Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE
Many schemes for extracting money from the public by appealing to the human instinct for sympathy are employed by transients. From Brownwood comes a story about a group of negroes from a distant town who made the rounds of the merchants in that city appealing for contributions to help repair a Brownwood negro church. The group of panhandling transients collected about $65 or $70 off the merchants and then disappeared. It shortly came to light that neither the pastor of the local church nor any of his members knew a thing about it. The swindling transients simply pocketed the proceeds of their successful appeal and went blithely on their way, leaving to the merchants a bitter memory of having been gypped and a resolution to be less sympathetic in the future, and to the members of the Brownwood church a more difficult problem of maintaining their institution, financially, because of this resentment.

ATTACK UPON MALLORCA IS BEATEN BACK

New Fight at Oviedo; Fears Felt Revolt Spreads in Africa

(By Associated Press)
The rebel junta today announced that 2,000 government troops were slaughtered in an attack on the island of Mallorca.
At the same time fascist rebels and the socialist government sources reported a new engagement at the besieged rebel city of Oviedo, where, Madrid announced, the administrative building and convent were fired by government bombers, and rebels tried in vain to flee the city. But the rebels said the Oviedo garrison had driven the government attackers back, taking many prisoners.
International worries over whether the Spanish war would stay where it belongs was reflected at a conference of the administrators of French territories of northern Africa, at Paris, colonial authorities saying it was expected that a network of native runners were spreading secret agitation connected with Spanish troubles among the Mohammedans.

Joan and Dick to Wed Within Week

Joan Blondell, blonde film actress, and Dick Powell, movie crooner, today were planning to be married within a week. They applied for a marriage license in Los Angeles today. Miss Blondell recently was granted her final divorce decree from George Barnes.

1,300 Farm Families Without Income, Is Report to Shelton

(Special to The Daily Press)
EASTLAND, Sept. 11.—Eastland county today was awaiting federal drought relief after an urgent report appealing for aid was dispatched to State Director Jack Shelton at College Station yesterday.
The report pointed out that 1,300 farm families in this county are without income.
The report, sent to Shelton by County Agent Elmo V. Cook and County Home Demonstration Agent Miss Ruth Ramey, upon instructions of the county commissioners court, which had begun efforts for designation of the county on the federal department of agriculture drought committee's emergency list, said:

Report
"No rain for over 60 days and high winds have resulted in short feed and cash crops and almost total failure of food crops in Eastland county.
"At least 1,300 farm families have no means of income and are badly in need of assistance in the form of WPA labor.
"At least 100 livestock raisers are finding it necessary to run 2,000 head of livestock to pasture and water in other parts of the state. A reduction in freight rates would be a great help to them.
"If the drought continues it will be necessary to ship 25 carloads of feed into the county before another crop is made."

Conally to Aid
County Judge Clyde L. Garrett was out of the city today but before he left announced that the commissioners court had asked the county's inclusion on the list

Mayor W. E. Tyler of Rising Star last night welcomed Cisco business men and women when they went to Rising Star on one of a series of goodwill trips sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce.
The feature of the evening's program was a band concert by the Cisco Lobo band, under the direction of Robert L. Maddox, which included several novelty numbers.
The concert was interrupted for a short address by President A. D. Starling of the Cisco organization, in which he assured Rising Star residents of Cisco's friendship. Following his address was the introduction of business men and women of both Cisco and Rising Star. A large crowd of both Ciscoans and Rising Star citizens was present.
It was announced that the goodwill trip next Thursday night will be to Moran.

MAN HURT IN RAIL MISHAP

Knocked From Freight Car at Noon

Sam Burge, 46, of Albany today was injured when he was knocked from a freight car in the M-K-T yards during the noon hour.
Burge, rushed to Graham sanitarium, was reported by attendants to be suffering from possible pelvic injuries and shock. They were unable immediately to determine the extent of his injuries.
Burge was reported to have been on a freight car when it was struck by train 93 about 12:45. The impact of the train knocked him to the ground.
Katy Agent J. C. King said he immediately summoned an ambulance and had Burge sent to the hospital for medical attention.
The injured man told hospital attendants this afternoon that he had started home when the car was struck, throwing him to the ground.

Baird Lad Injured In Rail Accident

ABILENE, Sept. 11.—E. J. Cranford, 15-year-old son of Mrs. Alma Cranford of Baird, entered the Hendrick Memorial hospital Thursday night for treatment of injuries received when he fell from a freight train near here. He received a broken arm and bruises.
The boy was brought to Abilene by Tom Williamson, who lives near the T. & P. tracks, accompanied by L. C. Williamson. He was riding a west-bound train when the accident occurred at 6:30 p. m.

Belated Rains Aid Farmers of Nation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Although two per cent of the nation's crop prospects burned up during August, the federal crop reporting board said today that the drought "appears to have been a less serious national calamity than that of 1934."
Widespread rains during the latter part of August and since Sept. 1—date of the official crop estimate—were called sufficient to prevent further deterioration.

Rancher Is Killed On Square at Burnet

BURNET, Sept. 11. (AP)—Calvin Ward, Jr., 30, rancher, was shot and killed on the public square in front of the post office late Thursday.

NAZI PLANES BACK HITLER

Anti-Soviet Movement Is Foreseen

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 11. (AP)—Four hundred war planes were preparing for demonstrations Monday, gave a military background today to Nazi Germany's anti-Soviet campaign, launched at the national convention here, a crusade which observers believe to be approaching an announcement of practical steps against bolshevism.
At the congress itself Herman Reichle, Nazi agricultural leader, contrasted the "ruthless exploitation of soviet Russian peasants for the benefit of a clique of Jewish parasites" with what he said was Chancellor Hitler's constructive efforts on behalf of the German farmers.

Lufkin Farmer Is Held for Ransom

LUFKIN, Sept. 11. (AP)—Mrs. W. G. Funderburk, wife of a prominent farmer living west of Lufkin, received a letter yesterday which said that her husband was being held by two men who demanded $1,500 for his release.

SPURS BUCKED WRONG

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Seasoned rangers grinned when they learned that spurs on a statue of a "typical" Texas Ranger at the centennial exposition were buckled on the inside of the feet.

Texas Given Bigger Allotment by NYA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Allotment of $19,008,767 to projects in 48 states, New York City, and the District of Columbia, was announced by the national youth administration. The total included $1,118,494 for increasing student aid quotas in drought-stricken areas.
There were also views of the Garden of the Gods at Colorado Springs, Colorado.
"You can tell when you cross the lines into Canada that you are in another nation," said Rev. Mr. Pryor. "The people are less energetic, thrifty and sanitary. We started to take lunch at a cafe but the unsanitary condition of the house, the lack of refrigeration and the presence of swarms of flies crawling over the unprotected meat turned us. We bought canned salmon."
A steamer trip took them across San Francisco bay where the government's famous island prison housing Al Capone, Machine Gun Kelly and other desperadoes is located.
"We got quite a thrill passing

FDR Sees Great Machine Age For Good of People

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—President Roosevelt today advocated an advance preparation for a future day when, through conversion or application of energy, "half the population can provide the basic machine-made products necessary for the welfare" of all. His address was made before the third World Power conference with representatives of 52 nations as his audience. He said:
"We can conceive that this would mean that people between 20 and 50 years of age would be able to produce not only the basic commodities for themselves, but also for others below and above their ages."

People of U.S. Are More Energetic Than Canadians, Ciscoans Discover

Back from a 15-day automobile trip that carried them into Canada and through almost a dozen western states, the Rev. and Mrs. Luther Pryor of the Nazareth church and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Thomas today recounted a vacation of much enjoyment.
The giant redwood trees of northern California, Oregon and Washington, the geysers of Yellowstone national park, the Grand Canyon and Alcatraz prison in San Francisco bay were among the things which interested them most. Mr. Pryor exhibited snapshots which he made of the scenes along the route, most of them showing views of the giant redwoods—in the trunk of one of which a store was located—and the geyser fields of Yellowstone.

The Lord shall give strength unto his people; the Lord shall give this people the blessing of peace.—Ps. 19: 11.

Joy is like restless day, but peace divine
Like quiet night.
Lead me, O Lord, till perfect day shall shine,
Through peace to light. —PROCTOR.

Coming Amendments

TEXAS voters will be called upon to adopt or reject two of several proposed constitutional amendments November 3, which we believe, should be adopted. These provide for raising the governor's salary and limiting legislative representatives of any county to the number of seven. That the salary of the governor is ridiculously low and inadequate to the dignity of the office, most people will admit. The $4,000 per annum set as the compensation for the chief executive of the state is not equal to the fees allowed the criminal district attorney of Eastland county. The amendment proposes an increase of the salary to $10,000, which is far below that provided for the chief executives of many states in the Union.

It is believed that the provision for higher salaries of our state officials—more in keeping with the dignity and importance of the office—will cause men of higher ability to seek these offices, and that the state will thereby be the gainer.

FORTUNATELY the present governor of Texas is a man of ability, and for the time this means there is no inefficiency in the office of the chief executive of the state in spite of the inadequate compensation. But Texas has not always been thus fortunate. Some governors in the past, have been persons of mediocre ability—or less, and we cannot expect to be so fortunate in the future.

TO attract men of ability the official salary must be adequate. Most men possessing the ability of that required for governor of Texas would be making a financial sacrifice to offer their names as candidates even at the proposed increased salary. For such men private business yields a greater return. But a salary, in keeping with the importance of the office, will partially indemnify them for the sacrifice incurred.

AND the other amendment is equally meritorious. Not from a financial point of view, but as a protection of the smaller and more sparsely populated counties. This amendment is known as the Moffett amendment, and would limit the legislative representatives of any county to seven, thus prohibiting the larger and more densely populated counties from monopolizing the law-making body to the detriment of the smaller counties. This amendment deserves the support of every voter, and no doubt will be in favor of all except those larger counties that may, in their selfish interests, wish to control the legislature.

THE amendment to increase the compensation of our representatives and senators from the old salary of $5.00 per day was practically unanimously endorsed a few years ago. However, this amendment has proved to be disappointing, for the reason the basis of the increase was wrong. Instead of being based on a per diem basis the salary should have been based on a certain sum for the entire legislative term, to be paid whether the legislature was in session 20 days or 12 months. Then better men would have offered themselves as candidates, as a body of able business, professional and agricultural people could, and doubtless would, have gone to Austin, transacted the business of state, adjourned and returned to their own private affairs with little loss of time.

THE increase of the governor's salary is not a similar case. This increase is proposed for the term, and should attract men of the best ability. Another meritorious change would be the redistricting of senatorial districts according to counties, rather than on the basis of population, as at present. Then, the lower house, being districted according to population, would create a happy balance that would be more satisfactory than the present basis of representation. This or the one-house system, should be given consideration by the legislature.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Earl Browder, the communist presidential candidate, stepped into Washington recently and deplored what he termed lack of freedom of the press in America.

"Sentiment Unreflected"
He did not say where he got his figures but he said 90 per cent of the newspapers in the country were owned by republicans and were therefore not reflecting the majority public sentiment. The latest votes to test that, he said, had indicated the majority of the sentiment was democratic.

on how the press was operated in a communist state, like Russia.
Explains Soviet Press
Why, he was asked, were all Russian papers for the soviet government? Because, he answered, all the people were for the soviet government, or at least 99 per cent as shown in the most recent roll call.

Did the remaining one per cent have freedom of the press? No, because communists believe in majority rule.
There was a sort of mass lifting of eyebrows at such an interpretation of freedom of the press, which Browder frankly conceded was not the interpretation placed upon it in America.

It doesn't necessarily imply anything, but the day Browder spoke in Washington, two men were arrested on the capital streets for disturbing communist handbills. There is a law in the District of Columbia prohibiting distribution of any kind of hand bills.

Officers Named For 1937 Cowboy Reunion
STAMFTRD, Sept. 11. (Sp).—Directors of the stockholders of the Texas Cowboy Reunion, Inc., were re-elected at annual meeting of the group Thursday, and members of the board of directors were also re-elected at a session of the board, held after the stockholders meeting. Tentative plans for the 1937 meeting of the reunion were discussed, but no definite plans were announced.

A Voice from the Ranks

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE man from whom I got the yarn couldn't recall the name of the battle in which this thing occurred but he was quite sure it was one of the bloody fights of the final Virginia campaign shortly before Lee's surrender.

The general engagement had commenced. The brigade to which Captain Farinholz belonged was drawn up in reserve awaiting the command to advance, when a small battery of Union guns opened upon it from the top of a nearby hill, doing considerable damage. An order was given that Captain Farinholz's company should capture the battery and silence the bothersome guns.

Hollywood SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—Not all movie actors have to leave town when comes the irrepressible urge to get away from it.

"It all is Hollywood; the business of being a movie celebrity, the stares of the curious and the demands of celluloid fame. Although their careers thrive on autographs and photographs and the hubbub that accompanies their every public appearance, the average actor not infrequently succumbs to that godly feeling and yearns to light out for nowhere or anywhere.
Eric Linden is one of Hollywood's inveterate runners-away. Sometimes it is to the mountains and again it's to the beach; but he likes solitude and will take it where he finds it.
Claudette Flees Telephone
But Claudette Colbert, who also likes time to collect her thoughts, doesn't have to leave town. In the corner of her new house is a little room with sound-proofed walls and no telephone. When she wants to study a script or just to relax and forget that tomorrow is a full day—what with fittings and sittings and appointments here and appointments there—she can go to this room and be alone as Garbo."
Wallace Beery goes fishing or flying—not that Wally ever feels like a goldfish. But Carole Lombard, again, can "get away" at home in a far corner of her garden is the Lombard retreat, a little hut concealed from view by trees and shrubs. Here she can study or read, or think up new party gags, or just do nothing at all except be "away from it all."
Clark Gable goes hunting, and Preston Foster goes boating, and Joel McCrea and Frances Dee go to their ranch. Mae West has moved to her ranch from the penthouse apartment in Hollywood; so'll he if she wants to get away she'll have to build a hut like Lombard's or take up boating or flying.
Garbo: Continuous Hide-Out
Gary Cooper and Bing Crosby are part-time ranchers. Gary's date farm in the Coachella Valley is a good place to look for him when he can't be found at home or anywhere else. The ranch is a big place, and the sprawling little ranch house isn't open to general view.
Bing's hideaway is not exactly a shack, with its swimming pool and barbecue pit, but it's the place he goes when he has had too much of Hollywood.
Sir Guy Standing has an automobile trailer, one of those deluxe models supposedly with all the comforts of home. When the get-away moment comes to him all he has to do is hook the trailer on his car and vanish down the highway.
But maybe Jack Oakie's plan is best of all. He hides out in his studio dressing room, pulling down the shades on the windows, locking the door and pretending he isn't there. Nobody, he reasons, would ever think of looking for him at the studio.
And Garbo isn't so bad, either. It's so good, in fact, that it's news when she isn't hiding out at home.

PLAYS BLINDFOLDED

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—Blindfolded, W. N. Kendall of Lufkin, recently played eight games of chess simultaneously at the Texas Centennial Exposition. He won four of the games, lost two and drew two.

Plans Made For Frontier Stock Show October 3

(Special to The Daily Press)
FORT WORTH, Sept. 11.—Great preparations are being made in Ft. Worth prior to the opening of the frontier centennial live stock show, October 3-11.

Premiums totaling $75,000 are being offered this year to exhibitors of livestock. Since most of the classes are open to nationwide competition, together with the fact that the prize money is unusually attractive, the judges will be confronted with the problem of determining the winners among some of the world's outstanding livestock entries.

September 4, closing date for entries in the international livestock show at Fort Worth, found an evidence of enthusiasm among breeders and exhibitors that far exceeded expectations of the show's sponsors.

The Fort Worth international horse-show will open for seven days on October 2, running into the livestock show, with some $20,000 in premiums being offered. This exhibit of the world's greatest horses and horsemanship promises to be the largest of all times.

Beginning on Oct. 8, and running through the last of November, will be the frontier centennial world's championship rodeo in which world renowned riders will vie for purses aggregating approximately $25,000.

TAKES LONGEST TRIP

DALLAS, Sept. 11.—Steven Dupuis, who has lived all his 91 years in one Louisiana parish, recently visited the Texas Centennial Exposition. It was the longest trip he had ever taken. After one glimpse he declared he would remain a week because "I might not be here when the next Centennial comes around."

ELEPHANT FOSSIL FOUND

HARRISONVILLE, Mo. (AP)—The fossil of a hairy elephant, the first reported found in Missouri, was unearthed here recently by workers digging a trench silo on the Bliss Van Sandt farm. Dr. Raymond G. Stone, University of Kansas City professor, estimated the ice age beast lived in this region 25,000 years ago.

Like Signs Add to Martial Look Army Plans Its Defense Maneuvers

SAM HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 11.—"VIII Corps Area Recruiting Replacement Center," which is being placed on the coast here this month, signifies the major units of the Third Army being mobilized in the direction of Major General Parker, Commander of the Army and the "Eighth and Eighth Corps Areas, it has been found necessary to plan for the organization of recruiting and reception centers, mobilization centers, a supply point, distributing points and remount stations—even though of the 156,000 men involved in the training problem, only the five hundred officers and some six hundred soldiers will actually be on the ground.

All of these installations are essential links in the chain which secures men for the army in time of a great emergency. In addition to furnishing them with supplies, equipment and shelter, the recruits must be sorted according to their training in civil life, assigned to the jobs they are to fill in the army, and be forwarded to the various units which must be brought up to required war strength.

The recruiting station is the first link in the chain. Here the applicant will receive his physical examination, and if passed by the medical officers, will be enlisted for the duration of the war. During the World War, only 7 out of every 10 men called for military duty were found fit—the percentage of the Southwestern states of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico being slightly higher. In order to secure 86,000 new recruits, the number required to bring the Third Army to its full strength as required in this command post exercise, it would be necessary to have approximately 123,000 men present themselves for enlistment.

Like "Real" War
During this particular training problem, 3,000 cards, each giving the name, occupation and full data on a potential recruit will be filled out at the various recruiting stations. These cards will be handled just as if a real war were going on. Plans provide for recruits being sent to regiments or to replacement centers. The cards show this data. At replacement centers recruits receive preliminary training.

It will be the duty of these command and staff officers taking part in this "paper war" to correctly and efficiently assign the imaginary recruits to the jobs for which they are best fitted, and where they can best serve the army. As the Third Army is a unit capable of maintaining independent action on a battle front, even such rare occupations as cargador, (one experienced in loading horses and mules into trains) meteorologists, millwrights, X-ray photographers, and locomotive engineers can be put to work as occupational specialists and kept busy at their respective work. Ordinary trades like cooks, bakers, electricians, radio men, stenographers, draftsmen, horse shoers and a score of other occupations are necessary for the operation of a single infantry regiment.

For a mobilization, such as is being contemplated, plans must be made for shelter, food, clothing and hospitalization of these imaginary 86,000 new recruits. The establishment of reception centers will be required. From the reception center, the recruit is sent to either replacement center, from which he is eventually assigned to either a unit needing more men to bring it to war strength or to one where men are needed to replace those lost in battle.

Seek to Bring Movie Stars To The Centennial

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 11.—Negotiations are under way with several motion picture stars and producers to bring them to the Texas centennial exposition for Motion Picture Exhibitors Day, September 15, Harry A. Olmsted, director general of the exposition announced today.

"Governor James V. Allred also will take part in a gala program we are planning at the exposition for that night," Mr. Olmsted said. "Motion picture exhibitors from the four states of Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas will gather at our Texas World's fair that day."

Mr. Olmsted said individual invitations were being sent to every exhibitor in the four states, and Dallas exhibitors are supplementing them with personal invitations.

R. J. O'Donnell, general manager of the Interstate circuit, the largest theatre chain in the United States, is chairman of a committee planning the program for the day.

Other members of the committee are: J. B. Dugger, Paramount Pictures, Dallas; C. C. Ezell, Republic Pictures, Dallas; H. B. Robb, R & R Theatres, Dallas; R. E. Griffith Theatres, Dallas; Sol Gordon, Jefferson Amusement company, Beaumont; Henry Hall, Beeville, Texas; Fred Jack, Warner Brothers Pictures, Dallas, and Wallace Walthal, National Screen Service, Dallas.

Daring Voyager Finds Average Man Wants to Sail Around World Alone

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. (AP)—A deep seated longing in the heart of the average American to sail around the world was disclosed recently by William Albert Robinson.

Of average appearance himself with a tanned, pleasant face, Robinson has had first hand experience on voyages of the sort. He's been around the world once with a single companion in the 32-foot ketch Svaap, he's roamed the Pacific (where the navy rescued him from the Galapagos archipelago after an attack of acute appendicitis) and is bound now on another expedition in a 60-foot schooner to the China seas.

"From the fan letters I get, half the country must be sitting around in back yards thinking about expeditions to far lands in small boats," said Robinson, lolling in an over-stuffed chair in a suite of a midtown hotel.

"Learn for Yourself"
"They write me by the hundred. They tell me what good companions they would make or ask where they can get a boat and how free the Tahiti girls are with their favors."

"But the ones that write letters will never get there. You have to go out and learn how yourself."

Robinson was a young textile engineer just out of college in Massachusetts when he started to "learn how" seven years ago.

He bought the Svaap for $2,000 and in three years on the world trip spent another $5,000. He's made that up by writing books.

"I wouldn't advise many people to do it," he said. "It takes a certain mental outlook as well as physical ability and knowledge of boats."

Danger? He pulled the one about being safer in a boat than crossing Fifth avenue.

Wife Goes Along
Robinson has his own ideas about expeditions that infest the South seas. Members often spend their time carousing with liquor and native women, he asserts, then try to cash in on whatever publicity they can obtain.

As for himself, he takes pictures of natives in unspoiled regions and gathers other information of scientific value.

With Robinson on his trip through the China seas will sail his wife, who was with him also in the Pacific ocean expeditions

Thinks 1894 Lucky And Produces Data

WASHINGTON, Kan., Sept. 11. (AP)—Sherman F. Lull believes in a lucky number and its 1894.

He and his wife were born that year. For years they have had car license No. 1894.

In the republican primary this year Lull was running second in the race for nomination for county treasurer. It appeared he was beaten with 1,873 votes to 1,879 for his opponent. The absentee ballots came in, boosting Lull's total to 1,894, enough to win.

TO VISIT CENTENNIAL

DALLAS, Sept. 11. — Texas school children have had a break. They are to be escorted in groups for a visit to the Texas Centennial Exposition—and will receive full credits on their studies. "The Centennial is Educational," explains Governor Allred.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance taught school at Ashboro a while, and one reason she left to take a job in Blake Thornton's advertising agency in Atlanta was that she wanted to forget that she loved Denis Ford. Now she is slowly drifting into love with Blake, and he with her—and neither can do anything about it for Blake is married to a selfish and empty woman much lovelier than himself. Carol is to be bridesmaid at Ellen Sands' wedding; the festivities have begun.

Chapter 33 WEDDING

Ellen's house was alive and seething, and the hub of its activity was Ellen herself.

Ellen was again a dynamo; giving orders, superintending every detail—even to cataloguing the gifts that poured in. Mack was there, blissful and bewildered, following on her heels like a big devoted puppy. His most important job, he confided to Carol with a grin, was saving excelsior and string so that the presents could be shipped to Ashboro.

"I never saw so much stuff," he said in an awe-struck voice. "Looks to me like we'll more than make expenses."

Ben arrived Friday afternoon, fat and smiling and bald. He kissed Carol and Ellen resoundingly, and Carol noticed that he had already begun his pre-nuptial drinking.

"Well, well," he laughed, "it took a wedding to bring us all together again."

He was presented to the family, whom Carol had found disappointing. Mrs. Sands was small and limp and rather lost in the confusion; Mr. Sands was tall and quiet, with a druggist's pallor. Margaret, the younger sister, was like her mother, with a youthful freshness that still masked the resemblance. Ellen, Carol reflected, must have drawn upon some remote ancestor for her vitality and charm.

The rehearsal Friday evening was hellish. Ellen alone knew how things were to be done, and her training in gymnastic drill proved invaluable.

The rehearsal lasted three hours, and Carol had to be the bride because it would have been bad luck for Ellen to rehearse. Walking down the aisle to the throbbing strains of "Lohengrin" was a disturbing experience, she discovered, so she looked at the small boy, or at Ben's bald head, to distract her thoughts.

Mack's arm, linked in hers, was strong and steady, and Mack's young face was illumined. I should not have come, she thought, matching her step to Mack's; this is no place for a girl who has to keep her mind on her work. Even her dislike for pageants could not entirely dispel the glamour or blind her to the implications of the occasion.

There was a party after the rehearsal, at which the rest of the men and three girls joined Ben in his cups. She wanted to step from the audience into the ring with them—but her first intimation of drunkenness drove her, as always, back into herself.

The cake was cut, and remembering her promise to Freddie she put aside her slice to take home with her. Somebody yelled:

"Hey, you've got to see if there's anything in it!" And amid shouts of excitement crumbled the cake and discovered a small brass ring.

Ben shouted "S an omen, I knew fate was bringin' us together again. Carol, you've got to marry me!"

The thing was over finally, and Carol slipped gladly into bed. One more day, she thought, and I can go back to Atlanta—and—the office.

The ceremony went off without a misstep. Even the ring bearer was awed into obedience by the solemnity of the occasion. Several of the groomsmen were hilarious, but steady enough to walk straight and keep their places in the tableau.

Ellen said "I do" in a clear voice and Mack, with his eyes on her face, said it in a voice that was not so clear. There was a reception at the Sands home afterwards, and finally there was the calm that follows a storm.

Mrs. Sands collapsed into a chair and took off her shoes. "I hope when you get married, Margaret," she said plaintively, "that you'll run away and do it."

Mrs. Sands looked white and weary. For all her complaining, Mrs. Sands had liked it; marrying off a daughter was the proper thing, and she felt sorry for the women who had not yet achieved it. But Mr. Sands looked desolate; Ellen was his favorite, and he knew that getting married was not the feat women seemed to think it. In Mr. Sands' opinion, men hadn't a Chinaman's chance to escape.

They ate a late breakfast next morning in the midst of a Sabbath calm, and went in a body to church. Carol took the two o'clock train after declining Ben's offer to drive her to Atlanta. She had had enough of Ben for a while.

Even the Terminal station wore a dress of Sunday calm. She raked it quickly with her eyes and knew that Blake had not met her. Her relief was overwhelming, and she breathed a prayer of thankfulness that she had not protested against something he had no intention of doing.

A hurrying figure said: "Carol!" and she stopped. Porter Murray was coming towards her.

"I nearly missed you," he panted. "Forget to ask when you'd be back, so I called Blake on the chance that he knew. Gosh, I'm glad to see you, sweetheart!"

She laughed unsteadily. Porter would no doubt fill her evening with his gay and facile presence, and tomorrow there would be work again.

"Not half so glad as I am to see you!"

She would never learn, now, whether or not Blake had meant to meet her.

November. The days were short and bright, with the hard, clear brightness of glass. Irma, abetted by Dr. Freeman, made her plans to leave for Florida immediately after Thanksgiving. She was keyed to the point of hysteria, by the implications of her condition rather than by the condition itself, but she was still incapable of confiding in Blake.

The armor of his own indifference was pierced at times by bewilderment. She acts, he thought, as if she was afraid I would assault her.

He speculated several times on the nature of her trouble—correctly, had he but known it. But he put aside the answer as improbable. Irma had always revolved in her nervousness; it made her tremendously important to herself, and fed her ravenous ego.

He made no further attempts to detain her, partly because he sensed that he was beyond any help Irma might give him. She resented it irrationally; she had no intention of staying with him but her vanity demanded that he plead for it. Their parting at the station was a travesty on marital affection; words and gestures as meaningless as the lines of a fourth-rate actor.

He said: "Be sure to wire me when you get there. I'll be anxious until I hear."

"I will."

She was preoccupied with the disposal of her luggage.

Blake said mechanically: "I hope this change is going to make you feel better."

"Oh, I think it will."

The luggage was arranged now and she could give him her attention. He kissed her automatically and her flesh was not even alive beneath his lips. Don't think of the last time you were at the station, he told himself angrily. Don't think of anything.

When he had gone Irma put her hat carefully in its paper bag (the porter never did it properly) then lay back and closed her eyes. She felt raw and quivering, as if small pieces of her skin had been chipped away, leaving the nerve ends exposed. The noise of the racing train with its monotonous clackety-clack echoed and re-echoed in her brain.

Relaxation came with the miles, paid out by the racing train like a fisherman's line. The monotonous clacking became a lullaby, and her thoughts faced forward rather than back—towards the warmth and color and ease of Florida.

Rose would be in Marston this winter, although not until after Christmas, and several people whom she had known in other winters. She would be inviolate for four months, and beyond those four months she would not think.

Somehow, a long way off, a telephone was clamoring. Carol turned uneasily and rose almost to the surface of consciousness.

That can't be the alarm clock, her mind protested; why doesn't someone answer it?

The clamor persisted, dragging her finally from the depths of sleep. It's my phone, she realized dazedly, and stumbled across the room to answer it.

A hoarse voice said "Carol . . ." and stopped.

The voice was unrecognizable.

"Yes."

"This is Harry. I hate like the devil to disturb you at this hour, but . . ." Harry's voice snapped in two, and then with the remnants he went on.

Catholics Over Southwest Plan Exposition Day

(Special to The Daily Press) DALLAS, Sept. 11—Thousands of Catholics from all over the Southwest and many from other sections will gather here Sunday, October 11, for the observance of Catholic Day at the Texas Centennial Exposition.

"A large percentage is expected to remain through Monday, the anniversary of the discovery of America, for the celebration of both Italian and Columbus Day," announced the Very Rev. Joseph G. O'Donohoe, chairman of the Catholic Exhibit at the $25,000,000 Texas World's Fair.

A military mass will be the high point of Catholic Day. The Most Rev. William D. O'Brien, auxiliary bishop of Chicago and president of the Catholic Church Extension Society, will preach, and the military participation will be under the direction of the Most Rev. Joseph Patrick Lynch, bishop of Dallas, will pontificate.

The 5,500-seat amphitheater will become a cathedral for the day. An ornate altar will occupy the stage, with a throne for Bishop Lynch on the gospel side and on the epistle side, one for the Most Rev. A. J. Drossaerts, Archbishop of San Antonio. Seats of honor with priedieu will be placed in the sanctuary for visiting bishops and other prelates.

Father O'Donohoe said that an elaborate musical program of solos, quartets and choruses would be presented before and in connection with the mass. A large chorus consisting of the school children and parish choirs of the diocese will sing the "Centennial Mass," especially composed for the occasion by W. J. Marsh of Fort Worth and dedicated to Bishop Lynch. Allen McQuehae's male chorus will sing the responses and give the Gregorian Proper.

Snake Rattle Wakes Pair Asleep in Yard

(AP)—The rattle of a snake awakened Mr. and Mrs. Will Woods one hot night when they were sleeping in a low farm wagon in their yard near here.

Afraid to move or lie still, they called for help. Their son-in-law, Jake Sparks, brought a flashlight, found the snake draped over a wheel of the wagon, its head dancing arcs near the couple.

Sparks killed the snake. It measured six feet, had 14 rattles.

Texas Picture Due In Cisco Saturday

"The Texas Rangers," King Vidor's historical epic of the men who molded a state from the territory of Texas, comes tomorrow to the Palace Theatre for a 2 days run.

The picture features an all star-cast headed by Fred MacMurray and Jack Oakie, and including among its headliners Jean Parker, Lloyd Nolan, Edward Ellis, Bennie Bartlett and a score of others. Filmed on location in Texas and New Mexico by a company of several thousand persons, with the assistance of officials of both states, "The Texas Rangers" combines a fast-moving, action and thrill-filled story and a panoramic view of the unfolding of the history of the Lone Star state.

Banded together under an oath to "drive out hostile Indians, stop feuds, destroy cattle and horse thieves, gangs of stage and train robbers, kill or capture murderers, and make Texas a reasonably safe place in which to live," the Rangers contributed much to the color of the State's early days. Both MacMurray and Oakie join the fearless band in the course of the motion picture.

Encounters of Ranger companies with bands of marauding Indians and with stage coach robbers are a part of the plot development. Miss Parker, remembered for her sincere interpretations of important roles in "Sequoia" and "Little Women," is cast as the daughter of the head of a Ranger unit.
