SECOND 'SKELETON' TRIAL SET NOV. 2

Hitler Hints He Wants New Russian Territory

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The Press family bids the Judge goodby today and goes to another field of effort. For the past two years the Judge has been an important and loved member of the Press circle. His articles about "Old-Timers," his "Judge's Corner" contribution, and his other writings have been read with much interest by the subscribers. He will continue some of his contributions, but this time from a distance.

Tomorrow, he joins the Eastland Weekly Record at Eastland to begin new duties and associations which I hope will return him much profit and pleasure.

For the past two years the Judge's desk has been a fixture in one corner of the Daily Press office. There, littered with the exchanges, clippings, paste pots, and other appurtenances of the editorial trade, and distinguished by a venerable Oliver, it has been a symbol of a tradition venerated by all who love the newspaper profession and cling to the standards of honest editorial expression that made the democratic press of the past so vital a factor in the molding of a great civilization. The corner will be vacant now, its former occupants gone to another field to carry on the tradition that they represent.

Judge has been in Cisco since the boom days almost 20 years ago. He started the American and made it a valuable and influential weekly. He later sold to A. B. O'Flaherty and when Mr. O'Flaherty sold his newspaper interest here in 1919, he went to Hobbs, N. M., for a spell. Returning two years later he purchased the Cisco Citizen, selling it two years ago to the Free Press Publishing Corp. which developed it into the Cisco Daily Press.

In Eastland, Judge will continue to contribute to the Press, so that he will be, in reality, serving a larger field than he has been privileged to serve in the past. We bid him goodbye with a sense of loss, and wish him much success in his new place.

Holds the Strings Of Hitler's Purse

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichbank and minister of economics in Germany, holds the purse strings of the Nazi nation as Chancellor Hitler thunders for more territory and more wealth for the Reich.

NEED OF RAW MATERIAL IS SHOWN NAZIS

Germany Will Win If War Comes, Leader Tells Young Nazis

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 12 (AP)—Adolf Hitler said today that Germany would be overwhelmingly prosperous "if we had" the rich agricultural lands and the ore-laden mountains of Soviet Russia.

Der Fuehrer told thousands of young Nazis that Germany would triumph over Russia "if the hour ever comes" when there is war. He painted a picture which acquisition would bring in contrast with the present struggle against raw material shortage.

"Swimming In Wealth" "If we had the Urals: If we possessed Siberia or the Ukraine, National Socialist Germany would be swimming in surplus prosperity," he said.

Describing the Soviet surplus land and materials, Hitler said: "I am not in the fortunate position of the Soviet Jews. Nevertheless Germany's problem must be solved." As Hitler spoke 200 heavy bombers and hundreds of pursuit planes wheeled and circled above the congress hall.

It was only for a brief minute in his long speech, however, that Hitler suggested the advantages Germany would gain by the possession of lands in the east.

"Germany Must Live." Speaking of the problem Germany must solve, Der Fuehrer said: "There is no such thing as saying it cannot be done. It can be done because it must be done. Germany must live!" The Reichsfuehrer's whole speech was a plea for patience, fortitude and determination in the task which, he admitted might take a generation to solve.

Governor Landon said that the most vital concern is restoring to 11,000,000 unemployed men their birthright of becoming self-supporting citizens. He said: "Until we restore confidence and speed up recovery, we must continue to provide relief."

DELLA HENRY DEFENDANT IN M'BEE DEATH

Judge B. W. Patterson Sets Case in 88th District Court

Trial of Mrs. Della Henry, for the murder of her former husband, H. L. McBee, was set Saturday by Judge B. W. Patterson of the 88th district court for November 2.

The trial will be the second in Eastland county's famous "hanging skeleton murder" case. Raymond Henry, husband of the accused woman, recently was sentenced by an Eastland county jury to 50 years imprisonment.

Disappeared in 1933 McBee, a highway worker, disappeared from his home at Rising Star on or about March 1, 1933. The state charges that he was buried that night and that the body was later disinterred and hung by a wire from a tree north-east of Rising Star, where it was found by two rabbit hunters in December, 1934.

Some time after McBee's disappearance Mrs. McBee was granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion and soon afterward married Henry.

The specific charge upon which Henry was tried and convicted was that he stabbed McBee with an ice pick in the latter's home on March 1, 1933, that he, M. E. "Sandy" Tyler, and Jack and Lynn Smith buried McBee's body that night, and that the body was later dug up and suspended from a tree in an oak thicket.

Four Indicted Indicted with Mr. and Mrs. Henry for the murder were Jack and Lynn Smith. Jack Smith committed suicide in the Eastland county jail while awaiting trial. Lynn Smith's murder indictment later was dismissed on motion of the state, leaving only the indictment of accessory to the murder.

Star witnesses for Henry and expected to appear in defense of their mother were the two McBee children, Billy Ray and Geneva. Billy Ray testified that he was in

Enlisted Men Of Army Move In To Open 'Paper War'

(Special to The Daily Press)
FORT SAM HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 12—More than 650 enlisted men now are occupying the various command posts of the Third Army Command Post Exercise set-up on the entire military reservation of Fort Sam Houston and Camp Bullis, in preparation for forthcoming problem when more than 500 officers including 14 generals will operate their mythical combat units against an assumed Black enemy power invading our southern shores.

Although the actual Third Army combat troops are assumed to be in the field, the 650 enlisted men comprise the force necessary to operate the various staff headquarters during the Command Post Exercise.

Men Are Trained

Preliminary to the arrival of the staff officers on September 17 to study the problem before taking over their command posts for the actual play of the exercise on September 23, the enlisted men are being thoroughly trained in the duties they must perform as clerical helpers and technicians.

Telephones, telegraph communications systems, keys and tele-typers, and radio sets already have been set up and are being operated daily by the operators as they test the efficiency of their systems between the various headquarters which will flash from commander to commander, from command post to command post when this big "paper war" actually begins.

Daring Band Rides Again in "Rangers"

The early Post-Reconstruction Southwest, with its ever-present Indian dangers and its roaming outlaws, lives again on the screen of the Palace Theatre this week where King Vidor's epic picture, "The Texas Rangers," opened yesterday.

A story as dramatic and thrilling as its background is sweeping, "The Texas Rangers" outlines the work of the band of fearless men who brought order to the Lone Star state. Fred MacMurray and Jack O'Keefe, cast in leading roles, appear as outlaws who join the Rangers, taking part in the daily work of daring undertakings by America's first organization of state peace officers.

Famous Rangers Oath

The Rangers took oath, on enlisting, to subdue Indians, kill or capture murderers, break up gangs of brigands and cattle thieves, and "make Texas a reasonably safe place in which to live." The two characters, in the course of the plot, have a leading part in the final great battle of the Rangers with hostile Indians, which led to subduing of the marauding tribes. Filmed by Vidor with a cast including several hundred braves and as many Rangers, the scene is one of the most thrilling ever thrown on a screen.

Tips on CONTRACT

Grand Slam Bidding

Some players prefer conventional ace-showing in slam bidding; others think the inferences of strength-showing bids are sufficient to demonstrate first-round suit control.

In illustration is a hand big differently at the Ashbury Park tournament of the American Bridge league.

At a table where Matthew S. Reilly and Louis J. Haddad of Chicago held the North-South cards the bidding was:

WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH P 1C P 1S P 3C P 3H P 3S P 4NT P 5NT P 7S

On the second round of bidding North showed a strong suit by his jump rebid of clubs. South's opening of a new suit, hearts, instead of a discouraging simple rebid of spades, caused North to have slam hopes.

Having located all the aces and knowing North had at least three spades to the ace, South had no hesitation in contracting to take all the tricks with spades trump.

At another table it took Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lemon of Washington only three rounds to reach the grand slam, as follows:

WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH P 1C P 1S P 2C P 3H P 4S P 7S

The key bids were South's offer of three hearts, one more than necessary, over two clubs, and North's bid of four spades, one more than necessary, over three hearts. It was obvious to North that South by his three-Hearts bid would not make a slam-inviting force without a long spade suit or a fit in clubs.

Advocates of the four and five no trump conventions insist, however, that the conventions in many hands are necessary for Grand Slam bidding because inferential bidding would not indicate control clearly enough.

At each of these tables the play was the same. A low diamond was opened. Both declarers dropped the spade queen and trumped one diamond in the face hand, discarding two low hearts on the ace and king of clubs.

SIGHT IS PRICELESS—LIGHT IS CHEAP

WOULD YOU endanger a CHAMPION'S EYES?

That son of yours may be heading for championship in golf, tennis, or other sports. Or he may be a champion student or just a plain champion son!

You wouldn't knowingly handicap him with poor vision. No siree! But if you permit him to read, study or work under insufficient light or improper lighting of any kind, you may unwittingly contribute toward handicapping a potential champion.

Protect your champion's eyes with good lighting at home. What is good lighting? Diffused light, free from glare, sharp shadows or strong contrasts—and plenty of light for reading or study.

HOW MUCH LIGHT DO YOU NEED TO PROTECT EYESIGHT?

Science has now determined how much light we need to see easily and comfortably...for reading books...for reading newspapers...for sewing...and for other eye tasks. It has also made a device, the Light Meter, which measures your lighting in a jiffy. You read the story of your lighting on the dial as you read the story of temperature on a thermometer. How does your home measure up? We will be glad to show you.

Let us Help you Check Your Lighting

A trained representative qualified to make suggestions about lighting will bring to your home a Light Meter and other special equipment designed to show you the effects of good lighting...and how to achieve it. Thus you can see for yourself what is necessary to protect the eyesight of the rest of your family, as well as that of your son! Phone or call for an appointment at your convenience.

New Light Meter measures light as easily as a thermometer measures temperature.

The new I. E. S. Floor and Student Lamps give much more light at low cost. See them on display at our display room.

Loboes Pointing Toward Game With Electra

Team Is Better Than Originally Rated on Paper

Taking their last workout before the beginning of the school term, the Cisco Loboes Saturday afternoon were pointing for their first game, with less than a week remaining before they open the season at Electra Friday night.

Although the Loboes for some time have been doped to have an unusually bad season this year, indications from the early practice sessions were that the team will be somewhat improved over last year's edition. What appears to be the chief need of the gridders is confidence on the part of the fans.

Coach Encouraged

Coach Dexter Shelley Saturday night appeared to be somewhat encouraged over the prospects for this season. "They're mighty green," he said, "but I believe by the middle of the season we will have some kind of a football team."

Shelley said the team will probably average about 155 pounds and that he can put about a 160-pound line on the field.

Electra, a strong Class B team, generally has a strong team and this year is doped to go far in its district race. Last season the Loboes opened with Electra on Chesney field and this season for the first time in their history will play their opening game away from home.

Sweetwater Beats Roscoe in Opener

SWEETWATER, Sept. 12.—Sweetwater opened the Oil Belt football season Friday night with a 20 to 6 victory over the Roscoe Cowboys to serve notice on the district that it may look for trouble during the next few weeks from the Mustangs.

The Ponies showed a varied attack built around Cecil Bruner and Leach McElroy. They scored in the first quarter without losing the ball. After Doyle Pitts, Roscoe quarterback, had raced 91 yards for a touchdown on the next kickoff, they settled down and scored again before the end of the first half. Bruner passed to Young for the final tally in the second half.

John Cobb Sets New 24-Hour Speed Mark

BOONEVILLE FLATS, Utah, Sept. 12 (AP)—John Cobb, English driver, set a new 24-hour motor car speed record of 150.16 miles per hour, shattering half a dozen minor marks along the way today.

The former mark of 149.09 was held by George E. T. Eyston, also an Englishman.

Jock Sutherland Ready for His 13th Season at Pitt With Powerful Aggregation to Balk Gridiron Giants

By JOSEPH H. SNYDER

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12. (AP)—Big Jock Sutherland faces a comparatively simple problem this year in shaping another powerful eleven to carry the Pitt Panthers through the 1936 football wars.

That is, unless the inscrutable Scot is superstitious. Jock is leading the Panthers to the gridiron for the 13th consecutive season.

Behind him is his brilliant record of 12 seasons: 86 victories, 12 defeats, 10 ties.

Pre-season signs point to a traditional Pitt powerhouse that will have to rumble through a rough schedule including such football greats as Ohio State, Notre Dame, Nebraska and Fordham.

But Dr. Sutherland probably will be ready. His team should be heavier, faster and—what is more important to Sutherland—much more experienced than his 1935 sophomore machine.

Football experts say they doubt if Sutherland ever seriously thought his eleven of last year would do nearly as well as it did. This team was beaten by Notre Dame, tied by Fordham and Carnegie Tech, but managed to beat Nebraska, Penn State and the other opponents.

Graduation Hurts

A survey of the 1936 material shows Pitt did not escape altogether without graduation losses. Among the missing are Capt. Nick Klisky, Halfback Hub Randour, Leon Shedlosky, Art Detzel and Vin Sites, all of whom performed notably.

This year's team will bring out 19 juniors, 10 of whom earned letters last year.

The outstanding veterans are Bobby Larue, star halfback from Greensburg, Pa.; Leo Malarkey of McDonald, Pa.; Arnold Greene, quarterback from Huntingdon, Pa.; Abe Daniel, tackle from Pittsburgh, and Biff Glassford, a sturdy guard who hails from Lancaster, Pa.

A glance at the backfield prospects shows Sutherland will have besides Larue, Malarkey and Greene, at least a dozen promising men on whom he will depend to help carry the ball to uphold Pitt's record of not having been beaten by an eastern team in eight years.

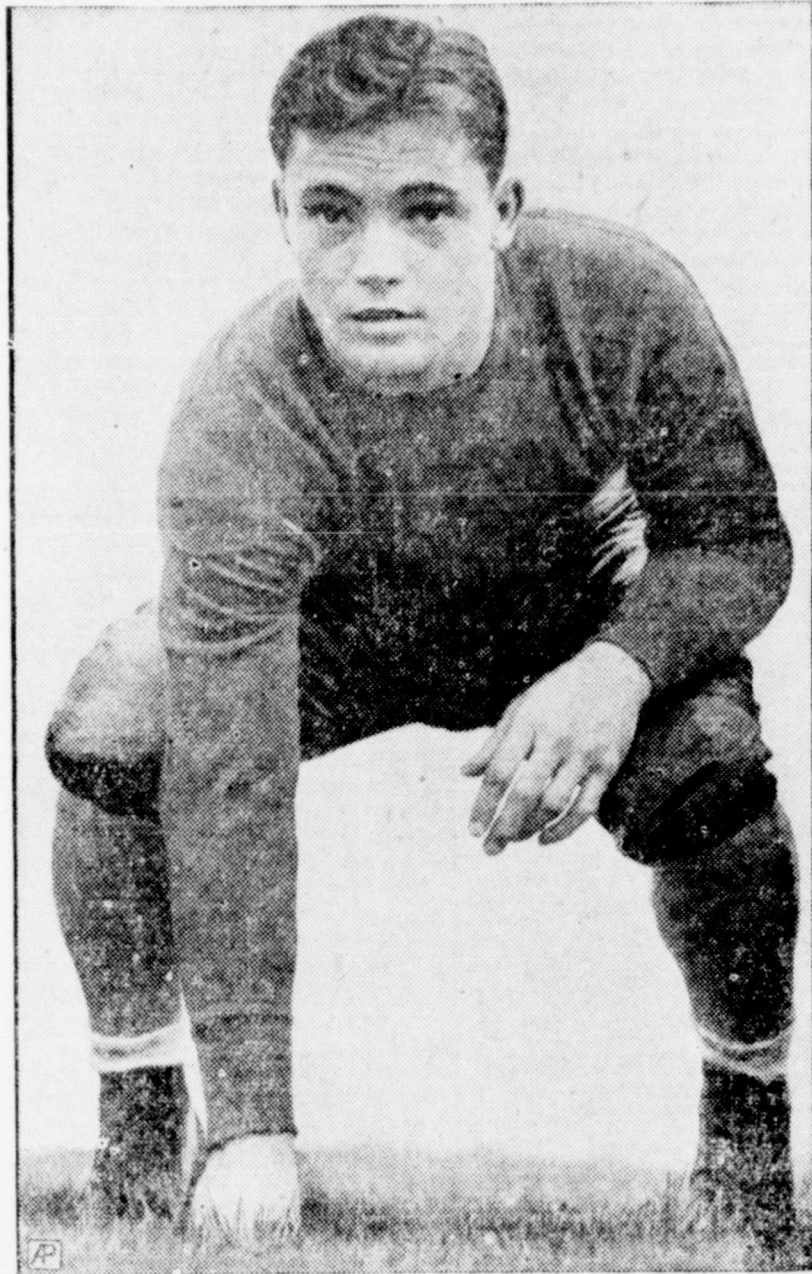

Marshall Goldberg is described as a "find." He carried the ball like a veteran and amazed the coaches by penetrating the varsity line and secondary during the spring drills.

Wing Trouble Ends

Last year Sutherland was bothered with end trouble. It appears he will have plenty of strength in this department. He probably will count on Paul (Bomber) Shaw of Bradford, Pa., at the left end assignment, and Frank Souchak of Berwick, Pa., at right.

Tony Matisi, a bruising junior from Endicott, N. Y., and George Delich of Gary, Ind., likely will line up as first string tackles.

SPORT SLANTS

by PAP

A sure-fire baseball argument—one that never fails to provoke a red hot debate—is the discussion of the relative merits of Dizzy Dean and Carl Hubbell. Each has his own staunch supporters who are ever ready to quote facts and figures to prove their contentions.

There is no question the fact that Dean and Hubbell are the two outstanding moundsmen in the National league. They are great pitchers. You can take your choice and come close to being correct. So why not name Dean the king-pin of the right-handed tossers and Hubbell the daddy of the southpaws? There ought to be honors enough for both.

They are different types—the long, loud-talking Dean, and the quiet, self-effacing Hubbell. They go about achieving great results on the mound in different fashion.

son, four have been by the margin of a single run.

Hubbell has not been blessed with the advantage of the hard-hitting, run-getting supporting cast that Dean has enjoyed most of the current season. This is borne out by the records which show that 10 of Hubbell's triumphs have been achieved by one-run differences.

In temperament, Dean and Hubbell are as far apart as the poles. The even-tempered Hubbell has as fine a baseball temperament as any big-league pitcher ever had. He is the same under any circumstances. With no fuss or fireworks Carl goes about his pitching chores with determination and deliberation. Temperamental outbursts have no place in his scheme of things.

Gets Tough Jobs

Hubbell, on September 1, had scored 164 victories for the Giants since he doctored the New York uniform in the summer of 1928. Ninety-four defeats were charged against him in that time. He is rated the greatest Giant pitcher since Christy Mathewson, and is, very likely, the greatest left-hander the Giants ever had.

That last statement covers a lot of territory for Giant rosters of the past have boasted some outstanding southpaws in Art Nehf, Rube Marquard and George Wiltse. Marquard ran up a string of victories one season for the Giants. But the Rube lacked Hubbell's steadiness over a stretch. Many times Marquard blew up to the skies.

Carl always has been a great team player. He is every ready to step in and save a game. He willingly pitches in or out of turn and does whatever his manager asks. There have been few soft spots picked out for him. In most cases he draws the tough assignments, where his mound opponent is laboring to hang up a victory which would enhance his reputation. Hubbell's record is all the greater for the way it has been achieved.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Fred Perry of England today was again crowned American tennis champion after he rallied in one of the most dramatic championship matches ever staged in this country to turn back the youthful Don Budge of California in a five-set match.

Several times Budge was within three points and twice within two of the championship, only to falter before the steady fire of his more experienced rival in the eighteenth game of the fifth set.

Miss Alice Marble of San Francisco upset the favorite, Miss Helen Jacobs, after coming from behind a one set lead, to win the national woman's championship.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol realizes that although she has tried not to fall in love with her employer, Blake Thornton, that is exactly what she has done. And he with her. But Blake is married to a selfish woman, years older than he, who will not divorce him, and there seems little that they can do about the matter. Carol just has been wakened early in the morning by a telephone call from the husband of one of her college friends, obviously in distress.

Chapter 14 DISASTE

"They've just taken little Hal to the hospital to be operated on. Mastoid."

The word reverberated in her sleep-clogged mind. Mastoid. She whispered, "Oh, Harry..." and was silent.

"Marge—wanted to know if you'd come and sit with her while they—operate. I'll have to go back and stay with Dollie until the girl comes. It's after five now."

"Of course I will! Where are you?"

"St. Martin's. Would you take a taxi? I'll come back here as soon as I possibly can."

"Of course. But wouldn't you rather have me stay with Dollie so you can be with Margery?"

"No, I'll stay at home." She guessed that the blow had so staggered him that he wanted to be sure of Dollie.

"I'll be there inside half an hour."

She hung up the receiver and snapped on a light, then called a taxi before she began to dress.

The taxi was waiting when she came down ten minutes later. At St. Martin's the switchboard girl said: "Third floor, sitting-room at the end of the corridor..." and she ran for the elevator.

Margery was a small frozen figure huddled into a lumpy couch. She whimpered: "Carol!" and began to cry.

Carol sat down and took her in her arms. "Hold it! Don't do that, darling." She sat still, holding Margery tightly. "Have they—started yet?"

"A few minutes ago." The gates were down, and Margery found momentary relief in words. "He's complained of earache for two days, and I took him to Dr. Howard yesterday. He said to watch it carefully and let him know at once if the pain got worse. He waked up about half-past three, screaming, and when I called Dr. Howard he came right out, and we brought him here. Her voice faded.

"Then you must have gotten hold of it promptly, and that's the main thing."

She wondered if that was true. She knew nothing of the ways of mastoid, but the words had a confident, comforting sound.

"Have you had anything to eat?" Carol demanded.

"Oh, no. I—it would make me sick."

"Not coffee. I'm going and see if I can't rustle some."

She found a young nurse who said, Yes indeed; she would see that they had coffee right away.

Minutes stumbled past. Coffee came, and inside and outside the hospital the world stretched and yawned and made noisy preparation for another day. Sunlight stole between two walls and poured its pale gold on the floor at their feet. At intervals Margery asked from the loneliness of her anguish:

"What time is it?" and her voice was small and unmodulated, like a child's.

"Twenty-five minutes of eight." "He said it would take about two hours, probably." She turned to stare at the doorway. "Harry ought to be here before long. I—wish I had my knitting; I was making him a sweater to wear to kindergarten..."

Harry came a few minutes later, looking gray and drawn, walking unnecessarily on tiptoe. He with her back to them.

"Shall I clear out now?" she asked without turning.

"Please don't," Harry said. "Unless you think you really ought to. If he—stands it all right—I'll have to keep two appointments this morning."

Business as usual. Because, Carol knew, he would need his commissions more than ever, to cope with all this. Well, having to carry on would perhaps be better than this.

A sound in the doorway brought them to their feet, white-faced and silent and questioning. Dr. Howard stood there, dragging a white cap from his head.

"So far so good," he said, and his steady voice sounded loud and clear in the hushed room. "He went through it better than we could have hoped for. We got it just in time..."

Margery whimpered with relief, and Harry's arm tightened about her shoulders.

"How soon will we know anything?" he asked hoarsely.

"I can't exactly tell. He won't be out of the ether for some time—maybe an hour." He eyed them keenly. "Why don't you go home and get a hot bath and some breakfast?"

They stirred and sighed. Harry said: "I guess we will do that. Thanks, Doctor."

In the car Margery said: "Carol, can't you come on home and have breakfast with us?"

She shook her head. "No, I'll get

Hollywood SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 12.—A lady mincingly treading egg shells has nothing on Mae West, the champion of solid charms and curves, when she undertakes a new picture.

Mae substitutes her "swivel swing" for mincing, but she doesn't break any egg shells, either. She has a set of rules, and when that West character steps on a sound stage, those rules are inviolate.

She is applying them currently on "Go West, Young Man," which is the new title (Hays office-imposed) for "Personal Appearance," a play which unaltered would not have received a production code certificate. There have been some changes made, of course, both for Mae and for the production code.

Mae's Own Code

Rule No. 1 (in Mae's own code) is that her character never steals another woman's man.

No. 2 is that Mae can do practically anything to any character provided he or she is a heel—but if the other fellow's a good guy, Mae's tactics have to be on the level.

And No. 3 is to make no play for "sympathy."

All of them stem from the Westian realization that what she has to offer is different from the wares of other actresses. On the stage it was Mae who got the word "sex" into headlines when it couldn't go alone into advertising columns, and while her kidding treatment of it has been a screen sensation of this decade, she knows that the character requires skillful handling.

"Taking another woman's fellow, for instance," she says, "is something that'll get an audience down on you. They don't like it, and they decide you're an all-bad gal. I can't have that.

"I've even got to be careful what I say to a character the audience likes. They won't stand for having a good guy picked on. But when I romp on the other kind, that's fine.

"And as for what they call 'sympathy'—I don't want it. Don't want anybody feeling sorry for me. A lot of people raise a howl if they play parts that don't get the 'sympathy,' but not me. I figure if they give me the laughs they're with me, and that's what counts."

Uses Bennett Car

Mae takes care of those things in twisting the dialog to suit her needs. Of other things, too—like putting in a couple of men the play lacked.

"I figure I've got to give an audience what it expects," she says, "and I can't wait for several reels until a man comes in. Things have told him, as 'steadily as possible, what had happened. "I hope it's all right?" she concluded.

And tomorrow Blake's reserve breaks.

At nine she called Blake.

went to the couch and put his arms around Margery, and Carol got up and stood at the window a bath and put my clothes on properly, and have breakfast downstairs in the tea-room. Would you like for me to sit with you while Harry is away?"

"Oh, if you would!" Margery whispered. "Mother will get here late this afternoon, but I'd be so glad to have you if the office can spare you."

"I'm sure I can." She was immeasurably touched by the fact that Margery had turned to her.

At nine she called Blake and

Animal Stars To Share Honors In Russell Circus

Animal actors are similar to the human performers when it comes to being sleepy and it frequently happens that at the night performance of Russell Bros. Circus, due in Cisco on Tuesday, Sept. 29, the beasts are either irritable or slow as they may have been awakened from a strong sleep to enter the ring.

Of the several score of animal actors with this circus, perhaps "Buddy" is the only one that is as alert and quick of action at the night show as he is at the matinee. Buddy is recognized as the best trained seal ever before the public and his act is perhaps the only case where one single animal is the sole performer during one number. Buddy works in the center ring under the direction of his trainer, Fred Jenier, and he seems to know that all eyes are always centered upon him as he does his best always and is well rewarded with liberal supply of fish during his act.

Notable as Buddy is, there are many animal acts which are interesting and some are very comical. The liberty horse act on the hippodrome track featuring Millers dancing horses; the riding monkeys and chimpanzees; the clown dogs; kicking donkeys and mules; leaping hounds; remarkable acts by fox terriers; the best herd of trained elephants ever with any circus; last and most sensational Reb Russell's famous horse "Rebel."

Trained wild animal acts are tedious and tiresome as compared with the acts by the domestic and more docile beasts. The public has come to value and admire horses as never before and for that reason several specimens of the beautiful ring horses, dancing horses, jumping horses and "Rebel" are exhibited in the menagerie tent of the Russell Bros. Circus, together with the cute shetland pointer with the cute shetland pointer.

Bears Get First Light Scrimmage Of Year Monday

(Special to The Daily Press)
WACO, Sept. 12.—With official practice well under way at Baylor University, Coach Morley Jennings' Bears will don their football armor for a light scrimmage Monday afternoon. Forty-six husky grid candidates, lettermen, squadmen, sophomores, and transfers, reported for the initial practice session last Thursday, and the Bruin mentor has been putting his charges through two drills a day during this opening period. The double duty days include Monday and Tuesday, but the Bruins will get relief from this heavy practice when classes open Wednesday.

Every man, with the exception of Lloyd Russell, was present on the 10th. Russell, who has been playing amateur baseball in the north this summer, will report Monday. Worthy prospects who were not included on the pre-season roster include Fred Graham of Dallas, Ernest Martinek of Austin, and Lawrence Thornton of Mineral Wells, all backfield candidates, and Robert Page and William Rodgers, linemen. Jennings and his new assistant, Bill Henderson, have wasted no time during the opening days. Most of the Bruin gridgers reported for training in excellent physical condition from their various tasks in lumber camps, oil fields, and construction gangs. The Grizzlies were immediately set to elementary drills and a few plays. Jennings took charge of the backfield candidates, with Bill Henderson taking charge of the line-men, assisted by Jim Crow, freshman coach, who is aiding in the initial training drills.

Fiscal Problem--

city began May 1, 1936, and will end April 30, 1937) the city has a potential advalorem revenue of $56,314 of which three-fifths, or $33,788.40 is allocated to the general fund and $22,525.60 to the bond sinking fund. Estimated water and sanitary department revenues are $30,000, making a total potential municipal income of $86,314 for the current year.

75 Per Cent Collection

But not all the potential advalorem revenues will be collected. Mayor Berry reminded. A 75 per cent collection is considered normally good, and figured on that basis, the general fund stands to receive approximately $25,000 in actual cash revenues, which, added to the estimated $30,000 of water and sanitation revenues, will make approximately $55,000 available for defraying expenses of the municipal operation during the current fiscal year.

During the year closed last April 30 it required approximately $78,000 to finance the city's operations, exclusive of bond servicing. This rate of expenditure still continues, and on the basis of anticipated revenues, promises a deficit of $23,000 at the end of the year.

How to reduce the city's expenses to a point where the outgo will coincide with the income is the present serious concern of the city. It must be done, Mayor Berry declared.

Still Not Enough

He explained further that the estimated 75 per cent collection of advalorem taxes allocated to the sinking fund would provide only $16,894.20 for payment of the more than $30,000 interest and principal installments that will be due.

Some of the institutions maintained out of the tax revenues are made mandatory in the city's charter. Among them are the municipal chamber of commerce and zoo, costing about $6,000 annually to support. This various departments of the municipal government will bear an intense scrutiny, it was indicated, in order to determine where expenses may be drastically reduced.

The estimates quoted above are predicted on the basis of a normal year. They do not take into consideration the effect of drought or other abnormal conditions.

tracted to transfer its scholastics to the Desdemona school for one year, Eldridge said.

More Teachers

Robinson Springs is transferring 104 scholastics, while Lowell is transferring 44. These transfers will increase the Desdemona school from an eleven-teacher school to a fifteen-teacher school, according to Superintendent Eldridge. These transfers were accomplished through the efforts of the superintendent, who is working for the best interest of the scholastics, as he sees it.

The superintendent has been of material assistance to R. N. Cluck, Cisco school superintendent, in putting over the transfers of the five schools transferred to Cisco this year. Two of the five transferred, Bedford and Central, were made on the superintendent's own motion, acting under school rule No. 79, which gives him the authority to act when the trustees fail of agreement.

These transfers for better educational advantages are in line with the plans of the superintendent's office, Eldridge said, as it is the purpose of the superintendent to see that every child in Eastland county shall have free access to some affiliated high school.
