LUBBOCK SLAYING SUSPECT SUICIDES

SLASHES ARM AND DIES IN COUNTY JAIL

Claimed "Two Other Men" Brutally Slew Young Woman

LUBBOCK, Oct. 28 (AP)—L. O. Cooper died by his own hand in Lubbock county jail last night rather than face possible murder charges in the slaying of Juanita Kelly, 21, whose body was found in a shallow grave on his farm.

Questioned since Monday, the man was found by officers today with his arm slashed. He bled to death.

After leading officers to the hiding place of the girl's skirts and the knife with which she was slain, he asked permission to sleep, saying "I'll finish it up for you in the morning."

He said "two other men," who approached as he and the girl sat drinking in his car, killed her. He admitted the knife used was his. He said he became frightened and buried the body, investigators said.

The body, when found, was disfigured and nearly nude.

Journalism Talk Is Heard by Lions

A classification talk on journalism by Frank Langston formed the program for the Lions club luncheon today. The mechanics of newsgathering and publication were explained to members of the club.

Jim Shelton and Russell Stephens of the Abilene club were presented and spoke briefly on behalf of their organization's Lion minstrel show.

It was announced that the Cisco Lions will have charge of a chapel program at the high school Nov. 4. Horace Condey, J. A. Bearman, J. W. Copps were named by President S. H. Nance as a program committee.

School Fare Not Generally Open to Grown People

Statement published yesterday that special school children centennial trip round trip fares applying on the special Texas and Pacific train that will be run from Eastland county to the central exposition at Dallas November 13 will be permitted for adults was announced in error by railroad officials this morning. The rate will be allowed adults only if they are school teachers, parents of children going on the trip or sponsors of students going, and this must be certified to by the schools, it was announced. In other words, the round trip special fares are available only through the schools, and will not be allowed to adults presenting themselves at the ticket window without certification from the schools as to their right to benefit by the low rate.

The train will be run November 13 instead of the 11th as previously planned, and will leave Cisco at 6 o'clock in the morning, stopping at Eastland and Ranger to pick up contingents of students from those points. It will go directly to Dallas from Ranger, and remain on siding at the centennial grounds until the return start at 11:15 Friday night. Admission to the centennial grounds will be 25 cents for the children. Special rates for the round trip will apply as follows: Cisco, $1.50; Eastland, $1.40 and Ranger, $1.30.

The fact that November 11 is a holiday when many football games and other school activities are scheduled, caused postponement of the Eastland county time for making the trip.

Boy Lost Since Last Saturday Is Found

HAMILTON, Mont., Oct. 28 (AP)—Forest Supervisor G. M. Brandborg said he had been telephoned shortly before noon by a ranger that 9-year-old Murray Walkup Miller, who disappeared Saturday, had been found. He said the boy was lost and weak from hunger.

Mollison Plane Is Believed Sighted

BAR HARBOR, Me., Oct. 28 (AP)—A monoplane, believed that of Capt. James Mollison, en route from London to Harbor Grace, passed over here shortly after 10 o'clock today. Mollison hopes to establish a mark of 17 and a half hours from New York.

Britain's King 'Can Do No Wrong'—If He Does, The Press Ignores It

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28. (AP)—The self-imposed censorship of the British press in connection with the friendship between King Edward and Mrs. Wally Simpson, and the attractive American's divorce suit, is a striking example of the traditional protective attitude of the newspapers towards royalty and especially the throne.

The papers consistently refrain from publishing news that may cause annoyance, pain or inconvenience to the royal family. Sometimes there is a request from the palace to newspaperdom to suppress something, and such requests always are granted. More often the editors act of their own accord.

EMPIRE BINDER
That is how the British press sees the crown—and the reason nothing derogatory is printed about the king who wears it.

For example, several years ago a snoop fellow got hold of the private diary of the then Prince of Wales and tried to sell it to a publisher. There naturally was a furore in the book, but the publisher promptly notified the authorities, and the diary was returned to the prince.

LEGISLATORS PASS MEASURE CURBING OLD AGE PENSIONS BEFORE THEIR ADJOURNMENT

Court Says Dog Racing Is Legal

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (AP)—The supreme court held today that dog-race betting was not a violation of state gaming laws. It also ruled that dog-racing organizations can not be enjoined and closed as a public nuisance.

The ruling was made in connection with several cases which were consolidated to clarify the law over which there has been dispute for several years.

House Reverses Its Refusal to Accept De-liberation

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (AP)—The third called session of the 44th legislature ended today, adjourning at midnight after the enactment of laws radically revising the old-age assistance plan and creating a system of unemployment compensation.

It provided emergency measures for uninterrupted assistance to the aged and a large number of new taxes estimated to yield $8,000,000 annually.

The new law restricts payment of pensions to persons in "necessitous circumstances" and abolishes the assistance commission, placing the administration under the board of control.

The unemployment compensation bill permits Texas to participate in the federal social security act provided the latter is not repealed or held unconstitutional.

Gov. Allred praised the legislature for its accomplishments and said there would not be another special session. "It has accomplished all the most pressing needs," he said.

FASCISTS ARE NEARER GOAL

Final Thrust Rumored To Be Imminent

(By Associated Press)
Spanish fascists shoved their outposts within 10 miles of Madrid today, announcing they were ready for the final thrust which is rumored imminent.

The government ordered mobilization of all able-bodied persons to bolster the yielding lines of raw recruits.

West of Madrid the insurgents pushed toward El Escorial, a strategic government point.

Madrid announced it has sufficient supplies to resist a siege of two months.

ITALY ACCUSES RUSSIANS

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Italy denounced Russia for 20 alleged new violations of the "hands-off-Spain" agreement, demanding that the neutrality committee investigate.

It asked that the soviet be called upon for an immediate explanation.

Rev. Broxton Is Speaker Today At The High School

The Rev. Preston Broxton, pastor of the Twelfth Street Methodist church, spoke to the students of high school this morning at the assembly program. His subject was "Not Forgetting God."

During the period slips were passed to the pupils and each was urged to sign them as their subscription to The Lobo, high school bi-monthly which is published by the students. The second edition of the paper was issued this morning and so far the students have not responded greatly to the call for subscriptions.

Principal O. L. Stamey spoke to the students of the game with the Abilene Eagles Friday afternoon.

Bandmaster Robert Maddox announced that all band members who expected to march at the game Friday are to be at the march practice Thursday afternoon.

University Given Vote Of OK by Legislature

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (AP)—The house of representatives today had given to the University of Texas a vote of confidence and commended the faculty for its conduct during a legislative investigation of reported communistic and atheistic teachings.

The probe ended last night and the committee was discharged.

A report by a minority member of the committee said communism and atheism were of necessity taught in the university but as

Reversed Itself

The house reversed itself last night to approve the conference report on the omnibus tax bill to raise revenue for the payment of pensions and to which the senate had attached the deliberalization amendment. The vote of 100 to 45 came after a day of caustic debate over the provisions for drastically revising the old-age assistance law.

The lower body has first rejected the conference report, already approved by the senate, and had then sent a request to the senate for a new conference on the controverted measure, but the senate "respectfully declined" to reconsider, a legislative move that, in common parlance, "put the monkey on the house's back." The house objection to the measure centered about the Small deliberalization amendment, drastically revising the policy of pension payments to include only the needy.

Last Minute Appeals

Last minute appeals by representatives who long had opposed deliberation but announced they would switch their votes in order to provide revenue for pensions in an admitted emergency apparently settled the issue.

A small bloc of members opposed adoption of the report to the end. One, Rep. Clarence Farmer.

Former Pastor Sent to N. M. Conference

RANGER, Oct. 28.—Rev. George W. Shearer, former pastor of the First Methodist churches of Ranger and Eastland, has been transferred to the New Mexico Southern Methodist Conference, where he will be presiding elder, word received here today stated.

After being pastor in Ranger and Eastland, Rev. Shearer was pastor of the Arlington Methodist church, where he was located at the time of his transfer.

Roosevelt, London In New York Area

(By Associated Press)
The campaign paths of President Roosevelt and Governor Landon led to the New York metropolitan area today.

Three speeches are on the Roosevelt program—dedicating the gymnasium of Brooklyn college, the fiftieth anniversary of the Statue of Liberty, and the Roosevelt park talk.

Landon decided to stop at Trenton, N. J., and Newark before reaching New York.

"BOYS WILL BE BOYS" That was the attitude Britain took of Edward as Prince of Wales when he appeared at a resort clad only in shorts and otherwise did as he pleased.

Athletic Ass'n Meeting Called Thursday at 4

With an appeal to all members of the association to attend because of important business matters and committee reports to be taken up, and emphatically assuring them that no money would be asked, President Vance Littleton today summoned the Citizens Athletic association into meeting at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the chamber of commerce.

"We have a number of matters of considerable importance and several committee reports to hear that will be of interest to the group," said Littleton. "We will also take up the question of organizing business men's volleyball games and other athletic activities at the high school gymnasium two nights a week. We want all the business men interested in playing volleyball, handball and in gymnastics to meet with us Thursday afternoon."

Cross Plains Will Play Midgets Here

The Cisco Grammar School Midgets will bid for their 12th consecutive victory Thursday afternoon when they meet Cross Plains at Chesley Field at 4 o'clock. This will be their third game this season.

Most Exhibits Due For Show Friday

Entry of all livestock exhibits horses and mules Friday will be required by the rules of the Eastland County Livestock show to be held Friday and Saturday, it was announced by Supt. T. G. Caudle. The latter classifications are to be entered Saturday.

Judging of the beef cattle and dairy cattle will take place Friday, beginning at 2 p. m. and judging of the remainder of the exhibits will occur Saturday.

R. N. Milhollin of San Angelo and Leon Ranson of Abilene, assistant county agent for Taylor county, will be the judges, Caudle announced.

FANS MAY SEE BOTH GAMES

Awards of cash, merchandize and ribbons will be made to firsts, seconds and thirds, the city commission cooperating with the chamber of commerce and the business men in providing these awards.

Entertainment will be provided by Harry Schaefer's orchestra Friday and by the Lobo band under the direction of R. L. Maddox Saturday.

Prospects for an excellent show were seen today, provided rain and inclement weather does not interfere. An especially large Hereford section and a good dairy section were predicted.

Breck-Anglo Game at Night Friday

No conflict in schedule for those who want to see both the Breckenridge-San Angelo grid game at Breckenridge and the Cisco-Abilene game here will exist since the local contest has been placed at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The Breckenridge-San Angelo game Friday night is looked up as determining the 1936 district championship. Breckenridge, the defending champion, is credited by many as having a stronger team than last year's powerful eleven. San Angelo, on the basis of its season record, is stronger than last year, also, so that a hard-fought battle is in prospect. The two teams are both unbeaten, while all other conference members have bowed to district opponents at least once.

Cisco's game with the Abilene Eagles will give the visitors their first opportunity to use their backfield mercenary from Haskell, the 200-pound Kimbrough. He was said to have become eligible last Saturday.

The Lobos held a short workout yesterday afternoon which consisted of calisthenics, blocking practice and a short scrimmage. The blocking showed improvement and the first team which was given practice on defense looked well.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The next treasurer of Potter county, Texas, away up in the Panhandle where the barbed wire fence is down and they raise the kind of football teams Cisco used to grow, was in town yesterday with his wife and their daughter-in-law. He is L. D. Heyser, who admits he is a cousin of Virgil Heyser, and the daughter-in-law is Mrs. J. C. Heyser.

Heyser will be formally elected a county official November 3 and he is justly proud of having won over a tough field in the first and second primaries last summer.

His office will be in a courtroom in the center of a square at Amarillo at one corner of which stands the two-story newspaper plant in which I served enjoyable time with a group of as fine and capable people as you will ever see in one newspaper organization. The group was headed by Gene Howe, the Tacless Texan publisher whose partner, Wilbur Hawke died some months ago. John McCarty who was a reporter then and later published the Dalhart Texan has been made editor of the two papers and associate publisher, while T. E. Johnson, facturn and dry, rules the editorial department as managing editor.

Speaking of political office summons to mind the current presidential campaign and a yesterday afternoon barbershop discussion. A. L. Clark said he had heard Landon twice, once when he accepted the nomination and Monday night. I mean, of course, that he heard the republican candidate over the radio. Now Landon may be an executive of rare ability and a statesman of talents superb, but as a radio speaker he has an appeal which reminds me of the undoubtedly ludicrous efforts of a storied canary to sing bass. I invited Clark to accept the first chance to compare Roosevelt's radio appeal with the other personality of the man who has inherited the big white elephant. He said he would.

I must admit, however, that the radio presence of the unfortunate Kansan has improved with practice. He has gone up against an excellent standard and he has gained by the experience.

Practice and experience bring improvement. Sometimes the roughest sort of raw material will acquire a symmetry, a lustre and a polish of amazing degree under the buffeting of conflict and hardship. It is that way with politicians. There is really little difference save magnitude between the big arena of national affairs and the little ring circus of the home show.

Those of us close to Clyde Garrett's campaign for congress remarked often during the closing days of the strenuous battle he went through how his speaking and platform personality had improved. The Congressman has a rare political presence and a vote appeal that resembles that of Roosevelt, and the gruelling experience of his campaign polished this to a great degree. The years he spent

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony is accused of murdering a man and of being in with a gang of kidnapers, among other things. But although he has important evidence, Inspector Kennedy has decided to give Elsa Little, the cinema actress, a chance to work out information out of Terence before arresting him. Elsa is the niece of the murdered man, and because she recognized Terence's voice at the scene of the murder is the most important witness against him.

Chapter 29 RUTH'S WARNING

When the Inspector had gone, Mahony left his lodgings and went round to Lee-Ramsden's house. He was shown into the drawing-room where Ruth and Lee-Ramsden were seated.

"Hallo," said Lee-Ramsden cheerfully. "You're looking rather pleased with yourself this morning. What's been happening?"

"As a matter of fact, I'm feeling rather pleased," answered Mahony. "I've just had a visit from Miss Little. She doesn't suspect me of murdering her uncle any more."

"That's good," said Lee-Ramsden. "I don't wonder that you're pleased."

But Ruth frowned, and looked at Mahony in a puzzled manner. "She doesn't suspect you any longer. Are you sure? What makes you think that?" she asked.

"She said so," replied Mahony. "She told me she was all wrought up and nery yesterday, and hardly knew what she was saying."

"She told you that she didn't suspect you any more?" asked Ruth incredulously.

"She told me so herself," answered Mahony impatiently. "And she invited me to dine with her this evening. That doesn't look as if she still suspected me, does it?"

"I don't know," said Ruth slowly.

There was something very wrong here, she felt. Was Elsa setting a trap for him?

"Don't you go to dinner with her," she said impulsively. "I'm sure she still suspects you. She's got some reason for inviting you to dinner."

Mahony felt very awkward; he thought Ruth was being silly. He did not quite know how to tell her politely that he had no intention of refusing Elsa's invitation.

Ruth saw what was passing in his mind. She realized that nothing would induce him to refuse Elsa's invitation.

"All right; do what you like. I'm going for a walk," she said in a somewhat muffled voice, and turned hastily and left the room, slamming the door after her.

Mahony looked astonished. Old Lee-Ramsden made a slight gesture as if to indicate that there was nothing to be astonished about.

"Women, my dear Mahony, are queer creatures; they have these moods, you know," he remarked airily. "What else has been happening to you during the last twelve hours?"

"Quite a lot," answered Mahony, and he began to tell Lee-

Ramsden about his adventures in Limehouse.

Ruth did not go for a walk. She went into the hall, put on a rain-coat and hat, opened the front door, and then changed her mind. She wanted to be alone, to think. She closed the front door again, went up to her guardian's study, and sat down in a large arm-chair.

She felt very miserable and helpless, and as she sat huddled in the big arm-chair, the tears ran slowly down her cheeks. What could she do; how could she save Mahony?

After a time she heard the front door open, and her guardian's voice in the hall below bidding Mahony good-bye. The front door closed; she heard her guardian's footsteps ascending the stairs to the study. He opened the door and entered.

Ruth shrank back in the big chair and remained quite still. She hoped Lee-Ramsden would not see her; she did not want him to know that she had been crying.

He crossed the room, humming a little tune, went to his desk, raised the telephone receiver, and gave a number. In a second or two she heard him speaking.

"Is that you, Lawson? 'I've just been having a talk with our young friend Mahony. I can tell you what has happened to your missing man, Lake; he's imprisoned at number seven, Royal Road, Pennyfields. Mahony has engaged the services of some of your own toughs led by a man named Bassett, and they're after your blood. He gets into touch with Bassett by ringing Limehouse o-three-two-five, which is a pawnshop next door to Bassett's house, where Lake is imprisoned. Does this interest you at all?"

Ruth could just catch Lawson's answer, sounding very thin and faint.

"It interests me a lot. Thank you. I'll take steps to deal with those people, and Mahony, straight away."

Ruth sat quite still, absolutely horror-stricken. She found it almost impossible to believe that her guardian, who had pretended to be so firmly on Mahony's side, was betraying him to his enemies.

Lee-Ramsden replaced the receiver and resumed his humming. Then, for half a second, his humming checked. Sticking out from the side of a big chair which had its back towards him, he had seen a small piece of blue material—the material of which Ruth's frock was made. Ruth was in that chair. Obviously she had heard every word he had said.

He gave no indication of having seen her. Much better let her think, for the moment, that she had not been spotted. Still humming, he turned away from the desk and walked out of the room.

As he left the study his mind working very quickly. He knew that Ruth's first action would be to warn Mahony of what she had overheard. And he made up his mind that his first action must be to prevent her from doing so.

At the bottom of the stairs that led won from the study he stopped and spoke a few words to Mullins, his butler. Then he went into the drawing-room and waited for a moment. After that he emerged into the hall again and called: "Ruth, my dear, are you anywhere about?"

Ruth, still in the study, heard him call. As Lee-Ramsden had guessed, her one idea was to warn Mahony of his danger. Very cautiously she emerged from the study, walked quietly a few paces along the corridor, opened and closed her bedroom door, and called back as naturally as she could: "Did you call, Uncle Gerald?"

Lee-Ramsden, down below in the hall, smiled. He saw through that little trick of opening and shutting the bedroom door.

"Yes, I'd like to have a little chat with you. I won't keep you long," answered Lee-Ramsden.

Ruth descended the stairs and entered the drawing-room. She was possessed of a wild impatience to get out of the house and telephone to Mahony.

"What is it?" she said. "I was just going out."

"I won't keep you for more than ten minutes, my dear," said Lee-Ramsden. "I want to ask your advice about re-decorating this room."

For ten minutes he talked to her on the subject of decorations, asking questions which she managed to answer somehow. When the conversation was over, she slipped on a hat and coat and left the house.

Lee-Ramsden heard the front door close behind her, and went into the hall.

"Well, Mullins?" he asked.

"I rang up Mr. Mahony's house," answered Mullins. "I told him you wanted to speak to him at once, most urgently, and he was to leave the house at once and meet you in the Lyons tea-shop in Park street. He said he'd go right away."

"Excellent," said Lee-Ramsden. "When Ruth rings she'll find he's gone. Just to make quite sure she doesn't catch him, ring up again and talk to the landlady for a few minutes—it doesn't matter much what you say so long as you keep the number engaged for a few minutes."

He himself put on a hat and coat, and took a taxi to the Lyons tea-shop in Park street. Mahony was already there, seated at a table. Lee-Ramsden's face wore an expression of anxious concern as he made his way towards him.

"I'm afraid I've got bad news for you—very bad news," he said. "When my butler rang you up, Inspector Kennedy had just left my house and was on his way to arrest you."

"Oh!" said Mahony. "Why has he suddenly made up his mind to arrest me?"

Lee-Ramsden hesitated, as if he hardly liked to go on.

"I fear that was Ruth's doings," he went on. "The poor child is terribly sorry now for what she's done; she was in tears when I left her."

"What has she done?" asked

Mahony. "She's told Kennedy that you didn't see her till some time after the murder, and she also told that you employed a gang of criminals in the East End who had been hiding a wanted man named Flynn. She gave him their dress."

Studebaker Cars Show Remarkable Economy in Fuel

An unusually interesting series of gasoline economy tests has just been completed on the Bonneville, Utah, salt flats by The Studebaker corporation using that company's 1937 models. The tests were conducted under the strict supervision of The American Automobile association and the results of the runs are official.

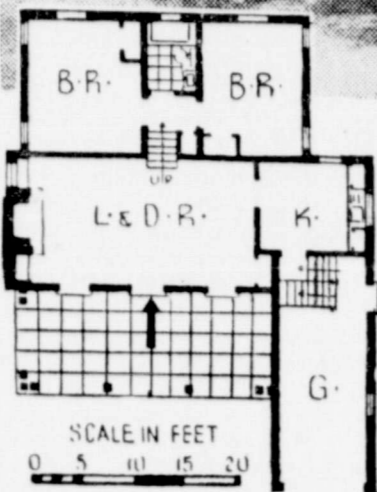

A week prior to the economy tests, Studebaker research engineers chose—at random—a Studebaker 1937 dictator and a 1937 president from cars coming off the assembly lines in South Bend. These cars were driven to the salt flats and, immediately, A.A.A. inspectors and engineers took them apart to ascertain whether they were genuine stock models in every respect. After searching minutely, the cars were certified as strictly stock. Then came careful supervision of the purchase of fuels to be used. Every angle of the tests was thoroughly checked by the A.A.A. inspectors.

The tests were begun. The plan was simply this: each gasoline tank had a capacity of 18 gallons of fuel and the tanks were filled. Only ordinary gasoline was used. The cars were to run at a constant speed until the fuel in the tanks were exhausted. Three runs were to be made by each model, one at 35 miles per hour, another at 45 miles per hour and a third at 55 miles per hour. The cars were driven by expert pilots who had been carefully instructed as to what speeds to maintain. The results were the maximum that can be obtained under the cost perfect conditions.

The official results are as follows:

- Total miles, Dictator, 483,656; President, 402,63.
- Average speed, Dictator, 35.364; President, 35.665.
- Total gallons used, Dictator, 17,609; President, 17,371.
- Miles per gallon, Dictator, 27.465; President, 23.177.
- Lapsed time, Dictator, 13 hrs. 49 min. 35 sec.; President, 11 hrs. 17 min. 21 sec.
- Total miles, Dictator, 427,50; President, 394,29.
- Average speed, Dictator, 44.998; President, 45.386.
- Total gallons used, Dictator, 17,594; President, 17,398.
- Miles per gallon, Dictator, 24.423; President, 22.663.
- Lapsed time, Dictator, 9 hrs. 30 min. 01 sec.; President, 8 hrs. 41 min. 15 sec.
- Total miles, Dictator, 371,55; President, 319,08.
- Average speed, Dictator, 55.260; President, 55.359.

Rambling One-Story House Achieves Informal Comfort

Completely unconventional, this one-story house built on two levels has a charming air of informal comfort. Its loose, rambling form is well suited to the irregular hillside site.

Rugged simplicity marks the porch with its heavy square supports and pleasing gable. This roomy porch, in warm weather, amounts to an outdoor living room. A flagstone walk and half a dozen brick steps lead down to the driveway and garage entrance.

The huge chimney adds to the structure's individuality. The two bedrooms are six steps above the living-dining room, while the garage is on a yet lower level, reached by a stairway from the kitchen. The plan speaks "personality," yet is neither affected nor ostentatious. This home was built at Asheville, N. C., for $3,000. Henry Irven Gaines designed it and The Architectural Forum selected it as an outstanding plan.

inch flooring. A beaver board panel was slipped in the frame. I also made a shoe rack for the closet. The closet now has five shelves, two rods for hanging clothes on; a low one for the children and a higher one for the grown ups. The inside is papered and all the woodwork painted white. I papered the room which the closet is in. This improved the looks of everything in the room. There seems to be twice as much storage space in the closet as well as looking twice as nice. Everything in the closet is in its place.

"All the supplies used, including paper, paint, lumber, beaver board, hinges and the latch only cost $3.50."

Storage Space
"By rearranging my storm cellar, I know where everything is and have more room," says Addie Spurlen, garden demonstrator of the Olden Girls' 4-H club.

"The first thing I did was to remove all canned food and wash the shelves. While they were drying, I whitewashed the ceiling and walls. This made the entire cellar very light. I painted the shelves white, giving them two coats. More shelves were built out of scrap lumber, so they did not cost anything."

"While the shelves were drying, I washed and dried the jars. I then placed the canned food on the shelves according to the following classification: leafy vegetables, starchy vegetables, other

Texas Livestock Shipments Lower Than Sept., 1936

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—Total shipments of livestock from points in Texas to Fort Worth stock yards and interstate points during September were considerably below those of the like month last year, the bureau of business research at the University of Texas has reported. The decline was entirely due to the smaller shipments of cattle, since there was a slight increase in the shipments of calves, hogs, and sheep.

Aggregate shipments of 4,201 cars were 15 per cent under the 4,931 cars shipped during September last year. Cattle shipments, 2,492 cars, against 3,446 cars last year, were down 28 per cent. Calves, 854, against 827, up 3 per cent; hogs, 354, against 192, increase of 80 per cent; and sheep, 501, against 466, an increase of nearly 8 per cent.

"The excellent pasture and feed situation in Texas in conjunction with a weak price situation induced by the marketing of distress live stock from the drought areas of the northwest appears to be responsible for the sharp decline in Texas cattle shipments in comparison with a year ago," the bureau's report said. "These same influences are causing unusually large numbers of cattle to be shipped into Texas. Almost 14,000 head were brought in from Kansas and Oklahoma during September—more than ten times as many as were shipped in from these states during September, 1935."

"Cattle shipments to Los Angeles and other California points more than doubled those of a year ago. Shipments of other classes of live stock to these markets, however, showed almost no change from last year."

"Only two live stock reporting districts in Texas show an increase in cattle shipments in comparison with September last year—the southern Panhandle and the Edwards Plateau. South Texas shows the greatest decrease in cattle shipments."

"Forwardings of Texas hogs—vegetables, fruit and fruit juices, protein foods, pickles and relishes, preserves and jellies, and miscellaneous."

"The cost of improvement was ninety cents and the canned food was convenient to get to and anyone could find the food without looking for it."

Morton Valley Girls Meet
The 4-H Club girls of Morton Valley met at 2:45 at the Morton Valley school on Oct. 22nd. Elaine Duncan, vice-president, was in charge. The following officers were elected: Elaine Duncan, president; Mary Elizabeth Rayfield, vice-president; Johnnie Nix, secretary; Maxine Mittag, reporter; Violet Newel, song leader; Eula Harbin, garden demonstrator; Mary Elizabeth Rayfield, wardrobe demonstrator; and Mrs. J. B. Rayfield, club sponsor.

Miss Onah Jacks, State girls' club agent from College Station, met with the club and explained the canning and judging contest opened to all club girls carrying the garden demonstration. Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent, explained the wardrobe contest open to all girls carrying the wardrobe demonstration.

Rehabilitation Service Helps Crippled Youth to Get Position Through Training

RANGER, Oct. 28.—What is described as one of many typical cases was reported Tuesday by B. E. McGlamery of Eastland, supervisor of vocational rehabilitation for the state department of education in this district.

Joseph Nugent Davis, who lives at Colony, a crippled youth, finished a radio and refrigeration course in Chicago Oct. 15. Today he has a job in Ranger.

The course was paid for by the state department in cooperation with the federal government. Good grades during his 14-week training in Chicago was reported for Davis.

It cost the department about $300 for Davis' training and railroad fare.

Davis is one of three in McGlamery's territory who have taken the radio and refrigeration course in the Chicago school.

Although C. W. Sexton of Ranger lost his right arm below the elbow in a railroad accident he will be able to make a living, thanks to welding training provided by the department. A. J. Baum of Ranger was his trainer.

Paul McCulloch of Cisco, who has a paralyzed leg, is learning to repair car bodies, fenders and paint automobiles at the A. G. Motor company in Cisco. He is taking a six-month course.

J. D. Jones of Eastland is taking a barber course provided by the department in Dallas.

The department works in cooperation with the Texas Society for Crippled Children and does two types of work. One is to provide hospitalization and medical care for crippled children up to 20 years of age in families who are unable to pay these services, and the other is to furnish vocational training to physically disabled persons 16 years of age or over as long as the training is practicable. McGlamery has 46 counties for crippled children and 76 counties for vocational rehabilitation.

J. J. Brown of Austin is head of the vocational rehabilitation division of the department of education and is a director and medical adviser in the Texas Society for Crippled Children.

continued large. The bulk of shipments going to Fort Worth and Los Angeles, the latter market receiving almost as many as the former."

League To Limit Contest Plays To Comedies, Farces

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—Voting about two to one in favor of the change, member schools in the Interscholastic league have adopted a provision in the one-act play rules limiting plays in league tournaments during the present season to either comedies or farces, it has been announced at the University of Texas bureau of public school interests, state headquarters for the league.

Heretofore, with the whole range of dramatic production open, a very large percentage of the plays presented during the past ten years have been tragedies, according to Morton Brown, dramatics director of the league. Many coaches believe that the lighter forms of dramatic art have no chance in competition with tragedy. Indeed, in the ten years of this competition, comedy has been awarded first place only once, and it is surprising that 90 per cent of the plays winning the privilege of competing in the state tournament have been tragedies.

This competition is conducted throughout the state under the auspices of the Interscholastic league in pyramid fashion, beginning with county competitions, which lead to district, and then to regional competitions. The winners in the eight regional tournaments are qualified for the final state tournament. Participation in this contest has grown steadily. Beginning with only a few schools ten years ago, last season found 591 high schools engaged in the contest.

Improved Closet Space
Verda Gean Spurlen, wardrobe cooperator of the Olden Girls' 4-H club, tells how she improved her closet space.

"The entire family used the same closet which was located in one corner of the room. The other two walls were made of cardboard. A curtain was used for the door. The inside was not painted."

"I decided to make the closet one and a half longer as it was too small for a family of six. I made a list of things I would need at the lumber yard."

"I tore down the two walls and put up new ones of beaver board. A door frame was made of three

Let Us Sing

A Hymn Writer in Cisco

The Rev. J. D. Hendrickson has been living in Cisco for five years, but many persons discovered for the first time Monday night that he is the author and composer of several hymns. In the "Triumph Hymnal," published by Messrs. Andrew Hemphill, Thos. G. Whitten and Elisha Hoffman, nine hymns showing the Rev. Mr. Hendrickson as author and composer are included. Two of them were sung at the First Methodist church Monday night. They are hymns of beauty and power. The hymns are as follows:

"Send Thy Spirit," "Jesus Saves Me," "The Lord Is My Shepherd," "Let My Heart Be Perfect," "God's Love," "The Savior Died for Me," "Praise the Lord," and "We'll Sing in Heaven."

Another hymn, "Come Unto Me," is still in manuscript and will be sung some time this week. The sermon tonight will be on the subject, "Safeguarding the Home," and hymns of home will be sung.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mancill and Mrs. J. W. Mancill have returned from a visit in Wichita Falls.

turned intact to its owner. Throne Binds Empire But there is more than respect and reverence for royalty in this attitude. It is a truism of England that the throne is the symbol which holds the empire together; that if the throne goes, the empire dissolves. Because of this the papers suppress anything that may reflect adversely on the throne.

MRS. SIMPSON

If England no longer subscribes exactly to the old doctrine that the king can do no wrong, it comes close to it. In any event, if a ruler should make a mistake the press would protect him against himself—that is, would safeguard the dignity of that all-important throne.

Thus far the public has chosen to regard the king's friendship with Mrs. Simpson as his private affair (though many Britons say it is getting uncomfortably close to being a matter of state), and England never intrudes on royal privacy. So far as Edward is concerned, his adoring subjects gave him plenty of leeway when he was Prince of Wales—"Prince Charming," they called him. Perhaps the question may arise now as to whether as king-emperor, he can do things he did as heir.

Public Just Smiled

The fascinating Mrs. Simpson is not by a long way the first friend Edward has had, and in several instances the romance was of considerable duration.

The public merely smiled and said "boys will be boys." The newspapers were silent. When Edward was "off-duty" as prince, he was accorded all the privacy of an ordinary citizen.

If he appeared in a cafe to dance—and he often did—nobody paid the slightest attention to him or his lady. They got bumped by other dancers, the same as anybody else. He used to like to go back of the scenes at musical shows, and he wasn't the Prince of Wales there. If he got in the way, the ladies of the chorus used to push him about like any ordinary mortal. Let the prince desert his role of plain Mr. David Windsor, however, and he would be surrounded immediately by a cheering crowd which would fight
