Spain Hints It Has New Materials to Wage Fight

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Statistics compiled by the driver's license bureau of the Texas department of public safety reveal that the safety campaigns conducted by the highway patrol division in cooperation with local police and other enforcement agencies and civic organizations have resulted in a decided downward trend in the number of fatalities and serious accidents. That this decline has taken place in spite of greater increased traffic due to the attraction of the various centennial celebrations is further evidence of the effectiveness of the safety program. I am of the opinion that the driver's license law has had more than a little to do with the result achieved, because it has emphasized a sense of individual responsibility and accountability on the part of the driver.

The report shows a reduction of three in the number of deaths for each 10 million gallons of gasoline consumed, the average reduction being two for the entire nation. The comparison issued by the bureau places the average number of such deaths over the year 1935 at 19 for each 10 million gallons, while for the first eight months of 1936 the death rate was only 16. During the period the registration of motor vehicles in Texas increased 100,000 over 1935 registrations.

For the first nine months of 1936 traffic deaths were 37 under the number for the first nine months of the preceding year. For 1935 they totalled 1,864 and for the first nine months of this year they were 1,276.

The fall season is the most dangerous period of the year, according to the statistics, and in 1935 the month of December was the most dangerous month. During that month 194 highway fatalities occurred in Texas, November, 1935, had 170 deaths, October 187, and September 178. August 1935 had only 150 fatalities but August 1936 showed an increase of 30 deaths over that figure with 170 fatalities.

The P-T-A. will have a Pet Show at the A-G Motor company's used car lot on Sixth street in connection with its Hallowe'en carnival Saturday. All the kids are invited to bring their pets at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Judging will start at 6 o'clock, so that there will be plenty of time to see the remainder of the carnival, it was announced.

Five cents will be charged as entry fee for each pet and an admission of five cents will be charged spectators. Each pet must be accompanied by its owner and one owner may enter free with each pet.

Awards will consist of blue and red ribbons in each general class, and awards will be made for the largest, smallest, prettiest, cutest, most odd, and smartest pets.

Landon Honors Theodore Roosevelt's Memory Before Speaking at New York City

Governor Landon paused today to honor the memory of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay before his address tonight at Madison Square Garden, New York, while President Roosevelt carried his campaign to Pennsylvania and other eastern states.

Landon's schedule included a visit to Roosevelt's grave and a talk with his widow. He conferred last night with Alfred E. Smith.

At Harrisburg President Roosevelt said he knew the American people would not return to power the republican leaders "who emptied the national market basket." He said, "I know the American people will go forward with those succeeding in filling it once more."

Earlier at Wilkes-Barre, President Roosevelt had said that a "handful of employers were attempting sabotage of the social security act through pay envelope propaganda," adding that they did not believe the American workers would be "fooled by this campaign any more than they had been frightened by strong-arm squads in the past."

ITALY CLAIMS FEDERALERS GET RUSSIAN HELP

Italian Subs Waiting Order to Blockade Catalonia, Charged

(By Associated Press)

The Spanish government hinted today that it had obtained war materials to put it on an even footing with the insurgents assaulting Madrid. The hint was followed by detailed Italian charges that Russia had sent arms and men to Spain on 20 occasions.

It also coincided with an announcement from the Spanish embassy in Paris of "confidential information" that a fleet of Italian submarines was waiting for sailing orders to blockade Catalonia, where President Manuel Azana has laid the groundwork for government headquarters should Madrid fall.

BEST QUALITY OF STOCK DUE TO BE SHOWN

Workers Busy Putting Grounds in Shape For Annual Event

The highest average quality of any previous show was predicted for the Hereford section of the Eastland County Livestock show which opens here tomorrow for two days. The show will be held in the former Wilkerson Lumber company yard on South D avenue.

Today, under the direction of T. G. Caudle, superintendent and agricultural secretary of the chamber of commerce, groups of FFA boys were cleaning the grounds, building a judging ring and arranging stalls for the animals, numbers of which were already beginning to arrive.

Entries Due Friday

All exhibits, with the exception of horses and mules, will be required to be in place Friday. Horses and mules may be brought Saturday. Judging of the beef cattle and dairy cattle will begin Friday at 2 p. m. Other entries will be judged Saturday afternoon. Judges will be R. M. Millhollin of San Angelo and Leon Ranson of Abilene.

Members of the FFA chapters here and at Lutheran school, and members of various 4-H clubs in the county will enter their projects in livestock raising, including hogs, baby beeves, sheep, dairy cows, horses and so forth. There will be no club boy division, the exhibits being entered in open competition. Ross Jenkins, county agent for Callahan county, indicated that numbers of Callahan county 4-H club boys would enter stock.

Mr. Caudle said today that, with fair weather allowed tomorrow, one of the best shows of recent years was in prospect.

Hereford Interest

Particular interest was being shown in the beef cattle section where Hereford exhibits will be considerably higher in quality this year than before. In addition to Herefords, however, there will be exhibits of the Aberdeen-Angus breed which is rapidly increasing in popularity.

Manchu Emperor Seldom Leaves Capital

Kang Teh has been out of his capital, Hsinking, only three times since he was made emperor of Manchoukuo three years ago. One of the three was this visit to the tombs of his ancestors at Mukden.

Manchoukuo Ruler Is Closely Guarded

HSINKING, Manchoukuo, Oct. 29. (AP)—Emperor Kang Teh of Manchoukuo, the "empire" which Japan has set up in Manchuria, has been described as the "loneliest and most isolated monarch in the world."

Other kings live in great marble palaces, surrounded by courtiers, brilliant members of court and society. But Henry Pu-Yi, as the emperor was known after he lost the renowned dragon throne in China, lives quietly and almost alone in the old salt administration building which the Chinese abandoned here years ago.

This building resembles a barn more than a palace, yet the democratic young emperor is said to be against the construction of a more suitable domicile until all the other state buildings in this new capital, are completed. Meantime Japan has built a magnificent palace-like home for its own ambassador here and he lives in grander style than the emperor.

AMARILLO, Oct. 29. (AP)—Peace officers of three counties today searched for a man and a woman known as "Blackie" and "Mabel" in the slaying of a man identified only as "Ace," whose burned body was found on a road near here.

Three hitchhikers were eyewitnesses to the slaying on a highway east of here. They said that the killing climaxed a drunken argument.

After the killing, they said that the man and the woman loaded the body into a car and drove away. New Mexico license plates were found in the burned car.

Hunter Is Rescued From Narrow Ledge

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 29. (AP)—Lloyd Rawson, deer hunter, who tumbled over a cliff yesterday, suffering severe injuries, was rescued today.

The rescuers scaled a high mountain peak to reach him on a narrow ledge, where he had lain 10 hours while bobcats prowled in the nearby brush.

Change in Cards Slows Report on School Work

Delay in the issuance of report cards from the grammar school has been caused by a change in the card system designed to promote more efficient student work and to give the parent a better descriptive detail of the student's record, Supt. Cluck said.

The new card is the result of a great deal of study on one phase of curriculum revision which seeks not only to diagnose the individual student's case but to provide corrective measures, Cluck said. It is being tried out in the grammar school because the students there are more nearly all of one age and the results can be better checked.

It is hoped, he said, that the new system will stimulate the student to compete with his own record, thus encouraging individual effort at improvement. The cards will appear within a few days, he said.

Twelve and one-half per cent of the hatch of the state fish hatchery here was placed in city lakes, according to figures just released by Supt. D. C. Harper. These show that a total of 45,020 fish were released in the waters of Lake Cisco and Lake Bernie. Twenty per cent of the season's hatch of over 360,000 fish were placed in Eastland county lakes, all of which received consignments. The remainder was distributed among lakes in the other 24 counties served from the local hatchery.

Mr. Harper's records show that 18,163 bass, 5,325 crappie, 17,800 bream and perch and 1,000 channel cat were placed in Lake Cisco, making a total of 42,288 fish put there. In Lake Bernie 1,602 bass and 1,130 crappie were released.

The production of the fish hatchery was not as great as in some past years because the first and heaviest spawn was caught a late spring cold wave that killed most of it. Mr. Harper and Assistant Superintendent L. A. Proctor recovered most of the loss, however, by catching new brood fish.

Total distribution production of fish this season was as follows:

No. 1 bass fingerlings 72,900.
Advance bass fry 72,500.
Crappie 52,754.
Bass, fall 33,688.
Goggle-eye perch 41,000.
Bream (4 species) 86,000.
Channel cat 10,825.
Total 369,667.

Many Farmers to Use Trench Silo to Save Late Feed

Many farmers in Eastland county plan to save their late feedstuff by putting it in trench silos, according to Elmo V. Cook, county agent. All feed standing now or left standing when frost comes can be saved in trenches, regardless of the weather, according to Cook. The more it rains the better this feed will keep as water is added to make silage, anyhow. Frost does not damage feed for silage, as it can be put into the trench 4 to 7 days after frost and make good silage.

Sweet potato vines make a good grade of silage. C. P. Houston of Eastland is filling a small trench silo with them.

Marvin Hood of Eastland is putting 6 tons of feed into a trench and B. B. Duncan of Reagan community is filling a 12 ton silo.

Dan Childress is planning to put 35 acres of begari, about 100 tons, into a trench on his ranch near Reagan community.

John Thurman of Terrell ranch and Dr. Chas. Jones of Cisco are waiting for frost, when they will fill their trench silos.

A. D. McGinnis of Romney and Tom Grasham of Grandview will fill small trench silos.

There are several complicated problems to planning and filling a trench silo. The county agent's office will supply a bulletin covering the subject on request and will assist in planning dimensions and locations for anyone interested.

Letters From Our Readers

Editor Cisco Daily Press
Cisco, Texas.

Dear Friend:

I cannot refrain from commenting favorably on your recent editorial relative to fascism vs communism. This is a timely and well written article, and should meet with the approval of all lovers of democracy, which I feel sure constitutes the great majority of our American people. The craving for political freedom in a people is as natural, as is their appetite for physical nourishment. It was that craving one hundred and fifty years ago in the American people, that caused them to revolt against the dictatorship of England. It was that craving that inspired Thos. Jefferson to write that immortal document—the Declaration of Independence. No dictatorship can lurk behind that great declaration of principles. The American people's one great heritage is their political freedom. To retain this, we should remember that timely admonition of Jefferson's: "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance."

To a liberty-loving people, fascism is the greatest menace in the world today. A democracy might vote a complete communistic program into power, and, if dissatisfied, vote it out again. An honest mistake in an individual, or a democratic nation, can be remedied without serious consequences, but no democratic nation will ever vote fascism into power because, once established, there would be no escape from it except through violence and bloodshed. It is a vulture that feeds on troubled nations, gorging on the blood of its victims. In Europe, we see it sweeping one nation after another, and in America symptoms of this political disease are in evidence in every direction. Our courts and our public officials are necessarily only a reflection of public opinion, so let every believer in the wisdom of a democratic majority express himself in no uncertain terms, in no other way can the insidious forces of fascism be defeated.

The writer did not vote for Roosevelt, but he believes in honest statements and fair play. The charge is made many times a day that he is a dictator, which is absolutely untrue. Every bit of authority he has exercised during his administration, other than that usually applied by his predecessors, was delegated to him by the present congress, which has the right at any time to rescind these powers, leaving the executive branch of our government as it was on March 1st, 1933. Many republican members of congress participated with their democratic fellow-congressman in the delegation of these powers, now so bitterly complained about. When Mr. Roosevelt took office as president of the United States, an economic and social emergency existed, which threatened the very existence of our government. This condition was much more serious than it was nine months previous, when the democratic platform was written. President Roosevelt shouldered this burden, which congress bestowed upon him. He said he would make mistakes, which meant that he would try to do something. His bitterest critics today do not say, even in the light of a retrospective view, what he should have done, rather, they criticize him for doing anything, claiming our economic distress would have arighted itself. A very different state of mind as evidenced by their hurried trips to Washington in the spring of 1933, when representatives of every industry were beseeching Mr. Roosevelt for help before it was too late.

Trail Blazers Reunited Under Philpeco Oaks

RISING STAR, Oct. 29.—Quite a number of the members and a large crowd of visitors attended the annual meeting of the Trail Blazers association, held under the oaks at Philpeco Country club last week.

The meeting was called to order by president G. W. Plummer, at 10, who after making a short talk stated that he wished to retire from the office and asked that his name not be put up for reelection. However, he was howled down and unanimously elected president for life. E. R. Patterson was re-elected secretary. During the meeting Mr. Plummer was presented with a beautiful birthday cake by Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Brooks, of Lometa, he having celebrated his 93rd birthday on Wednesday.

Mrs. C. G. Shults in making a list of names and ages of the older members of the association found that Nath Beavers, 96, of Rising Star, topped the list for age. Others getting along in years, who consented to give their ages, were as follows: G. W. Plummer, 93; Mrs. J. L. Noble, 83; J. L. Weathermon, 82; Ike Walker, 90; Will King, 89; J. F. Reed, 76; Will Anderson, 86; L. D. Stanaford, 78; J. W. Clark, 86; Bill Dill, 77; Henry Brooks, 75; Pinckney Bearden, 89; John Cooper, 84; Bob Townsend, 84; Bill Brasuel, 78; Tom Deens, 85; P. D. Rickardson, 79; J. M. Roach, 83.

The old timers were entertained during the noon hour with a concert by the Goss string orchestra with the aid of a loud speaker furnished by the Chevrolet Motor Co., who had their show truck on the ground as a courtesy to the association.

In the afternoon Mayor W. E. Tyler called the meeting to order and after a short talk opened the meeting for talks by anyone who cared to speak. A number of short talks were made including J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Cisco chamber of commerce, Ed Curry, Bill Dill, C. G. Shults, Tom Deens and others.

Memorial resolutions were passed for the following members who had passed away since the last meeting; John Freeland, Romney; Capt. A. M. Curry, Pioneer; A. L. Mayhew, Cisco; Roy Hickman, Rising Star; Tom Crouch, Rising Star; Wm. Koonce, Rising Star, and Mrs. E. R. Patterson, Rising Star.

The Country club was chosen as a permanent meeting place.

Roller Skating at Lake Cisco Pavilion

Through the courtesy of the Lake Cisco Amusement company arrangements have been made by T. L. Keller and staff to conduct roller skating in the Lake Cisco pavilion, it was announced this week.

Skating will begin each evening at 7 o'clock and continue throughout the evening at one and a half hour sessions unless dances are advertised by the park management.

Mr. Keller comes from the Pacific coast where skating is a real art and is fast becoming one of the most popular sports for health and recreation. His experience as a rink manager enables him to insure all of his patrons a pleasant evening at the Lake.

TOO LATE!

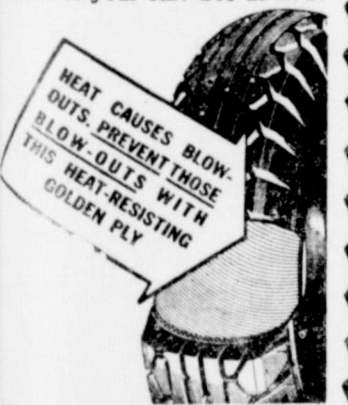

IF ONLY I'D THOUGHT ABOUT MY TIRES BEFORE THIS BLOW-OUT HAPPENED

Suppose YOU had a blow-out. Afterwards, when you're sitting by your wrecked car waiting for help, you'd have plenty of time to think about how dangerous it is to gamble on tires. But why not think of that NOW—why not let us put real blow-out protection between your car and the road TODAY?

HERE'S BLOW-OUT PROTECTION Free! Only Silvertowns Have the Life-Saver Golden Ply

Whether you realize it or not, heat—the terrific heat generated inside your tires by today's high speeds—is the great, unseen cause of high-speed blow-outs. But now—thanks to the research of Goodrich engineers—thanks to the invention of the Life-Saver Golden Ply by them, this terrific heat is resisted in the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown. You're protected because dangerous heat blisters don't get a start inside the tire. And when you prevent the blister, you prevent the high-speed blow-out.

NOTE Goodrich Silvertowns are the only tires made with Golden Ply Blow-out Protection and they cost no more than other standard tires. Isn't that a double reason for insisting on Silvertowns for your car? See us now.

our legislative system. The soundness of considering geography as well as population density in the distribution of representation is made clear by consideration of the fact that the cities are supported by the country—not the country by the cities. To guard the country, the rural areas, if you please, against legislative discrimination at the hands of legislators from the large cities is a measure for protecting not merely the political interests of the "great open spaces" but the political and social economy of the whole state.

Traffic Through Small Towns

THE problem of slowing down highway traffic as it speeds through the smaller towns engages the attention of the Texas Weekly which takes cue from a suggestion put forward by the Howe Messenger of Grayson county. The Grayson county paper believes that the state highway department should install and maintain traffic lights in such towns at the principal crossing of highways.

BUT whether or not the maintenance of such signals at highway intersections in these small towns will solve the whole problem of traffic control within these communities is a matter for debate. Danger lurks at every obscure street or alley intersection with main traveled routes. Through traffic on such routes is notoriously careless, or contemptuous, of these dangers.

"Why Roosevelt Will Be Beaten"

By THE NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT OF THE LONDON STAR

I KNEW Franklin D. Roosevelt long before he became president of the United States. I believe that history will rank him as one of the six greatest presidents, the others being Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Cleveland and Wilson.

If I were an American citizen I would not only vote for Roosevelt but I would give my last penny and exert myself to the last fibre of my being to help his re-election.

But, all the same, I believe he will be beaten at next month's election.

I believe he will be beaten by a coalition of human greed, and human inertia, and human hatred of the exceptional man, and human treachery, and human susceptibility to the "snob appeal" of rich men and clever women, and human capacity to rise to the height of great leadership.

THE English newspapers take Roosevelt's re-election for granted. They cannot believe that any modern democracy would be so fatuous, so fickle, so ungrateful as to reject the man who had saved it from revolution and anarchy. They don't know America.

But I know my America. I have been a part of it for many years. I know the strength of the snob appeal. I know the might of the almighty dollar. I know that the plutocracy of New York, and Long Island, and Newport and Chicago, possess a power that the English aristocracy have not enjoyed since the 18th century.

Over a year ago the Republicans had raised a fund of more than 2,000,000 pounds to defeat Roosevelt. Today that secret fund must be nearer 5,000,000 pounds. It has been swollen by the contributions of the Du Ponts, the Rockefellers and all the other princes of the new plutocracy.

Money doesn't talk in American elections, it shouts.

The adroit application of dollars to certain strategic wards in Philadelphia and Chicago is sufficient to sway closely contested elections in the great states of Pennsylvania and Illinois. It can also carry New York, and Massachusetts and the New England states.

THERE is an unprecedented frontal siege from without, coupled with an unprecedented betrayal from the inside. Great democratic papers such as the Baltimore Sun and Evening Sun and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, are now stabbing one of the greatest democratic presidents in the back. Henry L. Mencken, the sage of Baltimore, is assailing Mr. Roosevelt with a violence of vituperation unparalleled even in the hellfire and brimstone annals of American politics.

The latest literary pundit to turn on the president is the suave and oleaginous Walter Lippman, whose pontifical pronouncements on world affairs are syndicated to 200-odd American papers. Mr. Lippman, like Mr. Mencken, must be very happy in the company of William Randolph Hearst, in defaming the president. Walter Lippman backed Roosevelt for three years. As an American friend of mine said, Lippman's chief grievance seems to be that every American intellectual save himself was brought into consultation by the White House.

It may be left to Dr. Freud and the psycho-analysts to determine why a man who has saved his country from chaos and bloodshed should be vituperated as a traitor. It is possibly the anti-father complex, which has destroyed all great American presidents.

THE motley crew of wealthy bankers and industrialists and New York intellectuals, Hearstians and Menchenians, have lined up behind a very nice pink-eyed white rabbit named Alfred Landon, whose chief claim to distinction is that he likes to be called "Alf," and wants to be thought "a reg'lar feller."

Governor Landon, who is an amiable and charming man, is the epitome of all the things that Mr. Mencken has warned us against.

Having lived so long in America, I have an almost superstitious reverence for the power of great wealth.

I know that it can annihilate justice and mercy, that it can reduce democracy to a hollow farce, that it can commandeer brains and wit and charm, that it can overawe the wretched and seduce the idealist, that it can speak with the tongues of angels, that it can take to itself the glorious oriflamme of freedom to conceal its predatory purposes, that it can buy the best brains of lawyers and journalists that are for sale on the booths of Vanity Fair.

IT is because of this that I fear that Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the aristocrat who abandoned his class to fight for the common people, will be beaten.

The same elements which drove George Washington nearly insane by their treachery and ingratitude, that would have crucified Lincoln had he not been mercifully killed by the assassin's bullet, and that hounded Woodrow Wilson to his death, are sharpening their knives for Franklin Roosevelt.

Through the length and breath of America there is a saying current: "Ten million dollars can't be wrong." And 25 million dollars can't lose an election!

Probate Matters

In the matter of the estate of Elizabeth Taylor deceased. Report of the county judge in appraising the estate for fixing the inheritance tax. The value of the estate was appraised at $43,513.12, of which $25,000 is exempt from the tax. The court fixed the tax at 1 per cent on $18,513.12, making the inheritance tax $185.13.

Application of Mrs. Nellie Ashcraft, mother, for letters of guardianship for Norma Jean Ashcraft, et al, minors. Citation was ordered issued and at the hearing the petition was approved and letters of guardianship ordered issued after petitioner had posted her bond in the sum of $1,665.96, with C. B. May, R. A. Jamison and C. E. Maddocks as sureties, which was approved.

Application of Bertha Barrett, to file will of William Dennis, deceased, filed.

Commissioners Court

An order of the commissioners court was unanimously adopted approving the application of the Commercial State bank for the release of U. S. treasury bills Nos. 161589 and 161598, each in the amount of $10,000. It appearing to the court that there will still remain sufficient securities in escrow to guarantee the county funds after these securities are released. It was therefore ordered that the trustee, the First National bank at Dallas, be instructed to release these securities.

An order was passed by the court increasing the salaries of three case workers delivering commodities to relief clients, from $30 to $40 per month, due to the increased work involved.

At the October term of the court the election returns of the Rising Star-George Hill school consolidation election, held in September were canvassed, the results of which the Press had previously published, but it was necessary to officially declare the result. The court formally declared the consolidation failed to carry as the matter was not approved by both of the school districts. Rising Star voters favored the consolidation, while George Hill voted against.

County Court Judgments

Civil judgments in the county court were the West Texas Utilities Co. vs. Ed Aycock, note and mortgage. Judgment for plaintiff for $230.65 and foreclosure of lien.

13 Texas School Elevens Are Still Unbeaten

Shipment of Poultry And Eggs Declines

AUSTIN, Oct. 29.—Poultry and egg shipments from points in Texas to interstate points reached their seasonal low point during September, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. Although there were only seventeen cars of poultry shipped out of the state, this was an increase over the eleven cars shipped during September last year, the bureau reported. Egg shipments amounted to 26 cars, against 25 cars last year.

Receipts of eggs from other states increased substantially. Of the total interstate receipts of 26 cars, nine came from Kansas, nine from Missouri, one from Oklahoma, and seven from Nebraska. Last year in September only three cars were received, two from Kansas, and one from Louisiana.

Year Marked By Upsets; New 11's Added to Group

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Oct. 29. (AP)—Eight teams remained in the undefeated untied class the week beginning Oct. 25, as the Texas Inter-scholastic league campaign romped down the fading October gridiron trail.

Powers of other years were conspicuous by their absence. Only three teams perennially strong remained in the perilous list to winter's first icy blasts heralded the home stretch.

Amarillo in the west, North Side (Fort Worth), Dallas Tech, and North Dallas in the north, Hillsboro in central Texas, Kerrville in the south-central, and Corpus Christi and Edinburg in the south, clung to the unblemished distinction.

Amarillo, Tech, and Corpus Christi are "old heads" at winning football games. The others came forward this season in a surge of upsets.

Five Are Tied

Five teams were unbeaten but tied—Olney, Breckenridge, Longview, Temple, and San Benito. Olney, however, almost fell last week when the Cubs hooked in their second deadlock. Temple was tied again but the score alone kept them in the list. They lost the game on first downs. It was the same with San Benito, which faded by the penetration route.

Austin of El Paso, Paris, and Palestine fell from the unbeaten, untied ranks, and Port Arthur, which had a tie against its record but no losses, went down before Amarillo's juggernaut. Incidentally it was the first time the Yellow Jackets were scored on this year.

The scramble for district honors reaches a climax this week. Thus far favorites have arisen in the respective races but few of the districts have one standout team.

Amarillo is regarded as the class of the Panhandle although the Sandies have not played a conference game to date. It's a horse race in district two between Wichita Falls, Childress, Olney, et al.

Breckenridge and San Angelo apparently are destined to fight it out for the Oil Belt crown and Austin (El Paso) and El Paso high look like the top class of district four.

Gainesville Favored

Gainesville became a favorite in district five with a smashing win over the hitherto unbeaten, untied Paris Wildcats but the road ahead is quite rocky for the Leopards.

Greenville flashed back into prominence in district six by their impressive victory over Sulphur Springs, but the Lions have McKinney and Highland Park (Dallas) to contend with.

North Side is the standout of the Fort Worth district. Traditional battles, however, are still ahead and the Steers face a rugged road to the title.

Dallas Tech is ranked above the rest in the Dallas district with North Dallas and Sunset the chief opposition and it looks like a battle between Gladewater and Longview for the district nine crown.

Lufkin gets the nod in district ten but Athens is to be reckoned with in no uncertain terms.

Hillsboro in Lead

At this time Cleburne and Hillsboro lead district eleven. The latter, by virtue of victories over Waco and Corsicana, looms as the favorite. Cleburne still has Waco and Corsicana to hurdle.

Kerrville and Austin occupy top rank in the San Antonio district where the going is always tough, and it is a free-for-all in the Houston district where little can be determined until the last game is played. Jeff Davis and John Reagan stand out thus far, with Sam Houston the dark horse.

Port Arthur is expected to repeat in district fourteen with chief opposition from Ball High (Galveston). Beaumont does not play the Yellow Jackets this season and a tie for the top is possible.

Corpus Christi again looms as the team to beat in district fifteen, and the battle for the district sixteen title appears to be between Edinburg, Harlingen, Weslaco and McAllen, with the former favored.

Midgets Will Play Moran Team Today

The Cisco Grammar School Midgets this afternoon are scheduled to meet Moran on Chesley field in the game which the Midgets hope will increase their record to 16 consecutive victories.

The Midgets are unbeaten, untied, unscored upon in two seasons of football.

This afternoon's game is set for 4 o'clock.

OIL SHOWING EAST OF CITY

EASTLAND, Oct. 29.—A showing of production of undetermined proportions was reported Saturday afternoon in the Monarch Refining company No 2 fee lands, about four miles west of Eastland off the Cisco highway.

Pay from the Rust sand at 1-600 feet was reported flowing by heads. The well is 650 feet from the south and 1,420 feet from the east line of the northwest quarter section 44, block 44, H&TC.

Many difficulties were encountered by the operator in drilling the well.

Further development of the area north of Cisco was assured in the announcement Lone Star Gas company is building a rig for its second recent deep well on the J. G. Boggs farm.

The farm has been the location of three operations by Lone Star. The No. 1 Boggs had initial production of 110 barrels from the Lake sand. The other well as a shallow operation.

The new well is to be known as the No. 3 Boggs, 660 feet north of the No. 1. It is 910 feet from the south and 320 feet from the east lines of the farm, section 83, block 4, H&TC survey. It will be drilled to 3,710 feet unless commercial production is found at a lesser depth.

The south offset to the recent producer drilled by Dorothy Oil company, Neil A. Moore et al No. 6 Holcomb heirs, was temporarily shutdown at 1,864 feet. The well is 1,130 feet from the south line and 1,228 feet from the east line of the west half of section 1, block 4, H&TC survey.

The States Oil corporation No. 1 Holcomb, a north offset to the Dorothy well, had been drilled past 600 feet. Location is 150 feet north and 330 feet west of the southeast corner of the northwest quarter section 1, block 4, H&TC survey.

States Oil corporation No. 5 Henderson remained a location, 825 feet from the north and 330 feet from the west lines of the northwest quarter of section 8, block 4, H&TC survey. It is six miles north of Eastland. Production at 1,500 feet will be sought.

Anderson-Drewery No. 2 L. J. Griggs, 700 feet from the north line and 500 feet from the east line of the A. Miller survey, eight miles southwest of Carbon, was reported to have reached the top of the Caddo. Pay is expected around 2,800 feet.

Colored Comics Used For Slowing Traffic

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Oct. 29. (AP)—The Waukegan police department has evolved a novel method of slowing auto traffic near public schools by displaying brilliantly colored comic characters bearing warning signs.

The signs stand about three feet high and depict such figures as Shirley Temple, "Barnacle Bill" and others. Each character displays a warning sign.

Sergeant Laurence F. Kelly, chief of the police department's accident prevention bureau, says drivers slow down if for no other reason than to "get a good look at the signs."

Advertising is not an expense—it's the life blood of any business.

TRENT FARMER CONVICTED IN WIFE'S DEATH

ABILENE, Oct. 29. (AP)—Clarence Duncan, Trent farmer, was found guilty Saturday of the murder of his wife and assessed 25 years in the penitentiary. The body of the woman was found in the ruins of their home which was destroyed by fire.

A 42nd district court jury at 5 p. m. received the case of the Trent farmer, charged with murdering his first wife, Mary Jones Duncan, April 10, 1935. Her body was found in the burned ruins of their home. Duncan was given a 10-year sentence at Sweetwater two weeks ago for the death of G. H. Jones of Trent.

Testimony in the case was completed at 2 p. m. Friday, and the court's charge at 3 o'clock, arguments immediately following with an hour and 15 minutes to the side. The state's principal afternoon witness was A. T. Sheppard, undertaker of Merkel, who said:

"While I was preparing Mrs. Duncan's body for burial I found a break in the skull of the forehead, not entirely through. Later, when her body was exhumed for examination by doctors, I saw a hole in the skull where the break had been noted earlier. I saw Dr. W. V. Ramsey matching skull fragments into the hole. These were lying in the back of the skull. Around the hole the skull seemed tough and firm."

D. H. Vaughn, city marshal of Merkel, followed to testify that soon after the fire he heard Dr. R. I. Grimes of Merkel express the opinion that "a fire didn't cause that woman's death."

Childress Named NYA Soil Program Chief

EASTLAND, Oct. 29.—Appointment of D. L. Childress Jr., of Eastland as supervisor of National Youth administration soil conservation work to be inaugurated in Eastland county Nov. 1, was announced Monday by County Agent Elmo V. Cook.

Agent Cook stated 35 or 40 boys will be afforded employment by the project which will be in progress six months.

Type of work outlined for the NYA project includes running of terrace line, running of pasture contour lines, cleaning small demonstration pasture acreage, making and laying garden sub-irrigation tile, putting in small demonstration trench silos and assisting in planting and laying out systems for T. V. A. fertilizer applicants.

Anyone who desires sub-irrigation tile for laying next Spring may have the service by paying the cost of material, Cook stated. Plans are underway for the NYA conservation supervisors of the district to visit the Spur experiment station to learn the latest soil conservation methods.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony is only one jump ahead of Inspector Kennedy, who would have arrested him for the murder of Vincent Little but for Elsa Little, niece of the murdered man. She is a cinema actress, and plans to clinch the case against Terence by vamping him and securing additional information. Ruth Fraser has tried to warn Terence; now Lee-Ramsden, Ruth's scheming, tricky guardian, has betrayed Terence to Ambrose Lawson, the real murderer, and is blaming Ruth for his action.

Chapter 30

LEE-RAMSDEN'S PLAN

"But how did Miss Fraser know about Fatty Bassett?" asked Terence.

Lee-Ramsden shrugged. "She said she was going for a walk. She didn't go for a walk; she listened outside the door and heard all we were saying."

"But why has she turned against me?"

Old Lee-Ramsden shrugged his shoulders.

"Hell holds no fury like a woman scorned," he quoted. "Ruth is in love with you, Mahony. And . . . well, you did rather push Elsa Little down her throat this morning. But I didn't suspect that her jealousy would lead her to such extremes. It was only a momentary madness. She's sorry for it now, and would give anything to undo what she's done."

"Oh damn!" said Mahony in a hopeless tone.

Things could not very well be much worse, he thought. Yet, in the middle of his own worry he felt sorry for Ruth. Poor kid, he reflected, she must be feeling pretty rotten.

He looked up at Lee-Ramsden with an air of decision.

"I must warn those men of mine, Bassett and the others, at once," he said.

"They've been warned," answered Lee-Ramsden. "While Mullins was telephoning you I rang up that number you told me and warned Bassett. He has promised to ring me later and let me know where they've all gone."

"That's fine," said Mahony in a tone of relief. "I suppose I'd better lie low and try to get into touch with them as soon as I can."

"Yes. And so far as lying low is concerned, I can fix you up. I own a house in the St. John's Wood Road which is empty at present. I'll give you the key and you can go there and wait till you hear from me again. Here's the key; the house is number 518. You'd better get there as quickly and quietly as you can before anybody spots you."

He handed over the key and they left the tea-shop. Lee-Ramsden returned to his own house. He was well satisfied with his morning's work. Mahony was out of mischief for the time being.

Ruth also was out of mischief. Lee-Ramsden calculated that, finding the could not get into touch with Mahony by telephone, she would go round to his digs and leave a note for him. That note would never reach him.

Ruth acted as Lee-Ramsden had calculated. To begin with, she tried to ring Mahony up. For ten minutes she tried to ring him up, only to find his number was engaged. Failing to get into touch with him that way, she got out her car and drove round to his lodgings.

His landlady told her that Mr. Mahony had gone out a few minutes previously in a great hurry; he had not said where he was going, but she was expecting him in for lunch.

Ruth debated in her mind for a moment; should she wait, or shouldn't she? She decided not to wait; every moment she waited meant a moment's delay in warning Bassett and the other members of Mahony's band in the East End. She left a brief note for Mahony, telling him what had happened, made her way to the nearest post office, and rang up the number that she had heard her guardian tell Lawson.

The number was engaged. She waited a couple of minutes and rang again. Still the number was engaged. Again she waited, and rang up, and yet again, and each time the number was engaged.

She wasted nearly a quarter of an hour trying to ring Bassett. Lawson had taken his own precautions against anybody sending a warning to Bassett by telephone. Three men, in different call boxes in different parts of London, were ringing Bassett's number, putting in calls one after the other in rapid succession.

At last, thoroughly dispirited, she left the post office. Her car was outside the post office and she stepped into it and set off at once for the East End. Since she could not get Bassett on the telephone, she intended to warn him in person.

Her car was a long, rakish two-seater that could move, and she was a good driver; in spite of the traffic she made good time through the city. Pennyfields, she knew was somewhere off the East India Dock Road. A short distance down the East India Dock Road she stopped and asked a policeman the way to Royal street.

He looked at her in some surprise.

"You'll cause a bit of sensation, miss, if you drive along Royal street in that car," he told her.

"I can't help that. I'm going there," she answered. "And I'm in a hurry."

He shrugged his shoulders and directed her. She drove a little farther along the East India Dock Road, turned to the right, and plunged into the maze of mean, narrow, crooked streets fringing the bank of the Thames.

In a few minutes she reached Royal street and drove slowly along it. The house she wanted was next door to a small, dingy pawnshop. She stepped out of the car, crossed the pavement, and rapped on the front door. After a short delay the door was opened by a little, squinting, bow-legged man, dressed in a disreputable check suit. He stared at her and from her to the car in undisguised astonishment.

"An' wot can I do for you, Miss?" he asked with an air of exaggerated politeness.

"I want to see Mr. Bassett, at once; it's very urgent," answered Ruth, quickly.

There was a sound of great urgency in her tone, and the man did not waste time arguing.

"Hey, Fatty," he bawled. "Well, wot is it, Chippy?"

"Greta Garbo's called," answered Chippy.

There was a sound of heavy footsteps, and the frowzy, disreputable figure of Fatty Bassett appeared at the top of the stairs leading down to the basement kitchen. He too looked in surprise at the dainty figure of Ruth, and past her at the luxurious car outside.

"Struth!" he observed. Ruth went forward quickly.

"Are you Mr. Bassett?" she said. "I've come to warn you, a man named Ambrose Lawson knows all about you. He knows that Terence Mahony was here last night, and that you've got a prisoner named Lake and that you're hiding a man named Flynn."

"The 'ell 'e does!" exclaimed Bassett in a startled tone. "An' ow d'you know this?" he demanded.

ed. "Let's ave the yarn, quickly. Lord knows that if you're right we ain't got no time to lose."

"I'm a friend of Terence Mahony," answered Ruth. "I heard a man named Lee-Ramsden, who pretended to be friendly to Mr. Mahony, telephone to Lawson. I tried to get you on the telephone to warn you, but the number was always engaged."

"That's right enough. Some blighter's been ringing me in the pawnshop next door for the last hour, and I can't get any sense out of 'im," answered Bassett. "Maybe 'e was only ringing me so that nobody else couldn't get at me. In that case something is going to happen pretty soon. Hey, Barney, Sim."

There was a further sound of footsteps as his men hurried to answer his call. Then, from the back door in the basement, the same door by which Mahony had entered the house the previous night, there sounded three sharp raps, a short pause, and then another rap.

"Now, I wonder 'oo the 'ell that is," said Bassett, frowning. "There's none of my blokes likely to be callin' now. I dae say it isn't one of my blokes; maybe it's somebody 'oo knows the signal and 'as a nasty surprise for us. Well, we'll see if we can surprise 'im, or them. 'Ere, you three."

He drew his men aside into a small room and gave them low-voiced directions which Ruth could not hear. They began to mount the stairs that led to the upper portion of the house. Then Bassett turned to Ruth, and in that moment she could see the qualities which made him the leader of this ruffianly-looking gang. There was an air of shrewd, business-like efficiency about him; his manner was curt and decisive. He jerked his thumb towards the front door.

"You 'op it, lady," he commanded. "An' tell your bloke, Mahony, to ring me up at that number 'e knows some time this evenin'." I want a talk with him."

ABILENE, Oct. 29.—Forty three Knights Templar from ten commanderies were in Abilene Monday night for an annual convocation for which John Temple Rice of El Paso, grand junior warden of the United States grand encampment, was chief speaker. Several past grand commanders also spoke. A dinner preceded the session. Other officials and former officials present were: Thomas M. Bartley, of Waco, grand recorder of the grand commandery of Texas and past grand commander; H. B. Robertson, of Abilene, past grand commander of Texas; and O. E. Radford of Abilene, past grand commander of Texas.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

In the massacre of Fort William Henry, (1757) Colonel Munro, commanding the Fort, is killed and his daughters, Cora and Alice, carried into captivity by the Hurons. Hawkeye, an American hunter, and Major Heyward, rivals for Alice, set out in pursuit. With them are their Mohican allies, Chingachgook and his son, Uncas. Uncas rescues Cora but is killed by Magua, Huron Chief. Cora hurries herself over a cliff to escape Magua. Magua is in turn killed by Chingachgook. To save Alice, Heyward and Hawkeye both offer themselves as prisoners to the Hurons. Heyward claiming to be the much sought after Hawkeye.

Chapter XII

WHICH IS HAWKEYE?

The Hurons stared at both men in bewilderment. "Do you want proof?" asked Hawkeye. "Then bring us a rifle." The Sachem frowned. And then, as he caught the drift of Hawkeye's plan, he smiled and nodded.

Hawkeye's Trial

"Pick your target, Major," said Hawkeye grinning. Heyward was sober. "The gourd by the door," he suggested.

"That?" said Hawkeye scornfully. "Why I could spit in it." He looked around, and then spoke in the Huron tongue to one of the warriors. "Put a clay jug on that stake."

The distance was so great that in the torchlight the jug was barely visible. Heyward was incredulous.

"You mean to try to hit that— by torchlight?"

The Sachem eyed both men grimly. "Hawkeye will hit it," he said.

Heyward frowned, but lifted the rifle and took careful aim. The bullet shattered the jug, leaving only a small fragment on the stake. The Hurons murmured their approval. This was surely Hawkeye.

But the real Hawkeye only smiled, grasped the rifle and let the barrel drop carelessly in his palm. The piece was fired as if by impact. The fragment disappeared.

The Hurons now whooped their approval, their animosity apparently forgotten, as they crowded around Hawkeye to congratulate him on his shot. The Sachem glared at Heyward.

"You creep into village and lie like singing bird. Take squaw and go. When sun come over hills, my braves go look for you."

Alice was led forward and released. She stepped up to Hawkeye with a little cry, but he spoke rapidly, urgently.

"You have until sunrise before they start after you. Chingachgook's watching. He'll find you and take you to safety. He's not to come back for me. My orders, Major. Do you understand? You have Miss Munro to think of."

Alice flung her arms around Hawkeye and began to kiss him passionately. The guards pulled her away.

"Go!" ordered the Sachem. With Chingachgook as their guide, Heyward and Alice trudged silently through the forest. Alice began to weep.

"Father— Cora— Uncas— and now Hawkeye—the greatest spirit of them all."

Heyward nodded a gloomy assent. Suddenly Chingachgook, a few paces ahead, stopped short. "What is it?" asked Heyward in alarm.

plunged through the underbrush to meet their rescuers.

Hawkeye, bound to the stake, stripped to the waist, viewed quietly the preparations for his torture. Around his feet the brushwood was piled to his knees. The Indian warriors sat in rows around him, watching his face keenly for the signs of weakness. Screams of delight came from the squaws as an old hag brought in a burning brand and set fire to the brushwood. The smoke began to curl around Hawkeye's body.

Despite his anxiety to affirm the honor of his race, Hawkeye squirmed slightly. A squaw stepped up and placed a burning pine needle on his arm. He groaned. The Indians began to laugh and jeer.

Hawkeye shook his head. "Uncas, now," he reasoned, "would have shown you how a warrior can die. But it's not a white man's gift to stand pain and not show—"

A volley rang out. Several Indians plunged forward. The others leaped up and rushed for their arms. The women and children scattered, screaming. The surprise was, however, complete, and the Hurons were completely unable to form any defense. Chingachgook bounded forward, Heyward close on his heels. While the Major kicked away the burning brands, Chingachgook slashed away the bonds with his knife. Hawkeye reeled forward groggily into Heyward's arms.

"Thanks, Major," he said hoarsely. "Getting a little warm." "I was always sure you were born to hang," the Major answered grimly.

Hawkeye's rescuers were part of an advance column under General Abercrombie. Regulations were regulations, and having saved Hawkeye from death by torture, they now held court-martial over him, preparatory to his hanging.

Strangely enough, however, he found an able defender in Major Heyward, who was presumably pressing the charges.

"He did instigate the men leaving the Fort," Heyward argued, "but let me recall to you that had he not, those men would never have met your command to save them from an Ottawa ambush, and you, General Abercrombie, might not be here to pass judgment on him. Also it is true he struck an officer. I am that officer, so you may believe me when I say that if he is guilty of insubordination, I am guilty of exceeding my command by goading him to it."

General Abercrombie smiled. "May I ask, Major, if you stand before this court as his accuser, or his defense?"

"Neither. General—I am merely telling the whole truth." "Since you are so familiar with the case," the General said, "I would welcome a recommendation."

"I would recommend that he be attached to the British army as a scout."

The time had come for parting. Major Heyward was to return to England. And Alice? She waited for Hawkeye's word.

But Hawkeye had come to a decision. His way led into the wilderness, to paths as yet untrod by the paleface. He was a pathfinder, a pioneer. And his life was not the life for a delicate English girl, used to the ways of the civilized world. His word was—goodbye.

"But you once said you loved me."

"I do—I always shall. And that is why I say goodbye."

And so Alice was left behind to wave sad farewell as Hawkeye stepped in his place in the British column, Chingachgook by his side. An officer roared a command: "Forward! On to Canada!"

MONKEYS IN CITY HALL

KINGSTON, N. C. (AP)—City-owned monkeys, named for the mayor and aldermanic board members, will be given the run of the second floor of city hall this winter. Municipal officials decided to move the simians there when it was pointed out their outdoor cage will subject them to too much exposure in winter.

CLASSES AND AWARDS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Plans for the annual Eastland county Livestock show here this week-end were definitely under way this week with announcement of classes and premiums for the event. The show, under the direction of T. G. Caudle, chamber of commerce agricultural secretary, will be held in the former Wilkerson Lumber company yard on South D avenue.

The city commission and the merchants are cooperating with the chamber of commerce in providing the awards for first and second place animals. Ribbons will be awarded third place winners.

Harry Schaefer and his orchestra will entertain Friday night and there will be a concert by the Lobo band, under the direction of R. L. Maddox, Saturday afternoon from 1:30 to 2 o'clock.

Judging for the show will be done by R. Milhollin of San Angelo and Leon Ranson, assistant county agent for Taylor county at Abilene. Judging probably will start at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, beef and dairy cattle to be judged then. Sheep, goats, hogs, horses and mules will be judged Saturday afternoon.

PURE...and of finer texture than most anything that touches your lips...

We all agree on this... cigarette paper is important. For Chesterfield we use the best paper that we can buy. It is called Champagne Cigarette Paper. It is made from the soft, silky fibre of the flax plant. It is washed over and over in clear, sparkling water. A lot of the pleasure you get in smoking Chesterfields is due to our using the right kind of cigarette paper. Chesterfield paper is pure, and it burns without taste or odor.

Chesterfield

They're Milder and They Satisfy

Remember this... two things make the smoking quality of a cigarette—the tobaccos and the paper. The Champagne cigarette paper on Chesterfields is tested over and over for purity, for the right burning quality. Another reason why Chesterfield wins.
