FDR SEEKS SWEEPING COURT REFORMS

WANTS POWER TO NAME SIX NEW JUSTICES

Additions to Lower Courts Also Among Recommendations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt recommended to congress today a sweeping reorganization of federal court machinery, including increased judgeships of supreme and lower courts, and a method of speeding decisions on constitutional questions.

A tentative bill giving the president power to add a maximum of six judges to the supreme court and two each to lower courts accompanied the message.

He said the proposals did not raise the issue of constitutional law. He listed these recommendations:

Presidential power to nominate a judge when an incumbent reaches the age of 70 and has served ten years and neither resigned or retired; supreme court power to appoint an administrative assistant to watch the lower court calendars for congestion; a federal court to give notice to the attorney general before ruling on a constitutional question; direct appeal to the supreme court when an inferior court determines the constitutionality of a question.

Sermon Series on Marriage to Be Started Sunday

A series of sermons on love, courtship and marriage will be delivered by the Rev. Joe L. Patterson, pastor of the First Methodist church, on successive Sunday evenings during February.

The first sermon will be delivered Sunday evening, February 7, on "The Man I Would Marry." Preceding it there will be a social hour for young people in the church parlors. All young people were invited and refreshments are to be served, the pastor said.

The second sermon, to be preached the following Sunday night, will be on "The Woman I Want." On Sunday evening, February 21, the topic will be "Preparation for Happy Marriage," and on the final Sunday evening of the month the subject will be "Building Successful Homes."

After each of the last three services there will be a "Fireside Hour" during which the young people will be invited to ask questions for discussion.

Religious Census to Be Started Saturday

Under the direction of O. L. Stamey, principal of the high school, and sponsored by the Cisco Ministerial association, the NYA will begin a religious census of the city Saturday morning, it was announced today. The census-takers will start from the high school building.

Residents were asked to take note of the census and to respond to door bells during the day so that none will be missed and the fullest census may be taken.

Will See Eclipse

This Tahitian girl, in front of the cobra workers' quarters on Christmas island, probably will be one of the few persons whose homes will be darkened by the longest eclipse of the sun in more than a century.

Sun's 7-Minute Eclipse Will Elude Scientists

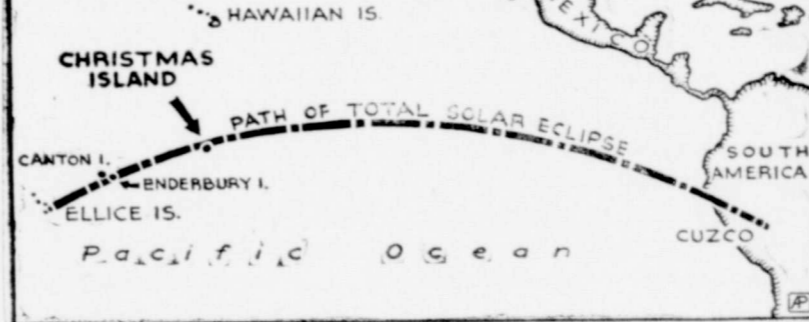

By SAM JACKSON

(AP Feature Service Writer)

LICK OBSERVATORY, Mount Hamilton, Calif., Feb. 5.—The longest total eclipse of the sun in more than a century will occur June 8, but to astronomers it is likely to be a total loss.

The sun will be hidden completely for 7 minutes and 4 seconds, nearly an all-time record. Yet scientists who last year scurried to points all the way from Greece to Japan to study a mere 2-and-a-half-minute eclipse expected to pass this one up.

The reason is that it will follow

PATH OF TOTALITY
As if guided by a master mariner, the 7-minute solar eclipse next June 8 will dodge land spots. Only a few islands are in its totality path.

a nearly landless course through the South Pacific, missing islands as effectively as if guided by a master mariner.

The eclipse will start in the Ellice and Phoenix archipelagoes near Samoa, where the sun will rise entirely obscured. A rare sight to the layman, this means little to the astronomer because he can't effectively photograph an eclipse close to the horizon.

Mexico To See 'Dent'
As the sun climbs into the sky, the path of totality will cross the South Seas until it reaches Peru. There, near Cuzco, the ancient Inca capital, there will be a totally eclipsed sunset. Hawaii and Canton island will go one expedition under C. B. Michie to await the eclipse in its 4-minute stage.

Los Angeles' Griffith observatory considered a trip to Christmas island but doubt that the island actually lies in the path of totality has about caused Director Dinmore Alter to give up the idea.

The isle most favorably located in the path of totality is Enderbury, an uninhabited atoll in the Phoenix group, but there is no anchorage and landing is dangerous.

GM GETS WRIT FOR ARREST OF 'SIT-DOWNERS'

Nat'l Guard Says No Physical Attempt "for the Present"

FLINT, Feb. 5 (AP)—General Motors obtained from the court a writ today ordering the arrest of strikers occupying Fisher body plants here and announced that the sheriff requested the national guard's aid to enforce the order.

A guard representative said there would be no physical attempt "for the present."

The corporation and strike representatives conferred at Detroit on a possible agreement.

Before the fourth conference of Gov. Murphy with General Motors officials, John L. Lewis, strike director-general and chairman of the committee for industrial organization, and Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, the governor announced:

"We are bending every effort to work our way out peacefully."

Of the tense situation at Flint he said, "I have requested the military authorities to keep in continuous conference with the civil authorities and the labor leaders in Flint in order that they may work together to preserve peace. I expect both sides to help, and if called in together, as they were last night, to give help to achieve the objective."

89-Year-Old Man Is Buried Near Carbon

EASTLAND, Feb. 5.—Rites for Redmond Allison, 89, who died Wednesday at the home of a son in Eastland, J. C. Allison, were conducted Thursday afternoon at his home three miles and a half east of Carbon.

Burial was scheduled in Bear Springs, east of Carbon, under direction of Hamner Undertaking company, Eastland.

Allison died unexpectedly at his son's home after coming to Eastland. While in Eastland Wednesday morning he walked to the chamber of commerce office and gave $10 for the Red Cross to H. J. Tanner, chairman of the drive for relief of flood victims.

Mr. Allison was a grandfather of Carroll Allison, employe of the Nance Motor company here.

Cannon Suit for Libel Dismissed by Federal Judge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (AP)—Justice Jennings Bailey held today that Bishop James Cannon, Sr., was guilty by his own admission of violating the federal corrupt practices act, ending the $500,000 libel suit brought against Representative George Holden Tinkham, Mass.

The churchman sought damages for the congressman's statement that Cannon had not complied with the law in holding anti-Alfred E. Smith campaign funds in 1928. Bailey said: "I find from testimony of the plaintiff and his own witnesses that the charges are substantially true."

Meet Winner of Rising Star and Ranger Contest

The Cisco Loboes will open their county basketball meet play tonight at 9 o'clock when they play the winner of the Ranger-Rising Star game to be played today.

Cisco has shown much improvement over early-season form. With such performers as the Harrison twins, Odell and Marcell, Gordon Sherman, co-captain Joe Slicker, and Bobby Bacon—a second stringer earlier in the season, who has filled in the starting center post capably so far—the Loboes have dealt misery to practically every quintet they have met.

The tournament games will wind up the season for the Black and Gold, the most successful in several years, unless one or two tilts are scheduled for next week.

Coach Bill Cooper's five, though hampered by lack of substitutes, will be one of the leading teams in the tournery. Carbon, which won its invitation tournament last week, and Eastland, who has beaten both Cisco and Carbon twice, are rated above the Loboes, however.

It is not probable that both Eastland and Carbon will go to the finals as they battle each other today. However, each entry has to lose two contests before being eliminated.

Dan Yarbrough, co-captain and guard of the local quint, was still out of school today with an attack of flu and it is almost certain that he will not play tonight.

The starting lineup will be O. Harrison and M. Harrison, forwards; Slicker and Sherman, guards; Bacon, center.

Senior Party and Picnic Are Given at Lake Thursday

The activities of the senior class of high school for the second semester were begun last night when 27 members and guests of the class spent an active evening at Lake Cisco. The students, accompanied by the three class sponsors, had a picnic, followed by a skating party.

The students left high school about 6:30. The eats consisted of sandwiches, fruit, cookies, potato-chips, and olives. These were provided for by the girls of the group and the boys bought two cases of soda pop.

Nearly all the members of the party skated—or attempted to—after the feed. Several of the group were unable to skate and they took plenty of spills. Some were good skaters, however.

The occasion was brought to a close after three hours of skating and the delegation returned to Cisco about 10:30.

Students attending the picnic and party were Mack McGowan, Ruth El Duff, A. G. Bardwell, Horace Cameron, Cecil Edwards, Frank Yarger, Cullen Harrison, Vada Belle Tomlinson, Dorothy Jean Walker, Louise Stephenson, Margaret Hageman, Grace Pollard, Joe Slicker, Catherine Russell, Thomas Lee Jones, Bill Donohoe, Velsie Wood, Nellie Sanders, Joy Miller, Laverne Lenz, Ida Lee Black, Royce Rainbolt, Bill Wallace, Alice Estel Spencer, Noma King, Morris Mize, Crandall Jones, and the sponsors—Miss Elizabeth Daniel, Ralph Barton, and G. M. Grasty.

FLOOD BATTLE WON, BELIEF OF ENGINEERS

The Lower Mississippi Levee Line Holds Back Torrents

MEMPHIS, Feb. 5 (AP)—The levee line repulsed Mississippi's greatest crests today while rehabilitation and relief problems engaged the flooded Ohio valley and congress. The army maintained a large force to prevent the flood from adding to its death toll of 392. A million are homeless and over $500,000,000 in damage has been done.

Engineers considered the battle won as the river receded at Cairo, Illinois, and along the Ohio river the hardest hit towns emerged further from the flood waters.

The yellow waters of the Ohio started falling at Cairo, Ill., heretofore prime danger spot, and the Mississippi slowly receded in a crucial stretch between Hickman, Ky., and Tiptonville, Tenn.

No Relaxation
Encouraging reports brought no relaxation, however, in the fight to maintain the thousand-mile levee line along the Mississippi. Engineers said they were determined to keep at a minimum the deaths, already around 400 persons, and to hold property damage to present $550,000,000 estimate.

At Portsmouth, O., a nine-foot drop was registered and the Ohio was falling all the way to the mouth of the Wabash river above Shawneetown, Ill.

The Mississippi river rose about 41 of a foot on the Memphis weather bureau gauge to a stage of 47.61 feet at 2 p. m., on the U. S. engineer gauge it registered 49.20 feet at 7 a. m., a rise of about seven inches in 24 hours.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the national Red Cross, said 381,215 persons were being cared for in concentration centers of the flood zone. He estimated 987,000 persons were affected by the highest waters in history.

A total of 793 concentration camps and 244 field hospitals were being operated. Nurses on active duty totaled 1,400. Contributions to the Red Cross disaster relief fund totaled $12,651,000.

Maritime Strike is Ended; 40,000 Return to Work

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5 (AP)—The 98-day Pacific coast maritime strike that cost an estimated $686,000,000 and paralyzed commerce, ended today when 40,000 strikers, who had tied up 239 ships, resumed work. Shipowners and unions signed a new contract last night.

Cheers sounded rather freely along the rain-drenched waterfront as thousands of men, standing by in anticipation, heard the decision. Employers, too busy to comment immediately, moved to make quick getaways. Ships were all ready for sea. Cargoes awaited unloading.

Returns from union referendums showed huge majorities in favor of accepting tentative agreements assuring the workers generally of higher wages, union control of hiring agencies, and the 8-hour day.

SCOUT MEETING
The regular weekly meeting of Troop Four will be held in the basement of the First Methodist church tonight at 7:30.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

How H. D. Gorham became a Methodist minister much against his inclinations but with results as effective and complete as hoped for is related by a group of Cisco business men who have just returned from a business trip north. The story exhibits a resourcefulness and a virtue in getting rid of the pullman car pest which others, so beset, may study with profit and our ministers may reflect upon with satisfaction in the fact that their cloth still carries with it the power to command respect and shame the indiscreet. Fortunately for the success of his role Drew (that is, our hero) retired from the company when his assumed identity was announced, so that his inability to portray the characteristics of that role were not observed by the fellow it was desired to impress.

The pullman pest is a creature of common genus and distribution. He is usually some ordinarily sane and sober fellow who feels that temporary disassociation with the responsibilities of home and business life entitle him to "loosen up." He does so with an enthusiasm in which his new companions do not participate and the result is a very unsatisfactory social relationship. Our Ciscoans travelling northward on a hurried trip encountered one such fellow in the pullman lounge car who persisted in his determination to attach himself to their group. To say that he was far gone in his cups is putting it mildly, according to F. D. Wright, R. L. Ponsler and Gorham. Very shortly he attracted the attention of the entire car, telling smutty jokes between perilous hicoughs and conducting himself with loud and irritating familiarity. Ponsler and Gorham sneaked off to another part of the car and left the pest on Wright's hands, but when they returned to go to dinner the fellow was still there. After the dinner, during which the Cisco attorney sat directly in front of their uninvited companion and could not eat for having to hold a napkin ready in both hands, Wright got tired of the comedy and told the man quite seriously:

"I forgot to tell you, but Brother Gorham here is pastor of the First Methodist church at Cisco, and although he is a very broad-minded man, he doesn't appreciate these dirty stories you've been telling."

The inebriate went into a tail-spin of abject apology and concern. He declared he was one of the most religious men in the world, that his present condition was a temporary state induced by the thought that going to a convention required a man to limber up a little, and from that moment he got soberer and soberer. But unfortunately for Gorham, the fellow did appear to know a good many Methodist ministers in his section of the state, and when Gorham failed to recognize them the truth came out. Thereafter, the Ciscoans were well rid of his company.

Speaking of Methodist ministers reminds me that the real pastor of the First Methodist church, Joe I. Patterson, related

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

Chapter 15
The Baroness Is Suspicious
"I should go home if I were you," said the baroness to Anne slowly. "The police will be wanting to get into communication with you."
"The police—?" repeated Bigelow curiously.
"With me?" gasped Anne. Why? "Well, you were almost engaged to him, were you not?" asked the baroness.
"Not quite," answered Anne dryly.

"But you were close friends. You were together a great deal. I should think there must be many things about his affairs that you can tell them. And he was dining with you only last night. I saw him leave Madge's with you and go to the studio."
"Certainly, but he was alive then," said Bigelow airily.
"Yes, he was alive then," agreed the baroness. "But what happened after that. Why did he arrange the party and then not appear? That seemed odd to me at the time. You remember I remarked on it to you?" She stared at Anne, and Bigelow noticed, now, that her eyes looked as if she had been weeping. She had attempted to conceal the effects but without success. He wondered what part Vronski had played in her life. It seemed inconceivable that she would have loved him—she was years older. But one never knew.

"He went back to Madge's to pick up some of you," Anne was explaining carefully. "You know how he was when he had been drinking. He couldn't just wait for the party to begin. . . . And then, he telephoned that he wasn't coming back. Whatever happened to him must have happened after that."

The baroness looked off with half closed eyes as though she were absorbed in some new thought that had just occurred to her. "I noticed at Madge's that he danced only with the Russian woman—never once with you," she said. "You hadn't quarreled with him, had you?"
"No, of course not," answered Anne, impatiently, and rather crossly.

"I can assure you of that. I was there, too, you know," put in Bigelow suavely.
"You don't think Anne murdered him, do you?" cried Chet, grinning. "The papers say his apartment was broken into and robbed."
"It would have been easy enough to create that impression," said the baroness slowly. "How would they have had time to perfect their plans? How would they have known that Louis slept out?"
"No, I don't believe in this theory of casual thieves. Someone killed him who knew his ways—and all about him. There is more in it than appears yet. You'll see I'm right."

She moved off toward the restaurant barely nodding at them and Chet made a grimace behind her back as he followed her in.

An Appeal to Karsanokoff
In silence, Bigelow and Anne hailed a taxi and got in. He gave the address of the studio. "He was afraid," "You don't mind dropping me there, do you?" he asked. "I didn't expect the news to be out so quickly. I've no time to waste."
"No," said Anne, "it won't be long before the bloodhounds are on the trail."
"Was she in love with him?"
"I think so. I know she always watched me like a hawk—completely misunderstanding my association with him, of course," Anne frowned out of the window. "Imagine her noticing that I did not dance with him last night—and remembering."

"That fact alone is of no consequence. I shouldn't worry," said Bigelow.
"No that fact alone is of no importance," admitted Anne. "Only she'll make the most of it. And you know how stories grow when people start to talk. She's suspicious—although it's only an instinct in her that tells her things are not quite as they seem. And women of that age take their love affairs seriously. If there's a flaw anywhere in our defense, she'll find it. I'm more afraid of her than of the police."

"We'll see that there is no flaw for her to find, then," said Bigelow. And as the taxi drew up in front of Anne's studio, he looked carefully about as he got out. But they had not been followed.

Anne waved her hand and the taxi took her on. Bigelow left himself into the studio with Anne's key, and locked the door behind him.
He looked about first to make sure that no one had been there since he had left it the night before. Then he opened the cupboard and got out the towel and the gun. The towel, he observed with a quick frown, had marked the floor of the cupboard.
Rummaging in the kitchen, he found wrapping paper and string and made a small neat package of the incriminating evidence. Then he crossed to the telephone and called up Karsanokoff at her hotel.
"Hello?" she said in a sleepy voice when he had persuaded her maid to disturb her. "Is it Mr. Bigelow. Are you wide awake?"
"No, answered Karsanokoff. I am not! Come to tea. Now, I cannot talk at all. I have just had my coffee and looked at the front pages of the newspapers."
He realized she meant him to know that she had seen the report of Vronski's death and understood that their plan had succeeded.

"I'm afraid I can't come to tea," he answered regretfully, "but I was wondering if you could spare me your maid for an hour or two."
"My maid?" she repeated curiously.
"To clear up the mess here after last night's party. The floor especially ought to be seen to without further delay."
"But of course—your lovely polished floor!" she cried quickly. "I will send her at once in a cab with instructions. Will you be there to let her in?"
"Yes," answered Bigelow. "Thanks."
"But it is nothing," Karsanokoff assured him. "Goodbye."
Mariushka Proves Discreet
He looked out of the window, wondering how long it would take the woman to get there. Then, it occurred to him that he might be seen, so he left the window and walked the floor impatiently, smoking cigarettes. The phone rang, but he was afraid to answer it as he could think of no good excuse to give for his presence there, and after a trying two minutes, it stopped. Then, eventually, Mariushka knocked at the door.
"Thank Heaven," he cried, closing the door behind him. She was looking about at the disordered studio with a curious expression in her dark eyes. Bigelow wondered just how much of the truth Karsanokoff had told her.
"This is the part of the floor that wants cleaning," he said, indicating the spot where Vronski had fallen.
Mariushka looked at it. "Thank you," she said.
"And there are some marks in the cupboard that will have to be removed."
She nodded, glancing at the cupboard. "Madame said there would be something to destroy, also."
"No, I'm taking care of that," answered Bigelow, after an instant's hesitation. He was afraid if she washed the towel she might not make a good enough job of it and if she attempted to burn it, the smell might be noticed outside the apartment. Besides, that towel was too incriminating a piece of evidence to let out of his own hands. Not that he distrusted Mariushka. But one could not take too many precautions. "Will it be all right if I leave you alone here?" he asked.

"Yes," said Mariushka.
"If anyone comes to question you—?"
"I speak no English," she interrupted grimly. "Have no fear. From me no one will learn anything." Meeting her glance, he believed her.
"Good. Don't let anyone in if you can avoid it and be sure to lock the door after you when you go. It is a spring lock that locks itself, but you must make sure the door is properly closed."
"Yes," said Mariushka.
Bigelow took up his package and departed. . . .
He drove next to East 67th street where Austrelitz had a small house. He had built it to suit his own peculiar requirements. On the right, as you entered, there was a comfortably furnished waiting room with up-to-date periodicals about and plenty of ash trays. Opposite, across the hall, was the doctor's consulting room. In the rear, running the width of the house was a perfectly equipped model surgery. On the second story, the doctor had his living and sleeping quarters and on the floor above that, the servants were housed.
A Filipino boy—very neat and well-groomed looking in his white house clothes—opened the door to Bigelow and presently ushered him up the stairs and into the sunny sitting room where the doctor was having a belated breakfast. His feet were thrust into black sandals and he had a heavily embroidered black and gold Japanese robe over his white silk pajamas.
"Another cup, Filipo," he said as he nodded to Bigelow.

Gorman Theater Man Aids Rabbit Drive
H. L. Capers, Gorman theater manager, is cooperating with the farmers of this section in a campaign to eradicate jack rabbits and cotton tails by offering a free theater ticket to each boy who brings him five pairs of jack rabbit ears or ten pairs of cotton tail ears. County Agent Elmo Cook said. The offer holds good during the next 30 days.
Mr. Cook announced that he has on hand ready-mixed poison salt for rabbit control which will be sold at cost. The salt is placed in one-inch holes bored in two-by-four blocks which are placed along rabbit runs in the fields.

There are more than 67 buildings on the University of Alabama campus.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?
FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.
You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

"More Men" Plea of Track Coach of Horned Frogs

FORT WORTH, Feb. 5.—"More men!" That is the plea of Coach Mack Clark of Texas Christian university, following the first call for track this week. Only 16 men reported.

"How can I expect to win a 16-event meet with only 16 men?" Coach Clark demanded. "We're going to have to find at least twice that many men. We won't develop first place winners from unknowns, but those 1-point and 2-point places help too."

Heading the 1937 track and field squad at T.C.U. is Capt. "Donkey" Roberts, two-year letterman in the middle distances. Donkey will run the quarter, half, and on the relay team.

Other lettermen include Pat Clifford, star of last season in the dashes, low hurdles and broad jump; Buck Roberson, pole vault, high jump and high hurdles; George Dunlap, javelin and high hurdles; and Dave Nichols, distances.

Squadmen from last year include Cotton Harrison in the weight events; Bob Harrell, quarter; and Woodrow Lipscomb, half mile.

Sophomores who reported include Lee Duvivant, pole-vaulter who made better than 12 feet in high school; Jim Nichols, distances; John Hall, dashes and discus; I. B. Hale, Ward Wilkinson and Russell Nensch, weights; Van Patrick, sprints; and Arthur Moseley, middle distances.

Basketball, which is now getting the attention of Clifford and Hensch, and perhaps one or two others who may report later; and spring football practice, which will take a number out until March 15, will interfere seriously with track work for the first few weeks.

New Engineer for County Courthouse

EASTLAND, Feb. 5 (Sp.)—Peter Clement succeeded George Parrack as courthouse engineer Monday.

Parrack resigned to accept a civil service position as engineer at the new federal building at Eastland. He had held the position at the courthouse since its construction in 1928. Prior to the engineer job he had been employed as a steel worker on the courthouse building.

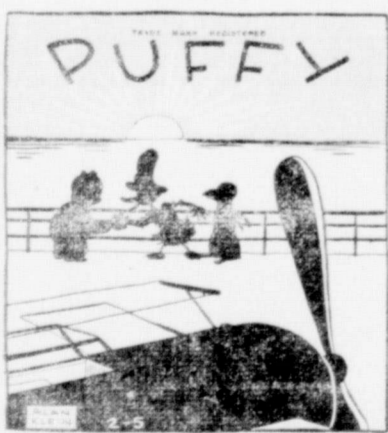

Clement, appointed by commissioners' court, has recently been driver of a school bus from Eastland.

Salary of the engineer at the courthouse is $1,320 annually.

MILE EXTENSION

EASTLAND, Feb. 5 (Sp.)—One mile eastward extension for the Ivan pool of Stephens county, was reported Wednesday in the W. T. Garrett and others No. 1 Echols, in the west half of section 10, block 3, S. P. survey.

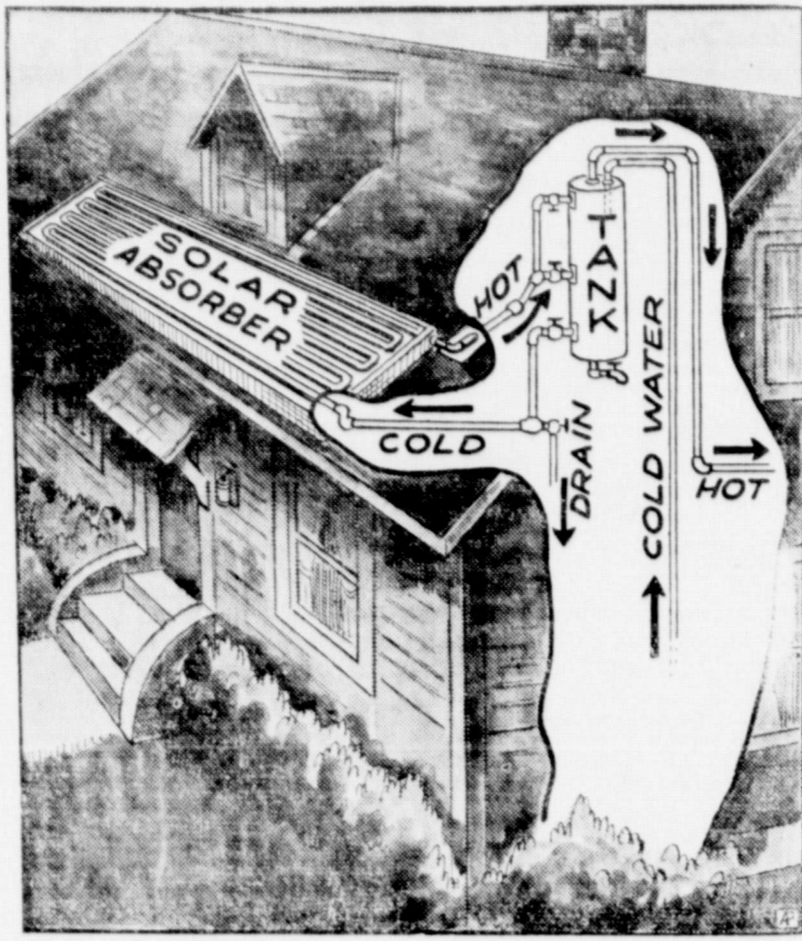

The test found the top of the lime pay at 3,207 feet to 3,214 feet and was reported good for several barrels of oil an hour. The test was being taken deeper into the lime producing horizon before a production test would be made.

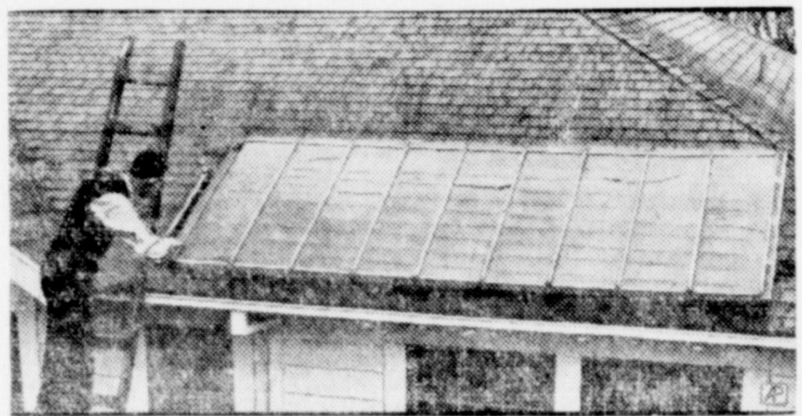

"We'll make the trip fast and we won't be slow-pokey," Says Puff. "The whole thing seems to me oaky-dokey." He turns to the captain: "It's quite nice of you "To lend us your plane. So we'll bid you adieu."

Solar Hot Water Heater

How a solar water heating system may be installed in an ordinary house is shown by this sketch.

Californians Now Rely on Sun For Heating of Water

AP Feature Service Writer By SAM JACKSON

DAVIS, Calif., Feb. 5—Free sunshine is heating water for thousands of California homes. Skeptics to the contrary, the system works at night as well as in the daytime.

Those who depend on sunshine exclusively for heating water get along comfortably as long as nine months a year without spending a cent, although a succession of cool, cloudy days occasionally may cause postponement of wash day or of one's hot bath.

Many householders, who want a steaming stream from the faucet at all times, have gas or electric heaters or furnace coils working in conjunction with sunshine. On sunny days the sun does the work, and on cloudy ones artificial heat takes its place.

Research Done On It An exhaustive study of solar heating systems has been made by F. A. Brooks, associate agricultural engineer at the University of California experiment station here.

Tracing the solar heater back to the days when a farmer merely lashed an iron tank on his roof, Professor Brooks has analyzed various methods of getting the most heat out of the sun's rays. As the most practical heater, he selects a zigzag arrangement of iron pipe enclosed in a flat, insulated box with a glass covering and placed on a slanting roof. This is called an "absorber."

By a process known as thermosiphoning, the heated water flows from the exposed pipes to a storage tank which ordinarily is placed in the attic. Cold water replaces it and is in turn heated and stored. The tank is well insulated, so it supplies hot water through the night until the sun gets to work the next day.

Automatic System Devised A development by the California engineer is a tandem solar-electric heater which is entirely automatic, the electricity going on whenever the sun's rays are too weak to maintain the hot water supply.

"With such a combination," he says, "the housewife will never be bothered by lukewarm water, yet will have saving expense when the sun shines."

Work on Moran Deep Test Held Up By Weather

MORAN, Feb. 5.—Bad weather delayed work on the Ungren & Frazier rotary equipment which is being rigged up this week to start a 4,200 foot deep test in section 26, Lunatic Asylum land on the C. B. Snyder ranch.

The well is being financed by John L. Reeves, et al, with Ungren & Frazier drilling the well.

All equipment was on the ground Monday, and everything is ready to set the rotary equipment in place to begin operation. A pipe line has been run to a gas main 3 1-2 miles south of the well. The two boilers will be fired with natural gas. The boilers have been placed, casing is on the ground, the steel derrick is up, and the floor has been put in. Some 50 feet of hole has already been made with a spudger so that the rotary can begin operation.

Oil men and others in this section are interested in the rotary.

Few few wells have been put down with rotary equipment here, standard tool being the common means of drilling. The rotary is faster drilling, but it is the belief here that many pay sands can be passed up with the equipment. However, the drillers will core every known sand before drilling into it to ascertain the amount of production. At 3,000 feet, the drillers will change to standard tools to complete the hole.

Oil men throughout this section are watching this well. Leasing has already been stimulated, and each week more acreage is taken. Good prices are being paid for some acreage.

The Snyder well is located some 5 miles northwest of town.

teams in the event. Each school may have two contestants in the preliminaries, which will be heard over the public address system in Sewell auditorium, and the finals of the contest will be at the banquet for all contestants Friday evening, February 5. Speeches in this contest must be read from original manuscript and are limited to exactly four minutes—a variation of five seconds disqualifying the speaker.

One hundred schools in Texas and neighboring states have been invited to attend the tournament. Team trophies will be awarded to winners in debate, oratory, extempore speaking, radio-speaking, and men's and women's poetry reading, besides individual medals to first and second place winners in each final contest. The poetry-reading contests are new in this tournament also.

New Mexico Man Says Father Gave Rising Star Name

RISING STAR—And now the old question of how Rising Star came by its name comes to life again. This time in a letter from Jim Burton, real estate dealer of Elda, N. M., to L. V. Hughes, of Rising Star.

Mr. Burton writes as follows: "My father moved to that country in '77 or '78 and located two miles east of the present town of Rising Star. My father and man by the name of Osborne, named the post office Rising Star. Some years earlier we had a post office about 200 yards from our house. It was called Copperas Creek. It was in a man's residence. I was in Rising Star in 1890 or '91, as a small boy. My father paid $15.00 for 160 acres of land there with a log house on it."

A few years ago the Rising Star Record had up the matter of the naming of Rising Star and went to

REVETMENT

A revetment usually is a rock, masonry or concrete-slab facing, along the sides of a troublesome stream to protect the banks from washing away. This one was made of concrete slabs and reinforces an earthen levee.

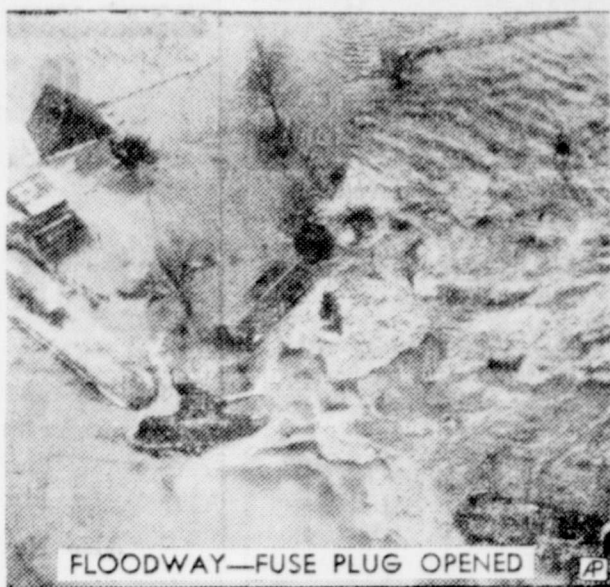

LEVEE

A levee is a permanent embankment, often of earth, to prevent overflows. These men are increasing the height of a levee. A dike is similar but is usually an emergency structure, often built of sand bags as an overflow threatens.

SPILLWAY

A spillway is a passageway for the release of excess water; also, the top of a dam over which water may escape, without washing the dam away with it. A floodgate is a sliding section of a dam which may be opened to release water.

FLOODWAY—FUSE PLUG OPENED

A floodway is a section of land near a stream onto which flood waters may be diverted deliberately to lessen the danger to other areas. A levee was dynamited to permit flood waters to flow into this one. The opening is a fuse plug.

no little trouble to interview all old-timers we could get to who were in this section at the time. The most plausible story we got was from an old gentleman at Weatherford who wrote that he was in Eastland at the time, and that the name—Rising Star, was suggested by an old sailor who used to hang out around the Eastland postoffice. His story is that when enough settlers had located along Copperas Creek here that they decided they wanted a postoffice, the nearest postoffice at the time being Sipe Springs. The stage coach road from Brownwood to Eastland passed through the present town of Rising Star, which was designated as a site for the new postoffice. The matter was taken up with the postoffice department at Washington through the Eastland postoffice and a name suggested. A letter to the Eastland postoffice stated that there was already a postoffice by that name in Texas and asked for another name. It was at this time the old sailor is supposed to have suggested the name of "Rising Star."

Another story is to the effect that the name was suggested by Andy Agnew, an early settler near the foot of the mountain, about three miles southeast of town. Mrs. Salilie Irby, who was living here at the time, is inclined to the belief that Mr. Agnew did suggest the name.

There are countless other stories about the matter, but it has never been ironed out to anyone's complete satisfaction.

Mr. Burton of New Mexico, did not state whether or not his father was still living.

House Group Okehs New Franchise Tax

AUSTIN, Feb. 5 (AP)—The house revenue and taxation committee voted last night, 11 to 7, to recommend passage of a bill by Rep. Herman Jones of Decatur to increase the corporation franchise tax about 700 per cent.

The levy would be five per cent of net income or one-tenth of one per cent of gross assets, whichever was larger. Jones estimated it would yield around $12,000,000 annually, in contrast to the approximately $1,500,000 a year realized from the present franchise tax.

Voting for the bill were Representatives Baker of Rosenberg, Bell of Cuero, Derden of Marlin, England of McKinney, Jones of Decatur, King of Garner, Langdon of Glen Rose, Morris of Greenville, Palmer of Normangee, Skaggs of Deport and Tarwater of Plainview.

Opponents were James of Cameron, Dean of Hamlin, Johnson of Fort Worth, Jones of Jourdanon, McCracken of San Antonio, Patterson of Mullin and Reed of Texarkana.

Etheredge Again Is Moran School Head

MORAN, Feb. 5 (Sp.)—O. F. Etheredge was re-elected superintendent of the Moran schools at the regular meeting of the board of trustees Monday night. Mr. Etheredge came to Moran in the fall of 1933 as coach, and in 1934 succeeded C. C. Duff as superintendent when Mr. Duff resigned to accept a place with the Cisco public schools. He is serving his third year as superintendent.

At the board meeting Monday the members discussed the possibility of building a gymnasium through the aid of the W.P.A. The board authorized that plans and specifications be made so that the board can ascertain the cost to the local school district. Supt. Etheredge, Yates Clayton and Elder Cole Jackson visited a number of gymnasiums in this section Tuesday afternoon.

It is believed the gym can be built without prohibitive cost to the local school, and it this can be done, every effort will be made to build it. Plans now are to include classrooms for home economics and farm shops. The board expressed the desire to build the structure of native rock, which will lessen the cost.

an experience with the family radio the other night, the like of which none of us had ever before heard. Patterson had been listening to broadcasts until his bedtime, when he shut the instrument off and retired. An hour later, with all the house quiet, he was awakened by the subdued tones of a program. The radio was playing, and Patterson wondered why Mrs. Patterson would be up and listening to it at that time of night. He got up and went into the room. The illuminated dial glowed at him and the program was coming in perfectly. But there was no one in the room. It was quite spooky. Patterson went to the instrument and found the switch was off, just as he had left it. It puzzled him. He switched it on and off again, but it had no effect on the music. Finally he was compelled to pull the plug from the socket to stop the playing.

Later, it was discovered that a steam of moisture collected inside the instrument, had shorted it on.

No Major Change in Grid Rules Is Seen by Jennings

WACO, Feb. 5 (Sp.)—"No major changes will come out of the football rules meeting this year, with the bulk of discussion apparently to be devoted to interpretation of present regulations," according to Morley Jennings, head football coach and athletic director at Baylor university, who leaves Tuesday for the annual gathering of the National Intercollegiate Rules committee.

Jennings, who is the veteran of Southwest coaches with 11 consecutive years at Baylor is official representative from the Southwest conference to the meeting to be held at Seaview Golf club near Atlantic City, N. J., February 12, 13, and 14.

When questioned whether schools of this section were satisfied with present rules of the ever-growing gridiron sport, Jennings replied that the past season had given less grounds for rules controversies than any season in the past decade. "Football now seems pretty well balanced," the Bruin mentor commented, "and although the offense seems to hold a slight edge over defense, the present set-up offers plenty of thrills for the spectators as well as being satisfactory to coaches and players."

A few of the present regulations received varied unofficial interpretations last season, and possibly most of the committee's attention will be given to uniform interpretation of the existing rules, according to the Baylor coach.

Jennings will leave for New Jersey Tuesday and will be present at every session of the gathering. He will be accompanied on the journey by Botchey Koch, All-America guard from Baylor in 1930 and present line mentor at George Washington University of Washington, D. C. Jennings will return to Waco the following Tuesday to resume his duties in winter football drills and varsity baseball practice of the Bears.
