GIANTS UPSET YANKS BY 5 - 4 IN TENTH

Welfare Drive Planned

Frankly Speaking

By FRANK LANGSTON

Miss Marian Jacobs made her first public appearance as Lobo Band Sweetheart Friday night when she marched out on Chesley field with Drum Major Frank Yarger at the head of the colorful organization which proclaims the Lobo spirit. She was elected band sweetheart by popular vote last week and will accompany the musical organization on the band trips.

The Lobo musical organization is one of the best marching bands seen in this part of the state in a long while. The black and gold clad unit, marching in a spread formation, makes a strong impression at every appearance. Drum Major Yarger has added much snap to the band with his baton twirling. Like members of both the Cisco and Sweetwater football teams, though, he tumbled one time, but as he marched over to pick up his baton he executed a military salute to the Sweetwater bleachers.

For the benefit of visitors from other states who do not know what a Texas bank robbery looks like, the Dallas police force Friday will stage an imitation of a holdup at a bank set up on the centennial grounds as a part of the Police Day program.

Best the event should attract some bank robbers not included on the program, the police department has arranged to have everything real, including a gun-fight and tear gas bombs, except the money which the "bandits" are trying to get. The event is expected to give an authentic simulation of a bank robbery and at the same time provide a demonstration of the use of modern police equipment.

Loyalists Rally to Defend Madrid

Loyalists today rallied to defend Madrid, while insurgents claimed they had cut the main artery of supplies to the capital. Here are shown loyalist machine gunners guarding the approach to the capital.

Government, Rebels Both Claim Victory

(By Associated Press) Conflicting insurgent and government claims today made a question mark of Madrid's sector of the Spanish rebellion. The government contended that militiamen took the important junction of Maqueda on the Toledo highway and then fought westward to point near Santa Olalla. If this report were true, the government would have served the main line of insurgent supplies.

The insurgents said their southern column took Illescas and cut the government supply line to Madrid about 22 miles from the capital and then marched toward Navalcarnero on the Madrid-Maqueda highway.

Book Life Blood To Man, Librarian Tells Students

"Books are the life blood for men," said Mrs. Alfred Irby, librarian at the high school, said this morning when she was presented to the student body in a talk pertaining to the library. "The library is a workshop and its books are the tools," she went on.

Mrs. Irby thanked the pupils for their good behavior so far this year and urged them to continue it. She told of the value of reading good material and of its pleasures as a useful way to spend leisure time.

She gave a short history of books, and gave the students instructions as to checking books from the library and their care.

State Facing Crisis; Solons Must Untie Pension Knot, Says Lotief

Seeks Inflation By Reserve Note Attack

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—John D. Montgomery, Philadelphia taxpayer, today asked the federal district court here to forbid issuance of any more federal reserve notes for money and to command withdrawal of those now circulating.

The move was aimed at forcing congress to inflate the currency, H. Eugene Gardner, attorney, said.

plished very much. There have been something like 30 revenue bills introduced for revenue raising purposes to obtain money with which to pay the old age pensions. Up to this good hour none of these bills have been acted upon by the committee on revenue and taxation, of which I am a member. There was a motion made to instruct this committee to report favorable on all these bills and then let the house act on any or all of them as it saw fit, but this motion was voted down by a vote of 59 to

OLD CLOTHES ASKED TO AID CITY'S NEEDY

Campaign Will Start Next Monday; Cars To Make Convass

The United Charity and Welfare Association of Cisco this morning designated next week as time for the annual old clothing drive to aid Cisco's needy.

The organization, meeting in the mayor's office at the city hall set the week of October 12 to 19 as time for gathering of garments by anyone who has clothing which has been discarded but which can still be used.

To Make Convass On the following Monday, October 19, cars from the welfare body will make a house to house convass to collect the garments donated by Ciscoans. A telephone convass of the city will be made before the cars leave to collect the clothing.

The organization adopted the policy of serving the city of Cisco only during the coming year, inasmuch as maintenance of the charity body comes from the city itself.

Ciscoans were urged to cooperate with the clothing drive. Any good, clean garment which can be used was asked by the organization.

J. C. McAfee, president of the Welfare association, presided at the meeting this morning.

Asks Reconsidering Minimum Wage Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—Contending that the law should "meet changing economic conditions," Massachusetts asked the supreme court today to reconsider its decision last June 1 holding unconstitutional the New York establishing minimum wages for women.

The Massachusetts attorney general, Paul A. Dever, said that the decision deprives the working population of America of adequate protection in safeguarding its rights.

71. I voted with the 59 members to speed up the work and pass the revenue bills and go home; but unfortunately some of the other members did not see fit to do likewise. As I have stated time and time again, our system of government is 50 years behind, and as long as we have this system of government the common people will not receive any beneficial legislation. The governor has recommended

Ex-Cop Claims British Throne

'King' Demands His Throne of Edward

LONDON, Oct. 5. (AP)—A more or less royal proclamation, signed by Britain's throneless "King Anthony the First," has restored the long-lost American "colonies" to English sovereignty.

"It was all a mistake about George the Third," explained King Anthony, otherwise Anthony Hall, a former police inspector in the Shropshire constabulary, in a recent interview here.

"He had no right to the throne. His name was just plain George Guelph. Therefore, I, Anthony, legitimate successor to the crown won by my ancestor, Henry VIII, at the battle of Bosworth, hereby nullify George Guelph's actions in losing the American colonies.

"If my ancestor had been on the throne at the time of the American revolution, there would never have been any trouble. The colonies would still be living happily under the flag of the mother country."

Says Sovereignty Hoax The 38-year-old King Anthony, who lived for several years in San Francisco, Calif., claims that the whole system of English sovereignty

AUSTIN, Oct. 5. (AP)—The senate today authorized Senator Will D. Pace to withdraw his resolution ordering a liquor administration investigation.

He said he was afraid that if the legislature goes into the inquiry it might delay action on bills to raise pension money.

Another resolution for the liquor inquiry still is pending in the house. The revenue-taxation committee begins hearings tonight on tax bills, which it hopes to conclude by Wednesday.

TERRY'S FLY SENDS MOORE OVER TO WIN

Crowd Goes Wild As Seeds Thrown Out Trying to Steal

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 5.—Coming back from under a two-game lead, the New York Giants today battered their way through 10 innings to take the fifth game of the world series from the Yankees by a score of 5 to 4.

Joe Moore, Giant left fielder, doubled in the first half of the tenth, with the score tied. Bartell laid down a bunt to sacrifice him to third. Then, with the count three and two, Manager Bill Terry hit a long fly into center to score Moore.

Seeds Thrown Out The crowd went wild in the second half of the tenth as Seeds, attempting to steal second, was thrown out to end the game.

Bill Shumacher struck out 10 of the Yankee batters during his 10 innings, but ran into trouble most of the way. Four double plays featured the game.

In the ninth inning, with the score tied at four-all, runners on first and second, and the count three and two, Lou Gehrig grounded out to second.

Following is the play by play account of the game:

First Inning Giants—Moore doubled down the left field line. Partell doubled to right field scoring Moore. Terry struck out swinging. #### Wacoans Survey Wreckage After Terrific Blast

WACO, Oct. 5.—Waco today surveyed the wreckage of what had been the heart of its business district before a terrific explosion early Sunday rocked the area, injured five persons, and did damage estimated at $275,000.

The blast originated in the basement of the Liberty Bank building, wrecked offices on six floors of the structure, smashed windows for three blocks and started a fire which completely destroyed the Woolworth company next door.

Warren Moore, 65, was critically burned. Four firemen, Newt Dickens, Frank Gillette, A. Sul-lins, and Fort Tynes were burned while fighting the fire.

Fire Marshal Foresees City Insurance Credit

Despite a fire loss that already is three times as great as that of last year, Fire Marshal O. Gustafson looked forward to a credit on the city's insurance key rate for the coming year as Fire Prevention Week opened here today.

This year's loss to date has been approximately $5,504.43, Gustafson said, as compared with last year's loss of $1,760.70.

The insurance rate is based on fire losses for three years. Cisco is now receiving a 10 per cent credit, he said, as compared with a 6 per cent credit last year and a 12 per cent penalty in 1934. The greatest single fire loss in this year's total, Gustafson pointed out, was from the Texas Theatre fire in August. Damage to the equipment and fixtures was listed as $1,705.40, with the building damage estimated by the fire marshal at $400. Gustafson urged cooperation on the part of citizens in observing Fire Prevention Week and pointed out that much loss from fires can be avoided by preventing the fires themselves.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SNOP-IS: Through a tip from his friend, Billy Ross, Terence Mahony has been able to rescue Elsa Little from a gang of kidnapers headed by Ambrose Lawson, who is a respected friend of the Little family. But while Terence was returning Elsa home, Lawson killed her uncle. Terence has escaped from the house, knowing he cannot prove his innocence of the murder. But Elsa heard Terence's voice although she did not recognize him . . . and now Inspector Kennedy, investigating the murder of Mr. Little, believes Elsa is about to remember whose voice it was she heard.

Chapter Nine ELSA REMEMBERS

Inspector Kennedy leaned forward slightly.

"Have you remembered?" he asked eagerly.

"I . . . but it can't be," she said slowly. "Why, I hardly know him at all. And, anyway, he was a friend of Billy Ross, who was one of my best friends."

"What's his name?" asked Inspector Kennedy.

"The voice sounded like Mr. Mahony—he came to tea this afternoon," answered Elsa. "But he couldn't possibly have done it. Why should he? And he wasn't going to the dance. He told me so."

"He was talking to you about the dance, was he?" asked the Inspector. "Asking you questions?"

"Well—yes," admitted Elsa.

"But why should he want to kidnap me and kill my uncle?"

"Who is that Mr. Mahony, and where does he live?" demanded the Inspector.

"He was a friend of Billy Ross, a friend of mine who was very badly hurt in a motor smash," answered Elsa. "He was staying with Billy when I met him. I don't know where he is now."

Nor did Lawson know where Mahony was living. In fact, nobody did. Mahony had not yet bothered to tell anyone his change of address.

"I'll find his address all right before morning," said the Inspector. Luckily for Mahony, that statement was a trifle optimistic.

Mahony's first action after driving away from the Little's house was to return to the Albert Hall. He had left his own car in a park near the Hall, and in the men's cloak-room he had left an overcoat, a hat, and a pair of grey flannel trousers.

He had worn the overcoat, hat, and trousers on his way to the dance, since an Arab kit is chilly wear in an open sports car on a cold winter evening. Since he intended to deny that he had ever been to the dance if anybody questioned him, it was essential that he should remove those things before the dance finished.

In a quiet street in Kensington he stopped the car and changed his costume around, so that he now appeared as an Arab instead of a monk. Leaving the car in a side street near the Hall, he returned to the Hall on foot and entered.

The dance was still in full swing when he arrived; the floor was still crowded; everything was just as he had left it before Elsa's kidnapping, except that now the dancers were unmasked. Mahony did not unmask. Avoiding the dance floor, he made his way towards the men's cloak-room.

Half-way to the cloak-room he felt a sudden touch on his shoulder. He turned. Facing him was the man dressed in the costume of Charles II who had taken Elsa to the exit where the men dressed as monks had seized her. From conversation he had heard in the car while Elsa was being taken away, Mahony knew that the man's name was Mulgrave.

Seen unmasked in the brilliantly lighted passage, he was a dissipated, cynical-looking man of forty-five, with a heavily veined face, small, calculating eyes, and a heavy, brutal mouth.

"So you've got back at last, have you?" he said roughly. "Where the devil have you been all this time? And where are the others?"

It was obvious that, judging from Mahony's costume, he mistook him for one of the kidnapers. Evidently those worthies had not returned to the Hall after their recent setback.

For a moment Mahony was undecided how to answer. Then he had an inspiration.

"The game's up," he said hoarsely. "The whole scheme's a flop. The others have all been copped by the police. I came here to grab my things from the cloak-room and make a quick getaway."

The red veins in Mulgrave's face showed up suddenly against a deathly pale background.

"Copped!" he gasped. "But . . . how the hell did that happen? Our plan was absolutely water-tight."

"It's wrecked now," he said. "I'm going to beat it as soon as I've got my things. I've got a fast car outside, and I know where to go. You'd better grab your things and come with me."

"But . . ." began Mulgrave. Mahony had no intention of arguing. For one thing he was too unsure of his ground. For another he wanted to get away as soon as possible before the police arrived at the Albert Hall. But he wanted to take Mulgrave with him if possible. He decided to bluff.

"Hell," he said. "What are you arguing the toss about? The police will be on their way here now. Are you coming, or are you going to stay and be pinched?"

And he resumed his progress towards the cloak-room.

That decided Mulgrave. He also made for the cloak-room.

Mahony reclaimed his belongings and fairly hustled Mulgrave out of the cloak-room and out of the Albert Hall to the car park where his Aston Martin was waiting.

With a roar they shot away, heading north.

"Tell me exactly what happened; how did things go wrong?" asked Mulgrave excitedly as they drove along.

"Don't talk; I'm busy. You'll learn all about it when we get where we're going," replied Mahony shortly.

There was a slight smile about his lips as he drove the car at high speed through the silent and empty streets. He was reflecting that as a piece of kidnapping, his abduction of Mulgrave had been rather neat.

Leaving Hampstead behind him, he headed out across the lonely heath. Half-way across the heath he brought the car to a standstill. All round them was bare grass, and away in the distance the lights of Hampstead and Highgate twinkled brightly. Mahony switched off his headlights and turned to Mulgrave.

"This is our first stopping-place," he stated. "Get out of the car."

"Get out of the car?"

It seemed that Mulgrave did not understand.

"What do you mean?" he asked. "I mean get out of the car. I don't want you to bleed all over the upholstery," said Mahony.

During this speech he quietly produced his pistol. Mulgrave looked at it, and from it to Mahony, rather as a rabbit, paralyzed with terror, looks at a deadly snake.

"B-but w-what—?" he began.

"Shut up," said Mahony, his voice suddenly cold and savage. Mulgrave shut up.

"You've been kidnapped," went on Mahony in the same cruel, biting tone. "And now you're going to be murdered. At least, I think you are. But maybe you're not. It will all depend on how much information you can give me."

"B-but you c-cant bring me out here, and m-murder me in c-cold blood," protested Mulgrave in a terrified tone. "You can't do it."

"But I can," said Mahony. "Quite easily."

He spoke quietly and naturally. And yet, somehow, the manner in which he spoke made it quite clear that he would not have the slightest hesitation in shooting Mulgrave if he considered it necessary. The realization made Mulgrave feel slightly sick.

"W-w-what is it that you want to know?" he quavered.

Mahony thrust a hand into his hip-pocket and produced from it a newspaper cutting. The cutting was from a copy of the evening paper which the barmaid in the wayside pub had been reading just before the motor smash the previous night. It consisted of one small paragraph:

McKee's Condition Believed Critical

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 5. (AP)—Representative H. L. McKee of Port Arthur was in a critical condition in a hospital here from injuries received in an automobile accident in Mexico several days ago.

An aerial map recently made of the Brazos River basin disclosed that one farmer had 140 acres of land that he didn't know he had. He had been paying taxes on a section of land, or 640 acres, but the aerial map showed that his land holdings totalled 780 acres. This incident leads the Texas planning board to believe the exact area of Texas will not be known until an aerial map of the state is made.
