asking judgment of $25,000 for alleged actual damages and $25,000 exemplary damages.

The petition named Anna R. Bowen and D. R. Gayle as operators of the Bowen Drug Stores in Waco, Sweetwater and Lubbock, where allegedly August, 1936, Official Detective Story magazines were sold with a story concerning his daughter, Louise Lawson.

Lawson stated in the petition his daughter was murdered Feb. 28, 1924, in New York City, where she went to study music, and the murderer has not been apprehended.

Lawson's petition alleged the magazine story libeled his daughter's character. He said his daughter had been a member of the Columbus Street Baptist church choir in Waco and had studied music in the musical department of Baylor University in Waco.

The petition was filed by Tom M. Hamilton and J. A. Kibler of Waco.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR

Railroad men are good neighbors. Every merchant likes railroad families for customers—churches and lodges like them for members. Steady and responsible, most railroad men own their own homes. They pay their bills, meet their taxes, keep up their insurance. Some of them live in your neighborhood. For the railroad is a home industry.

When you travel or ship via train you help your own community by making more railroad jobs for local men, supporting local families, patronizing local businesses. Western railroads and allied industries last year employed 750,000 workers.

The railroads themselves are good neighbors. They pay huge tax bills. They buy 70,000 commodities from factories, stores, farms, mines, quarries, lumber companies and diversified industries.

We invite you to use our services—fast freight with Free pick-up-and-delivery of LCL—world's finest passenger transportation in sleeping cars or coaches at lowest cost—substantial savings on round trip tickets—air-conditioning—dependability—comfort—safety. . . . See the railroad agent.

The lurking cold germ is waiting for your defenses to be lowered. Leading doctors tell us that fifty per cent of all disabling diseases start with a "common cold." America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, strikes with such viciousness that sixty per cent of the population has three or more "colds" each year. Think of this startling total of over two hundred million illnesses—many of which could be avoided with adequate heat and proper ventilation throughout the home.

Spread of Disease Can Be Checked With Care, Says City Health Officer

By DR. W. P. LEE
City Health Officer

More than 17,000 died in Texas in 1934 of preventable diseases. The most prevalent of these diseases include malaria, typhoid and paratyphoid fever, pellagra, diphtheria, diphtheria, typhus fever, and small pox. It is probable that unusual death rate from certain preventable diseases is due in part to climatic conditions in the affected areas and to the living conditions of a large portion of the population in these areas. But the situation merely demonstrates the extent of the necessary improvement of the public health in these areas and cannot be regarded as a plausible excuse for the existence of such a death rate.

Malaria

Malaria is contracted from the bite of a certain species of mosquito when it has taken in the germ from a person suffering from the disease or from a carrier of malaria. It is found in 186 of the 254 counties in Texas and these 186 counties contain 95 per cent of the population. A survey made by the state department of health in 1934 revealed the fact that 10 per cent of its population are carriers of malaria. The death rate from this disease is 8.2 per 100,000 in Texas, and in the nation over the same period of time, 3.7 per 100,000.

To prevent this disease is to destroy the breeding place of the mosquito, screening the houses, and prompt medical attention.

Typhoid Fever

Typhoid fever, another of the preventable diseases, is caused by unsanitary food and water supplies. These may be contaminated at their source or after they reach the home. Flies, breeding in filth of all kinds, are natural carriers of typhoid and food accessible to flies is subject to typhoid contamination. Texas ranks ninth among the states of the union from deaths from this disease with a rate of 8.1 per 100,000 population. The national rate is 3.4. In other words, our state ranks ninth from a disease which is contracted wholly from unsanitary conditions.

It can be prevented by strict inspection and informed protection of all water, milk, and food supplies, and by complete treatment and disposal of all human excreta, and in times of threatened epidemics by vaccination.

Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis causes more deaths than any of the other preventable diseases. In 1924 nearly one fourth of the deaths in Texas from preventable diseases were caused from tuberculosis. The death rate for that year was 66.2 per 100,000, compared with 36.6 for the United States. Only 11 states had a higher death rate than Texas. Climate and altitude are not conducive to tuberculosis. It is most prevalent among the negroes and Mexicans and these make up a large portion of our population.

Improvement in the living condition of these people will react immediately on the fatality rate from this disease. Principal caution measures are early diagnosis and early treatment.

Diphtheria

Diphtheria is another preventable disease and ranks fourth in the state's death rates. Texas has more deaths from diphtheria than any of the adjoining states. The national average for 1934 was 3.3 per 100,000. Texas, rate was 7.3. There is no geographical reason for the prevalence of diphtheria in our state.

Diphtheria can be completely controlled by vaccination. A death from this disease is due to one of two conditions—neglect on the part of the parent or failure to recognize the condition on the part of the physician. If all children are given the antitoxin after they are six months old and checked or tested within six months as to their immunity this disease can be completely stamped out. With the advance made in medical serums these preventable diseases should be controlled or the mortality from them greatly lessened in all of them. The physicians cannot accomplish this alone.

HAS SHE ENOUGH LIGHT

LIGHT IS PRICELESS—LIGHT IS CHEAP

For her sake PLEASE DON'T GUESS ABOUT LIGHT

Reading music and reading books are very much alike in their demands upon the eyes. Those wrong notes, or improperly played passages, may be due to insufficient light, rather than to carelessness. Practice becomes easier when eyes don't have to peer and foreheads wrinkle. Good light at the piano is as important as good light for reading or study. Insufficient or wrongly placed light, or glaring light, breeds eyestrain. Good light makes all eye work easier and that makes study and practice more attractive, more effective.

HOW MUCH LIGHT DO YOU NEED TO PROTECT EYESIGHT?

Science has now determined how much light we need to see easily and comfortably...for reading books...for reading newspapers...for sewing...and for other eye tasks. It has also made a device, the Light Meter, which measures your lighting in a jiffy. You read the story of your lighting on the dial as you read the story of temperature on a thermometer. How does your home measure up? We will be glad to show you.

It costs nothing to check your lighting

And it may prevent serious eyestrain in children and others of your family. One of our representatives will gladly assist you—with the aid of the Light Meter and other special equipment that he will bring. There is no charge for this service.

See the new I. E. S. Better Light-Better Sight Lamps which give much more light at low cost. See them at our display room.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again rejoicing, bringing forth sheaves with him.—Ps. cxviii, 6.

Pershing Was Right

MOST Americans who read of Lloyd George's criticism of Gen. John J. Pershing for his stubborn refusal to permit his American troops being scattered among the Allied armies in the World war, thus losing their identity as an army, will appreciate General Pershing's courage and common sense all the more.

fought as a unit; the French fought as a unit, and General Pershing was eminently wise in insisting that the Americans also fight under their own flag and in their own military organization.

LOYD GEORGE'S senile criticisms prove that he and others of the European allied conspirators regarded the American troops as they regarded American money—simply as the means to an end which considered nothing but the interests of England, France and their continental allies.

A Big Gap

IT is a mighty big gap of inconsistency that justification of the jury system as it exists in state criminal jurisprudence is required to bridge between the two verdicts in the Stevens case.

THE history of this case illustrates rather forcefully upon what tenuous reasons a trial will turn. The jurors were said to have been influenced in their verdict by two things, the charge of the court that if any reasonable doubt existed in their minds that the defendant was not present when the slaying occurred they were to find him not guilty, and the challenge of the defense attorney that there was no middle ground, they must either assess death or free his client.

WINGBACKS

(Fourth in a series of 12 daily articles prepared by the coach of Stanford's Rose Bowl champions in collaboration with Russ Newland, Associated Press sports writer.)

Wingback formations, which are the basis for practically all of Stanford's offensive plays, trace their origin to the days of the Carlisle Indians in the early 1900's.

Glenn Scobey Warner, a young coach with a lot of revolutionary ideas, came out one season with the Carlisle tandem.

It not only surprised rival coaches but it virtually junked the old T formation, in which the backs lined up behind a balanced line standing shoulder-to-shoulder behind the quarterback.

Warner's tandem operated behind an unbalanced line, forming an acute angle with the close-up back directly behind the right end. This tandem was the granddaddy of the single wingback.

Later on it was modified so that the close-up back flanked the right end. The other three backs were moved up closer to the line of scrimmage but each was stationed a bit deeper than the other.

(Tomorrow: The Roving Quarterback.)

Football Rules Topic for Coach At Lions Meet

Cisco Lions Wednesday heard Dexter Shelley, Cisco high school coach, say that Cisco teams in the near future have a much brighter outlook than at any time in the immediate past, as he began a talk upon football rules changes.

"About 20 of the present squad will be back next year for from one to three years of football," Shelley said.

He immediately launched into a discussion of rules and their changes for this year's football and pointed out the signals used by officials to designate infractions for which penalties are assessed.

Shelley answered questions concerning positions of players, "dead ball," scoring, and other phases of football.

Dr. Pearce Will Go to Hillsboro As New Pastor

Dr. J. S. Stuart Pearce, for five years pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Cisco, a place he resigned several months ago to become superintendent of home missions for the Fort Worth presbytery, has accepted the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Hillsboro, effective November 1, he announced Saturday.

Dr. Pearce came to Cisco from San Antonio to take a pulpit vacated by the Rev. B. C. Boney. While here he was credited with having secured the location of the presbytery's annual summer young people's conferences at Lake Cisco and was one of the leaders of the successful program to secure a permanent encampment site at the lake. Buildings for housing the encampment activities are now being constructed there, and last summer the largest and most successful camp was conducted there.

been pastor of the North Side church. Dr. Pearce, closely associated with Mr. Applewhite in the young people's work, continued, as superintendent of home missions, to have an active connection with the program.

Among The Derricks

NEW PRODUCER REPORTS BRYSON FIELD
GRAHAM, Sept. 24.—Another producer was added to the growing list of oil wells in the Bryson area Tuesday when W. P. Lynch of Ft. Worth drilled in a well 660 feet south of the Yorktex, States Oil No. 1, good for 400 barrels a day. The pay was hit around 2950 feet.

There are nine wells drilling in that vicinity now and to date there are about twenty producers. Rotary, standard and spudders are all being used in this field's developments. Considerable play is being made just East of Bryson now, on both sides of the Graham-Jacksboro highway.

Grace & Woods set surface pipe Tuesday on the Raley track which joins Bryson on the East.

The F. B. Payne Drilling company is to move its rig No. 2 to the Rock Island's right-of-way today where a well will be drilled for Hill & Hill of Ft. Worth.

This company has three locations on this right-of-way for wells to be drilled immediately.

Well Record
A. R. Eppenauer, No. 4 L. L. Shields state, sec. 3 GH&H Ry survey, Coleman county, 26 barrel oil well. TD 1925 feet.

TWO FISHER WILDCAT TESTS DRAW INTEREST
ABILENE, Sept. 24.—Two Fisher county wildcat tests late this week took the spotlight in interest for developments in this area. Most of drilling activities were hampered during the middle of the week by the heavy rains, and little change in drilling reports was made.

Trying for a quarter-mile west extension to the south Royston field in Fisher county, the Southern Oil corporation No. 1 J. S. Edwards late this week was shut down at a total depth of 3,360 feet after encountering a showing of free oil at 3,330-37 feet in lime. Eight-inch casing is set in approximately 3,000 feet, and operators will probably attempt to acidize the lime formation before running a string of six-inch pipe. Little caving was reported.

The test is west of the discovery well for the Royston field which was drilled in 1927 by the Texas company on the Stephens farm. The showing, while not enough to produce at present, may be increased by acid. Location is in the center of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 73, block 1, HT&B survey.

West of Rotan
Three and a half miles west of Rotan, operators were closely watching the Forest Development corporation No. 1 A. M. Dry as it drilled slowly past 4,190 feet in hard lime. Earlier, the test had encountered a birds-eye of oil at 4,079 feet in lime. The slight showing was correlated to the Hamlin pay of northeastern Fisher county. A second pay formation is expected around 4,200 feet. Forest, a Bradford, Pa., firm, blocked approximately 10,000 acres

Mrs. Modern GOES SHOPPING

PERTINENT POINTS ON BUYING A MODERN GAS RANGE

"I MIGHT have kept my old-fashioned range. I might have continued to put up with its bother and inconvenience. I might have kept my eyes closed to its out-of-date unattractiveness. But I went shopping one day and saw a Magic Chef gas range. I was greatly impressed with its modern style and beauty. I became very much interested in its many advanced features. I realized then that if I ever was to have a really modern kitchen my first step was to replace my old range with a Magic Chef. "Until I bought my Magic Chef I never would have believed that any modern range offered so many advantages. Its speed, flexibility and efficiency are simply amazing. It has so many features that appeal to a woman and save her time and labor. The top burners light themselves when I turn on the gas. The Red Wheel Lorain Oven Regulator does its own oven watching and attends to cooking the whole meal properly while I am away. My meals are better cooked and more delicious. Full insulation keeps my kitchen cooler and saves me money on gas bills." Mrs. Modern also appreciates the top burners with a thousand even heats; the high burner tray and smooth oven linings easy to clean; the handy drawer-type broiler, smokeless, trouble-free; the handy utensil compartments—to mention only a few more of the many Magic Chef features. No other range of any type will give you more. You can prove this to yourself by visiting our store and inspecting the many Magic Chef gas range models on display on our floor. You will find many sizes, styles and colors. And among them is one which will meet exactly all your particular needs.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

Chapter 44
DOCTOR'S HELP

Blake entered the office on Saturday morning like a man who walks in his sleep. There was a quick lifting of heads as he entered the room; a wave of sympathy beat against him, and almost submerged him. If they knew, he thought, they'd despise me instead. . . . He smiled slightly in response to the welcome and let his eyes move swiftly from one face to the other.

The sight of Carol's face almost broke him. He went to his office and sat with his head in his hands, seeing her face and thinking, in spite of himself, of the last three days.

But—not even pity or remorse could temper his love for Carol. Instead of loving her less, he felt as if their joint knowledge and responsibility had bound them together forever, and his hunger for her was intolerable.

But he could not force himself upon her yet; the memory of her horror was too fresh. He had the feeling that the very sight of him was unendurable to her, and his heart was racked by the thought of her, chained to her desk like a still, trapped animal.

On a sudden impulse he turned to the telephone and called Dr. Freeman.

"This is Blake Thornton," he said abruptly. "I wonder if I might talk to you a few minutes?"

"Yes, indeed," Dr. Freeman said promptly. "If you hadn't called me I intended to call you in a day or two."

"What time would suit you?"

There was an interval during which Dr. Freeman consulted his appointment book.

"How soon could you get here?"

"In ten or fifteen minutes."

"Good. I'll see you then. I'm operating at eleven."

Blake wondered, sitting in the luxurious waiting-room, what sort of man Freeman was, and how much he could expect in the way of understanding. He rose eagerly at the nurse's summons, and entered in immaculate consulting room.

Dr. Freeman shook hands, and Blake liked the firmness and sureness of his grasp. He was a big blonde man, with beautifully kept hands and a soothing manner that might hide a great deal of force.

"Sit down," he said gravely. "That was a tragic business."

Blake looked squarely into his eyes. "A lot more tragic than you know. That's what I wanted to talk about."

Freeman nodded and leaned back in his chair. "I knew, of course, that there was something back of it. Her type usually clings to the last shred of life, no matter how much unhappiness it holds."

Freeman's quiet tone gave him hope. He said bluntly:

"I had just filed suit for divorce; I managed to keep that out of the papers. I went down a week ago to ask her to divorce me."

Dr. Freeman nodded. He could guess at a great deal more. He said unexpectedly:

"You're to blame, but not in the way you think. Your fault goes back a great many years."

Blake said defensively: "You mean in marrying her at all?"

"No. That needn't have been disastrous. Your mistake was in humoring her; in not demanding more of her."

Blake's mouth was thin. "I'm sorry. I wasn't cut out for a tyrant."

"Oh, my God!" Freeman bronzed. "There's a middleg round. And besides, a woman of her type needs a tyrant; she should have married a Frenchman—or a Spaniard. American husbands ruin her sort."

The interview, Blake felt, was becoming incredibly cold-blooded. They were dissecting Irma like a pair of medical students. And then reason overrode his reluctance. Wasn't this what he wanted; wasn't he fighting for his life?

Freeman went on, very gravely. "I can guess, of course, what you must be going through, and I'd like to help you. Your responsibility for the tragedy is not nearly so direct as you think. It lies mainly—you'll forgive me, I hope—in your wife's own character. As you probably know, she was at a time of life which sometimes does strange things to women—particularly where there is a tendency to neurosis. Their viewpoint becomes distorted, and they exaggerate every misfortune. A spoiled child who has been disciplined sometimes resorts to the same desperate means."

Blake's anger faded and he felt a quick liking for the man who was holding out a hand that might pull him from the depths in which he struggled. He said quietly:

"Thank you very much. I'll try to remember that."

Dr. Freeman was looking at his beautiful hands. "How does—the other girl feel?"

Blake's hardwon composure was threatened. "She's—stunned. I'm afraid she never wants to see me again."

"Do you think she loves you?"

"I think so." He remembered her parting words: I'll be with you every minute—if that helps any.

He said in a surer voice: "I know she does."

"Then hold on to her, in spite of everything. Don't give in this time. If you want me to talk to her, I will."

The offer was generous, but he doubted if Carol would accept it. He said: "Thank you a thousand times. If I fail I may ask you to help." But he could not imagine forcing or influencing her decision; Carol was not like Irma.

On Sunday morning Cornelia telephoned Carol.

"Can't you come out for dinner tonight? Mother and Dad are in New York and I want to make whoopee. I'll run over and get you about seven."

Carol's heart stopped for a second, because she suspected Cornelia's intention. But when they entered Cornelia's beautiful living-room Carol saw that the room was empty. They had cocktails, and sat down to a table that was laid for two. She felt relieved, like a criminal who, knowing his execution to be inevitable, has been granted a brief reprieve.

When dinner was over Cornelia rose.

"Let's have coffee in the den. Go on while I speak to James."

Carol's breath caught. I can't! she almost screamed, and instead turned silently away.

There was a log fire in the den, and Blake sat on a couch before the fire, smoking. He sprang up as the door opened and they stood motionless, looking at each other. She closed the door mechanically. He said awkwardly:

"Cornelia was good enough to ask me to come. I hope you don't mind. . . ."

She forced herself to speak steadily: "No. We had to see each other and talk it out." She smiled a little. "We always seem to be talking something out, don't we?"

She did not dare sit beside him on the couch, so she took a big chair that half faced the fireplace. He offered her a cigaret and she accepted it automatically, and noticed that his hands were shaking as he held the match for her.

He said haltingly: "I've been anxious about you. Are you—all right?"

"Yes. . . . Are you?"

"I suppose so. I wanted to tell you—not to work for a while if you didn't feel like it."

Emotion distorted her face for the first time. "I didn't think I had any choice. Unless of course you'd rather I wouldn't."

His voice broke. "Oh, Carol! Don't you know I want you there—even if I can't say a word to you? Just knowing you're in the next room helps me to get through a day."

She looked at the fire. "I wonder if it does? I wonder if it wouldn't be better for me to go away—for good."

"Do you want to?" he asked finally.

"I—don't know. I suppose the courageous thing to do is to stay—if I can stand it."

He felt a quick anger against her because she seemed to misunderstand and to fail him so completely.

"For God's sake don't make me feel like a pauper! If you want to go, you know I won't try to stop you."

The flare of anger burned out, and the longing that succeeded it broke down his restraint.

"Please sit by me," he said gently. "I won't touch you unless you want me to. . . ."

He told her what Dr. Freeman had said, and watched her anxiously for a sign of relaxing tension.

"He said—he'd be glad to talk to you if you cared to," he concluded.

"No. I think I know already what he'd say."

"And—that doesn't make you feel any better?"

Tears burned her eyes suddenly.

"It ought to. After a while maybe it will. It's too—fresh—right now."

He got up and stood on the hearth facing her. "Carol—aren't you being what you've always despised; a sentimentalist? You're the most honest person I've ever known; think."

Vocational Training for Paralyzed Youth Enables Him to Earn Living

EASTLAND, Sept. 24. — Life looked dark for Henry Schaefer of Nimrod in 1931. Paralyzed from the hips down since a fall from a tree when he was nine years old, Schaefer's only way to get around was by crawling.

Now, Schaefer, about 27, views the future with optimism. He is paralyzed. His paralytic condition probably can't be remedied, but he does have a future, before him in which he can make his own way.

In 1931 the Cisco Rotary Club called attention of the state department of education's vocational rehabilitation to Schaefer.

Physical restoration of Schaefer wasn't possible, the vocational rehabilitation department learned. The many years had passed without the proper attention to his paralysis. It was not known whether his condition was a result of the fall or just a natural setting in of the disease. His condition dated to six months after the tree fall.

The vocational rehabilitation department obtained a "fireside industry" course for Schaefer. He learned to make book-ends, print on a small hand-press and found a market for his work after completion of the course.

Later the depression took hold of Schaefer's market. He couldn't find sales and it appeared his income would again be the same as before the vocational rehabilitation department came to his rescue.

After an investigation the department again secured another course for the Nimrod man. This time they bought a radio course which Schaefer is still taking. He has studied the course since in March. The course is of nine months duration. He's learning faster than the average student. In fact he has already serviced several radios. To bolster his income he secured the agency for a farm radio. He's already marked up several sales and his several good prospects.

Last year Schaefer convinced Tom Haley, tax assessor-collector, he was capable of assessing nine school district. To the thoroughness of his work, officials point out that Schaefer made excellent renditions.

During the campaign Schaefer printed 51,000 candidate cards on a hand press. That was part of the work his first training enabled him to execute. Besides that work, Schaefer has sold fruit trees. He is able to drive an automobile with the aid of gadgets which take the place of his legs, which he probably won't ever use.

Although physically handicapped, Schaefer is aiding a brother in harvesting a peanut crop.

The Nimrod man, appreciative of the vocational rehabilitation department's aid, wrote to Supervisor B. E. McGlamery of the northwest Texas district, thanking him "for the praiseworthy assistance you have given me."

The case is typical of the departments work, McGlamery, who locates at Eastland, indicates. Other recent cases are providing county youths with welding training, college educations, body and fender repair work, barber training, and electrical training.

The department work is carried on with funds from the state and federal government.

Scanning New Books

By JOHN SELBY

The American cornucopia is fast emptying, thinks Stuart Chase. Once, before white people came to America, the land was in balance. Now squandering our resources quite without thought of the future has led us to the point where the end actually is in sight—if we don't take the logical steps to side-step it.

This is the argument Mr. Chase offers in "Rich Land, Poor Land" (Whittlesey House). It is one of the very few unanswerable arguments in history, for all Mr. Chase needs to do with doubters is to lead them into his car and drive it to the country. They will see denuded hillsides, gulleys, fields, insanely lumbered forests, deluded men stripping streams of fish and the land of game.

Then Mr. Chase will stop his car, perhaps, and repeat the answer he gives in his book. This is that there is yet time to recoup in sufficient measure to support our population, if action is taken at once—on a national scale, integrated and intelligent.

Finally, Mr. Chase has, it will seem to many, chosen precisely the style best suited to carry his point. He writes with his usual lucidity, and also with excitement and indignation.

Thumbnail Reviews
"Mr. and Mrs. North," by Richard Lockridge (Stokes): a collection of Lockridge's quietly amusing sketches of an average married couple, from the "New Yorker;" the effect is better if only a few are read at a time, since they are exactly alike in structure.

"Of Lena Geyer," by Marcia Davenport (Scribners): a grand novel on the career of a great singer in which music is taken in the author's stride; the effect is uniformly good, sometimes superb.

"Cradle of Life," by Louis Adamic (Harpers): sensitive novel about a little boy of noble but "clouded" birth in the hither Balkans; Mr. Adamic has used his own boyhood to advantage in writing it.

Southwest Lions Due to Gather At Texas Centennial

DALLAS, Sept. 24.—Ten thousand Lions from the Southwestern states of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana will gather in Dallas at the Texas Centennial Exposition on October 10 to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the birth of Lions International.

The order was founded at a meeting in Dallas on October 13, 1916, by Melvin Jones of Chicago, now secretary-general, who will return for the anniversary.

In recognition of the event the international board of the civic organization will meet outside of Chicago for the first time. It is composed of representatives from the United States, the Dominion of Canada, the Republic of Mexico and seven Central and South American republics.

On October 10 the Lions will be welcomed to the Exposition grounds by Governors Allred of Texas, Marland of Oklahoma, Futrell of Arkansas and Leche of Louisiana, or their representatives. A ceremony in the morning will be held at the $1,200,000 Texas Hall of State where Governor Allred will be the principal speaker.

The Lions will see the University of Texas and the University of Oklahoma football game in the Cotton Bowl, seating 50,000 persons. Arrangements have been made to seat the Lions at a special showing of the historic Cavalcade of Texas.

The Real MacBeth's Estate Is For Sale

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 24. (AP)—Historically famous as the death scene of Macbeth, the 6,000-acre estate of Lumphanan, Aberdeenshire, is now on the market.

Shakespeare made Dunsinane the spot where Macbeth met his dramatic end, in the climax of his great Elizabethan tragedy, but historical authorities name Lumphanan as the place where the real Macbeth—a Scottish king who was slain in 1058 A. D.—lost his life in battle.

An age-old verse records the incident:

"O'er the Mouth they chased him then

Until the wood of Lumphanan; This Macbeth slew they there In the wood of Lumphanan."

A cairn of stones in a circular clump of trees, about a mile from the village of Lumphanan, marks the spot where Macbeth actually breathed his last.

Road Program Is Planned for Two Years by Comm'n

AUSTIN, Sept. 24. (AP)—The state highway commission announced Monday that a two-year $30,000,000 federal aid highway program, closing many gaps in roads across the state, was virtually ready for approval of the United States bureau of public roads.

The program will be financed with two $7,500,000 federal allotments and a like amount of state funds.

Commissioner John Wood informed groups assembled for hearings that the commission would not consider state projects, except in emergencies, to avoid expenditure of state funds which might be needed to match federal allocations.

He said the commission hoped to let bids early in November to start the first half of the program. The entire program should be under contract in 16 months, he concluded.

Over 1,250,000 Texas cars on 20,000 miles of Texas highways, and for each—a Humble motor fuel, a Humble motor oil!

In 1836, the highways of Texas were forest and prairie trails, impassable in wet weather. Today's Texas has 20,461.16 miles of highways, only thirteen per cent of which are unimproved. And today's Texans drive over one and a quarter million cars.

To get maximum performance from a good automobile on a paved highway, the wise motorist selects his motor fuel and motor oil with care. In Texas, he makes it a regular practice to look for the familiar red, white and blue Humble sign before he buys. He has learned from experience that he can depend on Humble products to deliver in performance what the automotive engineer has built into the car he drives.

We ask you, too, to try our Humble products—to test them in your car. You'll find at Humble Service Stations and Humble Dealers a product for every car, a price for every purse. For maximum performance, for real driving pleasure, fill up with a Humble motor fuel, drain and refill with a Humble motor oil.

HUMBLE MOTOR FUEL

—at regular price—

Humble Motor Fuel is the economical fuel for careful buyers. When you stop at the red "Humble" pump in a Humble Service Station or at a Humble dealer's, you get value plus for your gasoline dollar. Try Humble Motor Fuel. Stop today at the Humble sign and fill up; then test Humble Motor Fuel under your own driving conditions and compare it with any regular price gasoline you have ever used. You'll come back for more!

Humble technicians are ever alert to the motorist's changing needs, and Humble Motor Fuel is continuously improved. At times such changes are minor—a routine part of a day's work; at others, they require extensive revision of methods and equipment. You can rest assured that whatever's necessary to give you a regular price motor fuel second to none—that's what's done!

* In computing gasoline prices, don't forget that what you pay includes a State tax of 4c per gallon and a Federal tax of 1c per gallon. Gasoline is cheap, only the tax is high.

Below the great spillway are the largest artificial swimming pools in the nation, consisting of two large basins, 700 feet long and 300 feet wide. One accommodates inexperienced bathers and the other, equipped with diving towers is for expert swimmers. A large pavilion with bath houses and dance floor accommodates patrons. A state fish hatchery, a municipal zoo and broad, well-equipped parks whose use is free to the public, are also located in the Lake Cisco amusement area.

Oil and Gas Field

Cisco, which was a large and thriving agricultural and trading center long before the oil boom, is situated in the center of an extensive oil and gas development, including shallow and deep production. Many oil operators, pleased by its splendid residential atmosphere and advantageous location with reference to drilling activity in West Texas and Central Texas, make it their home. The Humble Pipe Line company maintains two division headquarters in Cisco. North and west of Cisco thrives a great cattle industry, with the famous Hereford and Aberdeen-angus breeds predominating. South is a diversified farming area, with cotton, feed, fruits, and peanut production combining with poultry, dairying and hog raising.

Cisco has one of the best public school systems in the state, according to standardized rating of the schools through the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. The Big Dam Lobo football teams of a decade ago did much to popularize the game of football in West Texas. Randolph college, a junior college, is also located at Cisco.

The people of Cisco are noted for their friendly, hospitable spirit. They are among West Texas' most progressive citizens. They invite you to visit their town, to inspect its advantages and, if you cannot make your home there, at least to spend your vacation, or a part of it, at beautiful Lake Cisco.
