BITTER RUNOFF CONTEST BETWEEN JUDGE AND REPRESENTATIVE FOR OFFICE

Garrett Promises Answer to Challenge This Afternoon; Blanton Suggests Debate In Each of 12 Counties 'On Issues'

The first move in what is due to be one of the hardest fought run-off campaigns in the 17th congressional district, was made today by Congressman Thomas L. Blanton who sent his opponent, County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, a challenge to meet him in joint debate in each of the 12 counties "so that the people thereby may gain a true and intelligent idea of the issues in this campaign."

Judge Garrett, whose surprising lead of nearly 5,000 votes over the veteran congressman was credited with being the major upset in the state democratic primaries of last Saturday, said over telephone from Eastland this morning that he had received the challenge and would answer it this afternoon. Garrett also said he would have a statement of his appreciation for the vote given him within the next day or so.

Jaye Vote Prize

The approximately 7,500 votes that the district cast for Fred O. Jaye of DeLeon, the Townsend-endorsed candidate, is the prize over which the two run-off candidates will battle in the August 22 primary. Blanton must gain two-thirds of this vote to be even with Garrett, who was leading him by 4,745 on the basis of almost complete returns. Garrett's vote on returns complete from all but Eastland and Jones counties, and practically complete from these counties, stood at 24,530. Blanton had 19,785 and Jaye 7,452.

Meanwhile friends of Congressman Blanton at Abilene were feverishly organizing yesterday and today, with James P. Stinson, chairman of a newly formed Blanton

Upturn in Building Trades Shown By Recent Construction Work Here

Recent building improvements, as well as some new construction, indicate a slight revival in the building trades in Cisco. One of the latest contracts that has been let is a new brick veneer that will soon be under construction for L. V. Norvell, which will be located on the hill just north of the Green Lantern Inn. J. E. Burnam has the contract to erect this building, which will be a brick veneer structure of six rooms, including living room, dining room and bath. The construction cost is estimated to be around $6,000, and the date of completion will be about October 1.

Norvell, who is now residing on the Lee farm property, which he has had under lease for some time, will occupy this new building as his family residence when completed, according to Burnam.

This will add another modern residence to those on the Lake Cisco road, as the Norvell residence will be modern in all details.

The new certification program for the WPA was discussed.

1,000 Men Fight Big Forest Fire; Three Are Dead

HAVRE, Mont., July 28. (AP)—One thousand men were thrown today against a 25-mile long forest fire which yesterday burned three men to death and left others in a critical condition.

The men were trapped in a mountain cave of swirling flames. Cameron Baker, 24, of Havre, John Rowles of Landusky perished in the flames. Swayer Brockuntier, of Lowell, Mass., died in an attempt to get out of the path of the fire that raged through the timber unusually dry after days of 100-degree temperature.

Goodwill Trip Set For Putnam on Thursday

The junior chamber of commerce will make its second goodwill trip Thursday night when it goes to Putnam to present an entertainment and to extend an invitation to residents there to visit Cisco.

The Lobo band, under the direction of Robert L. Maddox, will present the principal entertainment of the evening. The concert by the band is scheduled for 8:30, according to Robert L. Maddox, director.

The first of the goodwill trip series to Romney last Thursday night was declared highly successful when more than 100 Ciscoans visited the community to present a band concert and to extend a hand of friendship to the Romney people.

The junior chamber of commerce today hoped for an equally good crowd from Cisco and for a similar reception at Putnam Thursday night. James McGracken is chairman of the trip committee.

Ciscoans will not go in a body, but will meet at Putnam for the concert.

IS GOOD FOR 400 BARRELS AT PRESENT

Flows 100 Barrels In First Hour After Gas Blown Off

The Hickok No. 2 well on the airport tract north of Cisco today was undergoing its first test for potential, and is apparently good for 400 barrels daily as it stands with the bit two feet in the upper Ranger.

The well was put on test at 9:15 a. m. after the head of gas was blown off and during the first hour it placed 100 barrels in the tank. Then it settled down to normal flow.

Although the well did not measure up to the optimism of many it seems to measure up to the expectations of the drillers.

In Upper Pay

Whether or not it would be drilled deeper could not be determined, the indication being that the company would produce it as it stands, since it could be drilled deeper at any time.

It is producing from the upper pay, with the drill only two feet in a formation whose history is a story of greater production from the lower pay.

A large crowd was on the location this morning to watch the test start.

Funeral Is Held For Mrs. Cagle At Scranton Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. James Cagle, who died in Oklahoma Sunday morning at 3 o'clock, were held at the Baptist church in Scranton Monday afternoon with Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the first Baptist church here, officiating. The body arrived by rail Monday and was met by a Neil Lane hearse.

A large number of friends and relatives accompanied the body to Scranton, where burial was in the cemetery in that place. The pall bearers were Lee Elkins, Joe Brown, Joe Walters, J. M. Witten and H. G. Arledge.

Besides her husband and an infant 18 months old, the survivors are her mother, Mrs. L. F. Threet; four brothers, Charles, Frank, Leslie and O. B. Threet; three sisters, Mrs. Birdie Ziehr, Mrs. Stella Moore and Mrs. Nora Owens, wife of E. B. Owens.

Hamlin Man Suffers Mysterious Injury

HAMLIN, July 28.—Found with a fractured skull near the stockyards here Monday, W. C. Hamrick, 35, remained in a semi-conscious condition at a hospital in Abilene last night while officers attempted to solve the mystery of how he was injured.

The man has a fracture of the outer part of the right orbit and severe lacerations on that side of the head but X-rays last night revealed that the wounds are not dangerously deep, it was said by an attending physician.

Grass Preservation Talked by Stockmen

MIDLAND, July 28. (AP)—A government program to prevent wastes threatening the south's livestock was referred to livestock and sheep organizations of Texas and the southwest at a conference of farm and livestock officials of Texas here today.

Conditions necessitating the program were admitted and willingness expressed to cooperate in any workable plan by officers and members of livestock organizations.

Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Mrs. E. L. Graham, "Nova" to her friends, admits a considerable superiority to Doc as a horticulturist and grower of tomatoes. The fact that Doc doesn't grow tomatoes may have a great deal to do with the superiority, but at any rate it would take some excellent and unusual tomato growing to exceed the results which she exhibited yesterday afternoon. She had the family car loaded with the evidence of her skill and was distributing them here and there, and by the time she got around to my family the exhibits had dwindled down to the quarter-pound variety.

Lee Leiske brought the "Judge" a watermelon this morning. Lee's melons are magnificent this year, and he admitted that all the big ones had been sold before he could reach here.

I suspect strongly that Lee is grateful to the Judge for having gone to see him about a story one afternoon and found him really at work. Lee was mighty busy that afternoon, putting concrete flooring in a chicken house and he hardly had time to talk.

What an oil well will do to the normally calm and sober person is interesting. There was E. B. Isaacks this morning, standing on top of the 100-barrel flow tank at the Hickok No. 2 well on the airport, so excited that he was talking a blue streak. Isaacks owns a tract only a few hundred yards from the well and he was as happy as anybody over the results.

But so would you have been, and so would I.

Christian Endeavor Holds Meet Sunday

The Christian Endeavor of the First Christian church met last evening at the church at 7 o'clock. Miss Ruth McKissick was leader of the program for the evening. The subject was "The Good and Bad in Our Community." The meeting opened with two song selections, "Living for Jesus" and "In the Garden." Miss Ruth McKissick gave the scripture readings and then a round-table discussion of the lesson was held. Following the program, Finley Winston presided over a brief business meeting. The group planned a "scavenger hunt" for next Tuesday evening. After the song, "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go" the meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction. There were 12 members present.

Landon to Get Big Welcome In Town of Birth

WEST MIDDLESEX, Pa., July 27. (AP)—This town in the lands of western Pennsylvania, where "the Landon baby" was born in his father-in-law's Methodist parsonage nearly a half-century ago, is awaiting eagerly a visit by the republican presidential nominee early in August.

"We can take care of a crowd up to 200,000 people," says H. G. Williams, secretary of the "Landon for President" club, which he claims was the first in the country. He is helping plan the celebration on the community ball grounds.

Governor Landon, as guest of honor, will share the spotlight with Mrs. Mary (Aunt Mary) Boyd, who nursed during the two weeks after his birth. She has papered the walls of her parlor with pictures of "my baby" clipped from newspapers and magazines.

KING SHARES "CROWN" GOTHENBURG (AP)—Seventy-eight-year-old King Gustaf of Sweden, covering the bases with more agility than men younger than himself, shares a doubles title of an open tournament as Saerue, near his home, playing as usual as "Mr. G." tell me...why are they MILDER...why do they TASTE BETTER

Well, first off, all cigarettes are not alike... not by a long shot.

Now Chesterfields...they are milder because they are made of mild, ripe tobaccos... both home-grown and Turkish.

They age these tobaccos for two years to take out all harshness

These tobaccos are not only blended but cross-blended...this brings out the better taste of each tobacco. It welds the different flavors into one better flavor. It helps to make Chesterfields taste better.

When you smoke a Chesterfield you realize they're not like others... They Satisfy.

Site of Olympic Village Will Be Used for Homes

LOS ANGELES, July 28 (AP)—The site of the 1932 Olympic village here is being subdivided and will become a community of 100 homes.

During the Xth Olympiad the village included 552 houses, five kitchens, a community dining hall, administration building, theater and a branch bank.

One of the sites was donated by the estate of Clara Baldwin Stock, daughter of E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, wealthy sportsman.

Work included laying four miles of water lines and building miles of hardpacked road.

Tables made from redwood trees were used when the Greek Olympic games were held in 800 B. C. went to the houses, which provided accommodations for 2,000 athletes.

After the games, with the village deserted, the 2-room houses were sold at $215 each furnished, or $100 unfurnished. Thirty-four were sent to Boulder City, Nev., for construction camp for Boulder City. Others were moved to mountain resorts.

The cottage occupied by Eddie Condon and Ralph Metcalfe was bought by negro admirers here.

Now, with the revival of home building, the last evidence of the busy Olympic village will be wiped out.

to be to win the race—if it takes a record-breaking performance to accomplish that, well and good.

You can bank on England to come up with some classy performers in the sprints and in running events up through the 1,500 meters. The recent British championships, run over notoriously slow courses, brought many performances of high caliber. The outstanding British threat is, of course, in the 1,500 meters where John Bull's ace-in-the-hole seems to be a sturdy-legged, 21-year-old bank clerk named Stanley Wooderson. Wooderson has defeated Jack Lovelock four times in a row. That in itself should be enough to establish him an equal favorite with any miler in the world.

One has but to hark back to the Princeton invitation meet of 1935, when Lovelock made a show of Cunningham, Venzke and Bonthron to win as he pleased. The time of that mile race—4:11—was unimportant, for every person who sat in Palmer stadium that afternoon was firmly convinced that Lovelock was the master racer of the field. He would most likely have won no matter how fast the race.

In Berlin the American 1,500-meter aspirants will be called on to match strides not only with Lovelock but with his conqueror, Wooderson, as well. And, too, don't overlook the fact that Luigi Beccali, Italy's Olympic champion at 1,500 meters, will be on hand to defend his title.

In the 5,000- and 10,000-meter runs we have the amazing Don Lash. Lash may crash through to give America her first Olympic victory in either of these events, but he will have to overcome strong opposition from British and Finnish distance men of established merit. The marathon will bring out a fast field headed by Juan Carlos Zabala, the fiery little Argentine who won at Los Angeles. An American victory in the classic event of the Olympic Games would be a distinct surprise to all, including the members of our team.

SPORT SLANTS

The 1936 Olympic team is the strongest squad we have ever sent abroad to international track and field competition. There's not the slightest doubt about that. The amazing performances turned in by the athletes in battling for places on the team bear it out. If the lads could guarantee a duplication of those efforts on the Berlin track the Olympic games would be as good as "in."

But unfortunately they can guarantee no such thing. On the strength of past records it would be safe to guess that the long journey, the enforced layoff and the strange country and climate will be certain to take a toll in the form of lost speed and stamina. We have sent other "great" teams abroad in the past—in 1928, for instance, only to see our "certain" winners go down to defeat before the flying feet of foreign runners. As long as we stick to the practice of picking the squad by means of a final tryout, with the athletes necessarily pointing for places on the team and letting the actual Olympic competition take care of itself, we will have to take our chances on the final results.

Field Stars Fall Down

The final tryouts afforded some excellent examples of the uncertainty of athletic form. Look at the showings of competitors in the field events—in the discus throw and shot put in particular. The entry list included three men who were rated throughout the spring as 170-footers with the discus. Yet Gordon Dunn walked off with first honors when he tossed the platter less than 158 feet, more than a dozen feet under the mark that had been considered likely. Big Jack Torrance, the 325-pound giant from Louisiana, was six feet off his record performance in winning the shot put.

It is a pretty well established fact that weight-tossers stand up better than other athletes under the strain of travel and unfamiliar conditions. If they lose their effectiveness to such a degree by merely journeying to the scene of the final tryouts, there is no telling what one can expect after a long ocean jaunt to a foreign land. We have record-breaking runners galore on the squad but that won't mean much to foreign competitors who will face them at Berlin. The chances are that foreign athletes have heard little of the Americans' prowess, or, if they have, will pay little attention to the records. Records don't mean as much abroad as they do here. The main object over there seems Human and Other Nature By W. F. BRUCE We have quarreled—my wife and I. We are having an argument. The boys hate to side against their father, but seemed inclined to agree with their mother. The question is whether to put down a well in the yard and turn the premises into a grease spot. I claim that a place called home that has memories attached to it and has spots about the place where this or that or the other happened is a good possession to have and to hold. There are certain rights and a degree of freedom in owning a home. But of course one of those rights is a disposal of the same, when and at what price one may choose, with the agreement of his or her other half.

But if a home includes comforts and conveniences advantages for books and music and other cultural features, and the means to take a trip away from it once in awhile, and those phases are lacking because of lack of funds, and vestment in hopelessness and sensibly retire from the field. Such an action would save both candidates and voters expense and trouble to formally register a decision that is evident on the face of things right now.

THE decisive manner in which the democrats of the state renominated Gov. Allred over all his opponents for a second term should indicate the temper of the people. The disposition is to reward public officers who have been diligent and faithful in the discharge of their duties with a second term where they have asked it, and there is certainly no doubt but what, with the great plurality, if not the majority, given Col. Thompson over the other candidates for railroad commissioner in the first primary means that they are not going to make an exception in his case in the second. It would be common sense for the man who squeezes into the run-off with him to take a practical view of the mountain of votes he would have to overcome and after reading the verdict evident in this, retire from the race to save both himself, Col. Thompson and the democrats unnecessary expense and trouble.

New Construction

NEW construction under way here is an excellent barometer of the general feeling, economically speaking. There has been and continues to be much new construction and remodeling of old buildings. Some developments peculiar to Cisco, such as the relocation of Highway No. One over Eighth street, contribute to this condition, but there must also be taken into consideration a general and widespread conviction of more prosperous times ahead. The country on the whole is on the way up. There is no denying the fact.

CISCO'S situation, regardless of the momentary stimulation caused by the efforts of some classes of business to secure advantageous locations along Eighth street, is still of a character for present developments to cause gratification. The municipal debt situation has been and continues to be an influence that is not encouraging to new building. Much progress has been made in clearing up this bad fiscal situation, however, and the fact that the public and those with money to invest seem to be shaking off the depressing effect of the condition and to be going ahead with confidence is encouraging. The prospect of greater oil development here is another factor of considerable encouragement.

such funds may be obtained through exchange of sentiment for dollars and cents, then who has the better of the argument? Anyway, you see that my only defense is more ample provision. Now if we find it possible to combine both of our notions, to keep the premises intact, and at the same time to have a flowing well with all the appurtenances thereto, then the discussion will end happily.

By PRESTON GROVER WASHINGTON, July 27.—Any non-Mississippian could be pardoned for wondering why the name of Senator Pat Harrison of that state so often is mentioned in speculation as to President Roosevelt's selection of a comptroller general.

The genial Mississippian has been coming back to the senate for the senate for 26 years, without serious election trouble. Why, then, should Harrison, with a virtually perfect New Deal record in the senate, be rated as a possible "lame duck" candidate for comptroller?

The truth is Harrison faces the toughest re-election battle he ever has fought. He is one New Dealer who will not be available for much campaign duty outside his own state this year, at least not until after the primary.

Bilbo Vows Vengeance Harrison is battling an alignment of three men who once were political enemies. They have buried their differences in an effort to defeat him in the August 25 primary. His chief opponent is former Governor Sennett (Mike) Conner, who claims he balanced the state's budget with the sales tax. Now he seeks the Harrison toga. State

The judge ordered the lawyer to sit down and the lawyer being deaf, didn't hear him and went on talking, the judge fined him $10 for contempt of court. The lawyer leaned toward the clerk and cupped his hand behind his ear. "What did he say?" he inquired. "He fined you $10," explained the clerk. "For what?" small cost was the fact that he utilized the material in his old residence and another building which he purchased. But the material in the old buildings was milled before the heart timber in the pine forests was depleted, therefore, this lumber is just as good as that which is being milled at this time. Frankly Speaking By FRANK LANGSTON

The Saturday election over the candidates who have runoffs are opening their campaigns. Already a number of them seeking county offices have been in Cisco in the interest of their candidacy, while the courthouse at Eastland yesterday afternoon was filled with them talking over final results and making plans for the near future.

The contest between Congressman Thomas L. Blanton and Judge Clyde L. Garrett for representative of the 17th district promises to be the bitterest in years, perhaps even more so than that between Blanton and Joe Jones of Eastland.

The congressman, who trailed Garrett by nearly 5,000 votes in returns which he and his supporters did not expect, challenged the Eastland county judge this morning to a debate in each of the 12 counties in the district. His challenge included an opening debate in Abilene, followed by one in Eastland.

What Garrett will do is, of course, problematical. He has announced that he will answer the challenge this afternoon. Blanton has the reputation of having won many of his campaigns in debates in which he backed up the arguments he presented with excerpts from the Congressional Record.

Returns are slow in coming in—at least a part of them. The final unofficial count on the Karkalits-O'Brien race for tax assessor-collector appears to leave O'Brien 19 in the lead in the closest contest in the county. When the final results are can-

TO EASTLAND COUNTY VOTERS:

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the voters of Eastland county for their support of my candidacy for sheriff in the first primary. Your loyalty to me has enabled me to be the runner-up candidate in the second primary, and I am taking this opportunity to solicit your continued support in that election. The campaign has been one of much pleasure to me, for it enabled me to meet many people I have heretofore not known, people that I feel will remain my personal friends in the future.

I have conducted my campaign on what I believed to be a clean and high plane, avoiding mud-slinging, as I have, and will continue to make the race on my own merits, and not on the short-comings of my opponents. Believing my experience and qualifications will enable me to make Eastland county a sheriff that will be a credit to the county, and an honor to my self, I am asking your continued support in the August primary. If honored with the nomination, and election, I promise to give the office and the people, my very best efforts to make Eastland county the best sheriff that I am capable of making, and will strive at all times to enforce the criminal laws of the state, but at the same time avoid persecutions by filing charges on unsupported evidence, or mere suspicion.

Again thanking you for your support, and hoping to merit a continuance in the second primary, I am Gratefully, STEELE HILL. (Political Advt.)

TO THE VOTERS OF EASTLAND COUNTY:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the voters of Eastland county for their wonderful vote of confidence as evidenced by the unofficial returns of the first primary election on July 25.

I intend to put forth a determined effort to carry out every pledge I made to the citizens of Eastland county to give to you a fair, impartial and efficient administration, and I invite the whole-hearted cooperation of the citizenship of Eastland county.

Sincerely Yours, EARL CONNER, JR. (Political Advt.)

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton has just about pinned the murder of old Arthur Burdett on Burdett's Spanish half nephew—when suddenly his suspicions are confirmed by Dale Shipley's flight to London. Hylton is darting away from Dale's house to issue a pick-up order when Nancy Featherstone, sister than Dale but in love with him nevertheless, tells Hylton that his quarry is at her house, drunk. Hylton returns with her, and is looked in a strong room. Meanwhile Sergeant White, earnest but not particularly clever, is supposedly at work on the same case. And of course, Dale is not at Nancy's house.

Chapter 30 FAMILY AT ODDS

At one o'clock Sergeant White came back to his cottage and went thoughtfully through into the kitchen where his wife was busy taking something out of the oven. "How's Mr. Hylton this morning?" Alice asked lightly. "He wasn't there." "Not there? Where was he?" "As a matter of fact I don't quite know. He told me to meet him at twelve and said particularly I was not to be late. They told me at the Hoops that he went into Morechester this morning early, and then came back about half past ten and they haven't seen him since." "Pity you can't find out who did that old fool in," she said irritably. "We might get a lift then and be able to afford a decent oven." "No one can expect me to be over at Nyeton and at Erderton Court at the same time." "It wasn't much good your being at Nyeton seemingly, the poachers were out just the same." "How do you know that?" White asked quickly, and Alice could have bitten the end of her stupid tongue off. She ought to have learned by now, she reflected, to be doubly careful with a man as madly jealous as her husband. "I just heard somebody talking about it somewhere in the village—here have this damned, oh I'm sorry Jimmy, this blessed shepherd's pie before it gets cold..." She cut him a piece of bread and put the bottle of Yorkshire relish in his reach and filled his glass with water. All these ministrations he received with that masculine matter of course indifference which not infrequently a woman finds the most maddening thing in the whole world. One or two sharp comments came to her tongue but she repressed them. Jimmy had a regular job with good money and a pension, she wasn't going to be fool enough to fall out with him unnecessarily, especially when she could pull the wool over his eyes so beautifully as long as she was careful. "Pie's burnt a bit," he said. "What are you doing this afternoon?" "Going to Morechester." "The pictures, I suppose?" "Well, what's wrong with the pictures?" "You're always off there, nowadays," he said. "A woman wants to get out of her house sometimes, I suppose." "What's on—anything special?" For a moment Alice could hardly believe her ears. It would be just like the almost inspired perverseness of the male, she thought, if he said he would come with her. He noticed her slight pause and asked again, this time looking full at her. "I'm just trying to think," she said testily. "I'm not sure what it is, but I don't think it's anything special." After a moment or so she could not help adding "Were you thinking of coming, Jimmy?" "Good Lord, no. I've got something to do. I shall be out with the Inspector, I suppose." Alice was well pleased to let the conversation run on to other lines. "Funny you can't get any idea who's done it," she said. "Who says we can't get any idea? I keep telling the Inspector it's most likely one of these rough-looking chaps I saw in the village a day or two before." "I wonder who they were. Nobody else saw them, did they?" "Of course somebody else saw them, but nobody takes any notice of a tramp." "Seems to me a waste of time looking in the village here." "Praps they'll find that out as they go along," White said with a peculiar smile. "Do you think the Inspector suspects young Shipley?" "Why should he?" her husband looked up sharply. "Well, everybody knows he didn't like the old man and I suppose it might as well be him as anybody else." White looked away again and shook his head. "I don't think it was Dale Shipley," he said, "so don't you get jumping to the conclusion it was." Alice gave her rich, care-free laugh. "I don't care who it was," she cried, "as long as it wasn't you." "Don't talk foolishly," James White begged in a grumbling voice. At half past two exactly Harry Small sat on the bole of a fallen oak facing the central clearing in the Big Wood, laid his gun carefully on the dry ground at his side, and pulling an old pouch out of one capacious side pocket began to fill the pipe that he had been sucking. He glanced at his watch; Alice was ten minutes late, but Small didn't worry. She'd come; having trouble with that husband of hers most likely. The gamekeeper smiled as his thoughts ran on James White—a rum chap for such a powerful man, didn't seem to smoke much or drink, and all against swearing—but a man, though, you had to allow him that. Did his duty and afraid of no one—cut up nasty most likely if ever he found out. Harry Small's smile broadened, after all what was life worth without a bit of a risk to give sauce to it; and Alice was worth it any day, more than worth it. He stretched his big body in pleasurable anticipation, and so quickly that even his phenomenally quick ears gave him only a moment's warning she came up to him from behind. "Harry." "You've come, my dear." "I am puffed, it's an awful pull up that bank." "You're late."

"Late? You ought to be damned glad I've come at all." Small's eye ran over her flushed, handsome face and her generous body. "So I am," he allowed. "I told him I was going to the pictures and just for the moment I thought he was going to offer to come with me." "Sergeant White go to the pictures?" "He does sometimes." "Not often, I'll bet." She sat down on the log by him still breathing quickly. He made no effort to caress her, there was plenty of time yet. "Nice day," he said. "Jimmy's off on this business at the Court. Who do you reckon did it Harry?" "That chap as lives with him most likely." "Lumsdale?" "Yes. Unless it's one of the gentry whose woman he played about with." Alice White looked up quickly. "What do you mean?" she asked. "What do you know about it?" "I can't say as I know anything exactly, but I've heard a tale or two. 'E was a bit of an old cough-drop, wasn't he, for all this living alone and miser business?" The woman was staring down the ride. "Did you see Jimmy on Monday night?" she asked suddenly. "See him? No, of course I didn't. What's more important to me is did he see that Ruckley gang that was out." "But if he had been out he would have seen them, wouldn't he?" Nyeton Woods' a big place my dear," Small said, "big enough for you and me to get lost in anyway; let's try." He rose to his feet, stretched himself prodigiously and bending with a sudden quick movement picked the woman up in his arms and pressed her to him. When her lips were free she gave a little gasp. "Oh, Harry, you are strong." "Strong enough to pick you up anyway; and put you down where I've a mind to." "I like your cheek." He slipped his arm through hers and they began to walk away together. "Can't we stay here?" she protested. "It's lovely in this bit of sun." "It'll be lovelier still where I've a mind to go," he said, "there's a bit of a bank the other side of the ride where the turfs so soft you might be sitting on a bed." "All right Harry," Alice said quietly. They had emerged from the side of the wood and overlooked an unexpected and charming little valley. Its slope lay to the southwest and formed a perfect trap for the afternoon sun, so that January and all the bleak things of the year seemed further off than ever. With a sudden but unhurried movement he lifted her off her feet. Sergeant White also takes to the woods, tomorrow.
