WAGE-HOUR CONSIDERATION POSTPONED

Winston Urges Use of Water For Irrigation in Mornings

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The author of the poem "The Bravest Battle" published in this column yesterday is Joaquin Miller (pronounced "Wau-Keen") Miller, numbers of responses to the appeal for the identity of the author have established. First reply to reach the Press was from Mrs. Eugene Lankford, who sent an article briefly reciting facts of the poet's life. Mrs. Homer Slicker, and Miss Effie Moore of the post office were next in order with their responses.

Joaquin Miller, pen name of Cincinnati Heine Miller, Mrs. Lankford wrote, was an American poet who was born in Indiana in 1841. He became a miner in California; lived among the Indians; was an express messenger; practised law in Oregon, and edited a paper which was suppressed for disloyalty. From 1866 to 1870 he was a county judge in Oregon. After serving as a journalist in Washington, he visited London where he published "Songs of the Sierras" in 1871 and became a social celebrity. Finally he settled in Oakland, Cal., making his home a feature of the city. Among his numerous writings are "Songs of the Sunlands," "Songs of the Mexican Seas," "Shadows of the Shasta," "The Ship in the Desert," "Life Among the Modocs," "The One Fair Woman," "The Bear Stories," and "The Danites in the Sierras." He died in 1913 and in compliance with his desires, his body was cremated and the ashes taken up into the Sierras and scattered to the winds.

We are grateful to Mrs. Langford for her information, and to the others to responded with the same facts.

Billy Butts Wright is one of the best swimmers in Cisco. But he came home the other day, carrying an inflated inner tube as big as himself and in considerable disgust. For some reason he had carried the big tube all the way from town, and en route every person he met asked him if he was going swimming. To a boy of Billy's years and standing that was one insult after another.

Never kid a caddy. They are accustomed to being kidded by experts. Cisco's chief pedagogue discovered that to his discomfort the other morning when a gang of youngsters hitched a ride to the golf course.

Cluck inquired if the boys hunted golf balls in the rough. They said they did, and the superintendent of Cisco's schools remarked that they wouldn't have to hunt for those he hit.

Inquired one youth quietly:

"Do you ever hit the ball?"

CONFER TODAY ON PARALYSIS

Mass Meeting Is Held In Scranton

Dr. F. T. Isbell, county health officer of Eastland, was in town conferring with Ciscoans today concerning infantile paralysis cases in the Scranton community. Dr. Isbell also held a mass meeting attended by about 40 of the Scranton citizens in an effort to devise a means for properly dealing with the problem. Methods of proper sanitation and other precautions were explained to the group which assembled there to talk with the health officer.

City Health Officer W. P. Lee stated today that he had conferred Sunday with the State Health Officer Joyce W. Cox, and that he had sent a representative from Austin, Dr. Clarkston, to view the situation here. Dr. Lee said that there were only four cases reported in the entire county.

Dr. Isbell talked with the Scranton people today with the thought of securing a special trained nurse to stay in the Scranton community to advise the people there how to look after the patients and how to protect themselves from possible infected with the disease.

Very little was to be feared, it was advised today, in spite of the reported seriousness of the condition in that community. There is no need of worry as long as the regular sanitary conditions were observed, it was assured.

The following precautions and information have been asked to be published by the county health officer: "Infantile paralysis cases and family childhood contacts should be isolated and quarantined for 21 days from onset of fever symptoms. Employees of food or milk establishments who have been around an infantile paralysis case must remain away from work for 14 days.

"In localities where the disease is occurring children should be kept away from public gatherings. "Traveling with children to another community should not be done as this will cause fatigue and possibly reduce the child's natural resistance to the disease. "To date no vaccination has

Pressure Lowered By Excessive Use In Late Afternoon

With the growing number of complaints by Cisco people of low water pressure, during the extremely hot weather, W. R. Winston, city water superintendent, today appealed to Ciscoans to use the water for irrigation purposes in the morning instead of in the late afternoon.

If this will be done, said Mr. Winston, there will be enough to furnish everyone, regardless of his location, with plenty of water for household purposes.

Recently the drain on the supply has been such that people living on the hills have been unable to get drinking water, pumping enough of it into town being impossible because of the large amount of water used on lawns, trees, hedges, etc. in the late afternoon.

Mr. Winston's appeal:

To the Water Consumers: People are complaining because of the low water pressure. Some of the people who live on the hills are even unable to get drinking water. We are unable to pump the water into town fast enough because of the excessive consumption in the late afternoon.

If you would use the water for irrigation purposes in the morning instead of in the afternoon, we would be able to furnish everyone, regardless of his location, with water for household purposes.

Please help us in this matter, for the extreme heat and lack of rain will only last three or four weeks.

W. R. WINSTON, Water Superintendent.

Planes Bomb Vanguard of Advancing Sino Troops

(By Associated Press) Japanese infantry, pressing southward from Tientsin, drew near northward moving troops of the central Chinese government; Japanese planes bombed the vanguard of the advancing Chinese at Tehchow, on the border of Hopeh and Shantung provinces, but the Japanese march was virtually unresisted.

The newspaper Izvestia in Moscow charged Japan was attempting to provoke conflict with Soviet "by any means."

PLANE FOUND 'UNDER WATER'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. (AP)—The war department received a message from Panama saying the Pan-American-Grace flying boat, missing since dusk yesterday with 11 passengers and a crew of three, had been found "totally under water with no sign of life," 30 miles northeast of Cristobal.

United States army and navy combed the sea and coast on both sides of the Atlantic today after the plane, enroute to Lima, Peru, and Cristobal, evidently overshot its mark.

The plane's radio signals were heard loudly late yesterday, indicating it was trying to find a break in the clouds to land, then nothing more.

Inscriptions on Goya Works Covered Up

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (AP)—An exhibition of works by Francisco Goya was a very quiet affair until members of the Spanish colony arrived. When they read the inscriptions—which are in Spanish—they blushed and rushed to the director of the museum.

His Place in the Sun

Life Is Bed of Roses For War Lord of 1914

Germany Declared War on Russia 23 Years Ago Aug. 1

By J. A. BOUMAN DOORN, Holland. (AP)—Twenty-three years ago August 1 Germany declared war on Russia and Wilhelm II signed the general mobilization order.

The next day German troops invaded France.

Today the man who was accused of plunging the world into battle sits on a knoll of his 50-acre estate here, absorbed in roses.

Once attended by generals and ministers, today he is accompanied by a soft-eyed dachshund. Mustache Bristles No More

The bristling mustache to which he gave his name is gray. It bristles no more but its tips still point skyward. A gray beard covers his once-arrogant chin. His stern face has softened, grown more angular.

The world was at his throat when the abdicated monarch fled to Holland 19 years ago. He found shelter with friends and Holland protected him. In 1920 he bought his 50-acre domain in Doorn.

Seventeen years have drowned the hatred. Now, at 78, the ex-Kaiser seems a handsome gentleman of the old school. His personal sorrows—the suicide of his youngest son, Prince Joachim, soon after the war, the death of the former Kaiserin in 1921—have been forgotten.

He sits amid his roses courteously acknowledging respectful salutes from promenaders. Public Is Admitted

Cisco Girls Are 9 to 7 Victors Over Carbon

It wasn't a 17 to 5 margin like the one last week, but the Cisco girls soft ballers came through with a victory last night over Carbon. This time it was 9 to 7 and was a result of a six run rally in the fourth inning that put them in the lead and the game on ice.

The outcome looked bad for the local lasses when the invaders opened the first inning by chasing in six runs on five hits and one error, including a homer, two doubles and two singles. Brown, Cisco pitcher then settled down and didn't allow the girls but one more run and that was on a couple of errors. The losers did not get but one hit in the last five innings.

Cisco scored once in the first inning, twice in the third and things were ready for the big fourth round rally. Four errors and two hits featured the attack.

Neither team scored the last three innings.

North Stands Seats Almost Completed

Cisco's football stadium, to be probably the best in the district when the 1937 football season rolls around, is coming along on schedule with the construction of seats on the north stands almost completed and the press box being put in shape.

The grass planted recently, is growing out rapidly with constant watering and is making the grid take the appearance of a typical football playing field.

Administration leaders planned to call up judiciary procedure on the bill after a vote on the house measure, expected by midafternoon.

Little controversy was expected on the new court bill, contrasting to the furor on the original measure.

As Borah spoke Senator Connally of Texas visited the president urging nomination of Joseph Hutcheson, Jr., of Houston, judge of the federal fifth circuit court of appeals to the supreme bench.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon of the Lazy Nine loses her ranch house and barn in a fire, Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy her ranch and court Kay. She hates him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings finds them unconscious and murders Scrap with Ted's gun. Ted crawls to a shack where a girl named Marion nurses him through a feverish week. The gun is found and Sheriff Farley searches for Ted while Kay anxiously awaits news.

Chapter 29

'Reconstructing' the Crime

By the next morning, Kay had reached a point of tense anxiety that demanded action.

There was no use denying to herself any longer that Ted meant more to her than any man she had ever known. The sympathy for his desperate plight that had first drawn her to him, had changed to admiration for the clever way in which he had helped her. And this feeling again had given way to something much deeper, as she had watched him fighting for her, and during that magic ride back in the sunset, before he had said goodbye.

She admitted now the cause of her intense restlessness when he had failed to appear at the time she had expected him. She was in love with him, and somehow she knew that he cared for her too.

The first thing to do, she decided, was to ride over to the Flying Six and see if there had been any news from the sheriff. Babs wouldn't be able to come over with any message until after school, and Kay simply couldn't wait until then. After the way she and Josh Hastings had last parted, it was fairly certain that he wouldn't take the trouble to bring any message over.

In spite of her vow not to go near the Flying Six again, Kay felt she couldn't possibly wait until afternoon to hear any news there might be. Let Josh Hastings think anything he wanted to! She was going over there.

Eating a hasty breakfast, she ran down to the corral, saddled Flicker and was off.

In the morning sunlight, her fears of the night assumed less tragic shape. The fact that Ted hadn't been found anywhere would seem to indicate that he couldn't have been so severely wounded. The only thing for her to do was to have faith in him, and try to talk down the ugly rumors that were running rife about him.

To her relief, Josh Hastings was nowhere in sight as she rode up to the ranch house of the Flying Six. Aunt Kate was sunning herself on the porch. She waved a greeting.

"I'm glad to see you ain't such a fool, after all," she said complacently as Kay came up the steps.

Ignoring this remark, Kay ran over and kissed her peppery old relative, then eagerly asked, "Has Zeke Farley telephoned any message for me, here?"

"Not that I know of," Aunt Kate wrinkled up her face and squinted speculatively at Kay. "He stopped here on his way to find that fine new puncher of yours! I don't know any stronger proof that you need a husband to manage you and your affairs, than that you go off and get a murderer in your outfit! And give him your father's gun to do the murdering with!" She gave a snort of disapproval.

Kay bit her lips to keep back the angry retort that sprang to them. Quarreling with Aunt Kate wasn't going to get her anywhere! On the contrary, here was her chance to set her straight about Ted.

"I thought you had more fairness than to jump to conclusions that way," she began, in a carefully controlled voice. "You . . ."

"How Do You Know?"

"Who's jumping to conclusions?" Kay started as Josh Hastings appeared suddenly in the doorway. He had a sly smile of satisfaction at seeing her there. It made Kay regret her impulsive haste in coming over, especially as there hadn't been any message for her after all.

"Why, Kay here says I am!" Aunt Kate answered in an aggrieved tone. "We were talking about that man the sheriff is after."

"I didn't expect you to have proof of what I was telling you, so soon," Josh Hastings looked triumphantly at Kay. "There's no question of jumping to conclusions. The man's proved murderer. And if he hasn't escaped over the border, he'll be brought back and hung." He watched for Kay's reaction to these words.

Kay controlled her expression by a mighty effort. "Fortunately, every one isn't as ready to condemn a man unheard as you are," she answered coldly.

"Don't be a fool!" Kay's coolness touched off Josh Hastings' easily aroused temper. "The Gaynor man's gun was found with two cartridges exploded, where he dropped it before he dragged himself over to the water! He—"

"Dragged himself over to the water?" Kay echoed. "You mean he was wounded? How do you know—"

"I don't know," Josh Hastings snapped. A dull red came into his face, and his eyes shifted from Kay's inquiring gaze. "I'm only reconstructing the picture as I imagine it must have been." His manner was suddenly blustering and confused. "Like as not I'm mistaken. Gaynor probably wasn't wounded at all. He just shot Scrap through his arm, and then, when Scrap dropped his gun, Gaynor finished him off."

"I didn't know Scrap Johnson had been shot twice!" Kay exclaimed. A rising excitement made her breath come fast. How did Josh Hastings know so much? Why was he so red and angry?

"All I know is what the sheriff said!" Josh Hastings turned to Aunt Kate, and fixed her with hypnotic glance. "You heard him say that!" he declared.

"I don't rightly remember that," Aunt Kate pursed her lips reflectively. "But land sakes! I was so excited, I don't know half he did say."

"But you did hear him say that!" Josh Hastings persisted, his eyes still dominantly holding hers. "I reckon I did," Aunt Kate agreed doubtfully. "Anyway, I recollect what he said about it's being my brother's gun!" Her beady black eyes turned accusingly to Kay. "The idea of your giving your father's gun to a man like that! Josh Hastings has told me all about him."

"That's easy to see," Kay commented bitterly. She turned angrily toward the steps. "I may as well be going on, as long as you have your minds made up already about an innocent man's guilt." She turned back to Aunt Kate. "If there should be any message, have Babs ride over with it, will you?"

"I will, unless someone else wants to take it!" Aunt Kate gave Josh Hastings an arch look, which made Kay's blood boil.

Turning and bolting down the steps before she should say something she might regret later, she sprang into Flicker's saddle and was off.

A Plan of Action

The same early morning sunlight that had tempted Marion Howell into her tiny clearing on the morning that Ted finally was out of danger, shone on Kay's cabin and awakened her from the exhausted sleep into which she had fallen at early dawn, after a second wretched night.

There had been no message of any sort from the Flying Six and, unable to stand the suspense, Kay had sent Shorty over after supper to see if any late news had come in. It was midnight before Shorty had come back, and with her first glimpse of his face, Kay had her answer.

"No news is good news, Kid," Shorty had tried to be comforting with his clumsy sympathy. He seemed to sense, in some strange way, what Kay was going through. "I'm with you about there being something phony going on. That Gaynor boy's no murderer, or I miss my guess."

"Thanks, Shorty," Kay had said. "I know he isn't. But everyone but you and me seem to think he is!"

"Josh Hastings sure is hell bent against him," Shorty had ruminated, shooting Kay a quizzical look. "Reckon you're being for him don't help none in that quarter!"

This remark lingered with Kay after Shorty had left, and she had gone to bed. She must be careful not to raise antagonism to Ted, by being too violently partisan.

Putting aside the negative ways in which she could help, Kay tried to concentrate on something positive she could do. The thing that would mean most to him, would be for her to get in touch with his mother and sister herself, and bring them over to the Lazy Nine, as had been originally planned.

She had resolved to wait one more day for news of Ted, and then to put this plan into action. Finally she had dropped asleep.

Now, as the sun gradually brought her to full consciousness, this plan came back to her mind, and she sprang out of bed and began to dress with feverish energy.

Why wait one more day, before acting on her own? She wanted to be back at the ranch house that night, because the sheriff would surely have some news by then. Meanwhile, however, there was no need to have another wretched day of anxious, interminable waiting. She would ride up to the central divide and do some scouting.

Knowing that her plan would,

In And About Moran

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Weber and family and Miss Evelyn Adair of Moran left this morning on a 10 days automobile tour through central and south Texas. The party will visit in San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi. Mr. Weber and sons, R. E. and Buddy, are hopeful of landing some of Mr. Gulf of Mexico's piscatorial offerings at Corpus Christi, the boys said before leaving.

F. N. Hassen, local merchant, and his employe, Mrs. Alice Cunningham, were in Dallas Sunday buying fall merchandise. Mr. Hassen reports that they are "wearing 'em shorter than ever." Mr. Hassen is in the dry goods business here.

Miss Ruth Voigt of La Feria, and Miss Myrtle Godwin of Kingsville are visiting Miss Voigt's sister, Mrs. Oscar Wise, here. The pair are returning to their homes, having completed summer courses at a fine art school in Boulder, Colo.

Mrs. R. Y. Camblin and children, Roy and Dorothy, are visiting Mrs. Camblin's brother, Oscar Wise.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gay are stirring Seth's opposition, and would certainly make him insist that one of the boys go with her. Kay carefully avoided the bunk house. Slipping into the mess shack, she foraged some breakfast for herself. Then she grabbed up some bread and ham and a canteen of water, and made for the corral. (Copyright, 1937, Marie de Nervaud)

Kay summons the fire patrol, tomorrow, to enlist Runyon's aid.

Miss Lillian Knippa Becomes Bride Of Arthur Wende Saturday Evening

Miss Lillian Knippa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Knippa of Austin, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Wende of Houston in a lovely ceremony performed Saturday evening at St. Paul's Lutheran church. The Rev. B. K. Manz officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Herman Barsun sang the prenuptial solo, "Because," preceding the ceremony, with Carl Fehr playing the organ accompaniment. Mr. Fehr played Schubert's "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus" during the ceremony. The altar was decorated with palms and white zinnias. Candelabra on each side of the altar held tall white candles. The ushers, Marvin Knippa, brother of the bride, Edgar Knippa, a cousin, Ray Knippa, a brother, and Earnest Best, Jr., entered to the strains of the "Lohengrin" wedding march.

Mrs. Ray Knippa, sister-in-law to the bride, served as bridesmaid. She wore a rose taffeta fitted along colonial lines and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli. Mrs. Carl Fehr, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pink taffeta fitted along colonial lines and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli.

The bride, entering alone, wore a fitted dress of white net over white satin. Her white net veil, finger-tip length, fitted on her head in a Juliet cap, which was bordered with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses showered with lilies of the valley and tied with white satin ribbons.

Mr. Reuben Wende, brother of the bridegroom, attended him as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 1521 Manor road, Misses Esther Borneman and Clara Bowie had charge of the bride's cake, decorated with white flowers. 90-Year Old Man Builds Own Car

ST. FRANCISVILLE, Ill., Aug. 3 (AP)—Years back, Martin Brian, 90-year-old blacksmith, fixed a motor car. He decided he knew all about automobiles and backed the car out of the garage. But he had neglected to learn how to stop, and smashed a plate glass window.

But Brian was preserving. He decided to make his own car, so he'd be sure to know how to operate it.

The finished produce rambles about the streets of this Wabash river town, with Brian at the wheel. It's the envy of all the children, and the grownups are interested at least.

At first he operated it by hand pumping, like a hand car. But now it operates with a washing machine motor. It will run 15 miles an hour, and once dumped Brian in the ditch.

"Big Ed" Wintergust to Represent Gulf At Automobile Racing Events

"BIG ED" WINTERGUST (upper left) who has been friendly to auto racing drivers for nearly two decades, has been named racing representative for the Gulf Oil Corporation. Although he did some special work for Gulf in connection with the 1937 Memorial Day race at Indianapolis, his appointment to a full time position was made known just a short time ago by company officials. In the oval picture at the lower left he is shown (center) with two Gulf men. . . . Harry A. Miller (left), famous engine builder, and R. M. Welker, lubrication engineer. Mr. Wintergust is shown with his familiar cane in the other lower view as he watches Ralph DePalma (right) fill a gasoline tank. The large view shows the Indianapolis Speedway where "Big Ed" has been a popular character among the racing fraternity for seventeen years. His home is at Indianapolis.

Seven runs in the first inning started off an attack that snowed under the Cisco Jaycees Monday night by a count of 16 to 4. The Carbon all-star team which the Jaycees defeated 5 to 3 last week was the winner.

The game was Carbon all the way. Cisco was held to seven hits by Ramsey, including a homer by A. D. Starling in the seventh. But the winners crashed 13 from the offerings of Lefty Boyett and A. D. Starling, coupled them with five errors and three walks and the game was in the bag.

Clayborn and Hall both got four-base blows for the winners.

After breaking out with seven runs in the first things quieted a little. Carbon came back with two each in the second and third and in the fourth and fifth they failed to get a tally. In the sixth they got three more off Hall's circuit knock with two aboard and they ended by scoring twice in the first of the seventh.

Meanwhile Cisco scored once in the third, fourth, sixth and seventh innings.

Startling lineup:

Gulf Appoints Wintergust to Auto Racing Staff

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 3. "Big Ed" Wintergust, one of the most beloved and colorful figures in the automobile racing game for the last 17 years, has been named official auto racing representative of the Gulf Oil corporation.

Announcement of Wintergust's appointment, to take effect at once, has been made by Mr. H. P. Hobart, general manager, lubricating oil sales. His duties will be to keep in close contact with racing events and the racing fraternity throughout the year, and to promote the use of Gulf fuels and lubricants at all major races and record-making runs which operate under sanction from the American Automobile association.

Probably no other person connected with the speedways enjoys the friendship and confidence of as many famous racing drivers as Edward F. Wintergust. As a veteran follower of the racing game, Big Ed has had a "shanty" at practically all major speedway garages for nearly two decades, and when tough luck overtakes drivers and mechanics they always can count on him for a sympathetic hearing.

Earlier in the year Harry A. Miller, famous builder of racing engines, was appointed to head Gulf's experimental engine division and the appointment of Wintergust rounds out Gulf's representation on the speedways of the nation. Wintergust will be attached to the staff of the experimental engine division.

Among the outstanding American race drivers who have looked to "Uncle" Ed for advice and assistance on fuels and lubricants in preparing for races are Bill Cummings, Louis Meyer, Ted Horn, Kelly Pettilo, Billy DeVore, Billy Winn, Chet Gardner, Chet Miller and many others. Unlike many of the old-timers who now follow the races as engineers, manufacturer's representatives, AAA steward, etc. Big Ed was never a race driver, but his long connection with the game and his wide popularity have won him an uncontented position in racedom's hall of fame.

Japanese Girls Are Crazy About American Clothes

By JAMES A. MILLS

TOKYO, Aug. 3. (AP)—Thousands of Japanese girls and women have discarded their time-honored kimono, obi (sash) and geta (wooden sandals) for American-style clothes. Foreign fashion experts here say that in another decade Japan probably will be completely western in its dress.

Almost all of the school girls and boys now wear American clothes, which are considered not only smarter, but more practical and hygienic.

Cheaper Wedding Gowns

But it is perhaps in wedding attire that the greatest change has come. Most smart Japanese women prefer American or European wedding gowns, not so much the style as for economy. In Japan a native wedding kimono costs from $100 to $300, while a modern western wedding gown may be made for one-third that price.

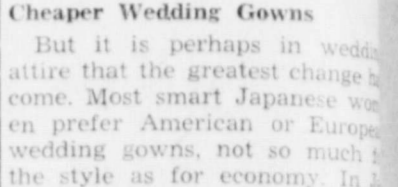

And when Japanese young men marry, they discard their native kimono dress, which some believe makes them look "plebeian," in favor of the conventional western "morning" garb. Formerly the men in Japan regarded a foreign style suit as a luxury, but now it is worn for business and on formal occasions.

Ten years ago Japanese girls who wore foreign-style apparel were regarded as flappers, or even as immoral. Today many Japanese parents, who usually are orthodox and nationalistic, favor western garments for their daughters.

Figures Improving

With the gradual discontinuance among mothers of the old practice of carrying their babies on the back—which often gave the children "pigeon-toes" or "bandy-legs"—the figures of Japanese girls and boys have greatly improved, so they wear western clothes more gracefully. But Japanese women, Americans here think still look far better in the traditional kimono and obi because of their difference in stature and build.

The Car that Stands Up Best

THIS BIG, ROOMY, FULL POWERED CAR IS AMAZINGLY ECONOMICAL TO OPERATE

It's the biggest of "All Three" lowest priced cars, and it's the biggest, roomiest Plymouth ever built—wider by three inches than the old standard width, and engineered to give you a new Hushed Ride, an experience in riding comfort heretofore impossible in low priced cars.

Yet it costs less to operate . . . owners report 18 to 24 miles per gallon of gas and surprisingly little oil consumption. And all the famous features pioneered by Plymouth — Safety-Steel body, Hydraulic Brakes, Floating Power, plus the sensational "Hushed Ride" make this 1937 Plymouth the biggest value in low priced car history.

Owners you know right here in town will tell you Plymouth stands up best. That's one reason why Plymouth owners find their cars worth up to $100 more than either of the other two when they trade theirs in on new cars.

See and drive the big, beautiful 1937 Plymouth. We have one waiting for you. Come in today.
