DOWN the street the painters are at work. What was just an ordinary, somewhat weather-worn house is emerging in glistening, cream-white loveliness, with shutters as green as the glossy new leaves of the maples.

Across the way they're putting up rainbow-striped awnings --- cool and smart and comfortable-looking.

Next door a shining white trellis is being built --- ready to blossom forth in a cascade of rambler roses.

It's the time of year when homes should look their best. And every housewife knows what miracles can be performed with a little paint --- a few yards of flowered chintz or cretonne --- a trowel and some garden seeds.

Have you read the advertisements in your paper today? You'll find extraordinary values in bright, airy curtains--- cool slip-covers --- fresh-colored summer rugs --- screens for the porch --- all the hundred and one things that make houses more attractive.

Your budget will cover the improvements you want to make if you plan your buying with the daily news of bargains as a guide. Read the advertising pages!

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Patterson, Presiding)
New Cases Pending
The following cases are of recent filing in the district clerk's office for litigation in the 88th court.

Drucilla Johnson vs. J. O. Johnson, divorce. W. T. Boyd vs. Anna Mae Hogsett et al, suit to establish mineral claim. L. H. Reed vs. Rio Grande National Life Insurance Co., damages.

The case of Minnie Tichener vs. Maryland Casualty Co., suit on insurance policy, was set for trial for Friday, but owing to the illness of the plaintiff's attorney the case was passed for a resetting later.

THE NINETY-FIRST DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Davenport, Presiding)
August Term Begins Monday

The August term of the 91st district court begins Monday. Judge Davenport announced that he would call the appearance docket Tuesday, and Wednesday he will begin his summer vacation. Accompanied by Mrs. Davenport he will visit his daughter, Mrs. Lingquist, at her home in New York City, and other places of interest in the east.

Judgments and Orders

The following orders were handed down by Judge Davenport during the past week:

Mary Coffman vs. W. A. Coffman, divorce and designation of separate personal property. Judgment for plaintiff annulling her marriage relations with defendant, and for property sued for as her separate estate.

Two old cases, Nos. 8956 and 8962, styled Starnes vs. Security

State bank, and County School Trustees vs. Ed Hall, both pending in the 91st court for several years, were dismissed by Judge Davenport for want of prosecution.

Ellis Minton vs. T. A. Minton, divorce. Non-suit granted on motion of plaintiff and cause dismissed.

Goldie Smith vs. Travis Smith, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff.

Grand Jury Report

The grand jury of the 91st court adjourned Wednesday and submitted its final report to Judge George L. Davenport, which is as follows:

We, the grand jury, for the 91st district court, June term of 1937, desire to submit our final report.

We have been in session six days, have examined 96 witnesses, and have returned 36 felony indictments.

We desire to express our appreciation to the sheriff's department, district attorney's department, and the constables and bailiffs for their courteous and efficient service during the grand jury term.

We have made a thorough and painstaking investigation of all matters brought to our attention from the various parts of the county and have tried to perform our duties faithfully and in compliance with the law. We regret to advise that there is an alarming increase of highway accidents in Eastland county, resulting from the careless and reckless manner of operating automobiles, and resulting from the operation of automobiles while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and beverages.

Our state law and the city ordinances of the respective cities of this county should be strictly observed by the citizens and enforced by the officers until such time as the highway accidents shall have been reduced to a minimum.

We have made an inspection of the jail house and find that it is well kept and in a sanitary condition. Mr. Ross Crossley is to be commended for his efficient service.

Having completed our investigations and deliberations upon all matters brought to our attention, we respectfully request that we be discharged.

Respectfully submitted, W. F. WALKER, Foreman.

O. A. Kountze, Secretary.

THREE FAMILIES REPORT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

B. E. McGlamery, rehabilitation worker for this district, said Friday there were three families in the county whose members were victims of infantile paralysis. The Cozart family near Scranton, with five children stricken, two of whom have died, leaving three other children stricken; Noble Hager of Gorman, nine-year old girl; and Jim Matthews of Pumpkin Center, one child stricken.

Mr. McGlamery said he had written the state health department regarding the Cozart cases, stating that the case should be investigated as there were five in this family stricken, which led him to believe the cause was local and an investigation might develop the source of the malady.

Doubtless the same condition prevails in other counties regarding the prevalence of this disease, similar to the condition in Eastland county, as isolated cases are reported from other counties of the state.

"Our department can do nothing until the disease has run its course, then it's our mission to step in to do what we can to rehabilitate the patients. We work after the effects of the disease is determined. It is the medical department that must cope with the malady during its prevalence.

"The results of the disease are usually determined in four or five weeks," Mr. McGlamery said, "and if we can get the patient as soon as the results are known the best work can be done in restoration of the patient."

Mr. McGlamery said he had no reply Friday from the health department, and was not advised whether an investigation would be made of the cases in the Cozart family.

THE DEPARTMENT OF THE SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

Woods Speaks at Brownwood
C. S. Eldridge, county superintendent of schools, announces that L. A. Woods, state school superintendent, will speak at Brownwood Monday, August 2, and urges every school official and teacher to hear him. The address will be delivered at the municipal auditorium at 2 o'clock p. m. All trustees, patrons and those interested in our public schools should be at the speaking. School legislation will be the subject of Woods' address and he will discuss the new equalization bill in detail.

"Transportation of scholastics is a subject that should interest all friends of the public schools," Eldridge said, "and I hope every school man and woman will write to their senator and representative and urge a more liberal appropriation for transportation. Probably many do not know that the transportation appropriation has been cut from a little over two million dollars to just one million dollars. Unless this appropriation is restored to approximately $1,500,000 indications are that many of the scholastics will have to walk to school. Eastland county plans to continue to operate its transportation system, but it will be at a loss unless the appropriation is increased. This will be a part of the address of the state superintendent. We can get this appropriation restored if the school people get busy and urge their representatives to support an appropriation adequate to continue operation of the school buses.

"The present appropriation is simply out of the question as it would not support the present transportation program for more than one-half of the school term.

"Conditions all over the state are similar to those that prevail in Eastland county where there has been an increase in scholastics since 1934-35 when there were slightly more than 900 scholastics transported. In 1935-36 there were between 1,200 and 1,300; 1936-37 the scholastics transported jumped to over 1,800, and it is only reasonable to expect an increase in 1937-38. So, it is plain to see that with decreased appropriation our transportation service will be crippled. We will either have to finance the operation of the 42 buses in Eastland county or abandon this service. Abandonment of the transportation service would mean a disruption of the present program that would be a serious handicap for the schools of the state. But I believe the legislature will take care of the matter when it is properly placed before the two houses, if the governor will recommend the appropriation in the call for the extra session next month."

TRANSCRIPT READY TO FILE

The contestees in the appeal of the beer and wine case have secured approval of the court of the statement of facts, and the appeal will be filed in a few days, according to Earl Conner, Jr., district attorney.

THE DEPARTMENT OF THE COUNTY CLERK

Licensed to Marry
The following couples have been licensed to marry by the county clerk during the past week:

J. T. Sims, Penwell, and Miss Fay Dick, Olden.

Wilburn Young and Miss Floy Clara Rose, Wink.

J. D. Morris, Gorman and Miss Alma Lee Pate, Comanche.

L. R. Malone, Brownwood, and Mrs. Alma Mae Garton, Ranger.

Allan J. Lawrence and Miss Lyn Dye, Cisco.

Matters in Probate

The following probate matters were disposed of during the past week:

In the matter of the estate of Everett E. Harper, incompetent, supplementary to guardian's annual report correcting real estate valuation of former report and showing value of real property to be $15,147.05, instead of $12,897.05, as shown in former report. Approved as corrected.

In the matter of the estate of Guy Westerman, incompetent. Application of Eric Eads, attorney for the veterans' administration, for appointment of guardian for Westerman and waiver of Eads filed. It was the order of the court that letters of guardianship be issued to Mrs. Flara Westerman for the person and estate of said incompetent, whose bond was placed at $1,000, which was filed and approved with W. E. Tyler and J. H. Woodruff as sureties. Oath of guardianship was administered. A. D. Carroll, John T. White and Loss Woods named as appraisers, whose report was approved. Petition of guardian for a special allowance of $25 and a monthly allowance of $25 was approved for the maintenance of the wife of said incompetent and his six children, which the guardian was authorized to use for the purposes specified after waiver of Eric Eads, veteran administration attorney, was filed.

Leave of Absence Granted

The commissioners court, at the regular July session, granted County Judge W. S. Adamson two weeks leave of absence with privilege of traveling out of the state. Judge Adamson, accompanied by Mrs. Adamson and their daughter, Margaret, leave Eastland today on their vacation. They will visit the west coast and points of interest en route.

A delegation from Desdemona, Gorman and Strawn was before the commissioners court Friday in the interest of a highway from DeLeon to the intersection of highway 89 with the Bankhead highway. Judge Adamson said some time ago a communication was received by the court from the state highway department agreeing to designate this road as a state highway provided the county would secure the right-of-way, move and rebuild the fences.

"There were no county funds available for the purpose, and none of the parties interested contacted the court," Judge Adamson said, "so nothing was done about the matter. The delegation Friday agreed to move the fences, but did not agree to secure the right-of-way or rebuild the fences, so nothing was accomplished. However, the matter is still pending with the court and probably will be given consideration after I return from my vacation."

Commissioner Henry Davenport, whose neck was broken some time ago in a motor car accident, has so far recovered that it is no longer necessary to wear his neck brace, but is able to look after matters of the court without this artificial support.

Miss Johnnie Hightower, deputy county clerk, will take her vacation this week, beginning Monday. She plans to spend some time with friends in Longview.

Miss Genevieve Trully, deputy county clerk, and Miss Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent, are expected to return to their respective duties.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Cran- don of the Lazy Nine loses her ranch house and barn in a fire, Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy her ranch and court Kay. She distrusts him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Hastings' cow- hand, Scrap Johnson, molests Kay, but Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hires, rescues her. Later they shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings, hating both, murders Scrap, using Ted's gun. Ted crawls to an unknown shack where a girl named Marion nurses him through a week of fever and delirium. The gun is found and Sheriff Parley gets on Ted's trail.

Chapter 27 A Narrow Escape

A faint call from the inside of the shack sent Marion running back. As soon as she stepped in the door and found Ted's dark eyes fixed on her, she knew she had really won the battle.

For the first time, his eyes gazed at her with a seeing look, and his pupils dilated with surprise.

"Who—what—where am I?" Ted tried to raise his head, but his strength failed him, and he sank back exhausted by even that small effort.

Marion crossed quietly to his cot and put a cool hand on his head. He still had fever, but she no longer encountered the hot, dry skin she had learned to expect through the past week.

"You mustn't try to talk yet," she warned him. "You've been very sick, but you are going to be all right now."

For some time he pondered this, his eyes fixed on her face.

"Where's Kay?" he said finally. Marion shook her head. "I don't know. I can't tell you anything, so please don't use up your strength by asking questions. There is no one here but me."

"How—how long—?" His lids began to droop. Instead of answering, Marion lightly held her hand over his eyes, and in a few minutes his regular breathing proclaimed him asleep again.

Stepping to the outer door, Marion drew it to, leaving it slightly ajar and sagging on its hinges as she had first found it. Although she had been forced to break her promise to her father when she had taken in this young man, she had scrupulously kept her word in every other regard. Anyone coming unexpectedly on the shack would have unhesitatingly pronounced it deserted.

She moved quietly around the two rooms into which the cabin was divided, putting them in order while she waited for the water to boil on the single oil burner which was her only source of heat.

She had taken a chance on building a fire in the stove at night, but with the first coming of dawn she had put it out, so that no telltale smoke should betray their presence.

Humming a little tune in her relief that her patient was out of danger at last, Marion looked speculatively at the rough planks that boarded the windows on the outside.

If she could only take them off and let the sun stream in, instead of creeping through the cracks, it would be so much more cheerful! She started toward the door, with a sudden decision to obey her impulse. After all, it was ridiculous to stay cooped up this way! If any searching party had been out for this wounded puncher, it had evidently passed by this hidden spot long ago.

As she reached the inner door that led to a tiny vestibule, she suddenly stood rooted to the spot. Her hand clutched the door frame and her breath came fast. She listened with desperate intently for a repetition of the sound she thought she had heard. A second later, she heard with unmistakable distinctness a shout in the distance, and an answering call somewhat nearer.

"Don't Make a Sound"

Pushing the inner door shut again, Marion darted to the oil stove and turned it out, then set down by Ted's cot, her eyes fixed on him, watching for any sign that his sleep had been disturbed. With bated breath, she waited, while the voices drew nearer, her mind torn by indecision.

Should she make her presence known? If Ted had been still in danger, she would have felt that she must get what help she could, to save him. But now that she was sure he was on the road to recovery, her first duty was to her father.

If the dread suspicion she harbored as to his activities was true, it would mean certain imprisonment and possible death for him if he were taken. To find her there would inevitably put any searchers on his track, and they would wait to take him when he came back.

She put one hand on Ted's forehead and felt his pulse with the other. There was no doubt but that his fever was down and his pulse much stronger.

A sudden shout outside made Marion start violently. She saw Ted's eyes open as a man's voice exclaimed, "Look at this clearing, will you? How'd we miss it before?"

Bending swiftly over Ted, Marion whispered with compelling intensity, "Don't make a sound! It is the one thing I ask in exchange for saving your life!"

After one wondering look at her, Ted feebly pressed her hand in acquiescence, and together they waited in breathless silence, listening to the oncoming footsteps crashing through the brush.

"Say, that's old Ten Strike's hangout! Didn't you ever run across it?" A second voice answered the first. "His shanty there's been deserted a dozen years or more. Ever since the old boy kicked out."

"We'd better have a look at it," the first voice boomed. "Gaynor might—"

Marion felt the hand in hers jerk spasmodically.

"Aw, what's the use?" the other voice broke in, impatiently. "We're just wasting valuable time. If that guy had been able to get as far as this after bumping Scrap Johnson off, he could have made a real get-away. And believe me, he wouldn't have lost any time doing it! Besides, that shanty looks just the way it did the last time I saw it, a couple of years ago."

"Just the same, I'm going to have a look," the first one insisted stubbornly.

"Suit yourself. I'll be going on. After you finish looking over deserted real estate perhaps you'll catch up and help me track down the murderer."

Marion bit her lips and involuntarily gripped Ted's hand, as she studied his bewildered expression. Then she turned her eyes fearfully toward the door.

A heavy tread tramped up the two steps, and the outside door was shoved open. Holding her breath, Marion braced herself for the next moment, when the intruder would step across the space that divided the two doors, and push open the inner one.

She could feel him peering in the small darkened space, and hear him stamp an experimental foot on the rotted flooring. Then, to her immense relief, he sprang back and shouted to his companion:

"Hi! Wait a sec! I'm coming!" Marion could scarcely believe that she was hearing his retreating footsteps. For a full second longer, the dread tension held her. The sight of Ted's white face and closed eyelids, as he slumped back on the pillow, galvanized her to action, and she reached for some cold water to revive him.

The distant footsteps, crashing through the brush, had completely died away, when Ted finally opened his eyes again, to find Marion gazing at him with solemn intensity.

"Yes, I do believe it," Marion answered, with conviction. "I can tell by looking at you that you are no murderer. And from what you said when you were delirious, I gathered that you'd been shot before you had a chance to aim, and your shot had gone wild."

"That's just the way it was," Ted nodded. "I don't remember anything after that. I can't separate delirium from reality. I could have sworn that I saw Josh Hastings bending over me once, but that must have been plain nightmare. But where any murder comes in—"

He suddenly raised himself on his elbow and demanded, "Why didn't you let me find out what in hell they meant by this talk of murder?"

Marion gently pushed him back. "Hush! You mustn't get excited! Whatever they meant, you're better off right where you are, until you're stronger."

"But you?" Ted fixed his eyes on her. "Why are you here, in hiding?"

Marion hesitated a moment, and a slow color came into her cheeks. "That's a long story," she said finally. "I'll tell it to you later. I have to stay here without anyone knowing of my whereabouts, until my father comes back. She paused a moment, then added, "Not even the man I'm engaged to knows where I am."

For a long moment the two gazed at each other, then Ted wearily closed his eyes.

"I don't make head or tail of it," he murmured, in a weak voice, "but I know you're square. And I know I owe my life to you. So anything you say goes."

For a moment, he sank back in a half stupor, then suddenly sat up violently, and exclaimed, "But look here! I've got to go! My mother and sister are waiting! And Kay—" he fell back on the pillow in a dead faint before Marion could catch hold of him.

Ted eagerly tells Marion about Kay, tomorrow.

Electrification of Rural Areas to Be Discussed

ABILENE, July 31. (Sp)—If electricity is good for city folks, it must be good for their country cousins—an idea which has puzzled power companies for many years and which now has the support of the agricultural engineering committee of Texas A. & M. college in the Abilene territory in attempting to reach a solution to the problem of making electrified farms practical.

Knox Parr, Taylor county agent, will be chairman at an all-day session in the Wooten hotel here Tuesday at which time practical use of electric appliances for the rural sections will be demonstrated.

P. T. Montfort, of the agricultural engineering department at A. & M. college, will be in charge. The Abilene meeting is one of a series of 17 one-day rural electrification schools which began in June. Others in west Texas include schools at Fort Worth, San Angelo, Lubbock and Wichita Falls.

Parr sent out invitations to county agents, teachers of vocational agriculture, representatives of electric service companies, electric dealers and agricultural leaders in 20 counties in this area. Nearly 100 are expected to be on hand Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock when the program opens in the hotel ballroom.

Primary Purpose
The primary purpose of the meetings, Montfort advised, is to make available information "regarding the many practical uses of electricity on the farm to those agricultural leaders who will be called upon to assist the farmer with his problem of putting electricity to work in the most practical and profitable manner."

Assisting Parr in arranging for the school is T. J. McCarty, rural power engineer of the West Texas Utilities company.

Subjects to be discussed include farm wiring, farm lighting, household appliances such as ranges, refrigerators and washing machines, water systems and electric equipment suitable for use in the dairy, on the poultry farm and for feed processing. Talks, Montfort said, will be designed to point out kinds of equipment available, advantages of electric equipment, cost of operation, cost of equipment, and where the equipment can be secured.

A display of typical appliances and equipment which has been found practical for farm use under west Texas conditions will be arranged for both morning and afternoon schools. Liberal use will be made of charts, illustrations, sound movies, models and other means for making discussions "more interesting and effective."

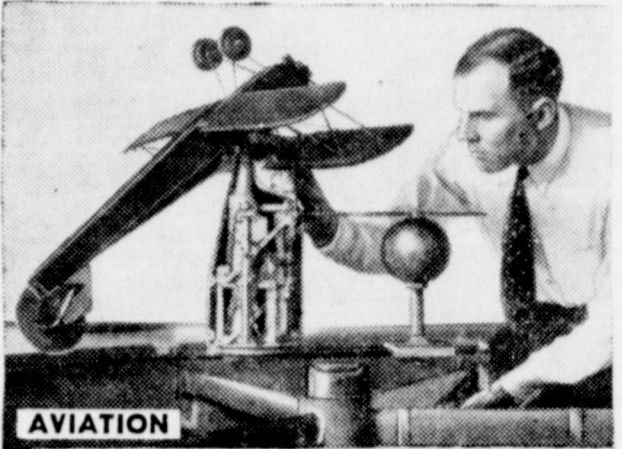

McCarty will represent the West Texas Utilities company, which is a member of the Texas committee on the relation of electricity to agriculture-co-sponsor of the schools.

Sugar cane, now rivaled by sugar beets, was for centuries the only source of commercial sugar.

Sending A Model To Do A Man's Job

By The AP Feature Service

WHEN the modern engineer and scientist wants to do a big job right, he doesn't rely on blue prints and mathematics alone. More and more frequently, he makes a small imitation of the real thing and tests it under actual working conditions. If it stands the gaff, chances are that the life-size structure will, too.

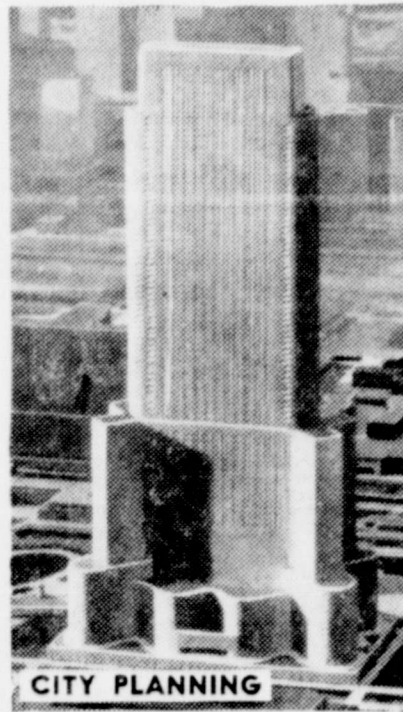

AVIATION

Nobody gets hurt when a model plane goes into a spin in a model downward air stream produced in a wind tunnel. It's a safe, convenient means of uncovering "bugs" before it's too late.

RIVER CONTROL

Since rivers often are more temperamental even than machines, engineers use miniature streams to test proposed changes in course. This model paved the way for a cut-off in Mississippi.

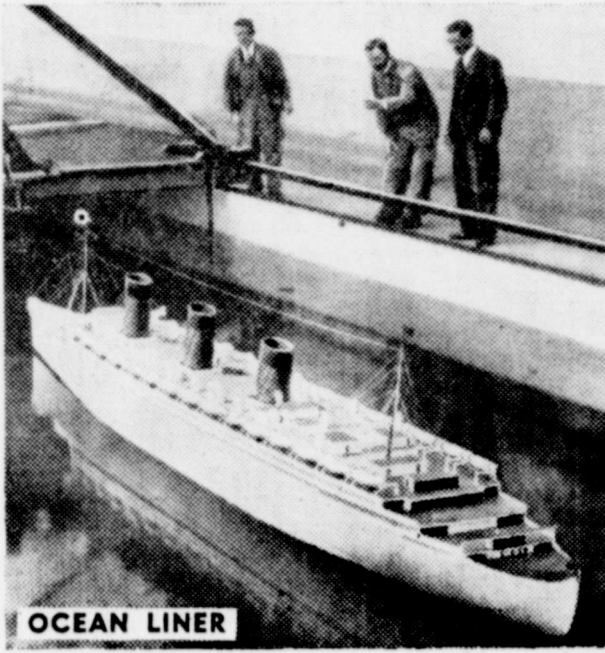

CITY PLANNING

Destitute Case Needs Assistance

Miss Elsie Glenn, social worker with The Eastland County Family Welfare association, Saturday issued the following appeal to Cisco citizens:

"I have in my present case load, an unemployable sick man, who is suffering from cataracts on both eyes and who is daily losing his sight because of lack of funds to have the cataracts removed before his sight is completely gone. His family is destitute, living within near distance of Cisco, a helpless individual, dependent on charity for the food of life. Eastland Co. is carrying a desperate load and is unable to furnish money for circumstances like this. I am asking you, any individual in Cisco, any church organization, etc., to donate what you will to restore this one man's sight before he is hopelessly blind. Will you please leave any amount you see fit with the police department at the city hall within the next week? Any information on the subject of the city-county welfare setup will gladly be furnished by the social worker."

TRANSATLANTIC MERRY-GO-ROUND JACK BENNY NANCY CARROLL GENE RAYMOND

In And About Moran

The First Methodist church of Moran opened its revival Friday night with many present to hear the initial sermon by the Rev. J. W. Price, pastor.

Miss Laverne Grace and Mrs. Jack Nolan of Anson are spending the weekend in the home of Miss Grace's parents.

The Moran territory's richest grain crop in years has swelled deposits in the Moran National bank here to a new high.

The heavy precipitation of last fall, making growing conditions ideal, and spring rains at the proper stage in young plant growth, account for such a heavy yield.

With the current drouth and of grasshoppers, chances for a good fall cotton crop are below normal, Mr. Pool stated.

Mrs. Frank P. Midkiff was honored Friday by the Ladies Aid of the First Christian church here.

The program consisted of readings by Betty Elliott, vocal duet by Mrs. J. T. Brooks and her sister, Margie Williams.

Mrs. Hershel Roberts had charge of the proceedings.

Mrs. Midkiff, a recent bride, is the former Clara Overby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Overby of this city.

Mr. Midkiff presented his bride with a new automobile as a wedding gift.

R. A. Elliott and sons, Bertram and Ray, ranchmen, were in Ozona last week buying sheep to replenish their herds here.

Two were hurt Friday, when a truck, driven by an employee of a baking company of Abilene, overturned four miles south of Moran on state highway 23 at 11 a. m.

The truck was badly damaged. C. B. Snyder and son, Ralph, left Friday for a business trip to Kansas.

Nance---

Everyone knew that the Sinclairs were due for a let-down but they also believed that the Sinclair team could let down a long ways and still take the Nance Motor boys in hand easily.

Two home runs were smashed during the course of the battle. Cearley blasted one out in the first with McCrary on base and Wilkins got one in the last of the second to score Barnhill ahead of him.

With the two scores in the first Nance jumped into the lead and held it during the entire game. Sinclairs scored once in the last of the first round on three errors and that was as near as they got to the lead.

Nance scored four times in the second on two hits, three fielder's choices and an error. Huestis came back with two on Wilkins' circuit blow with two runs and the score stood at 6 to 3.

Nance scored three more in the third on two hits and two errors while the Sinclairs were able to rake up two on two hits and an error.

In the fourth Nance had its only scoreless inning of the entire game. The first half chumps, however, came through with three tallies on two walks, two hits and an error and the count stood at 9 and 8, Nance.

The first of the fifth gave the winners three runs on four hits and a couple of walks, off Howesly who had replaced Bivins in the box. Weber, who took the hill for Nance in the last of the fifth held the losers scoreless that frame.

It seemed that Nance could not be stopped. They scored three times more in the sixth on a hit, fielder's choice and an error. Weber set the powerful Sinclair hitters down scoreless again in the sixth.

Leading 15 to 8 and the game already in the bag, Nance added oil on the already blazing fire by handing the Sinclairs their biggest rally in dazzling the spectators with seven tallies in the last inning.

Huestis managed to score three times on four hits in the final round but they needed 14 so the game was over.

Drug boys started over but this time they made only three runs with a home run by Harris featuring the attack. With the score 11 to 2 the home supporters started groaning, anticipating a top-heavy score.

In Cisco's half of the second two runs were made when Preston singled and Van Horn, who usually punches hits into short field, cut loose on a hard pitch and the ball sailed far over the left fielders head for an easy home run. This made the score 11 to 4. That was all for that inning.

Boyett Goes In

But that was just about all the winners got the rest of the game. Boyett who had been unable to "make the raffle" in the last two games because of wildness, was given the task of facing the hard hitting crew that had already scored 11 tallies.

With his usual calmness he went out to the mound and Wilkins, first man to face him, smashed a triple and things darkened for the younger pitcher. Then, sending a tricky, rising ball over the base with almost perfect control, Boyett made the next hitter foul out to the catcher. With one out and the man still on third, he fanned Christian and Smith, cleanup batter came to the plate, the runner still on third. He struck at three of Boyett's pitches with out even fouling one of them and the side retired.

Van Horn Doubles

Cisco then made a ball game out of it in their half of the third. White reached first on an error, Coates singled, Preston was out and Van Horn came to bat. He fooled the entire team by pounding a double into deep right field scoring both runners. Sublett's lick was muffed and Van Horn scored.

Then things settled down to one of the best games of the season. The first three men up in the fourth for the winners popped out, unable to connect solidly with Boyett's offerings.

Cisco didn't do any better and in the fourth Miles got a single off the Cisco pitcher and the next three men were easy outs.

Boyett showed his stuff in the sixth. Hickman, first up for Mineral Wells, walked. Christian was out. Smith was safe on an error and both runners advanced with a wild pitch. Harris fanned with runners on second and third and Huddleston followed suit to end the inning.

Cisco's Last Score

Cisco's last score came in the last of the sixth. Van Horn beat out an infield hit, his third bingle of the game, and scored on a long fly after he had moved to third.

Boyett was robbed of a shut-out for the five innings he pitched against the heavy hitting invaders when Unkart dropped an easy fly in left field that scored Stanley after two were out in the seventh.

Cisco failed to score in the last of the innings.

Lineups: Ball Drug--Wilkins, short stop; Hickman, short field; Christian, first base; Smith, second base; Harris, catcher; Huddleston, left field; Bird, center field; Stanley, right field; Watson, third base; Miles pitcher.

Red Front--St. John, short stop; Belew, second base; Johnston, right field; White, third base; Riley and Boyett, pitcher; Coates,
