NATIONS ACT TO SAVE NON-COMBATANTS

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

J. L. "Punk" Thornton came back from the Dallas centennial with a magnificent "shiner" and Mrs. Thornton is receiving scores of congratulations. Dr. Woods wondered why she didn't lose both eyes so Punk couldn't see to play golf very well. But "Punk" thinks that sufficient damage has been done to keep his scores rotten for a long time.

"I saw more stars than the Hollywood parade when that one hit me in the eye," he declared. It was honestly an accident, as the group of friends with whom they were enjoying the centennial attractions admitted Sunday. But Punk will steer clear of those places where they give away canes when they fail to guess your weight. "Everybody but me got one of the dog-eared things," said Punk. "But I got mine in the eye."

It is reported, reliably, that Cisco will not have a turkey dressing plant this year, as has always been the case. The threatened result is that the local market will be low and farmers will either be forced to haul their turkeys to a distant purchasing center or take a loss of a cent or more per pound.

The problem lies in the lack of available cold storage space, it is understood. One company is reported to have leased all available vaults, and does not plan to do any dressing here. While Cisco has dressing plants of excellent character, they are useless without cold storage. State law prohibits movement of dressed turkeys very far without chilling.

The situation is unpromising from the market standpoint, to say the least. If the condition is true, it will mean that neighboring towns will receive all the benefit of the fall turkey trade, a fact that will not help business conditions here.

Some of the Breckenridge fans like the 1936 edition of the Breckenridge football team a better team than the co-state champions of 1929 and the current edition of the Magness dynasty a better player than his illustrious brother who was featured on the championship team. So one prominent Breckenridge business man told me here this morning.

My informant subscribed to the same opinion quite positively, and lest his judgment be thought biased of enthusiasm rather than impartial appraisal, I should say that he is a man generally accredited with rational, unexcitable views of things.

But even the best and coolest of men are not responsible for their reactions to the home team, and I find it mighty hard to agree with him on this score.

In spite of the fact that the present Magness is only 17 years of age as compared to the 19 years of his brother when Boone was thrilling Oil Belt crowds with his punts, passes and runs, his friend rates the present youngster a better player than Boone. "If he had Graham and Grant to run interference for him, as did Boone, you'd see," he declared. "But instead this boy is running interference for Rec-

TWO FOOTBALL GAMES HERE NEXT FRIDAY

Loboes Meet Granbury at Night; Midgets Play in P. M.

Matching of a non-conference game between the Cisco Loboes and the Granbury high school Class B eleven yesterday afternoon doubled the grid fare on the week-end program here this week.

The Loboes, until then had been without a game between conference tilts, and the burden of furnishing the entertainment had fallen upon the Midgets, undefeated and unscored-upon grammar school team. Coaches Shelley and Cooper matched the Granbury eleven for Friday night at 8 o'clock here in order to give the Loboes as much practice and experience as possible. A green, extremely young team, the high school varsity has been showing steady improvement, although succumbing to top-heavy scores in all their engagements with the other conference teams of the district. A good game is expected.

Meanwhile the Midgets will still be much on the football map at Chesley, entertaining the Cross Plains grammar lads Friday afternoon in quest of their consecutive victory unmarred by a single point against them. The game starts at 3:30.

Coach H. R. Garrett of the Midgets, who began the season under a cloud of uncertainty because of their light average weight, expressed himself as well pleased with the showing of the boys so far.

The admission for the afternoon game will be 10 cents for everybody. Proceeds will be used to purchase athletic equipment for the school.

Granbury will bring 20 players for the game, Coach Shelley said this morning. The average weight of the starting lineup will be about the same as that of the Loboes, although they have a 188-pound back and two 175-pound tackles.

The probable starting lineup for the Loboes will be: Wallace and Bacon, ends; Stewart and Shirley, tackles; Yarbrough and Flaherty, guards; Webster, center; Dohoboe, quarter; Slicker and Steyer, halves; Rainbolt, full.

Singapore Now Ride In Tricycle Rickshaws
SINGAPORE, Oct. 21.—The rickshaw, one of the last surviving relics of the "unchanging east" still in popular use in big cities, has been mechanized.

"Tricycle rickshaws" are now being tried out in Singapore, following their successful adoption in Bangkok, Siam.

Instead of dragging the wheeled chair on foot, the coolie now sits in a saddle in front of the vehicle and pedals his passenger along.

Aged Guns Used By Spain To Fight Old-Style War

A group of Spanish insurgents follow the guerilla practices of their forefathers as they snipe at the enemy from a river bank near Irun.

Soldiers Follow Sires' Methods In Civil Strife

ROBERT B. PARKER FRANCO - SPANISH FRONTIER, Oct. 21. (AP)—Guerilla warfare is the rule throughout the Spanish conflict and the battles are little different from those of a century ago.

Anyone who tells you Spain is the proving ground for the next World War simply hasn't seen a battle. Radio stations announce hundreds of thousands of men locked in combat with the latest equipment—but the radio stations are the only ones in Spain who think so.

Many of the "modern arms" shipped into Spain from foreign countries are old stocks, swept out of arsenals at bargain prices. Field guns, constructed at Spanish works at Oviedo, date from 1905.

Shells are often more than 30 years old and fail to explode for that very reason.

Geography Big Obstacle
Only the airplanes are new and pilots fail to make the most use of them. During the bombardments of Irun, for example, more than fifty projectiles were dumped into the Bidasoa river or onto the beach at Hendaye, France.

The geography of Spain, that feat of nature which stopped many a good general, including Napoleon Bonaparte, simply doesn't lend itself to the use of modern methods. There are so many natural barriers that invaders, to capture them, must use assault by the good old infantry. Trenches were used for the first time at Irun, and then so badly dug by both sides that they proved unusable.

Near the end of August, after six weeks of war, this correspondent watched the insurgents attack government positions at San Rafael, with the tall buildings of

Joint Banquet Is Due to Draw 100

Committees of the Lions and Rotary club, in charge of arrangements for the Lions-Rotary-Teacher banquet at the Laguna hotel Thursday evening, expect an attendance of about 100, on the basis of present ticket sales.

The program for the joint meeting is in the hands of a committee headed by Horace Condeley, who announced that the numbers would not be announced, but assured that speaking will not be part of the program. "There will be no speeches," he said. "You can print that in big type. Each of the three groups participating will furnish a portion of the program."

Sale of tickets is in the hands of H. L. Dyer. The singing will be led by the Rev. M. H. Applewhite. Condeley will be toastmaster.

Both the Lions club and the Rotary club will dispense with their regular meetings, making the banquet Thursday night.

The purpose of the joint meeting is to bring about a better community of understanding between the club members—who are mostly business and professional men—and the schools.

FINANCING OF STOCK SHOW IS DISCUSSED

C. of C. Board Also Discusses State Ad Campaign

Plans for financing the annual Eastland County Livestock show to be held here October 30 and 31 were discussed at the regular meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce last night. Raising of the fund with which to provide premiums is in the hands of the show committee, headed by Dr. F. E. Clark. T. G. Caudle, agricultural secretary of the chamber, will be show superintendent.

Sec'y. Spencer reported to the group that a week ago, in a conference with Chief Engineer Gilchrist of the state highway department at Austin, he and State Rep. Geo. A. Davison, Jr., had been assured by Mr. Gilchrist that contract for paving the entire stretch of Highway '89,' known as the Strawn Mountain-Weatherford cut-off on Highway No. 1 would be let in December. The project will cost in the neighborhood of $700,000 and is the largest single job in the present program of the department, he said.

Other projects on which the chamber is working is a plan for widening highway No. 1 between

Life Sentence Is Given in Holdup Conspiracy Case

ROBY, Oct. 21. (AP)—J. D. Echols received a life sentence Tuesday in 194th district court as a conviction of conspiracy to rob the First National bank of Rotan automatically carried with it conviction under the habitual criminal act.

Notice of appeal was given by defense counsel.

The jury, which had received the case early Tuesday afternoon after the day Monday and morning Tuesday had been consumed in hearing testimony, asked Judge W. R. Chapman for rulings on two questions at 5:15 p. m. They sought definition of the term, "life imprisonment," and to know whether mercy could be recommended, upon conviction. After the judge had replied, the group deliberated about a half hour before returning a verdict.

Three Arrests
Charge of conspiracy to commit a felony followed the arrest of Echols, Frank Hardy and J. H. Nowlin at Odessa early this year. The state charged that the three entered into a pact to rob the Rotan First National Bank, and approached R. J. Yantis, night watchman at the bank, to solicit his aid. Hardy and Nowlin will be tried on conspiracy charges at a later date.

Yantis was the principal witness for the state. He testified that he was approached by a group of men with a proposition to rob the bank after tying him up; that, to lead them on, he agreed, and then notified bank officials and officers of Rotan, who, for several nights, lay hidden on a building opposite the bank with machine guns and shotguns. Yantis said dates for the robbery were set several times.

38-Degree Weather Sweeps Panhandle
DALLAS, Oct. 21. (AP)—Near-freezing weather swept the panhandle today, the temperature being 38 degrees.

The cold wave was expected to cause sharp temperature declines in north Texas.

Victory for Masses---Lotief

The Daily Press received this morning a telegram from Rep. Cecil A. Lotief announcing that the house of representatives at Austin had passed the carbon black tax bill by over 100 votes majority. The bill will yield "nearly one million and a half for the benefit of our old age people," said the message. "A great victory for the masses."

KILLS SENATE BILL CHANGE

Speaker Rules Not Within Call

AUSTIN, Oct. 21. (AP)—Coke Stevenson, house speaker, ruled today that the house could not consider the senate proposal to deliberalize the pension law. He sustained points of order that it did not come within the governor's call for the session and that the amendment changed the purpose of the bill.

The speaker said the ruling did not kill the bill but created a difference between the houses which would have to be adjusted by a conference committee. He assured that the committee appointed by him would not agree to placing the sales tax in the bill.

OPPOSITION TO WARRANTS
AUSTIN, Oct. 21. (AP)—Strenuous opposition developed today in the senate to the house bill issuing $3,000,000 of interest-bearing warrants for pension payments throughout the winter months.

Browder Speech Is Prevented by Crowd

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 21. (AP)—Citizens blocked both front and rear entrances to radio station WBOW here last night, hurled rotten eggs at Earl Browder, communist candidate for president, and prevented him from entering the station to make a scheduled radio campaign speech.

Roosevelt and Landon Direct Steps Eastward

(By Associated Press)
Major party presidential nominees headed eastward today.

President Roosevelt, opening a two-day New England campaign, said at Providence, R. I.: "We will not again allow people to be regimented by selfish minorities into bankruptcy and breadlines."

He said he was opposed to the kind of regimentation "under which you labored and suffered in the days of false prosperity and the great depression."

Gov. Alf Landon sped across the continent from California where he held a Los Angeles audience: "If we preserve our form of government this administration must be defeated."

Earl Browder, communist candidate, was prevented from making a speech at Terre Haute, Ind., last night by a rotten egg barrage and a milling crowd.

Demonstration Farm Originator Dies at Terrell
TERRELL, Oct. 21. (AP)—Walter C. Porter, known as the "father of demonstration farming in Texas," died last night. He established the first demonstration farm in collaboration with Dr. S. A. Knapp of the United States department of agriculture in 1913.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE MOVE WITH 13 MORE

British Navy to Stand By; Rescue With Planes Discussed

(By Associated Press)
Great Britain, France and 13 Latin-American nations moved in diplomatic concert today to save thousands of Spanish non-combatants from death in besieged Madrid.

Great Britain ordered the navy to stand by for a "mission of mercy" to rescue hostages on both sides of the Spanish war.

The Argentine foreign minister conferred with the French premier, Leon Blum, on the possibility of rescuing endangered persons by plane.

Thirteen Latin-American states, from Mexico to Argentina, decided to ask Madrid to recognize the principle of asylum to save hundreds of rightists now refugees in the Spanish capital legations.

Russia was represented as determined to force the supply of aid to the friendly Madrid government.

Can Borrow to Pay Delinquent Taxes, Explained

It is possible for property owners who owe considerable delinquent taxes to borrow from the federal savings and loan associations sufficient money to meet these obligations and repay the loan over 5- to 10-year periods, Rex Ragan, tax specialist with the Cisco school board, explained today.

A property owner can secure a loan of $500 to pay that much in back taxes and repay the loan at a monthly charge of only about $5.50, he said. He described it as the best opportunity the public has of relieving property of delinquent tax burdens—which constitute an overdue debt that can be demanded at any time—and of saving schools and communities.

Those interested in further information were asked to see Sec'y. Frank Walker at the school board office of Mr. Ragan.

Plans Finished For Weatherford Reunion
WEATHERFORD, Oct. 21.—Weatherford college will have its annual home coming Saturday, October 31. The Coyotes will play a football game with the N.T.A.C. squad that night. Plans are being made for one of the finest crowds that has ever assembled for a home coming. Rev. G. Alfred Brown, B. A., M. A., Ph.D., will be the speaker at 6:30 p. m. Dr. Brown has done some outstanding work since he left Weatherford college, has studied in Scotland, and at the present time is pastor of the church at Rising Star. Hon. Preston Martin, well known lawyer and speaker of renown will address the Exes at 3 p. m. on "Building a Greater Weatherford College."

Exes are expected to come from several states to this event. Weatherford college has a history and tradition that is unique and interesting. It has trained and educated some of the finest leaders in all walks of life.

G. C. Boswell is serving his first term as president of this institution, and he is very much pleased with the enrollment this year. He gives credit for this increased enrollment to the loyal support of the Exes throughout this session.

The telephone is now being used for the transmission of orders for trains operating over 63 per cent of the mileage of this country.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Should not the multitude of words be answered? ... Should lies make men hold their peace? —Job. xl, 2, 3.

Remember: A peace is of the nature of a conquest. For then both parties nobly are subdued, and neither party loser. —SHAKESPEARE.

Holy war is better than unholy peace; but in order to have it there must be a holy object, a holy motive, a holy rule, holy action, and a holy end. Alas! how seldom are these found together. —Christian Pocket Book.

The Fascist Threat

In the apparent anxiety of many folks over the menace of communism the threat of another political "ism" fully as disastrous in its effect upon the principles of liberty and equality upon which this government is founded has been overlooked. That is the menace of fascism. At the opposite end of the political alternative in Europe this vicious doctrine of state ownership of the individual and regimentation of its industries, resources and citizens, has already destroyed the liberty and individual rights of the people of the countries it has afflicted with ruthless hand.

It is a beautiful, inhuman organization of mechanical people, resembling innumerable robots who know nothing but to march and shout and fight at the command of a dictator. Communism has no menace greater than this doctrine of state ownership and regimentation. It has no more serious threat to religion than the atheism of Mussolini and the nationalistic paganism of Hitler.

BUT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is aware of the danger. He said in his speech at Syracuse, in which he repudiated the support of communism in terms that even a child could understand and his bitterest critic could not doubt, that he also repudiated any "other foreign 'ism'" which left no doubt of his feelings toward fascism, nazism, etc., and at the same time reiterated the purpose behind the program of his administration. That purpose is to make democracy workable, to adjust a living political philosophy to the growing, changing complexion of a widespread, intricate and highly integrated economic and social picture which this nation presents, so that the system of government which that philosophy inspires may continue to make this land a land of real freedom, real equality before the law, and real opportunity in the pursuit of happiness and economic security through the principle of private initiative.

GREAT ARMY MAY COME FROM SPANISH WAR

TOLEDO, Spain (AP)—A Spanish army may come out of the present conflict that will be a force to be reckoned with in international affairs, insurgents assert.

With proper guidance, they say, Spain may be able in a few years to put at least 2,000,000 men into battle, most of whom will have had some form of military training.

At least 500,000 now wear the uniforms of fascist or Carlist (anti-Bourbon monarchists) in territory the nationalists, or insurgents, have occupied. Many have had little training, but they provide a nucleus for military development with the regular army.

Under a military regime, such as Spain may have if the nationalists win, it is assumed the regular army would be built up, with the fascist and Carlist groups used as reserves.

vious practice had been to shift the gun to change its direction of fire.

Shells Fail to Explode

The insurgent battleship "Esperanza" helled San Sebastian with munitions manufactured in 1908. Most of the shells failed to explode, to the consternation of rebel leaders who declared they had purchased the shells from an English firm as "guaranteed goods."

At Irun, this correspondent accompanied a young French reserve officer on a survey of government position. The officer advised barbed wire to protect a farmhouse from rebel assaults. When he returned the next day the barbed wire had been strung behind the farmhouse.

One of the chief reasons for the loss of Irun by the Popular Front was insistence of the anarchists that they be permitted to leave the lines to go home for lunch.

General Francisco Franco and General Emilio Mola planned their entire insurgent campaign on road maps, distributed free to Spanish tourists by a French tire company.

Bad Marksman

An Associated Press correspondent watched an insurgent six-inch gun hammer away at a farmhouse less than one mile away. It took eleven shots to hit the farmhouse and six more to hit it a second time.

Testimony Heard in Oil Damage Suit

EASTLAND, Oct. 21.—Testimony was taken in 88th district court Tuesday in the suit of W. A. Stiles, receiver of the A. W. Drilling company, for alleged damages to an oil well because of an acidization by Dowell Incorporated and others.

Damages of $21,000 were claimed by Stiles. The chemical treating firm claimed their contract for the acidization of the well, located on the J. B. Johnson farm eight miles south of Carbon, did not hold them liable for damage either by negligence or otherwise.

Ex-Constable Freed In Killing Charge

HASKELL, Oct. 21.—R. A. (Fonce) Greenwade, former Rochester constable, was freed in the killing of John Bearden, by a 39th district court jury which deliberated 30 minutes.

Jurors received the case at 5 p. m. Tuesday, and a half-hour later reported to Judge Dennis P. Ratliff. The defendant was seated with his daughter, Margaret, 17, who embraced him and joined her father in shaking hands with members of the jury as they passed out of the courtroom.

Self-defense was the plea of Greenwade in the death of the 65-year-old farmer, who was shot through the head last June 29. Greenwade took the stand Tuesday to give his version of the fatal affray.

His testimony essentially was this: He met John Bearden, Jr., in Rochester in an intoxicated condition and asked him to go home. Twenty minutes later, the former officer said, he met young Bearden again, placed him under arrest and took him to the city jail. As Greenwade was trying to unlock the jail door, he "felt two or three licks in the left side," discovered he was bleeding from wounds and saw the elder Bearden near him with a knife in his hand, he testified. As Greenwade reached for his blackjack, he said, the elder Bearden grabbed it and both the father and son attacked him. The officer said his gun fell off and that he picked it up and fired at the elder Bearden.

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington.

The poet who pondered so yearningly the whereabouts of the snows of yesteryear would find in this campaign strong inspiration for his plaintive muse.

Where are the political giants of other times? What of those names known to fame which so lately adorned the headlines daily, and nightly rode the ether waves? Where are they hidden away?

Some few of the great figures of the campaign might be recognizable, it is true, to the returning native, after a short visit to Mars. The vice of President Roosevelt would ring familiarly. Memory would stir to the exhortations of Al Smith and Frank Lowden.

But through long weeks of campaigning the returned traveller would have looked in vain for many others who have played the role of stars but recently. His impression, far beyond that of ordinary campaign years, would be that the numerous company of his old favorites had passed over almost en bloc to the port of missing men.

Among Those Missing

Those who have been conspicuously absent from the hustings through the heat and burden of the day include outstanding figures of both parties, and represent almost every known shade of political thought.

Consider some of the most prominent:

The only living ex-president, Herbert Hoover.

The only living ex-vice president, Charles G. Dawes.

A former presidential nominee, John W. Davis.

The dean of the senate, William E. Borah.

A former vice presidential nominee with Theodore Roosevelt, Hiram Johnson.

A revered senate veteran, Carter Glass.

The recognized chief of the brain trust, Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell.

It would be a mistake to draw any hasty conclusion, applicable to the whole list of the missing. Senator Glass, for instance, is under physician's orders. Some others are plainly out of sympathy with their present party leadership, and it is the common understanding among politicians that still others have been asked to remain as silent as possible.

The sum total, however, is impressive. The campaign of 1936 is almost as notable for the silence it has provoked in some quarters as for the noise it has stirred up in others.

Voters in the Dark

Late October has brought one or two of the absent back to the footlights to take fleeting bows. These appearances have not, however, changed the general picture.

The voter is told by both parties that the decision of Nov. 3 will be vital to the future of the country. He is urged to study the issues, to inform himself, to consider carefully for whom his ballot shall be cast. Yet through most of the campaign he is deprived of the advice of public figures whose opinions he has valued highly in the past.

The explanations in individual cases are, as noted, many and various. The public is left to draw its own conclusions as to how far diplomacy has entered into these statements of the cause. The ef-

County Council Meets With A&M Extension Man

The Eastland county agricultural council held its regular October meeting in the court house Thursday, October 15, at which time R. H. Bush, extension organization specialist, spoke to the group on approved activities for 1937. He also pointed out that the organization's duties are to assist in government agricultural programs and cooperate with the county agent in planning and operating a worthwhile program in the county.

A committee composed of R. F. Cox, Okra; F. S. Boland, Scranton; A. L. McDonald, Rising Star; J. D. Guy, Carbon; W. J. Jones, Alameda; and T. E. Castleberry, Yellow Mound, was appointed to cooperate with the commissioner's court and the county agent in securing terrace building equipment for the county and encouraging farmers to terrace and contour their land. This committee met with the county commissioners Wednesday afternoon at 2.

In addition to cooperating with all soil conservation programs, the council went on record as sponsoring boys 4-H club work, preserving of surplus feed by means of trench silos, and an educational program in the county which will give each farmer of the county an opportunity to state what kind of government program he wants for 1937.

The meeting was attended by 13 of the 20 councilmen. The membership of the county agricultural council, which was elected by farmers of the county last spring, consists of Dick Weekes, chairman; R. R. Bradshaw, secretary; R. F. Cox, F. S. Boland, Oscar Schaefer, Joe Donaway, A. L. McDonald, W. A. Williams, J. E. Smith, J. D. Guy, H. W. Gilbert, H. A. Lovell, L. A. Bennett, W. J. Jones, Ben F. Wood, T. E. Castleberry, E. E. Blackwell, W. J. Davis, H. L. Fry, and R. M. Earp.

fact remains the same. In an epochal year, the seeker after light encounters great areas of darkness. It hardly seems to make sense. But perhaps it is one of the inevitable results of party politics.

Project House Keeps 19 Eastland County Boys in A & M

MAINTAINING COSTS RANGE ONLY PER MONTH

Eastland county boys attending A. & M. college are kept in the project house and maintained at college through these projects. The project house was started five years ago and has been successful in keeping 19 boys in school. The house is located on Wesley Lane of Eastland county and is maintained at a cost of $10 each, according to Jack W. Morris, manager of the group. Star, and Jack Morris inspected several vacant houses near A. & M. college and rented a large house in Bryan. They were assisted in their plan by Dr. Daniel Russell, head of the rural sociology department of A. & M. Just before school started a truck was hired to pick up the boy's baggage and other equipment at Ranger, Eastland, Rising Star, and Pioneer and take it to Bryan.

A house mother was hired whose duty it is to prepare meals for the boys and see that they are properly supervised. Practically every boy in the group has gained weight since school started. Groceries and other supplies are bought cooperatively through the rural sociology department of the college.

Started 5 Years Ago
The A. & M. project home idea started five years ago with one project. Last year there were over 500 boys in 43 groups. This year there are 1,000 boys staying in project houses. A. & M. college has the largest enrollment in history, more than 4,000 boys. It would have been impossible to accommodate all these boys but for the project groups. In former years, expenses of boys staying in project houses have been less than half who will be running A. & M. plays, are on the menu for the Bears Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Baylor's story-book win over the Longhorns Saturday and A. & M.'s long-awaited victory over the Texas Christian frogs have placed the Bear-Farmer tilt in the spotlight of the Southwest for the week. Both Baylor and A. & M. were underdogs in their contests last Saturday, and victory on the part of each eleven has set the student bodies of both institutions into effervescing school spirit. On the Baylor campus, cries of "Plant the Farmers," "Clean the Farmer's Plow," and "Beat A. & M." have been supplied as student greetings. Bon-fires, and all-night watches are a part of the homecoming activities on the Baylor campus this week.

Jubilant Bruins Begin Grind For Aggie Tilt Sat.

WACO, Oct. 21 (SpI).—Forty jubilant members of the Baylor varsity grid squad resumed practice Monday "with a song in their hearts" following their 21-18 victory over the University of Texas Longhorns. With a few words of commendation from the Bruin pilot, Morley Jennings, the Bears breezed through a snappy workout in anticipation of their homecoming battle with the undefeated Texas Aggies Saturday in Waco stadium. Heavy scrimmages against the Baylor freshman crew,

Out of their victory over the Steers, the Bears emerged considerably beaten and bruised although Coach Jennings substituted an unusual number of reserves. Center John Reynolds continues with a game leg, Guard Billy Foster and Tackle Hervey Blue are nursing badly bruised shoulders, while Halfback Bob Masters was taken from the Texas game with a bruised knee. Lloyd Russell, who played the greatest game of his career to pilot the Bears to three touchdowns and victory in the fourth quarter, was found Saturday after the game singing "It's My Night to Howl."

Scoring Punch Is Sought For Miss. Combat Saturday

FORT WORTH, Oct. 21.—This is experimental week for the Horned Frogs.

Coaches Dutch Meyer and Mike Brumblow are planning to spend the week in working out a "new deal" for the T. C. U. team. The objective is, of course, a better scoring punch. In the first five games of 1938 the Frogs rang up a total of 114 points; in the first five games of 1937 the total is 51. And four of the five opponents have been the same. More and better blocking is the chief thing which the coaches are attempting to find. This will probably call for some new material, both in the backfield and at end. John Hall, 175-pound sophomore, will be tried at the right half position. Charles Babry, 200-pound sophomore end who towers 6 feet, 6 inches, will be given the opportunity of showing his stuff. Additional shifts, about which the coaches are rather secretive as yet, are also in prospect. The Southwest conference's record in intersectional contests so far this season is nothing to brag about, and the Frogs would like to help improve this showing by getting a victory over the Missisissippi State Bull Dogs in Dallas Saturday. Sub-Capt. Drew Ellis, 220-pound right tackle, has a pulled tendon in his heel and will probably not be ready for the Bull Dogs. Sammy Baugh's ankle is still bothering him, but should not keep him

Word comes from Mississippi that six special trains are already assured for the Dallas appearance of the Bull Dogs, and that hundreds of others will motor to the game. Indications are that from five to eight thousand fans from the Magnolia State will be in the Cotton Bowl Stadium to cheer Major Sasse's eleven.

PRISON POPULATION DOWN

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 20 (AP)—Prison population in New Zealand is decreasing, according to the dominion's prisons department annual report. The number decreased by 370 during the year 1935-36, and since 1931 the yearly decrease has been 34 per cent. The daily average of 1,212 in custody is the lowest figure for years.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has walked knowingly into Ambrose Lawson's trap, in an effort to bring that worthy and his gang of kid-nappers and dope runners to justice. But he is mistaken for a mysterious Mr. Brown by an equally mysterious Irishman, and has a fight for his life. Then police arrive, and Terence and the Irishman, allies for the moment, escape over the rooftops, the pursuing policeman falls to the ground, while the crowd watches him, the two fugitives slip down through a house to the street.

Chapter 23 FATTY BASSETT

The injured constable had been removed into a house to await the arrival of an ambulance, and the constables who had been attending to him were hurrying to the street to join in the hunt. The danger now was that, even in that crowd, the tall hulking figure and ugly features of the Irishman would be recognized. He evidently realized the danger.

"You slip along, Mister; don't stay with me; let me take me chance on 'em," he urged Mahony. "The cops aren't likely to know you, I'm thinking; you'll get away much better without me."

But Mahony wasn't having any of that.

"I'm damned if I will," he said. The Irishman grinned.

"Right you are, me boyo," he replied. "But I'm thinking you'd do better . . ."

He broke off as a dirty hand plucked at his sleeve. The hand belonged to a little, squinting bow-legged man, dressed in a disreputable check suit and a red muffler.

"Get along to Fatty Bassett's," said a hoarse voice. "Slip away quietly, mate. I'll give the cops something to think about while you're gettin' away."

The bow-legged man edged away from them through the crowd and suddenly raised his voice in an excited shout.

"There they go! Look, on that roof! I seen one of 'em dodge be'ind that chimney stack!" he yelled shrilly, and raised a pointing hand.

"Where? Where?" A dozen voices asked the question. A police sergeant grasped the bow-legged man by the arm.

"You saw them?" he demanded.

"I seen one of 'em, large as life, be'ind that chimney stack," declared the bow-legged man in a voice of excited conviction. "E popped 'is 'ead out, took a decko, and ort again. I seen 'im as plain as I see me 'and."

The sergeant ran in the direction of the house at which the bow-legged man had pointed. For the time being the attention of the crowd and police was directed towards that house. That gave Mahony and the Irishman the opportunity to slip out of the crowd and make their way along a dark side street.

But the danger was not over yet; the police in the whole district would be on the lookout for the two fugitives. For five minutes they dodged cautiously about the dark, narrow streets, keeping a wary eye open for prowling policemen. Then they drew into the shelter of an arch overhanging a massive gateway.

"This way," said the Irishman. "Follow me."

He led Mahony along a narrow passage that ran between the back of a warehouse and a row of small, grimy back gardens. Half-way along the passage he turned off to the left, crossed a small garden, and descended half a dozen stone steps into a dark area.

In front of him was a door, the kitchen door of a house. He rapped on it sharply three times, paused, and rapped once again. The door opened very slightly, and a gruff, suspicious voice said: "Who's there?"

"Barney Flynn and another," answered the Irishman. "The cops is out after us."

"Come in," said the gruff voice, and the door opened wider.

They entered through a dark pantry into a frowsy kitchen lighted inadequately by a flickering gas jet. Three men were seated at the kitchen table drinking beer and playing with a greasy pack of cards; another chair and mug had obviously just been left by the man who had opened the door. The three men looked up as Mahony and Barney entered. One of them, a very fat, disreputable-looking rascal, spoke.

"Lo, Barney," he said. "Wot 'ell you doin' over 'ere? I thought you was lyin' low in Joe Walton's dos-ouse over the other side of the river."

"I was so," answered the Irishman. "But I was given the tip where Mr. Brown was to be found tonight, and I slipped across the water to see if I could get me money."

"And who's yer pal?" asked the fat man. "I don't remember to 'ave seen 'im before."

"Way, 'is Mr. Brown himself," answered Barney with some pride. "We had a bit of a friendly argument, and the spalpeen laid me on the flat of me back. After that the police came and we got out by the roof."

"Wot, 'e laid you on the flat of your back!" exclaimed one of the other men. "Wot with?"

"With his fist," said the Irishman, and he laid his hand almost affectionately on Mahony's shoulder. "Begob, he's a foine fighter 'is Mr. Brown."

The fat man turned to Mahony. His eyes were cold, and his expression was unfriendly.

"So you're Mr. Brown, eh?" he demanded.

"No, I'm not," answered Mahony. "I told Barney I wasn't, but he wouldn't believe me."

"True, you're not," answered the fat man roughly. "I know wot Mr. Bloomin' Brown looks like; I seen 'im once when I went to the 'ouse in Jamaica street."

Here was a chance of getting information, and Mahony took it.

"What does he look like?" he demanded.

"Taller than you, and darker, with a little moustache. And 'e's got a little scar on the back of 'is 'ead," answered the fat man.

He scowled at Mahony suddenly.

"On the 'ell are you, anyway, askin' questions?" he went on suspiciously. "Suppose you tell us a bit about yerself."

Mahony did not answer for a moment. The fat man's description of Mr. Brown had given him a sudden shock. Tall, with a little dark moustache, and a scar on the back of his head—that description exactly fitted his friend Billy Ross.

"Well!" demanded the fat man. "Ain't you got a tongue? Wot was you doin' in that 'ouse?"

"I was sent there by a fellow named Milson; he told me that if I called there at ten, Mr. Brown would give me a job," answered Mahony.

"Milson?" said the fat man. "Milson? I never 'eard of 'im. Wot's 'e look like?"

Before Mahony could answer, there came three sharp raps on the outer door, followed by another rap. The man who had admitted Mahony and Barney went to the door and opened it. A man entered.

He came into the room, stopped short, and stared at Mahony and Barney with the expression of one who cannot believe the sight of his own eyes. Mahony stared back at him; there was a smile about his lips but the expression in his eyes was hard and dangerous.

"Hello, Milson," he said. After Mahony's words there was a pause. The air of the cellar was charged with a kind of dramatic tension. Milson stood just inside the doorway, and expression of amazement and fear on his face, staring at Mahony and Barney.

Just behind him, in the doorway, was the man who had let him in. The fat man had risen; his expression was one of hard, scowling suspicion as he stared from Mahony to the man called Milson.

Mahony had moved back slightly and was standing against the wall; his expression, too, was keen and hard, and his hand had slipped into the side pocket of his coat.

During the pause, the bow-legged man also quietly entered the cellar and stood looking with some curiosity at the men in there.

The fat man was the first to speak.

"Milson?" he demanded roughly. "Wot d'yer mean, Milson? That's Mr. Lake."

"He told me his name was Milson, and he sent me down to that house in Jamaica street to see Mr. Brown about a job," stated Mahony.

Milson, or rather Lake, made a little nervous movement with his hand. He was afraid of Mahony and the big Irishman, and to conceal his fear he tried to bluster.

"Well, and supposing I did?" he said shrilly. "I had my orders and I carried them out. And it's a nice thing you've done to let them in here. I'd like to know who's responsible for that. There's going to be some trouble about that, I can tell you."

"I sent 'em along 'ere becus the cops was arter 'em," put in the bow-legged man. "Wot else was I to do?"

"You damned fool. The cops were arter them because . . ." began Milson. Then he broke off as if he had said too much.

Chorus Girl And Accountant Big Hit As Dancers

BY GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—When they came so gaily back from the continent, I wanted to get over to see Estelle and LeRoy. Somehow that Fifth avenue traffic always thrust me back, and it was not until they rounded into "the Ritz" the other afternoon that I talked with these two who have meant more to ballroom dancing this season than any team in New York.
Estelle was properly excited about a new shipment of gowns that Kathryn Kuhn had made especially for her—gorgeous clinging ones that swirl at the bottom and chime in exquisitely with her dark type of beauty. LeRoy was jubilant because he and Estelle are well on their way to a solid year on Broadway—an unusual achievement in this era of changing moods and values.

Met as Dancers
What are they like? You've seen them, no doubt, at the Savoy in London, or on the Riviera—or better still, right here in the metropolis. Estelle, whose last name is Essex and who is a California girl, is a diminutive brunette with dark hair and great sloe eyes. LeRoy, who began life as a certified public accountant in Chicago, became a ballroom dancer because—well, because he likes to dance.
And it was as a dancer that he first met Estelle, although she was a chorus girl at the time and he was one of the featured artists. One night he asked her to dance with him. "I thought it would be grand fun to dance with the star of the show—but as it turned out, I was bored," recalls Estelle, chiding the grinning LeRoy.

Later, in Europe the former accountant awoke one morning to learn that his regular dancing partner planned to wed an English suitor—in two weeks. LeRoy began a mad scramble over half of Europe looking for a new partner.
She Saved the Day
So what happened? So he ran into the girl he had danced with one night in a New York cabaret. "Come here, you," he yelled. Estelle remembered the routines of his Broadway numbers, and had no difficulty in slipping into the role vacated by his former partner.
They danced together first in an English seaside resort, and their reception was such that the rest was easy sailing. Cannes followed, and then came triumphs in all the well known watering places.
Scanning Europe for talent for his French Casino in New York, Clifford Fischer saw them dance in London and persuaded them to return to New York. They're the dancing duo that drew encores for five solid months. This was a prelude to successive engagements—Ben Marden's Riviera, The Paradise, the Paramount, and now comes the Rainbow Room and Mr. Rockefeller's cultural center 65 stories above the sidewalks of New York.

They're delighted, of course, but sometimes they wish they could have a day off. Well, they can't. That's the penalty of becoming a vogue on Broadway.

HEAR EVANGELIST
ABILENE, Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Garrett, their son Carl Garrett and Mrs. Garrett, and the Rev. M. Estes of Eastland were in Abilene Sunday as guests of W. T. Andrus. Garrett, congressman-elect of the 17th district, and his party attended services of Gipsy Smith at the Fair park, returning to Eastland after the night sermon.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

With an Eye to Details

By IRVIN S. COBB

USUALLY Sir Henry Irving acted as his own stage director and sometimes as his own producer. One time he was mounting a play with a large cast and an elaborate scenic investiture. One of the lesser members of the company, a young actor newly graduated into the profession and of a fussy temperament, was exceedingly anxious to acquit himself creditably. Through zeal he became rather a nuisance. Constantly, in the midst of rehearsals, he would approach the star with suggestions regarding small details. But because of the youth's evident enthusiasm Sir Henry kept his patience.

One day when Sir Henry was directing an especially tricky piece of stage technique, the pestiferous novice sidled up.
"Sir Henry," he began, "might I interrupt you for one moment? The matters of my costume and make-up have been giving me considerable concern. The script does not state the exact age of the character but the business of the part and the lines themselves lead me to believe that I am supposed to be a person approaching middle age. Now the question arises whether I should play him as a man about forty-two or as a man forty-three years old. What would you say, sir?"
"I should play him," said Irving, "as a man of exactly forty-two years and eight months."

25 Nominated For Downs Inaugural

ARLINGTON DOWNS, Oct. 21.—Twenty-five two-year olds had been nominated last night for the Texas Jockey club's inaugural handicap at Arlington Downs Thursday—the shove off of a 33-day fall meet.

A. G. Tarn's Mr. Blaze drew top impocket of 119 pounds for the six furlong feature. Camisado, one of two J. D. Norris entries, was given 116 pounds and the Three D's stock farm favorite Heefly, was assigned 114 pounds.
Remodeled and redecored throughout, the $3,000,000 track, now featuring a totalisator, expected to open its fall meeting, headed by the $15,000 Waggoner Memorial handicap, with some 15,000 on hand.

ITALY, GERMANY TO RECOGNIZE REBELS
ROME, Oct. 21 (AP)—Italy and Germany will recognize the insurgent Spanish government almost immediately after the fascists occupy Madrid, informed sources said today.

Agreement on this policy was said to be one of four important issues on which the nations reached accord after Foreign Minister Ciano's first conference with the German foreign minister.

The sources said that Germany agreed not to return to Geneva until the League of Nations was reorganized on the Italian plan, wants a new Locarno treaty, and agreed to divide the Danubian region into commercial influence zones.

Tips on CONTRACT

Guide

Fourth-best leads have shown their merit in years of whist, auction and contract because of their indication to partner as to a good defensive course, especially against no trump contracts. Their failing is that at times they are a great aid to the declarer.

When deception of partners seems to matter not, there can be occasions when the lowest of a long suit, rather than fourth best, proves useful. In illustration:

South contracted for three no trump, the bidding being one no trump by the dealer, two by North and three by South.

The clever Patti Pickens, one of a trio of sisters known on the air, sat West. Her chances of defeating the contract, judging from the bidding and her partner's passing, seemed slim. If the spade suit could be set up her only entry seemed to be in the diamond queen in case South should take a finesse into her hand.

But, she reasoned, South would avoid finessing into the West hand if the spades could be set up. Also as long as East had spades, South would avoid finessing into the East hand lest East return a spade. If things seemed dangerous, South probably would refrain from taking a spade trick until East had no more spades. Could South be convinced there was no danger in finessing into West?

Miss Pickens found a way to produce a delusion. She led the two of spades. East played the jack. South thought a moment, something to this effect:

"Ha! Easy! West's fourth best of her best suit is the deuce. She has only four spades. What if, if she should win a diamond? She can take only three spade tricks and I'll make my three no trump."

And so South took the first trick.

with the ace of spades. He led the king of diamonds, followed by a small club to the ace. A small diamond was returned and he finessed the ten-spot. The plover, sitting West, took the trick with a her queen and ran four spade tricks to set a laydown game contract one trick.

Had West led the seven of spades the declarer would have ducked the trick. Then had West continued with the top spade, South would have permitted it to win in order to exhaust East of spades. After winning the third spade trick, South would have finessed a heart and whatever East could return would do the declarer no harm. The lead of the spade seven would have indicated the possibility of a long suit in West's possession.
