Bill Would Abolish 88th District Court

NAT'L GUARD IS CALLED TO FORCE ORDER

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The rather disgusted expression of the solemn little lad who delivers the telegrams to this office quite pitifully epitomizes the general sentiment of sundry folk Saturday who came in contact with the Boy Scout traffic patrols.

"I never saw so many nuisances in all my born days." This opinion uttered with all the gravity of youthful wisdom expresses why so many citizens resolved to be better observers of the traffic laws and more respectful of those regulations which are set up for the common good of the common people. Every street intersection was alive with boys and echoing with whistles. The driver who could approach such a formidable array of adolescent alertness without a qualm was indeed a bold one. Some of them got "sore," which was unfortunate, but most of those halted took the experience with good sportsmanship and grins.

But the boys had the tables turned on them a time or so. There was the case of one youngster who stopped a tourist car on Eighth street.

"I haven't time to mess with you kids," said the man from Oklahoma.

The young "cop" was insistent, however. "We're going to the city hall," quoth he with finality. And he got into the car.

The tourist drove on. When he finally stopped they were in Eastland and the young "cop," completely out of his jurisdiction, was puzzled and chagrined, resolving to interfere with the plans of no more tourists. A truck brought the chastened youngster back to Cisco.

"Here's dust in your eyes," is the weather's paraphrase of the familiar toast.

A man can look very sheepish when he's caught in a right-of-way act, and that is the way Frank Harrell looked yesterday morning when Mrs. Harrell caught him buying a box of candy. The candy was for her, because he buys a box of it on each anniversary of their wedding, but Frank looked funny, nevertheless.

His back was toward the door and he thought she was driving out toward home because he had met her only a few moments before and the meeting had reminded him of the anniversary.

Oil Developments Are Blamed for Increase in Tribunals

The 88th district court of Eastland county is one of the state tribunals slated for elimination under a bill introduced by Senator Olan B. Van Zandt in the Texas senate. The fact that Eastland county, with 24,100 population has two district courts whereas other districts serve 100,000 or more persons, was pointed to by the senator to illustrate the "inequality in allotment and apportionment" the bill is designed to remedy.

Other courts which would be eliminated under the measure are the fifth, 32nd special, 60th, 68th, 77th, 89th, 90th (at Breckenridge), 97th, 110th, 111th, 113th, 116th, the special court for Smith and Upshur counties, the special for Rusk and Gregg counties, the criminal court of Tarrant county and the criminal court for Nueces, Kleberg, Wilbacy, Kennedy and Cameron counties.

Rep. W. H. Adkins of Brady, chairman of the house judicial districts committee, said that with Representatives Robert A. Powell of Conroe, G. H. Little of Amarillo and Alfred Petch of Fredericksburg he would offer a judicial redistricting bill within a few days.

"The inequality in allotment and apportionment of the courts creates an emergency and should be remedied in this session to become effective Sept. 1," Van Zandt said. "We don't need them and abolition would eliminate costs which could be applied to more adequate salaries for the judges."

Cisco Debaters Win 3 Rounds in Waco Contests

The Cisco high school debaters returned Saturday night from the invitation high school debate tournament held at the Baylor university in Waco.

Eight local debaters made the trip. Out of sixteen debates by the four teams they won three.

There were 56 boys teams and over 50 girls teams entered, making a total of almost 225 Texas high school debaters.

Ex-Gov. Pat Neff, now president of the university, made the welcome address as part of the opening program held at 4:30 Friday night in Waco Hall.

The business men of Cisco paid the expenses for the Cisco debaters. A much better showing is expected from the locals when they compete in the tourney to be held in Austin soon. It will be at least two weeks until the meet and they will have time for improvement and practice on their speeches.

Collegians Subdue Lobos by 24 to 16

Believe Quint Kidnap Plot Hoax

TORONTO, Canada, Feb. 13 (AP)—The government charged the police today to sift every shred of the story that "two foreign looking" men on a bus. An anonymous telephone call to an officer's wife told of over-hearing the talk. Authorities were inclined to think the story a hoax, but extra guards have been stationed at the nursery.

"Frightful" Says Sen. Glass of FDR Court Proposal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, democrat, frequent critic of the Roosevelt administration, said today that the president's proposal to increase the supreme court unless justices over 70 years of age retire, was "frightful," adding that he would speak against it.

The senator said the proposal was "unprecedented since the foundation of the government."

Senator Glass issued a statement at the same time President Roosevelt conferred with five democratic senators, three opposing an enlargement of the court. The conference was regarded as another presidential effort to solidify the divided democratic ranks.

First to arrive were Senators King of Utah, Burke of Nebraska and Van Nuys of Indiana. They have publicly spoken their opposition to increasing the supreme court's membership to 15.

Following them came Senators Byrnes of South Carolina, and Harrison of Mississippi. Byrnes has endorsed Roosevelt's program, Harrison has given it only qualified support.

Split Heightened

The split in democratic circles over the merits enlarging the high court was heightened by criticism by Senator Clark of Missouri and Raymond Moley, former Roosevelt "brain truster."

Administration supporters, however, pointed out that opponents already had counted Clark among the 40 to 43 senators inclined to vote against the measure.

Clark said he favored Roosevelt's recommendations on speed.

Members of the Cisco Boy Scouts troop and of the Friendship club sponsored by the Lions and Rotary clubs will be honor guests at the First Methodist church Sunday morning when the pastor, the Rev. Joe I. Patterson, preaches a sermon for boys on the subject, "Noblest Architecture."

After the services there will be a "Fireside Hour" in the young people's department when questions pertaining to the subject will be asked and answered.

A group of girls from the high school chorus, directed by Miss Ella Andrus, will sing at the evening service. They will sing, "My Jesus, I Love Thee." Members of the group will be Mildred Curry, Ada Roan Mobley, Catherine Draganes, Berry Sue McCanlies, Bettyrue Logan, Betta Lou Powell and Vada Belle Tomlinson.

Tavern Wrecked as Two Factions Battle on Saturday

ANDERSON, Ind., Feb. 13 (AP)—A clash between union and non-union automobile workers today left ten men wounded and brought national guardsmen and state police to this industrial city. Mayor Baldwin telephoned Governor Townsend that the situation was "grave."

Firearms, stones, clubs, hatchets and pieces of iron pipe were used in the melee, police said. It started suddenly at a south side tavern, frequented by nonunion workers, who have opposed the moves of the United Automobile Workers of America at the Delco-Remy and Guide Lamp units of General Motors corporation. The two plants observed the regular Saturday holiday Saturday.

Emory Shipley, proprietor of the tavern, said "two carloads of men" appeared suddenly and demanded that Evon Robertson, described by police as a nonunion Delco-Remy employe, come outside.

Shooting followed. Police said the men in the two cars started it. Victor Reuther, union leader, said non-union men and their sympathizers did all the shooting.

Shirley admitted, Police Chief Joseph Carney said, that he fired some of the shots. Shipley's story was that he obtained a shotgun and drove the crowd away.

He said stones were hurled, clubs wielded.

Police hurried to the scene but the crowd had gone.

A hospital said "at least 10 men" had been brought to it for treatment but all except four fled at the approach of siren-screaming police cars.

Forest Vorst of Flint, Mich., who identified himself as a CIO organizer, and a man who would not give his name were the most severely wounded. Vorst suffered leg wounds. The other man was wounded in the back.

Two Names Harold Reed of Anderson and Christian Fox of Middletown, Ind., were the only other wounded whose names police obtained.

Police placed the wounded men and nine others under arrest on vagrancy charges.

Reuther hailed the arrival of the troops as a "signal victory" for the union forces.

"We have been attacked ruthlessly and brutally numerous times," he said, "and still the local officials remained indifferent. It is regrettable that men had to be shot before the state recognized conditions weren't so peaceful as the mayor had said they were."

Reuther called Anderson city officials "incompetent" and said they had "ignored the rights of organized labor."

The Field It Opens

It isn't what the so-called "child labor amendment" to the federal constitution would do in remedying reprehensible industrial conditions that should govern attitude of the state legislature in acting upon a resolution for its approval, but it is the field of federal legislative authority that the amendment would open up that should be considered.

An Issue For the GOP

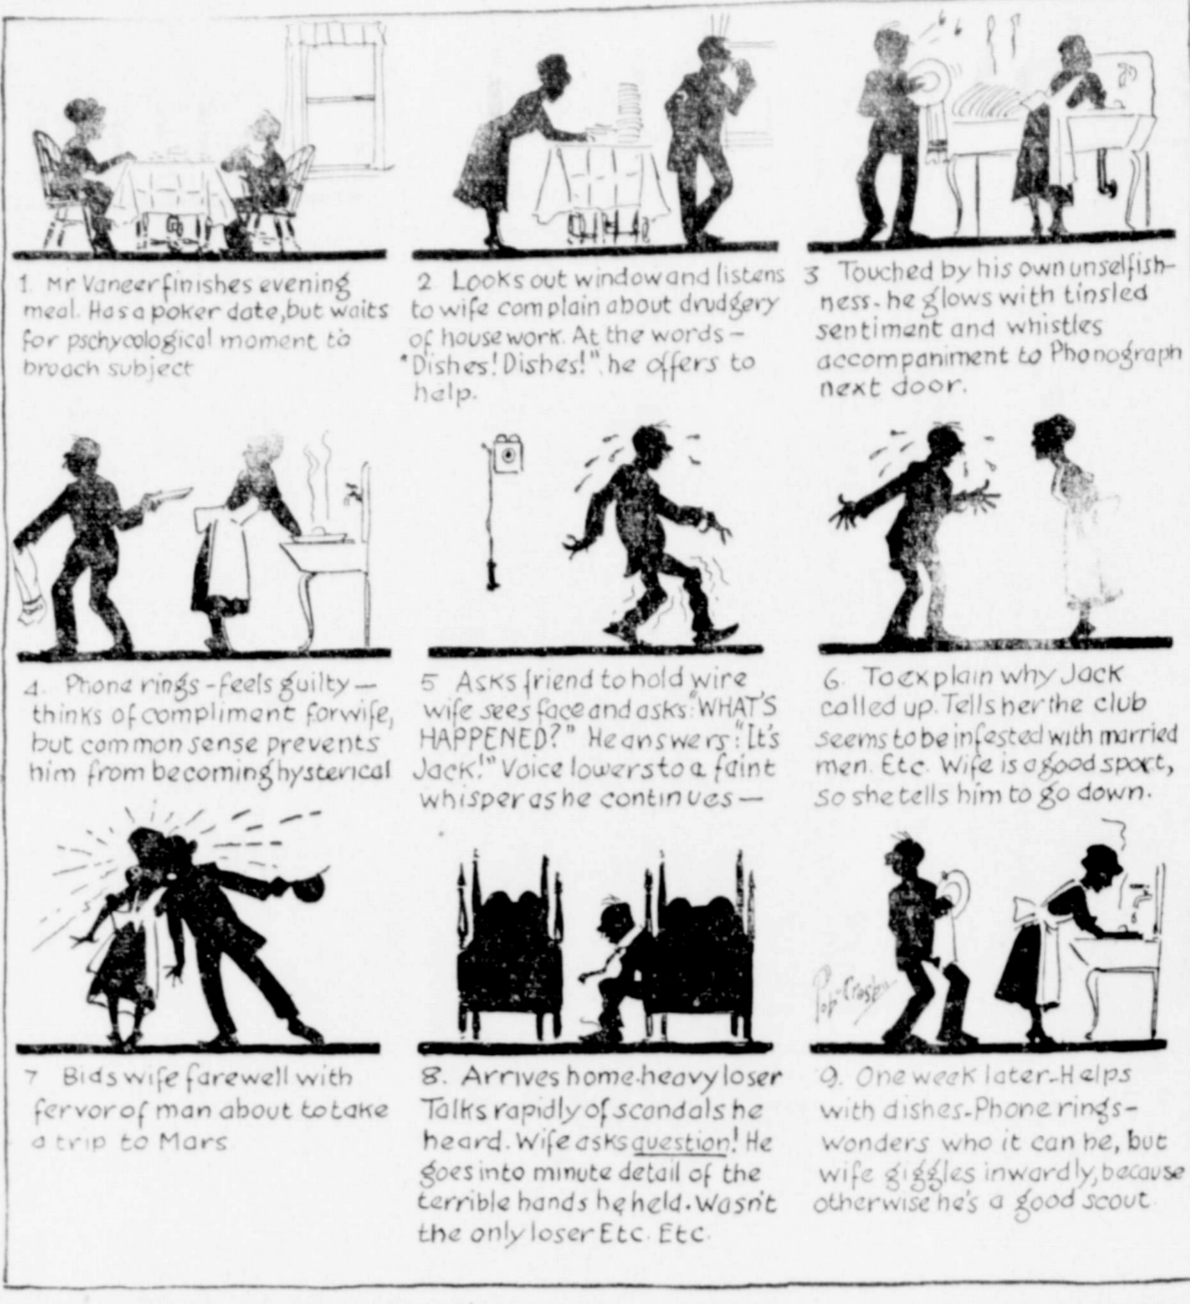

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has raised a "far-reaching" issue which threatens to split the democratic party from "stem to stern" and give the moribund republican party a decided boost toward national dominance again, thinks The Texas Weekly with reference to the president's proposal to "control the decisions of the supreme court" by naming an additional justice for each justice of seventy or over who does not retire.

OPPOSITION to the proposal will spring not so much from a fear of what the president might do or what future presidents might do, but from the ingrained reverence which the body of the people have for the traditions which the supreme court represents, and their faith in it as the bulwark of American institutions, believes the Weekly.

To quote:

"The common man in Texas has no fear that President Roosevelt is trying to be a dictator or that the enactment of this measure might establish a precedent for some future dictator. It is to be doubted that very many have rationalized their position on the question at all. The reaction of most of them has been practically instinctive, and its motivation has been their habitual attitude toward the supreme court. Most of them regard President Roosevelt as the best friend the common man has had in the White House during their life time, and if they would be willing for any president to exercise such power over the supreme court certainly it would be President Roosevelt. They are willing to follow him to the limit against the "economic royalists" or anybody else they conceive to be the enemy of the common welfare. But the supreme court is a different matter. Regardless of what they may think of the desirability of the new deal measures which the court has declared unconstitutional, most of them are opposed to doing anything to weaken the integrity and independence of that tribunal. For whatever may be the case in other sections of the country, in Texas the great mass of the people still hold the supreme court of the United States in reverence and have an abiding faith in it as the bulwark of American institutions.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

The Habitual Calm of Jacob

YEARS ago, in Chicago, there was a saloon keeper answering to the name of Jake who was locally celebrated for the fact that he never got excited. Probably on Jake's part, this was a desirable quality, because his establishment stood in a tough district. Shooting affrays, slugging bees, stabbing and gang battles were matters of common occurrence. Sometimes there would be an outbreak in Jake's bar, but through it all the proprietor would maintain his habitual Teutonic calm. He even maintained it as he waded in with a bung-starter to restore order.

One night there was a real tragedy at Jake's. One man had his throat cut from ear to ear and died on his way to the hospital and another was badly shot up. The affray occurred at so late an hour that the morning papers carried merely the bare facts. About noon, on his way to work, a reporter, who was an old acquaintance of Jake's, met him on the street. "Say," he began, "I hear there was a killing out at your place last night."

However, a stay of this order was granted until Feb. 18 at 2 o'clock, at which time if the defendant has not purged himself of contempt by paying the $112.50 to the district clerk the sheriff was ordered to execute the judgment at defendant's cost.

Mrs. Eva Hilgenberg et vir, vs. James Craven, injunction restraining the sale of real estate. Dismissed on motion of plaintiff.

Southern Ice and Utilities Co. vs. Myrtle Richardson, damages. This cause was appealed from a judgment of the 88th court in favor of appellee, Myrtle Richardson, in which she was awarded a verdict for $1,250, and appellants, Southern Ice and Utilities Co., took the case to the eleventh appeals court, thence to the supreme court on a writ of error. A mandate of the supreme court was filed Feb. 6 reversing and remanding the case to the 88th court. However, there will be no retrial of the case as following the filing of the mandate of the supreme court the cause was dismissed on motion of appellant, Myrtle Richardson by reason of a settlement having been reached. This simplified the proceedings, as the case would necessarily have been transferred to the 91st court by reason of the fact that Judge Patterson, who was member of the firm of Grisham, Patterson & Grisham, attorneys for the plaintiff, Myrtle Richardson, in the original trial.

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT (Judge Patterson, Presiding) Judgments and Orders

The following orders were handed down by Judge Patterson in the 88th court during the past week:

Lucile Borchert vs. H. C. Borchert, contempt. It appearing to the court that the defendant was in contempt of this court by failing to obey its mandate to pay to the district clerk $12.50 per month for support of his minor children, who were given into the custody of their mother, Lucile Borchert, in a former court proceeding for divorce and custody of the minor children, and it appearing to the court that defendant was in arrears in the sum of $112.50 in such payments, it was therefore ordered by the court that H. C. Borchert be committed to the jail of Eastland county and be held therein until such time as he shall have purged himself of such contempt by complying with the order of this court by the payment to the district clerk of the said sum of $112.50. It was further ordered that the sheriff take charge of the defendant and hold and confine him in the county jail to await further orders of the court or until he has purged himself of contempt as above provided.

Human and Other Nature

Among the many figures used in the Bible to describe our Saviour one of the favorites with Christians of those early centuries was that of the Good Shepherd. On the walls of the catacombs, where they seem sometimes to have hidden from persecution and where that expressed their dead, they left pictures in simple art that expressed this conception of the ministry of Jesus. The meaning that stands out in these representations, emphasized no doubt by the adverse circumstances that drove these early disciples together, is that of the one flock and that He is the shepherd of them all.

The Bible is given in words that men can understand; everybody in that Oriental land would understand the work of a shepherd, and the nature of sheep. Therefore some of the most familiar parts of the Bible come to us in terms of the sheep industry. The Shepherd Psalm, the suffering Lamb of Isaiah fifty-three and Acts eight, the parable of the Lost Sheep and the Good Shepherd of John ten are well known. As "sheep of His pasture," the objects of His care even if too often astray brought back to the fold when lost, as the one flock which He would gather from everywhere, Christians ought to have the docility, the spirit of good followers, and the tendency to hang together in pleasant pastures as well as on stormy hillsides, that would make them an unobtrusive yet powerful influence on the peace of the world. The Christian is also a soldier, a swimmer, a runner, an individual in action; but he must not forget to illustrate effectively the lamb aspect of his religion.

RAIN MEASURER SAN LEANDRO, Calif., Feb. 13. (AP)—For 40 years Tony B. Thomas, druggist, has kept a rain gauge atop his shop or his house and has scrupulously entered the precipitation, if any, in a notebook. He uses his records mainly to settle arguments. Farmers sometimes come for miles to determine what the rainfall was in a given year.

McGough farms, is on file in the commissioners court. The court passed an order at this session authorizing the leasing of road machinery from R. B. George Machinery Co. for one year. The cost of the machinery being $8,500, and the lease price agreed upon being $2,375.15, but the contract specifies that the county has the right to exercise its option to buy the machinery at the expiration of its lease by paying $6,375, balance of the purchase price.

The court considered the vexed fee-salary system, insofar as it applies to justices of the peace and constables. An order was adopted permitting these petty officers to retain all fees earned in the discharge of their duties of office.

Notes Mrs. C. F. Shepperd, operator of the court house lift, and Mrs. Shepperd entertained with a house party and family reunion the past week when they had as their guests their children, Mr. and Mrs. James Miller and son, Warren, and daughter, Glenda, of Big Spring; Mrs. Bob Cole and daughter, Shirley Temple, of Strawn.

Judgments and Orders

Following are the judgments and orders in the 91st court during the past week: Emily Ramsey vs. M. F. Ramsey, divorce and partition of community property. The court ascertained that the defendant had disposed of the community property since their filing of this cause, and there was nothing to partition. Judgment was rendered for plaintiff and custody of four minor children. The court also decreed that the defendant be required to contribute to the support of his minor children, and ordered that he make payments periodically of $10 for each of the minors on the 15th and 1st day of each month to the district clerk until said minors have reached the age of 16 years. The court reserved authority to change, alter or suspend this order as circumstances require. Defendant was also ordered to pay to plaintiff $50 as attorney's fee, same to be paid to Judge R. L. Rust.

CHAIRMAN Joseph Triner of the Illinois boxing commission had a lot to do with negotiations for a Chicago bout.

MAX SCHMELING and Match-maker James Joy Johnston of Madison Square Garden feel they're getting the run-around.

MAN OF STEEL

Stalin Is Devoted Father to Three of Own Children and an Orphan

RUMORS DISPROVEN

Stalin's appearance before a microphone last fall to report on the new soviet constitution ended rumors that he either was gravely ill or dead.

CLOSEST FRIEND Maxim Gorky, until his death last year, was the closest friend of Unconquered - Czar Stalin.

COMPANION NOW Klementi Voroshiloff, commissar for war and navy, is one of Stalin's most frequent companions now.

Private Life of Dictator Is Kept From the Public

This is the fourth in a series of articles on the life of Joseph Stalin, Russia's unconquered, self-made ruler.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The home life of Joseph Stalin, the man who guides the destinies of Russia, always has been pretty much of a closed book to the outside world.

While many world figures court publicity about how they live, with a keen eye to the advertising value of such human-interest stories, Stalin resolutely declines to parade his private concerns for public inspection. His official life is the affair of the people, but he draws the shades in his humble abode. And school teachers are forbidden to point out his children to visitors in the classroom.

Rumors Ignored

In 1932 when his wife died very suddenly, the cause of death was not published, with the inevitable result that mystery became attached to it. One rumor was that she had died from poison intended for her husband and accidentally diverted to her.

Stalin remained stonily silent in his grief. To him and not to the world belonged the sorrow which deeply lined his face and added to the grayness at his temples. The poison story still persists in many places abroad, but the writer was informed by an unimpeachable source that Madame Stalin died after an operation for acute appendicitis.

Married Twice

Stalin has married twice. He has grown son, Jasheka, by the first wife, Stalin married a 17-year-old Georgian girl, Madya Al-blueva, in 1919. It is said to have been a real love match, and the romance lasted until her death. She bore him a boy and a girl—Vassil, who is now about 14, and Svyetlana, who is 8 and the apple of her father's eye.

A New York street cleaner earns $1,860 a year—$155 a month—and gets a pension when he reaches retiring age. The salary of the head of all the Russians is less, being about $100 a month—$1,200 a year.

That is said to be the top salary for any Soviet official, but communists say it is not so inadequate as it sounds. They point out that the state promises to educate children and to take care of persons who cannot look after themselves, so the wage-earner doesn't have to worry about the finances of the morrow.

No Frills in Home

There is one other "near member" of the family. Stalin has virtually adopted an orphan boy. Stalin lives with his children in a little flat in the Kremlin. It consists of a tiny hall, three bedrooms and a dining room. There is no kitchen; meals are sent in from a restaurant. The elder son sleeps on a couch in the dining room, his half-brother in a recess off the dining room.

The furnishings are severely plain. The curtains on the windows, for example, are white canvas. There are no frills of any sort. Stalin doesn't have a great amount of spare time for private pursuits. But he is said to be a most affectionate father, and his little motherless daughter is one of the chief comrades of his private life. Frequently they are seen at the movies.

The steel man's closest friends are Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff, commissar for war and navy, and Cergo Ordjonkidze, commissar for heavy industry—the latter a Georgian, like Stalin. The three are much together.

The Soviet chief lost his dearest friend when death took Maxim Gorky, the famous writer. The two always were visiting each others' homes and talking for hours on end.

Work Imperils Health

Stalin's devotion to work has seriously threatened his health, if not his life, on more than one occasion since he came into power. In 1927 he was ill with a stomach complaint for several weeks. In April, 1929, he suffered a stroke of paralysis and it was not until October that he was able to return to his desk.

As time has gone on, the strain of overwork has shown more and more in his face and in the graying of his hair. Last fall there were persistent reports that he was gravely ill. Indeed, some rumors had him dead, and color was lent to this by the fact that he had not been seen for a considerable time.

In due course he reappeared, however, displaying plenty of vigor, and at the close of the year presented the Soviet with its new constitution.

Future Farmer Activities

By MELVIN CLEVELAND

Contour listing of pastures to conserve moisture, and soil is one of the practices being employed by local Future Farmers to improve pastures. Thinning out the mesquite trees, controlling weeds, and deferred grazing are other practices being used. The contour listing has been completed by Alton Clark and Edward Wendt on the pastures they are trying to improve. Weidon Isenhower and Glenn Jones will get their contour listing completed soon, while D. L. Donaway and Lowell Sublett are running the lines on their pastures, getting ready for the plowing. In each of the above cases the boys are taking just a few acres of pasture land, to improve.

Two hundred fruit trees have been pruned by Future Farmers, three hundred chickens culled.

Terrace lines have been run on six farms.

"IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS"

FINDLAY, O., Feb. 13. (AP)—In an era of high taxes, L. V. Rodabaugh gets some solace out of looking over old papers kept by his father, the late Simon Rodabaugh, since 1840. Among them is a tax receipt for 1846. Written in longhand on heavy parchment, it bears the words: "Tax of $13.94 received in full" for 680 acres of fine farm land. On a quarter-section of land that was not as highly regarded, the tax was only $3.40.

position of the house to do what is asked of it has made most of the voice votes one-sided.

But the next step, taken at the request of a single member, might well settle all doubt. The members voting yes and no are asked to stand separately while counted.

Still if there happen to be 20 who wish to fuff up the works they may do so by asking a teller or "sheep pen" vote to follow the standing vote. That step and the resulting carnival inevitably stir the gallery to titters and prompts the members to locker-room conduct.

Massed in front of the speaker's stand, the members are fed down a house aisle, one at a time, while the results of their hard-thinking are counted, eyes first, noses next. Frolicsome as sheep, they pat each other across the beam ends as they file through the counting gate. Inevitably they arrive at the same result as in the standing vote, although, to be sure, a call for a teller vote sends pages scurrying through the lobbies to bring in the stragglers.

Anti-Lynching
Efforts to reward the negro vote with anti-lynching legislation are evident in a flood of bills already this session to bring about substitution of "due process of law" for the mob.

Nine anti-lynching bills were introduced in the house in two days, others already were in and more are coming. Yet that does not promise much. Early last session anti-lynching legislation was filibustered to death by Southern senators and inquiry now discloses few minds have changed.

See Strategy in Landon Mildness on Court Issue

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. (AP)—Alfred M. Landon's plea for non-partisan consideration of issues involving the "whole future of our country" was studied Saturday by republican leaders for some indication of his attitude toward the supreme court controversy.

Some leaders who heard the titular head of the republican party address the Lincoln day dinner of the National Republican club Friday night expressed surprise at the mildness of his remarks. Others said he merely was adhering to a course outlined by republican strategists to keep reorganization of the court a bipartisan issue.

The smiling Kansan extolled Lincoln and closed with the following comment which was interpreted as directed at President Roosevelt's proposals to increase the membership of the nation's highest court.

"When I accepted the invitation to come to this meeting I planned to make a few informal remarks to you as a republican talking to fellow republicans.

"Since then events have occurred in our national life which make it out of place for me to talk on a party basis. The issues raised are greater than any party. They concern the whole of us.

"They are worthy of unburied deliberation by congress. They will not wisely yield to partisan discussion either within or without the congress. The whole future of our country is involved.

"Upon these issues I have strong convictions but I shall not avail myself of this occasion to discuss them further."

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. (AP)—"Exercise" is among the first of the ten commandments of beauty.

It helps to hold the weight normal and the figure to the slim lines which are essential to chic these days. It firms the muscles of the abdomen—one of the first spots to betray "figure age." It stimulates the circulation, aiding general health and contributing much to skin tone and beauty. Left without it the most beautiful figure loses its grace, elasticity and youth.

Since modern life affords less opportunity for exercise than that of past decades, most modern beauties make setting up exercises a part of their beauty regimen.

Here are three of the outstanding exercises in the Arden system for limbering, stretching and reducing:

Push and Pull

Stand with the feet about 25 inches apart, the left foot forward. Push forward across the body with the right hand, extending the arm and slightly bending the left knee. Pull back with the right arm, bending the trunk backward and swinging the weight of the body to the right leg. Finish with the right elbow bent and the left arm extended.

Repeat ten times. Change stance, putting the right foot forward, and reverse the exercise.

Wall Climb

Sit sideways close to the wall with the legs stretched straight along the side boards. Swing around, keeping the hips close to the wall and placing the feet up on the wall. Walk up the wall, lifting the spine vertebra by vertebra until you are virtually standing on your shoulders. Relax and allow the feet to slide slowly down the wall until you are again lying flat. Repeat five times.

Kneeling Exercise

Start in a kneeling position with the knees and palms of the hands on the floor. Swing the right leg up in the air, turning the head to look back over the shoulder toward the upraised foot. Bring the knee back to the floor. Repeat with the other foot.

Those three exercises, done every morning before you take your shower, will do much to keep you limber, your waist slender and your hips slim.

Pinkerton Agency Head Confronting Possible Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. (AP)—Robert Pinkerton, youthful head of the Pinkerton Detective agency, may face a senate contempt charge for his refusal to name the "secret operatives" who mingled with sit-down strikers in General Motors plants.

Senator La Follette said late Friday that Pinkerton officials had been "reluctant and evasive" in hearings before the civil liberties investigating committee.

"Evidence now before the committee indicates that the Pinkerton agency has restrained the rights of free speech and collective bargaining," he said.

The committee will hold a closed meeting to determine whether to bring contempt proceedings against Pinkerton.

The question came up when he defied La Follette's demand for operatives' names. Such a disclosure Pinkerton declared, "might lead to violence or even murder."

Heads of the detective agency, questioned jointly while seated around a long table, said not more than 10 agents were working for General Motors while the strike was in progress. The account was closed, they said, on Jan. 31.

Sat Down With Strikers
"One of our men sat down with the other strikers in the Fisher Body Plant No. 2 at Flint, Mich.," testified Robert Peterson, Pinkerton's assistant superintendent in Detroit.

"Another operative went into Fisher No. 1 with food, but stayed only about two hours."

On La Follette's demand, Pinkerton earlier sent Ralph Dudley, his vice president, to his hotel for a bundle of bills and expense vouchers. When they were brought into the hearing room, Pinkerton refused to turn them over to the committee.

"The vouchers show the names of secret agents," Dudley said.

The agency officials testified "confidential papers" were removed from the Detroit office a few minutes after a senate subpoena for them was served. "Edited" copies later were turned over to investigators, they said.

La Follette commented: "The possible danger inherent in having detective agency spies planted among sit-down strikers is too obvious to need elaboration. The true facts in this situation will be of importance to the congress in framing appropriate legislation. It is apparent that such facts can be elicited only from the spies themselves."

Canning Skill Aids Revenues of Home

OSAGE CITY, Kas., Feb. 13. (AP)—Canning skill has built a tidy income for Mrs. Clement Verna, Osage City "pickle woman."

This fall she canned and sold 402 quarts of pickles and had calls for more than 1,000 quarts. Now she plans to install a small factory in the basement of her home and enter the business of canning pickles on a commercial scale. She uses her own recipe.

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—It is just as well that constituents of house members do not see them too often as they go about their business on the floor. Their sheep-herd method of recording legislative decisions might enliven doubts about the high purpose inspiring them.

The house is confronted with the handicap of great numbers and has adopted the shouting of ayes and noes, the standing vote and the teller vote as means of avoiding time-consuming roll calls, each of which eats up nearly an hour.

But frequently in deciding even an amendment to a bill the house will employ all of the first three, and occasionally will be forced to the further delay of a roll call of its 435 members after all.

Twice within a half hour's debate on the $895,000,000 deficiency bill the house lumbered through the voice vote, and standing vote and the teller vote to dispose of a single amendment.

The teller vote arouses spectators to the most candid remarks about the house's legislative processes.
